

Students return Aug. 6 for half-day

We are anxiously awaiting the arrival of all students back to school. It is our expectation that your child will experience one of the most successful and rewarding school years in his/her school history. As the primary instructional leader for the Crittenden County Schools, I am optimistic that the Crittenden County Schools will be each and every parent's "school of choice."

At the beginning of a school year, it is important for you to know that there is a purposeful commitment by the district leadership and the board of education to improve student achievement in this school district. We are committed to implementing the following district/school standards for continuous improvement:

- Building strong relationships with students, families and the community at large;
- Setting high expectations for academic performance at all levels;
- Creating safe/orderly, inviting learning environments for all students, and
- Seeking efficient methods for maximum use of all available resources.

School, family and community partnerships

We believe that "students do not care how much you know, until they know how much you care." Creating positive communication methods, recognizing the positive contributions of students and staff, and developing true supportive relationships between schools, families and the community will ensure that the students enrolled in Crittenden County Schools know that we genuinely care about their academic successes and will do whatever it takes to help them learn at high levels.

It is our belief that the way schools care about children is reflected in the way the schools care about the children's families. This view assumes that both the family and the community are partners with the school in children's education and development. Partners recognize their shared interests in and responsibilities for children, and they work together to create better programs and opportunities for students. When parents, teachers, students and others view one another as partners in education, a caring community forms around student learning and continuous improvement.

Academic performance commitments

Continuous improvement with regard to curriculum, instruction and assessment for student learning will be priorities throughout this school year. We will ensure that our curriculum for students in rigorous, intentional and aligned with state and local standards. The Crittenden County Schools will use multiple evaluation and assessment strategies to continuously monitor and modify instruction to meet student needs and support proficient student work. The school's instructional program will actively engage all students by using effective, varied and research-based practices to improve student academic performance.

Learning environment commitments

The Crittenden County Schools/District will function as an effective learning community and support a safe, orderly school climate conducive to performance excellence. We will work with families and community groups to remove barriers to learning in an effort to meet the intellectual, social, career and developmental needs of students. We will provide research-based, results-driven professional development opportunities for staff and implement performance evaluation procedures in order to improve teaching and learning.

Efficiency/leadership commitments

Crittenden County school and district instructional decisions will focus on support for teaching and learning, organizational direction/vision, high performance expectations, the creation of learning culture and the development of leadership capacity. Both the district and schools will be organized to maximize the use of all available resources to support high student and staff performance.

What an exciting time to be involved with the educational progress in Crittenden County! The time has come for us to focus our time, talent and collective energies in providing a 21st century education for Crittenden County students. We believe that the Crittenden County Schools will be one of the highest performing districts in the state of Kentucky within a short period of time. What a tremendous opportunity we have been given to impact the future of our children for a lifetime. I look forward to our journey together.

New program offers 'Pathway' to diploma for at-risk students

By EMORY WILLIAMSON
STAFF WRITER

After dropping out of Crittenden County High School in January, 18-year-old Matt Thurmond said some individuals, including his father and his girlfriend's father, had doubts that he would be able to return to school and obtain a diploma.

Now, he wants to prove them wrong.

"Since I dropped out (of school), my dad thinks I'm not going to do it, but my dad will admit to being wrong if I actually go through with it and better myself," said Thurmond, who wants to pursue a career in video game design. "And I want to prove my girlfriend's dad wrong because he told me that he didn't think I was going to amount to anything."

Thurmond recently signed up for the Pathway Academy, an alternative school administered by CCHS in order to help dropouts obtain a diploma and better themselves within the community.

According to Vince Clark, instructional supervisor for both the middle and high school, the program was created in order to combat rising dropout numbers in the high school.

"I was just alarmed at the number of dropouts we were having since it's an extraordinary amount for a district our size," said Clark of the increase in dropout numbers. "I was worried about (the students') future and the impact on our community as a whole."

Dropout rates have risen significantly over the past four years and because of that, school officials under former Superintendent John Belt began searching for a program that would reduce the number of dropouts to a more reasonable level. Since the 2004-05 school year, when 13 students dropped out of CCHS, the number of dropouts has increased by an average of more than five students per year. According to Clark, the 2007-08 school year had about 8-9 percent of the students at CCHS drop out.

Thurmond, who was part of an 11-student increase in dropouts from 23 in 2006-07 to last year's 34, said the main reason he left school was because he simply lost interest.

"I just got fed up with (school) and I wanted to drop out after my freshman year," said Thurmond, who had to wait until he turned 18 to quit school without his parents' approval. "After that, I basically gave up. If I don't really care about it, then I'm not going to do it."

"The future of Kentucky's economy is how we deal with at-risk students."

school board chairman

Clark acknowledged that a lack of interest in subject matter is often attributed to the student not being able to function properly within the school system. Thurmond, for instance, said he struggled with drama and gossip at CCHS.

"Not all kids learn on the same day in the same way," Clark said. "These kids have tried, and they have failed, and they've gotten frustrated and discouraged, and it's got to be a bad place to be when you just say 'I quit.'"

Other students involved in the 2007-08 increase include 18-year-old James Berry, who dropped out of CCHS in February. However, Berry's reason for dropping out of high school differs from that of Thurmond. Berry cited his health, including issues with his esophagus and anxiety he had struggled with since developing them as a young teenager.

"I just missed a lot of school," said Berry, adding that he had made decent grades in school until he started getting sick. "I would miss a lot of school at once, and I just couldn't get caught up."

Initially, the Pathway Academy struggled to take off as school officials worked to obtain a grant. Clark attributed this struggle to the county being perceived as a smaller problem compared to other, larger school districts requesting grants.

"It is something that has taken a lot of effort and time," said Clark, who has spent the past few weeks visiting homes of potential Pathway students. "There have been tears and prayers have been answered because these parents have been very concerned about their child dropping out of school and what's going to happen (to them)."

According to Chris Cook, chairman of the Crittenden County Board of Education, the initial $25,000 grant was supplemented by an additional $33,000 grant provided by the school board. Cook said an analysis conducted by the board over a four-year period shows a $600,000-plus loss by the school district due to students dropping out of school.

"We just think about the change that a high school diploma makes in a young person's life and that's what we're really focused on," said Cook. "A $600,000 loss to our budget in this type of budget crunch is alarming, but you don't see board members, administrators and teachers crying about lost money; they're crying about young people that are throwing their lives away."

Cook said the board's decision to invest in the Pathway Academy was needed in order to ensure the success of the new program.

"It was critical for the program to even come to life because the grant was not sufficient to fully fund the program," said Cook. "For those 30-plus dropouts that we had last year, it's critical for their futures."

Berry's mother, Cheryl Berry, who tearfully praised the Pathway Academy, said she had nearly lost hope until she heard from Clark about the new program a few weeks ago.

"It's a miracle," said Cheryl of the program's timing in their lives. "Our prayers were answered, because with this, James is getting a second chance."

Because of his truancy, James could have been sent to a juvenile detention center due to excessive

CCHS principal still unnamed
Though school is just two weeks from convening for the 2008-09 academic year, Crittenden County High School has yet to put its leadership in place. Both principal and assistance principal posts remain vacant after the resignations of Karen Nasserri and Steve Head, respectively. Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said she was hopeful of a recommendation by the CCHS SBDM this week. In fact, the SBDM is scheduled to meet this Friday to further discuss hiring criteria for a new principal. Once the SBDM recommends a candidate for hire, Yarbrough will make a final decision. The new principal will then have a say in the hiring of an assistant. Nasserri is now special education coordinator for the local school district, while Head relocated to George.

absences from school. However, his mother said she wouldn't stand for that type of punishment. "He couldn't (go to school) because he was sick," said Cheryl, who was also denied the choice to home school her son. "If my child can't go to school because of sickness then I'm not going to make him."

James, who needs only four credits to graduate so that he may pursue a career in film, said the decision to drop out was difficult for him and his family. "I didn't want to (drop out) and I knew it was a bad decision," he said of his decision in February. "But it was one of those things that I had to do."

Clark said many dropouts have considered returning to school after learning that obtaining an adequate job becomes more difficult without a high school diploma. "Without a (diploma) they are very limited and that's been very hard for them to understand until now," said Clark. Thurmond found that out the hard way. "I've always thought that the only way I'm going to learn is the hard way," said Thurmond, who couldn't get a job for three months after he dropped out of CCHS. "But I found out it's really hard to get a good job in a small town without a diploma."

According to Clark, the Pathway Academy will have two time slots – the first from 8 to 11 a.m. and the second from noon to 3 p.m. – in order to appropriately section off students. The class will be held at the former alternative education building located next to the central office and will be taught by former CCHS teacher, Tammy Duvall, who was a yearbook and ed-tech instructor last year at the high school. "Our school district is very committed to our young people being prepared for life after high school," said Cook, who added that the dropout concern is just a part of the issue at large. "If they drop out, their chances of being prepared for life are not as great as they are for a high school graduate."

Dear CCMS parents and students

Welcome back! I hope you have all had an awesome summer and are eager to begin the 2008-09 school year. We are excited to have our seventh- and eighth-graders back at Crittenden County Middle School this year and are looking forward to getting to know our new group of 6th graders. I'm happy to let you know that we will have exactly the same staff at CCMS as last year. It's going to be a great year!

We would like to invite all students and parents to our annual Open House on Tuesday evening, Aug. 5. We are trying something a little different this year with sixth-grade orientation from 5:30 to 7 p.m., and open house from 6:30 to 8 p.m. We hope that this format will allow some needed additional time for our new students and parents to become familiar with CCMS. Sixth-grade parents and students will need to be in the CCMS gym at 5:30 p.m., to begin Orientation. We hope that students and parents from all grade levels will come out and visit with us that evening. You will be able to pick up your registration forms as well as put money into your student's lunch account and purchase agenda books. We look forward to seeing many familiar faces and new ones as well. Research shows that students do better in school when their parents are actively involved in their education. With that in mind, we invite each of you to become involved at CCMS this year. We encourage you to touch base with your student's teachers often. All CCMS grade level teachers have a common planning period that allows you to meet with all of them at once. By meeting with teachers, you'll be able to learn firsthand how your child is doing, and you'll have a chance to discuss strengths and weaknesses. Feel free to call the office (965-5221) anytime you would like to set up an appointment. Email is also a great way to communicate with school. You can email any staff member by entering theirfirstname.lastname@crittenden.kyschools.us as the email address. I would also like to ask that you share your email address with us as we will send out periodic emails to make you aware of upcoming events and important information. Lastly, I'd like to remind you that the CCMS Student Handbook, located in your student's agenda book, is a great resource with lots of information on the way things operate at CCMS. It would be a good idea to familiarize yourself with the handbook in order to be aware of such things as the CCMS Dress Code, Attendance Policies, etc.

Letter from the principal

I also invite you to get involved at CCMS by volunteering during the school day and/or during special events. Please indicate your willingness to help with these things on the volunteer sheet in your registration packets. We could really use your help! You are also invited to attend SBDM and PTO meetings. You will find the dates for these activities in our monthly newsletters, on our website, and on our marquee. We'd love to have you join us for any and all activities.

Please know that my door is always open to you. I hope that you will feel free to come by or call anytime you need my assistance or have new ideas to share. Staying in close contact with school is a great way to show your student that you value his/her education.

In closing, please know that our staff is fully dedicated to making Crittenden County Middle School a place where students feel safe and secure and are able to learn and achieve at high levels. I am very proud of our students and staff and eagerly anticipate the wonderful things we will achieve at CCMS this year. Come join us as we embark on our best school year ever!

Dear CCES parents and students

On behalf of the staff at Crittenden County Elementary School, I would like to welcome you to the 2008-2009 school year. I hope you've had a relaxing and enjoyable summer and are excited about the learning opportunities that lie ahead.

Throughout the summer we have been working to design the best educational experiences for your children and we eagerly await the beginning of school on Aug. 6. CCES holds high standards for teaching and learning. We believe that all students can learn and we strive to provide them every opportunity possible to help them reach their potential.

We are happy to have our returning students and staff; and we want to take this opportunity to give a special welcome to new faces. Due to a large number of incoming five year olds, we have had to add an additional kindergarten class. New staff members include Mrs. Johnna West, second grade teacher; Mrs. Stephanie Chambliss, first grade teacher; Ms. Ashley Johnson, kindergarten teacher; and Mrs. Denise Lynn, second grade teacher. We are excited to have new educators on our team, and look forward to working with them for the benefit of children.

We hope you will visit us often and be actively involved in your child's education through volunteering, attending SBDM Council meetings and becoming an active member of PTO. We sincerely hope to get to know each of you this year. All teachers can be reached by utilizing the school Web site, www.crittenden.kyschools.us, through e-mail firstname.lastname@crittenden.kyschools.us, or by calling the school office at students an opportunity to practice what they have been taught. Please work with your child on assignments and read with them regularly. Quiz your children prior to assessments and check their assignment books daily.

■ Assignment Book – To increase communication between home and school, and help teach students responsibility, we ask that all students in grades 1-5 purchase an assignment book from school ($5). The books may be purchased on Sneak-a-Peek night in the library, or from their homeroom teacher on the first day of school. The assignment book is good for the entire year and it serves as an avenue of communication between home and school regarding assignments and class/school activities. We encourage you to write notes to the teacher about any questions or concerns you may have. The assignment book is only effective if both teacher and parent check it daily. The student handbook is also printed in the front of the assignment book. The handbook contains the school calendar, information about new attendance procedures and school policies.

Mark your calendar

■ Aug. 4, 6-7:30 p.m.: Sneak-a-Peek

– We encourage all parents and students to attend this event allowing you the opportunity to meet teachers, complete paperwork, ask questions and visit classrooms.

■ Aug. 6: First day of school – The first day of school for students is Wednesday, Aug. 6, which will be a half day with dismissal at 11:45.

■ Sept. 27, 4-7 p.m.: PTO Fall Festival – The Crittenden County Elementary School staff has spent a significant amount of time planning for the opening of school to ensure a smooth transition for everyone involved. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to call. We look forward to working with you and your child throughout the school year to provide a productive and safe learning environment that supports student success. We hope you enjoy the remainder of your summer break and look forward to seeing you at Sneak-a-Peek.
