Dycusburg cleanup set for next month

Dycusburg residents will have a chance to rid themselves of their unwanted, white goods and other scrap (items that would not normally be picked up by the garbage truck) from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., May 3. The town is coordinating a clean-up effort in advance of a dedication ceremony for a Veteran's Memorial Marker to be held July 4. Dycusburg residents needing assistance with cleanup or those who wish to volunteer for the cleanup effort should call 988-3004.

Drug-tampering case still ongoing

The investigation into drug tampering in the operating rooms at Crittenden Health Systems is continuing, the hospital confirmed this week. A suspect has been questioned by investigators, but a name has not been released and no charges have been filed at this time. Analysis of medications and vials seized by state police is ongoing at the police laboratory. Police have said that a variety of drugs in the two operating rooms were tampered with prior to discovery of the matter on April 1. The hospital has said that its own investigation has determined that patient care was not jeopardized due to the incident.

Courthouse closed Saturday for festival

All Crittenden County Courthouse offices will be closed Saturday as the Backroads Festival continues in Marion. The court square will be full of vendors set up for the two-day event that begins Friday.

Unemployment up slightly in Kentucky

Crittenden Health Systems will be on hand Saturday for the Backroads Festival at the courthouse. CHS volunteers will offer free blood pressure exams, health information, glucose fingersticks and door prizes. In addition, Crittenden Emergency Medical Services will have an ambulance on hand for the event.

Cow Patty Festival lands at Smithland

The Cow Patty Festival will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday at the Livingston County Fairgrounds in Smithland. There will be gospel singing, face painting, food, bake sales, games and quilt displays as well as many vendors. Come and join in the fun and support LHHS graduates. Call 988-3165 for more.

LHHS hosting silent auction for Relay

Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services is hosting a Relay for Life Themed Basket Silent Auction. Basket themes are Beach, Pamper Me, Sports, Car Care, Gardening, Beauty Supplies, Summer Fun, etc. Auction dates are April 28, 30 and May 2 in the Hospital Conference Room from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. The auction will end May 2 at 3:30 p.m. Contact Leah Quintermous at 988-7256 for more.

Unemployment up slightly in Kentucky

Kentucky's seasonally adjusted preliminary unemployment rate for March 2008 rose to 5.7 percent from February 2008's revised 5.3 percent, according to the Office of Employment and Training (OET), an agency of the Kentucky Education Cabinet. March 2007's jobless rate was 5.6 percent.

Hittin' the Backroads

19th annual event under way

STAFF REPORT

The annual Amish Tour and Backroads Festival is already under way this week in Crittenden County, drawing people from as far away as Great Britain.

Rose Crider, director of Marion Main Street Inc., said as of Tuesday afternoon the local event tied to Paducah's American Quilters' Society Quilt Show had drawn visitors from two countries — England and Canada — and nine states.

"One of those was from Branson, Mo.," Crider said. "I told them it's odd... we usually go to visit them."

The longtime volunteer with the event said it's hard to predict how many people the Backroads Festival brings to town, but she estimates as many as 2,000 locals and visitors will take part in the event this year.

In its 19th year, the festival will see vendors on the courthouse square, numerous quilt shows and self-guided tours of the local Amish community. All of the events are free and most take place both Friday and Saturday.

Visitors to the Amish community, meantime, have since Monday been following signs put up by Marion Tourism Director Michele Edwards to direct visits to the rural traders. Crider said she and Edwards have also been handing out maps of the community to those looking to sample some of the traditional Amish wares.

Many of those tourists will be stopping by Amos and Ella Bontrager's, Crider indicated. The Bontragers, who live on Ky. 1901, are one of the biggest attractions

Iraqi kids enjoying American charity

STAFF REPORT

Par 4 Plastics, Tyler Manufacturing and Xtreme Tracker are joining forces to raise money to buy candy and soccer balls for Iraqi children.

The plan started coming together recently, when Xtreme tracker chief information officer Kris Carlson urged some fellow employees to help him gather up items to send to his brother's military unit, which is stationed north of Baghdad at Camp Taji.

His brother, Cpt. Brandon Carlson, sent a letter home to his family and friends recently, explaining the need for soccer balls and candy. Part of the letter went like this:

"We have a very large diverse battlespace and so far we have been doing a good job in helping protect the populace and rebuilding the country. We are out on the streets daily interacting with the populace and performing patrols and other missions. One of our greatest assets here is building relationships with the Iraqis, especially the children who in turn provide us with cooperation and intelligence, which allows us all to operate in a more safe, secure environment."

One of the best ways to do that, Cpt.

Precious stones: Quarry takes off

A limestone quarry at Pinckneyville in Livingston County will be supplying the Gulf Coast with its needs while employing a number of local workers. The new quarry is named for Slats Lucas.

Pinckneyville supplying Gulf region with limestone

STAFF REPORT

A Mississippi paving company is banking on saving big bucks by quarrying and shipping its own limestone rock from western Kentucky to the Gulf Coast area.

Limestone is non-existent in the Lower Mississippi Delta region and the nearest, most economical place to find it is right here in western Kentucky. A shallow overburden and a myriad of rivers make mining and shipping rock a precious gem for this area.

Within a figurative stone's throw of Marion, there are a variety of rock quarries. From Martin-Marietta, Vulcan, Rogers Group to Titan America, quarry owners are diverse and numerous. There are quarries near Fredonia, Burna, Princeton, Mattoon and Pinckneyville. The newest quarry is located just up the Cumberland River from the tiny community of Pinckneyville in Livingston County. It's the second quarry in that general area. Warren Paving of Hattiesburg and Gulfport, Miss., is just now starting to ship limestone from its new quarry to its paving operations in lower Mississippi. Dirt work began last spring and quarry manager Jonathan Gilland says the quarry will soon be producing one million tons a year.

Gilland grew up around the Fredonia quarry where his father, Vernon, was manager. It's the only work he's ever known.

"This is the second green quarry I've helped put in," Gilland said, pointing to another operation on the opposite side of the river that he helped start a few years ago. The new quarry is named Slats

Earthquakes continuing to rattle region

By DARYL K. TABOR
MANAGING EDITOR

An early morning earthquake rattled Crittenden County Friday and continued to keep the ground moving in the region as late as Wednesday morning.

Though experts claim the constant shaking is not necessarily a portent of things to come, some four-legged residents appear to be more skeptical.

"They were clawing at the door. I thought they were going to break it down," Dwight Sherer said of his cats reacting to Friday's initial tremor. That quake could be felt for as long as 15 seconds in Marion.

Sherer was up before dawn, getting ready for work when the first, and strongest of 25 earthquakes since 4:37 a.m., Friday began to rumble across the Midwest. His cats that he had let outside were eager to get back in when the 5.2-magnitude quake hit. Neither were the dogs in his Fords Ferry Road neighborhood too happy about the shaking.

"When I went outside, every dog in the neighborhood was barking," Sherer said at Five Star Food Mart shortly after the first earthquake struck.

And that's about all anyone was talking about at the convenience store at 5 a.m. Marion's emergency dispatch center also fielded plenty of questions regarding the quake.

"I've had forty-eleven-dozen calls," said dispatcher Bob Woodward early Friday morning. "But no one's reported any injuries. They've all said it woke them up, though."

Crittenden Grand Jury indicts 7; 5 from drug cases

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Grand Jury met last Thursday and indicted seven individuals on various charges, most of them drug related. A theft charge against Victoria King was dismissed.

Four of the seven individuals were indicted following an undercover drug-buying operation that included a confidential informant.

Those indicted were as follows:

■ Rodney Barnett, 36, of Fredonia on three counts of trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of a school by complicity. The charges stem from undercover buys on three dates during the fall of last year. According to court records, a digital camera was used to record the transactions. The indictment alleges that Barnett, in conjunction with Tanya K.

Moodie (also indicted), sold 20 doses of Xanax to a cooperating witness on Oct. 20, 2007. The charges indicate that the informant paid $1 per dose for the pills. Additional buys were allegedly made on Nov. 16 and Dec. 15. Police records say that on those dates, the informant purchased 30 doses of Xanax and 16 doses of Nurotin for $60 in November and 26 doses of Xanax, 11 doses of Adderall and eight doses of Nurotin for a price of $100 in December. All of the alleged buys were made at a home in Marion within 1,000 feet of a school.

■ Tanya K. Moodie, 63, of 608 Blackburn St., Marion, was indicted on the same charges as the above defendant. Police records say that Moodie and Barnett were both involved in the same alleged drug sales to the informant.

■ Michael E. Hillyard, 49, of 535 E. Bellville St., Marion, was indicted on four counts of trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of a school, second-degree, second-offense trafficking in a controlled substance by complicity, and being a first-degree persistent felony offender. Hillyard, court records say, sold marijuana and Lortab tablets to an undercover informant on five dates in the fall of 2007.

■ Joseph Lee Shewmaker, 34, of 109 Starling Lane, Marion, was indicted for first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance and third-degree trafficking in a controlled substance. Court records allege that Shewmaker sold drugs to a confidential informant, including six doses of Percocet and eight doses of Valium.

■ Thomas Michael Tackwell, 29, of 630 Country Road, Grand Rivers, was indicted for second-degree burglary. Police records allege that Tackwell broke into a home in Marion and stole a Sentry fire safe on Dec. 4, 2007.

■ Lenoard D. Tolley, 32, of 228 Keeling St., Marion, was indicted for flagrant non-support for being behind by $16,905.02 in child support.

■ Kevin Ray Curry, 31, of 510 Henry Road, Fredonia, was indicted on a charge of first-degree possession of a controlled substance which police allege was methadone, a schedule II narcotic. Court records say that on Feb. 28, Curry was observed on the ground beside of his vehicle which was parked on the side of the road in the Caldwell Springs community.

Old jail needs to be preserved

We taxpayers of Crittenden County have just had a two-percent tax put on our insurance in order to cover all the county expenses. Many tried to head it off, but we did not succeed.

But now I come to you with something we can head off if we all work together.

To begin with, when I came here in the early 1960s, the jail we had people incarcerated in was deplorable. So I raised awareness and money to get new covers for the filthy mattresses, got the walls painted and other improvements, and the response was heart warming.

Later, we were able to tear it down and build the nice, well-constructed jail we've used since then.

When property for the big jail was being considered,

Rev. Lucy Tedrick
Religious Views
Crittenden Press guest columnist

the library board and the county court came to an agreement that the library would trade the property behind its facility for the then-present jail building with the agreement that if the library board wanted the jail to be razed and hauled away after six months the county agreed to shoulder the $40,000 cost.

Since then, the fiscal court and library board have made a temporary agreement that the county would utilize some of it for much-needed storage space for Christmas decorations and several other items. The library is also using some of it for storage.

However, some on the library board are pushing for the demolition of the building after the six months are up.

With all the cry from Washington, the state, the county and our own homes of tightening all our belts; the dire need in this county to conserve every dime we can; and the big need for more space for several options, this is not a good time to tear down a perfectly good building that taxpayers own just to accommodate a parking lot or some "maybe future" enlargement of the library. This building could be renovated for that "maybe future" need.

Also, we taxpayers just purchased a new Bookmobile to the tune of thousands, and after it is lettered at the cost of some $2,200, it will be eliminating the need for a lot of the parking as we will be footing a big gas bill to take it out to the people who use it in the county.

Several people I've talked with don't want it torn down as it is a very good building that could be used for the group that is looking for a place to help abused children or spouses temporarily until their problems are worked out.

There has also been talk of using it to house work-release inmates, for which the state would give reimbursement.

Another option is that it would be used to move all the genealogy section of the library into the building, giving the library more room and enhancing the genealogy department immensely.

So Crittenden County taxpayers, remember we own the library, both jails and the courthouse. Also, all who are on the court, library board and all that work in all these places are our employees, as we pay their checks and also pay someone to make them out for us.

There are good people involved in all of this and they need to hear from their employers, we taxpayers, as to what our desires are. To replace this building at this time would cost between $1.5 million to $2 million. Wouldn't we be wise stewards over all our hard-earned money and resources to keep this building and put it to some of these much needed uses?

If you agree we need to keep the building, making some kind of arrangement that is agreeable with most, and use it for all our good, please send letters to The Crittenden Press, and/or to the Library Board, 204 W. Carlisle St., Marion, KY 42064.

Any that would, it would help to get petitions signed and present them to the library, The Crittenden Press, or to me.

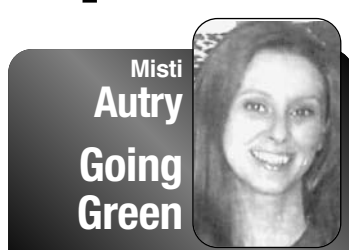

Thank you so much for your anticipated help. We can make a difference, and we will be given a fair hearing.

(Editor's note: Lucy Tedrick is pastor at Marion Church of God. Her column appears weekly in The Press.)

We can all pitch in to 'keep it green'

Spring inspires an admiration of nature in all of us. Nobody is immune from the charms of this most beautiful of seasons - the smells, the colors, the sounds. So look around for ways to ensure this beauty lasts for later generations.

Get outdoors and instill a love of nature in your children and grandchildren that will promote green habits. Plant a small garden together, plant a tree. Explore your backyard and look for insects. Find out how those insects are beneficial. Ladybugs and praying mantises eat many garden pests and can be encouraged to live in your backyard if you provide a water source, such as a shallow container with several stones in it to provide a safe place to drink without drowning. Birds also eat many pests; consider providing a water source to encourage their visits.

Misti Autry
Going Green
Guest columnist

The time for outdoor barbecues and parties is at hand. Try disposing of less waste. Set aside containers to collect plastic bottles or soda cans for recycling, opt for glass or reusable plastic plates and glassware instead of paper, and buy large quantities of food and drinks to reduce packaging. Does your child really need all those juice pouches and individually packaged goldfish crackers? Go for the bigger sizes and disperse in reusable containers.

With gas prices at unbelievable highs, look for ways to entertain the family closer to home. Cutting back on driving not only saves those bucks at the pump, but it cuts back on greenhouse gases.

Take some time to discover the Clement Mineral Museum on North Walker Street or The Crittenden County Historical Museum on East Bellville Street in the old Presbyterian Church. The Crittenden County Public Library is a treasure trove of fun. Children can take a voyage to an exotic destination while parents sitting alongside read about landscaping projects. The possibilities are endless. You can even check-out videos or DVDs and, yes, they're free. There are also the upcoming Marion Bobcats' games. Marion's baseball team promises top-notch family entertainment with their first home game at Marion-Crittenden County Park June 4. If you live in town, why not take a family walk or ride your bikes?

So when admiring the greenery this spring don't forget about the part you play in keeping it green. Every little bit helps.

(Editor's note: The author, Misti Autry, is 28 and a stay-at-home mom who spends her free time searching for good causes. She moved to Marion about four years ago from Ohio County.)

The Press Letters Policy

The Crittenden Press encourages letters on a variety of subjects. Letters should be submitted by 5 p.m., Friday the week before publication.

Letters must include the author's name, address, phone number and signature. Phone numbers will not be published, and are to authenticate a letter's author.

Letters should be written in good taste and in most cases should not exceed 300 words.

Letters will be edited for spelling and grammar and The Crittenden Press reserves the right to reject or edit letters for clarity, brevity and otherwise at our discretion. Writers should limit their letters to no more than one per month. Original copies of submitted letters will be retained in our files.

Letters may be brought into our office, sent to P.O. Box 191, Marion, Ky., 42064 or press news@the-press.com.

Abused could use old jail for safety

To the editor:

One topic discussed at this month's fiscal court meeting concerned possible uses for the former jail. I believe Sister Lucy Tedrick has also addressed this issue in her column.

Regardless of the other options that may be considered - expanding the genealogy section of the library, county records storage, or other uses that may be proposed - I hope the library board and the fiscal court will give serious consideration to setting aside a small section of the building as a temporary (24-48 hours) "safe house" for abused spouses and children.

The Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community has been aware of the need for a temporary facility of this type for some time. The location between the Marion police station and the jail where law enforcement officers are close at hand, the availability of showers, toilet facilities and easily-renovated sleeping space, the ability to secure the facility and the compatibility with other uses would allow us to meet a vital need in our community at little or no cost.

athletes and artisans. They must be well versed in the techniques of their craft (wrestling, mui thai, jujitsu, etc.) as well as physically and mentally prepared for the challenges met in the ring. It takes hard work, dedication, intelligence and perseverance to do what they do. I now have immense respect for fighters and enjoy the sport of MMA.

I realize the XFL and MMA may be "new" and "different" to many folks in this area.

Sometimes "new" and "different" can be a little scary to some, but I urge people to keep an open mind. You might find you are like me, and begin to appreciate what the sport has to offer. Besides, the XFL could potentially bring some much needed business to our area. Why close the door to such an opportunity?

4-H Camp sign-up ends May 16

By BONNIE BAKER
COUNTY 4-H AGENT

Even though you may not have put away your winter coat just yet, it's time to start thinking about 4-H summer camps.

Are you ready to experience one of the most fun weeks of your life? Do you like to catch bugs, butterflies, crawdads or fish? Maybe you love swimming, riflery, archery, canoeing, horseback riding, crafts or music. Do you like to go hiking and spend time identifying trees and critters you find along the way? Do you like making new friends and having lots of fun? If any of these things appeal to you, you need to sign up for 4-H camp this summer.

At West Kentucky's 4-H camp you'll find all of the fun things above and more. You might come to camp a little nervous and uncertain about what's to come, but you will soon find yourself meeting new friends and learning new skills and activities. You will find the week is gone before it gets started and all too quickly it's time to go home.

Of course, you'll be able to take home your memories of the time you spent shooting a bow and arrow, possibly being on the winning team in field relay games, cooling off at the pool and certainly the fun friends and camp staff you met.

Resident 4-H camps are open to all Kentucky youth, ages nine through fourteen. Groups of youths from every county will attend one of the four resident camps during the nine-week summer season. The 4-H camping program provides a safe, secure and fun environment for Kentucky campers. An onsite EMT/health care provider is always available to take care of campers needs.

Our camps have been awarded accreditation by the American Camp Association in recognition of our program using the "best practices in the camping industry" in providing a safe, nurturing, and fun environment for our campers.

4-H'ers from Crittenden County will attend the West Kentucky 4-H Camp at Dawson Springs from June 16-19. Kids do NOT have to be in 4-H to attend 4-H camp. Registration forms are now available at the Crittenden County Extension Office and are due back to the office by May 16.

Camp provides attendees with a diverse and fun learning environment with a focus on the 4-H philosophy of "learn by doing."

In addition to the traditional 4-H camp activities, the Crittenden County 4-H youth development program offers new and innovative classes and activities. Our members will horseback riding, cooking and much, much more!

For more information on camps and other activities in our 4-H youth development program, contact the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service at 965-5236. You can also visit the camp Web site: <http://www.ca.uky.edu/agcollege/4h/camp>. See you at camp!

Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

ance by a blind quilter at the Mantle Rock Native Education and Cultural Center in Marion. Diane Rose, nationally-recognized as "The Amazing Quilter," has been blind since 1984 and uses her sense of feel to stitch together quilts.

She has a goal to make 500 quilts by Aug 14, 2008, which is her 10th anniversary of making quilts. And, she's almost there, according to her Web site, www.theamazingquilter.com.

Besides one of her quilts being on display in President Bush's Crawford, Texas, ranch, the Marion Welcome Center has one of her works on display. The quilt display at the center will remain through the end of this month.

An Amish Market and Craft Bazaar can be found on the courthouse lawn Friday and Saturday, as well as other area vendors. Crider said booth spaces are still available.

All courthouse offices will be closed Saturday to accommodate the rush of visitors expected to downtown Marion.

A quilt show and bake sale will also be hosted Friday at the Marion Woman's Club on East Carlisle Street. Then, on Saturday, the Homemakers' Backroads Quilt Show will be held at Fohs Hall.

One change to note from earlier information released, the Backroads Antique Show and Sale held Friday and Saturday has been moved from Fohs Hall to the vacant Main Street building between Greenwell, Frazer & Peek and Antiques and Collectibles.

Fredonia and Carrsville are also joining in luring the abundance of visitors to the area for the Paducah quilt show. A quilt show will be held at the one-room schoolhouse in Fredonia today (Thursday), Friday and Saturday. A unique "Wash Day" reminiscence program and picnic lunch will be held at the Carrsville Community Center on Friday and Saturday.

Music to the ears

Fohs Hall Community Arts Foundation presented a concert from The Piatigorsky Foundation last week featuring the musical talents of Linda Rosenthal and the acting talents of Bill Blush. The program "Strings & Stories" blended music and theater by featuring "The Story of Ferdinand," several limericks and poems, and two classic violin selections. The Piatigorsky Foundation's mission is to make live classical music part of the fabric of everyday life for communities throughout the country. Above, Rosenthal plays a violin owned by James Robert Dorroh during the reception following the performance. Dorroh underwrote the performance.

earthquake was felt as far away as Canada and in 16 states, and subsequent tremors continue to occur, there have still been no reports of injury or damage locally. The repeated aftershocks, though, are starting to raise questions and worries among some residents.

Science, meantime, may offer solace to those fearing the end of times.

Gary Patterson, a geologist and information services director with the Center for Earthquake Research and Information at the University of Memphis (Tenn.), says there is no reason for panic despite five straight days of quakes.

"...Based on 30 years worth of instrumental data, we don't think these events are precursors to anything," Patterson said, adding an asterisk to his statement. "...But we can't say with certainty."

The fact the shaking isn't from the usual suspect also makes the recent earthquakes a bit of an anomaly.

Most tremors felt locally over the last several years have been centered somewhere in the New Madrid Seismic Zone to the west. Yet, of the 30 earthquakes that have occurred within 150 miles or so of Marion in the last week, only five of those can be attributed to the New Madrid Seismic Zone centered What's shakin'?

According to the USGS, 25 earthquakes have been epicentered in southeastern Illinois since Friday morning. All have occurred in the Wabash Valley Seismic Zone.

along the Tennessee-Missouri border. The balance have been centered in southeastern Illinois in the middle of the lesser-known Wabash Valley Seismic Zone.

"It is capable of producing 'New Madrid' size earthquake events," the Central United States Earthquake Consortium Web site says of the Wabash Valley zone.

Patterson said earthquakes similar to Friday's 5.2 have occurred in the Wabash Valley zone since 1968, most recently in 2002. None have triggered larger events, though many aftershocks were felt after a 1987 tremor. And the shaking related to last week's initial earthquake could last into next month, or beyond.

"The recent earthquakes in Wabash seem to be a classic aftershock sequence where events occur on, or near, the same fault as the mainshock; generally decay in magnitude over time; and become less frequent," Patterson said. "The time scale for this sequence could be hours, days or weeks."

Historically, the geologist said, at least eight earthquakes of magnitude 6.0 or greater have occurred courtesy of the Wabash Valley zone, with two of those greater than 7.0. He is, though, talking about the last 20,000 years.

Despite Patterson's reassurances, he indicates there are still lots of unanswered questions about earthquakes in the heartland.

"Is all the stress relieved after an earthquake in the central U.S., or is the system still 'charged up'?" he posed. "We don't know the energy budget or even why the energy is accumulating here as opposed to other weak spots in the North American continental crust."

Earthquake insurance

The phone lines at local insurance agencies have been lighting up since last Friday's quake. Customers with earthquake insurance are clearing up any questions about coverage and those without are asking how to get it.

Those without may have to wait a bit longer.

One Marion insurance agent said a waiting period of 72 hours after the last recorded earthquake is common among insurance companies. And, the risk is so great to those companies, that in some states, they do not even offer coverage. Kentucky, however, is not one of those states.

If property owners can afford earthquake coverage, they should be aware that deductibles for such policies differ from those for other risks. Instead of a flat fee deductible like those for most losses, the policyholder is responsible for a percentage of the loss before coverage kicks in. For Crittenden and all surrounding counties, that rate is limited to 15 percent or below.

At 15 percent, for instance, the total loss of a $75,000 home with $25,000 of contents ($100,000 total) would be covered for only $85,000. The owner would foot the first $15,000.

Ironically, the county just recently dropped earthquake coverage on its properties. The City of Marion also does not keep earthquake insurance on its properties.

QUARRY

Lucas Quarry in honor of longtime local quarry operator, the late Slats Lucas. Bill Frazer and Walt Gaylord, two local developers who helped broker the sale of the land for the Pinckneyville quarry, were instrumental in naming the quarry for Lucas.

The new quarry will produce nine different limestone products from rip-rap to small aggregate.

The quarry is quite unique in that it was built solely to produce rock for Warren Paving's southern operations. In the deep South, heavy overburden makes it virtually impossible to quarry rock. The stone is too deep and too expensive to get to.

Limestone aggregate generally sells for around $7.50 per ton. It can be produced for about $5.50 per ton. That made it profitable for Warren Paving to look 500 miles to the north to fully complete a vertical integration system when it comes to rock. The company has even purchased its own barges and will float the rock from Pinckneyville to Gulfport.

A loading pier has recently been completed using stone quarried from the site. Its proximity to the river made the limestone deposit even more attractive for Warren Paving. From where it's taken from the ground to where it's loaded onto a barge is only a few hundred feet.

The quarry employs 10 workers. One of them, Wayne Kinnis of Salem, was thrilled to have a job only a short drive from his house. He was commuting to another quarry further down into Livingston County.

Gilland said the new quarry is "a showpiece" in the industry. With almost all new equipment and a new crusher designed by Gilland, it's not only right out of the showroom, but aesthetically pleasing, too.

"Mr. (Lawrence) Warren, the company owner, is big on the environment," Gilland said. "When we started building the quarry we had to leave a big oak tree he liked and the old cattle barn by the front office."

The quarry was built on a working cattle farm and part of it is still used for grazing.

CHARITY

Carlson said, is to gain the children's trust. Passing out candy and soccer balls helps achieve that goal.

Carlson's mother, Lee Gardella, has been a tireless supporter of the troops overseas. She has been collecting items and sending them to soldiers for several years. The recent letter home from her West Point-graduate son adds some new urgency to her efforts.

"This used to be something I wanted to do. Now, it's something I need to do," she said,

"because it can save lives."

The letter pointed out that her son and his unit are on the streets of Iraq every day, facing a variety of conditions.

The effort to collect balls and candy is growing exponentially as more and more people and groups - like the three Marion manufacturing companies - start chipping in to help, Carlson said.

"I have even had an attorney, who was in the military himself, offer to set up a non-profit corporation so I can start getting larger donations," Gardella said.

Lisa French, personnel manager at Par 4 Plastics, said the three companies are taking donations from employees and the corporations are going to at least match the contributions and possibly double them.

Joe McDaniel, president of Par 4, is encouraging other community groups and companies to join the effort.

"I am sure there are many in the community who would like to help," he said.

Domestic dispute leads to stabbing

A domestic dispute turned violent early Saturday and a father and son ended up in the hospital.

Police were called to a home at 845 Fords Ferry Road at 4:15 a.m., where they found residents Jackie Jones and his son, Josh Jones, had been stabbed. Police said it was a domestic dispute involving the Joneses and the suspect Josh Sisco.

Sisco, 24, of the above address, was taken into custody and lodged in the Crittenden County Detention Center. He is facing two counts of second-degree assault and alcohol intoxication.

The Joneses were treated for stab wounds and released from Crittenden Hospital. Josh Jones had a laceration across his abdomen and Jackie Jones had puncture wounds to the side and ear.

Police said that it appears that Jackie Jones' daughter was dating the suspect. A state police news release on the incident did not specify a motive for the stabbing.

A four-inch blade folding knife was recovered at the scene.

Tolu firefighters add rescue tool

Tolu Volunteer Fire Department has a new fire-fighting and rescue tool.

Fire Chief Tony Alexander was in Marion last week showing off the department's new Joyner Side-by-Side four-wheel ATV purchased locally from Hunter Auto Sales at Salem.

Alexander brought the ATV to town last week to show county magistrates. The rig cost about $12,000, which included a trailer from Buntin Trailer Sales in Marion and a skid unit for fighting brush fires. The skid unit includes a 25-gallon water tank, reel, hose and pump.

The unit will be used for fighting field fires and also as a search and rescue vehicle. It will be made available to other emergency agencies if they need it, Alexander said.

Funds for the purchase came from state aid, fire dues and other grants. The department is also accepting donations to help pay off the balance.

Carrsville woman injured in accident

A Carrsville woman was injured early this week in a Muhlenberg County accident.

Heidi Guill, 24, was flown Sunday to Vanderbilt Hospital in Nashville for treatment of injuries sustained in the one-vehicle accident along the Wendell H. Ford Western Kentucky Parkway near Central City.

According to a Kentucky State Police Report, Guill was eastbound on the parkway when for an unknown reason she lost control and struck a guardrail along the right side of the road. The vehicle then crossed the median and struck the westbound guardrail. After the second impact, the car came to a rest in the eastbound lanes of the parkway.

The accident occurred at 2:45 a.m., Sunday. Guill was not wearing a seatbelt.

Events planned at the center, such as this weekend's quilt show, will remain as scheduled.

Mail scam asking for ID particulars

Livingston County resident Charles Babb has seen his share of scams and schemes. That's why the Lola resident never blinked when he found a letter in his mailbox from a man named Jerome Attie, who claimed to be an accountant and auditor for the Bank of Ireland.

"I knew immediately what it was," said Babb, who spent a couple decades in local government as a county magistrate.

The letter was like many others that people in the area have received. E-mails, letters and even phone calls have the same objective, to rip you off, said Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent.

"I got a similar letter at my house, too," the sheriff said.

The letter Babb received was somewhat unique in that it insinuated illegal activity. It told Babb that an American investor with his same last name had died and left $3.9 million in an Ireland bank account. Based on United Kingdom law, the letter said, Babb could conceivably claim to be the only live heir and claim the money. The letter asked Babb to contact Attie for further instructions.

"Never give out your bank account, Social Security number, or any other private information unless you are absolutely certain of the credibility of the person or company you're giving it to," the sheriff said.

Agent said that letters like those Babb received should be immediately destroyed. He said residents may bring them to his office, but the local sheriff does not have the resources to investigate such scams that originate overseas. He said Kentucky State Police doesn't either.

If you have a letter that originated in the United States, it might be able to be traced to the originator.

City doesn't renew Mantle Rock lease

The days of the Mantle Rock Native Education and Cultural Center could be numbered... at least at its current location.

Though efforts are still ongoing by Momfeather Erickson to raise enough money to purchase the 40-plus acres of city-owned land on which the center is located, the group's lease on the property expired earlier this month. Because certain conditions of the lease have not been met, the City of Marion opted to not renew the lease to the group.

Erickson had been scheduled to appear before the Marion City Council on Monday, but was not present to speak on behalf of the center. Apparently, some within the city are still willing to sell the land to Erickson and the Cultural Center with backing from another Cherokee group out of Louisville.

Last month, prior to the expiration of the lease on the property, city council members told Erickson they did not believe the group had fulfilled its obligation to develop the property in ways prescribed by the lease contract.

Crittenden Jail report

Starting this week, Crittenden County Detention Center will regularly provide The Crittenden Press with a weekly report of its inmate count and work release program.

The 133-bed facility houses federal, state and local inmates as well as those from other counties. Some of those prisoners choose to take part in a work-release program, if they meet strict Kentucky Department of Corrections criteria. Each of the state inmates participating earns 63 cents per day paid by Corrections as well as one day off their sentence for each 40 hours worked, according to Shea Holliman with the detention center. The pay doubles to $1.25 per day when an inmate is 120 days or fewer from serving out their sentence.

Inmates are supervised and carry out a variety of labor regularly undertaken by local municipal departments.

Crittenden County Detention Center work-release for the week of April 14-20:

- Six men at 40 hours each mowing crew
 - Marion-Crittenden County Park
 - Crittenden County Courthouse
 - Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum and Cabin
 - Crittenden County Senior Citizens
 - Crittenden County Ed-Tech Center
 - Crittenden County Health Department
- Three women at 16 hours each mowing crew
 - Crittenden County Detention Center
 - Crittenden County Jail (old building)
- Two men at 8 hours each to City of Marion Water and Sewer Plant
- Two men at 8 hours each to City of Marion to mow City Hall
- Three men at 40 hours each to Crittenden County Road Department
- One man for 40 hours to Crittenden County Animal Shelter
- One man for 8 hours to Marion Police Department for janitor work
- Saturday April 19, 2008, three men went to Caldwell County and passed their GED test.

Additionally, there are state inmates working as janitors and kitchen staff in the facility. All of the work release inmates who work outside the Crittenden County Detention Center are state inmates. State inmates who are involved in the Work Release Program are classified after going through an assessment by the Department of Corrections, and they are given their work custody level by Corrections.

Crittenden County Detention Center inmate count, classification as of April 22:

Total: 108	Federal: 1	Crittenden County: 12
	State: 93	Other counties: 3

Lost Bible searching for home

STAFF REPORT
Most Bible readers are familiar with the story of the good Samaritan in the book of Luke, but in Crittenden County a modern version of the compassionate finder is lending assistance to the Bible itself.

On Dec. 26, 2007, Mott City resident Phyllis Werderman found an intended gift lying along the road near her home. Some distance away, she knew it must have been a book from the effect passing cars had on it. "The front cover was being blown by the wind," Werderman said. "I sent my daughter out to pick it up." What the daughter found inside a tattered and scuffed box was a beautiful, black-and-tan leather bound Bible. The book, safely contained in its protective covering, bears not a scar from what must have been a tumble from a passing vehicle.

Homeless Bible

A Bible found along the roadside late last year is searching for its home. An ad in this week's classifieds reads: BIBLE FOUND in Mott City area on Dec. 26. Black & tan leather cover with gold lined pages. Inside reads: to: Ed, from: Barbara, occasion: Christmas. Call 965-3191.

"That's an expensive Bible," Werderman added.

Surely many had passed it by over the course of its homelessness, as it was clearly marked for a gift to be given on the day before, Christmas.

On the first of its 1,700-plus gold-lined pages is a dedication page: Presented to Ed from Barbara for Christmas 2007.

It's likely the Word of God has not even been read from this Bible, though the bookmark can be found nestled between Psalms 93 and 94. Perhaps Luke 10 and its story of the Good Samaritan await to be read to a grandchild, spouse or friend.

Hence, this Bible is searching for its intended keeper or its giver who may finally share its wisdom and stories with a loved one.

Anyone who can claim the giant print, New King James Version should contact The Crittenden Press at 965-3191. The Bible has been left at The Press by its finder so that its rightful owner may lay claim to the book.

Carrsville hosts inspirational program

STAFF REPORT
For many, the term "wash day" harkens back to the age of tubs and washboards and clothes flapping on the line in a stiff spring breeze. Wash day was just that, an entire day consumed by laundry.

Gwen Cadick knows that experience well and is hoping to share a taste of wash day with others. The Evansville resident has made fast friends with a few Carrsville women and will be presenting her unique, inspirational "Wash Day Picnic" program Friday and Saturday in the little Ohio River town.

"It's a subject close to my heart," Cadick said last week during a visit to the Carrsville Community Center to begin setting up for her two, three-hour programs at the center.

Cadick grew up helping her grandmother with the weekly wash using a Maytag Commander. Listening to her recite her wash day memories written in verse for the program, one can almost smell the soaps and hear the sheets flapping in the wind as Cadick as a six-year-old frolics with her grandmother.

"I adored my grandmother," Cadick said, tears welling in her eyes at the end of her poem.

After hanging the clothes on the line, Cadick and her grandmother would walk to the meadow down from the farmhouse with Buttermilk the cat and Ike, an old coonhound, by their side. She and her grandmother would while away the time picking flowers and enjoying a picnic of fried chicken, potato salad and rolls.

Some of the same fare, including dessert, will be enjoyed Friday and Saturday by participants in Cadick's Wash Day Picnic program.

Participants truly will be taken back in time with her

are spiritual, but you won't need a Bible to follow along.

Cadick's ministry was conceived four years ago when she found herself alone in the world, still wanting to help others. So, she took up her knack for verse, love of her elders and endless creativity to build reminiscence programs for residents of retirement and assisted living homes who may have felt like the world had passed them by.

"I started with seven people and one-and-a-half years later there were 100 joining in," she recalled.

Men and women can enjoy Wash Day Picnic. In fact, male participants in her earlier Sweet Reflections program have already promised to appear Friday and Saturday at the Carrsville Community Center.

The cost for the program and picnic is $15. It begins at 11:30 a.m., each day.

Super searches continue

STAFF REPORT

On the same night two local school districts met to further their search for a new superintendent, Union County introduced its new head of schools.

Joshua E. Powell, former superintendent of Cloverport Independent Schools in Breckinridge County, Ky., has been hired to replace Dr. Gerald Novak in Union County. The board of education there decided last October not to renew the contract of Dr. Gerald Novak, who had served as superintendent for the last six years.

Powell was introduced Monday to the public in a meet-and-greet in Morganfield.

Meantime, Crittenden and Livingston County school districts continue the search to replace their retiring superintendents. Search committees for both districts met in closed session with their board members Monday to discuss their respective applicants.

Chris Cook, chairman of Crittenden County's board of education, said superintendent applications were handed over from the screening committee.

"The board is now reviewing the applications for the first time," Cook said Tuesday.

The board hopes to find a replacement for outgoing Superintendent John Belt by mid-May at the latest. They will meet in closed session again Friday to discuss applications and finalize plans for the interview process, which is scheduled for April 28 to May 13.

Like Belt, Superintendent of Livingston County Schools Jack Monroe announced in February his intentions to retire at the end of the current school year. That district's board of education also met Monday to discuss applicants, but no action was taken and the hiring process continues with another meeting Friday.

Currently, more than 30 of Kentucky's 176 school districts searching for a new superintendent

Lester improving, unborn baby still well

By ALLISON EVANS

ASSOCIATE EDITOR

Very rarely is there excitement embedded in a tragedy, yet anxiety and anticipation are the emotions Edna Smith experiences almost simultaneously.

Smith is taking turns sitting by her daughter Steffany Smith-Lester's bedside while she is recovering from a serious car accident that occurred Feb. 12. While Steffany is slowly improving following a brain injury and major hip damage she suffered in the crash, her unborn baby is doing well, doctors say.

The couple's daughter, Jade Lester, has continued to amaze doctors and nurses at three medical facilities in two states. Now she is growing and doing well against the odds.

"Yesterday, Steffany went to the baby doctor and everything is great. She is due Aug. 15," Edna Smith said. At 23 weeks pregnant, Steffany is still on a feeding tube but is breathing on her own and moved her leg and neck during a recent therapy session.

Still, she will remain at Cardinal Hill Rehabilitation Center in Lexington for at least 10 more weeks.

"It is nerve-racking until the baby is born to see if everything affected it," Edna Smith said. "They think (Steffany) will get back to herself almost, but it will take a while and even after the baby is born, she will have to go back in for more rehab, and it will take a long time (to recover)."

Doctors have told the Smiths and Steffany's husband Shain that Steffany, 21, suffered some brain damage but don't know to what extent.

Now therapists are working to strengthen Steffany's neck muscles so she can sit alone and regain muscle control in her neck and back. In the meantime, trips to her obstetrician and orthopedic surgeon are made with Steffany strapped into a wheelchair.

"They want to get her up on her feet May 9," Edna said.

Steffany opens her eyes and looks at her family members and Edna said she can tell her daughter is paying attention when she talks about the baby, though she doesn't always respond.

"She's got to have some Gussie Underdown in her," Edna said. "She was a fighter, they told my mom she'd never make it through night I don't know how many times, but she did so many times."

Initially following the accident, doctors told the family that they were first trying to save Steffany, because her injuries were so serious. And in fact, they told the family on at least two occasions that the baby would not survive as a result of the strong medicines they used to save Steffany. But twice – even after Steffany was put to sleep for an eight-hour hip surgery – doctors were amazed by the baby's strong heartbeat.

Now Steffany's nurses are wanting to plan a baby shower.

As Edna prepared to return to Lexington Tuesday to trade places with her son-in-law, she said Steffany will be amazed when she realizes the outpouring of support she's received from home. Either Edna or Shain has been at Steffany's side since the accident, and her father Steve has visited on weekends.

"You realize how many people really care," Edna said. "You don't really know a small town's worth until something happens; everybody pulls together, and everybody has been so good to us."

Lester can receive cards mailed to Cardinal Hill Rehabilitation Hospital, 2050 Versailles Road, Lexington, KY 40504.

Judge gives $34 million to former land owners

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) – A federal judge has recommended a $34.3 million award to former Union County landowners whose property was taken to create a World War II-era military training post.

Judge Susan Braden of the U.S. Court of Federal Claims in Washington, D.C., recommended that Congress appropriate at least $34,303,980.42 in restitution for land and mineral rights lost by the landowners when the government appropriated their land to create Camp Breckinridge.

Braden issued a 53-page ruling late Friday, saying the amount represents only 27 percent of the $127 million benefit the government received from taking the land and mineral rights.

"In considering this recommendation, Congress should be mindful that the entire amount of revenue that the Government received for the lease and sale of these rights is unknown, because the Government failed to produce or destroyed relevant documents that would verify the correct amount," Braden wrote.

The former landowners and their heirs were finding out about the decision Saturday.

"We ought to get more than that," said William Griggs, 83, whose grandparents were forced off their land in 1942. "But, if we get that much, we're fortunate."

Braden's decision now goes before a three-judge panel. If the panel okays the judgment, the measure will go to Congress, which must appropriate the money before landowners are compensated.

The dispute over Camp Breckinridge originated in 1933 and involves more than 1,000 former landowners.
