Zika virus threat low in Kentucky

The risk of the Zika virus causing a mosquito-borne outbreak in Kentucky this year is low, say state public health officials.

The nation was put on alert earlier this month when the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention confirmed that some mosquitos in southern parts of Florida are carrying the virus, which is known to cause severe birth defects in children whose mothers are infected. They are the first reports of mosquitos in the U.S. actually carrying the virus. But Grayson Brown, director of the Public Health Entomology Laboratory at the University of Kentucky, says the mosquito known to transmit the Zika virus is no longer present in the common-wealth's population.

Still, officials are continuing to monitor mosquito populations statewide, as the season continues into the early fall months.

BOE proposing drop in tax rate

Crittenden County Board of Education is considering reducing its property tax rate at a meeting next month. The school district reports the proposed new rate for real estate will be 45.9 cents per $100 of assessed value and 47.4 cents on personal property. That is a drop of 1.9 and 0.4 cents, respectively.

Though the proposed rates are lower, because of an overall increase in property values in the county, the tax is expected to generate more general fund revenue – $1.92 million – than last year's tax – $1.78 million. The areas to which the additional revenue is to be allocated are for instruction, the building fund and the cost of collections to the sheriff's office.

A public hearing on the tax rate has been set for 5:45 p.m. Sept. 2, after which time the board is anticipated to approve a new tax rate.

- ### Meetings
- Crittenden Fiscal Court will meet at 8:30 a.m. today (Thursday) in the judge-executive's courthouse office.
 - Crittenden-Livingston Water District will meet at 6 p.m. Monday at the district office on East Main Street in Salem.
 - Livingston Fiscal Court will meet at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the second-floor conference room of the library building in Smithland.
 - Crittenden Health Systems Board of Directors will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday at the hospital administrative annex.
 - Crittenden County Public Library Board of Trustees will meet at 5 p.m. next Thursday in the library meeting room.

A call for a closer look at the City of Marion's operations in the wake of the arrest and dismissal of former City Administrator Mark Bryant has received the go-ahead from elected officials, though not without some consternation.

By agreeing to form an ad hoc committee to perform a citizen audit, Marion City Council on Monday seemed to appease a crowd of residents who first made their case at a special meeting last week to look deeper into city government for "instances of waste, fraud or abuse." Two councilmen, Jared Byford and Donnie Arflack, agreed to sit on the committee.

Linda Schumann served Monday as the spokesperson of like-minded citizens that included three challengers for the council's six seats on the November ballot. During the meeting, she read from a prepared, two-page statement addressing troubling patterns she has discovered in her own extensive look into city government. She referenced findings in the city's official 2015 audit by Walker & Associates in Paducah that noted a "significant deficiency" in internal controls.

Neither the CPA's audit nor Schumann cited specific instances of suspected malfeasance, nor did they point to any one person as taking part in any illegal activity. Rather, Schumann used the findings of insufficient controls to underscore the group's general concerns following Bryant's July 28 arrest for allegedly supplying work release inmates with synthetic drugs.

"Gentlemen, light is being shined on the city's activities and thanks to the Open Record laws, I believe the City will be better for it,"

Schumann said. "I invite you to join that move toward more transparency and accountability by forming an Audit Committee to assure yourselves that you are fully informed before actions are taken by you or others who act in your name."

The state police investigation into Bryant is ongoing, but it has yet to reveal any misconduct related to city fi-

School started back last week for children in Crittenden County during one of the hottest stretches of the summer so far, prompting the school district to send bottles of cold water with bus riders to keep them hydrated on the trip home, which can last more than an hour for some students. "It can get hot on those buses, and my main concern is that many kids aren't acclimated to the humidity and a bus ride," Superintendent Vince Clark said last Wednesday, the first day back for students. Above, elementary school instructional coach Tiffany DeBoe (left) and guidance counselor Laura Poindexter (center) distribute water to bus riders as they exit the school last Thursday while teachers Ashley Roberts and Summer Riley (rear) help out. Students pictured are Jazmyne Tramel and Will Jarvis (foreground) receiving water from DeBoe and (front to back) Gracie Orr, Glenn Starkey and Xure Pulley being taken care of by Poindexter. By the afternoon, most buses have been sitting in the summer sun all day, raising the temperatures inside above what the thermometer may read outside. Until the buses get moving with the windows down, there is little air circulation to cool off the atmosphere. The school system plans to continue sending water home with children at all three schools when the heat index climbs near or into triple digits. Temperatures this week have been significantly cooler than last week, however.

Deer harvests by year since 2000

Promising deer season ahead, bodes well for Crittenden

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

After months of anticipation, Kentucky deer hunters are gearing up for what looks to be another bountiful year, and that bodes well for Crittenden County, one of the premiere places to hunt whitetail in the Commonwealth.

Kentucky's 2016-17 deer season kicks off the first Saturday in September with the start of the 136-day archery season.

"Everything right now points toward another good season," said Gabe Jenkins, deer program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

That is welcome news following what has been string of record harvests both locally and statewide. In 2015, 3,359 deer were taken in Crittenden County, according to KDFWR Telecheck numbers. That total ranked the county third in harvest numbers and is the most on record dating back at least 20 years, eclipsing 2014's total by more than 100 animals.

Such improving opportunities spell good news for local hunters and businesses alike.

"I think most retail, grocery stores and restaurants benefit from the hunters that own and lease land in the area," said Marion Tourism Commission Director Michele Edwards.

In the last 16 years, Crittenden County has ranked second in the state in the

Cochran's a landmark Marion business

Cochran's Hardware store was once was a landmark in Marion's downtown business district. Although the building is still there, it now sets empty, silently waiting and hoping for a future business to be started inside its 111-year-old brick walls.

The historic building was built in the spring of 1905 after the devastating March 1905 fire that wiped out all of Marion's business district. The firm of Boston and Moore had the job of rebuilding this section of the new business district.

Cochran's Hardware specialized in hardware, but also did a lot of business selling mining supplies for fluorspar operations during the early half of this century. The store sold just about everything from buggies to bridles to dynamite and powder caps. There was a time whenever you were talking about hardware, that Cochran's was the name and Marion was the place to buy it.

Let's go back and follow the history of this once well-known and popular hardware store.

The senior member of the firm of T. H. Cochran & Co., Mr. Thomas Henry Cochran, came to Marion from Livingston County in 1882, and entered the employment of Pierce & Sons, where he remained for six years. He then accepted the appointment of deputy sheriff under E. C. Flanary, in which capacity he served the county for three years.

At the expiration of his term he formed a partnership with A. J. Baker and purchased the Schwab Hardware Store, operating under the name of Cochran & Baker for a number of years. Mr. Baker sold his interest in the store to A. J. Pickens and the business was conducted for about three years under the name of Cochran & Pickens. At this time the firm was located on West Bellville Street opposite the court house.

In 1906 J. A. "Alvis" Stephens and L. E. Crider purchased the interest of Mr. Pickens and the firm became T. H. Cochran & Co., which was now located in their new building on South Main St. L. E. Crider, best known as Lawrence Crider, came from the Crittenden County farm where he was raised, to enter the employ of Cochran & Baker. He was exceptionally popular, a top notch salesman.

J. A. Stephens, best known as Alvis, was raised in the county and taught school for about 10 years before coming to Marion to enter business. He was first employed at the Haynes and Taylor Drug Store before becoming a member of the Cochran firm at the same time as did Mr. Crider. Mr. Stephens was a fine person and also a top notch salesman.

By 1911 the great demand for modern farming implements and a complete assortment of hardware and builder's materials prompted Mr. Cochran to create what would become a much looked forward to annual event known as Implement Day.

On this day the store would have a big display and demonstration of the various farming implements carried in their immense stocks, from the most inexpensive hoe to heavy farm machinery. Not only would they demonstrate to the farmer many pieces of equipment, but show how they would carry on his work efficiency and explain the advantages of the various machines and tools to those who had never used them.

For the housewives there would be demonstration of the oil stoves, ranges and the smallest kitchen utensil.

In April of 1911 the firm of T. H. Cochran and Co. had its first Implement Day. The old Crittenden Presses tell us of their huge success over the years.

This event was one of the biggest days Marion had during the year. Twenty extra salesmen were employed and they passed the day in demonstrating and selling plows, harrows, cultivators anything you would want or need for the farm. Many wagons loaded with hardware were driven from the store during the day.

This event not only benefited the Cochran Hardware Co., but all of Marion looked forward to this yearly event. People came from miles around to attend and participate in the activities of the day and all businesses in town benefited from the hundreds of visitors that came to town.

By October 1915, with the increased business in the store and the demand for more larger farm implements, the owners decided there was a need for a large garage and implement building.

The new building would be located just down the street from the hardware store. Marion was able to now boast of a garage and implement warehouse as large as any city has in this section. Contractor F. B. Heath was installing the front and adding few finishing touches and then the completed house would be ready to be turned over to the firm who had made Marion famous as a hardware center.

W. B. Milne of Eddyville, did the concrete floor and he stated the Cochran & Co's warehouse floor, which is 75 x 100 feet, is the biggest one he has ever put down.

The building is a massive brick, fronting 76 feet on Main street and extending back 100 feet to an area which borders on an alley the entire length. It is a credit to Marion and will add great facilities for handling a big volume of business quickly to Cochran & Co.'s already large quarters.

Sometime during the 1920s the company started selling automobiles in addition to the hardware and implements. In this new garage and implement addition they sold Studebaker, Dodge and Chevrolet automobiles and did a good business in that line. Mr. Alvis Stephens had charge of this department and was known as a "live wire" in the business.

A business change
In January 1926 T. H. Cochran & Co. made the announcement that Mr. J. A. Stephens had withdrawn from the hardware firm with which he had been associated so many years, and had taken over the entire automobile sales, service and accessory business of the hardware firm. His new business would operate under the name of Stephens Motor Co., at the old Cochran and Co. garage. He will sell Studebaker and Chevrolet cars and service all makes, as well as handle a complete line of accessories.

Cochran was responsible for the creation of the once popular Implement Day. T.H. Cochran and Co., with their well-run business, made Marion known for miles around as the place to buy hardware. Above, the original Cochran & Co. Garage and Implement building was built in 1915 to hold their large inventory of farm implements and large household items. Later it would become the location for the automobile sales of J.A. Stephens.

The business of T. H. Cochran & Co., will remain unchanged with the exception of the automobile department and will continue under the same name, with T. H. Cochran and L. E. Crider as proprietors. Miss Clara Nunn, who has been with the firm for 13 years as secretary and treasurer will still look after those duties for the hardware store. (T. H. Cochran and Clara Nunn were married Oct. 14, 1933.)

In August 1942, Mr. Lawrence Crider, had a fatal heart attack while working at the cash register in the store. Needing help with running the busy company, Mr. Cochran's son and his wife, Thomas and Georgia Cochran came in from Washington to help run the business after the tragedy.

When Thomas's father, T. H., died Sept. 15, 1952, he and his wife, Georgia, took over the business and ran the store. They ran the store until Thomas died in May of 1966, with his death, that left his wife, Georgia, to run the business. Handling it alone was too much for her so in 1970 Georgia sold the store to Frank and Relma Lee Lawson.

The Lawsons ran Cochran's Hardware until 1986. When the store closed Mr. Lawson told a press staff reporter that it wasn't for economic reasons, it was that people who had the money didn't want to buy the business, and the people who wanted it couldn't get financing.

Sadly this was the end of Marion's once landmark business of Cochran's Hardware.

The old landmark hardware store closed its doors in February 1986.

At the time Mr. Frank Lawson was the owner. Mr. Lawson and his wife, Relma Lee had operated the hardware store for 16 years after buying out Georgia Cochran who had run the store with her late husband, Thomas Cochran.

Start of school year great, but challenges lie ahead for district

By VINCE CLARK
SCHOOLS SUPERINTENDENT

Our launch last Wednesday was an incredible start to the school year.

Each building worked hard to make the first day of school special for our 1,300 students. Generating positive energy is a very important part of who we are.

We are excited about our staff and the training we received this summer, which included instructional strategies and technology professional development.

Our district opening day was full of exciting skits based on "Crittenden's Got Talent" and speakers focusing on "Inspiring Greatness." Our teachers departed last Tuesday with smiles on their faces and joy in their hearts. A special thank you goes to the good folks at Marion United Methodist Church for grilling and serving our staff so we could fellowship with each other.

A big ole Rocket Thank You goes out to all those who pitched in to make sure students had back to school supplies, backpacks and shoes. The generosity of our community is amazing, and it ensures our students have what they need to be successful. Anyone wishing to make a donation can contact Holly White at the central office by phoning (270) 965-3525 or emailing holly.white@crittenden.kyschools.us.

My attention now gravitates toward two pressing issues for all boards of education (BOE) across Kentucky – tax rates and district facility plan development.

Each August, every BOE across our state completes its duty of setting the tax rate for the local school district. Currently, our tax rate is 47.8 cents per $100 of assessed property value, which is 13.45 cents lower than the state average of 61.25 cents per $100 of assessed property value. Last year, this rate generated $1,778,271 locally for our school district. The state SEEK contribution to our school district was $5,471,314.

According to the Kentucky Department of Education (KDE), some of our assessed property values have increased this year, so our Crittenden County School tax rate on real property and personal property is expected to decrease. I will be making a recommendation on Sept. 2 at a special called meeting that our new tax rate will be 45.9 cents for real property and 47.4 cents on personal property.

Our Local Planning Committee also is developing our District Facility Plan, which is required every four years by KDE. We anticipate more than $30 million in facility needs for our school district.

On Aug. 9, Joe Nance, our district's financial advisor from Ross Sinclair and Associates, reported that our district currently has about $4.7 million in bonding potential. This amount increases about $750,000 to $1 million every two years and can only be used for building projects and renovations. Unfortunately, construction costs increase about 7.5 percent each year, according to Nance.

Our committee, which consists of community representatives, parents, teachers and administrators from each school, will consider all angles based on the needs of the district with our funding sources. Nance also shared that some districts adopt a so-called "second nickel" that could generate an additional $3 million locally while the state would contribute an extra $3 million toward a building project or renovation.

Clark

Our district is faced with a $177,678 reduction in state and federal grants for this school year, most of which comes from the preschool and after-school programs, two invaluable programs that serve our most at-risk students. We anticipate a state SEEK cut of $107,000 due to the increased local property assessments.

It's a tall task to maintain academic progress, update buildings, upgrade technology, transportation and textbooks when funding is reduced or remains constant at best. Our BOE remains committed to resource efficiency and support services evidenced by school nurses, Mountain Comp Care counselors, extra- and co-curricular activities, dual credit scholarships and energy efficiency.

We take seriously the trust our community places in us to be good stewards of our revenue. We are grateful for the collaboration with our community to create opportunities for all students. Thank you for your support.

Missing midway rides not all bad

To the editor
As we look back at the fair this year, we all seem to be upset that there were no rides this year.

But if we look at the news and we see all the carnival ride accidents in amusement parks that have happened recently, maybe we ought to as Christians realize that sometimes God works in mysterious ways. Maybe this year with the carnival not showing up was God's way of preventing one of our hometown children from being injured from one of these rides.

We ought to thank God every day for the small wonders and the big miracles that He performs in our lives each and every day. Sometimes we shouldn't be so quick to get upset about something we think is not right.

We need to take the time to step back and realize what truly happens to us each and every day. No matter where we're at and what we do, God is with us.

New panel indicts 4 on drug, theft charges

STAFF REPORT

A newly sworn Crittenden County Grand Jury handed down four indictments last week.

A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence. It merely decides whether enough evidence exists in order for the state to continue prosecuting a case as a felony in circuit court. Indicted last week were:

- Coy J. McDowell, 19, of Marion was indicted on a felony count of theft of property either lost, mislaid or delivered by mistake. Court records allege that on June 7 McDowell obtained $550 from Farmers Bank & Trust Co. ATM machine in Marion by manipulating the machine into crediting his account with non-existent deposits and then immediately withdrew the exact amounts.
- Bobbi Kirk, 38, of Marion was indicted on felony counts of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) and tampering with physical evidence and a misdemeanor charge of possession of drug paraphernalia. The indictment alleges that Kirk was in possession of meth and other drug-related items on Aug. 2 and flushed evidence (meth) down a toilet.
- Jordan Orr, 29, of Marion was indicted on a felony charge of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (hydrocodone) and misdemeanor charges of first offense DUI, possession of drug paraphernalia and having a controlled substance not in its original container. Kentucky State Trooper Joe Bartolotti's report says he was in his cruiser, backed into a driveway at an abandoned home on Ky. 120 just east of the intersection with Pleasant Hill Road observing traffic when Orr, driving a maroon pickup, pulled into the driveway and almost collided with the police vehicle. Upon investigation, the trooper is alleged to have found a pill grinder, "tooter" and hydrocodone pills in Orr's pocket.
- Quaid M. McDowell, 26, of Marion was indicted on a felony count of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (hydrocodone) and misdemeanor charges of possession of a controlled substance not in its original container, possession of marijuana and operating on a suspended license. Deputy Chuck Hoover's report says McDowell was stopped on July 23 because the deputy was serving an active warrant on the suspect. Inside the vehicle he found the alleged drugs.

Several felony cases heard in circuit court

STAFF REPORT

Anthony M. Alvarez, 26, of Marion pleaded guilty last week to a number of charges relating to a traffic incident at the intersection of U.S. 60 and U.S. 641 in the early-morning hours of June 22.

Alvarez was intoxicated when he sped through the intersection, lost control of his vehicle and crashed into a brick retaining wall at the NAPA store.

Policeman Robert Harris just happened to be sitting in his cruiser nearby and saw the whole thing. When he approached Alvarez's vehicle, the suspect exited it and ran away on foot. The officer caught him a short distance away on a nearby lawn.

Circuit Judge Rene Williams sentenced Alvarez last Thursday to five years in prison for second-offense unauthorized use of a vehicle, the maximum for a Class D felony; and three years for possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine). Alvarez also received a couple of 12-month sentences and two 30-day sentences for lesser charges, including DUI, possession of drug paraphernalia, fleeing or evading police and driving on a suspended license. The sentences will run concurrently for a total of five years.

In other cases before Judge Williams last week:

- Megan M. Hert, 28, of Marion pleaded guilty to an amended charge of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine) a Class D felony. The charge was originally brought by Detective Mike Lantrip of the Pennyrile Area Narcotics Task Force. According to court records, Hert was an occupant of a residence on Ky. 120 on Nov. 4, 2015 where a search warrant was executed and investigators found a quantity of methamphetamine and 32 firearms. Hert was sentenced to five years, but granted probation for a period of five years.
- Teddi Rae Hodge, 40, of Marion pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of theft of credit card and felony fraudulent use of a credit card (under $10,000). Hodge was sentenced to five years on the felony and 12 months on the misdemeanor, but given pre-trial diversion on both for a period of five years. Hodge took a credit card from her roommate and used it to make 12 purchases without the consent of the cardholder.
- Shatana L. Wigginton, 39, of Fredonia had her probation revoked because she failed to maintain contact with a probation officer. She was at large for almost 10 months while probation officers and police were looking for her. She pleaded guilty last summer in Crittenden Circuit Court to charges of theft and fraudulent use of a credit card which had been lost at Conrad's by a local minister.
- Jon P. Williams, 37, of Marion pleaded guilty to felony third-degree assault of a police officer, fourth-degree assault (domestic violence), two other counts of fourth-degree assault, second-degree disorderly conduct, resisting arrest, third-degree terroristic threatening, public intoxication attempted theft and third-degree criminal mischief. Williams was intoxicated and assaulting various people on June 18 at a location of Poplar Street. When police arrived, Williams head-butted Patrolman George Foster and threatened police and bystanders. He damaged the inside of the police cruiser, according to court records, and was combative at the jail, where he was eventually tased. Williams received a two-year sentence on the felony assault charge and lesser sentences on the other misdemeanors ranging from 12 months to 30 days. All of the misdemeanor sentences will run concurrent to the felony time for a total of two years. The commonwealth opposed probation for Williams and he was sent to prison.
- Oliver Lynn Williams, 45, of Marion pleaded guilty to first-degree criminal mischief for damaging a vehicle parked at a Sturgis Road address by slashing all four tires, busting out the windshield and doing $1,088.03 in damage to it on April 13. Williams was sentenced to five years, but the prosecution will not oppose shock probation after a period of time if Williams enrolls in drug court.

City council proposing lower tax rates

STAFF REPORT

Marion City Council is proposing a reduction in its 2016 property tax rates. New rates were introduced at Monday's meeting.

The city's proposed new rate for real estate is 22.2 cents per $100 of assessed value and 18.5 cents on personal property. That is a drop of 0.1 and 1.4 cents, respectively, from 2015 rates.

The adjusted levies – calculated to offer the city roughly the same general fund revenue as last year based on slightly higher property values – are projected to actually generate slightly less operating funds than last year for a city just a few weeks ago forced to cut staff and other areas to present a balanced 2016-17 budget. City Treasurer Melinda Gipson said 2016 tax bills to be sent out later this month should generate $223,253, down $959 from last year.

Councilman Donnie Arflack at Monday's meeting expressed concerns about lowering the city's projected revenue at a time when it is facing financial strains. But no one on the council had the stomach to propose a tax increase when city residents are already being tasked with funding a mandated new wastewater treatment facility that could cost as much as $12 million.

"Not after the environmental fee," Councilman Jared Byford said in response to the prospect of upping the tax levy.

The environmental surcharge to fund a new treatment plant first appeared on water/sewer bills just this month.

There was no further discussion on the tax rates. The last time the city raised property tax rates was in 2012.

Motor vehicle and watercraft rates will remain 22.9 cents, a rate determined by the state.

Final approval on the 2016 tax rates is expected at a special meeting called for 5 p.m. Monday.

nances. Mayor Mickey Alexander pledged his support for the committee to conduct a citizen audit. However, he believes the city's system of financial checks and balances during Bryant's 10 years as city administrator will prove to have protected public money from any potential fraud.

In fact, Alexander has taken offense at any suggestions of fraud at city hall, saying that "fraud" implies front office staff may have been willingly complicit to illegal activities. Schumann indicated in her public statement and after the meeting that she is not accusing anyone who now handles the day-to-day finances of the city of anything.

At least one council member appeared to show he believes the need for a citizen audit is unwarranted.

"Not me," Councilman Junior Martin snapped as Alexander looked for council members to serve on the ad hoc committee.

Schumann named herself, former city councilman and judge-executive Fred Brown and council candidate Cletis Hunt, who has also worked in government, as citizen members of the audit committee. Besides those three and the two council members, she has an out-of-town CPA and a couple of other unnamed people in mind to serve. She would not name those individuals until they are confirmed.

The scope of the audit, including the number of years it will examine, and its priorities will be set as the group meets formally, Schumann said. At press time, no date had been set for the first meeting.

Brown said Tuesday morning he was pleased with the council's decision to approve the audit committee. He spoke at the Aug. 8 special meeting, when an investigation by state auditors was suggested. However, such an audit could take months or years to complete and would likely be very costly. In light of that, a local audit seemed to be the solution the group felt best.

"I think it will be good for the people," Brown said of both the council and city residents, "to get this behind them."

Of course, if any misgivings are discovered, a state audit could still be called for.

The 2015 city audit by Walker & Associates listed several significant control deficiencies in its finding sheet, including:

- Reports, financial statements and related disclosures were not always accurate and timely.

- Controls were not in place which would prevent or detect misstatements of financials.

- No one within the city possessed the "skills, knowledge and experience" necessary to prepare financials in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. The firm suggested the city seek outside help to assist with this.

Schumann, in her prepared words, indicated Bryant and Alexander as having been responsible in 2015 and in the just-concluded 2016 fiscal year for correcting inadequate financial controls which may have existed in city government.

Schumann also brought out unrelated inconsistencies under Bryant at Monday's council meeting.

The former city administrator had been issuing permits that allowed for variances to the city's planning and zoning ordinance without the requests going through the proper channels, which should only gain approval through the council. City Code Enforcement Officer Teri Hart cited 18 instances of noncompliance in which four different owners of city property were allowed by Bryant to set up manufactured homes with underpinning rather than the permanent foundation called for by zoning.

Candidates draw for top spot

Dwight Sherer draws his lot for placement on the ballot for Marion City Council as other candidates or their designees await their turn to blindly choose a number from County Clerk Carolyn Byford (left). It's not a sophisticated system drawing a bottle cap marked with a number from a bag, but it fairly gave each of the 11 candidates their shot at appearing at the top of the November ballot. Sherer, an incumbent, didn't get the top spot, but he was happy with No. 3. The first three names on city ballots will all be incumbents – Jared Byford, Donnie Arflack and Sherer, respectively. Also pictured are candidate Phyllis Sykes, candidate Mike Harris' wife Kathy and incumbent Byford. There are six seats on the council.

Ballot order as drawn:

1. Jared Byford
2. Donnie Arflack
3. Dwight Sherer
4. Mike Harris
5. Minnie Lou Brown
6. D'Anna Browning Sallin
7. Mike Byford
8. Junior Martin
9. Ricky Winders
10. Phyllis Sykes
11. Cletis Hunt

Attendance report

Three of the six challengers for seats on Marion City Council were in attendance Monday – Hunt, Minnie Lou Brown and D'Anna Browning Sallin. Meantime, Councilman Darrin Tabor, who is not seeking reelection, missed his sixth meeting since August 2015. That includes both special and regular monthly meetings held over that period.

New city administrator

The city this week began advertising to fill the open city administrator's position. (See Page 15.) The deadline for application is Sept. 30, but Alexander said he is pleased with Barber as interim administrator, and said the city would not rush into hiring a permanent replacement. He indicated city hall operations are actually running more smoothly than under Bryant before his arrest.

The city is also saving money. Barber is being paid Bryant's hourly rate, but is serving in only a part-time capacity.

A Crittenden County High School graduate has directed a short film on addiction and phototherapy that will be shown at Maiden Alley Cinema in Paducah at 7 p.m., Aug. 25.

“Good Medicine” is a short film created as part of Iddings’ Master’s of Social Work degree at Spalding University. According to promotional material for the film, the project focuses on the use of whole body/whole mind approaches in the treatment of trauma and addiction.

“The concept of the project is to have a visual conversation that is courageous, affirming and challenging to the standard narrative on addiction and those who live it,” according to the Maiden Alley Cinema website. “The four participants, all western Kentuckians, share glimpses of their “medicine” with us – doing what it is that brings them back to themselves.”

Music in the film was provided in part by Iddings’ cousin, Shawn Steele, also a Crittenden County graduate.

Baker gets preview of UK med program

Reid Baker, a 2016 graduate of Crittenden County High School, attended a highly competitive and very challenging four-and-a-half week academic residential program at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center this summer. This class’s average GPA was 3.89, with an average overall ACT score of 28.3 with an average Science ACT score of 27.9.

Baker, the son of Reese and Susan Baker of Fredonia, was among 38 incoming college freshmen attending the Professional Education Preparation Program (PEPP Scholars). This program is designed to prepare students for a successful career in undergrad, as well as the admissions process for medical or dental school.

Students are selected based on a record of academic excellence, outstanding standardized test scores, extracurricular activities, and a personal statement of

Baker

“Why I want to be a Physician or Dentist?” The majority of students chosen to participate in PEPP Scholars are from areas of the Commonwealth with health professional shortages.

PEPP Scholars hopes to address the needs of rural areas by preparing students from underserved communities for the challenges of an undergrad curriculum demands, as well as the highly competitive health professions admissions exams.

Students attend seminars and courses designed to provide a foundation in the sciences and an understanding of many critical issues in the healthcare field. They also learn about many areas of healthcare through hospital rotations in Labor and Delivery and Operating Room at the UK Medical Center.

Participants also receive many dental experiences such as learning how to drill and fill on teeth, take impressions, as well as shadowing opportunities in the Dental Urgent Care Clinic and Oral Surgery department.

PEPP Scholars participate in many community outreach experiences and mentor activities, such as working with special needs camps, putting on bingo events at surrounding nursing homes, hosting parties for the patients out at Eastern State Hospital, and working with elementary schools by hosting health and dental related presentations.

The participants also adopted a park this summer, Cardinal Valley Park, providing children in the community with health related presentations and crafts as well as games and activities.

Craft Academy welcomes Crittenden students

This year’s class of Craft Academy for Excellence in Science and Mathematics arrived Aug. 7 on the campus of Morehead State University.

The Craft Academy for Excellence in Science and Mathematics was designed to meet the unique educational needs of academically gifted and talented high school juniors and seniors in the Commonwealth. A college-level curriculum allows students to finish high school while also completing up to two years of university coursework.

Admitted to the program from Crittenden County were Landon Brooks, son of Jeff and Julie Brooks, and Corbin Wilson, son of William and Mary Wilson.

Both Brooks and Wilson would be entering their junior year at Crittenden County High School.

Returning to the Craft Academy are Crittenden County High School seniors

Katie Wheeler and Audrey Smith who started the program last year and will graduate in 2017.

“We are delighted to have the students and their families here on campus. The Craft Academy has added to Morehead State University’s rich history,” said Dr. Wayne D. Andrews, president. “The Academy could have never come to fruition without the inspiration and leadership provided by Sen. (Robert) Stivers, Rep. (Rocky) Adkins, the Kentucky General Assembly and through the generosity of Joe Craft.”

unique, project-based STEM+X courses that enrich educational experiences and develop competencies in entrepreneurship and innovation, design and creativity, and civic and regional engagement.

Students live on campus in Grote-Thompson Hall, which has been remodeled with meeting and social space and 24/7 staffing. Counselors and advisors also are available.

“This class of scholars includes some of the most academically talented students from across the Commonwealth, and we couldn’t be prouder of them,” said Dr. Carol Christian, director of the Craft Academy. “Our staff has done a tremendous amount of work preparing and we are looking forward to getting classes underway.”

Students were selected based on ACT and SAT scores, academic grades from their first two years of high school, interest in advanced STEM careers, responses to application essay questions, interview by the Academy selection committee and recommendations from teachers and others who could attest to the student’s need and preparedness for the program.

At the end of the two years, students will have earned a minimum of 60 credit hours, finished high school and have the opportunity to further their education at MSU or transfer to any other college/university in Kentucky or elsewhere.

Teacher, CCHS Class of 1966 share bond as reunion nears

By EMILY COMBS
STAFF WRITER

Crittenden County High School Class of 1966 alumni Pam Orr, Connie Bostick, Barbara Hunt and Peggy Ritch have been hard at work since January putting together their milestone 50-year reunion.

Lots of effort goes into such events, but for these ladies, the planning is half the fun thanks to their beloved teacher and mentor, Linda Cook. Cook has hosted the team's planning meetings for years, and generously supplies snacks, advice and laughter.

"It's our 50-year class reunion and we still need Mrs. Cook to keep us straight," said Orr.

Sixty-six was a year of beginnings for each of the women seated recently around Cook's kitchen table, as it was her first year of teaching at the high school and Orr, Bostick, Hunt and Ritch's freshman year of high school. The friendship between the students and their teacher has survived to this day.

"They're just my girls," said Cook.

Members of Crittenden County High School Class of 1966 have been planning their 50-year reunion alongside Linda Cook (seated), who began her first year of teaching at the high school when the class entered as freshmen. Class members planning the event include (from left) Pam Orr, Connie Bostick, Peggy Ritch and Barbara Hunt.

Although she shares a special bond with her first students, Cook speaks fondly of all the young scholars who held a seat in her classroom over her 40-year teaching career.

"I'm just so thankful to live in Crittenden where I retired, and get to see you all," she said to the group. "How sweet you all are to me; it's such a blessing."

The group looks forward to seeing their classmates at the reunion, which will be held at the Heritage at Marion Country Club Sept. 3.

that Smith is not attending school at this time and is not enrolled at Crittenden County High School

Marion Police Department was notified of the post last Wednesday morning, and Assistant Police Chief Bobby West opened the investigation. The social media comments were still posted Wednesday when he checked online.

A female had posted a comment Facebook, to which Smith responded minutes later. The posts below are transcribed as they originally appeared online, including the misspellings and incorrect punctuation.

"Well guys tomorrow we turn are self's in for 9 months help us all its. Going to be the longest 9 months of are life's," wrote the female.

In response, Smith posted, "We can still blow it up right now and won't get in trouble."

The thread began at 10:19 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 9.

The police report says investigators allege that Smith was talking about the high school when he said "blow it up."

Kentucky Revised Statute 508.078 clearly states that a person may be charged with terroristic threatening in the second degree when he or she intentionally, with respect to a school function, "threatens to commit any act likely to result in death or serious physical injury to any student group, teacher, volunteer worker or employee of a public or private elementary or secondary school, vocational school or institution of postsecondary education or to any other person reasonably expected to lawfully be on school property or at a school-sanctioned activity, if the threat is related to their employment by a school or work or attendance at school or a school function. A threat directed at a person or persons or at a school does not need to identify a specific person or persons or school in order for a violation of this section to occur."

The statute also covers any false statements made insinuating that he or she has placed a weapon of mass destruction at a school.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said any and all threats are taken seriously.

"We have to thoroughly investigate every one of these (threats), and we are going to take them serious. If charges are warranted, they will be filed," the police chief said.

number of deer harvested 11 times, trailing only Owen County. Four other times it has ranked third behind Owen and Pendleton counties, both in northern Kentucky. Crittenden ranked fourth in 2009 behind only Owen, Pendleton and Graves counties.

Such an impressive crop has earned the county nationwide attention from hunters, including a few high-profile professional athletes who either own or lease land here. And while the economic impact of deer hunting on the county is significant, Edwards said it is difficult to put an exact dollar to measure its extent.

Statewide records

Last year, hunters in Kentucky established a new benchmark by taking more than 155,730 deer. It was the third record harvest in the past four seasons and included 55 bucks from 40 counties documented by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife that met the Boone and Crockett Club's minimum entry score for its awards book.

"Our deer hunting in Kentucky is better than it's ever been," said Steve Beam, wildlife division director for Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We're harvesting record numbers of deer and our production of large-antlered bucks is completely incredible."

A state believed to hold fewer than 1,000 white-tailed deer a century ago now is considered one of the nation's premiere hunting destinations. The latest herd estimate – derived from harvest and age structure data – pegged the statewide population at more than 820,000 after the 2015-16 hunting season and before fawning this spring.

"We've really hit the scene in the past 10 years because of our quality white-tail," Jenkins said. "That's a product of good management, good habitat and being diligent about what's being put on the landscape. With that, we still have to be good stewards."

The archery season is just one facet. Crossbow, muzzle-loader and youth deer hunting opportunities are part of the overall season framework. But it is the modern gun deer season in November that drives the harvest, accounting for 70 percent of the total harvest last season.

"We've been setting archery records nearly every year and every month, so

Input sought on Ky. deer management

STAFF REPORT

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources encourages deer hunters to participate in a new internet survey about deer hunting and management in Kentucky.

The survey is available online at Research.net/r/KYDeerInput2016 through Sept. 9.

"We've not surveyed our hunters in a long time," said Gabe Jenkins, deer program coordinator for KDFWR. "Hunters in Kentucky are harvesting record numbers of deer and the state is producing a lot of trophy bucks each season. But maybe there are some things that could be done better. We want to give everybody a voice, and the survey provides a direct line of communication."

The survey is the first of its kind in more than a decade. It gauges hunter distribution, hunting habits and hunter satisfaction. The 46 questions cover a range of topics, including buck and doe harvest, season structure and season length, youth and mentor opportunities, legal equipment and alternative hunting methods.

"There are a handful of questions about populations," Jenkins said. "I'm interested in what people on the ground are seeing. Are they seeing more deer or less deer compared to five, 10 years ago? And what are their feelings about that? Are we achieving what we need to achieve?"

Earlier this year, the department selected 2,500 resident and non-resident deer hunters at random to take the same survey and establish baseline data.

Potential changes stemming from the results of the survey will be carefully considered before recommendations are presented to the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission.

"We're not going to be out to move quickly or do anything fast," Jenkins said. "We're going to take our time and be strategic."

we're seeing more interest in archery hunting," Jenkins said. "But we're still a modern gun-dominated state and weather is the biggest key in that."

The modern gun season opens statewide Nov. 12 and spans 16 consecutive days in Zones 1 and 2 and 10 consecutive days in Zones 3 and 4. There are 43 counties assigned Zone 1 status, including Crittenden County, after the addition of Hardin and Webster counties this season.

Herd health assessments are under way and results are not yet available from the annual statewide mast survey. Hunters should take into account the availability of hard mast as the season progresses.

"Traditionally, when you have good mast years, we usually see a decline in the harvest from the previous year mainly because of a change in feeding habits," Jenkins said. "They're not coming to corn feeders and they're not coming to green fields. They're in the woods."

"I don't know what the mast results are going to show, but in speaking with our staff and seeing for myself in the field, it looked pretty good. We'll see."

Telecheck changes

Hunters must check the animals they harvest and can do that by phone at (800) 245-4263 or online at fw.ky.gov. The telecheck process will include some new questions this year. Hunters checking an antlered deer will be asked to enter the total number of antler points that are at least 1 inch and indicate if the outside antler spread is less than or greater than 11 inches. Those checking an antlerless male will need to distinguish if it is a male fawn (button buck) or if the animal has already dropped its antlers.

The additional data will help biologists, Jenkins said.

"What we're looking to do is obtain additional age data, something that indicates how old that harvested animal is," he said. "For all of the population models that we do, we need to know approximate age in the harvest. Additional age data allows us to better predict the standing crop and the age of our herd. That in turn helps us be more efficient managers of the herd."

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife owns, leases or manages more than 80 wildlife management areas across the state for public use. Some require a user permit, hold quota hunts or have special regulations for deer hunting.

"We've been able to add a significant amount of acreage in recent years," Beam said. "As a result, hunters now have more high-quality public hunting opportunities across the state."

The Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide, available on the department's website and wherever licenses are sold, is a valuable resource for hunters. It includes the full list of fall hunting and trapping season dates, summarizes hunting and trapping laws, and provides information about public lands hunting by region, youth hunting opportunities, hunter education requirements and quota hunts.

MS Rockets big up front, quick, too

STAFF REPORT

Speed and size are plentiful in the Crittenden County Middle School football camp this season.

If new skipper Bryan Qualls can blend it all together, he projects a successful season.

The Rocket middle schoolers had a disappointing campaign last year, winning just one game. However, Qualls says success at the junior high level may not always be a servant to the win column.

“To me, it’s all about what we do on Friday nights,” Qualls said, referring to the traditional day when high school games are played. His boys will play most of their games on Tuesdays. The coach says building a successful high school program starts in little league, continues through middle school and culminates in the upper grades.

“Our job is to build the numbers at the middle school level and develop players for high school. If we win in the process, that is a big boost for the kids. It allows them to see success.”

Qualls is a 2005 graduate of the CCHS football program, having played for longtime high school skipper Al Starnes. Qualls was the middle school head coach and high school assistant at Union County before returning to his alma mater last year. He takes over the head coaching controls from Jared Brown, who gave them up in order to concentrate on his new teaching position. Brown will remain on the coaching staff, however.

The team will look to first-time quarterback Gabe Mott for offensive leadership. The team will run an abbreviated form of the spread offense that the high school employs. The middle schoolers will likely be more ground-oriented. Mott has never played a whole lot at the quarterback position. Last year he was a receiver and in little league he was a successful running back. Qualls says his eighth-grade QB has the mentality and skills to be very good at the position.

At running back will Xander Tabor, who got the majority of the carries a year ago. Behind him are a host of seventh graders led by Keifer Marshall. Eighth-grader Lathen Easley will play the hybrid H-back position and classmate Caden McCalister is the Y or tight end. Both are very capable receivers and ball carriers. Chase Stevens is the leading candidate at Z and Douglas Ford at X, both are receiver positions. Seventh-grader Trace Derrington is going to see playing time at receiver, too, Qualls said. The coach also mentioned skilled position players Maddox Carlson, Dalton Wood, Tanner Beverly and Braden Hill, all seventh graders who will add depth to the squad.

The backup quarterbacks are seventh-grader Luke Crider and eighth-grader Noah Perkins.

On the line there are some hefty fellows.

“Most of them are as tall as me and weigh more,” the coach said.

Eighth-graders Preston Turley, Braxton Winders, Tyler Boone and Ian Ellington appear to be leading the race for interior lineman spots. Eighth-grader Ben Dobyns and seventh-grader Ben Evans are one and two, respectively, at center.

The skipper listed a few other boys who will have a chance to play on the front-line. They are eighth-grader Jasper Morrison and seventh-graders Tucker Sharp, Holden Cooksey and Coleman Stone.

Eighth-grader T.H. Nolan, who hasn’t played since little league, has come out for the team and will likely figure into the mix somewhere up front.

“Our eighth grade is loaded with linemen,” Qualls said, and speed and quickness are also available at the skilled positions.

Defensively, the coach says Boone is a key figure. He was a down lineman last year, but moves to inside linebacker.

“Tyler Boone energizes the defense. He loves flying to the ball and loves to be a leader out there,” the coach said.

The linebacking corps is sold with McCalister, Easley and Dobyns figuring into the starting lineup in the 4-4 alignment. Up front, Winders and Turley are working at starting ends and Ellington is a sure bet for one of the tackle spots.

“The other tackle spot is still up in the air,” Qualls said. “Brady Smith can play anywhere up there, but we’re still looking for others.”

Morrison and newcomer Brady Knight may figure into a starting role on the defensive front and seventh-grader Dylan Yates could get work there, too. Stevens, Tabor and Derrington will be regulars at the corners and Mott is the safety.

Qualls hopes to get everyone plenty of playing time as each scheduled event is a doubleheader with the so-called A-team or eighth-grade game first.

Boone will key Rocket passing offense

STAFF REPORT

There are big changes brewing this season at Crittenden County and after a quarter of a century as the Rocket football coach, Al Starnes is both encouraged and concerned.

Although the offensive strategy remains the same, there will be an obvious tactical difference when the boys lineup Friday for the opening game at Todd Central.

The Rockets return only a handful of starters from last year's 7-5 squad, and primary among the newcomers is quarterback Hunter Boone, a sophomore around whose arm the team could flourish.

"It's the same offense, but it will look different," Starnes said. "Last year we had a running quarterback (Nick Castiller) and this year we have a thrower."

A stable of receivers will give Boone plenty of options and the coaching staff is quite confident the skilled positions are in good hands.

"We have as good a set of four receivers as we've ever had," Starnes said.

And there's more waiting in the wings to get into the game. Seniors Paxton Riley, Ethan Hunt and Maeson Myers and sophomore Ethan Dossett will be integral parts in the offensive package. In reserve and likely to get plenty of playing time on offense are Ben Brown, Cody Belt, Branan Lamey, Jared Lundy and Gavin Dickerson.

"Paxton Riley is the most improved player on the team," said Starnes. "He is emerging as our leader on the field and he can play several positions on defense, too."

Myers, an all-conference selection last year, can catch and run and Dossett is a real playmaker, too, with a bright future with three seasons ahead of him alongside his classmate quarterback.

Although Boone is just a 10th grader, Starnes says he's mature beyond his years.

"He is so far ahead of schedule right now," the coach explains. "We have never had a quarterback here that is as poised as Hunter. He has a great presence in the pocket, he's confident in his arm and has a great ability to read his receivers."

The passing game is a bit ahead of the running attack. The coaching staff is still trying to decide who will be the team's go-to guy in the backfield. Sophomore Devon Nesbitt has an inside track on the starting nod, but senior Jacob Russelburg is also getting serious consideration. They will likely handle the job by committee along with Dickerson, a sophomore whose primary role on the team will be at middle linebacker. Keeping Dickerson fresh for defense will mean keeping him off the field on offense as much as possible, Starnes said.

Dickerson emerged as a strong runner late last season, finishing with 112 yards on 30 carries.

Maeson Myers is the leading returning rusher with 234 yards. Together, Nesbitt and Russelburg carried the ball just 19 times last fall for 136 yards.

Kyle Castiller, a junior, will also see some time in the backfield at H-back.

The lines are very thin up front where only senior Dakota Koerner and junior Adam Beavers return. Beavers is an All-WKC performer and will play left tackle. Koerner, known most commonly as "DK," is the center. He earned a starting job last year when Shelby Robinson was injured and did not return.

"We are going to take some lumps up front, especially early on," Starnes said. "We're going to have to run a lot of quick-hitting things and timing plays so we can take some pressure off of our line."

Sophomore Jake Gibson is penciled in at right tackle with Will Dobyns right behind him on the depth chart. Juniors Joseph Estes and Brady Birk have emerged as the likely starting guards but sophomore Sean O'Leary will figure into the mix as well. Senior Adam Wright and sophomore Drake Kemper give the Rockets a little depth on the interior line and sophomore Devin Porter is the backup center.

Only six players on the entire Rocket roster tip the scales at more than 200 pounds. It's a much smaller group, especially in the trenches, than in recent years.

Returning kicker Will Perkins is a weapon that Starnes will be quick and confident to call upon on fourth downs in enemy territory. Perkins was 39-of-44 on point-after kicks last year and Starnes predicts he will get chances at some field goals this season. Perkins will also serve as the punter. Beavers is the long snapper and Boone will be place-holder on kicks.

Returning punts will be two of the team's fastest players: Russelburg and Nesbitt. Russelburg has a time of 4.76 in the 40-yard dash and Nesbitt runs a 4.83.

Defensively, Crittenden County returns four starters and a couple of other players who put up some pretty good statistical numbers when they got into the game. Linebacker Dylan Smith, a senior, was last season's top tackler with 130 stops. He returns to the lineup at strong-side linebacker alongside Dickerson at middle linebacker. Dickerson had 87 tackles last season and is No. 2 returning tackler on the squad.

Hunt, who will play Rocket backer, a hybrid roving linebacker and sometimes end-type player, brings good numbers back to the field. Hunt intercepted a team-high five passes last fall and had 58 tackles. An all-conference selection last year, Hunt will again play a key role in the Rocket defensive scheme.

Paxton Riley and sophomore Mitchell Joyce will provide backup at all of the line-backing positions. Riley had 33 tackles a year ago.

At the corners will be Lamey and Russelburg. Both played key roles on defense last season. Lamey had 39 tackles and Russelburg 35 last season. Russelburg also had a sack, three tackles for loss and an interception.

Cody Belt and Payton Riley will provide depth at cornerback.

Nesbitt and newcomer Ben Brown are battling for the starting nod at free safety. Brown, a senior, hasn't played football in a few years, but his athleticism makes him a candidate for a regular spot on defense, and perhaps even on offense.

Myers and Paxton Riley are No. 1 and 2 on the depth chart at strong safety. Each is a seasoned player with a nose for the ball.

The frontline on defense is equally as thin as the offense. Beavers will play end again this season. That's where he earned all-conference honors last fall with 65 tackles, including a couple of

V-ball girls coming of age

STAFF REPORT

Almost two dozen returning players, including seven who were among the starters a year ago, are brightening hopes for Crittenden County High School's volleyball team.

The attitude in preseason camp was excellent, said third-year skipper Cara Merrick, whose teams have struggled the past couple of years. The team has won only two matches over the last two seasons, finishing last in the region both times.

Despite losing all eight of its matches to district opponents last year, Merrick thinks the tide has turned.

"I really truly believe we can win the district," she said. "I am positive that we can if we keep a good attitude. I think we can be a force to be reckoned with."

That's a pretty confident statement, but Merrick backs it up with facts. She says the returning upperclassmen and the up-and-comers from the junior varsity team are solid. Kenlee Perryman, a sophomore, may be the best of the lot. She has improved dramatically over the past 12 months and her jump serve is getting better by the day.

Madison Champion will join Perryman in the middle of the floor and Paige Gilbert will be the team's floor general, manning the backside.

The coach also thinks Brandy Book will thrive as the team's new setter. That's where graduation took its heaviest toll, but Merrick is confident in the sophomore's abilities and the backup setter is coming on strong, too. That's freshman Kyron Hicks.

Other varsity players are Emily Hall, Kaitlyn Hicks, Alyssa West and Sage Winterheimer. All will be part of the regular rotation. Merrick said the talent across the board on the varsity team is good.

"We are really excited for the season to get started. We have a good group of girls with good skills and a great attitude," the coach said.

Merrick said good communication on the floor is key to the team's success this year. She also hopes the strong, positive attitude prevails even when times get tough.

"We can't let one mistake get us down. We have to let those things go," she said.

Golf team is full of young, talented players

Rocket Linksters

STAFF REPORT

Senior Will Tolley has the pole position on the Rocket golf team, but he better keep one eye on the rearview mirror.

A host of young golfers are honing their skills and a few of them may have a chance to challenge for the No. 1 spot on the team before season's end – if not sooner.

Eighth-graders Sam Greenwell, Tate Roberts and Braxton Winders are middle schoolers with great promise. Greenwell's game has noticeably improved over the summer and he is nipping at the heels of Tolley right now for the squad's No. 1 spot, says third-year coach Vicki Hatfield.

Junior Logan Belt will also figure prominently in the top five Rocket golfers this season and there is a good bit of depth on this fall's boys' roster.

Lauren Gilchrist is perhaps the most notable golfer on the squad. Not because she's the only female, but because she's a two-time Class A State Tournament qualifier and is coming off a strong summer youth golf series.

The boys' team has a handful of other young boys who will be working to crack a top five spot. They are sophomores John Duvall and Matt Lynn, freshman Skyler James and eighth-grader Landon Crider.

Expectations high for soccer, says new coach

STAFF REPORT

Coch Summer Riley has high expectations for her first season on the sidelines at the Lady Rocket soccer field. The first-year coach inherited several experienced varsity players from last year's first ever Fifth District Championship team and added a few newcomers to the high school soccer scene. People may remember Riley, the former Summer Courtney, as a member of the 2011 Lady Rocket basketball team which earned the school's first trip to the State Sweet 16.

Riley has been pleased with the team's work ethic amid extreme heat in the summer's pre-season practices. The team participated in a two-day camp at Murray State University in July where it began developing offensive and defensive schemes.

Forward Alexis Tabor is the senior leader on the team and looked good in the club's 5-2 scrimmage win over Union and 9-0 season opener Monday over Dawson Springs. Her speed and athleticism makes Tabor one of Riley's best scorers. Veteran center midfielder Ashley Wheeler and newcomer Francesca Pierce will also be big scorers. Pierce, who had seven goals in the season's first match, brings incredible speed to the field.

"We are a physical team and we are successful when creating movement in the field," the coach said. "We do need to improve on reacting quickly and approaching players to play defense, but we are growing as individual players and most importantly as a team."

Senior Emily Tinsley is another veteran who will be called upon for her defensive specialty at as center of the Lady Rocket defense. Junior Bailey Barnes will be the last line of defense at keeper, where she played a big role on last year's District Championship team. She had a shutout and four saves Monday.

Riley is largely responsible for attracting four longtime basketball players back to the soccer scene. Pierce, Meredith Evans, Kiana Nesbitt and Shelby Summers played soccer in youth leagues but hadn't stepped on the field in several seasons.

"Our girls are hard workers and play with a lot of heart, which means more to me than any skill ever would," Riley said. "I am extremely proud of the work our team has put in during the past few weeks of practices."

Pierce leads soccer girls to opening win

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County's soccer season got off to a great start Monday with a 9-0 home-opening shutout over Dawson Springs. Senior first-year player Francesca Pierce scored seven goals in the game and sophomore Ashley Wheeler had six assists. Wheeler's assists is a school record and Pierce's scoring was good for the second-best performance ever. Nine is the record for a single game held by Melissa Kirk.

Alexis Tabor and Wheeler also scored goals in Monday's shutout. Emily Tinsley, Shelby Summers and Tabor also had assists.

Goalie Bailey Barnes had 4 saves and a complete game shutout.

Gilchrist strong to open golf season

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County High School golfer Lauren Gilchrist finished fourth with a 93 at the Henderson County Invitational and 11th with an 88 at the Barren River Invitational to start the high school golf season off week before last. She was also 24th last week with an 88 in the Warren County Invitational at the Kenny Perry Country Creek Golf Course. Just an eighth-grader, Gilchrist is the only female on the CCHS golf team.

NEWS BRIEFS

PSC OK’s KU plan to handle EPA regs

Kentucky Utilities Co. and Louisville Gas & Electric Co. received approval last week from the Kentucky Public Service Commission to cap and close the utilities' remaining coal ash ponds. And the ruling will soften the initial blow to KU customers who will shoulder the burden for the utility to meet new federal environmental regulations.

The environmental compliance plans approved Aug. 8 include elimination of all coal combustion waste storage ponds at the utilities' power plants and improvements that will further reduce air emissions from coal-fired power plants to meet environmental regulations, including the EPA's Coal Combustion Residuals rule that became effective late last year.

The new regulations will cost KU and LG&E an estimated $678 million and $316 million, respectively. To pay its portion, KU's 506,000 customers in Marion, southern Crittenden County and 76 other Kentucky counties will begin paying an added environmental surcharge. The cost to the average customer – 1,146 kilowatt-hours of electricity – will amount to about 30 cents per month for 2016, a reduction of $1.96 from the original filing. However, that will increase to $3.28 in 2023.

Customers will see a change in their Environmental Cost Recovery line item on bills issued after Aug. 31.

Salem to soon be down to one bank

Salem residents will soon have only one bank in town.

Regions Bank in downtown Salem will be closing Oct. 28 due to a number of factors, according to Jeremy D. King, a spokesman with corporate communications at the banking chain's Birmingham, Ala., headquarters. He said as a normal course of business, Regions reviews the effectiveness of all its locations, businesses and policies so resources may be used as efficiently as possible.

"A careful review of our branch network identified some opportunities to consolidate," King said in an email to The Crittenden Press. "Decisions to consolidate branches are based on several factors, including customers traffic, volume, profitability and more."

Calvert City and one of two Mayfield branches will also be closing Oct. 28. All three locations set for closure are no longer listed on Regions' website.

"Letters were issued to customers July 22 to inform them of the changes and provide information such as logistics regarding safe deposit boxes and other pertinent details," King said. "Also, our associates are available to work with customers one-on-one to address their individual needs and questions."

After the final Friday in October, the lone bank in north Livingston County will be Farmers Bank & Trust Co.'s Salem branch. However, Regions customers will be able to continue banking at other Regions locations in Paducah and Mayfield, as well as through online and mobile options.

Local GOP numbers experience plateau

Following the election of an unpopular President in 2008, the number of Democrats in the Crittenden County began to fall as GOP numbers grew. That led to the eventual flip in party majority to favor Republicans, and that trend since Barack Obama took office has steadily continued ... until now.

Now, on the heels of the respective party nominations of two presidential candidates even more unpopular than Obama, both camps appear to be losing numbers in Crittenden County. For the first time in several years, the number of Republicans in the county has fallen from the previous number reported in The Crittenden Press.

In July, the GOP numbered 3,255 in strength locally, according to the Kentucky Secretary of State's office, but the number fell – albeit by only four – in August to 3,251. Democrat numbers continued to fall over the last month, by 10 to 2,911. Those declines appear to have been dispersed among the ranks of alternative parties, including Independents and the designation of "Other," which number a combined 509.

Faith in action

Every summer for the last several years, the congregation at Marion Baptist Church takes a Sunday off from regular services to collectively put into practice the tenets of their worship the previous 51 Sunday mornings. The moniker for the day sums up their mission – Faith in Action. On Aug. 7, some members like James Driver (left), Audi Maraman (center) and Linda Schumann left the comfort of the sanctuary for the summer swelter to help a local resident clean up around their house. Meantime, others with the church handed out school supplies and food, manned a free yard sale or babysat while parents attended Community Christmas classes or shopped the sale. Children participated by making care packages for first responders and carrying out groceries at Conrad's Food Store. Marion Baptist has participated in Faith in Action since 2009.

Across the state, voter registration numbers are growing thanks in part to the Commonwealth's new online registration portal, GoVoteKy.com. Since the website was launched in March, 36,000 Kentucky voters have either registered or updated their registration.

While state GOP numbers continue to outpace that of Democrats, the President's party still maintains a majority of 51.8 percent of voters. Republicans account for 40.2

percent with the balance sprinkled among other parties and the "Other" label.

Longtime engine repair shop closing

After 32 years in business, Ray's Small Engines is shutting its doors. At least for now.

Ray Mast says he'd like to do some traveling and visiting with his grandchildren in New York. At 70, he says life and the business have been good to him, but he's wanting to slow down a bit.

Mast's son-in-law, Paul Hertlizer who works at the shop, is considering his options.

The business is for sale, Mast said, and if things don't work out like planned he might even piddle around a bit doing some shade-tree work for people.

Mast moved to the Amish country on Ky. 365 North from Delaware and opened the business here after having a similar operation up North.

He has been a longtime Husqvarna dealer, too.

Sales and service work have been robust for years as he's kept saws, mowers and more going for customers. Now, he's looking forward to a bit of down time.
