Snowed Out !

This week's snowfall dumped an initial 3-5 inches on Crittenden County. The ruler at right shows an accumulated 3 inches in Marion. It was the third significant winter storm of the season. School was cancelled Tuesday and Wednesday in Crittenden County. Both days will have to be made up, probably by going to school on previously scheduled teacher planning days.

Spring fire season means no burning

Kentucky law designates Feb. 15 through April 30 as spring forest fire hazard season. During this time, it is illegal to burn anything within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland between the daylight hours of 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. The law is intended to prevent forest fires by allowing outdoor burning only during the time when conditions are less likely to cause a wildfire to spread. While it is not illegal to burn after 6 p.m., forestry officials say that now is not a good time to do any burning due to the fallen trees and limbs from recent storms.

To dip or squeeze?

Hienze Ketchup has announced what it calls a "a true packaging breakthrough." The Heinz Dip & Squeeze dual-function package will start showing up at stores and restaurants, giving ketchup lovers two ways to get their fix: either peel back the lid for dipping, or tear off the tip to squeeze onto favorite foods. The new package holds three times as much Heinz Ketchup as the traditional squeeze packet, the company said.

Chamber at school

Crittenden County School District will host the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce's quarterly luncheon, and pick up the tab. Chamber members should have received an invitation to the Look and Learn Lunch and Tour, which will be held at noon Friday, Feb. 19 at Rocket Arena. The event will include a quick lunch provided by the school system then a tour of the three county schools. Chamber members who missed their invitation should call 965-3525 to RSVP by this Friday.

Upcoming meetings

✓ Crittenden Fiscal Court's February meeting has been changed to 9 a.m., Thursday, Feb. 18.

ON THE WEB News Blog Poll

This week's poll on The Press' Breaking News Blog asked readers: "What will you give your sweetheart for Valentine's Day?" Here is what 98 respondents said:

12 indicted for drug trafficking

Meth making targeted

STAFF REPORT

Local authorities and the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force conducted a roundup last week of several suspected drug dealers.

After more than 12 months of investigation, arrest warrants were served on 15 individuals which authorities say accounted for a portion of the county's homemade methamphetamine problem.

"Meth is making a comeback," said Det. Robbie Kirk of the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force. "They've figured out ways around the anhydrous ammonia and pseudoephedrine laws."

Crittenden County Sheriff's Department worked closely with the drug task force in making undercover buys and gathering evidence against the suspects since January of 2009. Marion Police Department was also involved in serving warrants last week.

Early last week, authorities were completing their investigation against more than a dozen believed drug traffickers when they received a tip that one had just taken possession of a large quantity of drugs. Kirk and Rushing responded immediately by securing a search warrant for the home of 19-year-old David Bradford on Eagle Mine Road just off U.S. 60 West near Salem.

At the residence, a small travel trailer, the officers found

Crittenden County Sheriff's Deputy Greg Rushing inventories items confiscated on a drug raid at the home of 19-year-old David Bradford last week while Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force Det. Robbie Kirk logs the items into his records.

Arrest Log

- Catherine Nesbitt, 61, second-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (codeine), Class D felony.
- Gracie Nesbitt, 53, second-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (codeine), Class D felony.
- Sammy Gipson, 46, two counts of first-degree complicity to trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), Class C felony.
- Kevin Gipson, 38, five counts of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), Class C felony; and second-degree persistent felony offender.
- Rodney Gipson, 20, three counts of complicity to trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of a school, Class D felony; and second-degree persistent felony offender.
- Samantha Jones, 19, two counts of complicity to trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of a school, Class D felony.
- Josh Jones, 21, trafficking in a controlled substance within 1,000 yards of a school, Class D felony.
- David Bradford, 19, three counts of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), Class C felony.
- Kyle Tercero, 30, first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (methadone), Class C felony.
- Sara Wells, 69, second-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (codeine), Class D felony.
- Jason Driver, 19, first-degree complicity to trafficking in a controlled substance (methamphetamine), Class C felony.
- Timothy G. Adams, 25, of Marion is still at large. Officers have criminal warrants against him.

Grand jury indicts seven on variety of charges

STAFF REPORT

A Crittenden County Grand Jury indicted seven individuals last week during its regular bimonthly court meeting. Indictments do not reflect innocence or guilty, it simply means the grand jury found enough evidence to continue prosecuting each case as a felony in Crittenden Circuit Court.

Indicted were:

•Steven Cooper, 51, of Salem on 12 counts of second-degree forgery; 11 counts of theft by deception (over $500); and one count of theft by deception (under $500). According to court records, Cooper is charged with falsifying time card and mileage records while he was employed as a truck driver at Martin Tire, Inc., of Marion.

•Garrett E. Hunter Jr., 44, of Marion was indicted on a charge of DUI on a suspended license; fourth-offense DUI; possession of open alcoholic beverage container in a motor vehicle; and first-degree persistent felony offender. According to court records, Trooper Matt Foster observed Hunter pulling into a driveway off Ky. 297 on Jan. 7. Upon checking the driver, the officer found an open Keystone Light beer can in the vehicle, his report said.

•Bradley McKinney, 36, of Blackburn Street in Marion was indicted on three counts of obtaining a controlled substance by fraud, also known as doctor shopping. Court records indicated that McKinney received prescriptions from various doctors in Crittenden County and elsewhere in Kentucky in 2008 and 2009. The charges were brought by Det. Robbie Kirk of the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force.

•Ken Pryor, 45, of Marion was indicted on a charge of theft by deception (under $10,000) for allegedly accepting payment of $3,000 for replacing an engine in a vehicle owned by the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force. Court records allege that Pryor actually did only minor mechanic work to the engine, defrauding the task force of about $2,500.

•Christy S. Robertson, 29, of Burna was indicted on a charge of

911 personnel say trust the phone call

STAFF REPORT

Trust 911. That's the battle cry coming out of the Crittenden Ambulance Service and Central Dispatching at Marion Police Department.

Officials say they are beginning to see an alarming number of emergency phone calls dialed into other agencies instead of the Emergency 911 Center. While police, fire and ambulance calls will be responded to in a timely fashion when dialed directly into those departments, two emergency professionals in Marion say that's not the best way to get help fast.

"We want people to trust 911," said Crittenden Ambulance Director James Ivy. "When you call 911, you get trained, local dispatchers who have the tools in front of them to provide the best response."

Ivy and Emergency 911 Communications Director Jayde Agent say they are seeing a greater frequency of calls directly to the ambulance service at the hospital.

"You will get a faster response by calling 911," Ivy said.

There are times when ambulance personnel are not in their office therefore calls are transferred automatically to the hospital switchboard. While help will arrive from that scenario, Agent says it's not faster. In fact, it's routinely a bit slower.

For January, Crittenden Ambulance Service's average response time from calls received into 911 until a crew arrived to the patient was seven minutes and nine seconds. That's a pretty good response time, Ivy said, considering the size of the county and that the average response time nationally is eight minutes.

More than 100 people attended Saturday's Fohs Hall Fundraising Ball, which netted more than $8,000. The event included ballroom dancing, a meal catered by Conger's Country Kitchen and a fundraising auction. At left, master of ceremonies and Fohs Hall Inc., President Alan Stout displays a promotional copy of Ethel Tucker's newest cookbook, "Tea Time of Life," which will be published this spring. # Legislator supports no new taxes this session

I've written much about the difficult budget situation facing the legislature as we craft a new biennial plan to take effect July 1. I don't intend to cover the same ground again, but it's worth noting that the House has yet to finish its version of the budget – though we're getting close as session time speeds on. Maybe it's an age thing, as I had another birthday Saturday, or I'm personally busier, but time has never seemed to fly like this session's past six weeks.

What I do want to say about the budget, particularly in light of media interest and comments I've received from folks back home, is that I'm very confident there will be no tax increases of any kind. I know I won't support any increases and I think a substantial majority of my colleagues feel the same way.

Talk of tax modernization/reform or whatever one calls it is always present at budget time as are various individual bills touting different approaches to the subject. Some form of revenue neutral tax reform may be seriously considered some time, but I don't believe that time is now. For now, we will create a workable plan under current revenue and spending constraints. It will be hard but doable and we will look for ways to let certain state functions move forward despite dwindling state dollars.

For example, two bills that would give public colleges and universities freedom to proceed with capital construction projects without relying on the state's revenues passed the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee last week. Should House Bill 39 be enacted, they could move forward with capital projects without prior legislative approval if 100 percent of the projects' actual cost is funded with restricted, federal or private funds. Under HB 42, capital projects at public colleges and universities could be funded with the institution's agency bonds without adding to the state's debt.

As we approach the session's mid-point, bills are moving out of the House with increasing frequency, including two bills I sponsored which passed unanimously last week and have been sent to the Senate.

One was HB 145, which is what we call a "clean-up" bill for previous legislation. You may remember, as chair of the House State Government Committee, I sponsored HB 1, enacted during the 2008 Special Session. It was an omnibus bill overhauling the state's retirement plan for new employees. As is often the case, complicated legislation results in some unintended consequences that need "cleaning up" with follow up legislation. In this case, HB 145 clarifies such issues as: state employees who left the system because of a disability returning without penalty if the disability disappears; certain peace officers having their certification extended from 60 to 90 days between unemployment; and consecutive 60 months of employment fulfilling the same requirement as five consecutive fiscal years.

The other bill, HB 146, would require two of the governor's three appointees to the state retirement board have extensive investment experience.

Among other House legislation of interest last week was the creation of an In God We Trust license plate, which is becoming increasingly popular in other states. Vehicle owners could choose this rather than the standard-issue plate, at no additional cost.

On Thursday, we voted in favor of another transportation-related bill that has also proven popular in other states. This one would make it illegal for anyone to text while driving and also bars drivers under 18 from using the cell phone altogether – both would apply only when the vehicle is in motion.

Staying with transportation as a theme, last week advocates for those with disabilities rallied in the Capitol in support of state-funded programs important to them, and to promote a Donate Life license plate to raise awareness for organ donation. Before the plate can be produced, at least 900 people have to make a request to the Transportation Cabinet and pay a $25 fee. If you are interested, an application can be found online at www.kyorgandonor.org. It's estimated that more than 104,000 Americans are waiting for an organ. I encourage those of you interested in this to visit the website to learn more.

Finally, and still transportation related, we made it easier for good bus drivers to keep jobs by passing HB 14, which allows school officials – on a case-by-case basis – to waive state law requirements that school bus drivers have a high school diploma or GED. It allows retention of competent drivers who have gone through the rigors of earning a commercial driver's license but didn't finish high school.

Laws would require spending to be posted on 'Net

There are 138 legislators in the Kentucky General Assembly, and we all have different ideas as to how we can reduce the vast budget deficit staring us in the face. We can all agree, though, that eliminating government waste and inefficiency is the surest way to know the people's work is being conducted properly. Tax dollars are too precious to fritter away when so many Kentuckians depend on government to do its job the right way. Last week, our focus was on accountability, transparency and efficiency, with an eye on reducing government costs not just this year, but for the long haul.

Several government offices already put their spending information online, allowing Kentuckians to see what their officials are spending and where they are spending it. It is a simple but effective tool to help people understand where their tax dollars are going. Perhaps more importantly, it is also a significant curb on those who would otherwise waste taxpayers' money. Simply knowing that expenses will be placed online for all citizens to see will cause many employees to be more careful with the state's checkbook.

Senate Bill 40 would take the innovations of these state offices and make it law, requiring all three branches of government, including the General Assembly and its staff, to put spending online in a searchable database, making it easy for taxpayers to see where the money is going. The records would be updated monthly at the very least, and anything routed through the state's electronic accounting system would be updated weekly. The database would even contain links to the actual documents if they were available, so that people could understand what is really happening, instead of a simple one-sentence description that does not tell the whole story.

Senate Bill 87, meanwhile, takes that transparency and accountability one-step further. We have all read the stories of the excessive spending by the Kentucky League of Cities (KLC) and the Kentucky Association of Counties (KACO), both of which are funded by our local governments through dues and insurance premiums. SB 87 puts these two groups under the same reporting requirements as we are seeking for state government – to help ensure that these incidents do not happen in the future. SB 87 also clarifies that because they are funded indirectly through tax dollars, KLC and KACO are subject to open records and open meetings laws.

When the events at these two groups first came to light, the state Auditor of Public Accounts conducted a thorough review of their operations and issued a report with several recommendations. We have incorporated some of the auditor's suggestions into the bill to make sure that they are followed. Under SB 87, the boards of both organizations would have to develop formal written policies on how money is spent and how employees are compensated. They would also have to develop ethics policies so that it would be clear to staff what the guidelines are for their actions.

Also last week, we endorsed legislation that will make transactions transparent to law enforcement so they can cut down on theft. Current law mandates that pawnbrokers take down information on those who pawn items at their shops. SB 123 mandates that they open up that database to the Kentucky State Police. Three-fourths of all items stolen from Kentuckians annually is lost forever nearly $100 million they will never get back. Allowing KSP to see what items are being pawned and who brought them in can be a valuable lead when it matches up with something reported stolen.

As we enter our second month, even more bills will get our attention. That is why it is more important than ever for lawmakers to stay in close touch with the people we serve to report on our work and ask for feedback.

*State Sen. Dorsey Ridley has served in the senate since 2004 after an eight-year tenure in the House. He represents Henderson, Webster, Union, Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties. # Where will your bones spend eternity? Lots aren't too costly

After a recent article in The Press on an expansion project at Maplevue Cemetery, the wife came home talking about buying burial plots.

Long as I've been able to account for such thoughts, these bones have been inclined to rest along with their forebearers on the shore of Kentucky Lake just south of the mouth of the Big Sandy River. Although Crittenden is now home and a place I truly adore and love, there will come a time to take leave of her. Eternity is a long time – at least the way it's characterized by our human minds and bodies. Einstein's General Theory of Relativity, if I am not mistaken, held that space time travel on a curved line takes less time than going from point A to point B on a straight time line in a static position.

That's all fairly confusing to simple folks like myself, but the bottom line is that if my carcass is to be planted in the ground and my soul cast into the immortal firmament, then what does it matter. The bones are left behind, right?

What's more important is planning ahead and that's what my wife was talking about when she started discussing real estate in the cemetery. The older I get, the more mortal I feel. Buying a gravesite seems like a distant, yet sensible thing to do at 45. With a two-year-old toddler still wetting her pants, such prearranging probably makes more sense at my house than yours. After all, my offspring might not be old enough to make logical sense of eternal questions by the time these bones are ready for a box.

A control freak I am indeed, so why leave such pressing charges for others to foul up? Buying a burial plot, making prearrangements at a funeral home, signing a living will and certifying an advanced directive are all responsible and prudent actions for anyone pushing the half century mark.

Started researching such things in the past few days and found several surprising aspects to the death gig. For starters, it's generally pretty pricey to bite the dust, but buying the dirt in which to rest your remains is genuinely inexpensive.

For instance, it costs about $300 to buy an eternal resting place in the city cemetery. That's a great value when you consider a buddy of mine just bought a ticket off the Internet for $475 to Saturday's UT-UK game. His heaven will last less than two hours and the spot is much smaller.

This idea of prearranging my funeral sounds like a good idea, too. You can pay for it now at today's prices and if later on you decide you want your money back, that's perfectly acceptable. The average funeral costs about $7,000, but there are no-frill options that make the conversion to ashes more rapid, if you know what I mean.

Learned that the payment you make on a prearrangement doesn't really go to the funeral home either. It goes into a third-party trust, generally as a certificate of deposit. If you change your mind and need the money, or if you move to New Orleans, you can transfer the cash. If the funeral director ends up using it to dress you for the final march, then they get how ever much your party costs. Your estate gets the balance.

Living wills and advanced directives are great tools as well. In my case, I hope the wife doesn't use either as a weapon. Mine gives doctors my personal seal of approval to pull the plug so to speak on life support if there is no chance of me making it back to normal. Don't misunderstand – hear me family! – my directive is meant to prevent man-made mechanical devices from keeping my body going after my mind is history. That's it, and I don't want anybody looking for the switch too soon.

Get a will. It keeps the children from hating one another later. Mine all going to be chapped by how little they find at the end of my rainbow. By then it will be too late for back rubs, foot massages and chocolate bribes. Having a postmortem plan for your stuff is a must.

In all seriousness, there's nothing delightful about planning for our demise, but it sure makes a whole lot of sense to do it while we can still make sense of things.

To the Editor

Voter says potholes should be on agenda

To the Editor:

Well, here we are once again, beginning the election promises and goals season.

I have one simple task that should not be a major struggle. It deals with county roads. Yes, I know that there may be other demanding topics that might help the new candidates who are vying for a spot as magistrate to gain an upperhand with voters. However, I believe that since we are in the year 2010, county roads should not be something that we have to constantly call our magistrate and complain about.

I'm not saying that the current magistrate in our area is not doing the job they are given. We have lived in our home for a little over a year, and the potholes on our road have been patched – if that is what you call it – at least five or six times. A few days after patching is done, the holes are already back in the same shape as before. We were told that the mixture ordered for these holes was wrong and that is why it wasn't working.

Seriously, is there not a system to fix these holes in a better way that would be more efficient instead of having the road department employees spending time on the same road over and over again?

Maybe I am asking too much. Driving down a road without fear of blowing a tire is perhaps a luxury that we may never get. I have already been denied the luxury of county water because they say they just don't have the funds. I have dealt with that even though I think it is ridiculous. We should not have to overlook the roads and the shape they are in.

There you go, I got on my high horse and spoke. I apologize if I stepped on any toes about this situation, but I ask you to take a drive down W.E. Newcom Road and then tell me it isn't a big deal.

Resident disgusted with lack of high-speed connection

To the Editor:

It seems like the rural part of our county is severely lacking in high-speed Internet connection.

The telephone, cable and wireless companies somehow feel there is no need to provide their services throughout the county.

Almost all of the information available on the Internet nowadays is made for the faster linkups, leaving us rural people out of luck because our dial-up connections are too slow.

Our children have to tie up the land lines for hours to get information for their homework. Businesses in the county that need to get their information quickly and efficiently have to pay dearly for satellite hookups. Bandwidth restrictions can slow their communications down to dial-up speed.

We personally contacted AT&T

which contacted BellSouth as to when some form of high-speed service would be available in the county. They informed us that there are no plans for now or in the immediate future to provide the county with any form of high-speed Internet access.

I'm not sure if it's economically feasibly to provide this service to the county, but they sure don't mind selling their other phone services to the rural population.

Isn't it about time the rest of our county is brought into the 21st century? It won't be long until dial-up will be history as far as the Internet because all of it will be for high-speed connections only. We seem to be discriminated against because we live over three miles out in the county.

If there is a service out there that is not high cost for us, we sure would like to know about it.

The staff and management at Myers Funeral Home includes (from left) Bill Myers, Joe Myers, Barbara Myers and Frank Blackburn. The funeral home was named Business of the Month by the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce.

Funeral home is selected Chamber's monthly business

Myers Funeral Home in Marion has been chosen as the February Business of the Month by the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce.

The business is owned by the Myers family. Joe and Barbara Myers started the funeral home about four years ago. They have lived in Marion for 15 years, moving here from Butler County after buying the WMJL Radio Station in 1995.

Their son Bill and Frank Blackburn are also employed at the funeral home.

The Myers owned and operated a funeral home and cemetery in Morgantown for almost 20 years.

Myers Funeral Home offers a full line of funeral products, including funerals, pre-arranged funerals, burial, coffins, concrete and steel outer burial containers and more. They also provide pet burial items and cremations.

Joe Myers is the county coroner and his wife is a member of the Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors.

The Myers pride themselves on providing a home-like atmosphere at their funeral parlor.

Mr. Dempsey hangs up garbage work

James Dempsey has hung up his keys to the Chevrolet pickup that he used to haul trash throughout the county.

Declining health prompted Dempsey to put the brakes on a 20-year-old trash collection business. He is almost 90 years old and has been a fixture in the county for many years.

Dempsey was hospitalized for nearly three weeks in late January, but is home now, regaining his strength. His wife, Gertie, said Mr. Dempsey has chosen to retire.

For two decades, Dempsey could be seen on the side of many county roads re-arranging his load so as to make room for the next customer's refuse. Even up until last fall, at 89, Dempsey made his weekly route without assistance.

Dempsey began hauling trash in Crittenden County after retiring from the railroad.

Possum Wrangling on Historic Stage

Crittenden County musicians Steve Crider, Tom Hawthorne and Larry Starr, who form a bluegrass band, recently traveled to Rosine, Ky., where they were guests of friend and bluegrass enthusiast Bro. Frank McCallum at the Rosine Barn Jamboree. As they stepped onto the stage of that old drafty barn, they felt the history of bluegrass music. On that very stage, the legendary Bill Monroe played his history-making music. The Marion group, known as The Possum Wranglers, played and sang their special Kentucky-born music. "As a friend who loves their music, I was very happy to say I've known those boys for a while," said McCallum, a former Crittenden County minister. The group was part of Bro. McCallum's ministry at Sugar Grove Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Crittenden County. "When we had monthly men's fellowship, these guys would come and make our evening together complete by supplying the beautiful, pristine harmony of their voices with great instrumental work from their acoustic instruments," added McCallum.

Durfey completes Basic Airborne

Sgt. Ronald Durfey of Marion recently completed a Basic Airborne Training course. Graduation ceremonies were last weekend for the three-week course at Fort Benning, Ga. Durfey and other soldiers-were instructed in proper parachuting and landing from an airplane that flew at elevations of 1,200 feet and higher.

Sgt. Durfey, 25, completed the course with 436 other soldiers. The soldiers were required in the final week to complete five jumps from the aircraft in the daytime and at night, some with full military gear and weapons.

Durfey has been in the military either active duty or in the National Guard since 2004. He has served one tour in Iraq.

Area News Briefs

Automated calls coming from school

Many homes received automated phone calls last week from the Crittenden County School District. The call served two purposes. The school system was alerting parents and guardians of students about its new communication system that will help provide timely, important information to families through direct phone calls. Last week's call was also a test of that system.

Al Starnes, director of pupil services, said the calling system will allow the district to contact families with a variety of information such as when school is cancelled, delayed or letting out early due to weather or other reasons. It can also be used for many other occasions, he said.

The system is designed to call the primary phone number provided by parents or guardians when students enrolled in school. If the primary contact number needs to be changed, a family should contact the school that the child attends.

Starnes said the automated calling system is being used to alert families about a change in the school calendar. Students will go to school on Presidents Day, Monday, to make up for one of the days missed because of snow.

Spring Break dates

An article is last week's Press about the remaining school calendar for 2010 included some incorrect information. The article said Spring Break would be in March. In fact, the actual dates are April 5-9.

Marion PD releases activities report for Month of January

Marion Police Department has released its activities report for the Month of January. Officers patrolled 3,371 miles during the month, investigated 19 criminal complaints and 10 domestic complaints. Police made four felony arrests and 10 misdemeanor arrests. Two drivers were arrested for DUI and one criminal summons was issued.

Patrolmen wrote 28 traffic citations, 30 traffic warnings and one parking ticket. They investigated three traffic accidents, checked 83 security alarms and responded to 292 calls for service or complaints.

Accidental shooting hurts woman's arm

Marion Police investigated the incident and ruled it accidental. Angel Clark, who was hired for domestic services at a home on North Weldon Street, pulled the weapon from behind a bed and it discharged accidentally, striking her between the elbow and wrist.

Clark was taken to Crittenden Hospital by private vehicle where she was initially treated for the gunshot wound.

Brown endorses Grayson campaign

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Fred Brown and 26 other county judge-executives announced Friday that they are endorsing Secretary of State Trey Grayson in his primary for U.S. Senate.

Larry Whitaker of McLean County and Stanley Humphries of Trigg County were the only others from far western Kentucky to endorse Grayson.

Former lawman faces misdemeanor charges

Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent has announced that his department served a summons on a former seasonal deputy last week. The criminal summons required Johnnie Ray Agent, 42, of Marion to appear in Crittenden District Court to answer to charges of possession of a controlled substance (painkillers).

Agent, who had previously worked as a deputy, was arraigned on the charges last Wednesday. There were two counts filed. Both are misdemeanors.

The sheriff said Agent has already started a self-imposed counseling and rehabilitation program. The defendant was injured last year and became dependent on painkillers, Sheriff Agent said.

Purse stolen from car at hospital

Someone stole a purse from an unlocked vehicle at Crittenden Hospital's parking lot a couple of weeks ago. Marion Police Department records indicate that Ed Davidson reported the theft a week after it happened. In the purse were jewelry and other items that belonged to his wife.

City of Marion gets $1 million for dam

It's now official. The City of Marion on Monday received receipt of a wire transfer of $1 million for its stake in the permitting of a new hydroelectric facility at Smithland Dam.

The Press reported last week about how Marion got in on the ground floor of the process to permit the dam for making electricity. It was by a quirk that Marion had anything to do with it. Nonetheless, it received a big cash settlement for its share of the rights to make power at Smithland. The money is in the bank awaiting the city council's decision on what to do with it.

Burglars take ATV; other items from cabin near town

A hunting cabin on the outskirts of Marion was hit by burglars late last week. Stolen from a cabin off Gregory Lane just west of town were a 2004 Honda 300 Rincon yellow four-wheeler, a .22 Jennings pistol, .22 Marlin rifle, spotting scope, night vision optics and camouflage clothing.

The items and cabin are owned by a set of brothers from Henderson, according to Crittenden County Sheriff's Department records. The items stolen were valued at $3,900. They are believed to have been taken sometime late Thursday or early Friday morning. Anyone with information is encouraged to call the sheriff's department at 965-3400.

Marion Baptist is pouring parking lot

The construction work between East Carlisle and East Depot streets is part of a project by Marion Baptist Church to pave the remainder of its parking lot.

The lot, although belonging to the church, is used often as a quasi-city parking lot.

The project will include a concrete surface, curbs and guttering.

Dale Kemper, chairman of the church trustees, said church events take priority otherwise the lot is for public use.

T&T Concrete of Marion is the contractor on the job.

High School reaching out to parents of struggling students

Crittenden County High School is reaching out to parents of students who are struggling academically in school.

The high school has set aside Tuesday evening to meet with parents of children for whom the school has identified as having grade issues. Parent Night is from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m., Tuesday at the high school.

"We have personally invited all parents of students whom we are concerned about current grades," said Lori Phillips, assistant principal. "When they receive a letter, parents are asked to call, email, or return the letter with their desired meeting times."

Parents who did not receive a letter, but are concerned about their student's progress, may request a parent and teacher meeting by calling 965-2248 or emailing kathy.harris@crittenden.kyschools.us. Available time slots for conferences are 3:30-5 p.m., 4:30-6 p.m., and 4:30-6 p.m.

"When parents let us know what time frame is best for them, we will arrange a specific meeting schedule with their student's teachers," said Phillips.

Some of the primary topics to be discussed that night include Caldwell County Vocational School, diploma tracks, required credits and elective course opportunities. Representatives from the vocational school will be on hand to share information about its programs.

From 3:30 to 5:30 p.m., the focus will be on Parent Teacher Conferences and Freshman 2010-11 Orientation/Scheduling.

"We also will be set up in the library until 6:30 for parents of next year's 10th, 11th and 12th grade students to get information about classes and programs," added Phillips.

Schools outline plans for improving local education

BY PAMELA STRINGER
PRESS STAFF REPORTER

Crittenden County Board of Education approved the high, middle and elementary schools' improvement plans during the January school board meeting.

Each principal outlined plans for his or her school during the meeting. Here is a summary of CCHS Principal Todd Merrick's report:

Within school culture, Merrick has three main goals – reduce achievement gaps through creating a more positive learning environment where students and staff are valued, improve school-wide student discipline and improve the transition for freshmen, especially those at-risk for failure.

To achieve the goals, Merrick plans to better communicate expectations to students and staff, recognize high achievement and mentor students, among other things.

Within the realm of academic achievement, Merrick proposed nine goals. The three main goals set are to meet No Child Left Behind targets in math, have all students demonstrate proficiency in reading by the end of 10th grade and have all 12th graders demonstrate proficiency in writing.

To meet these goals, rigorous – higher level of learning, not just more – instruction will be carefully planned, four to six-week regular assessments and the school-wide writing plan will be reviewed, revised, implemented and monitored, among other strategies.

Merrick also stresses how high expectations for attendance, behavior and grades are necessary in reaching the goals.

The middle school's major goal is to increase NCLB testing scores in reading and math.

CCMS Principal Teresa Marshall listed the following strategies and activities to increase test scores: three nine-week assessments with the questions analyzed by core content teams, display of testing data to be used in focused planning, students set own MAP goals in reading, math, language arts

Board elects officers

Crittenden County Board of Education recently re-elected its slate of officers. The list remains the same as last year. Board positions are:

Chris Cook – Chairperson
Eric LaRue – Vice-chairperson
Brent Highfil – Treasurer
Dr. Rachel Yarbrough – Secretary
Brandi Rogers – Board Attorney and science after fall testing, more communication with students about scores, proficient student work displayed in classrooms and hallways, implementation of student failure/intervention process to reduce grade retention and implement new sixth grade transition activities, among others.

The new sixth grade transition activities will include a program call "Hello CCMS," which will give incoming students the day in the life of a middle school student. Also, there will be a sixth grade parent orientation night.

CCES Principal Melissa Tabor proposed the following actions to better improve the elementary school: Linda Holliman, the CCES math and curriculum coach, will work with primary teachers to improve scores, eight-week common assessments will be given for the first three grading periods of the year in reading and math in all grades, common assessments in science and social studies will be given in fourth and fifth grade, technology will continue to be incorporated into daily math instruction, MAP results for all students will be displayed anonymously on data boards, a data folder will be kept and updated for each student and principals will monitor progress made by the free and reduced lunch students, among others.

utes and six seconds. "If an emergency is so severe that the caller is unable to speak, our Viper 911 system provides us with information such as the address of where the call is coming from and GPS coordinates of that location," said Agent. "That information is vital to any response."

Ivy said an ambulance service's ability to remain in contact with a 911 dispatcher while en route to the scene is invaluable because the dispatcher can continue providing information, such as pinpointing location and any changes in the patient or conditions at the response scene.

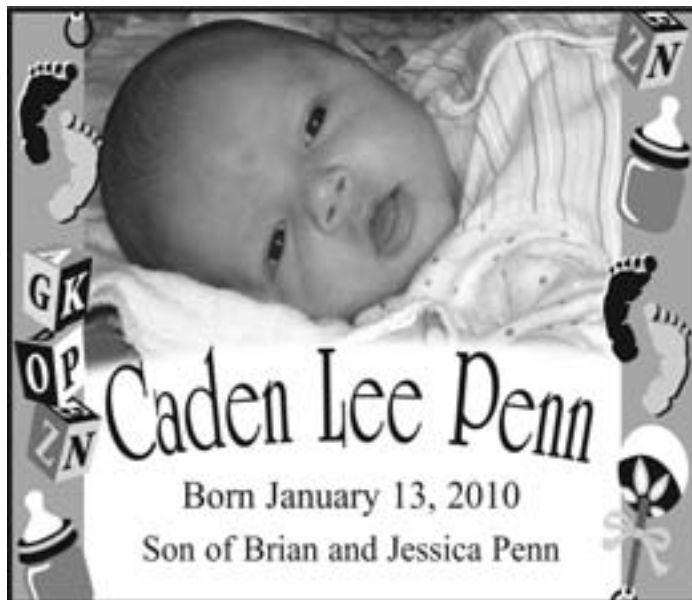

Agent and Ivy say Crittenden County's 911 service is as professional as those in much larger cities.

Ambulance calls appear to be the only real problem, they say. Fire and police calls to 911 seem to be coming at a normal rate.

Kentucky State Police spokesman Stu Recke says that land-line 911 calls no longer come to Madisonville's district dispatching center. He said citizens may contact state police directly, toll-free at 1-800-222-5555 or 270-676-3313.

Local 911 calls started being directed to Marion Central Dispatch Center in November. Agent said cellular 911 calls are currently being switched to where they too will go directly to Marion's center.

Lt. Col. Hollamon
 brings hometown
 experience to Iraq

The following article was written by an officer at Contingency Operating Base Speicher in Iraq. The main character in the article is Lt. Col. Jeff Hollamon of Marion. You can see a video of the program at The-Press.com

MAJ. JEFF ALLEN

TF MARNE PAO, USD-N

A common phrase among deployed soldiers is, "Every day is Groundhog Day," because most of their days are long and monotonous. However, on actual Groundhog Day, nothing was ordinary for soldiers and civilians at the Task Force Marne headquarters.

Lt. Col. Jeff Hollamon, the Red Team leader for Task Force Marne, had the privilege of heading up the Groundhog Day event. He had the task of putting together events to get the staff's mind off of work for a few minutes. In his hometown of Marion, the varmint digs holes all over the western Kentucky landscape. So, when he organized the Groundhog Day celebration for TF Marne, he kept his experiences of hometown in mind.

"We're celebrating the duality of groundhogs, the evil groundhog and the good groundhog," he said.

According to Lt. Col. Hollamon, in Pennsylvania, they celebrate groundhogs. In western Kentucky they don't like them at all.

To go against the Punxsutawney, Penn., tradition of celebrating groundhogs, Lt. Col. Hollamon showed TF Marne how folks in Kentucky deal with groundhogs.

He oversaw a police dog demonstration where soldiers and civilians volunteered to be attacked by military working dogs. Volunteers wore full protective gear for the purpose of training the dogs. Lt. Col. Hollamon had this demonstration to show TF Marne that one can use dogs to hunt groundhogs.

Another way he showed soldiers how his hometown deals with the varmint is having volunteers throw a softball into a barrel. He did this to show that they deal with gophers by putting dynamite into holes that the groundhogs dig and club them when they emerge from the ground. People who successfully threw a softball into the barrel received and Army Air Force Exchange Service gift certificate of $5.

Spec. Raoof Wali, with TF Marne out of Philadelphia and an automations specialist, took part in the festivities.

"It was pretty cool," he said. "It was a good time and a good holiday. I enjoyed showing my athletic skills."

Spec. Wali also took part in the working dog demonstration. He wanted to see if he could withstand the force of the dog and remain standing. Spec. Wali was taken down within seconds when the dog grabbed him.

"That didn't go too well," he said.

The holiday festivities ended with a cake cutting ceremony. One of the cakes featured groundhog Punxsutawney Phil while the other cake featured his wife, Stinky. According to tradition, if Punxsutawney Phil sees his shadow, there will be six more weeks of winter, but in Iraq, there will be six more weeks of sandstorms. Punxsutawney Phil did not see his shadow, so soldiers stationed in Iraq will have to contend with another six weeks of sandstorms.

Continued from page 1 an 18-year-old female, Jennifer Souder of North Carolina. Officers described her as Bradford's girlfriend. While questioning the teenage female, Det. Kirk said Bradford arrived at the trailer with two pit bull dogs. He and Souder were both taken into custody and the search warrant was executed. Kirk and Deputy Rushing found inside the residence processed marijuana in a shoe box with three handguns, a quantity of crack cocaine, $240 in cash, drug paraphernalia and items they said are commonly used in the manufacture of methamphetamine such as Coleman Fuel, batteries, Mason jars, Drano, coffee filters, Liquid Fire and tubing. Several containers were seized which officers said contained residue from cooking meth.

Bradford was charged with possession of a first-degree controlled substance (crack cocaine), trafficking in marijuana less than eight ounces, conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamine (firearm enhanced) and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Souder was charged with trafficking in marijuana less than eight ounces, conspiracy to manufacture methamphetamine (firearm enhanced) and possession of drug paraphernalia.

As a result of those arrests and others associated with the year-long undercover investigation, Kirk said three believed meth-making labs have been removed from the county. He said manufacturers of methamphetamine have become greatly resourceful in finding ways to continue making the drug even though laws are becoming more restrictive in regard to obtaining ingredients. For instance, cold medicines that include the active ingredient pseudoephedrine are highly regulated and even tracked daily. Kirk says he gets official reports every day about people who attempt to buy more than their allotted share of over-the-counter pseudoephedrine cold medicines.

Meth manufacturers are paying cronies to buy cold medicines that contain the nasal or sinus decongestant pseudoephedrine. Packs of 36 tablets cost between $8 and $18 depending on the product. Kirk said meth makers are paying $50 for a pack of cold medicine because it's such an integral part of the concoction.

Methamphetamine users say that it increases alertness and energy, and in high doses, can induce euphoria, enhance self-esteem and even increase sexual pleasure.

Kirk said meth cooks have also found ways to make their own anhydrous ammonia, which is needed in the manufacturing process. Through a cocktail of fertilizer, Red Devil lye and sulfuric acid, meth makers are vaporizing the chemicals then cooling down the gas to make a liquid that can be stored and used to manufacture methamphetamine.

Ian and Chloe McKenzie built their own igloo - with a little help from dad - while off from school early this week due to the latest snowstorm. The two are children of Becky and Daniel McKenzie of the Sugar Grove area of Crittenden County.

Agriculture News & Notes

Biomass encouraged through new federal program

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has issued a proposed rule for the new Biomass Crop Assistance Program (BCAP) that intends to spur the expansion of dedicated non-food crops for renewable energy and biofuel production. A public comment period will continue for 60 days after the rule is published in the Federal Register. Authorized in the Food, Conservation, and Energy Act of 2008, BCAP is designed to ensure that a sufficiently large base of new, non-food, non-feed biomass crops is established in anticipation of future demand for renewable energy consumption. BCAP is intended to reduce the financial risk for farmers, ranchers and forest landowners by providing incentive payments to those who invest in the production, harvest, storage and transportation of new first-generation energy crops that displace hydrocarbon-based materials now used for heat, power and vehicle fuel. Early program beneficiaries to date include a Vermont school that will replace 100 percent of its fossil fuel consumption with biomass, a start-up pellet company that uses locally-grown agriculture residues from Iowa farms and a rural electric cooperative that displaces fossil fuels with woodchips to generate low-cost electricity in northeastern Georgia.

KY roadside market enrollment ends next week

Enrollment for the 2010 Certified Roadside Farm Market program ends February 15. Markets certified through this program are identified by the cornucopia logo and are listed in the Certified Roadside Farm Market Directory. The program provides collective advertising, promotional items, education tour opportunities, and other marketing benefits with the intent to increase the net farm income of member markets. Applications for membership are available on the Kentucky Farm Bureau web site (kyfb.com/roadside) or by calling or e-mailing to the information below. Enrollment applications must be post-marked February 15 to guarantee a spot in the Membership Directory. For questions about enrollment and benefits of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Certified Roadside Farm Market program call (502) 495-5106 or e-mail kkeeton@kyfb.com.

What would Mom say...

Love birds Couple visit wedding site

Linda and Mike Lenzini's road to the altar wasn't a smooth one, but it has endured.

As their 40th anniversary approaches Sunday, on Valentine's Day, the Lenzinis will take a walk down memory lane, returning to Marion (weather permitting).

That trip down memory lane will likely include a pass by the Marion United Methodist Church, where they were married by Rev. Charles Hulse and a trip by Crittenden Hospital where they attempted to submit to a blood test required for Kentucky marriage licenses.

The Lenzini's story starts with what used to be a common first chapter. An elope. Only instead of eloping from Marion to Illinois, as was very common in the 1940s and 1950s, the Lenzinis eloped from Illinois to Marion on Feb. 14, 1970.

Mike's parents weren't too keen on the idea of their son's marriage, though Linda was 18 and Mike was 20. In Illinois, the marriage license would require parental signatures for adults younger than 21. Wasn't going to happen, so Linda's mother helped her research Kentucky law and find Marion, the closest Kentucky town. As Linda explains it, her mother was a willing partner in the plan to elope. Linda was the sixth of seven children, and her mother was ready to be an empty nester.

It's amazing that they pulled it off on Valentine's Day in 1970.

"The weather was having a terrible ice storm that day, but as teenagers wanting to get married it didn't matter," Linda said. "Having dated all through high school and both having jobs, like every one of our friends we wanted to get married also."

Never mind the fact that they had traveled to Marion the week before the wedding to have their blood test, only to find that the local doctor didn't do them, nor did the local hospital. They had to drive to Paducah, submit to the blood tests, the results of which were mailed to the local doctor after a three-day waiting period.

Nonetheless, Linda used $500 she had saved working for $50 a week to get their first apartment, buy wedding rings and even a wedding-day hamburger at a Marion restaurant before making the unusually long trek back to Centralia in a terrible ice storm.

"I'm surprised the ferry even ran that day," she said.

The Lenzinis have returned to Marion several times to celebrate their anniversary, and some people at local eateries may remember their story from years past. In addition to revisiting Marion, the Lenzinis will celebrate in French Lick, Ind., and at a small gathering with their friends in Centralia.

Wish them a happy anniversary if you see two love birds hanging around Marion Sunday afternoon.

Certain tax cuts can get you more on your return

In 2010, federal tax credits will mean more for working families than ever before. Many families are suffering from the economic downturn, shorter work hours, unemployment, and other conditions.

Families continue to struggle with day-to-day expenses, avoiding utility shut-offs, evictions, mortgage foreclosures, and rising debt. Working individuals and families need to know that help may be available when they file their 2010 tax return.

If you worked full-time or part-time during 2009 and you had low to moderate income, you may qualify for the Earned Income Credit (EIC). You may also receive the Child Tax Credit (CTC) if you had children living with you for at least half of the year. If you qualify you owe less in taxes and you may get cash back. Also, some people who don't owe taxes can get the Earned Income Credit. However, to get these credits, you must file a tax return.

The Earned Income Credit could put as much as $5,028 into the pockets of a family with two children, or send as much as $3,043 to a family with one child, or up to $457 for a worker with no children. This year workers raising 3 or more children in their home in 2009 can get an EIC of up to $5,657. While the amount varies with your circumstances, the IRS estimates that 20-25 percent of eligible taxpayers fail to claim the credit.

The extra dollars that taxpayers can get through EIC can make their lives a little easier. Some individuals and families may qualify for the first time because of unemployment or other changes in their financial, marital or parental status during the past year.

Some examples of workers who can qualify for the EIC include: workers who have 2 children in their home and had income of less than $40,295 (or $45,295 for married workers); workers raising one child with income of less than $35,463 (or $40,463 for married workers); or workers with no children who earned less than $13,440 (or $18,440 for married workers). Workers who were raising three or more children in their home in 2009 and had income of less than $43,279 (or $48,279 for married workers) could get an EIC of up to $5,657. Workers within these categories should check to see if they qualify.

Free help is available to determine eligibility or to file a claim for low-income families and senior citizens in Crittenden County. Cindy Walker, from AARP will be at the Crittenden County Senior Center on Walker Street every Wednesday, starting February 3 and through April 14, from 9 AM - 2 PM. Individuals interested in this service do not make appointments but sign-in upon arrival.

Hospital Auxiliary

The Crittenden Health Systems Auxiliary met on Jan. 21 in the education building, with 27 members present.

President Barbara Cooper led the Pledge of Allegiance and devotional was led by Melva Harris.

The following 2010 officers were installed: Regina Cook, president; Pat Carter, vice president; Jerrell James, treasurer; Brenda McKinney, secretary; Dorothy Wesmoland, assistant secretary; Melva Harris, devotional leader; Melva Harris and Barbara Cooper will serve as past president.

Annual reports given by committee chairs included the following data: 52 members volunteered 7,344 hours and nine junior volunteers gave 220 hours over the past year.

Volunteer 250 hour pens were presented to Doris Dameron, Melva Harris, Elizabeth Millikan and Dorothy Wesmoland; 500 hour bars were presented to Don Croft, Bernice Grammer, Gwen Wilson, Ruth Weasey and Naoma Jennings; 1,000 hour bars were presented to Pat Carter and Judy McGriffin; 1,500 hour bar was presented to Dot Boone; 2,000 hour bar was presented to Betty Croft; 2,500 hour bar was presented to Barbara Cooper; 3,000 hour bars were presented to Dirgie Collins and Helen Springs; and 3,500 hour bars were presented to Ruth Nell and Claudena Travis.

Nominate a difference-making teacher

The UK College of Education and UK basketball great Kyle Macy are accepting submissions for the 12th annual Teachers Who Made a Difference Program.

This program gives individuals the opportunity to thank the teachers, principals, college professors and other educators who have inspired and motivated them to succeed. The program does not select winners from a pool of nominees.

Rather, the UK College of Education created the program to provide individuals a means to express thanks to educators who have impacted their lives.

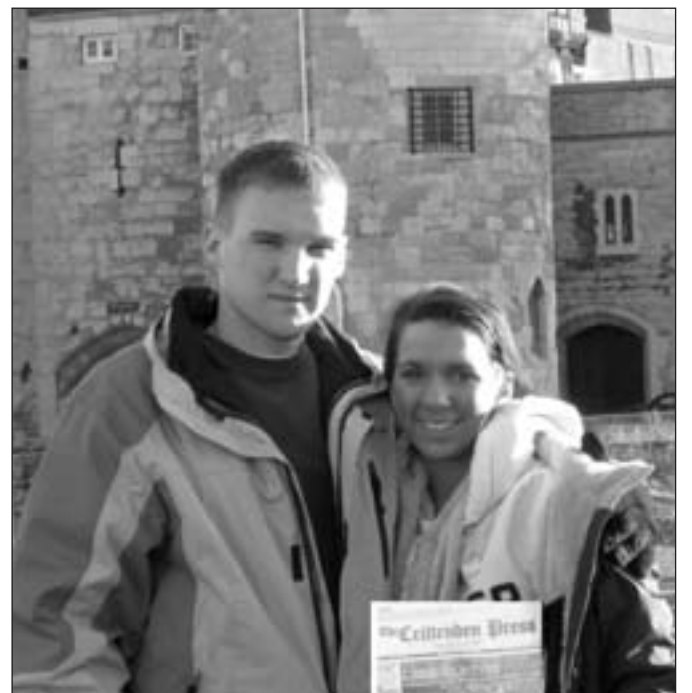

The number of honorees to be recognized is limited. Nominees can be from anywhere in the world and do not have to be affiliated with UK.

Organizers ask that nominators limit recognitions to one teacher per year.

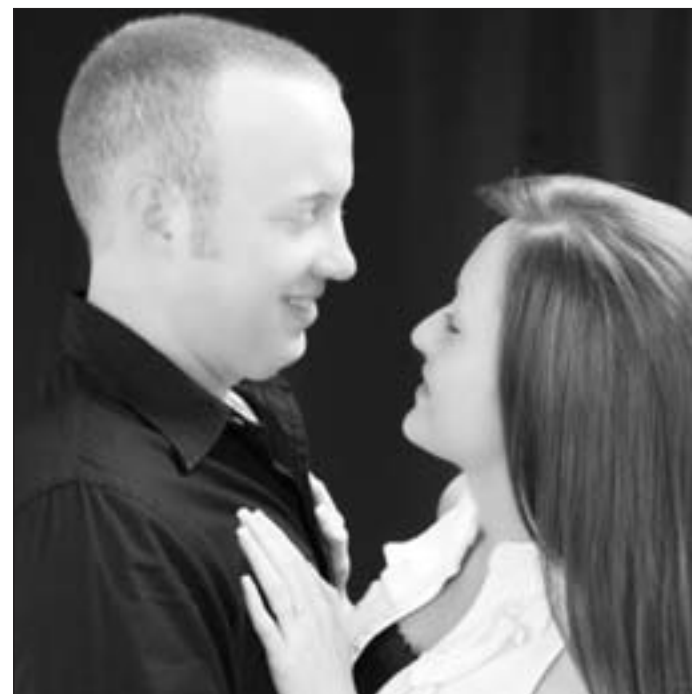

To honor a teacher, visit the UK College of Education's Web site and complete the online form. The deadline for submissions is March 8. For more information, contact Sarah Mulholland at www.education.uky.edu/Community/TWMAD or via phone at 859-257-2666.

In Loving Memory of
Dallas "Dick" Stallion
— April 15, 1922- February 16, 2009 —

TO THOSE I LOVED AND THOSE WHO LOVED ME

Release me, let me go. I have so many things to see and do. You mustn't tie yourself to me with tears. I gave you my love, you can only guess. How much you gave me in happiness. I thank you for the love each has shown. And now it is time that I travel alone.

So grieve a while for me, if grieve you must, Then let your grief be comforted in trust. It's only for a time we must part.

So bless the memories within your heart. I won't be far away, for life goes on. So, if you need me, call me, and I will come.

Though you can't see me or touch me, I'll be near. And if you listen within your heart, you will hear. All my love around you soft and clear.

And then, when you must come this way alone. I'll greet you with a smile and say "Welcome home."

We miss you Dad,

Bible is full of narrative stories

STAFF REPORT

The Bible has been called a storybook, says Marion Church of Christ minister Andy Walker, who plans to bring a new approach to teaching the timeless scriptures in Marion.

“Over half of the Bible is story. We often have the idea that the Bible is a book of rules and thus we tend to de-story its stories,” explained the minister and former para-professional soccer coach.

Walker, who holds a degree in Biblical studies, is offering a free class for anyone interested in studying Old Testament narratives. He characterizes the meetings as an opportunity to take an academic look at the Bible without preaching.

“Unfortunately, many in our society are turned off by the term ‘preaching.’ People view preaching in many different ways. Some think it is too judgmental. Others are bored out of their minds. A few actually like it,” Walker said. “Our society’s view of preaching becomes a problem because preaching is a matter of faith.”

That’s why Walker wants to emphasize that these classes will be a scholarly or scholastic approach to the Old Testament, which has been the focus of his own formal education. The first in a series of classes will be held from 5-6 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 17 at Marion United Methodist Church’s education wing.

“We will look at some guidelines to follow for reading and interpreting Hebrew stories and then we will put those guidelines to use by applying them to several Old Testament stories,” said Walker. “The study is designed to give anyone a deeper understanding of the scriptures. I can promise you that the class will be both interesting and insightful.”

If you would like to learn more about the Bible, or simply enjoy dissecting long-lasting stories, join this group, says Walker. No commitment is required. Attend one or all of the classes. Right now two are planned for February. The remaining schedule will be determined by interest in the program. For more information, call Walker 965-9450.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying “more is better” is not necessarily true. At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

Casad, Clear Pond once popular locations for camping, gatherings

I've written in articles before how peoples' names and items of interest have been used to create names for roads, post offices, villages, streets and other things in our towns and communities. Sometimes we know where the names originated, and others we wonder where the name came from.

One of the mysterious long ago places was Casad. The post office was named this in 1915 and the area around it was then known as Casad.

Where did the post office and area get this unique sounding name? Finding some of this information is by pure luck and it's always exciting to find a new discovery after years of research. The tidbits of information I found while reading the old Crittenden Press have led me to believe the following on how Casad got its name.

Aug. 8, 1897. Mr. M.F. Casad of Cave In Rock was in town. He came over to perfect arrangements for putting up a mill on the R.N. Walker place, a mile this side of the Ohio River.

Casad is located off Hwy. 91 North about a mile on the Easley Road. In the early 1900s this was where a general merchandise store and the post office was located. The grist mill was located next to the general store. I believe that Mr. Casad built this grist mill in 1897 and for some time after it was called Casad Mill.

It would be the natural thing to do when the post office was established there in 1915 that it would be named Casad and the small community would be known by the same name. Mr. H. B. Phillips was the postmaster and Sam D. Flanary was the mail carrier.

Other postmasters were: Joseph R. Daughtrey, 1920-26, L. Alfred Easley 1926 until 1931 when it was discontinued and the mail sent to Marion.

F.M. Casad is buried with other members of his family in the cemetery in Cave In Rock, Ill.

This area was also known for its numerous ponds. The three ponds visible from Hwy. 91 North near the community of Hebron were the Walker ponds, named for R.N. Walker, owner of the property. These ponds were known for miles around and folks would travel here by horse and wagon to enjoy a day picnicking and fishing around the waters.

The starting of these ponds were from sink holes that had become stopped up.

As early as 1905, a picnic at Walker's Pond was recorded. On June 8, 1909, the following old friends and neighbors met at the Walker pond for a good time fishing and picnicking: Mr. and Mrs. T.N. Bracey, Mr. and Mrs. J.B. Easley, Mr. and Mrs. D.J. Green, Mr. and Mrs. W.R. Williams, Mr. and Mrs.

The larger body of water is the well known Clear Pond and the smaller body of water in the front is the run off water from the larger pond or lake.

G.C. Wathen, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cook, Mr. and Mrs. R.L. Flanary, Mr. and Mrs. D.C. Flanary of Houston, Texas; Mrs. Clara Nunn, Misses Bert Bracey, Ruth Cook, Amy, Kitty, Allie and Ebbie Wathen, Ora Hale, Henry Easley, Irene Bracey, Nonie and Mebba Williams and Walker and Lacy Cook.

The weather was ideal and never did a jollier crowd assemble, recalling incidents of bygone days, handshaking and telling jokes, coupled with fishing and the old Kentucky hospitality.

In the 1950s the larger of the Walker ponds was a popular fishing place. You would have to pay a reasonable fee to fish there, and for advertisement to show everyone what you might catch, some of the large fish heads that had been caught there would be displayed on trees and on boards hanging around the area.

If this wouldn't entice a fisherman or a want-to-be fisherman, I don't know what would.

***

Not too far from the three Walker ponds is a larger pond or lake equally well-known and used for many years as the favorite swimming pond around the area. It was also formed by a sink hole being stopped up.

In the 1940s this large, picturesque pond was known as Cook's Lake. It belonged to Virgil and Sybil Cook and was located on their farm. But it was used freely by all that wanted to swim, boat and picnic.

This beautiful, rural area was once the location of the Green River 4-H Camp. The date was July 28 to Aug. 1, 1947.

Ten counties, including Crittenden, Union, Webster, Henderson, Daviess, McLean, Hancock, Breckinridge, Butler and Ohio were represented.

There were 275 4-H members that attended. The camp site was ideal, having a wooded background for shade and a gradual slope from the woods to the water's edge of the lake where swimming and boating were part of the recreation enjoyed by all.

Lights were made available by an extension from the R.E.A. line. Two large tents were set up by the leaders on opposite sides of the lake, one for the boys and one for the girls campers.

A lifeguard with a Red Cross certificate would be in charge during the time scheduled for swimming.

The night programs included vesper services followed by appropriate education and entertainment programs. The morning programs included classes in farm and home problems by staff members of the University of Kentucky. The afternoon was filled with handicraft work and competitive athletic games.

In charge of Crittenden's youngsters were O.M. Shelby, County Agent, and the leaders, Jim Brown, Jesse Wayne Alvis, Mrs. Louise Cook Weldon and Miss Mary Kathryn McEuen. Mr. Ben Shaffer was in charge of the grounds.

Virgil Cook, Jr., whose family owned the land during this time, shared with us some of his memories of this time. Virgil remembers that Mr. Shelby prepared one of the fields close by into a ball field for the boys to play on during the afternoon.

What about restrooms for all these boys and girls, I asked? Virgil told me that they had pits dug for the toilets and a long board would have holes cut in it for the seats. This board would be supported over the holes by bales of straw.

This is a part of our past history the younger generation doesn't know anything about - these outdoor toilets of yesteryear.

Virgil also remembers other activities that happened at this pond. By the 1950s, this pond was known as Clear Pond and is still known by that name today.

In August of 1950 the Sub-

District. Marion Youth Methodist Fellowship had their District Conference meeting at Clear Pond and it was called a Lake Side Service. The meeting would include youth from the surrounding churches and was a much anticipated event.

As twilight descended, the large group of people gathered on the far side of the big pond. As it began to get dark, a boat, hidden on the far side in the smaller pond, came floating out in the middle of the pond.

The boat was highlighted by lighted candles. In the boat were some of Lyle Easley's children singing gospel songs. Virgil said that was really something to see and he will always remember it.

There are other ponds created from sink holes on this land, but none so well-known as Clear Pond.

One located in a field behind Clear Pond is called Mill Pond. Virgil told me that it got its name from his grandfather and the late Robert Cook's grandfather. There was so much timber around this area they set up a saw mill near by.

Anthony Easley is the owner of this land today and he is also well-versed in the history and people of this area.

IN HISTORY
From The Press Archives

News from 1985:

•Marion firefighters were pictured fighting a fire of an A-frame house owned by Tony Davenport. Due to a frozen hydrant and fast-spreading flames, the house couldn't be saved.

•Sally McKenney was chosen as a recipient for the National Association of Secondary School Principal's 1985 Century III Leaders Program. She received $1,500 to continue her education.

•Greg Rushing and Easley Hill were pictured helping Robert Jones after he got a Beaver Brothers Texaco truck stuck in the snow.

•Martha and Earl Byford, Ruby Newcom, Byron and Marie Travis, Reta Broshears, Velda Winders, Laverne Workman, Lucy Leet, Edna Fritts, Christine Hazzard, Willa Mae and W. E. Arflack were pictured as a group during their visit to Hawaii.

News from 1960:

•Mrs. C.C. Lowery of Murray spoke at the Woman's Club luncheon. She was pictured with Mrs. W.J. Wilson, Mrs. Olilla and Mrs. Richard Farell.

• Mrs. John Vaughn made a guest appearance on a Florida television show representing the All American Life and Accident Insurance Company.

Fundraising ball nets more than $8,000 for historic Fohs Hall

Organizers are calling the 2010 Fohs Hall Fundraising Ball a major success. More than 100 attended the formal dinner and dance affair at Fohs Hall. Fundraising netted more than $8,000. Receipts come from the ticket sales and auction proceeds. All proceeds go to the maintenance and operation of Fohs Hall, the community's historic civic building. Fohs Hall, Inc., and its board of directors have just three primary sources of income for maintaining the community center. Those sources are from building and room rentals, membership dues and contributions. Fohs Hall also receives support from The Fohs Foundation, a philanthropic organization that is maintained by the heirs of Julius Fohs, who donated the building to the community, originally as a school. "The black-tie ball is our largest single fundraiser," said Fohs Hall, Inc., President Alan Stout. "The board appreciates all who attended and supported this great event." Officers of Fohs Hall, Inc.,

also include Linda Schumann, vice president; Bob Briley, secretary, and Marie Burkhardt, treasurer. "Fohs Hall, Inc., is committed to continuing to fulfill the vision of Julius Fohs for a civic center and community auditorium when he donated the building to the citizens of Marion in 1926," said Stout. The building and real estate was deeded to Fohs Hall, Inc., by the Crittenden County Board of Education in 1981. Fohs Hall, Inc., restored the building and has maintained and operated the building since 1981. Auction items donated for the fundraising ball included a gift basket from Thrifty Medical; a robe from Bowtanicals; a western Kentucky site-seeing flight by pilot Jim Johnson; a documentary print donated by Sam Koltinsky; a UK legends print donated by Steve Hoskins, Henry & Henry and Farmers Bank & Trust Co.; a basket and tuition from Madisonville Community College; a quail hunt donated by Tradewater Outfitters, a Green Turtle Bay weekend vacation donated by ers; and a dinner and first-run copy of "Tea Time of Life" by local author Ethel Tucker.

★ 53 Acres of excellent hunting ground. 95% wooded with a small creek running through the farm. Several feet of road frontage. Just reduced to $65,000.00. Owner readt to sell. gd

Officials optimistic about movement on US 641 plan

STAFF REPORT

Local and state officials are somewhat optimistic that the long-awaited U.S. 641 improvement project will move into construction phase in the coming months.

Rep. Mike Cherry (D-Princeton) said Monday from Frankfort that the proposed new super highway could be moving traffic between Marion and Fredonia by late 2013 or 2014. This is only the first phase of a two-pronged project. The final stage will take the highway from Fredonia to the Western Kentucky Parkway.

Gov. Steve Beshear announced his Six-Year Highway Plan last week, which includes almost $45 million for construction on the 641 project. Cherry said that $29.2 million of those funds are from a transportation bond issue. In other words, the money is in the bank.

"That's real money," Cherry said, pointing out that due to the state's economic condition such funds can be mighty attractive for other expenses.

Keeping them in the Six Year Highway Plan and under the 641 flag could prove testy through political wrangling over the next six weeks. The plan will require House and Senate approval.

If those funds remain earmarked for U.S. 641 at the end of the current session of the Kentucky General Assembly, Cherry said he will be much more certain about the near future of the project.

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Fred Brown said he too is optimistic because of how it's funded in the governor's plan.

Cherry

"It looks a little better than it has in a while," Brown said.

Cherry said acquisition of property to build the road is 99 percent complete. He said there are three property owners who have not accepted the state's buyout offer. Those may require litigation to settle.

There are other property owners near where the highway is projected to start just south of Marion who have yet to begin negotiating.

While there are some environmental snags in the southern phase of the highway plan, Cherry said those issues should be rectified by the time construction on the second section begins. There is $12 million in the governor's highway plan for design, right-of-way and utility relocation on the second part of the project in Caldwell and Lyon counties.

County snow truck crashes

STAFF REPORT

The driver of a county snow removal truck was not seriously injured when it overturned on Brown Mine Road shortly after 8 p.m., Monday night.

Sam Hodge was driving the twin-axle International dump truck, spraying salt brine when it slid off the roadway into a ditch near the intersection of Claylick Creek Road.

A passenger in the truck, a Crittenden County Detention Center work release inmate, was not injured.

Hodge was transported to Crittenden Hospital where he was treated and released.

Judge-Executive Fred Brown said Hodge suffered some injuries and will be sore for a while. The truck, Brown said, will likely be a total loss.

Idol Connection

Lacey Brown is going to Hollywood and taking a small piece of Marion with her. Brown is an American Idol contestant whose parents David and Connie Hibbs Brown graduated from Crittenden County High School in the 1970s. This is Brown's second year to compete on American Idol. Last year she was eliminated in the second round of competition. However, following her audition last week in Orlando, judge Kara DioGuardi said Brown was among her Season 9 favorites. David and Connie Brown are former ministers at Marion's Life In Christ Church. They now reside in Texas.
