Five Star should be done in June

Construction of the new Five Star Food Mart on the corner of Main and Bellville streets in Marion is progressing as planned, said a spokesperson for the convenience store's parent company, Newcomb Oil. Laura Blair, public relations manager for the Bardstown-based company, said things are on track for the new, expanded store to open in June.

Blair said there is no truth to the rumor that a fast food chain will be setting up shop in the new store. However, the chain's own Country Deli will have an expanded menu for customers.

Dugout Club needs members

Youth softball and baseball in Crittenden County could be in jeopardy if more interest is not shown in the local Dugout Club. Recently, four of the club's six board members resigned, leaving only two on the governing body. All who resigned were officers. For more, see Page 10.

Local families seek assistance

Donations are being accepted for two community families with members battling serious cancer diagnoses.

An account has been established for Frank and Glenda Blackburn to help with expenses as the couple stays in Texas while Frank undergoes medical treatment for cancer. People who wish to make contributions may deposit them in the Frank Blackburn Benefit Fund at Farmers Bank and Trust Co., in Marion.

Meantime, donations are being accepted at Louise's Flowers in Marion for Brad and Rochelle Bates Walton. Brad was recently diagnosed with colon cancer and is undergoing treatment. Contributions may be dropped off at the flower shop at 127 N. Main St.

Meeting

American Legion Ellis B. Ordway Post No. 111 will meet at 6:30 p.m., Monday in the Fohs Hall basement meeting room. All members are urged to attend.

Crittenden County's Democratic Committee will meet at 5 p.m., Tuesday at Rebecca Johnson's office on West Bellville Street.

Crittenden County Board of Education will meet at 6 p.m., Tuesday at Rocket Arena for its monthly working session.

Pennyrile District Health Department's Board of Health will meet at noon Feb. 9 at the district office in Eddyville.

What's your opinion? Web poll results

This week's poll at The Press Online asked: "Would you approve of additional taxpayer funds being used to support maintenance of Fohs Hall?"

Almost two-thirds of those voting want no additional public funds used to support Fohs Hall. Here is what 405 voters said:

- Yes, all it needs, 39 (9%)
- To some degree, 80 (19%)
- Not at all, 261 (64%)
- Need more info, 25 (6%)

Currently, both the county and city contribute $500 to Fohs Hall, Inc. Read next week's issue of The Crittenden Press for more on Fohs Hall's funding woes.

Jury finds man guilty of raping, impregnating girl, 12

Ethan Thomas Hughes, a Central City man accused of raping and impregnating a 12-year-old Crittenden County girl, speaks with his attorney, Paul Sysol, Friday during a trial recess. A Crittenden Circuit Court jury found Hughes guilty of statutory rape.

Commonwealth Attorney Zac Greenwell apologized to jurors Friday in Crittenden Circuit Court for losing his temper for a moment.

Greenwell, in his closing argument in the trial of a Central City man charged with statutory rape, told the jury that it was the first time he ever felt like he'd "lost it" in the courtroom. The prosecutor said he couldn't remain calm when Ethan Thomas Hughes, 22, (a.k.a. Bradley Frazier) blamed his impregnating a 12-year-old girl on having "beer goggles."

The jury of four women and eight men following a day of testimony deliberated for almost two and a half hours before finding Hughes guilty and recommending a 10-year prison sentence. The defendant will be formally sentenced on March 8 by Circuit Judge R e n é Williams.

Hughes impregnated a sixth-grade middle school student in November 2008. He and the victim, who is now 15 and living in another county, both testified that they had consensual intercourse two or three times over a three-day period when Hughes was visiting her home in Marion.

Police learned about the young girl's pregnancy from social workers and charged Hughes in May 2010 with one count of second-degree rape (no force).

Hughes testified that he thought the girl was 16, which is the age of consent in Kentucky. He was 19 at the time of the crime. His mother and two other Marion residents, who claimed to be friends of the victim, also testified on his behalf.

However, the jury found offensive Hughes' statements and cavalier attitude in court, including his comment about the beer goggles. Jurors who spoke to The Crittenden Press on the condition of anonymity said they were struck by

3 FORMER RESIDENTS HAVE TIES TO NFL'S TITLE GAME

STAFF REPORT

Some familiar faces are connected to the biggest football game of the year — Sunday's Super Bowl XLVI in Indianapolis.

Three former Crittenden County residents are tied to the NFL's championship game in some manner — one appearing with Madonna during the halftime performance, one on an advertising campaign leading up to the game and another working security behind the scenes.

graduate and now a junior at Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, has said he will be a part of the halftime show during a performance alongside Madonna. Living in Greenwood, Ind., the 22-year-old bodybuilder and model from Marion will have a once-in-a-lifetime chance when he is seen by more than 110 million American viewers watching the game.

Baker found out about the opportunity just last week when he was selected among a group of 100 other men who will have a key role in the halftime performance. Because of his modeling and bodybuilding, Baker was personally selected by Madonna as one of the six performers that will be alongside her on stage at Lucas Oil Stadium in Indianapolis. Baker was given the chance after competing in the Mr. Indiana contest last September.

STAFF REPORT

It seems more than half of registered voters in Crittenden County might have to set out the May 22 Kentucky primary, with independents ineligible to vote in primary elections and at press time no Democratic candidate facing opposition from within his own party. That could leave only the county's 2,836 registered Republicans with something to vote for on the fourth Tuesday in May.

But a court injunction issued early this week may

May primary election not thrifty democracy

On May 22, a scant few Crittenden Countians will head to the polls to cast some very expensive votes in the Kentucky primary — a product of an inflexible, flawed voting system not only in the commonwealth but nationwide.

We say expensive, because regardless of turnout, each election costs the county approximately $10,000. With independents forced to set out primary elections and no Democratic races contested on the county's May ballot at press time, it appears only 2,836 Republicans will be eligible to cast their ballots in Crittenden County. Even a lofty 30 percent turnout of GOP voters would put a price tag of more than $10 on each ballot cast.

The GOP presidential race likely will be decided by the time Kentucky has its primary, leaving the Crittenden Circuit Court Clerk's race the only contested election on the ballot. Though an important race that will decide who holds the clerk's office for the next six years, it will probably not attract more than a 1,000 or 1,200 voters.

Despite the small ballot, County Clerk Carolyn Byford will be forced to set up polling stations at all 12 precincts and staff them with the usual slate of election workers. Small precincts will be lucky to average one voter every half hour during the 12 hours of polling. Such investment is too high for financially-strapped, rural counties such as ours, where $10,000 would go a long way in maintaining critical community services.

To save such exorbitant costs, one central polling location for small primaries would more than suffice, particularly with the availability of absentee voting methods. And while it may not reduce costs, one nationwide primary election day — as with general elections in November — would eliminate the plague of virtually useless presidential primaries beyond February.

Tinkering with our democratic process is a delicate matter, but the cost to administer it must be made more palatable to those paying for it.

Lawmakers face daunting task with bare-bones budget

Rep. Mike Cherry
(D-Princeton)
House District 4

Redistricting and budget issues continue to dominate talk and headlines in and around the Capitol. As I have reported before, we have completed work on state House, Senate and judicial redistricting, but settling of congressional districts still looms.

At last week's end — with the Jan. 31 filing deadline upon us — the conference committee tasked with working out the House and Senate differences on congressional redistricting agreed to extend the filing deadline for those candidates by one week. Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle had good reason to want to move the deadline back. Without knowing what district lines will be in place for this year's primary, it is impossible for potential candidates to know the district in which he or she must run.

It is important to note here that Tuesday was the primary election filing deadline for Kentucky's new state legislative and state Supreme Court districts.

Those districts are found in House Bill (HB) 1, which was signed into law Jan. 20, although a minority-party court challenge has been made. Only filings for this year's congressional races would be pushed back under the proposed deadline extension, which I expect will have passed by the time this is read.

Speaking briefly to the budget, which I will likely be doing more of every week, I want to make the point that this issue has become much more difficult and stressful in recent years. I suppose that is obvious and hardly needs mentioning. The stream of groups, organizations and branches of government — including personal friends

What does God say America deserves?

"The wicked shall be turned into hell and all nations that forget God," Psalms 9:17.

What does God tell His ministers to do?

"Preach the word; be always ready to when it is wanted and when it is not wanted; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all longsuffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not want it but want something pleasing and support of their lusts. They will turn away from the truth," Second Timothy 4:2-3.

We have arrived!

As God looks down on a nation that He has blessed over and above all other nations, one that dares to make it a law of the land that a woman can have her baby aborted, what do we really believe He will do, and what do we deserve?

How can any human being be so ruthless? Do any of us think God just looks the other way and will not bring judgment on this nation?

What can be more barbaric, brutal and inhumane than killing innocent, precious little human beings that are so dependent on us?

God's Word says, "All souls are mine, and children are the heritage of the Lord." And we dare to permit, support, and demand the right to slaughter His children and not expect to pay a horrible price?

"And the Lord came down to see the city and the tower, which the children of men built. And the Lord said, 'Behold, the people is one, and they have all one language; and this they begin to do; and now nothing will be restrained from them, which they have imagined to do. Go to, let us go down, and there confound their language, that they may not understand one another's speech.'

"So the Lord scattered them abroad from thence upon the face of all the earth; and they left off to build the city." Genesis 11:6-8

He had just destroyed all the people but eight in the great flood 150 years before, and they did not learn from that lesson.

Now I wonder what God will do to America for these sins that are far more appalling, shameful, degrading and diabolical and such a reproach on their Creator.

It was reported just a few days ago that one certain kind of attack can kill 90 percent of Americans, and the 10 percent left would not be able to survive very well if at all.

Don't we know that is the plan of the radical murderers who believe that is what God wants them to do in order for them to get to Heaven? Just how ignorant and evil have we become?

and neighbors — looking not necessarily for more money but just to keep from getting more cuts — makes the budget a difficult issue.

While I will not be here to see it, I know I speak for all 138 of us in the General Assembly when I say we long for those days of not so long ago when we hassled over what to do with surpluses, not over where to make the largest cuts.

While the uncertainty surrounding the redistricting talks and pending budget issues tended to overshadow other legislative action last week, other issues were acted on.

A bill that would alter the makeup of school-based decision making councils passed the House by a 62-33 vote Jan. 24. HB 89 would require only one of the two parent members on a council live within the boundaries of the school district and would prohibit non-tenured teachers from serving on a council unless no tenured teachers are willing, or available, to serve.

I was one of the dissenting votes. As a former Caldwell County High School council member, I agreed with the State Association of Site Based Councils that this does not strengthen councils.

Legislation that would help cover the cost of child adoption by any Kentucky National Guard member cleared the House 93-0 on Jan. 20. Any Kentucky National Guard member would be eligible for military family-assistance trust funds of up to $5,000 to cover the adoption of a child with special needs, or up to $3,000 to cover the adoption of another child.

A growing problem with feral pigs that may be little known in some areas of the commonwealth received statewide attention last week when the House Agriculture and Small Business Committee passed a concurrent resolution to address the issue. in rulers over us that condone all these evils, they are as guilty as the leaders they elect and all of them just as guilty as the ones committing the evils. Yet millions want to deny this. But God will have the last word, and it will all be the same as He has already spoken.

Paul told us to not be partakers of other men's sins, and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness but rather reprove them, and abstain from all appearance of evil, and He said in First Corinthians 3:16-17, "Know you not that you are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwells in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple you are."

I think that killing innocent babies, fornication, adultery, homosexuality and sex changes defile the temple of God. He has said He would destroy not only those guilty of these acts against Him and His image, but all who do not repent and are born again.

We are to follow Jesus' example. Does any sane person really believe Jesus would do or condone any of these acts of treason against His Father?

No. A million times no!

Weston Cemetery work appreciated

To the editor

I would like to express my thanks to Boy Scout Troop 30 for cleaning up Weston Cemetery last month.

I have a baby brother and some great-uncles buried there. My husband and I tried to keep it clean as long as our health would allow, but we got to where we could not do it any more.

I really appreciate the Boy Scouts and the friends at Weston who furnished lunch for them.

Thank you very much.

Senate introduces buggy safety legislation

Sen. Joey Pendleton
(D-Hopkinsville)
Senate District 3

Senate Review

One-third of the legislative session is over and the pace is starting to pick up. We are introducing new bills daily and many others are being drafted and receiving committee hearings.

Last month, the Senate approved Senate Bill (SB) 24 that would require children to be five years old prior to Aug. 1 of the year they begin kindergarten. The measure would, however, allows parents to petition local school boards for early admission of gifted students.

The bill passed with two dissenting votes. If the House agrees and it becomes law, it would take effect during the 2017-18 school year.

The Senate granted committee approval to several proposed bills that are making their way through the process.

One of those that passed out of the Senate Transportation Committee unanimously was legislation that would allow the use of reflective tape on horse-drawn buggies and similar slow-moving vehicles as an alternative to the orange reflective triangle currently required. Members of some Amish communities say the big, bright emblem violates their religious convictions against garish displays. This measure, SB 75, would, we hope, address those concerns.

In other committees last week, we dealt with life-threatening issues that affect the entire commonwealth — one of those being the drug abuse epidemic.

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Substance Abuse and Mental Health Administration reported that 6.5 percent of Kentuckians had used prescription drugs for nonmedical purposes in 2010. This contrasts with the national average of five percent.

These figures are alarming. As we continue to combat the growing prescription drug problem in the commonwealth, the Senate Judiciary Committee held a hearing last week on this important issue. Senate Bill 42 would put pain management facilities under the regulation of the State Board of Medical Licensure.

Pain management facilities, often referred to as "pill mills," are places where licensed physicians typically write prescriptions for extremely potent pain medication to almost anyone who asks and has the money to pay. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention recommends states pass, enforce and evaluate pill mills, doctor shopping and other laws to reduce the abuse of some prescription medications.

SB 42 is just one of the bills we will see this session dealing with this critical issue facing our Commonwealth.

As we continue working through this 60-day "long" session, many more bills will be considered by the full Senate on their way to becoming law. As always, I encourage you to be informed and involved in the legislation affecting you.

(Sen. Pendleton is a Hopkinsville Democrat serving Senate District 3. He has been a state senator since 1993. He represents Crittenden, Union, Caldwell and Christian counties.)

Will Puxatony Phil come through for winter?

When Puxatony Phil sticks his head out of the ground today (Thursday), I'm not sure what'll it mean if he sees his shadow.

Normally, when the chubby, furry rodent sees his shadow on Groundhog Day, it means six more weeks of winter. Since we've had no winter thus far, does that mean another month and a half of the March-like weather we've endured to date, or will we actually see Old Man Winter?

So far in Winter 2011-12, Canada has been hogging most of the cold air. Locally, we've seen only a couple of dustings of snow and not yet 10 days with an average temperature below the freezing mark. In the Northeast, hockey players and skaters have been relegated to indoor action, and ice fishing in Minnesota has been pretty well confined to hooking the Mrs. Paul's out of the freezer.

Crittenden Press managing editor

My 2¢ Worth

Fantastic!

I thought most of you would say that, but consider the effects a mild winter has on us all.

The coat and sweater you got for Christmas has been pretty pointless hasn't it? All that money spent on a nice gift, and it's been hanging in the closet all winter.

For children, winter without at least one good snowman or snowball fight is like summer without a dip in the pool. Also, Little Johnny who collects a few coins for his piggy bank shoveling the white stuff from his neighbor lady's sidewalk has gone unemployed since last raking her leaves in November.

On a positive note, exterminators and auto body repairmen are rejoicing, as the four-, six- and eight-legged pests that bring them business have been thriving all winter.

That means your dog — and you — will be covered in ticks each time you step on the lawn from March to October. With only sporadic sub-freezing days and nights, ants, mosquitoes and all other insect plagues have yet to have their herd thinned. And all those baby deer born last spring have more than likely survived the usual hardships of winter only to meet their demise on the hood of your car next fall or earlier.

Farmers have also rejoiced at the stressless season on their livestock.

Conversely, they also know that bare cropland not covered in snow or frozen solid tends to run off into creeks during deluges. And yield-robbing pests living just below the surface — like the deer above the soil — have been enjoying a relative vacation compared to normal winters, ready to wreak havoc during the upcoming growing season.

Elsewhere, Grandma has been less likely to choose between her medication and keeping the thermostat to a comfortable position, which is about the nicest thing I can say about a mild winter.

But while the customer has rejoiced, utility CEOs have had many a warm and sleepless night without the heaters that usually comfort them in the long dark of winter. And the stocks used to fuel all those coal-fired electricity-generating plants remain stacked high, reducing overall demand for the black gold that puts a roof over a lot of heads in western Kentucky.

Winter catches a lot of bad PR, but I've missed her this year. She's the balance to those long, miserable Ohio Valley summers.

Here's hoping that Phil brings us, err, me some good news today.

STAFF REPORT

Four students were awarded diplomas Jan. 24 for graduating from Crittenden County school district's Pathway Academy. This is the seventh graduation for Pathway since being implemented in 2008 to reduce the district's dropout rate.

"It's very rewarding to watch them graduate and see them accomplish what they've set out to do," Alternative Learning Center Director Kathryn Turner said. "I'm here for encouragement, to keep them motivated and to be a part of what they set out to do is wonderful. They've all worked hard."

Board of ed renews Yarbrough's contract

STAFF REPORT

Even before the renewal of Dr. Rachel Yarbrough's contract as Crittenden County's superintendent was put to a vote during last week's board of education meeting, it was clear that she wouldn't be leaving the district any time soon.

A unanimous vote made by the five-member Crittenden County Board of Education secured Yarbrough's contract for another four years.

The superintendent's contract, discussed by the board and then with Yarbrough, states that she will be paid a salary of $107,000 per school year, which runs July 1 to June 30. That is $7,000 more annually than her first contract four years ago.

"If I could pay her what she's worth, this contract would be tripled, quadrupled, but unfortunately those resources aren't available," board chairman Chris Cook said. "Dr. Yarbrough has proved to be an invaluable asset to Crittenden County, and we are proud to have her."

Hired in 2008, Yarbrough filled the superintendent position left by John Belt after his retirement. Before coming to Crittenden County, Yarbrough served as assistant superintendent for Webster County schools for nine years.

As superintendent of Crittenden County schools, she has been heavily involved in the community. During the last four years, she has made it clear that she is passionate about the job and wants the very best for the students.

"I am here because God put me here," Dr. Yarbrough said during the meeting. "There is still great work that can be done in Crittenden. Our district is starting to make a name for itself again across the state. I don't want our kids to take backseats to anybody."

"I am pleased to serve Crittenden County and am blessed to be surrounded by great folks."

Yarbrough's contract will keep her in Crittenden County through at least 2016.

Report gives state teacher quality D+

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A new report on teacher quality released last week says Kentucky has made little progress in the past two years.

The Washington-based National Council on Teacher Quality gives teacher quality a D+ grade in Kentucky, ranking the state 41st in teacher quality. That's not much better than the state did in 2009.

The report says Kentucky's elementary school teachers aren't ready to implement the new lessons required by the state's adoption of the Common Core State Standards.

The state did score high marks for its preparation of middle-school teachers.

Phillip Rogers, executive director of the state's education professional standards board, says recommendations made in the report are taken seriously, and have already led to more stringent test requirements for elementary teachers.

Unemployment down in county

STAFF REPORT

Unemployment in Crittenden County fell by almost two points from December 2010 to December 2011, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training. The jobless rate in the county in the last month of 2011 was 7.8 percent, compared to 9.7 percent a year earlier.

The improved labor figures over December 2010 were felt statewide. In fact, unemployment fell in all but six Kentucky counties since then.

Woodford County recorded the lowest unemployment at 6.1 percent, while Jackson County reported the highest at 15.2 percent.

Area aggregate quarries change hands

STAFF REPORT

Three nearby Kentucky aggregate quarries that employ a number of Crittenden Countians have officially changed hands after the initial announcement of a corporate swap of assets was made late last year.

The Fredonia Quarry, Three Rivers Quarry in Smithland and Rosiclare Quarry in southern Illinois, all formerly owned by Raleigh, N.C.-based Martin Marietta Materials, Inc., are now operated by Lafarge, a worldwide leader in building materials whose multi-national headquarters are in Paris, France.

Late last year, Lafarge closed a deal with Martin Marietta on an asset exchange of its aggregates, ready-mix concrete and asphalt and paving operations in Colorado and Wyoming. In return, Lafarge expanded its Mississippi Valley presence with the acquisition of Martin Marietta's quarries in Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee, Missouri and Mississippi and distribution centers along the lower Mississippi River.

Lafarge has assets in 78 countries, and Lafarge North

In a recent swap of assets, France-based Lafarge, a worldwide leader in construction materials, obtained three nearby quarries from Martin Marietta.

America, Inc. — based in Herndon, Va. — is the largest supplier of construction materials in the U.S. and Canada. Meantime, Martin Marietta is the nation's second largest producer of construction aggregates, behind Vulcan Materials, which operates the nearby Grand Rivers Quarry.

Joëlle Lipski-Rockwood, Colorado-based communications director for Lafarge, said essentially the only changes made at the two recently acquired western Kentucky quarries and one in Illinois is essentially the name change. Fredonia Quarry employs 32, Three Rivers Quarry 94 and Rosiclare another 12 workers.

Already, Lafarge had a presence in the area. The Cave In Rock Quarry, where 53 work, was acquired by the international company from Martin Marietta in 2006. Up the Ohio River in Owensboro, Lafarge also operates a cement manufacturing facility.

In November, Lafarge settled with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) over violations at 21 facilities in five states. According to the EPA, the facilities failed to obtain or comply with discharge permits, among other things, allowing stormwater runoff to carry pollutants associated with the manufacture of concrete into aquifers.

Lafarge was forced to pay $740,000 in civil penalties for the violations, as well as correct the violations.

Despite the recent bad publicity, Lafarge's efforts out of its Cave in Rock quarry earned the company a 2010 community relations award from the Illinois Association of Aggregate Producers for hosting a field trip by third grade pupils from Hardin County School District, helping in a cleanup of the Ohio River by collecting trash upstream from the quarry and working with Hardin County School District and Living Lands and Waters in an Earth Day project.

GOP Winters opts to forgo re-election to senate seat

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County native Kenneth Winters has decided against seeking a third term in the Kentucky Senate. The Murray Republican, who represents Livingston County in the Senate District 1, will retire from the state legislature when his current term ends in January 2013.

Winters announced his plans Monday, citing health issues as the reason to forgo another term the upper chamber of the Capitol.

Just hours after his announcement, Trigg County Judge-Executive Stan Humphries of Cadiz filed to fill Winters' slate on the GOP ticket. Already, former Congressman Carroll Hubbard, a Mayfield Democrat, has filed to seek the seat. At press time, both Humphries and Hubbard were unopposed in their respective party primaries in May.

Winters

Born in 1934 in Crittenden County, Winters graduated from Crittenden County High School in 1953. After 37 years in education, including serving as president of Campbellsville University in central Kentucky, Winters was asked nearly eight years ago to run for the First District Senate seat.

In his eight years in Frankfort, Winters has been a champion of educational issues in the commonwealth and currently serves as chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

In May of last year, Winters was among the inaugural inductees into Crittenden County's Distinguished Alumni.

open the door for more contested races. On Tuesday, Franklin Circuit Court Judge Phillip Shepherd entered a restraining order pushing back the filing deadline for state House and Senate seats to next Tuesday. The ruling was made because of a suit filed last week by House Republicans contesting state legislative redistricting boundaries. And because congressional districts have yet to be established, prospective candidates for those six seats also have until Tuesday to make their intentions known.

In Kentucky, candidates in uncontested party primaries do not appear on the ballot, so if no additional candidates step forward, even the GOP electorate will have little from which to choose. At press time, the filing deadline for president and local seats had passed, with only the Republican presidential and Crittenden Circuit Clerk races contested.

Even at that, likely the only truly contested race at election time will be for circuit clerk, as the late presidential primary in the commonwealth will likely see the GOP frontrunner having all but secured the party's nomination to face President Barack Obama in November.

Locally, Melissa Guill and Vanda Adamson will face one another in the Republican primary for circuit clerk, replacing longtime clerk Madeline Henderson. As no Democrat has filed for the office, the top vote\getter in the GOP primary will win the six-year office.

For president, Republican voters will technically have four choices — Mitt Romney, Newt Gingrich, Ron Paul and Rick Santorum— though it is likely to be a one-man race by May 22. After Tuesday's victory by Romney in Florida, he is expected to outlast his nearest competitor, Gingrich, though the former Speaker of the U.S. House has vowed to not withdraw from the primary race.

Uncontested candidates to have filed for election thus far in Crittenden and Livingston counties include:

President of the United States

- Barack Obama (D)

Congressional District 1*

Wentworth, Kentucky

- Ed Whitfield (R-Hopkinsville)
- James Buckmaster (D-Henderson)

Rushing's work honored

Former Crittenden County Emergency Management Director Greg Rushing was honored Friday for his 20-plus years of service to the community in that role. From his first major disaster when a severe wind storm ripped through Tolu in 1993 to last spring's flooding, Rushing has volunteered countless hours to disaster response, which includes responses to the Crayne tornado in 2000, the crash of an Air Force B1 bomber in 1998 and back-to-back ice storms in 2008 and 2009. "I know it's been a thankless job, but you persevered," Judge-Executive Perry Newcom told Rushing in presenting him with recognition from the fiscal court and state legislature. Rushing was one of two volunteer EMA directors from the commonwealth's 120 counties. He was replaced by David Travis, also a volunteer. Above, Rushing's sister and Kentucky's Region 2 EMA Coordinate Vicki Martin congratulates her brother on a job well done over two decades. "It's not anything I did," Rushing humbly said of his work over two decades. "It was always a team effort of community volunteers."

Hughes' courtroom demeanor throughout the trial. He often starred them down, they believed, and jurors said his bold statements while on the stand were incriminating. They didn't think witnesses for his defense were credible.

Defendant lashes out

Following the verdict and prior to sentencing, Hughes verbally lashed out at the jury, the victim and her family seated in the courtroom. He cursed the jury, calling members "(expletive, expletive) whores." He told the judge he wanted be taken out of the courtroom and back to jail. "Get me the (expletive) out of here," he said. He also pressed the jury "go ahead and give me the 10-years" maximum sentence, which it later did.

Following his outburst, Hughes was cuffed and removed from the courtroom for a time. It wasn't the first occasion where Hughes had shown disrespect in the courtroom. He had displayed such behavior in previous court appearances leading up to the trial.

The verdict came just before 9 p.m., after testimony from 11 witnesses, including the victim, her mother and the defendant and his mother.

Prosecution questions judgment

When the defendant was put on the stand, Judge Williams asked him to remove the chewing gum from his mouth. Hughes swallowed it then proceeded to tell the jury about how he was adopted at age 13, had been in trouble with the law and was actually on felony probation during the time period in which he impregnated the middle school girl.

Greenwell found numerous opportunities to show a pair of photographs to jurors and witnesses. The pictures were of the defendant two months before she became pregnant and the other was of her and her newborn child in a hospital bed the day after he was born.

"Does she look 16 to you?" Greenwell asked each witness.

In cases involving alleged statutory rape, an accepted defense is that the defendant believed he was having a sexual relationship with a partner who was old enough to grant consent. That burden of proof, however, rests upon the defendant. Jurors said they didn't think Hughes, his witnesses or his public defender Paul Sysol were able to present such evidence.

Background

The case stemmed from a sexual relationship between the two Nov. 7-9, 2008. The victim, who The Press has chose not to identify, will be called Jane in this article.

Hughes, serving a sentence for a crime in another county, was brought to Marion from the Christian County Jail in May 2010 for paternity testing, which had been ordered by state social workers. It was then that Marion Policeman Jerry Parker interviewed the defendant at the sheriff's office in the courthouse. Parker testified that Hughes admitted to having sex with the girl, but claimed he thought she was 16. A few days later, Hughes was charged with second-degree rape.

On the stand last week, Hughes admitted he went to the girl's home and had sex with her two or three times over a three-day period. He said the girl portrayed herself as being 16 years old, almost 17. He and his mother, Dana Baize, both testified that Jane had a social networking page declaring her age older than it really was. The mother said she saw it and was emphatic that the age was 16. Her son testified that the Internet site showed her as 17. The jury was struck by a number of inconsistencies in testimony by the defendant and his wit-sent to all of the competitors asking us to submit measurements of our arms, chest and legs so they would know about how big we were and then send a picture of ourselves in a form-fitting t-shirt for something to do with the Super Bowl," Baker said. "Apparently, for the show, they needed muscular guys to do something in the halftime show and since they couldn't pay for lodging and travel arrangements, they were asking local guys. I submitted my picture and measurements, and I received an email a few weeks later that invited me to a meeting with the Super Bowl Committee.

"I wasn't sure about going at first but figured how many times would you get to be in the Super Bowl halftime show?"

Along with studying to become a personal fitness trainer and training two hours a day for his next bodybuilding competition, the halftime show rehearsals have left Baker's schedule busier than normal, requiring seven hours a day to rehearse.

Despite the busy schedule, Baker is more than excited to be involved in the event and looks forward to being seen by millions, as well as getting paid to be a part of the show.

"After the (meeting), when I told my family and some friends, it started hitting me that I was going to be on the biggest stage in the world, front and center with Madonna," he said. "It was a little surreal and it still is. The Super Bowl halftime show has been the most watched 30 minutes of television for years and just last year, 111 million people tuned in to watch the halftime show."

Although the majority of the performance has been kept under wraps, Baker says he can be seen by viewers standing to Madonna's right-when she's seen for the first time. He'll also be at the front of the stage during part of the show.

"It's taken a ton of self-control and dedication to get here, and I'm thankful for the opportunities given to me. I'm pretty sure this is just the beginning of a fun journey," Baker said. "It's kind of funny and ironic, but I've held onto a fortune cookie fortune for the last four years that's always in my wallet that says, 'You will be fortunate in the opportunities presented to you.' I'm a little superstitious, but I guess I believe that says it all and this is without a doubt a great opportunity in my life."

Baker is the son of Brent Baker of Marion and Lisa Baker Bishop of Indianapolis.

Amber Heady

Another face from Marion is showing up across the country in a White Castle Super Bowl advertisement and coupon.

Amber Heady, 26, a five-month employee of White Castle's headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, is a sales and marketing analyst for the company's frozen foods division. She and four co-workers were featured in a national advertising campaign that went out to more than 65 million households in the form of a Super Bowl week coupon.

Heady, the daughter of Sandy Heady and Ronnie Heady of Marion, is a 2003 CCHS graduate. She earned a bachelor's degree in accounting in 2008 from Western Kentucky University.

Dave Clark stands in front of the iconic XLVI Super Bowl Roman numerals on "the circle" in the heart of downtown Indianapolis.

U.S. Marshal Dave Clarke has been monitoring video from the Joint Operations Center (JOC) located about six miles from Lucas Oil Stadium.

The U.S. Marshals Service is one of nearly 50 agencies represented in the JOC, where everyone is responsible for monitoring video on a wall of monitors, prepared to put a response plan into action in the event of a security threat.

"We're here in case something happens, because this is a national security mission," said Clarke, who lives in Indianapolis and graduated from CCHS in 1995 before joining the Army and eventually U.S. Marshals training academy.

Clarke was selected a couple of months ago as one of two marshals participating in Super Bowl security. They are responsible for monitoring video at the JOC transmitted from street level cameras, helicopters and the stadium. One of U.S. Marshal's specific tasks is to look for wanted fugitives.

"I've been in federal law enforcement for 15 years now and since last week I've been around agencies and entities that I didn't know existed," Clarke said, explaining the thoroughness of the security organization at the JOC. "I've been in some pretty neat situations, but this is like walking into mission control."

Barring a crisis, Clarke will work his day shift and be home in time for kickoff Sunday. However, he and about 15 other U.S. marshals in the Indianapolis area could be notified in a matter of seconds in an emergency situation.

"The Super Bowl has been big talk, big news since it as announced it would be here," he said. "For the longest time there was excitement because everyone wanted the Colts to go to the Super Bowl. That didn't go as planned so now the hype has just been about the Super Bow in general."

So who does a Colts fan cheer for Sunday?

"I'll be cheering for the Giants," he said. "I'm not a big Giants fan but if we can't have Peyton (Manning) here you might as well have his brother."

Eli Manning is the Giants' quarterback and younger brother of Colts' signal call Peyton Manning.

Clarke is the son of former Marion Baptist Church pastor Dr. Darrell Clarke and the late Diane Clarke, formerly of Marion.

Tennessee River bridges suffer woes

STAFF REPORT

After a ship ripped away a 322-foot span of the U.S. 68/Ky. 80 bridge into Land Between Lakes (LBL) over Kentucky Lake, the Tennessee River in western Kentucky is down to two unrestricted bridges over its waters — Interstate 24 and U.S. 62.

While the LBL bridge remains out of service, the U.S. 60 span at Paducah is restricted to a three-ton weight limit. In fact, continued violation of that load limit has threatened closure of the 81-year-old span altogether. As of last week, state and local authorities had written more than 60 citations for violations of the weight restriction.

Meantime, Kentucky's southernmost passage over the Tennessee River/Kentucky Lake waterway will remain out of service indefinitely after an 8,400-ton cargo ship passing under the bridge last Thursday night tore away a portion of roadway and trusses of the 80-year-old overpass. Dive teams are assessing overall damage to the bridge after the incident.

"Crews have worked tirelessly around the clock inspecting the bridge's stability," said Kentucky Transportation Cabinet Secretary Mike Hancock. "Assessing the condition of the piers will help us determine what we can do to restore traffic on U.S. 68 and Ky. 80. We value the public's patience and support during this inconvenient time."

That bridge is not scheduled for replacement until 2017, while a new U.S. 60 bridge over the Tennessee should be done in mid-2014

Churches hosted singings, gatherings

Here are some interesting articles from the archives of The Crittenden Press about some old time church gatherings, which include homecomings, picnics, Memorial Day celebrations and Sunday school conventions. All were held during the summertime, as to be able to have most of the activities outdoors and to accommodate the large number of folks who attended these events. These gatherings were looked forward to each year, not only for spiritual renewal, but to visit and reacquaint one with old friends who would come to these special events.

July 31, 1913
Sunday School Picnic at Tolu
By invitation from Mr. Trice Bennett, the Tolu Sunday school held its annual outing at the beautiful country home of Judson Bennett, one mile out from Tolu. Many friends of Bennett were present, and it was indeed quite an enjoyable occasion to all present.

The good women brought baskets filled with good things to eat. Trice had barbecued three spring lambs for the occasion. Of course everybody enjoyed the dinner, but that was not all. The sociability of the occasion was after the old time sort, the music by the local string band as well as the Tolu choir was not to be excelled by any community. There were about 130 present and you should have seen the little folks enjoy themselves swinging, playing hide and seek and other games.

There were several of Bennett's friends from Marion. The home of Bennett is an ideal place for a picnic. Trice is a candidate for the nomination for county attorney and we are all for him down this way.

July 4, 1924
A great day at Chapel Hill
The fifth Sunday in June was a great day for Chapel Hill Church. It was "Old Folks" and "Home Coming Day" combined. The morning service was conducted as usual, but they sang the old time songs. The pastor preached from the text, "He that goeth forth weeping, bearing precious seed, shall doubtless come again with rejoicing, bringing his sheaves with him."

There was a good attendance. There were 45 automobiles bringing people from outside the community. There were about 20 former members of the Chapel Hill community who now live outside of the county presently. There were fully as many who live in the county but not now in the community.

The Chapel Hill people and friends furnished a splendid dinner which all present were urged to enjoy. The afternoon service was devoted to the old people. Bro. T.M. Hill, the oldest elder in the church led the meeting. There were many testimonies from both old and young.
This day with its social and spiritual blessings was equal to a revival for the church.

May 22, 1936
Memorial Day celebrated at Freedom Church
The annual Memorial Day service was held at Freedom church May 17. The day was opened by Sunday school, under the supervision of Mrs. Mamie Graves with services at 11:30 a.m., with Rev. Robert Fritts delivering the sermon.
A sumptuous dinner was served on the grounds during the noon hour followed by the decoration of the graves by The Woodmen of the World under the directed of Sidney Fritts.
The Rev. S.B. McNeely delivered the sermon in the afternoon with Rev. Richardson in charge of the devotional and singing by the Forest Grove choir.
Many former residents of the community were present, and the day is marked as one of the largest in attendance in the history of the church.

June 25, 1937
Weston Sunday school Convention
The Weston District Sunday School Convention will be held at Greens Chapel, July 1, beginning at 9:30 a.m., and concluding with a committee report at 3:10 p.m.
W.F. Winders is district president and Irene Cain, secretary. Mr. Winders invites all and ensures all choirs that may be in attendance that a place will be arranged on the program for them, even if appearance has not been previously arranged.
Special features will also find places on the schedule according to Winders who

At noon, a basket dinner will be served on the lawn and preparations are being made for the largest crowd in the history of this convention. All sorts of delicacies and good pure wholesome food will be in abundance as it has always been.
The afternoon session begins at 1:30 p.m., with a musical program and addresses of Sunday school ideals will be made by Mrs. J.B. Hina, Gladys Walker and county attorney Stone, each choosing topics directly related to the general subject.

E. Jeffrey Travis speaks on Religious Education and later Rev. Wallace Rutherford sums up the work and situation of the district concluding at 3:10 p.m., with the reports of secretaries and reports of committees.
Leaders from all parts of the county, as well as those of adjoining counties, plan to be in attendance. It is a day long to be remembered and eagerly looked forward to by everyone.

Pictures for the article have been shared with me by family and friends. The Tolu Missionary Society picture made in 1911 was provided by a former Tolu resident who now lives in Chicago, Ill., Doris Lucas Miller. Miller tells me she used to live in the log house that sat on what is now the Robert White farm. She lived in that house as a small child and until she graduated from Tolu High School, class of 1938. The house was simply known as the Wallace place. As a child, she played at Ridgeway, when the Griffith family lived there. Her friends, Nellie and Bib, played dress up in many of the old fashioned clothes from yesteryear.
Mrs. John Sleamaker in the picture is Mrs. Miller's grandmother. Her father, Clyde Lucas, died in October 1940 and the family left the farm, but Doris says her heart will always be in those dear old Kentucky hills.
The Freedom Church group picture was shared with me by Darrell Duffy, and the Chapel Hill group by Maxine Bebout Croft.

Seven-year-old showcases good heart

STAFF REPORT

Some of the community's less fortunate have a few extra items in the pantry thanks to Trace Derrington's good heart and entrepreneurial spirit.

The seven-year-old Crittenden County boy jumped on an idea proposed by his mother's co-worker and ended up with $231 to spend locally on groceries for his church's food pantry. Before Christmas, Debbie Summers, who works with Derrington's mother Casey Winstead at Shear Illusions, suggested that he sell apple cider and coffee to raise money for Marion Baptist's food ministry. Summers, Winstead and their co-worker Sara Travis sweetened the deal, agreeing to match Derrington's earnings. In two days before Christmas, the second-grader earned $57.75 through sales and donations. "It was a good idea because I was helping," Derrington said, estimating his contribution will help about 103 people.

Trace Derrington sits in the middle of the groceries that he purchased to help support Marion Baptist Church's food ministry.

African Americans shaped minister's life

Irma was a domestic in our home in Meridian, Miss. I was impressed with how fast and how smart she was. In no time, she learned how my mother wanted things done. She knew where everything was supposed to be; and though she only worked afternoons, she kept our house in order. My parents paid her $10 for 15 hours work each week. That was more than other people paid domestic help. Someone told my parents they were silly to pay so much. My mother answered, "She deserves more." I had known people like Irma before, but she is the first one I remember that really influenced my life.

Leroy was the custodian in our church. When the new pastor came, some deacons said Leroy was a problem and would probably need to be dismissed. Our new pastor suggested they wait. He asked Leroy to walk him around the building and show him what he did. The pastor bragged about the good things and simply said nothing about others. He treated Leroy as a person, not as a "hand." At the first deacons meeting, my pastor suggested rather than fire Leroy that they give him a raise. I watched Leroy's self-esteem grow. He became an excellent custodian.

Then there was Costin. Having been reared in the south, I never went to school with folk like him until seminary. Costin sat in front of me in class. I had been taught my people were always smarter than his people. However, Costin made consistently better grades than I did. I learned Costin was smarter than I was. It was a revelation that set me free. Costin visited his mother who was ill. I asked him where she lived and how she was. "She stays in Roxboro," he answered, "and she's better. I stayed there, too, until I had to come back to school." I smiled at his use of the language; then I realized he had spoken of what was important. He "stayed" with his mom. He was with her when she needed him.

Andrew was a gentleman; he would have been comfortable in aristocracy. Andrew was a deacon in the church I served in Kansas City. He was a Sunday school teacher and very faithful to his church. He was over six feet tall, so I had to look up to him. He had a deep rich voice like I have always wanted. When he prayed, my oldest daughter said, "Dad, he must really be a saint." He blessed my life. I loved him like a brother; and he loved me, his pastor.

As I write, others come to mind – Dorsey, Maurice, Olivia, Otis, Marion and more. Why am I telling you about these people? They were all black, African Americans who influenced my life for good. Thank you, God.

MPD urges cars locked after slew of break-ins

STAFF REPORT

Marion Police Department is investigating a rash of burglaries where items have been taken from unlocked parked cars around town.

Police Chief Ray O'Neal urges residents to protect their valuables by locking vehicles even when they're parked in driveways outside their own homes.

Early this week, a number of complaints were filed by residents of South Walker Street, North Walker Street, Old Shady Grove Road and Club Drive. In every incident, someone had rummaged through vehicles, taking anything of value.

Kiebler

William R. "Ricky" Kiebler, 55, of Paducah died Jan. 28, 2012 at Lourdes Hospital in Paducah.

Released inmates violate parole

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

Kentucky corrections officials say 75 state prison inmates granted early release in January have been found in violation of the rules for their freedom, but none had committed new felonies. As many as 15 inmates at Crittenden County Detention Center were granted early release.

Warrants have been issued for 23 parolees who are missing. Corrections officials said another 41 released last month face revocation due to violation of release terms.

Kentucky last month released 952 prisoners early and is preparing to let out another 204 this month.

The state's most violent criminals aren't eligible for the programs, but January's list included armed robbers, burglars and arsonists.

Engage your child by being active to help development

It is very important for kids of all ages to be active. Even toddlers can be active and it is a good way to add activity to their days. When children have the opportunity to be active everyday it becomes part of their routine which can lead to higher activity rates when they are older.

It is important for children to be active because it helps

Nancy Hunt Home Notes

UK Cooperative Extension Agent

to develop not only their bodies, but also their minds and even social skills. Children learn large motor skills through active play such as running, skipping and jumping.

Being active helps a child's mind with spatial development and concentration levels. Socially, being active, especially with other children, in games allows social skills to develop such as waiting for a turn and sharing.

Some active games that you can do with your toddler and young child are:

■ Have a Parade! Throw a parade in your home. This will require lots of marching from you and your little one. If you have pots or pans and a wooden spoon you can even have a little bit of music as you march around.

■ Bubbles! Blow bubbles and let your little one chase them. This is great both indoors and outdoors!

■ Dance party! Turn on some music and let the beat move you and your toddler. Play a game. If the music is fast, you have to move fast and when the music is slow, you move slowly. You can also use height. When the music is fast, you have to move with your arms up high in the air and when the music is slow, you have to move with your arms down low.

When kids develop a love for being active, they are more likely to stay active as they grow older. Keeping it fun and interesting is important for you too!

Time to start thinking about 4-H camp

It seems just the other day we had visions of sugar plums in our heads but if you are like me, dreams of warm weather and outdoor fun fill your thoughts. For many kids the memories of the greatest week of summer includes their time spent at 4-H Camp!

What child wouldn't remember a week filled with all of their favorite activities? Activities like swimming, riflery, archery, horseback riding, rock climbing, canoeing, fishing, arts and crafts and so much more. A week spent making new friends and visiting with friends made at past 4-H camps creates memories that they will treasure for the rest of their lives.

4-H camp is open to all youth, ages nine-14. They do not have to be enrolled in

Bonnie Baker 4-H Extension

UK Cooperative Extension Agent

4-H to attend this amazing week of camp. 4-H Camp will be held June 19-22 at the West Kentucky 4-H Camp in Dawson Springs. 4-H camp is also affordable with cost only $150! This cost covers everything your child needs during the week, and they will remember it for the rest of their lives.

Space is limited at camp so sign up early to ensure your place at camp! To register for camp or to get more information please contact the Extension office at 965-5236.

Atchison-Tyner

Bryan and Trish Atchison of Salem announce the upcoming marriage of their daughter, Whitney Nicole Atchison, to John Alen Tyner, son of Jesse and Ann Tyner of Salem and the late Dennis and Judy Tyner.

Atchison is the granddaughter of Danny and Beverly Hunter of Salem and the late Dean and Cheryl Atchison. She is a 2011 graduate of Livingston Central High School. She is a member of Hopewell Cumberland Presbyterian Church and is employed by Hunter Motor Sports Cafe.

Tyner is the grandson of Ozella Bailey of Marion and the late R.G. Bailey and the late Syble and J.B. Tyner. He is a 2002 graduate of Crittenden County High School and is employed by Pine Pluff Sand and Gravel.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 3 p.m., Feb. 11 at Hopewell Cumberland Presbyterian Church in Lola.

STLP students participate in Murray State Regional Crittenden County Elementary School students Hannah Cooksey (left) and Haily DiMaggio participated in the annual Murray State Regional Student Technology Leadership Program (STLP) Competition on Dec. 13. The students presented their showcase, "Do You Have a Plan?" which offers information about preparing families for any type of natural disaster such as the ice storm our community survived in 2009. Having scored a 108 out of 118, the girls earned the privilege of traveling to Lexington in the spring to compete with other high-scoring projects around the state.

Woman's Club News

On Jan. 4, the Woman's Club of Marion met for the second time at Rocket Arena meeting room with school educators for an overview of school programs. A new program, "Crosswalk Learning Center," was reviewed by coordinator Cheryl Burkes. So far 124 students have participated. The staff is comprised of five certified teachers, four student tutors and one community volunteer. The program consists of tutoring, homework help, credit recovery, enrichment programs and college readiness/ACT prep. The fall enrichment classes offered were photography, cooking, art and drama. Upcoming classes are visiting artist programs, management Mondays, archery and cooking. Tonya Driver brought members up-to-date on the Big 6 Timeline. Big 6 Goals are cultivate college and career readiness, improve attendance, increase student achievement, maximize resource effectiveness, enhance internal and external connectivity and boost a rocking culture and climate. Community Educator Holly White provided some statistics for last year's Build-A Bed project, in which 30 beds were completed, and the Happy Feet program through which 100 pairs of shoes were given out. Program Chair for January was Dr. Rachel Yarbrough. The Woman's Club of Marion is proud to have Susan Alexander on the ballot for KFWC State President, which will be voted on during the annual convention in April in Lexington. Members are encouraged to support this long-time member in this wonderful achievement. The next meeting for the Woman's Club will be the Mid-Winter Membership Brunch at 11 a.m., Saturday. After the meal, Van and Marjorie Yandell will present a program on "International Innovative Community Evangelism (IICE)." The Yandells are retired educators living in Caldwell County. They are graduates of Murray State University with Rank 1 certification. They currently serve as co-directors of IICE Ministries, working primarily as Christian missionaries in western Kentucky and southern Illinois. They have participated in numerous mission trips, both international and domestic, and have also volunteered with the American Red Cross, Habitat for Humanity, Samaritan's Purse and the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association.

Woman's Club members can make reservations for the brunch by calling the Student named to Transy Dean's list

Crittenden County High School graduate and Transylvania University sophomore Tyler Starrett has been named to the Dean's List for the 2011 fall term. To be named to the Dean's List, a student must achieve at least a 3.5 grade point average during the term.

Starrett is the son of Jody Starrett of Marion.

Hodge participates in Posters-at-the-Capitol

Senator Dorsey Ridley, D-Henderson, met with Mary Ann Hodge at the State Capitol. Hodge, of Marion, who attends Murray State University, was in Frankfort taking part in the Posters-at-the-Capitol event. On Jan. 26, Kentucky's eight public universities and the Kentucky Community and Technical College System hosted the 11th annual event that features the research, scholarly, and creative work of undergraduates from across the state.

What's bugging you?

What's bugging us in the county this week...

The stomach bug continues to top the list along with cough, sore throat and other cold symptoms. Warmer weather has also led to a return of allergy and sinus issues. Another common illness seen in January and February is the Respiratory Syncytial Virus or RSV. This illness is mainly seen in young children and symptoms include irritability, poor feeding, wheezing and cough. Again, always consult your provider if symptoms persist or worsen. Have a great week and always wash those hands.

Evening Belles
Submitted by Margaret Gilland
The Evening Belles Home-maker Club met at 11:30 a.m., Jan. 12 at the Crittenden County Extension Office with seven members and Nancy Hunt present. President Pat Carter called the meeting to order and led the Pledge of Allegiance. The thought for the day was "God never forgets us." The devotional, "Remember Me," was read by Carter in Helen Lewis' absence. Roll call was answered with members' favorite thing to do on a snowy day. Hunt advised of upcoming committee meetings and sought one member for each. Louise May volunteered for cookbooks and Christmas in Marion. Algie Richards led the group in a game with Ann Crider winning the prize. Helen Springs presented a lesson on heritage. She displayed her father's doll estimated to be 115 years old and a baby dress dated 1917 or 1918, as well as several short stories written by her about the events in her lifetime - all very well preserved. A card was signed for Lewis who was in the hospital. Each person brought their lunch and Springs brought dessert and drinks. The meeting was then adjourned.

Get paid for dove field

Kentucky farmers can help carry on the hunting tradition and earn extra cash by enrolling in the Co-operative Dove Field Program. Enrollment is currently under way and will continue until mid-March.

"Under the new Voluntary Public Access and Habitat Incentive Program, increased payments are available for 2012," said Rocky Pritchert, migratory bird biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

The Cooperative Dove Field Program, which began in 1998, can generate up to $10,000 for a landowner who leases a field on their land for public dove hunting.

"We will accept fields ranging from 6 to 30 acres with additional payments for buffers around fields. Fields generally run from 15 to 30 acres in size," Pritchert said. "But, we encourage anyone interested to apply."

Farmers may plant an idle field to sunflowers, millet or another acceptable crop for a public dove field by working with a Kentucky Fish and Wildlife private lands biologist and following some simple guidelines.

Payment amounts depend on the number of acres enrolled, crop type and fulfillment of the plot management agreement with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife.

To get the process started, landowners must contact their Kentucky Fish and Wildlife private lands biologist or Natural Resources Conservation Service liaison. For a listing of biologists, log onto Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's homepage at fw.ky.gov. Click on the "Hunting, Trapping and Wildlife" tab and then on "Contact Us." Property owners may also call 1-800-858-1549 for more information.

Storm shoots down Rockets in third

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County unraveled in the third period as Central Hopkins turned a close game into a rout down the stretch Tuesday at Rocket Arena.

The Rockets (7-16) led three different times in the second period, but the Storm (7-17) reeled off a 14-3 run to start the second half and never looked back.

Crittenden – which trailed 13-0 out of the chute – recovered nicely with an 8-2 run in the final two minutes of the first period thanks largely to Thomas Scott and a Travis Gilbert three-pointer. That got Crittenden back into the game and the Rockets trailed 26-24 at the half.

Then poor shot selection and turnovers doomed the Rockets. Crittenden had 21 turnovers for the game and Central just 14.

"I feel like we should have gotten this one," Rocket coach Denis Hodge said. "But we did not play as a team. We tried to play as individuals."

Crittenden sweeps Caldwell

Devin Clark pulled down 14 rebounds and Thomas Scott and Aaron Owen had 17 and 16, points, respectively as the Rockets finished a sweep of Caldwell County (3-17) this season. Crittenden beat the Tigers 60-45 Saturday at Princeton after knocking them off by just nine in December at Marion.

Rockets stay close with Hoptown

Crittenden County hosted perhaps the top team in the region Friday night and played the Hopkinsville Tigers to a respectable finish.

Hoptown – which has the best record in the Second Region at 20-2 – jumped out to a 42-26 lead at the break, but Crittenden stormed back in the third period, cutting the margin to five points. However, the talented Tigers outscored the Rockets 13-7 down the stretch to claim the victory.

Bobby Knox had 24 points for the Rockets and Thomas Scott scored 19. Devin Clark had a game-high 12 rebounds.

Junior guard Jordan Majors paced Hopkinsville with 25 points and nine boards. Freshman standout Jaqualis Matlock scored eight and got nine rebounds for the Tigers.

Lady Pirates escape with victory over Lady Rockets

STAFF REPORT

Heath (9-14) pulled out a close 57-50 win over Crittenden County's girls (2-20) Tuesday night at Rocket Arena.

The Lady Pirates made 7-of-8 foul shots down the stretch to close out what was a three-point game with 1:25 left.

Crittenden set the tempo early, but poor shooting and turnovers hurt the girls in the third period. When Bailey Brown and Maggie Collins fouled out in the fourth quarter, freshman Kayla Davis scored the final four for Crittenden.

Tilghman star gets 20

Paducah Tilghman's Chelsey Shumpert – perhaps the best player in the First Region – scored 20 points in a trip to Rocket Arena Saturday night as the Lady Tornado (19-5) blew away Crittenden's girls 79-39.

Kaitlin Binkley led Crittenden with 15 points.

Lady Rockets cool from floor

Crittenden played well early and late last Thursday at Princeton, but Caldwell County (11-8) outmanned the Lady Rockets during the middle part of the game and won by 25. The Lady Rockets shot just 27 percent from the floor while Caldwell made about half of its shots.

Dugout Club officers resign, without help leagues are in trouble

STAFF REPORT

Executive officers of the Crittenden County Dugout Club have resigned, leaving the future of organized youth baseball and softball in question.

The club organizes and oversees summer, youth baseball and softball leagues at Marion Crittenden-County Park which includes about 300 boys and girls. The club met Sunday, hoping to generate renewed interest from parents and boosters, but no one stepped forward to serve on the board.

President Shelley Davidson, Vice President Michael Hunt, Treasurer Todd Riley and Amanda Jones, who coordinates operation of the concession stand, each resigned Tuesday, according to Riley. That leaves just two members on the board, Jim Cosby and Chad Mott. The board normally operates with eight members, including an executive committee made up of officers such as president, vice president, secretary and treasurer.

Cosby said he and Mott hope to call another meeting in the near future.

"We need to have a new board in place within two weeks," Cosby said.

Registration for leagues traditionally begins in February or March. The deadline to register a child is customarily late March and practices start in April. Games are played in May and June.

"The remaining members will have to decide what's in the best interest of the program," Cosby said. "Without more interest I don't know if the program will continue at all, or if so, it may not be to the scale that we're accustomed to."

Cosby said anyone interested in helping support the program by volunteering their time may call his cell number, (812) 305-2697.

During Sunday's meeting, there was discussion about hiring someone to operate the concession stand. That, and director of umpiring, are the club's only paid positions. The concession stand operator earns a $250 week salary for eight weeks during the season, plus 20 percent of receipts during post-season tournaments.

Most board members who announced their resignations this week say they are willing to help transition operations to a new board so that the program and club can continue to serve the community as it has for almost 30 years. In the 1980s, operation of the youth baseball program was handed over to the Dugout Club from the Rotary Club, which no longer exists.

Work at the local ball fields is a sure sign spring is just around the corner. School District employees David Perryman, Brian Kirby and Bobby Campbell have been working at Marion-Crittenden County Park this week, building a new pressbox at the girls' softball field where the Lady Rockets play their home games.

Perryman, Gray enshrined Friday

Point guard helped carry Crittenden to 1984 regional semis

STAFF REPORT

Vanessa Gray is remembered for her basketball moxie and her legacy speaks volumes on the Lady Rocket record book.

Gray, who graduated in 1984, will be inducted into the Farmers Bank Marion-Crittenden County Athletics Hall of Fame in a halftime ceremony during the Lady Rockets' game against Dawson Springs.

Gray, who is now a basketball referee in the Fourth Region, recalls fondly her days wearing white and blue. But, her basketball career started in purple. She grew up in Lyon County and played there through her freshman season. The Lyon girls team won a Fifth District title when she was in ninth grade and the future looked bright. When her mother and stepfather moved to Marion, Gray said she could have stayed in Eddyville and finished high school. Instead, she chose to come to Marion and play for an underdog.

Crittenden had struggled for a couple of seasons, but thanks to Gray and a stellar group of ball players, the Lady Rockets won 42 games over two seasons, won a district championship and were a regional semifinalist.

"She was quick and a good shot," Nicky Winders, voice of Crittenden County basketball on WMJL, says as he recalls Gray's playing days.

"She had basketball skills. She was a small girl, but played much bigger than she was. She had basketball savvy like Shannon (Hodge) and some of the other girls who played back then."

What's amazing is that Gray was able to accumulate solid scoring numbers despite fighting for points with two teammates who were among the most formidable scorers in school history – No. 2 all-time scorer Shannon Collins Hodge and the 12th all-time leading scorer, Robyn Davidson Taylor.

Hodge, Crittenden's current head basketball coach, was a junior when Gray was a senior. They were on the last Lady Rocket team that won a district crown until last season. Gray, who is fifth on the all-time girls' scoring list at CCHS with 1,123 points, scored 21 in a memorable Fifth District championship game over Caldwell County in 1984. At the time, coach Joe McCord told The Press that it was perhaps Gray's best game of the season. She averaged 13 as a senior, but had scored even more as an underclassman. In three seasons at Crittenden, Gray averaged 15 points a game. Gray led the Lady Rockets in scoring as a sophomore and junior. She was All-District, All-Region and an honorable mention selection for the 1984 All-State Basketball Team. Gray was also homecoming queen as a senior.

After high school, Gray went on to excel as a collegiate point guard. She was all-conference and team captain at Wabash Valley in Mount Carmel, Ill. There, she averaged 13 points and four assists a game. Then, Murray State coach Bud Childress recruited Gray to play for the Lady Racers where she was the sixth man as a junior, and the starting guard and team captain as a senior. At MSU, Gray was on a team that won more in two seasons than any previous Lady Racer team in history.

After college, Gray coached at Lyon County, Hopkinsville and Cumberland County before deciding that officiating might be more her style. It was.

"I love it," she said. "It's something you have to love or you wouldn't do it because you get yelled at and called names every night."

As a former player and coach, Gray says she's perhaps more tolerant than most referees. She knows what's it's like to be on the floor and in the coaching box.

"If I had it to do all over again, I'd probably have gotten into officiating earlier," she said. "But I do miss the teaching part of coaching and the relationships you build with kids."

Gray is forging a whole new relationship right now, helping raise a three-year-old boy who lost his mother last year. She hopes to adopt him soon.

Humbled by and appreciative of her selection, Gray said, "I first and foremost want to thank God, and then my family because they were always there and always encouraged me along the way."

Perryman's competitiveness key to Hall of Fame career

STAFF REPORT

Chad Perryman left and indelible mark on Crittenden County sports. He's still remembered for famous football catches, swings of the bat and his pithy play on the basketball court.

Perryman, who graduated in 1994, was truly a three-sport star. His desire and drive to win sometimes pushed his emotions to the edge. But it was that same intensity that made him a special player.

"I can't play checkers and accept losing," Perryman said.

When Perryman left the gridiron after his final game as a senior football player, he stood as the school's all-time leader for receiving yards (1,655), receptions (85) and receiving touchdowns (15). At the time, Perryman's figures almost doubled the next highest total in each of those statistical categories.

Although Perryman came along following the 1985 state championship – a period considered the glory years of local high school football – he never played on a team with an extraordinary record. The Rockets had just two winning seasons, finishing 6-5 in both 1991 and 1992, during Perryman's tenure. However, his individual accomplishments remain rock solid. He is still second in each of the aforementioned categories, testament to the longevity of his personal success.

"We played against some tough competition," Perryman said. "Back then Webster had some very good teams and we played Heath, Reidland, who had Jamie Lee, and Fulton County, who had four players who were like college guys. Some of them went on to play at Murray State."

His fondest memories are from football, although Perryman excelled at everything he did.

"Those Friday nights," he said, "were special. I always loved baseball and played all three sports growing up. But once you get in high school, nothing compares to Friday nights."

He played running back and receiver and was moved all around the defensive side of the ball. Perryman also had a kicking career that is often overlooked. He punched through Chad Perryman (32) played running back and receiver his senior year. Here, he takes a hand-off from QB Bryan O'Neal.

28 extra points and attempted 35 – both figures are good enough to rank him fifth in each career list. Perryman also holds the record for career placekicking percentage (minimum of 30 attempts) with 80 percent of his kicks leading to points. Perryman is noted in the Kentucky High School Athletic Association Record Book for having a 72-yard punt, the eighth longest in state football history.

One of his most memorable plays was a game-winning 42-yard touchdown catch from quarterback Bryan O'Neal, lifting the Rockets to a 20-14 win over Trigg County in 1993.

"We were in our two-minute offense and had been running five- and 10-yard out routes," he remembered. "I could tell the guy defending me was about ready to try to jump the route, so I went to coach (Al) Starnes and told him the out-and-up was there."

Starnes gave him the go-ahead and Perryman took the play to the huddle.

"I told the line to block this and give (O'Neal) some time and we're going to win the game."

"When I looked around I saw Bryan pump fake then he aired it out. The defender bit and I caught the pass for a touchdown," he said, remembering the details like it happened last week.

In that game alone, Perryman accounted for 148 yards of his team's 301 total offense. It was a typical box score during that season. As a senior, Perryman was MVP of the football team and led the Rockets in offensive

Big Night at Rocket Arena

The Hall of Fame induction ceremony will be held Friday night during the varsity basketball doubleheader at Rocket Arena. It will be a busy night at the arena with homecoming and the girls' basketball team's senior night festivities. The boys play Fort Campbell to open the evening at 6 p.m. Homecoming ceremonies are between games and the Hall of Fame induction will be at halftime of the second game as the girls play Dawson Springs.

yards. He received five trophies at the awards banquet and was named to the All West Kentucky Conference Team.

Even though Perryman only played two seasons for the Rocket basketball team – during his freshman and sophomore years – he almost made the top 50 scorers in school history. Perryman scored 156 points during the 1990-91 season and 231 during the 1991-92, mostly off the bench. Perryman had a 9.7 career scoring average and 387 career points.

Baseball is where Perryman's career is most legendary. He was a five-year starter for the Rockets, but due to a lack of statistical record-keeping, we only know that he hit .341 in his eighth-grade season. The rest of his numbers from that year are lost to time. However, his career batting average of .371 is currently seventh on the school's all-time list.

In 1993 alone, Perryman batted .487, having 38 hits in 78 at bats. He had quite the eye for the ball and showed this by only striking out three times in 78 at bats during the 1993 season. After the conclusion of his senior year, Perryman held the school's career highs for average, hits, singles, doubles, triples, RBIs, runs and official at-bats.

Perryman was a key player for the 1993 district champion club and was selected as a Kentucky Junior All-Star. The all-star team was comprised of the top junior baseball players from each of the 16 regions in the state. Perryman was chosen to represent the second region. After high school, Perryman went on to play for Paducah Community College for two years, and was a member of the last baseball team PCC ever fielded. He also played several years with the highly respected Storm youth baseball team coached by Cincinnati Reds scout Jim Grief and the Paducah Post 31 club coached by legendary skipper Doc Hideg.

Chamber event features pharmacy, PrayerGate

Marion's newest drug store, KB Pharmacy, hosted Tuesday's Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce quarterly luncheon at Marion Baptist Church Family Life Center. Pictured are pharmacists and owners Bradley Boone (left) and Mike Keller (right) visiting with GOP state representative candidate Lynn Bechler of Marion. Keller spoke to Chamber members about pharmacy offerings, including a smart-phone app for prescription ordering and text and email notification when orders are filled. Keller also discussed optional prescription opportunities such as compounding for topical applications and flavoring agents for medicines that have a less-than-desirable taste. Larry Orr, founder of PrayerGate – a Marion-based intercessory prayer service – also spoke. Orr's daughter, Ginger Boone, who is also the wife of one of the pharmacy owners, sang "Go Light Your World." Main Street Italian Grill catered the event.

Subject to all restrictions, conditions and covenants and to all legal highways and easements. The description provided herein was provided by the parties and is contained in the Judgment and Order of Sale. Address: 210 Freedom Church Road, Marion, KY 42064. The purchaser at the Master Commissioner's sale shall take the real estate free and clear of the claims of the parties to this action, but it shall be sold subject to the following: Current year real estate taxes not yet delinquent affecting the real estate for which the purchaser shall take no credit on the purchase price, and further any delinquent State, County and/or City real estate taxes sold pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 134 to any private purchaser during the pendency of this action. Easements, restrictions and stipulations of record. Any matters which would be disclosed by an accurate survey or inspection of the property. Any current assessments for public improvements levied against the property. The Plaintiff, the Master Commissioner and the Court shall not be deemed to have warranted title of the real estate to the purchaser. Said property shall be sold with the improvements thereon "as is". The real estate is indivisible and cannot be divided without materially impairing its value and the value of Plaintiff's lien thereon. As a result, the real estate shall be sold as a whole for the purpose of satisfying the Judgment Liens herein adjudged against the real estate. The sale shall be made to the highest and best bidder or bidders. The Plaintiff may submit a specified bid by facsimile prior to the sale. The Master Commissioner will take from the purchaser or purchasers cash payment in full, or a bond with good and sufficient surety or sureties, bearing interest at the rate of 12% per annum from the day of sale and payable to the Master Commissioner within (3) thirty days from the date of sale. If a bond is given, the Master Commissioner shall require the purchaser to make a cash deposit of the sum of (10%) Ten Percent of the bid amount to be applied to any expenses occasioned by any default of the purchaser. Said bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment and shall be and remain a lien on the property sold as additional security for the payment of the purchase price. Upon confirmation of the sale, the risk of loss shall pass to the purchaser. In the event the Plaintiff becomes the purchaser of the real estate at the Master Commissioner's sale, and if the Plaintiff's bid is less than its lien, Plaintiff may comply with the terms of sale by taking credit upon this Judgment without making the cash depositor executing the sale bond as provided for in the Judgment. Upon default of the deposit or posting of bond by the purchaser, the Master Commissioner shall immediately resell the property upon the same terms and conditions set out herein. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in the following priority: The costs of this action including the Master Commissioner's fee. Unpaid delinquent State, County and/or City ad valorem real estate taxes owed to those government entities and not sold pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 134 to any private purchaser during the pendency of this action. The Full satisfaction of Plaintiff's lien, including reimbursement for its costs, expenses and attorney's fees. The satisfaction of any junior liens on the real estate in the same priority that they held on the real estate. Any remaining proceeds of the sale shall be held by the Master Commissioner until further order of this Court. The purchaser of the real estate is entitled to possession of the real estate upon confirmation of the sale by the Court. To secure the purchaser possession of the real estate, a writ of possession will be issued and entered by the Court. The purpose of this sale is the satisfaction of a Judgment entered on May 13, 2010 on behalf of the Plaintiff against the Defendants, James R. Roberts, et al, for the principal sum of $40,788.73, interest on the principal sum at the rate of 8.375% per annum from November 1, 2009 until paid, attorney's fees and for court costs expended herein.

Dated this _____ day of January, 2012

RESPECTFULLY SUBMITTED,
Brandi D. Rogers

Charges mount against two men in suspected burglaries

STAFF REPORT

Charges continue to mount against a couple of men police arrested recently for their believed involvement in a series of burglaries in the county.

During an appearance last week in Crittenden District Court, Public Defender Paul Sysol asked for bond reduction for Allen Curtis Hoover, 31, of Marion and James E. Millikan, 35, of Marion. Hoover is charged with four burglaries and Millikan two. Hoover also faces a felony charge of flagrant non-support.

Judge Daniel Heady denied the motions for bond reduction. Hoover remains jailed at Crittenden County Detention Center on $20,000 cash and a $5,000 surety bond. Milliken remains jailed on a $15,000 cash bond.

Hoover was arraigned last week on two new burglary charges. He was originally charged with breaking into Wildwing Hunting Lodge near Sturgis and Chandler and Vaughn Cattle Company in Marion. He is now charged with first-degree burglary by Kentucky State Trooper Darron Hollamon for Hoover's alleged involvement in a crime on Ky. 365 at a private storage building. Taken in that November burglary were a gun, chain-saws and assorted other items amounting to a few thousand dollars in value.

Hoover was also arraigned last week on a third-degree burglary charge for his alleged involvement in a break-in at a building on Ky. 506 in November where copper wire and other items were taken.

Millikan was arraigned on a first-degree burglary charge last week for his alleged involvement in the same burglary on Ky. 365 where a gun and other items were taken.

Speaker to share local slave ancestry

STAFF REPORT

For some, a trip back through their family history can yield shocking surprises. When it comes to slavery, the shock can come whether white or black.

In two weeks, Pam Smith will make the trek from her Chicagoland home to Marion to share her journey through the past and research strategies that helped to put her story together. A speaker with the Kentucky Humanities Council, Smith will present her program, "If Records Could Talk," a joint historical-genealogical society-sponsored effort to offer insight to locals who are interested in discovering their ancestry.

When Smith began her genealogical research 20 years ago, she had no idea where it might lead. But, in fact, it brought her to Crittenden County where her ancestors were enslaved before the Civil War. They were among county's 848 slaves reported in the nation's 1850 census and 939 in 1860.

Considering the color of her own skin, she was not shocked to find her lineage was born of slavery. Yet through her research, she was amazed the lifeless records she found reflected the indifference shown her people.

"It's kind of a sacred journey for me," Smith said. "I unearthed ancestors who were often invisible in the records because they were slaves."

It may be hard for some Crittenden Countians to relate that their family may have treated others simply as property because of the color of their skin, dealt with by their own ancestors with the same dispassion shown livestock.

"My ancestors were buried over in corner of the dirt," Smith added, describing her discoveries as she took a walk into the past at local cemeteries beginning in 2005.

In the two population counts between the county's formation in 1842 and abolition of slavery, census records identify slaves by the name of their owner, listing only their approximate age, sex and race. Besides black slaves found in records, some were identified as "mulatto" — mixed white and black ancestry — and "yellow," or Asian.

But as whites, slave owners are much easier to trace in the old, yellowed records and online databases. Smith said those willing to peer into their past will find names familiar to the community; ones found in the phone book today.

Smith does not share her journey or tips to delving into the record books in order to unearth shame or guilt for those whose families may have once owned slaves. In fact, her aim is quite the opposite — to help close any divide that may still exist between the races.

"Part of what I'm interested in is what can be done to break down the unspoken barriers that still exist," she said. "It will be beneficial to both blacks and whites."

Though it may come with a bit of uneasiness, tracing lineage to slave ownership can help people come to terms with societal differences today.

"It's important for whites to consider whether or not they want to look at slaveholding in their own families," she adds.

Her program will begin at 6:30 p.m., at Crittenden County Public Library.
