Junk taken free Friday, Saturday

If you haven't already cleaned out your garage or attic this fall, you might want to start Thursday to save a few bucks in getting rid of the junk.

This Friday and Saturday, dumping of select items at the Waste Management convenience center on U.S. 60 East will be free. Crittenden County Judge-Executive Fred Brown has designated the two days as this year's annual free trash dumping period for county residents. The convenience center will be open 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Friday and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday.

While furniture, white goods, mowers and some other large items will be accepted, there are some restrictions. No household garbage, electronics, paint, solvents or any other hazardous chemicals will be taken. Also, any appliances such as refrigerators or air-conditioners must have the freon removed, complete with certification to show the refrigerant has been pulled. Brush and foliage are taken at no charge on Wednesdays at the county's brush dump and will not be taken at the convenience center this weekend.

After-hours affair planned for today

The Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce's next Business After Hours will be today (Thursday) at Thrifty Home Medical. The event begins at 5:30 p.m., with remarks and door prizes at 6 p.m. Thrifty Home Medical is located at 210 S. Main St., in Marion.

East Bellville gets awaited facelift

Work has begun on a streetscape project that will turn part of East Bellville Street into a more attractive avenue from the stoplight to the history museum. The $96,596 project is a second phase of Renaissance on Main Streetscape Project. The first phase about four years ago spruced up the 100 block of East Carlisle Street with new sidewalks and lamp posts. A new handicap-access ramp will also be installed at the museum, according to Rose Crider, Marion Main Street director.

"They're real happy about that," Crider said.

The City of Marion is funding the project with an $82,500 grant. Local contractor Thomas & Thomas Concrete is performing the work.

Marion to begin community policing

STAFF REPORT

Don't be surprised if the police come knocking on your door.

Marion patrolmen are going to be making more contacts with city residents as part of a community policing program implemented by Ray O'Neal, the new chief of police.

Starting Monday, officers will be assigned to particular sectors of the city. Each officer will be required to make personal contacts within his sector at least twice during a shift. The officers will be visiting with people on the streets, O'Neal said. Policemen may be out of their cars, walking in communities or visiting with others at a park or public area.

"Don't be surprised if you see a squad car parked on your street or if an officer knocks on your door," O'Neal said.

The good part is these will be friendly visits.

O'Neal says that too often, a citizen's only meeting with an officer is in front of blue lights or during a time of crisis, and that's generally a stressful time for both officer and resident.

"I want our officers and the community to interact and communicate. I want them to know the officer in and out of uniform," O'Neal said. "What we want to do is to create relationships that will help us do our jobs and make Marion a safer place to live."

Marion's police force is the youngest in history, O'Neal said. At 45, the chief is the oldest man in the department.

"These officers are going to be around for a long time and we want them to develop a rapport with the community so that people know us and are not afraid to call us when they see something or need something."

The Marion Police Department currently has five officers, including the chief. That number is expected to go up next week when the city hires a sixth officer. Retirements in recent months have left the department short handed.

In the coming days, O'Neal said officers will be more visible in the community — sometimes on foot, sometimes in their cruisers. The main objective is to have an increased presence in all areas of the city, O'Neal said.

As part of the community policing program, every 30 days, the officers will rotate to a different sector so that each one has a chance to interact with citizens throughout town.

"This will help us to be in touch with the community," the chief explained.

Additionally, patrolmen working the midnight shift will be checking businesses in town to make sure doors and windows are secure at night. O'Neal said that when officers check a building, they will be sliding yellow "building check" cards under the doors so merchants will know they've been there.

Accountability: District meets CATS goals

KCCT scores released

CCMS shows highest improvement

STAFF AND AP REPORTS

Confusion is likely to reign in regard to this year's accountability scores for Kentucky schools due to changes made in the Kentucky Core Content Test.

Despite the murky waters, Crittenden County as a school district showed improvements above the average statewide progress. Only the high school failed to move ahead of last year's overall performance, though the drop-off was slight.

"We are proud of the continuous improvements that we are making," Tonya Driver, assessment coordinator, said in a release to The Press.

Due to the numerous changes in the Commonwealth Accountability Testing System (CATS) data, schools are being given two scores this year — one is a raw score and the other is an adjusted mark.

A school's raw test score has been changed this year to meet federal and legislative requirements. For purposes of transition into next year's scoring, the adjusted score is used to best measure a school's progress from the previous year.

As a district, Crittenden improved 3.8 points from 2006 to 82.8. Statewide, the average was 81.8 in 2007, up only 2.6 points from the prior year. Kentucky has a goal for all schools to reach proficiency by 2014. Proficiency is set for 100 on a 140-point scale.

Last month, the district reached only 11 of its 13 federal No Child Left Behind goals. This was the fourth consecutive year the district failed to meet its federal mark. But NCLB is either pass or fail,

Indictments include rape, incest charges

STAFF REPORT

A Crittenden County Grand Jury indicted 13 individuals on various charges Monday.

Following dismissal of the grand jury, indictments were sent to Logan County for the arrest of Daniel Mast, 47, and Rudy Mast, 23, on sexual abuse charges.

Rudy Mast of 4123 Iron Mountain Road in Lewisburg, Ky., was indicted on a charge of first-degree rape and incest. Court records indicate that he had previously been charged with sexual abuse and incest in Logan County. A conviction on an amended, lesser charge was probated for five years, according to court records. He is listed on the Kentucky Sexual Offender Registry as a Logan County resident.

The Crittenden County indictment alleges that Rudy Mast raped and committed incest with a girl under the age of 12 on July 15, 2002.

Daniel Mast was indicted on four counts of first-degree sexual abuse relating to incidents that occurred in Crittenden County on or about March 19, 1998, March 19, 1999, March 19, 2000, and March 19, 2001, according to court documents. He also lives at the same address on Iron Mountain Road in Lewisburg.

*Jared John Asbridge, 22, of 111 Old Salem Road, Marion, was indicted on charges of second-degree DUI with an aggravator, failure to maintain insurance, possession of marijuana, second-offense possession of drug paraphernalia and tampering with physical evidence. The charges stem from a July 28 traffic stop by Marion Policeman Bobby West. Another motorist had called police and reported that Asbridge's vehicle had almost hit him head-on near Mattoon.

*Zachary L. Belt, 22, of Harmon Drive, Marion, was charged with possession of marijuana, possession of drug paraphernalia and trafficking in marijuana (less than 8 ounces). The charges stem from an investigation by patrolmen West and George Foster on Aug. 17. An anonymous tip led authorities to a home on Arleen Street where the occupants were allegedly smoking pot with children present. Upon their arrival, officers smelled marijuana and were granted permission to search the home. They found six bags of pot and other items. Also indicted on the same charges from the same incident was Jackie Lee Jones, 44, of 154 First St., Tolu.

*Rickey L. Calvert, 52, of 200 Watson St., Marion, was indicted on two counts of being a convicted felon in possession of a handgun, possession of marijuana and being a second-degree persistent felony offender. The charges stem from a gun control investigation on Aug. 21 after Calvert's wife allegedly purchased two handguns from Hodge's Sports and Apparel in Marion. Police were dispatched to Calvert's home to investigate the report. There, they allegedly found .40 and .22 caliber pistols and marijuana.

*James D. Cowan, 33, of 712 Third St., Providence, was indicted on charges of possession of burglary tools by complicity, third-degree burglary by complicity, theft (under $300) and tampering with physical evidence by complicity. The charges stem from a traffic stop by Crittenden County Deputy Don Perry on July 2 in the Cave Springs area. Cowan and others in his vehicle are suspected of burglarizing Cave Springs Church prior to being stopped by the deputy, who was patrolling in the area.

Scott A. Sullivan, 23, of Oakley Street, Providence, and Steven D. Long, 24, of 154 First St., Providence, were also indicted on the same charges as a result of the same investigating regarding the Cave Springs Church burglary.

*Thomas R. Irvin, 19, of 614 N.

Little, Guess back from Iraq

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

A Marion native was among the 600 National Guard soldiers welcomed back to Kentucky by thousands in Lexington on Sunday, while a local Marine returned home from the Iraq War last Thursday.

Sgt. Michael Little and members of the First Battalion, 149th Infantry, known as the "Mountain Warriors," returned from duty in Iraq and entered the Lexington Center to see numerous homemade signs, American flags and cheers in their honor. It was part of the Kentucky Army National Guard's largest homecoming weekend.

About 100 guardsmen in units aside from the 510 Mountain Warriors were brought to Lexington after a debriefing at Camp Shelby in Mississippi.

"I want them to feel the love," Maj. Gen. Donald Storm, Kentucky's adjutant general, told the crowd after the soldiers marched into Rupp Arena.

While in Iraq, the soldiers worked with Iraqi schools and protected nonmilitary visitors to the Iraq theater, among other things, Storm said.

Meantime, Zack Guess, son of Ron and Diane Guess, returned to Crittenden County last week after his deployment to Iraq as a Marine.

drawing the ire of some in the district. The federal measuring stick does not take into account the 84.6-percent success rate of the district in meeting its goals.

Among changes to CATS this year are new score ranges and math and reading tests have been added at several grade levels. Students were tested in grades 3-8 and 10-11 for reading, math, science, social studies, arts and humanities, practical living/vocational studies and writing. The tests were administered in April of this year.

As for the CATS results for individual schools, the elementary school improved from 83.9 last year to 88.9, up 5 points. CCES was the only of the county's three schools to exceed its improvement goal set for next year, which is 87.1.

Meantime, the middle school showed the most improvement, jumping almost 8 points from 2006 when the accountability index was 76.6. This year's score was 84.5. The statewide average was 79 points.

"This puts Crittenden County Middle School in the top 27 percent of middle schools in the state," Driver said.

This is good news for the school, which failed to meet all 10 of its NCLB measurements and must now offer its students the option to transfer to middle schools in Lyon or Livingston counties. Ironically, the overall scores at the middle schools in both of those counties were below that of CCMS. Livingston scored 73.9 and Lyon, 81.1, in 2007.

CCHS did not fair as well as the state's high schools as a whole, falling 1.7 points below the state average and dropping 1.2 points from 2006 to 75.2. The high school, also, was the only of the three local institutions to have scores below 80 in any of the seven individual subject areas. The lowest score was a paltry 59.2 in math. Livingston Central High School was worse, however, scoring only 56.6 in math and 71.2 overall.

As for the changes to this years testing and scoring, Lisa Gross, a spokeswoman for the Kentucky Department of Education, said the changes should not make a difference in schools' abilities to reach their academic goals.

"The schools that are struggling, they're still going to have a struggle," Gross said. "This shouldn't make a dramatic difference in anybody's ability to reach that ultimate goal."

Jim Waters, director of policy and communications for the Bluegrass Institute for Public Policy, said the changes could inflate some scores and called it "grading on a curve at its worst."

(Editor's note: Both raw and adjusted scores are shown in the chart above, as well as scores for individual subject areas.)

coordinator, said the only questions she has received related to school choice are confusion over whether students had to transfer to another school.

In his letter to parents, Superintendent John Belt pointed out that Crittenden County had a higher academic index on its 2006 Kentucky Core Content Test than either Livingston or Lyon. Crittenden scored a 79, compared to 69.5 at Livingston and 76.4 at Lyon.

The deadline to apply for a student transfer to either Livingston or Lyon middle school is due to Driver by Friday.

contracted by humans, is spread to deer or cattle by gnats or midge flies. Horses do not appear to be susceptible to the virus, said Northington.

"It's along the lines of the West Nile virus," Payne said. "It's insect borne and not spread from animal to animal."

Mature cattle generally survive the virus but can be sick for a week to 10 days. Symptoms include fever, diarrhea, nose or mouth lesions and stiffness. There is no vaccine to prevent the illness, Northington said.

"It's kind of like having the flu, you just have to wear it out," he said.

Payne added the disease is most likely to claim old, young or infirm cattle and can result in the abortion of unborn fetuses. Cattle producers can try to protect their herds through insect-control measures, experts say.

Last month, bluetongue was discovered for the first time ever in Britain.

The discovery of the virus is another headache for cattle farmers in Kentucky, the largest beef cattle producer east of the Mississippi, according to figures from the state Agriculture Department. The department's latest available figures showed 19,200 head of cattle in Crittenden County as of Jan. 1, 2006.

The state's cattle producers have already been struggling with inadequate hay supplies and pastures since a spring freeze followed by a summer drought.

The hemorrhagic disease is blamed for killing at least 1,200 deer so far, about 1 percent of the state's total herd, said Mark Marraccini, spokesman for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The outbreak in deer is probably the worst in 30 years, he said, because the drought forced herds to congregate at remaining water sources, making it easier for the gnats or midges to infect them. Those deer commonly drink from the same watering holes as livestock, attracting the insect to the area.

Here's a look at Marion businessmen from 1902

In 1902 The Crittenden Press did a special edition featuring some of Marion's businessmen. Let's take a look back at some of our past businessmen who were making history during that time and who helped make Marion what it is today.

July 10, 1902

Dr. J.J. Clark, born at Marion in 1874. Dr. Clark's preparatory studies were made in the Lexington Kentucky College.

Entering the University of Louisville in 1891, he graduated in 1895 and commenced the practice of medicine, his chosen profession, in his home city, Marion, the same year being just 21 years of age.

Fully equipped for every emergency, well read, a skillful surgeon, his success was most brilliant.

In a complicated surgical operation, where days and nights were as one, his eyes were somewhat affected and he was compelled to abstain from professional duties.

Becoming interested last in our mineral field, the doctor became as much of an enthusiast in mining as he had been in surgery.

He occupies the position of Secretary of the Marion Zinc Company, one of our largest mining companies, and devotes his entire time to the company's service.

David B. Kevil, a native born Marionite, his education having been obtained in this city and Princeton.

THIS WEEK IN HISTORY

From The Crittenden Press Archives

From 1957:

It was confirmed that the Kroger store in Marion would close on Oct. 19, 1957. The building occupied by Kroger on Main Street was owned by Aubrey and Theodore Grady. It will be remodeled and then occupied by Marion Barber Shop owned by Noble McDaniel and by Dr. Byron B. Jay, a local osteopath.

Barbara Wring was chosen editor of the Crittenden County High School newspaper, The Rocket. Other staff members were Robert Brown, sports editor; Jane Yandell, feature editor; Eddie Don Sullenger, business manager; Clinton Drennan, cartoonist; Lucindia Fay Brantley, gossip; Martha Strong, jokes; Sue Davidson, honor roll, Mary Alice Tinsley, birthdays; Shelby Jean York, roving reporter; and Winona Tucker, band.

Fire Ward Luther Lynch issued a warning that conditions are very dangerous for field fires. If anyone finds a field fire, he should call one of the local fire wardens. The wardens for Crittenden County were Watson Flanery, Clemens Crawford, Audrey Brown, Clyde White, Ross Belt, Cruce McDonald, Jesse Hodge, W.R. Wofford, Earl Arflack and Milford Goolsby.

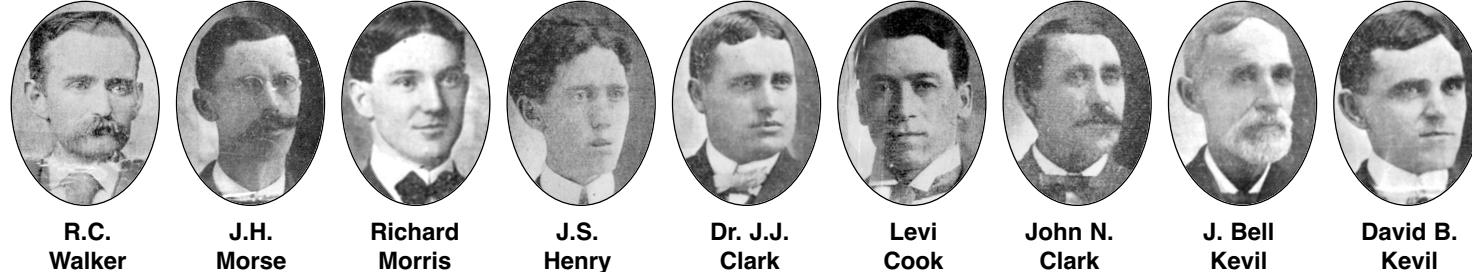

From 1982:

Marion attorney B.M. Westberry was sworn in as a member of the Murray State Board of Regents.

Marion, and is also largely interested in the barite property that is located near Mexico.

J.H. Morse, with his architectural and building skill, has created some of the handsome store and office buildings of Marion.

With an abiding confidence in the future of our handsome city, he very early undertook the remodeling and beautifying of many of our old style and poorly constructed buildings. The streets of Marion are lined with reconstructed and handsome business houses, due to his foresight in preparing for the future.

Mr. Morse's experience in mercantile life has also been one of entire success. He has handled, during the past nine years, as many as 16 stocks of goods purchased from as many merchants retiring from business, and has disposed of them promptly and satisfactorily.

Mr. Morse is agent for the Home Fire and Tornado Insurance Company of New York, and his work has been most satisfactory in every way.

Mr. James S. Henry, born at Madisonville, received his education at the Marion High School in this city.

From the school to the technical work of a worker in marble and to a business life in the fire insurance line, was the preparation he received for his work in the mining field.

He recently made the sale of an interest in an exceedingly promising lead prospect over the Ohio River in Illinois

Mr. Richard J. Morris, originally from Union County, was a student and graduated from St. Mary's College, in Marion County, Kentucky.

He is 23 years of age, of the quick, active, clean cut type of young men who never fail to reach the goal desired.

Graduating in his professional choice from the Cincinnati College of Dental Surgery in 1899, he at once adopted Marion as his field of work.

Mr. Morris is a close observer and a wonder worker. He is still a student in the best sense of the word, a great reader, and keeps himself thoroughly in touch with all that is latest and best in his chosen profession.

His suite of Dental Parlors over the Marion Bank are luxuriously furnished and are filled with all the more modern dental appliances.

Mr. R.C. Walker, editor of The Crittenden Press has done a great service in bringing to the attention of the outside world the wonderful country of which Marion is the gateway.

There is scarcely a family in the three counties where The Press is not eagerly looked for.

He has so willingly and gladly surrendered its columns to the up building of everything that makes for the good of the people and the country.

Rockets break streak

Capture first win

33-21 over Trojans

STAFF REPORT

In a season where wins have been terribly elusive, the taste of victory was terrifically sweet for the 1-5 Rockets Friday in their homecoming matchup with Webster County.

Rodney Robertson was the catalyst with 275 all-purpose yards and three touchdowns in Crittenden County's 33-21 triumph over the Class 3A Trojans. His fourth-quarter, 41-yard touchdown with 1:50 to play was the most precious piece to the puzzle.

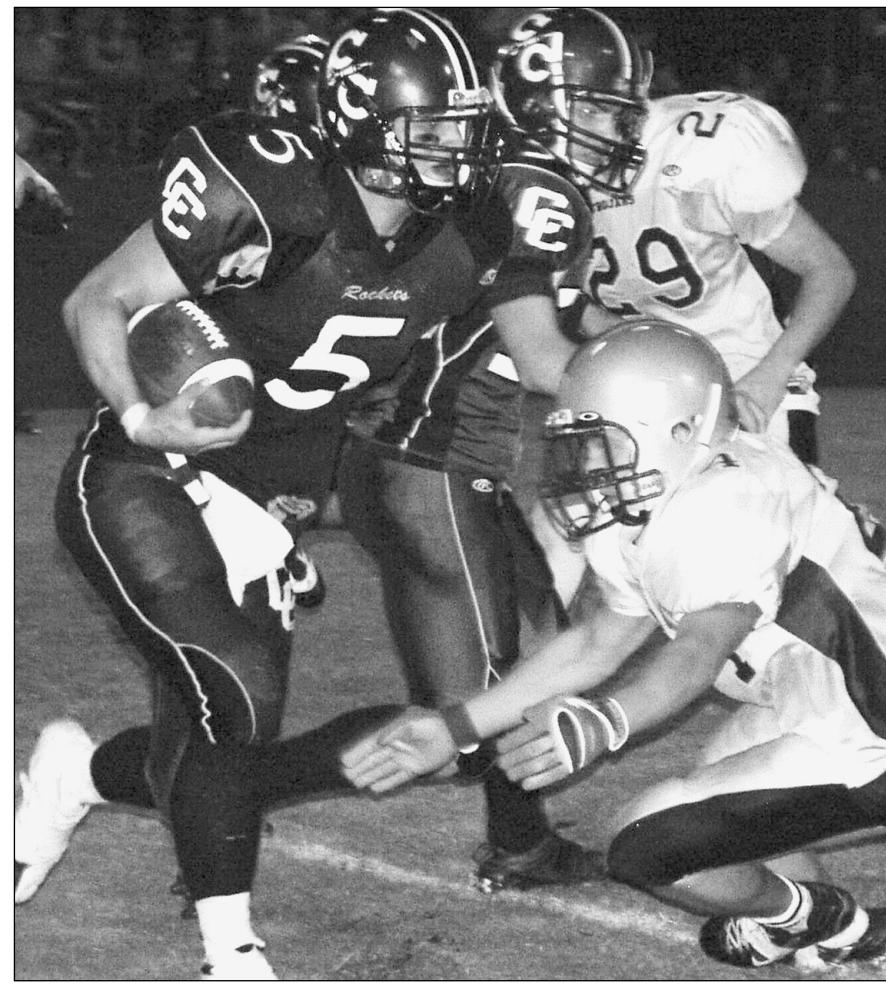

"Rodney has become a force," coach Al Starnes. "We've played better the last three games and he is making a difference - a big difference."

The Rockets - playing with a patchwork of performers due to injuries, defections and ineligible players this season - turned in a strong defensive showing and used its offense to control the game in the final minutes after Webster closed to within six.

Crittenden led 14-0 out of the chute behind first-quarter touchdowns from Robertson and J.D. Gray. A Webster fumble recovered by Josh Irock gave Crittenden its second TD and the Rockets' biggest first-half lead of the season.

After jumping ahead, Crittenden showed bullish tenacity in responding to every Webster comeback attempt. The Trojans cut the lead to a touchdown in the first half then Robertson went 82 yards for a score on the ensuing kickoff.

In the final period, fullback Gaige Courtney finished off a dominating drive with a 10-yard scoring run before Webster inched back into the game with a long pass from QB

Crittenden's Rodney Robertson (5) picks up yards during Friday's win over Webster County.

Steven Turner to Kyle Meadows. Leading by six, Crittenden needed just a few first downs in its final possession to seal the deal in the last five and a half minutes. However, the Rockets got more than they bargained for when Robertson broke loose and scooted 41 yards to the end zone, putting an exclamation point on his team's first victory. His scoring run followed a daring fourth-down-and-two pass at midfield that kept the drive alive.

Courtney caught that fourth-down, play-action pass from Gray. It was the same play Crittenden misfired on in the final minutes at Fulton City.

"I was proud that Gaige and J.D. made that play. They were down after the Fulton game and now this gives them a confidence boost," the coach said.

Robertson, a junior who also plays linebacker and does the punting, finished with 179 yards rushing, 82 return yards and 14 receiving.

The Rockets return to Class A First District action this week at Ballard Memorial. The Bombers lost 54-6 to Class 2A Murray last Friday.

Scouting report: The Bombers are a run-oriented team. Senior QB Josh Bourff and RB/LB Brian Tucker are players to watch... This is a district game that both teams need desperately in order to gain a playoff berth. If Ballard loses, it will be eliminated from post-season play. If the Rockets lose, they could still earn a playoff berth by beating Fulton County Oct. 19. A win this week would guarantee Crittenden at least the fourth-place playoff spot in the 1st District.

The series: This will be Crittenden's first meeting since 2002. Ballard has won the last three matchups, but Crittenden holds a 19-9 advantage in the series. Under coach Starnes, Crittenden is 10-3 against the Bombers. Prior to losing to Ballard twice in 2001 (including the playoffs) and 2002, Crittenden had defeated the Bombers in seven straight games.

Game Notes: The Rockets have started 1-5 during 10 seasons over the past 50 years. The last time was in 2006.

Soccer beat Webster

The Lady Rockets won their first road game of the season Monday holding off Webster County for a 5-4 triumph.

After jumping out to an early lead, the visitors had to hold off a pesky Lady Trojan squad late to preserve the win.

Leading 5-4 with 1:30 left in the game, Webster had three shots to try and force a tie and possibly send the game to overtime.

However, Crittenden (4-12) failed to surrender the lead, sweeping the season series against the Lady Trojans.

Ali Shewcraft, Misty Wallace, Anna Jimenez and Shea Shewcraft accounted for all the Lady Rocket goals.

The Shewcraft duo along with Jimenez, and Elise Hill handed out assists.

"We didn't play smart at the end, but we played good enough to win," Crittenden coach Michael Gibson said.

After battling Fort Campbell tough for 72 minutes Saturday, the Lady Rockets could not sustain that effort, surrendering three goals over the last eight minutes to drop a 4-0 decision.

The Lady Rockets suffered their sixth shutout of the season last week, falling to Reidland 2-0.

In a very physical contest, the Lady Greyhounds were assessed three yellow cards but still managed to hold on for the win.
