MYERS FUNERAL HOME OWNER DIES TUESDAY

Joe Myers, 70, of Marion died Tuesday at Rivers Bend Retirement Community in Kuttawa. Myers and his wife, Barbara, owned and operated Myers Funeral Home, and until about a year ago, had owned and operated WMJL radio station in Marion. They sold the radio station last April after having operated it since 1994. He was elected as Crittenden County Coroner in 2006 and served one term.

NON-PROFITS EXEMPT FROM SALES TAX NOW

House Bill 354 from the just-concluded session of the Kentucky General Assembly resolved questions and confusion about the application of its 2018 legislation that added a sales tax to nonprofit sales. Due to an emergency clause in this legislation, sales of admissions and tangible property sales at fundraising events by all nonprofit, governmental and civic organizations will once again be exempt from sales tax. These entities will no longer charge sales tax on transactions as specified in the legislation. All of these non-profit organizations should discontinue charging sales tax immediately. The exemption does not apply to sales by retail businesses like thrift stores owned or operated by nonprofit or governmental groups.

McGOWAN PRESIDENT OF AREA FFA REGION

Ellie McGowan, a junior at Crittenden County High School, has been elected Pennyrile Region President for FFA for the 2019-20 school year. McGowan will be installed Sunday at the Regional FFA Banquet at Christian County High School. McGowan is the second Crittenden County student to serve as regional president in the past three years. Cali Parish, a 2017 graduate, was regional president during the 2016-17 school year. Crittenden County has had a female FFA member serve in a regional officer position the past three years. McGowan is the daughter of Mollie Tabor of Fredonia and the granddaughter of Elbert and Linda Bennett, also of Fredonia. She plans to pursue a college degree in agribusiness and communications.

Counseling center to open this month

STAFF REPORT
A Christian-based substance abuse and behavioral health service hopes to be up and running this month in a church recently donated to county government. Andrea's Mission Recovery Center, a non-profit based in Morgantown, already serves Crittenden County through its services, but providing outpatient services in Marion at the former Marion Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) will allow them to expand treatment options for local residents. Already, District Judge Daniel Heady and Circuit Judge Rene Williams send many offenders to Andrea's Mission for court-ordered treatment. Jack Easley, who works with Andrea's Mission, told Crittenden Fiscal Court on March 21 that there were, at the time, nine patients from Crittenden County at the Morgantown facility and another 13 in a four-month aftercare program. "Sometimes, as much as 75 percent of the facility is filled with people from this county," Easley said. Andrea's Mission has 16 beds each for men and women in separate facilities. But plans for the Marion satellite center are to offer only outpatient services. In fact, in November of last year, the organization became licensed to provide individual and family counseling, assessments and case management. Bruce Jennings, executive director of Andrea's Mission, said plans are to offer treatment and counseling to not only substance abusers, but also those with mental health struggles and victims of domestic violence. This would be done by eventually staffing licensed therapists, a psychiatrist and medical doctor. "We would basically be a mental health facility," he said. "We would be able to meet the needs of the county in terms of mental health issues." Judge-Executive Perry Newcom and magistrates support the idea of bringing in Andrea's Mission to help combat the burgeoning substance abuse issues in the community. That is why they have of-

At 65, Jerry McDonald shows no signs of slowing down with a rigorous daily workout routine. Here he's working on his regular 4-mile run at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

Local seniors staying in shape

STAFF REPORT
Actor Dick Van Dyke is more than 90 years old, and while promoting his recent book, "Keep Moving: And Other Tips and Truths About Living Well," the show business legend said he goes to the gym four or five days a week. "Now, when I get there," he said, "I don't do a whole lot." The point is that just moving and going is good for the mind, body and spirit, and when it comes to staying fit over 50, there has to be a commonsense approach. Quite often you might see Jerry McDonald running the 1.25-mile trail at Marion-Crittenden County Park. At 65, McDonald puts about 12 miles a week on his running shoes at the park, another 100 minutes on an elliptical in his garage and countless more miles on his bike. All that comes after his early morning workout which consists of a 20-minute aerobic exercise he gets off a fitness app on his smartphone and another 20 minutes on a rowing machine. While McDonald has worked his way up to that rigorous routine after 30 years, he started out like a normal human, inspired by a military formula for determining physical fitness known as the Cooper Test, which measures how far a person can run in 12 minutes. "I wasn't in very good

Local man trapped in asphalt silo for 7 hours, unharmed

STAFF REPORT
A Marion man escaped serious injury or worse thanks to quick response from coworkers and rescuers last week in an industrial accident in Indianapolis, Ind. Billy Joe Walls, 34, of Marion was trapped for more than seven hours, buried to his torso in an asphalt silo before being rescued by firefighters from multiple Indiana departments. The operation began shortly before 1 p.m. March 26 at Milestone Contractors in on East 96th Street in Indianapolis. According to reports from various news agencies in the Indianapolis area, Walls was about 30 feet down in an asphalt silo filled with gravel when first responders arrived. Walls was working along with others from here for Riley Tool and Machine of Marion, which had been contracted to inspect the silo. Walls was working inside the silo and taking measurements. These silos are normally filled with asphalt, but in order to take measurements, they are filled with gravel instead, according to a report in the Indianapolis Star. The gravel starts three feet from the top and the worker is lowered in, according to the newspaper's online report. Once measurements are

Lawmakers override key vetoes, end session

The last day of the 2019 Regular Session ended shortly before midnight last Thursday when the General Assembly adjourned sine die, a Latin term for “without day.” For a legislative body, it means to adjourn without assigning a day for a further meeting or hearing. Unless the Governor calls for an extraordinary (special) session, which I don’t think will happen, the Kentucky General Assembly will next meet in 2020.

Even though this was a short session – 30 days as opposed to a 60-day budget session – there was no shortage of issues that legislators felt needed to be addressed. There were a total of 789 bills filed – 525 in the

Rep. Lynn BECHLER
R-Marion
Kentucky House Legislative Review

House and 264 in the Senate – of which 200 were passed by both chambers. Additionally, there were 46 joint resolutions filed – 27 in the House and 19 in the Senate – of which three were passed. A joint resolution is important because it has the force of law and typically is used to direct a governmental agency to take a certain action or to honor some person or thing.

The Kentucky Constitution mandates that the Governor has 10 days, excluding Sundays, to veto legislation, sign legislation into law or allow legislation to become law without his signature. Thus, bills passed by the General Assembly and vetoed by the Governor that were sent to him before the veto period break can have the veto overridden by the General Assembly. Bills vetoed by the Governor that were passed and sent to him after the veto period break, just prior to sine die adjournment, cannot be overridden by the General Assembly.

In the Commonwealth, the Governor is allowed line item veto power in addition to the ability to override an entire bill. The Governor did, in fact, veto House Bill 4 in its entirety and vetoed part of HB 268.

HB 4 extends the amount of time an administrative regulation can be reviewed by a legislative committee and make changes to the regulation. The Governor felt that extending the time could put executive branch agencies at risk for losing federal funds.

I voted Yes on HB 4 when it was originally passed and also voted Yes to override the veto. The legislature is a co-equal branch of government, and I believe it has a duty to oversee non-elected governmental bodies. The veto was overridden, and HB 4 is now law.

HB 268 changes some of the areas where tax receipts can be spent. Among these is money for the area development districts, or ADDs. ADDs provide many services and work regionally in areas such as health care, aging, economic development and workforce development. The Governor vetoed changes in the bill that would move some ADD funds from eastern Kentucky to other areas of the Commonwealth including the Pennyrite Area Development District that serves District 4.

The Governor was of the opinion that the changes would affect his ability to prioritize federal matching dollars.

The Governor also vetoed a piece of HB 268 that would have changed the way universities could dispose of property. He felt the changes would create an unnecessary burden on universities that already had adopted a specific statutory process for disposing of property.

I voted Yes on HB 268 when it was originally passed and also voted Yes to override the veto on the portions addressing ADDs. Those portions of the veto were overridden and are now law.

The General Assembly agreed with the Governor about disposal of university property and did not override those portions of the veto.

Much to my displeasure, there were several bills passed on the last day; and as this is being written, the Governor has not taken any action on them. In next week’s update, I will address a couple of those bills and provide an update on what the Governor has done with them. I will also give my thoughts on the session as a whole.

As always, thank you for reading my updates and thank you for contacting me with your concerns and thoughtful suggestions. It is a privilege to represent you in the Kentucky House of Representatives and your input helps me make decisions that best represent the views of the 4th District. ## Law bans tobacco at schools

After 30 productive legislative days in Frankfort, the Kentucky General Assembly bid farewell to the 153rd Regular Session.

In our final legislative week, the General Assembly saw the ceremonial signing of Senate Bill 1, the pivotal bipartisan measure to enhance school safety. Also known as the School Safety and Resiliency Act, SB 1 was widely considered as the highest-legislative priority of the 2019 Regular Session by both the House and the Senate. While no legislation is perfect, when it concerns the well-being of our students, inaction is not an option. This collaborative measure is a step in the right direction, and I look forward to addressing these school safety provisions further in the 2020 budget session.

Retirement System (KERS) by July of next year. Employees of the exiting groups hired before 2014 could keep their pensions or join a defined contribution plan. All employees hired after 2014 would be required to join the defined contribution plan, similar to a 401(k) retirement plan.

In addition to HB 358, the Senate approved a number of bills that will become law upon the governor’s signature, including:

HB 11 would ban the use of tobacco and e-cigarettes, such as vaping devices, on public school campuses, in school vehicles and at school activities beginning with the 2020-21 school year.

With only 42 percent of Kentucky school districts being 100 percent tobacco free, this legislation would provide a healthier learning environment for our students, and help promote a tobacco free lifestyle.

SB 18 would address pregnancy-related discrimination by clarifying employers’ responsibilities when it comes to making reasonable accommodations for pregnant employees.

SB 18 would do this by clearly outlining in statute what constitutes reasonable accommodations and explaining the proper procedures for the employment of pregnant women. Another provision states SB 18 would apply only to businesses with 15 employees or more.

SB 162 is designed to increase the pool of qualified applicants to be school resource officers. SB 162 would do this, in part, by creating the Kentucky State Police school resource officer program.

HB 458 would address changes in Kentucky’s tax code that were embodied in HB 354 that was signed by the governor earlier this week

It would address deferred tax deductions and net operating losses incurred under the unitary reporting requirements that were passed last session. It would also make sure financial organizations established as “thrifits” in Kentucky would get the same tax relief banks will receive under HB 354, a measure that passed earlier in the session. And HB 458 will clarify that local deposit taxes on banks can continue to be levied.

While the 30-day session concluded shortly before midnight Thursday, the work in Frankfort continues. To provide a continuity of study and action between sessions, interim joint committees are formed to discuss issues in-depth for the 2020 Regular Session.

It is an honor to represent you in Frankfort, and I look forward to continued discussion on a number of issues facing our district and the Commonwealth.

Church seeks help against alcohol vote

To the editor:

Once again, the people of Marion are faced with the issue of alcoholic beverages being sold within the city limits. Emmanuel Baptist Church is taking a stand in opposition to this issue, as we feel the expected revenue from the sale of alcohol is outweighed by the detriments caused by the effects of alcohol on our community.

We ask all churches and individual Christians, as well as other concerned citizens, to join us in voting no on alcohol sales.

taken at that level, the gravel is released through a port at the bottom in three-foot increments. That process continues until they reach the bottom.

According to Walls’ account released on the Facebook page of Indianapolis Fire Department (IFD), “the rock was released and (his) feet and weight had not properly cleared the rock and were still on the pile as it was being released from the bottom... His feet and weight still on the rock – along with the extra slack in his cable – allowed him to be sucked into the pile. Walls had his two-way radio in his hand – not his pocket – so he was able to communicate to his co-workers.”

Walls remained conscious during the episode, but may have suffered from shock, according to reports. Walls was finally pulled from the silo about 8:30 p.m.

Todd Riley, owner of the Marion-based company for which Walls works, said he could not discuss the matter at this point because it remains under investigation by Occupational Safety and Health Administration, or OSHA. He did say that Walls spent the night at St. Vincent Hospital in Indianapolis for observation, but was released the following day and returned home.

“Billy sustained no internal injuries nor any broken bones which we all can agree is pretty miraculous,” reads a follow-up report on the fire department’s Facebook page. “The ALS medical care he was given by the IFD Firefighter Paramedic inside the silo was instrumental in keeping his fluids up and his pain manageable.”

Carrsville monument dedicated

STAFF REPORT

Livingston County Tourist Commission dedicated a new monument on the Carrsville riverfront Saturday.

The black granite monument has an image of the steamboat John Lowry at Carrsville’s riverport. The inscription on the monument reads: “An Old River Town: In the mid-19th century, the Ohio River was a great highway of North America. The farms and industries of the region transferred goods down the Ohio to the Mississippi and beyond. Incorporated in 1860, Carrsville thrived on river trade. The Ohio and other rivers dominated transport over the course of a century. Railways and highways replaced river transport, and the 1937 Flood ravaged the town of Carrsville.”

The monument is dedicated “In memory of the town folk who made their living from the river.”

The monument is the fifth in a series of Livingston County historical markers sponsored by the Livingston ferred the building for the center’s use.

“We have recognized that need, and that’s why we’re talking about offering that space,” Newcom said of the church on West Bellville Street recently deeded to the county. “That would be our way of giving to those people in need in this community.”

County Attorney Rebecca Johnson, who prosecutes drug-related cases in district court, said long-term counseling in addition to initial treatment is necessary for success.

“Programs like this are very important to have as follow-up,” she said at the fiscal court meeting. “I’m excited to have something like this close by.”

She is also hoping having Andrea’s Mission in the county will allow DUI offenders to undergo alcohol counseling locally. Until last year, the service was offered in Marion, but has since been moved to Princeton, making it more difficult for compliance with court orders.

Jennings said Andrea’s

Mission would likely start out staffing a center in Marion three days a week and grow the hours as necessary renovations are made to the building to suit the needs of treatment and counseling.

“We would like to get started in April,” Jennings told magistrates at last month’s meeting. “It would take us a year to get up and running like we would want to be.”

Andrea’s Mission was created almost 15 years ago and opened its first treatment center in July 2011. It is largely funded through Medicaid – as much as 95 percent, according to Jennings.

“It is needed in this area, no question,” Jennings said of the service.

He said he has seen families reunited and lives saved and restored through the work of Andrea’s Mission. He believes its faith-based services are key to its success.

“Our policies, goals and program are deeply rooted in the Christian faith,” he said. “If you research it, faith-based programs are the most successful.”

Local hospital recognizes auxiliary, chaplains

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden Community Hospital (CCH) is thanking all of its volunteers – auxiliary and chaplains – not only next week during 2019 National Volunteer Week, but every day for all that they do for the patients, family members, visitors and staff at CCH.

According to a history of the hospital auxiliary compiled by its members, the group was formed in 1981 and includes more than 30 volunteers who give of their time each week for the benefit of the hospital. They are a familiar sight in their pink smocks – men wear blue – as they go about their duties each weekday in the front lobby, the admitting waiting room and other places where needed.

The auxiliary takes patients to their rooms when they are admitted and helps transport them to their vehicles when the patients are well enough to go home. They help visitors find their loved ones, give directions, deliver flowers, mail and The Crittenden Press. Sometimes, they are just a friendly face in a place that can be very stressful when you or a loved one are ill.

The hospital gift shop that sells gift items and snacks is also managed by the auxiliary. They also sell donated books and accept donations of books that come from people all over town. They donate baking supplies and their time in order to have at least two bake sales each year.

The money that is earned goes back into the “Auxiliary members enjoy what they do, while giving back to the community,” said Gaye Porter. “It’s a good place to meet new people and new members are always welcomed and needed. Even if you can’t volunteer, each time you purchase items in the hospital gift shop, you are helping too.”

CCH chaplains are also important volunteers. They service patients and their families and staff in times of need and are an integral part of the healing process. There is a chaplain on call for patient needs 24/7. Each Wednesday at 8:45 a.m., one of the chaplains has open prayer service in the hospital chapel where everyone is welcome to attend.

Steve Lynn, Rusty Miniard and Brian Penn (above) of James Penn Construction started with the first truss last week on the new Lions Club building at the fairgrounds and it didn't take them too long to have them all installed. The building could be under roof by week's end. Also this week, Kevin Maxfield (at left) spreads an aggregate base for concrete tee boxes for what will soon be an 18-hole disc golf course that will spread across the park and Victory Gardens area off Old Morganfield Road.

Disc golf, fairgrounds work picking up pace

STAFF REPORT

There's a great deal of new development going on around the park and fairgrounds this spring. A new Lions Club concession stand at the Crittenden County Fairgrounds will be completed by the end of June. Trusses went up last week and it should be under roof by the end of this week. The Lions received a $100,000 matching grant from the Kentucky Department of Agriculture to demolish the old concession stand and erect the new 3,000-square foot building. At Marion-Crittenden County Park, the new 18-hole championship style disc golf course is under construction. Work on installing tee boxes picked up pace this week, and the baskets could be put in later this week. Marion Tourism Commission is having the disc golf course built with help from the Crittenden County Detention Center.

Ballgames and School Trips Included Lawmakers tell schools to prohibit all tobacco

STAFF REPORT

Unless they opt out, Crittenden and other school districts will become totally tobacco free beginning in the fall of 2020. Starting then, there will be no smoking, dipping, chewing or vaping at any school-sponsored function, including sporting events, and there will be no designated smoking areas anywhere on campus for teachers or staff. Campuses and school property – and off-campus school trips – will have to be 100-percent tobacco and nicotine free if students are present, according to legislation passed by the General Assembly and expected to be signed into law by Gov. Matt Bevin.

The new law will affect parents, visitors, bus drivers, custodians, fans at ballgames and anyone else who is in the presence of students at school events whether on or off campus.

The Kentucky General Assembly last week passed the measure that makes it illegal for anyone to use tobacco or other alternative nicotine products on school grounds or any property leased or used by school districts.

School boards will be required to enact a local policy before July 1, 2020 to implement the legislature's new law and to begin educating and warning students, parents, teachers, staff and the general public.

The legislation, known as House Bill 11, requires school officials to enforce the prohibition. The plan would leave it up to individual school districts to decide on sanctions for those violating the law.

While some lawmakers are celebrating the new, stricter rules on tobacco and nicotine products as a win for shielding students from second-hand smoke and a proactive measure to lower teen smoking rates, others are calling it government overreach.

Rep. Lynn Bechler (R-Marion) voted against the measure, but did support an amendment that gives some leeway to tobacco users if students are not present. He said the amendment made the bill "less onerous."

Bechler says he's "absolutely against" the bill as it was passed by the House and Senate.

The ban would apply to students, teachers, coaches and other school personnel and visitors while on school property, in school vehicles or during school-sanctioned trips with students.

The bill lets local school boards opt out of the tobacco prohibitions within three years after the law takes effect next summer.

Almost 9,000 Kentuckians die each year from tobacco-related illnesses at a total health care cost of $1.92 billion, according to supporters of the new law.

In Kentucky, 43 percent of the school districts are tobacco free right now. Of the state's 173 districts, 74 have already acted to ban tobacco use on school property, but 99 have not.

Sen. Robbie Mills (R-Henderson) voted for the bill. Mills said that while he supports tobacco farming, this bill was complicated. He said it will no doubt have unintended consequences and realizes it will also create an inconvenience for some.

Williams passed over for Supreme Court

FROM STAFF, WIRE REPORTS

A Murray attorney and former judge has been chosen in favor of a local circuit judge to fill a vacancy on the Kentucky Supreme Court.

Last week, Gov. Matt Bevin tabbed David Buckingham to fill the open seat created by the retirement of Justice Bill Cunningham of Kuttawa. The appointment will allow Buckingham to remain on the bench until the results of the Kentucky general election are certified sometime in November. He will not seek the permanent Supreme Court position in that elec-

“Until six weeks ago, I hadn’t even thought about even applying to be a justice on the Kentucky Supreme Court, but an opportunity arose for me to apply, so I put my name in for consideration. It’s very humbling that I was selected,” Buckingham said, several hours after Bevin called him to tell him he was the new justice.

The district is composed of 24 western Kentucky counties, including Crittenden and all surrounding counties except for Union.

Buckingham was selected over 5th Judicial

Circuit Judge Rene Williams, who serves Crittenden, Union and Webster counties, and former circuit judge Tyler Landthrip Gill of Allensville

Buckingham is a 1974 graduate of Murray State University and received his juris doctor from the University of Louisville Brandeis School of Law in 1977, Bevin’s office said. While he has been in private practice since 2011, Buckingham served as a Kentucky Court of Appeals judge from 1997-2005, a circuit judge from 1987-1996 and a district judge from 1982-1986.

With his appointment, Buckingham is making history. He will become one of only four Kentucky judges to have served at all four levels of law in the commonwealth — district, circuit, Court of Appeals and Supreme Court. He also will be the only one of those four to hail from western Kentucky.

Will Marion citizens play or pay?

Play along with the age-old scare, “Let us legalize alcohol sales, which will sacrifice your morals, your family’s health and lives, or we’ll have to raise your taxes so we can decide how to spend them.”

As Christians, we are commanded by God to cry out against all evil, because all evil hurts all people.

When we do, I know it creates hard feelings, and that is always a heart break for me, as I have never wanted to hurt anyone. I have and will give my whole life to try to help all.

This makes us all know how it hurt Jesus to cry out against His own people.

He knew all had to be warned, or they all would go to hell. He prayed all would be wise. Because of His love, He had to go against those who were hurting others.

Too, in the case of alcohol sales in Marion, how unfair for city residents to be the only ones who can decide if the destructive drug of alcohol can be legally sold by the drink or by the bottle to be bought and carried out all over the county, causing grief not only to families but also for our law enforcement.

Then there would be pleas for more taxes to pay for more police, sheriff’s deputies, and need for families to go on tax-supported help, because of the grief of alcohol abusers.

Yes, for one to drink and get drunk shows one is weak, but aren’t we, as even good citizens, supposed to help the weak to stay away from the temptations that destroy them and their families?

All life-killing drugs are evil, and if not, why are people in prison for selling them?

If alcohol is not evil, then why was it ever illegal to sell or purchase it?

How did it ever become legal anywhere?

Answer: Citizens decide to disobey God’s Word and ways, and more and more get together to overpower the care and morals of truly born-again Christians, and knowledgeable, caring citizens.

All who want it legalized need to stand by a bed or casket of those whose health was destroyed by it. Or see how those using it kill others through traffic crashes and murders.

We, in this county, have been down this road before, and the grief, expense and trouble between families and friends can never offset any amount of money this evil would bring in. At this point, no one can know how big or small that amount would be.

In our small community most everyone knows everyone else. How many supporters of this mess think their friends, business owners, Sunday school teachers and students are willing to be seen by each other drinking down drugs that fathers have warned their children to never take?

People who want to poison themselves with alcohol, and set a bad example before children, want their booze sold in Marion. They want it sold in restaurants, gas stations, grocery stores and other places so they don’t have to go out of town to support their needs.

Will what alcohol could bring in this town offset what these businesses could lose?

All the years of my youth, I never needed cigarettes or alcohol to be cool, relax, be cute, settle my nerves or be accepted by my peers.

Alcohol is like cigarettes, if you never start using it, you will never have to go through the awful damage it does to your soul, mind, health and others, nor the nerve-shattering pain of having to give it up.

Just a caring, friendly word of wisdom to the wise!

Be not misled by theological rhetoric; be careful to interpret Word in context

In the first book of the New Testament, we find that when Jesus began His ministry, the theme of his preaching was on the kingdom of heaven. He told His listeners the kingdom is at hand. In other words, it is close or within reach. Then He tells how we may enter into the kingdom.

Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of Heaven. Matthew 5:3.

Here in the free world where Bibles are readily available and other books on Christianity galore, plus all the CDs and no end of communication, I, at times, get the feeling there should be no need for more writings. However, we need to realize that much, if not most, of the religious information out there contains just enough scripture to be dangerous. That seems to be the one reason for so many different denominations.

Another downfall is that many of God’s people don’t take first things first. They may tend to read the epistles, basically ignoring Jesus’ teaching in the gospels. We need to read the gospels and read the epistles through the gospels instead of vice versa. When primary focus is on the epistles, we are prone to get priorities mixed up. Quite often we may misunderstand, get confused or remain ignorant on topics like law, grace, works and being saved just to name a few.

Thus when we read Jesus’ words, “Not everyone that saith unto me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my father which is in heaven.” (Matthew 7:21).

It is just kinda brushed under the rug, a way of covering it up. It’s no longer looking you in the eye and making you feel mighty uncomfortable, or condemning you, if you have been taught that once you have been saved you are eternally secure, and it doesn’t really matter so much if you sin like the devil. You can go to heaven anyway. Someone else will tell you no, no, if you continue to sin after you have been saved, you were not saved to start with.

Well folks, I ask you, why not leave that argument to the theologians? After all, they are the ones who started it all.

Did not Jesus say the kingdom belongs to the poor in spirit?

Special events during Library Week

New catalog, procedures unveiled

Next week is National Library Week, a time to celebrate the contributions of libraries and library workers and to promote library use and support.

Crittenden County Public Library (CCPL) is celebrating April 7-13 with the theme "Libraries Transform." In addition, the month of April is a fine-free month with no overdue fines assessed on returned items.

CCPL is transforming the way the community reads with access to new print books as well as digital eBooks and audiobooks online. During National Library Week, the library board and staff are unveiling the new Apollo library catalog and website.

Gone are the clunky card catalog drawers and pocket cards of old. Now patrons can access content on their digital devices from anywhere. During National Library Week, patrons are encouraged to stop by to update their preferences for text or email messages and learn how to renew items, place holds, text a librarian, and search for books.

The new library catalog can be found at CrittendenLibrary.biblionix.com. Patrons log in using their library card number and 10 digit telephone number.

The new Apollo catalog has great features that

Letdown signifies end to good novel

Nothing like the letdown of finishing a good book.

Clearly, that's an oxymoron, but true nonetheless.

The letdown comes not because it didn't end the way you expected or wished, simply because it ended!

Consider it a compliment to the author. If you love to read, you know the drill: you get interested in a book, hate to put it down, can't wait to get to the end, then get to the end and feel disappointed it's over!

Had this experience Sunday night. In the course of the previous five days, I was engrossed in three characters the book jacket informed me would be nected in ways I wouldn't expect. With each character's development, I became more curious.

A good author will do that to you – lead you down a path you assume is straight forward then shock with you with the unexpected.

It's a refreshing feeling after trudging through a recent bore, determined only to finish (and be glad it was over!) and stopping one-third the way through another fluffy novel that was already so predictable I returned it and paid the late fee. Yes, kept it so long trying to convince myself to pick it up and continue that I was fined!

I should start at the beginning and explain that I stumbled upon my last great book.

I don't know what methods you use to find a good book, but my sister introduced me to the Good Reads app. It's a great way to read summaries, see reviews from people with whom you share a love of reading, make a list of books you want to read and take that list with you to the public library.

Not finding the Jones author I was looking for on my recent trip to Marion's library, I saw another Jones – Holly Goddard Jones and "The Next Time You See Me." Sounded interesting, so I took it home.

I'm sure my eyes widened and head tilted slightly when I read that one of the characters moved to Kentucky a year ago. Oh wow, set in Kentucky, I thought. A few more pages turn and the author narrows the geographic location of this fictional city to U.S.. 68/Ky. 80 near Bowling Green. When, in the next chapter, it is revealed that another character met her husband at Murray State University, I turned to Google.

Turns out the author is from Russellville and graduated from Western Kentucky University.

But now it's over, and turns out I wasn't ready. I got to know these people and the book ended with a few things rather unsettled.

But that's the beauty of the imagination. These people can turn out any way we like, their situations and relationships can be resolved or dissolve any number of ways in our minds. Hummmmm.....

Now on to find the next great book!

Quilts sought for April 27 display

The Backroads Quilt Show will be Saturday, April 27 inside Marion City Hall, and Crittenden County Extension Homemakers Association is seeking entries.

Held in conjunction with the annual Amish Tour and Backroads Festival, the show is open to the public to display quilts and quilt tops. The quilt does not have to be made by the exhibitor. Quilts and quilt tops can be any size, and old quilts are welcome.

An information card should be attached to each quilt. Cards can be picked up at the Crittenden County Extension Office at 1534 U.S. 60 East in Marion prior to the show or at city hall on day of the show.

Spectators vote for show favorite – The People's Choice Award. Winners will be announced at 3 p.m. the day of the show and a plaque and gift certificates will be awarded.

There will be a featured display in city hall lobby by Rose Eldridge.

For more information, call Sarah Ford at (270) 965-3833 or the Extension Office at (270) 965-5236.

Chess teams shine, but fall short of title

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County's chess team, the Blue Knights, recently competed in the State Team Scholastic Championship in Shepherdsville, narrowly missing a title in two sections.

There 64 teams divided into four sections looking to bring home a championship. The Blue Knights have been no stranger to heading into the final round with a chance for taking the top prize, but in years past have struggled to seal the deal. Coach Don Winters hoped that this would be their year, but in the end, teams in the K12 and K8 sections fell just short.

"I am extremely proud of every player on this team," he said. "Once again, they put themselves in a spot to be a contender for the championship, and that is what you hope for each year.

"We don't have seniors this year, so next year maybe, just maybe, we will be ones that walk away with the title."

At the state tournament, the K12 Blue Knights team of Cole Swinford, Skyler James, Chase Stevens, Dennon Wilson, Gage Russell and Dominic Rorer would try to prove themselves against the toughest high school teams in the state. In Round 1, they played

Winters

Paul Laurence Dunbar and got off to a great start, as they all won, earning a full point for the team. For Round 2, they drew DuPont Manual, last year's state champ. DuPont would once again show their strength, sweeping all four games. Next, Round 3 brought on Montgomery County High. The Blue Knights would win 2.5 out of the four games, gaining them the point. In the State Team tournament, teams must get at least 2.5 wins to gain a point for the round to go toward the final score.

After running the numbers for Round 4, in order for the Blue Knights to get second place, they would have to win the round put their fate in the hands of DuPont Manual. A DuPont victory over Christian Education Consortium (CEC) would earn the Blue Knights an outright second place.

The Blue Knight did their part, sweeping Round 4 opponent Bluegrass United, a tough home-school team from Louisville. CEC managed to beat DuPont, leaving the Blue Knights tied for second, but placing fourth through tiebreakers.

The K8 team of Evan McDowell, Trey Swaggirt, Isaac Sarles, Tyler Swaggirt and alternates Hayden Hildebrand, Marley Phelps, Abbey Swinford and Jaxson Cartwright had the best hope at finishing near the top. But ending the tournament tied for second, tiebreakers dropped the Blue Knights to seventh.

"In all my years of chess, I have never seen a seven-way tie," said Winters. "Tiebreakers never go in our favor and, of course, they didn't this time either, as they placed seventh. Chess is probably the only sport where you can go into the final round playing for the title and place seventh."

In Round 1, the Blue Knights drew Morgan County Middle, and everyone on the team, even the alternates, won their games. In Round 2, they played Hebron Middle and were able to draw against them winning two out of the four games. They would play a familiar foe in Round 3, Lone Oak Middle, and the Blue Knights proved they were the better team, winning three of four.

Heading into Round 4, once again, the Blue Knights would find themselves playing for the state championship against Thomas Jefferson Middle School, who was last year's runner-up. Thomas Jefferson would prove too much for the Blue Knights, as they swept all four games, sending the Blue Knights into a seven-way tie for second place. Tiebreakers dropped the local team to seventh place.

Alternates Phelps, Swinford and Hildebrand placed seventh, eighth and 10th, respectively, with 3 out of 4 points.

The K3 team of Alex Hewitt, Eli Lovell, Roane Topp, Wyatt Cartwright and Luke Binkley would start the tournament off hot, with all four players winning their games against Toliver Elementary. But the Blue Knight's failed to gain another point until the final round with a win against Clark Elementary. With 2 points, the local team would tie for sixth place but end up in 10th on tiebreakers.

Binkley played in the alternates division and brought home an eighth-place trophy with just one win.

The K5 team of Jake Rich, Wyatt Russell, Charlie Ledford, Gunner Topp and Cameron Hernandez also started out the tournament against Toliver Elementary, but failed to gain a point. In Round 2, they played South Christian Elementary, taking the point by winning three of four games. In Round 3, they split with Villa Madonna Elementary, walking away with a half-point. In the final round, they fell against The Lexington School, leaving them with just 1.5 total points for the tournament. The Blue Knights placed 12th overall.

Auburn surge puts Pearl back in spotlight

Auburn's surprising late-season surge put Bruce Pearl back in the spotlight in the NCAA Tournament and it could not have surprised him when he was asked if college basketball is a "cesspool" now because of current investigations, including one that got LSU coach Will Wade suspended just before postseason play started.

"I live it all the day and see all the good that's taking place on college campuses with students that have opportunities to be able to change their lives that they might not have otherwise," Pearl said before his team beat UK to earn a Final Four berth. "No, it's not a cesspool. There are some things that are wrong with it, things that take place that are inappropriate.

"That's the business of college basketball. The reason why the NCAA is involved in this is because it's their job to monitor. It's their job to enforce. It's their job to encourage people to work hard, to do it the right way and not allow some of the other things to seep into the business because of the business and the money and the pressures. "The question is, what do you want to focus on? We need to continue to work to keep it clean, but we need to understand all the good that's being done."

I talked to Auburn senior Horace Spencer at the SEC Tournament for a story about former high school teammate PJ Washington. But I also asked him what playing for Pearl was like.

"It has been an amazing four years. I love playing for coach Pearl. He is a great influence on my life and my family's life," Spencer said. "It has been a wonderful thing and when I leave here I am really going to miss him.

"You all really don't know much about him. You have probably seen him flailing around on the court but off the court he is very spiritual and a great leader. He's just a really good guy that I truly love."

Larry Vaught
UK Sports Columnist

Vaught's Views

Tyrese Maxey
One reason that Kentucky signee Tyrese Maxey did not reclassify to the 2018 recruiting class was so he could hopefully play in the McDonald's All-American Game like he did last week in Atlanta. He had 13 points on 5-for-10 shooting and hit three 3-pointers in the game and also made two runners in the lane — something he said he had been working on to help him once he gets to UK.

Maxey was openly encouraged by his parents to reclassify but never seriously considered doing so.

"We don't know all the answers to parenthood. I have been a player and Tyrese is a pretty mature kid," Tyrone Maxey, the player's father, said. "We just thought you have done everything in high school, why not go up? You are ready and Cal (John Calipari) thinks you are ready, so go make it happen.

"He wanted to stay and play with his friends he had known since fifth grade. The McDonald's game was one of his goals. He is a very strategic kid. It just was not in his plan to reclassify. We respected that. It's his life to live and it made sense to him, so we supported him 100 percent."

Tyrese Maxey also returned to South Garland (Texas) High School to win a state title. His father won one as a junior and Maxey's team had lost in the state final in 2018. This year the team lost in the regional final.

"I would tease him about me having a title and he wanted to win one so bad to shut me up but our team fell just a little short," Tyrone Maxey, an assistant coach on the team, said.

However, playing in the McDonald's Game helped Maxey know he made the right decision.

"This was a dream come true for me, just like I thought it was," he said. "I would have loved being at Kentucky, but I don't have any regrets and now it is my time to be there, so it's all fine."

Kyle Macy

When you think of former Kentucky All-American Kyle Macy, you think of his clutch shooting and accuracy at the foul line. He's not remembered as a defensive stopper, but maybe he should be. His 69 steals in the 1978-79 season rank as the fifth best mark in UK basketball history and his 58 steals in 1979-80 rank 23rd. He's 21st all-time in steals at Kentucky.

"I am like a Ninja. I just went unseen on the floor with my defense," said Macy, the point guard on UK's 1978 national championship team. "Or maybe defensively I was just underrated because my offense was so good. Yeah, that's not right either."

himself, but the numbers show that he had a knack for making steals in a way few players have been able to do.

"I was not the type player to dazzle you with my jumping ability, speed or quickness," Macy said. "I had to rely on the fundamental — pass, catch, shoot, defend. The game was different then. If you look at assists it was a lot harder to get an assist when I was playing than it is now. Now you throw a guy the ball, he dribbles twice, scores and you get an assist. But with steals, it's still the same. A steal is a steal. So I am proud of what I did on defense with my anticipation and understanding of the game."

Quote of the Week 2

"What a joy it was to coach this year. I mean, I had more fun and I still challenged them, I still held them accountable. I was on guys, but I knew that they would respond and I knew that they were going to be in that gym and going to work and share and sacrifice for each other," John Calipari on this season after his team lost to Auburn.

Quote of the Week 3

"We're not Cinderellas in anything. We're really, really good in all those other sports. We win championships. Been a long time since men's basketball has been good. That's what makes it so special for us," said coach Bruce Pearl after Auburn beat UK to reach the Final Four for the first time.

Chrome helmets added to arsenal

STAFF REPORT
Rocket football coach Sean Thompson figures that adding a little bling to the 2019 football season is necessary to renew some excitement after losing a core group of seniors. Crittenden County was a regional finalist last fall, finishing 11-2. But a key group of players will be gone – six to the collegiate ranks – so the second-year skipper is adding some flash to the head dress. Sixty-four prospective players attended a “Reveal” event at the school recently where Thompson unveiled a sample of the team’s new helmets for 2019. There will be a silver chrome version and a flat black helmet. “We had worn the flat blue for several years, so we had those repainted flat black,” Thompson said. As for the more dressy chrome tops, Thompson said it was all about kicking things up a notch. “We wanted to breed some excitment back into the program,” he said, pointing to a way to counter a chorus of commentary about next fall’s team. “People keep asking what are going to do after losing so many players you depended on. The kids hear that and it’s frustrating. So we wanted to give them something to be excited about,” the coach said. The chrome helmets are the Schutt F5 model, the latest for high school teams. The booster club will be raising money to pay for them. As part of the fundraising effort, the team will be having a Lift-A-Thon in May. Anyone can sponsor a player. Coach Thompson recommends 25 cents per pound. Lifts will include bench, squat, power clean and dead lift. Right now about 30 student-athletes are participating in off-season conditioning after school.

Girls win two straight in Fifth District

After a disappointing loss to Lyon County early last week to start district play, Crittenden County bounced back later in the week for two league wins.

The Lady Rockets improved to 4-5 overall and 2-1 in the Fifth District with a road victory over Trigg County last Tuesday and a home win over Livingston Central Thursday.

Lady Rocket senior Brandy Book homered and doubled against Livingston. She drove in four and scored two as CCHS beat the Lady Cardinals 13-5 at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

Ashlyn Hicks also had two hits for the Lady Rockets and Jenna Potter had a double and drove in three runs.

Potter went the distance, striking out four and walking one. Only three of Livingston's runs were earned.

Sydney Lasher and Lauren Wring led Livingston at the plate with two hits apiece. Lasher drove in a couple.

Crittenden committed five miscues in the field and Livingston was error-free in its Fifth District opener.

Tyler Boone and Ian Ellington collaborated on pitching duties, with Boone getting the start. Together, they gave up just four earned runs. Tate Quartermous started for Livingston and Michael Barrow and Head finished it.

Sophomore shortstop Trace Adams led CCHS with two hits and three RBIs, including a double. Peyton Riley, Ian Ellington and Braxton Winders each singled and Ben Evans had a double for the Rockets.

For Livingston Central, Josh Wilson, Isaac Payne and Dakota Lamb had two hits apiece.

Trigg gets leg up early on CCHS

Trigg County put up 12 runs in the first two innings and cruised to a Fifth District win last Tuesday at home over Crittenden County. The Wildcats got four in the bottom of the first, but Crittenden tied the game in the top of the second before yielding eight in the home half of the second on three errors four walks and three Trigg hits.

Peyton Riley, Caden McCalister, Ben Evans and Ian Ellington each singled, providing almost all of the offensive punch the Rockets could muster. Tyler Boone, Erik O'Leary and Riley had an RBI apiece.

Dutton says it's good to continue setting fitness

"A high percentage of the people who come to us on blood pressure

Like Van Dyke says, just keep moving. You don't have to do too much, just do something. Brent Brantley, a missionary and former policeman, says staying fit is just part of his daily routine, even though he's well older than 70.

The Cooper test is a test of physical fitness. It was designed by Kenneth H. Cooper in 1968 for US military use. In the original form, the point of the test is to run as far as possible within 12 minutes. The test is meant to measure the condition of the person taking it and therefore it is supposed to be run at a steady pace instead of sprints and fast running. The outcome is based on the distance the test person ran, their age and their sex. The chart below offers ratings of results as measured in meters.
