Bipartisan agreement helps keep pension system solvent

As the primary sponsors of the pension reform bill cited at length this week, Senate Majority Leader Clark Beamer and Rep. Mike Cundiff backed the initiative, which their respective chambers of the General Assembly passed, before adjourning.

Beamer, a former Kentucky Republican, led the bill. The Senate, with a 34-1 vote, and the House, with an 85-2 vote, advanced the pension bill. The bill now goes to the governor.

The long-awaited pension bill, aimed at keeping the state's retirement system solvent, is expected to pass into law next week.

One American who clearly wouldn't be in favor of pension reform is former Justice Antonin Scalia, who recently called retirement systems and other government programs “a species of liberal radicalism.”

The game is now in the hands of the Senate, where an amendment to HB 1, the pension reform bill, has been proposed by Sen. Donates, a Democrat who is the leader of the Senate. The amendment would strike down the actuarial assumptions used by the pension system, thereby making it more difficult for the state to fix the pension system.

The Senate is expected to vote on the amendment soon, and it is unclear whether it will pass. If it does, it could cause significant delays in the pension reform process.

In the meantime, Governor Andy Beshear, who supports the pension reform bill, has urged the Senate to pass the bill as is.

“I urge the Senate to pass the pension bill as is,” Beshear said in a statement. “I believe it is the right thing to do, and it is the only way to ensure the long-term financial stability of the state retirement system.”

The pension reform bill would phase out the current system and create a new, more sustainable plan. It would also increase contributions from state employees and reduce benefits for retirees.

The bill has been praised by retirement system officials and by many state lawmakers. However, it has also been criticized by some who argue that it does not go far enough to fix the pension system.

One critic, former Gov. Steve Beshear, has said that the pension reform bill does not go far enough.

“I don’t think the pension reform bill goes far enough,” Beshear said in a statement. “I believe we need to do more to fix the pension system, and I urge the Senate to pass a stronger bill.”

The pension reform bill is expected to be signed into law by Governor Beshear next week. The new pension system is expected to take effect in 2019.

Although I cannot do much to change the situation, the pension reform bill is a step in the right direction. I urge all state lawmakers to support the bill and to work towards fixing the pension system for the benefit of all Kentuckians.

Hodge's legacy will live forever

To the editor:

When you think about legislators and their legacies, you don’t have to look very far to find one of the greatest. John J. Hodge was a man of principles, a champion of the people, and a true leader of the Commonwealth.

In 1968, Hodge was elected to Congress, where he served for 24 years, during which time he was a vocal critic of the Vietnam War and an advocate for civil rights.

Hodge was a Democrat who never wavered in his beliefs, even when it meant standing alone against the tide. He was a true public servant who put the needs of his constituents above his own interests.

Hodge’s legacy will live on through the people he served and through the work he did. His legacy is one of courage, conviction, and commitment to the common good.

As we remember John J. Hodge and all those who have served in Congress, let us honor their sacrifices and their dedication to the ideal of a government of the people, by the people, and for the people.

The Press

Not race, nor party, but the high court

Not in the history of this country has there been so much at stake for so many people as there is in the upcoming Supreme Court term.

The four justices who will retire at the end of the term are Anthony Kennedy, Antonin Scalia, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, and Sandra Day O’Connor. Their replacements will be appointed by the next president, and it is not clear which party will control the Senate.

The court is split 4-4 on many important issues, and it is likely that the justices will be evenly divided on many of the cases that come before them.

The upcoming term will be crucial for the future of the country, and it is essential that the court make the right decisions.

It is important that we all pay close attention to the court’s rulings and to the arguments presented by the lawyers who appear before it.

The court’s decisions will have a profound impact on our lives, and it is up to us to ensure that the court is making decisions that are just and fair.

I urge all Americans to take an interest in the court’s work and to stay informed about the cases that come before it.

Principal at CHCS still open

Karen Roman’s replacement as principal at Crittenden High School will be one of the last critical decisions to be made before the start of the new school year. Principal Roman has already announced the retirement of one of the school district’s most successful educators.

On Friday, June 27, the Marion County Board of Education announced plans to host a retirement reception in honor of Karen Roman. The event is scheduled for July 13 at 2 p.m. at the Marion County High School auditorium.

City, county work toward FEMA aid

Fred Brown is still awaiting word from the state’s Department of Community Planning and Development on a grant application for the community’s biggest project in years, the new Crittenden County High School.

Brown has spent time last week working with FEMA representatives and reviewing the school’s damage assessment report. The state has been working to process a grant application for improvements to the school’s facilities.

“We are not under a clock,” Brown said. “We want to get this right. We want everything to be done correctly,” he said.

Marian Ed-Tech will give Dr. Brown a promotion to chief meteorologist at WPSD 19. He will be joining the station in the fall.

Crittenden County Sheriff’s Office

Karen Roman has been named as principal of Crittenden High School. She will replace the retiring principal, Karen Roman, who was in charge for 28 years and is a former teacher at the school.

Governor’s Crown

The governor’s crown is being awarded to the high school for its academic performance.

New pastor leads faithful at Deer Creek

By CHRIS HARDESTY

Despise not him that reproach thee: but, as ye have learned in Christ, endurance is great things in more or less.

After surviving a car accident on May 7, 1976, at First Baptist Church in Louisville, Bro. Tom Brown of Calvary Baptist Church in Minburn, Ky., has been able to resume his duties at the church where he has pastored for 17 years.

Today, Brown can be found behind the pulpit at Deer Creek Baptist Church in Minburn, Ky.

“I give credit to the church. They have been great,” Brown said.

Today, Brown was able to share a word of encouragement with his fellow believers at the church which he first church, pastoring a bachelor of arts degree in ministry at Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. He graduated from the seminary just more than a half ago.

Bro. Brown, who preached at First Baptist Church in Louisville for nine years, says the Lord has had an impact on him, "I want to do it with them," the Metropolis, Ill., man says.

The much loved really love is not the usual love. It is a love that is free of the ordinary wants and needs. It is a love that is both patient and kind. It is a love that is always ready to forgive, never angry or resentful. It is a love that rejoices with the joy of the Lord. It is a love that endures all things, believes all things, bears all things.

We love and miss you.

Memories

no matter how small, can be pictures

for those few

left behind

to remember the special people,

children,

and loved ones that we miss. It helps to regain

a sense

happiness and comfort.

It will help

us

remember

the great

we will never forget.

We love and miss you.
