

6 file for council; 3 for school board

Chris Cook, Pam Collins and Bill Asbridge have filed to seek re-election to the Crittenden County Board of Education. All will be unopposed in November's general election. Also, only six candidates filed for Marion City Council so those individuals will be unopposed, too. Those filing for city council were incumbents Donnie Arlack, Jared Byford, Dwight Sherer and Mike Byford, and newcomers Frank Pierce, a local businessman, and Greg West, a former county magistrate. For more on the Nov. 6 election see, page 3.

Coming Soon! Main Street paving

Within about two weeks, Marion's Main Street should be resurfaced. So says Keith Todd of the Kentucky Department of Highways. Todd said that next week crews will be completing some base repairs, which will be done at night to minimize traffic disruptions. After about a week to allow for settling, milling and paving will begin. That work will likely be done at night, too, Todd said.

History teacher Kim Vince encourages Dylan Doyle and Taylor Fritts to examine the information provided from shopping receipts in order to support their theories for a class project.

Deductive Reasoning

History class project's receipt review promotes more rigorous thinking

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

Social Studies teacher Kim Vince wants her students to think more rigorously. She challenged her 11th-grade, advanced-placement U.S. history class to apply deductive reasoning through a class project based on what students can learn from a collection of shopping receipts.

Vince gathered real shopping and dining receipts from a local family's weekend trip to St. Louis. Without knowing their names or any personal information about the family, students were asked to analyze the receipts based on purchases and to create a profile of the family. They analyzed buying habits and tried to determine the interests of the shoppers. Students worked in groups to create a figurative portrait of the shoppers based on their receipts. It became obvious very quickly that the receipts were from a family and not an individual. From there, they looked deeper into the buying habits and tried to sketch a profile of the people.

The activity helped students understand they need to have evidence to support their conclusions, Vince said.

"My main objective was to make them think outside the box. I'm not going to feed them the information. They have to figure it out for themselves," Vince said. "They have to learn skills so they can look at details, make inferences, read between those lines and then figure out a problem. They had to figure out the characteristics of the person."

Vince said the class project will prepare students for upcoming assignments.

"They're going to be using this every day as far as

Access road planned for Invensys

STAFF REPORT

Local leaders are planning to build a new access road to Invensys Rail's Marion plant and they're also working with company officials to try and keep about 50 proposed jobs from going out of the county.

The Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority announced late last month that it had approved up to $500,000 in incentives for Invensys Rail to add new jobs in Lyon County. Invensys had applied to the state for the economic development package, citing a $1.26 million planned capital investment in Eddyville that would create up to 50 jobs at an average pay of $10.50 per hour.

At the time of the announcement, Jeff Waldrop, manager at the Marion plant that employs almost 250 workers, said his company had made no final decisions about where to locate the planned expansion.

Jeremy Wheeler, director of the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation, said late last week that he has met with Dan Perlick of Louisville, who is director of operations for Invensys Rail. Wheeler said he and other local leaders have opened what they hope will become a productive dialogue with company leaders regarding the anticipated expansion and they're discussing plans for a road spur off Industrial Park Drive

Inmate stunned after outburst in courtroom

STAFF REPORT

A woman appearing in Crittenden Circuit Court last Thursday on a revocation hearing was subdued with a stun gun by a deputy jailer after she became belligerent and failed to comply with the deputy's orders.

Christy Robertson, 31, aka Christy Fortune or Christy Tramble, of Burna was stunned with electrical current then taken into a room off the main courtroom for a time.

Circuit Judge Rene Williams, Deputy Sheriff Ray Agent and Lt. Bob Phelps of the Crittenden County

Detention Center had asked Robertson to remain silent after several outbursts that were deemed disruptive to the courtroom. When she continued, Phelps pulled his stun gun and deployed it on Robertson, who was sitting in a chair. She was then taken into a conference room for about 20 minutes before being taken back to jail.

Robertson, who had received a pretrial diversion for a 2010 methamphetamine drug conviction, had been in custody for violating terms of her release. The pretrial diversion was set aside by Judge Williams, who will formally sentence Robertson next month. Robertson is expected to receive a three-year sentence.

Tammy Robertson, chief deputy jailer who is not related to the defendant in the case, said it was the first time in memory that a deputy has deployed a stun gun in the courtroom to subdue an inmate.

In other court action, Judge

Williams ordered probation for Rayln Hunt Wallace, 26, of Marion, who pleaded guilty last month to 16 cases of forgery, first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine), possession of drug paraphernalia and second-degree hindering apprehension or prosecution.

Wallace was sentenced to three years on each felony charge and 12 months on the misdemeanor paraphernalia charge, all to run concur-

Marion is becoming dry island

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

Recent alcohol referendums across the region indicate a wave of change overtaking much of western Kentucky – something unseen since the repeal of Prohibition.

Over the past few years, Madisonville and Murray voted to allow liquor sales, then Trigg County, Smithland and Ledbetter joined those eliminating the so-called bone-dry laws established around 1920. Last week, Princeton and a second Sturgis precinct voted to go "wet" for the first time in almost 100 years.

To further fan the flames of change, a petition has started to bring the matter to a vote next door in Lyon County.

In Kentucky, 32 of 120 counties remain dry. The others have some type of alcohol sales.

With every bordering county except Webster now supporting some type of alcohol sales, can Crittenden remain a dry island in a sea of spirits?

Many hope it stays dry, and a Crittenden Press Online poll over the past week indicates readers are almost evenly divided over the issue. Of course, the non-scientific, informal poll does not indicate how voters here might react.

Twelve years ago, Crittenden County had a referendum on the issue, and the outcome wasn't very close. Those opposing alcohol sales remained firmly in command when the vote was taken Nov. 7, 2000. Almost 60 percent of voters said no to sales of booze in restaurants. The count was 2,314 against the idea and 1,622 supporting it.

Those on both sides of the question remain firm about their convictions now, even a dozen years after the idea was squarely defeated in this county.

David Haire, who was a force in organizing the last vote here, said his motivations were more about bringing in industry than giving people the right to buy alcohol. He said at the time there were too many people who were unreasonably against it.

"They said I was a drunk, which I am not," Haire said. "But I did go and talk to 10 or 12 different industrial operations. I was trying to see if they would come to

Separation of church and state is a myth

The following facts prove the slogan the atheists use to destroy our freedom of religion, which is being swept away frighteningly fast, Separation of church and state is not only a myth but a planned destructive hoax foist on America to systematically destroy her.

It will bring us under the ever encroaching world communist umbrella so we all can be third world status so we can be a controlled world of sheep with hands out to our great so-called educated, sinful, egoistical, power hungry and atheistic American intelligentsia elite, who think they are the most intelligent, brightest people on earth, with an inflated ego, determined to be our masters, who think we are all too stupid to run our own lives, so they think as Stalin did, that we all must first be dumb down, and then used as a bunch of useful idiots.

These evil people driven by their master, Satan, who blinds their eyes forget that all the other atheistic, communistic dictators in the world are planning the same thing, and the most ruthless will survive as the king of the ring.

Let us get a little education of the truths of our beginning as a Constitutional Republic with the following famous facts and why we have outlasted every other form of government in history.

In 1690, the New England Premier was the first textbook printed in America, many of its selections drawn from the King James Bible, and used in American schools for 210 years. This book, which taught untold numbers of children to read including our founding fathers, was reprinted by Noah Webster, Samuel Adams, and Ben Franklin for their children.

Noah Webster dedicated his dictionary to the glory of God and the advancement of the kingdom of Christ. He placed his personal testimony and how the reader could become a Christian in the front of his dictionary and 27 percent of these examples were Bible verses.

In his dictionary he would provide sentences after defining a word to show how the word is used, and 27 percent of the examples he used were Bible verses.

The founders said they based the Declaration of Independence from the book "The Two Treatises of Government."

This 360-page book discusses the biblical role of government and sites the Bible 1,700 times. And 24 of the 56 men that signed the Declaration of Independence had seminary degrees.

Political science professors collected 15,000 original writings of the founders and found 3,154 direct quotes and 34 percent of those quotes came from the Bible.

The concept for our three branches of government, legislative, executive and judicial originate from Isaiah 33:22, where God is described as the judge, lawgiver and king.

The founders got the idea of tax-exemption for churches from Ezra 7:24.

Deuteronomy 17:6 discusses judges and can be found in Article 3, Section 3, paragraph 1, of the U.S. Constitution.

Ezekiel 18:20 is found in Article 3, Section 3, paragraph 2 of the U.S. Constitution.

John Adams said the founding fathers used the general principles of Christianity to achieve independence. So you see how evil the lately invented Wall of Separation of Church and State really is.

In 1774 Thomas Jefferson, the father of the Declaration of Independence, personally introduced a resolution calling for a day of fasting and prayer.

Again while serving as the Governor of Virginia (1779-1781) Jefferson decreed a day of public and solemn thanksgiving and prayer to Almighty God.

The name of the first education law in America was the Northwest Ordinance Act, which required territories that wanted to become a state to first agree to an education plan that would include teaching Religion, morality and knowledge.

The founder of Public schools under the Constitution was Dr. Benjamin Rush, a noted physician and a signer of the Declaration of Independence, who wrote a book titled "Use of the Bible in Schools" in 1791, stating that the reason we should start public schools in America is to teach the Word of God.

This myth was put into the American mind by the deceptive socialist brainwashers demanded by the Communist party in order to drag American down so she can be conquered and controlled by her enemies. Only God and a great Spiritual revival will keep them from totally reaching their goal. Christians pray and love to all.

N 37 poles to a stone at the R.R. crossing in the center of the Fredonia and Francis public road; thence with said road N 78 E 12 ½ poles to a stake in the road; thence with said road N 87 E 13-2/3 poles to a stone in the said road and also in the Pigmy Company's line; thence with their line S 7 E 22 poles and 22 links to a stone in spring branch, with elm and sugar tree pointers, also corner to said Company's; thence with the Pigmy Company's line and spring branch S 76 ½ W 21 poles to a white oak on South bank of branch, corner to same, thence with another line of said company S 31 W 12 poles to a spring, old corner; thence S 61 ½ W 3 poles and 2 links to the beginning, containing 4 acres by survey, be the same more or less.

SOURCE OF TITLE: This being the same land conveyed to the Pigmy Mining Company by T. N. Fuller and wife on August 17, 1918, as shown by deed recorded in Deed Book No. 42, at page 317, Crittenden County Court Clerk's office. Being the same properties heretofore conveyed to the party of the first part by James T. Wright as Sheriff of Crittenden County, Kentucky, by certain indenture dated August 22, 1922, and lodged for record in the office of the clerk of said county on August 22, 1922, and recorded in Deed Book No. 49, Page 202 of said Crittenden County, Kentucky, together with all the appurtenance thereunto belonging.
SUBJECT TO a perpetual easement consisting of a right of way, bound below, over a survey of land in Crittenden County, Kentucky, on the waters of Livingston Creek and known as the Pigmy Property. The boundary of said easement is as follows: Beginning at a stake or stone in the West line of said Pigmy survey, and a corner to the Pigmy and Aluminum Ore Co. lands and being 80 feet in said line from the stone which is known as Mabry, Moneymaker, and Stephenson stone corner on the Mexico and Frances Road; running thence with said West line of Pigmy, South 26-¾° East 210 feet to a stake or stone, thence North 34° 30' East 445 feet to a point in the North boundary line of the Pigmy tract, thence with said line South 74° West 118 feet to another corner of Pigmy and Aluminum Ore Company, thence with a line common to Pigmy and Aluminum Ore Company, South 57° 30' West 275 feet to the beginning, containing one and One-tenth (1.1) acres by survey, be the same more or less. It is understood that the foregoing is a right of way for a railroad but for no other purpose whatsoever except such reasonable uses as are necessarily incident to such right of way for a railroad. By this conveyance the second party derives no rights other than the aforesaid easement, and no mineral rights whatsoever. First part's source of title is a deed from the Rosiclare Lead and Fluorspar Company, a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, dated July 11, 1923, and recorded in Deed Book No. 50, Page 555 in Crittenden County Court Clerk's Office.

EXCEPT a parcel of land described as: Beginning with a point made by the intersection of the Pigmy property line and center line of survey made by the State Highway Department, the said intersection being Station 88/20 of center line of highway survey, thence in a South-westerly direction for distance of 84 feet to intersection of property line and center line of highway survey, said intersection being Station 89/04, thence South along property line for distance of 30 feet, thence Northeasterly direction and parallel to center line of highway survey to Pigmy property line, thence along the property line a Westerly direction to point of beginning. The said parcel of land contains .06 acres, more or less.
It is understood that the mineral rights to the above described lands are not herein conveyed to the party of the second part and that the surface is sold subject to all provision covered by mineral leases or deed to minerals owned by other parties. This tract of land situated near Town of Mexico, in County of Crittenden, State of Kentucky and more particularly described as Tract No. 30-A, Federal Project No. WPSO398 Sec. A, improvement in public road leading from Mexico to Dycusburg.
BUT EXPRESSLY EXCEPTING AND RESERVING from all three tracts conveyed herein, to the Grantors, their heirs, executors, administrators & assigns all mineral and mineral substances of every kind and character, including but not limited to, oil and gas, coal, limestone, fluorspar and zinc, in, upon, beneath and underlying the surface of said property hereby conveyed, together with the right of ingress and egress, for the purpose of searching for, prospecting for, developing, marketing, mining, and removing the same; provided, however, there shall be no strip mining or open pit mining.

Grantees, by accepting the grant herein, acknowledge that mining operation have been conducted underneath surface of the above described property and Grantees hereby assume all risk of damage to the surface of said real estate, whether present or future, as a result of said mining operations. Further, as part of the consideration for the grant of the real estate described herein, grantees hereby release and forever discharge said Grantor, its successors and assigns from any and all actions, causes of actions, claims and demands for, upon or by reason of any damage, loss or injury, which hereafter may be sustained to the surface of the real estate conveyed herein, as a consequence of the mining operations which were conducted in, upon, and under the real estate conveyed herein. The provisions of any state, federal or local law or statute providing in substance that releases shall not extend to claims, demands, injuries or damages which are unknown or unsuspected to exist at the time, to the Grantees herein, are hereby expressly waived. Grantees do not release or discharge Grantor, its successors and assigns for damage to the surface of the real estate conveyed caused by mining operations which occur after the date of this conveyance.
The mineral severance was created by Deed dated March 27, 1991 from Pigmy Corporation to Hugh E. Highfil and his wife, Shelia Highfil, and of record in Deed Book 159, at Page 549, on March 28, 1991 at 1:56 p.m. Crittenden County Court Clerks Office.
This action is brought for the purpose of impressing a trust authorizing the execution and delivery of a valid and present mineral lease for development of the particular mineral described in the petition.
Dated this 24TH day of July, 2012.

Crittenden son rising in advertising world

Question & Answer Session

Zack McDonald, a native of Crittenden County, is a rising star in the world of advertising. He has worked on both sides of the Atlantic on various projects and is currently working for one of America's oldest advertising firms, McCann Worldgroup. Manhattan is a long way from Marion, but we recently spoke with McDonald for a Press interview. The question and answer session provides an inside look into his growing career, aspirations and how a small-town kid went from working at Conrad's Food Store to creating advertising for some of the biggest brands in the world.

McDonald is the son of Jerry and Angel McDonald, who still reside here in the Mott City community. He graduated from Crittenden County High School in 1999 and currently lives in Boerum Hill, Brooklyn, N.Y.

How did you get into advertising?

Well, I originally went to Western Kentucky University and started studying pre-law. Back then, that is how I thought you became successful. Growing up in Marion I had a very limited view on what is possible. I really didn't have a clue that you could make money being a writer, outside of writing a great novel. Having a career as a writer seemed out of reach. In our spare time, my friends and I would make movies on an old Super 8. I really enjoyed the storytelling process. But one morning I woke up and kind of had this realization moment. I didn't know what I wanted to do, but I knew I didn't want to do that. So I was searching for some sort of direction. While in college I would take English classes because I really enjoyed them, and I had this professor who gave me a book on advertising. Once I read it I knew that is the direction I wanted to go in.

After WKU where did you go?

After Western I headed to Atlanta to a school call Portfolio Center. It is not like a traditional school, it is a place where you take classes, but instead of a lecture you have to work on your portfolio and create projects. Basically you work so you can have something to show in the professional world. It is a strange place and not very traditional at all. But I finished there early and then landed a job in San Francisco. There I worked for a consulting firm. At the time, I really did not want to be making these bland commercials trying to convince people to buy baby diapers. So there I was able to be more behind the scenes, helping people rebrand. After working there for a while I was approached about going to work in Amsterdam for a firm called KesselsKramer.

What was it like in Amsterdam?

That was a very creative place to work, and I was able to work on a really cool project for a company called Protest Boardwear, which is an apparel company. We worked out of this church that had been fitted with what was basically an adult playground. But the church was also a historical monument, so the company was required to take care of certain aspects like keeping the stained glass windows. But I would do most of my work on this Indian fort they had built. It was very bizarre and unique.

How did you end up in the Big Apple?

I was invited to go work with McCann. It was really out of the blue. So I moved to New York and started working on a project with Ikea, which is a really big Swedish furniture company. They wanted to rethink their catalogue, which is pretty big, because more Ikea catalogues are printed each year than copies of the Bible. It was sort of an unusual assignment. The stuff we were working on is not something you see in normal advertising. But it was an amazing project. We added a lot of storytelling and even created an app that, when scanned over a code in the book, will bring up a special video that goes along with the product. It's very neat stuff and I had a good time.

What is your current title and how did you get there?

You know, I started out as a copywriter and just moved up the ladder to associate creative director. I still do a lot of writing. But now I am in charge of teams of art directors and copywriters and just help guide them through the process. I work with a Belgian partner. He is the design person and I do the writing. We come up with a lot of ideas together. I really like the idea of collaborating.

Were you surprised to see your ad featured on adweek.com?

I have actually had a couple of other projects end up on there. It's a good place to get publicity. We are actually featured on a number of different websites right now, including wired.com. There is so much press on the catalogue, we are getting so much exposure, it has been really great.

Do you plan to stay in New York long? What are you plans for the future?

I plan to stay with McCann. I really like working with them. I have been offered other jobs. It happens when you get a lot of press around your work. I don't plan to stay in New York for longer than a few more years. I am not sure where I would go yet. I might go back to San Francisco. I love Amsterdam and I really like Sweden. That is a very cool country.

We have to ask, are you a fan of Mad Men?

I am actually. I really like Mad Men. It is very far from the reality of advertising today, but I like the show.

Hart opening for Blake Shelton, Tracy Lawrence Saturday

Local man gets big guitar gig

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

With more than 500 people in attendance, Crittenden County native Brian Hart won The Battle for the Big O Music Fest talent competition Aug. 4 in Owensboro.

Hart, a Marion native who now lives in Henderson, beat out eight other acts and won the opportunity to open solo this weekend for Blake Shelton and Tracy Lawrence at the 2012 Big O Music Fest in Owensboro's Reid's Orchard.

He also walked away with a $1,000 cash prize and the opportunity to sing live Friday on Owensboro's WBKR 92.5 radio.

"It's a great opportunity for me. I'll be handing out free CDs with my single," Hart said. "It feels great. I get backstage passes. I'll be interacting with Blake Shelton, Tracy Lawrence and all those guys."

Hart is also lead vocalist and lead guitarist for the band Slick Willy. At the competition he played two of his original songs, "Finally the Weekend" and "Bottom of the Bottle."

He has written several songs, but showcases ones that receive the most reaction for the audience.

"Personally, I try to write about myself. Everything has something to do with me. I might add to some things. I believe if you write about yourself it comes from the heart and people connect with it more," he said. "I try to write about something I went through. About 90 percent of my songs are things that I have gone through or am going through."

Hart has been playing guitar since he was 10 years old.

"My dad showed me the first three cords. I'd stay up late at night watching Austin City Limits. We didn't have a computer or Internet back then," he recalls.

He enjoys listening and playing all types of music and feels people hold themselves back if they only like one style of music. Artists who have influenced him include Eric Clapton, Stevie Ray Vaughan, Garth Brooks and bands like 38 Special and Journey.

Hart

"I even like Metallica. I grew up on those '80s hair bands - Motley Crue, AC/DC, Guns N' Roses - they were all my favorites. It's hard for me to narrow it down. I had so many influences," he said. "I like Lynyrd Skynyrd of course. I'm from Crittenden County so everybody likes Lynyrd Skynyrd."

Hart enjoyed playing guitar as a teenager and says it's a good skill for young people to develop.

"I think music kept me out of trouble. I wasn't the most popular kid in school but everybody seemed to like it because I played guitar. We'd sit around up town and I carried the guitar everywhere I went. We'd sit on the Pizza Hut parking lot and pull the tailgate down and play," he said. "If you're interested in guitar and singing, just do it. Take everything in. Take every genre in. Don't stick to one style. Try to take it all in. There are all kinds of great music."

"Learn how to harmonize and just do the best you can. Have a fall back plan that's for sure. Don't just sell everything you've got. Have something to bounce back on if things go south. That's the main thing. Get your education and have some kind of fall back plan if your music doesn't pan out. But that's with anything. It's not just with music."

A 1992 graduate of Crittenden County High School, Hart has two daughters, Bailey and Jaci.

Everyone's almost certain to be winner in November balloting

STAFF REPORT

There will be a few local elections this fall, and it looks like every candidate may come out a winner.

Unless, that is, someone files as a write-in candidate to challenge those who will be on the official ballot.

Tuesday was the last day for non-partisan candidates to get their names on the fall ballot. There are four non-partisan elections on Nov. 6.

Three of those elections are for Crittenden County Board of Education where it appears there will be no changes. Only incumbents have filed to seek re-election. They are Bill Asbridge in District 1, Chris Cook in District 3 and Pam Collins in District 4. These are four-year terms.

All three are unopposed unless someone files by Oct. 26 to run as a write-in candidate.

The same is true for the six-member Marion City Council, which will have a slightly different look for the next two years.

Only six candidates filed for city council so those individuals will be unopposed unless there's an 11th-hour write-in candidacy. Those filing for city council were incumbents Donnie Arflack, Jared Byford, Dwight Sherer and newcomers Frank Pierce, a local businessman, and Greg West, a former county magistrate.

Current city councilmen Darrin Tabor and Jim Brown did not file to seek re-

Also unopposed on the general election ballot will be Melissa Guill, who won the Crittenden County Circuit Court Clerk Republican primary last spring. No Democrat is running.

One contested election will be that of Crittenden County resident and GOP hopeful Lynn Bechler who is running for Fourth District Kentucky Representative against Raymond Giannini, a Princeton Democrat.

DRY

Marion so maybe we could have a little more economic development. They said they would never move into a dry county."

Haire said companies know that so-called wet counties are more progressive and open to change. If a county is willing to go wet, then it is open to more industry and adapting to the needs of industry.

"They had people afraid the Ohio River would be full of gambling boats," Haire said. "That was not going to happen and they knew it."

He was verbally and physically threatened on more than one occasion, and during the vote many pro-dry leaders tried to get their followers to boycott his store in Mattoon, Haire said. Now that Princeton is wet it will have an edge over Crittenden County, Haire says. He would support a renewed effort to bring the wet/dry issue to a vote, but will not spearhead the movement again.

"It was hard to fight against all that," Haire said.

Rev. Mike Jones, pastor of Marion Baptist Church, said Crittenden County already has too much alcohol even though it is not sold here.

"I know it is a personal choice," Jones said. "But it causes people to lose their jobs and then they get to the point where they can't pay the electric bill or the rent. And they cannot provide for their family."

He likes Marion because it is a calm, safe community where residents do not have to worry about the crime alcohol brings with it.

"They say it is progress," Jones said. "I know we are in tough economic times, and some people think it will bring jobs, but it does not do that."

Jones is disturbed by talk of bringing alcohol to a vote again in Marion. Although he was not here the last go round, Jones thinks simply discussing the issue is going too far.

"We don't even need a vote," Jones said. "And all this talk that brings up the issue just deceives people."

Nathan Jones, public information officer for the Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, said his office has noticed a trend over the past year that suggests a change in attitudes regarding alcohol. He said the economy is a big part of what he has seen and heard from communities wanting to change their laws.

"We do not look at why these trends or patterns happen," Jones said. "Our office is there to help communities deal with regulating and licensing businesses that intend to serve alcohol."

Former state rep visits Extension office

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

Former State Representative Fred Nesler visited the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Office Aug. 10. Nesler was recently appointed to the Kentucky Department of Agriculture by Ag Commissioner James Comer. Nesler serves as the deputy executive director in the Office of Strategic Planning and Administration.

"I served in the General Assembly until May 31 and started with the Department of Agriculture June 1 of this year," Nesler said.

Nesler's visit to Crittenden County represents the department's commitment to having a hands-on approach in meeting with the different entities in and around agriculture and the Department of Agriculture. He said the Kentucky Department of Agriculture sees itself as a people's department and wants to take opportunities to work and visit with individuals by extending a hand and letting people know the KDA has an open door policy.

"The farmers play such a huge part in the Department of Agriculture. And anything we can do to be helpful to our farm community, regardless of what part they play – large farmers, small farmers, the families and the communities around that. That's what Fred Nesler of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture spoke with County Extension staff support member Rebecca Zahrt (center) and Nancy Hunt, Crittenden County Extension Agent for Family and Consumer Sciences. Nesler serves as the deputy executive director in the Office of Strategic Planning and Administration.

Commissioner Comer and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture are all about," Nesler said.

As for this year's severe drought, Nesler said he has seen its effects and its toll on farmers.

"You have some areas where it's extremely dry. Then you have some areas where the moisture has been somewhat better," he said. "But still, especially in the western part of the state the drought has caused a tremendous hardship in all Ag-related business. The sad part about that is it not only hurts the farmer, it's going to hurt every individual in the state whether they're buying meat or whatever."

The Department of Agriculture sponsors a variety of programs, including the Crittenden County Agriculture Rinse and Return Program that was held at the fairgrounds Aug. 15.

Nancy Hunt, Crittenden County Extension Agent for

Family and Consumer Sciences, met with Nesler and discussed issues that relate to the Cooperative Extension Service and the Department of Agriculture.

"We were pleased that Mr. Nesler came because we do not get a lot of visitors to the Extension Office from Frankfort. It was a pleasure meeting him and it makes the contact with the Kentucky Department of Agriculture a lot easier," Hunt said.

The Press traveled with Bernice Tolbert as she visited M. Sgt. Jason Hurley, M. Sgt. Brent Tolbert, Sgt. 1st Class Scott Hurley at Camp Lejeune, N.C.

In Lilongwe, Malawi, Fredonia Lions Club member Marjorie Yandell presented club president Pempho Likongwe with a Kentucky flag, a Kentucky Lions pin, a Proclamation of Encouragement from the Fredonia Lions Club and a bag of 40 eyeglasses and cases. The eyeglasses were to be given to the Eye Clinic of Malawi and will be used for those in need.

Fredonia Lions Club seeks used eyeglasses

STAFF REPORT

Throughout the month of August, the Fredonia Lions Club is collecting used prescription eyeglasses and sunglasses as part of a recycling program to help benefit individuals in developing countries where eye care is too often inaccessible or unaffordable.

A donation box was set up at the Aug. 11 Lions Club Festival in Fredonia. Items accepted included eyeglasses, cases, sunglasses and repair kits.

Lions Club member Marjorie Yandell encourages everyone to donate their old eyeglasses. She says in many developing countries eye exams cost as much as a month's salary. Ophthalmologists are also needed to care for thousands of patients.

Last month Yandell traveled to Lilongwe, Malawi in East Africa and presented 40 eyeglasses and cases to the Eye Clinic of Malawi.

Small adjustments can make your home more green

Between running air conditioners, watering plants and keeping the kids cool on a hot summer day, many of us are seeing our energy and water usage rise with the temperatures. By making some small adjustments to your home, you can conserve more energy and water. Not only is this good for the environment, but it's good for your finances.

Here are some tips for conserving energy and water at home during the warmer months:

- Install white shades, blinds or drapes as these will help reflect heat from your home. Close them on south- and west-facing walls during the day to keep your home cooler.
- Increase your thermostat setting by 4 degrees Fahrenheit and run a ceiling fan. This provides the same level of comfort while conserving energy. Keep televisions and lamps away from the thermostat as their heating may cause the thermostat to misread the actual room temperature and run longer.
- Run washers, dryers and dishwashers only when you have full loads. You can cut down on dryer usage during warmer months by drying clothes on a clothesline or drying rack.
- Unplug appliances and small electronics when not in use as 75 percent of the electricity used to power home electronics is consumed while they are turned off.

- Lower the temperature on your water heater. Reducing the temperature by 10 degrees can provide savings of 3 to 5 percent in energy costs. If you're going to be gone for more than three days, you may be able to turn your water heater off and save additional energy and money. Check your manufacturer's instructions before doing so.
- Water your plants from a rain barrel or from leftover water when you change your pet's water.
- Put water in a small pool for your kids rather than run a sprinkler or hose.
- Sweep sidewalks, porches, patios or driveways instead of washing debris away with a garden hose.
- Compost produce scraps instead of putting them in a garbage disposal, as disposals use a lot of water.

Shoulta-Joiner

Mark and Cindy Shoulta of Benton announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Ansley Nicole, to Micah Logan Joiner, son of Mike and Ellen Joiner of Smithland.

Shoulta is the granddaughter of Robert and Ruth Robertson of Boaz and Philip and Bonnie Shoulta of Paducah.

She is a 2010 graduate of Marshall County High School and a 2012 graduate of West Kentucky Community Technical College. She is emploied by White and White Family Dentistry.

Joiner is the grandson of Paul and Clara Culp of Benton, Buddy Joiner of Smithland and Gay Dean Whitsett of Owensboro.

He is a 2006 graduate of Livingston Central High School. He is employed at Jackson Purchase Energy Cooperative Corporation.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 6:30 p.m., Sept. 1 at Southland Baptist Temple in Paducah. All friends and family are invited.

Brown-Gardner

Denny and Brenda Maddox of Marion announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Britt Nichole Brown, to Richard Blake Gardner, son of Richard and Amanda Gardner, also of Marion.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Charles Orr of Marion and the late Glades Orr and the late Jim and Velma Maddox of Palestine, Ill.

She is a graduate of Madisonville Beauty College and is employed by Signature Salon.

The groom is the grandson of Ronnie and Brenda Davis of Honea Path, S.C., and Travis and Joyce Gardner of Marion.

He is a graduate of Southeastern Illinois University and is employed by Gardner Farms and Excavating.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 6:30 p.m., Saturday at Jean Claude and Caroline Kieffer's residence. Only out of town invitations have been sent. Friends and family are invited to attend.

48th annual Fredonia Festival

The Fredonia Lions Club hosted the 48th annual Fredonia Festival Saturday, offering several all-day events for families, as well as silent auctions, food and games. Pictured clockwise is Zack Oliver of Fredonia participating in the corn hole tournament; Aidan McGowan, 5, being led on a pony ride by Jessi Wynne and Abigail Tucker; Matt Cummins holds a miniature pig for Addie Morries and her mother Ashley to pet; and Crittenden County residents Aliyah Frutiger, 8, and Marlee Sosh, 2, prepare for a journey on the lawn mower ride.

Crittenden County Health and Rehab earns national quality recognition

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Health and Rehabilitation Center has been recognized as a 2012 recipient of the Bronze – Commitment to Quality award for its dedication to improving quality care. The award is one of three distinctions possible through the National Quality Award program, presented by the American Health Care Association and National Center for Assisted Living (AHCA/NCAL). The program honors facilities across the nation that have demonstrated their commitment to the quality improvement journey.

“We are honored to be recognized by AHCA for our commitment to quality,” said director of nursing Kelly Stone. “It is a great testament to our staff’s dedication to the residents and their families.”

Implemented by AHCA/NCAL in 1996, the National Quality Award Program is centered on the core values and criteria of the Baldrige Performance Excellence Program, which assists long term care providers in achieving their performance excellence goals.

The program has three levels: Bronze, Silver and Gold. Facilities begin the quality improvement process at the Bronze level, where they develop an organizational profile with essential performance elements such as vision and mission statements and an assessment of customers’ expectations. Bronze applicants must demonstrate their ability to implement a performance improvement system. A team of trained examiners reviews each Bronze application to determine if the facility has met the demands of the criteria. As a recipient of the Bronze - Commitment to Quality award, Crittenden County Health and Rehabilitation Center may now move forward in developing approaches and achieving performance levels that meet the criteria required for the Silver - Achievement in Quality award.

Other Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities members receiving the Bronze-Level Award were Carter Health and Rehabilitation Center, Dawson Springs Health and Rehabilitation Center, Masonic Home of Shelbyville, Stanton Nursing Center, Cumberland Nursing and Rehabilitation Center, The Heritage Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility and Wurtland Nursing and Rehabilitation Center. Hardinsburg Nursing and Rehabilitation Center won a Silver Award.

Brothers named as new Forest Ranger Technician

Chad Brothers has been named as the new Forest Ranger Technician for Crittenden and Livingston counties. Brothers began his position Aug. 1. Brothers comes to western Kentucky from Estill County where he was a Forest Ranger Technician for 15 years.

He says being able to work outdoors is one of many things he likes about his job.

“I enjoy fire prevention and things of that nature. We work with a lot of school programs. We work with the public a lot and I enjoy that,” he said. “We’re outside 99 percent of the time so that’s what I like most.”

At his previous position in Estill County, Brothers said one of his main responsibilities was supervising a fire crew. He and the fire crew fought several large fires in that area of eastern Kentucky. Brothers said most of the time the cause of the fires was arson. Other instances occurred from debris burning accidents which sparked a blaze.

Strategies for firefighting often depend on the situation. Brothers said location can also play a factor in fighting a fire.

“The main thing about fighting a fire is keeping yourself and the people working with you safe. With the heat you have to make sure you drink plenty of water. Make sure you don’t get dehydrated yourself,” he said. “As far as tactics, every fire is different. Some fires are more difficult, some are simple. It depends on the resources you’ve got available and the type of terrain you’re in. So it really varies. It’s a grueling job, especially in this heat. You’ve got to be careful.”

Aside from firefighting, he said educating the public about fire safety is a big challenge.

“We just want people to understand the dangers of fire and how fast it can get away from them if they are not careful. We want to educate people how to burn safely so it doesn’t escape on them.”

Brothers said the forestry division provides many services. In addition to helping land owners manage timber, technicians can walk property and offer ideas on how to manage a forest for wildlife preservation. Tree seedlings are also available for sale.

Brothers can be contacted at 1-800-866-0802.

New Bible translation uses a screenplay format

ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new Bible translation tackles the challenge of turning ancient Greek and Hebrew texts into modern American English and then adds a twist: It's written like a screenplay.

Take the passage from Genesis in which God gets angry at Adam for eating the forbidden fruit from the tree of knowledge of good and evil:

"Adam (pointing at the woman): It was she! The woman You gave me as a companion put the fruit in my hands, and I ate it.

"God (to the woman): What have you done?

"Eve: It was the serpent! He tricked me, and I ate."

Later, Eve bears her first son, Cain.

"Eve (excited): Look, I have created a new human, a male child, with the help of the Eternal."

Even people who have never read the Bible could probably guess that other translations don't say Adam pointed his finger at Eve when he blamed her for his disobedience. Neither do other Bibles describe Eve as "excited" about her newborn son.

That's pure Hollywood, but the team behind The Voice — not to be mistaken with the talent show on NBC — says it isn't a gimmick. They hope this new version will help readers understand the meaning behind the sometimes archaic language of the Bible and enjoy the story enough to stick with it.

The idea was a longtime dream of Chris Seay, pastor of Houston's Ecclesia Church. Seay had had success in helping church members relate to the Bible by dividing out the parts of the various speakers and assigning roles to members who read them aloud.

The idea struck a nerve with Frank Couch, vice president of translation development for Nashville-based religious publisher Thomas Nelson, who had performed Bible-inspired sketches on the streets of Berkeley, Calif., in his youth.

The result of their efforts, as well as a team of translators who worked alongside poets, writers and musicians, is The Voice, released in its full version earlier this year. Online, go to Hearthevoice.com.

"The biggest thing, the unexpected plus, is that people will read an entire book of the Bible because it reads like a novel," Couch said.

"It engages your imagination in a different way," Seay said, expressing his hope that The Voice helps people "fall in love with the story of the Bible."

The Voice not only reformats the Bible but also inserts words and phrases into the text to clarify the action or smooth transitions. These words are generally in italics so the reader can tell what the additions are. At other points, the order of verses is changed to make the story read better.

Some earlier attempts to make the Bible accessible to a modern audience met with heavy criticism from people who thought the translators were taking too many liberties with the word of God, Wake Forest University religion professor Bill Leonard said. But those translators were trying to deal with a real problem — increasing Bible illiteracy, even among those who attended church regularly, he said.

Eugene Peterson, translator of the popular The Message Bible, published in 1993, said he was braced for the negative reaction faced by some of his predecessors, but they didn't materialize.

"I was surprised that the reception was so immediate and so positive," he said. "... I think the one thing I hear most often is, 'This is the first time in my life I understood the Bible.'"

Getting readers to feel engaged in the story is exactly what the creators of The Voice had in mind, Couch said.

"We had an 82-year-old woman who told us that she had never understood the Bible before."

KHS releases new smartphone App

STAFF REPORT

The Kentucky Historical Society is expanding its offer-ings to connect communities with local history through a new smartphone application, "ExploreKYHistory."

"ExploreKYHistory" will be available in both Google Play and iTunes application stores by Aug. 16.

The app connects Ken-tucky communities by combining the history behind each community-driven his-torical marker, related items in the KHS collections and user-submitted images and stories into mapped points of interest. Related historical markers across the Com-monwealth are then grouped together into tours.

What's great about this app is it takes the Historical Markers Program, which is something that's really sig-nificant to people and their communities, and ties it to a much larger story, like the Civil War," says Jody Blankenship, KHS education director. "These are local pieces of history that com-munities consider most im-portant, and the app makes these available to everyone, in the palm of their hands."

The first available tour is Civil War related. A War of 1812 tour will be released in the fall.

KHS hopes to connect communities further by elic-iting participation from local historical societies and Ken-tucky citizens. Users will be able to submit images and stories for inclusion in the app.

Thank You

We would like to thank everyone who helped during our mother's illness and after she left this world to be with our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. God could not have given us a better mother/wife to instruct us in life and love us until her death. Thank you to Dr. Gary V. James for his willingness to work with us and guide us during her fight with Alzheimer's disease and thank you to the nursing staff at Salem Springlake for their compassion to our mother as well as to us. We appreciate the attention provided by the staff of Myers Funeral Home for their arrangements and the Lord's words shared with us by our close family friend, Bro. Jack Dodson.

Thank you for the many prayers, words of concern, cards and calls made to each member of our family. Mom didn't complain about her pain but lived her life looking and waiting for the day she would hear our Lord Jesus Christ say to her, "welcome child to the joys of the Lord!" We will miss her, yet we would not bring her back even if we could. What we can do to live with her one day. We will be looking for her in Heaven, Loretta West our mother and our Dad's wife.

NEXT SCRIMMAGE TONIGHT AT GRAVES
Rockets post 1 TD in first pre-season drill vs. Mustangs

As predictable in the early pre-season, Crittenden County's defense was well ahead of its offensive play during the first scrimmage game Friday against Muhlenberg County at Rocket Stadium.

The Rockets scored the only touchdown in the two-and-one-half-hour pre-season workout. Neither team scored during two 10-play offensive series, and one down-and-distance segment. However, the Rockets posted seven points during a goal-line drill. Quarterback Travis Gilbert passed to fullback Brenden Phillips on a fourth-down-and-four play for the only touchdown. Kicker Micah Hollamon kicked the extra point.

There were numerous penalties in the game as both teams try to polish up before their season openers. Muhlenberg plays this week in regular season against Webster County while the Rockets have another scrimmage tonight (Thursday) at Graves County. Kickoff is at 6 p.m. Graves has one of the best running backs in the region and a solid offensive attack. It will be a huge test for the Rockets, said coach Al Starnes.

The Graves scrimmage will be played like a regular game with the varsity boys going three quarters and junior varsity playing the fourth period.

Against Muhlenberg, Bobby Knox caught four passes and Daniel Wagoner caught two. The Rockets, who have pledged to play more smash-mouth-style this season, had some trouble running up the gut. They had more success when coach Starnes spread the field into offensive sets more reminiscent of recent seasons. The running game didn't get much yardage, but Gilbert was able to move the ball with periodic passes out of the spread. Tailback Grant Gardner had a couple of good runs, though, as did Phillips.

During the down-and-distance portion of the scrimmage, Crittenden moved from its own 30 to the Muhlenberg 5-yard line before being held on downs. On the drive, Gilbert completed passes to Knox, Wagoner and Grant Gardner for first downs then kept the ball on a strong run to the nine. However, after setting up first and goal from there, two offside penalties and three incomplete passes stalled the Rockets.

"We played with some intensity and enthusiasm. Really more than I've seen in quite some time," Starnes said. "We knew going into this season that our defense would have to carry us."

Starnes said spreading the field may be a better option than he first thought. Plans were to be more of a full frontal attack, but after the scrimmage, he said there might be some changes.

Backup tailback Zach Tinsley hurt his ankle early in the scrimmage and didn't play much afterwards. Doctors say the sprain is bad and he will be out until next week.

Likewise, lineman Stephon Cozart is out until next week after hurting his left knee in the scrimmage. It was visibly swollen when the varsity team came off the field after its portion of the workout. The injury came early in the game, but Cozart finished play despite the swelling.

Starnes said Cozart and Tinsley will be available for the first regular season game, but will miss this week's scrimmage.

The coach said lineman Eli Bebout had a great game on both sides of the ball and Phillips and Knox were impressive, too.

Defensively, the Rockets played well against the Mustangs' option offense. Crittenden stuffed the run and intercepted two passes. Phillips and Clint Asbridge each picked off passes.

The junior varsity team finished off the scrimmage with some good play. Noah Dickerson played quarterback for the JV and looked good behind center. Austin Sitar played exceptionally well on defense and ended the scrimmage with a big tackle for loss.

Crittenden County opens its regular season with the Warrior Bowl at Rocket Stadium Saturday, Aug. 25. Union County and Caldwell County play Friday, Sept. 24 in the bowl opener at Marion.

Volleyball girls start season with 3 wins

Crittenden lost its first game of the year at home against Hopkinsville on Aug. 6, losing the match two games to one, 25-18, 24-26, 25-15.

The club was 3-1 after its first four matches of the season.

West is proud of the team's performance.

"We played against good competition and the girls did everything I asked of them," West said of the loss. "We've been working on endurance and we got tired out in the last set."

Victory over McLean County

Playing for the second consecutive night at Rocket Arena on Aug. 7, the Lady Rockets defeated McLean County in straight sets, 25-17, 25-16.

Two juniors - middle hitter Brittney Buell and defensive specialist Ashley Collyer - combined for nine kills, dominating the Lady Cougars up front. West said one of the areas of focus this year is on the defensive end, primarily in how her team handles digs.

Senior setter Kaylee Gibson led the way with two digs, followed by seniors Alyssa Leet and Stacie Hearell with one apiece. Junior defensive specialist Erin McDonald also had one dig.

Victory over Webster County

The Lady Rockets earned their second victory in the midst of a three-game home stint last Thursday, defeating Webster County in four sets, 25-17, 25-15, 22-25, 25-4. The match was the first best of five series for Crittenden, following the rule change set by the KHSAA.

Junior Haylee Young led the Lady Rockets in serving points with 26, followed by Buell 23, Gibson 21, McDonald 16, Collyer four, Hearell three and Leet with two.

West said the team defense was very strong with Hearell and Leet spearheading the effort.

Grant Gardner takes a handoff from quarterback Travis Gilbert in last week's scrimmage game. Crittenden won it 7-0.

Perry claims Pepsi series Player of Year

Travis Perry of Princeton, seven-year-old son of Ryan and Jami Perry (formerly of Marion), recently earned the 2012 Pepsi Junior Golf Tour Kentucky Player of the Year Award for the eight-under division.

Perry won the Kentucky Pepsi Tour Tournament of Champions at Oxnmoor Country Club in Louisville July 30-31. His two-day 6-over-par score was good enough to win the tournament by 10 strokes.

It was his fifth Pepsi Tour golf championship this season and made him the state's points champion in his age division. Perry also finished second in three tournaments and was third in one.

Graham leads Stingray swimmers

The Stingrays started the season with about 70 swimmers ages 4-18 under the direction of coaches Rob Towery, Neal Bryant and Sherry Frazer.

The team won its meet against Madisonville, lost meets against Calvert City and Paducah and finished second at the Greenville three-team meet.

An awards ceremony was held on Aug. 6 at which time the following members were among those recognized:

Most Valuable Swimmers: Kaylee Graham, 140 points; Shelby Cooper 122 points; Travis McKinney, 105 points. 110% Awards: Sawyer Towery, Aubrey Bryant, Shelby Cooper, Darren Paris.

Volleyball girls off to good start

STAFF REPORT
Crittenden County's Lady Rocket volleyball team is off to a fast start in the 2012 campaign, boasting a 3-1 record entering Tuesday night's road game against district archrival Livingston Central (see results next week's Press).
First-year skipper Carol West has taken over the reigns of the program from Larry Duvall following his retirement after posting a career record of 68-48 in five seasons.

West believes her squad will continue to be a contender this season.
"I truly believe they can win the district this year," West said. "I expect us to have a strong showing and compete well in the class A tournament."
Despite losing team leaders and offensive duo Shannah Williams and Taylor Keister to graduation, the Lady Rockets field an experienced roster with four seniors and five juniors.
"We had only two weeks of practice before the season began," said West. "They are stepping up and showing improvement daily and providing leadership and knowledge to the junior varsity and freshmen."

Last month during practice, West called in former Lady Rocket standout Lonna Starnes, who now plays collegiately, to host a six-day training camp for her team.
"Starnes was a tremendous help," said West. "She spent three hours a day helping the girls learn each position, individual and team drills, serving rotations and overall fundamentals."

An important rule change has been made by the Kentucky High School Athletic Association. Now, matches will be the best-of-five sets instead of three. Beginning this year, West said in district games, the home team will have the option of deciding on a three- or five-set match. For the 2013 year, all schools will be required to play five-set matches.

Soccer's base firming up for stronger future

STAFF REPORT
Lady Rockets soccer is gearing up for its fall season this week. The team has 44 young women on the roster. Their first game was Tuesday against Union County (see next week's Press for results).
Team captains Paige Hicks and Anna Schnittker, both juniors, say they are ready for a good season, but know it will be a rough start.
"We are bringing up a lot of new people this year," Schnittker said. "We lost four really good seniors last year so this is going to be a season where we see a lot of the younger ones come up."
The team is starting with five seniors this season.
Schnittker said last year they relied heavily on their defense, but since they lost most of their backfield the club will have to rely more on forwards like senior Adrienne Phelps and freshman Nikki Shuecraft.
With much of its old defense gone, the team is looking to two Whitneys to hold the backfield together. That is Whitney Kinnis and Whitney Williams, both seniors, who will be defending this season. Schnittker is confident that any opposing offense will have a tough time getting past those two.

Hicks said one of the main goals this season is to build up the younger generation and to see them step up as the season progresses.
"There aren't going to be too many older players after this season and we really want to see them grow," Hicks said.
Second-year coach Juan Gonzalez expressed similar sentiments. He has seen a very large turnout for junior varsity and varsity, but many of the players are new to the game.
"This is going to be a year of growth," Gonzalez said. "The new ones you see out on the field this season are going to be the veterans on next year's team."
The team is building a strong base and the skipper believes it will have a good season this year and well into the future.
"We are ready and I think we have made much progress since last year," Gonzalez said. "I think we will have a good season, and I cannot wait to see what we build for next year."
The Lady Rockets had their first game Tuesday night against Union County and will play the Caldwell County Tigers tonight (Thursday) at home beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Wheeler said local leaders are doing everything they can to create an attractive environment for Invensys to expand here, rather than in neighboring Lyon County.

Crittenden County has lower tax rates than Eddyville, Wheeler said, even though the county recently implemented a new payroll tax.

Lyon County's property and school tax rates are higher than Crittenden's by three cents per $100 of assessed value. Wheeler also pointed out that while the city of Marion and county have a combined payroll tax rate of 1.25 percent, the City of Eddyville has a 1.5-percent wage earners' tax.

Lyon County also has a higher inventory tax rates and an inventory in transit tax that Crittenden does not have," Wheeler said. "We think Marion and Crittenden County is a good place to do business for a number of reasons, and our tax structure is one of those."

Infractions have included three DUI charges, 68 occupant restraint citations (seat

Corps delaying permit for Paddy’s barge site

Feds want public meeting regarding cemetery removal

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

It appears that concerns over an old family cemetery could hold up a Corps of Engineers permit for a loading facility at Paddy’s Bluff on the Cumberland River.

Local individuals concerned about preservation of Bunton Family Cemetery and site developer Grogan Properties met Monday with Corps of Engineers officials. It appears now that there may be a public hearing concerning the proposed Paddy’s Bluff barge terminal and quarry and whether the project will be permitted. A meeting date has not been determined at this time.

In a June 7 letter to the Kentucky Heritage Council, the Corps of Engineers said it has considered denying the permit. The letter, a copy of which was obtained by The Press, was sent from Tammy Turley, chief of the Corps’ regulatory branch in Nashville, to Lindsay Casebier of the Kentucky Heritage Council.

In the correspondence, the Corps expressed its dissatisfaction with Grogan Properties’ decision to move the Bunton Cemetery after the company suggested in its permit application that the plots would not be disturbed.

Turley said Corps regulatory officials have notified Grogan Properties of the investigation to determine whether removal of the Bunton Cemetery triggered provisions of Section 110(k) of the National Historic Preservation Act. She said the Corps is coordinating with the Kentucky Heritage Council and the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation regarding compliance with the NHPA, assessing adverse effects and potential mitigation for adverse effects to historic properties. The Corps cannot issue a permit unless it has fulfilled NHPA responsibilities. The Corps’ Nashville office has not dealt with any similar situation in recent memory, according to federal officials.

The Corps is now mediating between cemetery supporters, some of whom are descendants of the Buntons, and Grogan Properties. The Corps has expressed its understanding that the project will bring jobs into Crittenden County and thinks issuing a permit may still be justified, according to public records.

According to Corps’ correspondence, Grogan Properties had “(1) sufficient knowledge of the National Historic Preservation Act, (2) intended to avoid the requirements of section 106 by removing the cemetery without Corps involvement, and (3) caused adverse effects to the Bunton Cemetery.”

The letter explains how Grogan Properties ignored federal regulations so it could act under Kentucky Administrative Regulations. Craig Potts, KHC site protection program manager, said his agency is working with the Corps to make sure the right decision is made. “The Corps is trying to work this out,” Potts said. “The federal agencies have to make sure the process is carried out. The Corps is the decision-making authority. We are there to provide comments and make sure other parties’ voices are heard.”

Potts said the descendants of the Bunton family were not given due process and now they have a right to be angry about what was done to their family’s cemetery.

“Grogan properties changed their plan and did not consult the National Historic Preservation Act,” Potts said. “The Corps’ permit they applied for requires this. These folks have a legal right as citizens to be in this process. It is a right they were not given because that process was not followed.”

Bart Frazer, legal representative for Grogan Properties, said everything was done to the letter of the law.

“I followed the law that was applicable,” Frazer said. “I complied with what was required to move that cemetery. I hope we can work through this.”

State law allowed Grogan Properties to remove the cemetery in a 60-day period, instead of going through a minimum four- to six-month federal process.

Now, the Corps believes prior to its removal Bunton Cemetery was eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

In June 2011, Jeffrey Major of Arnon Environmental and Geoscience, who was hired by Grogan Properties to survey Paddy’s Bluff, sent a report for review by KHC. On July 13, 2011 Mark Denen, executive director of KHC, replied to Major, writing “...the author recommends that impacts to site 15CN56 (Bunton Cemetery) should be avoided because the site is potentially eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places.”

The initial plan Grogan Properties submitted to the Corps was to completely avoid Bunton Cemetery, providing a one-acre buffer around the site and an access road for visitors and caretakers.

On Feb. 21, 2012, Grogan Properties published an announcement in The Crittenden Press of its intent to remove Bunton Cemetery.

According to the Corps’ letter to KHC, “One day after the 60-day public notification period expired, Grogan commenced removal of the cemetery. Grogan Properties failed to notify the Corps of their intent to remove the Bunton Cemetery from their property prior to and during this 60-day public comment period.”

It goes on to say, “When KHC staff asked the archaeological consultant about any federal involvement in the project, KHC staff was informed that there was no federal involvement. The combined actions of failing to notify the Corps of the cemetery removal and the effort to conceal the Corps’ involvement from the KHC demonstrate intent to avoid requirements of Section 106.”

The Corps said the permit will be delayed until it can work through these issues and decide what measures should be taken.

Farm trailers for combine heads no longer taxed; refunds coming

STAFF REPORT

Kentucky Department of Revenue will be refunding any taxes paid by farmers on the wagons they use to transport combine heads from place to place.

The Revenue Cabinet has reversed its stand on the taxation of header wagons by determining that the wagons are eligible for the farm machinery exemption.

Anyone who has previously paid sales and use tax on a header wagon during the past four years will be eligible for a full refund of sales tax paid.

“This is good news for farmers – especially western Kentucky farmers,” said Senator Dorsey Ridley, D-Henderson, a member of the Senate Agriculture Committee. “I am pleased that the Department of Revenue now recognizes that header wagons are eligible agricultural machinery.

“I appreciate my colleagues in the Senate and the House for working diligently with the Revenue Department in order to get their position changed,” added Senator Ridley. “Farmers face enough hardship without having to pay an unnecessary tax. The header wagon is designed to carry farm equipment so our argument has always been that it should be exempt from the tax like other farm machinery. The Kentucky General Assembly was in close contact with the Revenue Department during the 2012 Legislative Session and continued to work with them after the session on this important issue.”

The problem arose because documents accompanying recent purchases listed the header wagon as a “trailer.” The department had previously determined that a “trailer” was not a farm wagon and was therefore subject to sales and use tax.

Refunds on this tax can be claimed up to four years back from when the tax was paid to the Department. For additional information about the refund process, contact the Kentucky Department of Revenue, Sales and Use Tax Division, at (502) 564-4581.

Continued from page 1 reading. They are going to be reading primary and secondary source documents. They’re going to be listening to interviews, looking at advertisements, whatever it may be,” she said. “Then they can look back at some history, look at what they know about the future and put that puzzle together.”

Her goal is to challenge students to think through information and apply what they know through sound reasoning.

“They know how to think, it’s just getting them to apply that. And that’s the biggest challenge, getting them to think through it and apply that knowledge,” she said.
