What a job!

Local labor market saturated with opportunities, but employers find it hard to maintain workforce

By CHRIS EVANS
PRESS PUBLISHER

Wanted: Truck drivers, core drillers, nurses, teachers, bus drivers, plant workers and more.

The local job market is bubbling over with opportunity, but employers are having a difficult time finding willing and qualified candidates.

Last week's newspaper classifieds had more than a dozen job openings and local manufacturers are regularly seeking to fill openings.

Tim Capps, president of Par 4 Plastics in Marion, said his company hired six new workers this week and six last week. Turnover rate remains high, he said, but finding employees is a bit easier today than it was last summer.

Still, Capps said manufacturers all over the country are having similar problems.

"No matter who I talk to, it's the same story," Capps said. "I have talked to people with Ford Motor Co., and they are seeing young people coming and going all of the time, too."

Local employers say workplace skills such as punctuality, appearance, interpersonal communication and, quite frankly, the ability to pass a drug screening, are not as common as one might imagine. Those traits are commonly called "soft skills" in the jobs market industry.

Capps said regular attendance is perhaps the biggest problem his personnel department faces with regard to employees.

"If people will act like they want a job, they can get and keep a job," Capps said. "That's not just in Marion, it's anywhere."

Local health care faces a different set of challenges, although attendance is important there, too. Competition, especially for higher-level nurses and ancillary-care providers, is among the major obstacles in Marion. Robin Curnel, chief nursing officer at Crittenden Health Systems, said most health care professionals work 12-hour shifts. The Crittenden County Elementary School's lower grades held their annual Arts Extravaganza performance last week before a packed house. The play featured a race between the ever-so-slow Sloth (Cash Singleton) and the fast, but overconfident Cheetah (Kylie Bloodworth). The kindergarten classes handled the play portion of the production while others provided song and dance.

Pleas to D.C. over U.S. 641 hit dead end

STAFF REPORT

The county's top elected officials took their concerns about what they say is a lack of progress on the development of a realigned U.S. 641 all the way to Capitol Hill last month in the hope of moving the road forward, but it appears that effort has fallen short.

In March, Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom and Marion Mayor Mickey Alexander approached Congressman Ed Whitfield (R-Hopkinsville) in Washington, D.C., about using federal influence to get the state road project moving forward. Last week, Newcom received an email reply from Rep. Whitfield's office that offered faint hope for speeding things along.

In an electronic message forwarded to Newcom last Wednesday from Melissa Buchanan, Whitfield's legislative director in Washington, she included a response from Kentucky Transportation Cabinet Deputy Secretary Russ Romine to her inquiries on the progress of the project. Romine offered little more than a history of the U.S. 641 realignment project.

"This is the same old rhetoric that we get each time we inquire about the progress on Highway 641," Newcom said in response to Buchanan about Romine's comments.

Romine shared his discussion with Cabinet Secretary

County's proposed budget maintains status quo

STAFF REPORT

The county budget proposed for the coming fiscal year looks to offer little new in the way of spending compared to the current budget that ends June 30.

"There are not a great deal of differences in the overall budget this year versus last year," said Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom. "It's pretty lean."

Crittenden Fiscal Court introduced an $8.71 million complete spending plan Monday for Fiscal Year 2015-16. It offers no revenue enhancements over the $8.24 million budget the county is now operating under.

Nearly all of the growth in the budget is from $400,000 allotted for improvements at the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum should a grant in that amount to repair a leaky roof be received. Such a grant was unsuccessfully sought last year. If the state grant is not received again this year, that money will not be spent by the county.

No raise for county employees is included in the budget. Last year, a 3 percent increase in salaries was granted. However, Newcom said he felt the county could not afford the same this year.

More than a third of the estimated general fund receipts of $1.02 million come from an anticipated $385,000 in property taxes. The county's occupational and net profits tax accounts for another estimated $350,000 in revenue. The balance is from various other taxes, fees, reimbursements and collections.

From the general fund is a proposed $319,145 to be transferred to Crittenden County Detention Center for operations from July 1 of this year to June 30, 2016. Newcom said the money is needed to balance the jail's budget, as the 133-bed lock-up has never generated enough revenue to cover its expenses.

It is likely even more money will be needed to even out the jail budget. From July 1, 2014, through Monday – still two months shy of the start of a new fiscal year – the county had transferred into the jail fund $368,500, according to County Treasurer Sue Padgett.

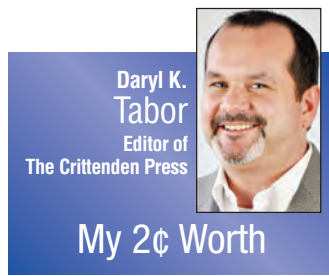

Final approval of the budget is expected at the next scheduled fiscal court meeting on May 21.

Forty years after its end, Vietnam War still difficult to understand

Forty years ago today (Thursday), the book was closed on America's military and political involvement in Vietnam. But our investment in that war has left scars that remain across the nation, even in our little community.

The end of the Vietnam War came with the last American soldiers hurriedly evacuated from the roof of the U.S. embassy in Saigon as communist troops from the North overran the South Vietnamese capital. Along with the exit on April 30, 1975, promises to an ally were broken and South Vietnam ceased to exist.

Though our combat role in Vietnam had effectively ended two years prior, old wounds were re-opened as Saigon fell and democracy was lost. For the tens of thousands of veterans trying to leave the ugliness of the war behind, the events of April 1975 unfolding in the media were no doubt a reminder of all that had been lost with Vietnam.

Those losses include six men from Crittenden County who were among the more than 58,000 to give their lives in Southeast Asia.

History records that:

- James K. Hughes remains the only known African-American who called Crittenden County home to have been killed in combat in a foreign land. He was killed in 1966 at the age of 29.
- Billy Joe Williams is perhaps the eldest and highest ranking member of the military from Crittenden County to give his life. The Army major was killed in 1970 at the age of 41.
- The loss of Bobby J.

Jennings in 1967 proved too much for his father, who suffered a fatal heart attack upon hearing the news of the 23-year-old's death.

- Less than three months later, Charles L. Doom, 21, became one of more than 9,100 men to die from non-combat-related accidents when he was killed in a vehicle crash in South Vietnam.
- Just shy of his 22nd birthday, Leon Beard gave his life in 1969. His widow's anguished cries still haunt the memory of former co-workers at Potter & Brumfield there on the day she learned of his death.
- Johnny W. Lindsey, whose name can be found on Panel 34E, Row 79 of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, fell to the enemy in 1968. He was 22.

For those who made it back from the war, none were left unscathed. Some still carry their wounds.

In 2015, the 50th anniversary of the arrival of combat units in Vietnam, America still struggles to understand the quagmire that was the Vietnam War. And the mere mention of it can stir debate.

But politicians are to blame for losing the war, and those who served honorably on the battle lines for democracy were no less a hero than their fathers who fought tyranny in World War II.

Locals got to experience elements of that era as both Crittenden County High and Middle schools presented “A Roaring Twenties Arts in the Evening” celebration April 21 at Fohs Hall. During the program, students had the opportunity to showcase their visual and musical talents. A variety of art displays highlighted the evening, as did a performance of the Crittenden County Schools jazz band. Relay supporters to dethrone cancer

A group of Relay for Life supporters is working to dethrone cancer and the tool they're using is a traveling toilet.

It's a cute fundraising idea that Christy Watson and Elizabeth Floyd are using in the community to raise money for the Relay Survivors program.

So if you see a golden throne show up on your lawn in the coming days, don't be surprised that removal may cost you a contribution to the American Cancer Society. It's all in fun, the women say, and all proceeds will benefit cancer survivor programs associated with this year's Relay for Life, which is June 5 at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

The survivors programs are among the event's most popular. This year, there will be a survivors brunch at 9 a.m., May 30 at First Cumberland Presbyterian Church on West Bellville Street in Marion. The brunch, organizers say, will allow survivors and families to enjoy the meal dedicated specifically to them without the rush of other Relay activities. In the past, the survivor meal was held right before Relay kicked off in the evening.

The toilet fundraising gimmick will raise money to pay for the meal and buy gifts for the participating survivors.

When the toilet shows up at your location, it will cost at least $10 to get rid of the john. Twenty bucks will send it directly to a friend's yard and for $30 you can ensure that it doesn't return to your home.

Minor fire damages sport center in Princeton

THE TIMES LEADER

The Athletic Center in Princeton, where various teams and leagues buy their sporting goods and attire, sustained minor damage in a fire last Thursday. By the following day, however, business was back to normal.

Princeton Fire and Rescue units were dispatched to the Linton Way store at about 7:45 a.m. last Thursday after employees arriving at the business noticed smoke coming from a rear area, Assistant Chief Brent Thompson said Friday.

The fire apparently originated in an electric motor of a pressure washer used to clean screens utilized in the store's screen printing operation.

Thompson said the fire spread to the rest of the room where the washer was located and then entered the attic area of the business.

Firefighters responded quickly and managed to contain the blaze before it spread further into the business.

Fire units had to remove a portion of the store's rear wall during the response, in order to knock down some fire inside.

The assistant chief said the business sustained minor fire damage and a moderate amount of smoke damage.

Athletic Center officials said the store was closed through the morning last Thursday but reopened to customers that afternoon.

"We didn't miss a beat, pretty much," said employee Barry Thomas.

Blood, marrow drive set for May 7

STAFF REPORT

A groundbreaking blood and bone marrow drive will be held next month for a Salem boy afflicted with a rare disease.

The American Red Cross is partnering with North Livingston Elementary School and Delete Blood Cancer DKMS for a drive to benefit Mason Fuller, 11. The event will be held from 1:30 to 6:30 p.m. next Thursday at the school in Burna.

Mason has connections to both Livingston and Crittenden County. He is the son of Brad and Jenny Fuller of Salem. His father, Brad, is a 1990 graduate of Crittenden County High School and a native of Tolu.

In January, Mason was diagnosed with Nuclear Factor Kappa B Essential Modulator, or NEMO deficiency syndrome, a condition involving the X chromosome. The diagnosis was made at Cincinnati Children's Hospital, and the condition is so rare, the hospital has treated only five patients who have had the immunodeficiency.

His condition requires weekly plasma transfusions and a bone marrow transplant. A side effect of the condition is a weakened immune system.

Although Mason can't attend school because of possible exposure to other illnesses, administrators, teachers and fellow students will be showing their support by honoring him at the upcoming blood drive.

"We are humbled, and we feel blessed to know that a lot of people are coming out and showing their support," said Mason's mother, Jenny, in a news release issued last week by the American Red Cross of Nashville Area. "My husband donates blood every chance he gets, but you don't understand how important those donations are until it hits home."

M. Fuller

Several events in both Crittenden and Livingston counties have been organized to help the family with travel expenses during Mason's treatment. A fish fry benefit was held at the Tolu Community Center in March. Mason is also being honored by his hometown on Saturday, when the annual Salem Day event is being designated Mason Fuller Day. On May 31, Carrsville Masonic Lodge 812 will hold a bass fishing tournament to benefit the Fuller family.

Meanwhile, a perfect bone marrow match for Mason has been identified. His transplant will take place this summer. To help others in similar situations, the Red Cross, Delete Blood Cancer and the Fuller family are partnering for the first-ever bone marrow drive held in Livingston or Crittenden County.

"Our wish is for everyone to come out and get tested and be matched with someone here or overseas," said Jenny Fuller in the news release. "Bone marrow donors are a blessing. If it weren't for them, my son may not have second chance."

Delete Blood Cancer DKMS will provide the opportunity for people to register as potential donors at next week's event by completing a registration form and a cheek swab.

While an appointment isn't necessary for a cheek swab, individuals are urged to make an appointment to donate blood. To make an appointment, download the American Red Cross Blood Donor App, call (800) RED-CROSS or visit RedCrossBlood.org and enter sponsor code 0195056.

According to the Red Cross, Delete Blood Cancer DKMS started with one family's search for a bone marrow donor and is today part of the world's largest bone marrow donor center. The organization has helped register more than 5 million potential donors and facilitated close to 48,000 transplants around the world.

For more information or to register as a bone marrow donor, visit DeleteBloodCancer.org.

Thank You

My thanks to the Clement Mineral Museum staff, Jessie Walker and all of those who came by during the reception in my honor on Saturday, April 25. You made my day.

In Loving Memory of

ROGER FRANKLIN BOONE

January 9, 1950 - April 29, 1995

The month of April has always been a month of rebirth and new growth, however it's become a very difficult month for me. It brings back so many terrible memories of a time when our life went spinning out of control and it would never be the same again. It's hard to believe it was 20 years ago since you were killed, yet sometimes it seems so much longer. I've missed you everyday and nothing in my life was left the same. It was torn apart and left in shambles. Sometimes it still feels that way, especially when things go wrong or something terrible happens and you're not here to help me cope with it. It's been 3 months today that we lost sweet Beth and it's been so hard to deal with. I miss her so much and I have such a hard time living with it. I miss having you to lean on. I feel so alone at times and wonder why things happen. The one thing that brings me some comfort is knowing she is with you and mom now, without any pain, physically and mentally. Take care of her Daddy and love her.

All hasn't been sad, but you've missed some of the happiest times too, graduations, marriages and births. The most wonderful has been the birth of your grandson, your namesake Rex Franklin Boone. He's more than awesome, he's the light in my life, the beat of my heart. He's given me something to look forward to, he's helped fill that empty space in my heart. Love is such a small word when I try to describe my feelings for him. You would have loved him so and enjoyed being a grandfather to him. He's a miracle to this family. That one tiny little man has brought such joy into our lives. Jared and uncles Alan and Lee have already taught him the love of motorcycles and loud cars. He's going to be pure Boone in that respect. We will make sure he hears stories of you and will know you through our words and pictures. We won't let you be forgotten.

I wish it was different. I wish you were here. I always thought we would grow old together, I've grown old alone. I thought we would sit on the porch in our rocking chairs, only yours sits there empty. We never wanted our lives to be this way, but we weren't given a choice, it was taken out of our hands and put in another's. However, I wait until that day I am with you again, when life will be beautiful again and I will feel whole. I hope we've made you proud of us, for we are all so proud to have called you Dad and loving husband.

Until that day when we can all be together again, you will forever be in our hearts and our memory.

We will love you forever and always.

*Your loving family,
Linda, Alan, Lee, Jared & Rex Boone*

Smokers offered another incentive to kick the habit

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County residents wanting to kick the nicotine habit now have an extra incentive to stop smoking.

The Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) has announced free nicotine replacement therapy (NRT) products will be available to all Kentuckians who call Quit Now Kentucky through May 10. To receive the products, callers must enroll in the smoking cessation program with a trained coach and be qualified as medically-eligible to receive the free medication.

DPH will provide callers with a starter supply of nicotine replacement therapy products to help them quit smoking for good, while supplies last. Adults and youth as young as 15 can access the quit coaching services provided through (800) QUIT NOW or QuitNowKentucky.org.

“Quitting can be difficult under any circumstances, but there are ways to help you quit,” said Dr. Stephanie Mayfield, DPH commissioner. “Cessation coaches at Quit Now Kentucky, Kentucky’s tobacco quitline, are trained to help Kentuckians quit for good, improve their health and reduce the chance of lifelong conditions from smoking.

Reducing smoking is a key component of Gov. Steve Beshear’s health initiative, kyhealthnow, which includes priorities for comprehensive smoke-free policies and increasing nicotine replacement therapy.

DPH recommends NRT for some people trying to quit tobacco use who have found cessation coaching isn’t enough. NRT is specialized medication to help wean tobacco users from the cravings for the nicotine in cigarettes. The American Cancer Society estimates that 25 to 33 percent of smokers who use nicotine replacement therapy can stay smoke-free for more than six months.

Smoking begins to damage your body immediately. According to DPH, within 30 minutes of smoking, a person’s blood vessels will narrow and heart rate and blood pressure will increase. Also, risk for stroke significantly increases almost immediately.

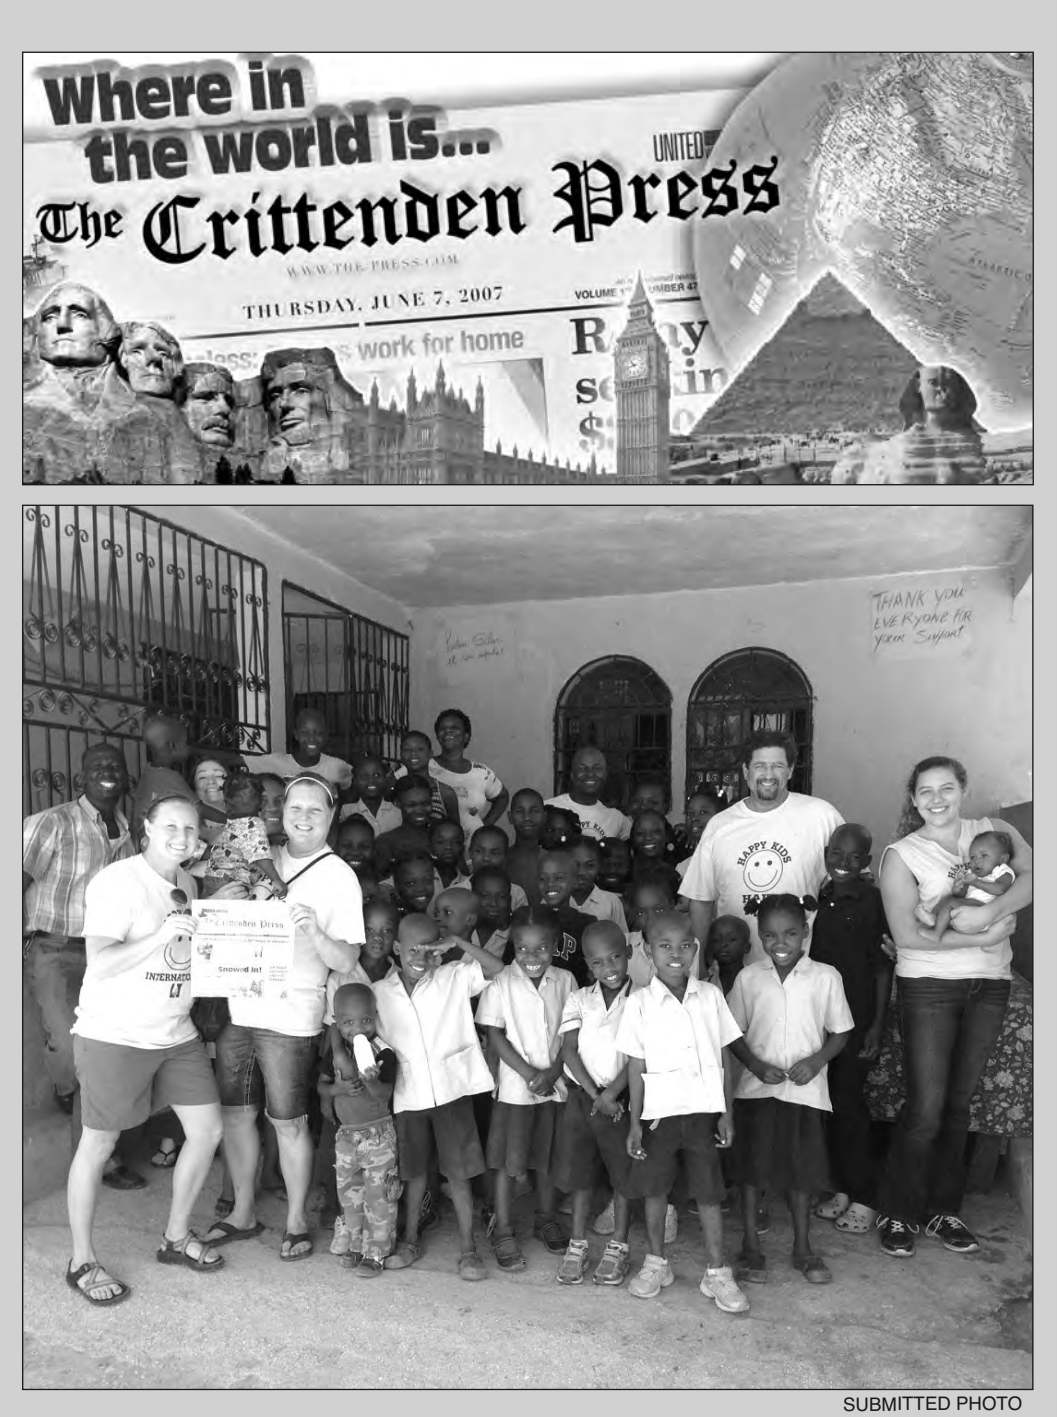

However, within 20 minutes of quitting, heart rate and blood pressure will drop; within three months, circulation and lung function improves; and after one year, risk of heart disease will be cut in half.

Historically, Kentucky has experienced a high prevalence of smoking and tobacco use. Currently, 26.5 percent of the adult population smokes, which is the second highest rate of all 50 states and the District of Columbia. Eighteen percent of high school students smoke, and 22 percent of Kentucky women smoke during pregnancy.

“In total, more than 900,000 Kentuckians smoke, putting themselves at an increased risk of disease and death,” said Mayfield. “Quitting can be difficult, but it could significantly reduce the rates of cancer, cardiovascular and respiratory diseases, which are linked to tobacco use. We encourage all Kentuckians who are struggling to quit to take advantage of this no-cost opportunity to help them quit smoking for good.”

The Quit Line service is free to all Kentuckians and available in multiple languages. To learn more about kyhealthnow and the goals related to reducing smoking rates, visit kyhealthnow.ky.gov.

Unemployment rates leveling off

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

Unemployment appears to be leveling off across the nation after a steady decrease in numbers over the last several months. But employment health continues to look strong for Kentucky as well as Crittenden County, despite a slight uptick in the local jobless rate from February to March.

Last Thursday, the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training reported that March unemployment rates fell in all 120 Kentucky counties from what was recorded a year earlier. However, the same report showed the monthly jobless rate for several counties increased – albeit slightly – for the first time this year.

In Crittenden County, the most recent jobless rate reported was 5.8 percent, up from 5.7 percent in February, but down from 7.3 percent in March 2014. Last month's unemployment figures, however, are preliminary and could be adjusted before the next month's report.

Local jobless rate ticks up in March

Below are the jobless rates for select counties listed from the state's lowest in March 2015 to the highest, with rates for Crittenden and surrounding counties included between.

In neighboring Livingston

County, the story was a bit different. From February, unemployment fell a half-point in March to 8 percent. The March 2014 jobless rate was 7.3 percent.

Woodford County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 3.5 percent. Magoffin County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate – 14.7 percent.

Meantime, unemployment rates fell in 23 U.S. states last month, including Kentucky, and rose in 12 as employers pulled back on hiring and a slowdown in oil and gas drilling caused big job losses in some states.

The U.S. Labor Department also reported last week that 31 states lost jobs while hiring picked up in just 18 states.

Nationwide, employers added just 126,000 jobs in March, the fewest in a year. The unemployment rate remained 5.5 percent.

Nevada reported the highest unemployment rate in March at 7.1 percent. Kentucky's unemployment was 5.4 percent, down slightly from February's 5.5 percent.

JOBS

market to work because they can generally earn a somewhat higher wage.

"It's people like lab technicians or others who specialize in a particular skill that are harder to find here," Curnel said.

A certified nurse with a two-year college degree is perhaps the easiest to find, she said, but they're not always easy to keep due to many of the issues facing other employers.

In Crittenden County, the unemployment rate has been fairly steady around the 5.8 percent mark for the last few months. A year ago, it was much higher at around 7.3 percent.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said the jobless numbers are very telling.

"Where we stand right now at 5.7 percent is pretty much full employment around here," said the city administrator, who is often instrumental in the community's economic development matters.

"It seems like anyone who really wants a job has got one. It might not be the job they want, but they're employed," Bryant said.

On the other hand, he said there are obviously a number of available positions.

"It's my understanding that Par 4 and Siemens are pretty much hiring all of the time," Bryant said.

As a member of the community's economic development team, Bryant said it's just as important to focus on improving the workforce as it is to develop new jobs.

Kentucky has a program that certifies counties that meet specific benchmarks as Work-Ready Communities. Crittenden is not among them right now, but Bryant says there is some consideration among community leaders to start that initiative here.

Certified work-ready communities demonstrate an assurance to business and industry that the community is committed to providing the highly-skilled workforce required in today's competitive global economy, Bryant said.

Crittenden County has an assortment of options for helping the workforce better prepare itself for the growing job market. From high school programs to the adult education center, individuals can find assistance in preparing themselves to go to work.

Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools Vince Clark said job shadowing, co-op programs, work-based education credits, WorkKeys assessment and other vocational testing are available generally at no cost to students. He also said the school system has a "jobs coach" who fosters relationships between students and businesses.

Clark said local administrators and teachers have spent a great deal of time discussing the future of education.

"We have talked about how school is being redefined. It's different than when we went to school," Clark said.

The superintendent foresees a time when there will be more work-based education credits.

"I don't think you will ever be able to work four years on a farm and earn a diploma, but if you are interested in pursuing a path in agriculture, I think there are some opportunities there for educational credit and to create life skills and work skills."

Cindy Davidson, an instructor at the Crittenden County Adult Education Center on East Bellville Street in Marion, said individuals can get help preparing resumes, applying online for jobs or attaining a GED. The adult education office also provides some employer-required testing such as the WorkKeys assessment.

"Unfortunately, there is nowhere right now in Marion to take the Compass test, unless you're in high school," Davidson said.

Clark said the school district is among the local employers looking for new hires. He said substitute teachers, substitute custodians, part-time office help and bus drivers are areas where the district is looking to hire.

Learning essentials on essential oils

By now, you've likely heard about essential oils, but may not be familiar with what they are and their benefits and risks. Essential oils are highly concentrated oils derived from plants. While used for centuries, their popularity has recently soared, especially among individuals looking for natural healing options other than prescription medications. A term you may be more familiar with is aromatherapy, which is how essential oils are used. While research is limited into the effectiveness of aromatherapy, some studies have shown the practice may have health benefits such as relieving anxiety or depression or improving health and wellness, particularly for those who suffer from chronic illness. Many oils are safe when used as directed but none are regulated by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. The oil you choose to use depends on the ailment you hope to relieve or cure. No medically endorsed list exists that specifies which oil is best for treating particular health conditions. The chemistry of oils will vary among different locations, climates, seasons, time of day when harvested, packaging methods, storage method and even among plants. This is in vast contrast to pharmaceuticals that are synthetically reproduced to be the same each time. More research is needed to determine essential oils' effect on children and pregnant or breast-feeding women and how the oils might interact with other medications and treatments. Before starting any treatment, research the oil and consult qualified health care professionals. Oils can be applied in a variety of ways but most commonly are rubbed directly on the skin or inhaled. The application method depends on the health condition you have and the type of oil you are using. For example, you would most likely apply an essential oil topically if you were using it to heal a wound. Oils used for mood enhancers are most commonly inhaled for fast relief. Some oils can cause skin irritation and should not be applied directly to the skin. Many oils have to be diluted with another substance such as water or another oil in order to be applied topically. Others may produce an allergic reaction in some individuals or cause sun sensitivity. If you have questions about an application method, you should consult an aromatherapist. Oils should always be stored out of sight and away from children. Accidental ingestion of oils in amounts as small as a teaspoon has resulted in death. Note: Sources for this information came from the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service, Mayo Clinic and University of Minnesota. (Nancy Hunt's Home Notes column appears periodically in this newspaper. A Crittenden County resident, Hunt served for 35 years at the UK Cooperative Extension Service in Crittenden County as an Extension Agent for 4-H and Youth Development and Family and Consumer Sciences.)

Nancy Hunt

Crittenden Press guest columnist

Local Homemakers carry on tradition

STAFF REPORT
In 1975 the Crooked Creek Homemakers Club planted a dogwood tree on the Crittenden County Courthouse lawn in Marion. A marker commemorating the event remains on the courthouse lawn. Forty years later, members of the Crooked Creek Homemakers Club and members from other Crittenden County

Homemaker clubs celebrated Earth Day last Wednesday by planting a white dogwood tree near the marker. Crooked Creek Homemakers Club can be traced to Oct. 31, 1951, when 11 ladies of the Crooked Creek community met at the home of Rebecca Fritts. Their goal was to organize a homemaker club. Since that date, the club has enjoyed many awards and recognitions and has been active in community, area and state projects. Over the years, club members have assisted in projects for Crittenden Health Systems, Crittenden County Health and Rehab, collected school supplies for low-income families and helped send children to summer camp. Club members have served in both the county and area as officers and chairpersons and have sent delegates to state and national meetings. Members have worked toward educational and civic goals while establishing friendships within the community.

CCHS chemistry students tour Westlake

Recently, 27 Crittenden County High School chemistry students traveled to Westlake Chemical Corp. in Calvert City for a field trip. While at the chemical plant, students were introduced to some of the various processes at the facility and made familiar with the related job opportunities in the area. They learned about the chemical reactions and separation methods at the plant and the importance of education and hard work. The students attended a presentation about the importance of interviewing for careers and qualities employers find desirable. They were then able to take a guided tour through the chemical plant and into the chemistry lab to see some of the quality control measures.

Backroads Festival draws visitors from as far as Norway

STAFF REPORT

People from 15 states and three foreign countries made their way to Crittenden County last week for the 26th annual Backroads Festival, according to organizers. Most of the visitors, from individuals to large groups, spilled over from the American Quilter's Society Quilt Show in Paducah.

Edwards

"It is very rewarding to see all these people from across the country and around the world enjoy the small town charm of Marion," said Michele Edwards, Marion Tourism Director. "They arrive anticipating the visit to the Amish Community and realize that Marion has a full day of shopping, dining, museums and exploring to experience."

The Backroads Festival draws more out of town visitors than any other single event held in Marion during the year, said Edwards, but putting a figure to the economic benefit is difficult.

New to the festival this year was the Barn Quilt Tour, developed by the Crittenden County Extension Homemakers Association. It allowed visitors the opportunity to tour the county looking for the large quilt blocks attached to buildings.

Approximately 120 people visited the Homemakers' Backroads Quilt Show to view local quilts. Some visitors came from as far away as Norway. Those visiting from other states included Texas, Illinois, New York, Florida, Alabama, Virginia, Louisiana, Tennessee, Maryland, Georgia, Colorado and Oregon. Numerous others came from across Kentucky.

Crittenden County Extension Homemaker President Sarah Ford was pleased that locals who had not participated previously brought quilts to this year's show.

The Homemakers' show also featured the amazing work of Marion's Master Quilter June Culvey. Her quilts rivaled many of those displayed in Paducah.

It was also another successful year for the Woman's Club of Marion Annual Quilt Show and Bake Sale. Woman's Club President Rebecca Zahrt said 30 quilts were on display this year with both local and out-of-town entries.

"Many of the quilts were done by the entrant themselves, but some were inherited pieces from relatives," Zahrt said. "Our club building was visited by over 40 people, representing 10 different states; our furthest visitor was from New York. It is always a treat to see such beautiful pieces, whether they are every-day use quilts or those precious ones that are only shown at special occasions. I am already looking forward to next year."

Also, at the Christian Church Quilt Show, more than 70 heirloom quilts were displayed.

Additionally, Crittenden County Historical Museum reported more than 50 visitors for the two days of the festival.

Annual event features quilt shows, arts, crafts

This year's annual Amish Tour and Backroads Festival drew scores of tourists from Paducah's American Quilter's Society Quilt Show. While in Crittenden County, visitors had several opportunities to enjoy local quilts, scenery and crafts. Clockwise from top, Nancy McCaffrey of East Moriches, N.Y., views a quilt at the Christian Church Quilt Show given as a gift to a retiring minister whose congregation members placed their signatures on the hands featured in the quilt. Crittenden County resident Sandra Belt was named this year's Woman's Club of Marion Quilt Show People's Choice Award winner for a tulip quilt that was pieced and quilted by her grandmother Clara. Crittenden County Extension Homemaker President Sarah Ford (left) is pictured with this year's Homemakers Backroads Quilt Show featured artist, Master Quilter June Culvey of Crittenden County, who displayed some of her award winning quilts. Winning this year's People's Choice Award for the Homemakers Backroads Quilt Show favorite were Rodney and Nancy Paris for the quilt Cathedral Window, made in the 1960s by Rodney's mother Pansy. Shown above are Jerrell James, Extension Homemaker Pennyryle Area President; Nancy Paris; Darl Henley, vice president of the Pennyryle Area Extension Homemakers; and Rodney Paris next to the show favorite.

Monster turkey harvest

Cody Guess harvested a 37.6-pound wild turkey last week in Lyon County. The National Wild Turkey Federation, which keeps records on such things, says the world record is currently 36 pounds. The Lake News in Calvert City reports that Guess's bird has been weighed on two different USDA certified scales that say it weighs 37.6 pounds and it has been checked by other wildlife officials. Confirmation of this being a record could take several days. The tom had 1.25-inch spurs.

Jim Defreitas took this gobbler April 22 that scored over 110 points on the NWTF scoring system.

Paxton Riley bagged this nice gobbler last week. It had an 11-inch beard and seven-eighths-inch spurs.

Quinn Summers, 7, bagged his first gobbler with help from grandpa Allen Summers and an antique .410 shotgun. The jake had a four-inch beard and weighed 16 pounds.

Rocket third baseman Ethan Hunt (24) gets a potential doubleplay started after fielding a grounder against Hopkinsville Monday at Marion-Crittenden County Park. The twin-killing didn't work out, but the lead runner was retired.

leaving 11 runners stranded during the seven-inning game. Shelby Robinson reached in each of his four plate appearances. The sophomore infielder hit the team's first home run of the season. It was a solo shot in the seventh inning. Robinson also singled in the game and reached on a walk and was hit by a pitch. He was one of three Rockets hit by pitches. Also with hits for CCHS were Bobby Stephens, Ethan Hunt, Alex Cosby, Maeson Myers, Clay Croft and Taylor Yancy. Yancy had two. Myers went the distance on the mound, allowing four earned runs.

•Hopkinsville, ranked 15th last week in the state, scored 21 runs on 20 hits against Crittenden County Monday at Marion. The Tigers were ahead by 10 after one inning and went on to win 21-0. While their hitting was excellent, the pitching was better. Easton McGee, a 6-6 All American candidate, went three innings with a fastball in the low 90s and Luke Brown finished it off. CCHS had just one hit. McGee, a junior, has committed to UK.

Cassidy Moss struck out 10 to beat Trigg County on Friday.

Streaking Lady Rockets tie school wins mark

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County's fast-pitch softball team (10-11) has won three straight, including two Fifth District games, and tied a record for most wins in a season. If the Lady Rockets set a new standard for wins this year, it will likely be done on the road as the girls play four straight away games starting Thursday at Dawson before returning home May 7 to host Tilghman. Crittenden's most fast-pitch wins prior to this year were 10 in 1997 under coach Greg Sutton. With a lineup filled with underclassmen, the Lady Rockets appear poised for some breakout seasons in years to come, said the coach. Crittenden reached double digit wins on Tuesday with a 3-2 Fifth District victory at Livingston. Kali Travis broke a 2-2 tie in the top of the seventh after a leadoff double. She scored later on an error. Kaitlyn Hicks and Cassidy Moss had an RBI each earlier in the game. Moss pitched and struck out eight, allowing no earned runs. Third-year head coach Cheyanne Warriner said her girls are excited to have tied the school record, and to beat Livingston. "It seems like we're overcoming some things and not letting one error or one bad play define the whole game," she said. •Crittenden won its first district game Friday as Moss struck out 10 at Trigg

County and CCHS won 2-1. The Lady Rocket pitcher walked just one and allowed two hits over seven innings. Trigg had plated its only run in the fourth and was clinging to the narrow lead in the bottom of the sixth when Crittenden put together a rally when Moss reached on an error to start the inning and Kiana Nesbitt walked. Emmie Smith knocked in both runs with a two-out double. Crittenden had two more hits in the game, both singles by Hicks and Moss. •Crittenden scored single runs in the third and sixth innings on errors as the Lady Rockets beat Hopkins Central on the road Monday. Jessi Brewer walked and scored in the third and Cassidy Moss singled and scored in the sixth. C h a y l e e Wolf, Kaitlyn Hicks, Moss Kali Travis each singled for CCHS. Moss went the distance on the mound with six strikeouts and three walks. She allowed just three hits. •Pitchers Ayla and Evyn Hendrickson combined for a two-hit shutout as Union blanked Crittenden 12-0 last Thursday at Marion. Khyla Moss and Jenna Potter had singles for the Lady Rockets. Union is ranked 7th in Kentucky, according to the latest state coaches' poll.

Middle schoolers scheduled for 11 games this week

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Middle School is competing against a spring baseball schedule that includes several more games.

The club is 1-6 so far this year. It's only win was the season-opener at Marshall County. The boys have lost to that same Marshall team since that first game and lost to another Marshall County club. They have also played Lyon, University Heights Academy and Webster County.

Crittenden has 11 games scheduled for this week alone. Of course, some of those are doubleheaders.

The club will play for another couple of weeks.

The middle school years have typically been a void for baseball players in this area.

"In the past there hasn't been much for boys this age," said Jamie Brown, one of the coaches. "We're just trying to give these guys an opportunity to play baseball and to get better."

Extension ag seminars abuzz about beekeeping

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

A world without honeybees would mean a world without many favorite summertime fruits and vegetables. Apples, blueberries, watermelons, cucumbers and many other types of produce are dependent on honeybee pollination.

At a beekeeping meeting held earlier this month at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion, University of Kentucky Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service Agriculture and Natural Resources Agent Meredith Hall spoke to a classroom filled with local residents interested in the art of beekeeping.

University of Kentucky Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service Agriculture and Natural Resources Agent Meredith Hall and Webster County resident John McCormick put together frames for beehives at a recent meeting on beekeeping.

Hall explained the importance of the honeybee goes far beyond what's in the produce aisle at the local grocery and affects many components of agriculture both directly and indirectly. For example, while alfalfa hay doesn't require insect pollination, it is grown from seed that is entirely dependent on insect pollination. Hall said honeybees are one of the insects used to pollinate alfalfa fields for seed production in California, a major source of the country's alfalfa seed production.

But honeybees don't just play a big role in agriculture, they are also beneficial to humans in other ways. In addition to soothing a cough, honey is also believed to be a great source to treat minor wounds. During the honey conversion process when nectar is deposited, trace elements of hydrogen peroxide, an anti-bacterial source, are also produced from various enzymes in the bee's mouth.

Consuming local honey is also believed to relieve seasonal allergies. Hall said when local honey is eaten, small amounts of allergens are ingested which can help build up the body's immunity. Once reintroduced to the allergen, the body can fight off allergies.

Hall said honey may also be beneficial to prevent low white blood cell counts. A recent study by the Mayo Clinic involved 14 cancer patients undergoing chemotherapy. During treatment, each patient ate two teaspoons of honey. After the trial, seven of the patients undergoing the treatments didn't suffer from low white blood cell counts.

With the passage of Senate Bill 143, honeybees are included in the definition of livestock and can be exempt from sales tax. Hall said that's an important step for existing beekeepers and local residents who are interested in beekeeping.

Hall said the classes were initiated in part by the number of calls on the topic received at the Extension Service. She wanted to provide a local forum to discuss beekeeping, share information and eventually work toward making two hives for honey production.

The next beekeeping meeting is scheduled for Tuesday at the Ed-Tech Center. Call the Extension Service office at (270) 965-5236 for further information.

Hall is in the process of scheduling a visit to Marion by Kentucky's state apiarist Tammy Horn for a regional discussion on beekeeping.

"I've been pleased with the turnout and look forward to the upcoming meetings," Hall said.

Water district board installed

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom (right) administered the oath to three of the six Crittenden-Livingston Water District commissioners Monday at the district office in Salem. Sworn in were (standing, from left) Stephen Hill and Joe Kaiser of Crittenden County and Bill Barrett of Livingston County. Also pictured is board Chairman Randell O'Bryan of Livingston County, who had already taken the oath. The remaining board members, who are not pictured, are Alan Hunt of Crittenden County and Larry Barnes of Livingston County.

Board of ed agrees to sell naming rights to facilities, alter spring break

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Board of Education on Tuesday approved a revision to the 2015-16 academic calendar that will push spring break back a week to coincide with other area school districts. The move will align the local district's spring break with that of the vocational school in Princeton, preventing Crittenden County High School students from missing two weeks of vocational instruction as they did this year.

The board also agreed to free up the first three days of spring to make up classroom instruction missed due to wintry weather if there are a considerable number of days to be made up as has been the case the last two school years.

Additionally on Tuesday, the board approved a measure to sell the naming rights to Rocket Arena, Rocket Stadium and the middle school gym to appropriate bidders. Superintendent of Schools Vince Clark said if things go well, the board might also consider selling the naming rights to other venues.

Mike Hancock on the road's development.

"As far back as the mid- to late 1990s, the primary goal was to construct a facility that would allow 102-inch wide trucks to safely use U.S. 641 between I-24 and Marion," Romine said in the email. "While there were some initial desires to construct a four-lane facility, traffic volumes have not justified a project with a scope that large."

"Recent work on U.S. 641 between Fredonia and Marion has provided a better route for the large trucks and should provide a safer, more efficient facility for the large trucks and traveling public, alike. Our continued focus is on improvements to U.S. 641 between Fredonia and I-24 with, again, a goal to build a facility that will meet traffic needs and provide a safe route for 102-inch trucks. Once complete, this new corridor will provide the more efficient, safer connection between I-24 and Marion that has long been a goal of the community and the Transportation Cabinet."

Newcom was disappointed with Romine's statements.

"He is absolutely correct in the fact that the history dates back to the 1990s, and in the past 25 years, we have a dirt track to show for our patience and persistence," Newcom wrote to Buchanan, adding that the current narrow and winding U.S. 641 from Marion to Eddyville continues to be plagued with "horrific accidents" and causes headaches for transportation of goods and services to and from the community.

"We constantly have to work around Vehicle Enforcement issues due to the fact that we have no road legal for the standard-width trucks that are used today," Newcom continued.

As it now stands, there are no corridors in Crittenden County certified to carry the 102-inch tractor-trailers used by most carriers.

"Again, I see that the Cabinet is not going to provide solid information on when or even if this road will be built,"

Newcom concluded in his email.

Currently, work on the construction of the first phase of a new U.S. 641 appears stalled.

As of today (Thursday), it has been 1,168 days since a ceremonial ground-breaking for the road project on Feb. 17, 2012. Grade and drain work on the 5.2-mile segment from Marion to Fredonia is almost complete, but Newcom said he does not expect to see paving along this initial phase of the overall project until 2016.

A timetable is difficult to nail down. There remain outstanding property acquisitions for tie-ins to the current U.S. 641, and the design of the remainder of the route toward Eddyville is still under development.

Newcom did not anticipate the project to be taken over by the federal government by asking Whitfield's office for help, as federal highway funds are as scarce as state monies for roads and bridges, but he was hoping for better news after the congressman's office contacted Frankfort on the issue.
