Month to make us all shiver

January ended last weekend much like it came in – cold. After starting the month below freezing for 10 straight days, Crittenden County left January on a similar note, with three straight days at or near the freezing point. The third coldest temperature of the month was registered early Sunday morning at 7.4 degrees, according to the Kentucky Mesonet project which has a weather station near Mattoon. The coldest temperature of the month was 1.8 degrees on Jan. 10. The average high for the month was 37.2 and average low 22.3 for an overall average temperature of a very chilly 29.7 degrees.

Snow driving

Local authorities say that despite treacherous road conditions in the earliest hours of last weekend's snow storm, there were virtually no serious accidents. There were no wrecks in the city limits. Deputies assisted some stranded motorists in the county but there were no bad wrecks. State and local road crews did a tremendous job of clearing roads quickly, according to local law enforcement officials. "I think most people just stayed in while it was bad," said Police Chief Ray O'Neal.

Floyd files, too

Ken Floyd, 62, has filed as an independent to run for Crittenden County Judge-Executive in the November general election. Floyd has been manager of Five Star Convenience Center in Marion for 18 years. Prior to that, he worked for Potter and Brumfield for 18 years. He is a lifelong Crittenden Countian.

Go Red Friday

Don't forget to wear red Friday in support of Crittenden Health Systems' push to raise awareness for the No. 1 killer of women in America – heart disease. Participate and you can possibly win one of the hospital's random drawings.

No driving test

There will be no driver's license examiner in Crittenden County this week. Therefore, there will be no written exams or road tests for prospective drivers at the courthouse in Marion on Friday.

New doc found medicine inside mother's Bible

Dr. Mayfield joins CHS hospital staff

BY CHRIS EVANS
 PRESS EDITOR

As a child, Dr. Steven Mayfield's mother would read him passages from the Bible. The words from those gospels, as much as anything else, led this former Texan to medicine.

A verse from Revelations was partly responsible for Dr. Mayfield taking up the sword of compassion and caring.

"I always wondered who would care for people at the end of time," he said. A strong desire to help others pushed him to change career paths and work toward a medical degree after several years of moving dirt.

Two weeks ago, Dr. Mayfield joined Crittenden Health Systems as an in-house family practice physician. He will see patients at the hospital's clinic and handle other duties, including shifts in the emergency room.

Mayfield, 49, took a non-traditional path to becoming a doctor. At 28 he decided to leave his full-time job as a heavy equipment operator and enroll at the University of Texas-Arlington. He already had some community college credits, and at first, he chose civil engineering, something he knew a good bit about. Somewhere along the way, he swapped majors and pursued pre-med. It took him a while to finish that undergraduate degree, working his way through college and starting a family at the same time.

"I had three children by the time I finished college," he said.

Dr. Mayfield met his wife Melinda while taking Tae Kwon Do classes. He's part Native American and German and she urges him to lay off the soft drinks. The couple organically grow their own fruits and vegetables and Melinda makes their own bread from crushed wheat. They now have nine children ranging in age from 1-19. The doctor is a member of the Chickasaw Nation and also has Choctaw and Cherokee running through his veins.

Dr. Mayfield received his medical degree after attending schools in the Caribbean and England. His residency was at Trover Clinic and he has spent the past three and half years at Livingston Hospital.

The family of 11 lives on 20 acres in Burna. One child is in college and the others are homeschooled. By staying close to home, Mayfield anticipates retaining many of the patient-doctor relationships he's forged in the past few years.

At Marion, Dr. Mayfield will join Joe Drawdy, an advanced registered nurse practitioner, in seeing patients at the hospital.

Dr. Mayfield will be in Marion three days a week, and two days a week he will see patients at the Burkhardt Clinic in Salem.

Dr. Steven Mayfield, MD, visits with Crittenden Health Systems' pharmacist Stuart Collins during rounds at the hospital late last week.

Taking account of our health

FROM STAFF & AP REPORTS

About 10 years ago the government set some lofty health goals for the nation to reach by 2010.

So how did we do? By many measures, not so hot. There are more obese Americans than a decade ago, not fewer. We eat more salt and fat, not less. More of us have high blood pressure. More of our children have untreated tooth decay.

Robin Curnel, chief nursing officer at Crittenden Health Systems, says there may not be as much backsliding as one might think. She says that through a variety of means, health care providers like those in Marion, are increasing public awareness about early prevention. Because of that, people are getting health screenings earlier in life.

"People know more now about hereditary disease and they seek earlier diagnosis and treatment," said Curnel, who points to health fairs, community clinics and other educational initiatives for encouraging community awareness of health risks.

Indeed, the nation has made at least some progress on many goals. Vaccination rates have improved. Most workplace injuries are down. And death rates from stroke, cancer and heart disease are all dropping.

Curnel also says that Crittenden Hospital and other health care providers are more focused on blood stream infections and patient safety, which helps improve the overall health of the community.

Yet as we move into a new decade, government is analyzing how well the nation has met the 2010 goals and drawing up a new set of goals for 2020 expected to be more numerous and – perhaps – less ambitious.

Mapleview Cemetery doubling

BY ALLISON EVANS
 PRESS ASST. EDITOR

An expansion of Mapleview Cemetery that will eventually double the size of the burial ground, will include a small reflection pond and modern arrangement of gravesites.

Development won't start until 2011, but planning has been ongoing for several years. Currently, 90 percent of the estimated 960 available plots are occupied in the 27-acre cemetery.

Bill Fox, chairman of the Mapleview Cemetery Association, said the expansion will be done in

Automaker fixing vehicles

FROM STAFF & AP REPORTS

Toyota Motor Corp. said Monday its dealers should get parts to fix a sticky gas pedal problem by the end of this week as the automaker apologized to customers and tried to bring an end to a recall that has affected 4.2 million vehicles.

The company said in a statement that it has begun shipping parts and is training dealers on the repairs. Some dealers will stay open around the clock to fix the 2.3 million cars and trucks affected by the recall in the U.S.

Locally, Par 4 Plastics will be affected by the Toyota issue, because the automaker has stopped production of some models.

$1 million call nears payoff for Marion

STAFF REPORT

The City of Marion is on the doorstep to collecting a $1 million payoff for a phone call it accepted in the late 1980s.

Ann Cooper was city clerk back then and when the phone rang, she took down the information then buzzed David Cobb, who was city administrator. She explained that a fellow named Jim Price was on the phone asking about a permit for making hydroelectric power at the Smithland Dam. It was a bit confusing, but the bottom line was that Price needed a municipal partner and the folks he wanted to talk to in Paducah hadn't been available. Marion was the next nearest city on the map he was viewing. Time was of the essence.

Could anyone there help him? Price asked.

Marion officials said, yes. More than 20 years have passed since that call, but the project has stayed somewhat on course. It's taken a few turns and there have been a political or regulatory wrinkle or two, but Marion officials have always held out hope that it would hit paydirt.

Now, the check's in the mail so to speak.

Weather exposes issues in current Kentucky law

Last Thursday, Jan. 28, marked the one-year anniversary of the first full day of last year's devastating ice storm. It was also a day we sat in Frankfort amid weather reports that parts of the state could experience snow storms, leaving as much as a foot and a half of snow on the ground. Subsequently, we adjourned Thursday afternoon until Monday to allow members to reach homes throughout the state before roads became impassable, or at least extremely treacherous. This does not mean we will miss a legislative day, it will simply move the schedule a day later in the latter part of March.

Discussing this subject affords me an appropriate opportunity to mention some legislation I'm sponsoring at the behest of the Kentucky Board of Pharmacy and with the support of the state's Public Health Commission.

Last year's ice storm, as well as the H1N1 pandemic, uncovered a need to look at Kentucky's pharmacy statutes to ensure that our pharmacists can deliver appropriate patient care during disasters and outbreaks of disease. During the ice storm, pharmacists in the affected areas did their best to meet the medication needs of their patients but were restricted by the fact that state statute only allows pharmacists to dispense a single 72-hour supply of refill medication when the refill has expired and the prescriber cannot be contacted. In many counties, telephone service was our far longer than 72 hours and pharmacists were unable to communicate with physicians for additional refill authorization. Additionally, Kentucky law requires that a pharmacist can only operate a pharmacy at a location that is designated on the pharmacy permit. Since many pharmacies were without power or were inaccessible to patients, some pharmacists were force to temporarily operate in another location, such as a community shelter.

The H1N1 situation turned up other obstacles to delivering care. Kentucky law restricts the ability of pharmacists to immunize in emergencies to adults only. Since children were a high priority group for the H1N1 vaccine, pharmacists were unable to be fully utilized as immunizers. Another scenario, which fortunately did not occur, would have been if there was a widespread outbreak of H1N1 that would have necessitated the mass dispensing of antiviral drugs. If this scenario would have occurred, potentially thousands of doses of the antiviral would have to be quickly dispensed. Under current law, a pharmacist could only dispense the drug pursuant to a prescription and each individual patient would have to obtain that prescription from a prescriber. If a mass outbreak would have occurred, obtaining thousands of prescriptions during a very limited time frame would be very difficult, if not impossible.

HB 300 addresses these issues by giving the governor the authority during a declared state of emergency to issue an executive order granting limited emergency powers to pharmacists. The governor has the option of allowing pharmacists all or more of the following emergency powers, depending on the nature of the emergency:

- Dispense up to a 30-day emergency supply of medication (specifically does not include controlled substances).
- Administer immunizations to children.
- Operate temporarily, a pharmacy in an area not designated on the pharmacy permit.

•Dispense drugs as needed to prevent or treat the disease or ailment responsible for the emergency.

I expect to hear the bill in the State Government Committee this week and get a floor vote in mid-February. It is legislation that will likely get some media attention and it's hard to visualize it not passing.

Though a shortened week, there was some committee action of interest to many. House Bill 43 is a measure that would make Kentucky roads safer by prohibiting the common practice – especially amongst teenagers – of texting while driving. House Bill 43 would ban all drivers from text messaging while driving and forbid any cell phone use for drivers under the age of 18.

If a new driver is caught texting – or talking on a cell phone if under 18 – during their 180-day probationary period, that probation clock would start over again, according to the bill. Drivers who violate the bill would be fined between $20 and $100 starting in 2011. Violators would not be charged court fees. The bill passed the House Transportation Committee and now heads to the House floor for consideration.

The House Judiciary Committee approved a measure that would reverse the effect of a law the General Assembly passed last year that forces some defendants convicted of theft to relinquish their drivers' licenses until they pay restitution. The argument for the reversal is that defendants need their licenses in order to drive to work to earn money for the court-ordered restitution. Deemed an "unintended consequence," House Bill 35 would change the language in the bill to restore discretion to judges in these cases.

The House Judiciary Committee also passed HB 33 which would require inmate food service be turned over to the state – though more costly – to address concerns with the quality and quantity of food provided by the current private contractor. Poor food has been called a major factor in recent inmate unrest, with property damage and injuries. The state currently pays around $12 million a year for prison food service with the contractor. HB 33 now goes to the full House for consideration.

Commonsense legislation finds way to floor

While education reform, the biennial budget and other big-ticket legislation grab headlines, the bulk of the General Assembly's work comes on a smaller scale through small tweaks to the law that affects Kentuckians each day. This week, we passed several measures that may not end up on your front page, but they will have some impact on thousands of citizens nonetheless.

One such proposal is Senate Bill 19, which would allow pharmacy technicians who volunteer with charity groups to provide free or low-cost drugs to have their annual registration fee waived. It is only $25, but it is a powerful message to retirees and others who maintain their registration just to help the less fortunate. These charities, some of which write 20,000 prescriptions or more each year, depend on pharmacy technicians to make sure the medication is distributed in a timely manner, and with more Kentuckians in the grip of this recession, we need as many of them as we can.

Another commonsense measure, SB 47, will allow local jails to charge a co-pay to state prisoners who require medical care. One of the fastest-growing expenses for our correctional facilities is medical costs, and more state prisoners are being kept in county jails as the population increases. This legislation will allow counties to make a small dent in the growth of their jail budgets. Although inmates who cannot afford to pay would not go without care, the jails could use inmate's accounts, which they can add to through work details and other methods, to cover those co-pays.

Many times Kentucky businesses face a disadvantage when bidding for work in other states because there is a preference for in-state contractors. SB 45 would level the playing field when state contracts are awarded by penalizing out-of-state businesses the same amount they are advantaged in their own state. If a New York contractor gets a 5 percent "hometown discount" when bidding for work in Buffalo, they would face a five-percent penalty on work in Bowling Green. Effectively, this helps give Kentucky bidders a fair shake throughout their contracting business and keeps our economy more vibrant.

SB 35, legislation relating to providing necessary information to the county clerk to maintain a roster of eligible voters for city and school board elections, also passed out of the Senate. SB 35 amends Kentucky law to establish Jan. 1, 2011 for cities and school boards to submit to the county clerk a list of properties, boundaries, and any changes to boundaries as well as other related. It also eliminates the requirement that certain documents pertaining to the annexation or change in boundaries for cities must be filed in the Governor's Office for Local Development. These documents will still have to be filed in the secretary of state's office.

It is hard to believe we have finished our first month at the Capitol, but the pace is still accelerating. Many more issues will come before us in the weeks and months ahead.

State Sen. Dorsey Ridley has served in the senate since 2004 after an eight-year tenure in the House. He represents Henderson, Webster, Union, Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties. You may contact him at dorsey.ridley@lrc.ky.gov or call the Legislative Message Line at 1-800-372-7181.

Local school board's shared vision is benchmark of education

As the superintendent of the Crittenden County School District, it would be my belief that we should create the conditions necessary for high performance.

In a recent study of the relevant research on high performing school districts, there were certain characteristics that seemed to set them a part from the others.

High Performing School Districts:

- ✓ Own responsibility for student achievement.
- ✓ Are clear about their mission and goals, and highly focused on achieving their goals.

- ✓ Are led by effective leaders at all levels.
- ✓ Are standards-based.
- ✓ Take alignment seriously.
- ✓ Are data-driven.
- ✓ Make human resource functions a top priority of the district's leadership.

- ✓ Communicate effectively with staff, students, families and the community.
- ✓ Treat schools differentially, based on needs.
- ✓ Collaborate.

It would be my hope that the students, staff, parents and our community could review this list and give the Crittenden County School District high marks for demonstrating commitments to all of these characteristics. We continue to seek ways to improve the quality of education offered to all students each and every day.

The Crittenden County Board of Education – Chris Cook, Eric Larue, Bill Asbridge, Phyllis Orr and Pam Collins – and I were able to share many of these outstanding characteristics of our school district with the other boards of education throughout the Commonwealth at the Kentucky School Board Association annual conference held in January.

The board's presentation was focused on the topic, "Crittenden County School District's 2020 Vision for Student Learning."

We were able to highlight our vision for improving student achievement through our commitments, supports, learning essentials and core knowledge. The response to the shared vision for learning presented by the Crittenden County Board members was extremely positive and well received by other school district representatives.

Please take time to express your thanks to the local board of education members for being the voice in the Commonwealth for Crittenden County students.

phases on the 31 acres on the northern edge of the cemetery. The first phase will include 1,310 graves, some of which will be situated around a reflection pond on the southeast corner of the new development. Plans for the expansion were drawn by a New York firm recommended by the Elberton Granite Association, of which Henry & Henry Monuments is a member. The association also helped pay for the land-use plan.

The cemetery board bought the 31-acre plot to the north of the cemetery in 1990 from the Rayburn family. Since then, the board has rented the land to a local farmer, helping to pay annual expenses which included $14,000 in 2009 for mowing.

The board – which consists of Bill Fox, Ricky Brown, Mike Byford, Otis Millikan and Wayne Crider – had income of just over $29,000 in 2009, including one $15,000 bequest from a Marion resident. The board's annual income comes from the sale of lots, grave maintenance fees collected by local funeral homes and money it collects from deed transfers when gravesites change hands.

Henry and Henry provides all of the administrative support for the cemetery association, including housing a large wall-mounted plat of the cemetery which identifies ownership and availability of all burial plots.

Fox, who has been on the cemetery board since 1975 and involved by virtue of his work with Henry and Henry since 1951, is in large part responsible for removing flowers after burials, providing fill dirt when necessary and cleaning monuments.

"This is a very good board, they are always very helpful especially if there is a problem, like after the ice storm last year," said Fox.

He described the proposed Mapleview development as modern, with graves situated in curved patterns rather than in straight rows lying east to west as in the older portion of the cemetery.

The complete land-use plan, which includes 20.15 acres excluding roads and water, will hold 15,110 graves.

John Lamb had Mapleview plotted as a graveyard in 1893 after Marion Cemetery (on Gum Street) was full or nearly full. R.L. Moore, Sr., was the first grave in Mapleview Cemetery.

Justice Cunningham visits Crittenden jail

Kentucky Supreme Court Justice Bill Cunningham was in Marion last week and visited with Crittenden County Jailer Rickey Riley and his deputies at the Crittenden County Detention Center.

After touring the jail, Justice Cunningham said, "I was very impressed with the professionalism of the staff and the appearance of the facility. I believe that as part of a continuing broader education, judges and justices should get into our state correctional facilities and see first hand their day to day operations."

Justice Cunningham was accompanied by his good friend, Phil Hazle, who is jailer of Caloway County.

Crittenden County is one of 24 counties making up the First Supreme Court District from which Justice Cunningham was elected to the Supreme Court in November of 2007. He has pledged to regularly visit each and every county in his district in an effort to stay in touch with the people and listen to their concerns, especially those who are working within the court system.

Area News Briefs

Schools will host Chamber's luncheon

Crittenden County School District will host the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce's quarterly luncheon, and pick up the tab.

Chamber members will be receiving mail this week inviting them to the Look and Learn Lunch and Tour. It will start at noon Friday, Feb. 19 at Rocket Arena with a quick lunch provided by the school system.

After lunch, Chamber members will board a traditional school bus for a brief tour of all three of the county schools.

School Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said she hopes to make this an annual event. Chamber board members have applauded the idea of opening the schools up to business leaders.

Rep. Cherry in office since 1998, not '88

Corner development appears to be dead

A proposed development on the northwest corner of the intersection of U.S. 641 and U.S. 60 is apparently dead. Five property owners, including Tabor's Towing and Auto Repair, Belt Realty and Yarbrough Insurance, had been under contract to sell their property to a development company, which many believed represented CVS Pharmacy.

Zarembo Land Development had negotiated the deal. Zarembo notified landowners this week that the contracts had been terminated. No other details were provided, landowners said.

Williams sentenced to 5 years for arson

David L. Williams, 22, was sentenced to five years in prison Monday by Circuit Judge Rene Williams for arson and other charges.

Williams pleaded guilty on Jan. 14 to an amended charge of third-degree arson, third-degree terroristic threatening and resisting arrest. He was originally charged on Sept. 16 with first-degree arson after setting fire to the home of Judy Stone on North Weldon Street.

Stone, who is confined to a wheel chair, was home at the time, but was not injured. A neighbor alerted Stone that her home was on fire and emergency crews and firemen responding to the scene quickly extinguished the blaze.

Williams was sentenced to five years on the charge and 12 months each on the terroristic threatening and resisting arrest charges. The sentences are to run concurrent for a total of five years of incarceration. The Commonwealth opposed probation.

Local jobless rate goes up slightly

Unemployment rates rose in 119 Kentucky counties between December 2008 and December 2009, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

Union County, the only county rate to decrease compared to last year, fell from 10.5 percent in December 2008 to 10.1 percent in December 2009. This is the first time since January 2009 that all 120 counties rates have not risen over the same month the previous year.

In Crittenden County, the rate is up more than two points from a year ago and two-tenths of a point from November to December. The rate is 10.3 percent (see accompanying ing chart on this page). Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

Smithland hosts triple murder trial starting Tuesday

A man accused of stabbing and killing three children, sexually assaulting their mother and burning their home has been found by a judge to be competent to stand trial next week in Smithland.

Circuit Judge C.A. "Woody" Woodall has ruled that Kevin Dunlap of Hopkinsville is competent to stand trial beginning Tuesday. The trial was moved from Trigg County to Livingston County.

Police say Dunlap fatally stabbed the three siblings, injured and sexually assaulted their mother and burned the home in the Roaring Spring community near the Fort Campbell Army post in October 2008. Dunlap has pleaded not guilty.

Woodall also declined a defense request to delay the trial while DNA evidence is still being tested.

Schools will go on President's Day to make up for snow

Crittenden County students have missed five full days due to snow this school year, but so far that will have no effect on the last of day of classes, which is scheduled for May 21.

The school calendar included four snow days, said Al Starnes, director of transportation and pupil personnel.

Since five have been missed, there will be one to be made up. The school calendar also included three potential days that could be used as makeups. One is President's Day on Feb. 15 and the other two are teacher planning days on March 1 and April 12.

Starnes said students will now go to class on President's Day instead of being off. If more days are missed this semester, the teacher planning days will be used first as makeups.

Spring break is scheduled for March 5-9 and will not be affected by snow days.

By state law, students are required to attend 168 six-hour days, including at least 1,062 hours of instruction. The Crittenden calendar started with 172 scheduled days.

"Anything we miss from now on will have to be made up in some fashion," Starnes said Monday. "As far as the calendar goes, we're still in pretty good shape right now."

School was cancelled Monday because many rural roads were still snow and ice covered. Three bus drivers were unable to get their buses out of their own driveways Monday, Starnes said.

Crittenden County has 20 regular bus routes, which include about 1,363 miles per day. That does not include head start, preschool or technical school bus travel.

Starting school an hour later is always an option, Starnes said, but that tactic is largely for visibility factors not solely to wait for increased melting.

"Some of the bus drivers start before daylight," he said. "Waiting an hour provides them with better visibility."

There were two fatal crashes that resulted in the loss of two lives reported in the Post 2 District in January. One fatality occurred in Christian County and one occurred in Todd County. One victim was not wearing a seat belt and one victim was wearing a seat belt. One of the crashes involved the suspected use of alcohol.

Additionally, state police investigated the death of William G. Darnell in rural Crittenden County, who died following a motor scooter accident late last month. However, that case has not been ruled a traffic fatality at this time.

Students will need proof of dental check

Due to changes in state regulations, students age five or six, who are enrolled in a Kentucky public school, shall provide evidence of a dental screening or dental exam no later than Jan. 1 of the first year of enrollment.

Al Starnes, director of pupil personnel for Crittenden County schools, said this will affect preschool or kindergarten students.

These changes are in compliance with amendments to KAR 4:020 relating to School Health Services, Starnes said.

The new rules start with the 2010-11 school year.

MILLION

Continued from page 1 Bryant said he expects to receive Marion's part of the license buyout from American Municipal Power (AMP) at any moment. The amount will be $1 million. Price, who shepherded the licensing deal from start to near its completion, will get a larger share.

AMP agreed to buy the license to make electricity at the Smithland lock and dam about three years ago. It completed the process and now has all of its permits in place. Construction of a hydroelectric turbine will begin in the spring or summer, according to reports in The Paducah Sun.

Livingston County will benefit, too. About 200-400 construction jobs are expected to be created. When the power-generating facility is finished, it will employ fewer than 10 workers.

AMP, told the Paducah newspaper that the Smithland project is one of five turbines to be added to existing dams. Another is farther up the Ohio River at Cannelton, Ind., near Owensboro. Cost to build the Smithland power plant will be about $24 million. It will take about four years to build.

Cooper, who answered the phone many years ago, says she's elated to know that Marion is about to be paid.

"We were all excited about it back then because it all sounded so good," said Cooper, who retired in 1991. "We knew it was a longshot, but it was exciting to think that it could be that easy to get that much money."

Mayor Mickey Alexander said the city was once on board to be a full-fledged partner in ownership of the license to make electricity at Smithland. Over time, it became more attractive to sell its stake in the deal so that a private company could bring it to development.

Accepting that phone call and putting into motion a conversation that led to a meeting between Price and the Marion City Council was a fateful decision by city employees who were on their toes many years ago, the mayor said. Had it not been for that leap of faith, Marion would have had no stake in the deal. Only by a twist of fate and a map that somehow didn't include the smaller City of Smithland on it, Marion was the second municipality contacted in 1988 when the license application was due.

"The guy they called first in Paducah was going to be out of the office for a few days, so Price looked on his map at the next closest town, which was us," Alexander said.

Ironically, Paducah is one of the cities that belong to a cooperative which buys electricity from AMP. So does Princeton and 128 other member communities.

Bryant said there is no immediate spending plans for the windfall. The million will be invested, he said.

"It will be nice to rebuild some of the reserves we've spent in the last few years," said Bryant.

HEALTH

Continued from page 1 tal, says healthy lifestyle should always be on our minds. He said exercise and diet are keys.

Avoiding risk factors such as illicit drugs, smoking and obesity, which can lead to diabetes, is just as important.

"Although studies show that exercise doesn't extend life, it certainly can improve the quality of life," Mayfield said.

Healthy People objectives were first created in the late 1970s to set an agenda for getting Americans to live longer, healthier lives. It was also an attempt to involve the public and emphasize that many health problems are preventable.

Every 10 years, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services reassesses the goals, and reports on progress made in the previous decade.

Many call the effort a success. The report has been imitated by states and other nations. Because of its importance within public health circles, interest groups jockey to add their goals to the document, which is expanding to more than 1,000 targets. Health agency workers have Healthy People goals memorized.

"It is something that we think about all the time," said Dr. Lance Rodewald, a vaccination expert at the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Thinking about it and doing it are two different things, however.

"I tell people they need to quit smoking, but some don't like it. It makes them mad," said Dr. Mayfield.

But after more than 30 years, health goals aren't well known to the public and only a modest number have been met.

About 41 percent of the 1990 measurable goals were achieved. For the 2000 goals, it was just 24 percent.

As for the 2010 goals, data is still being collected, and a final report is not due out until 2011. But it looks like the results will be in the neighborhood of 20 percent, according to a preliminary analysis by the CDC's National Center for Health Statistics.

We would like to thank everyone for the overwhelming acts of love and kindness shown to us following the passing of our precious mother and grandmother, Betty Lou Glenn. Thank you to our church families, friends and neighbors for the visits, phone calls, food, flowers, donations, and most of all your prayers. A special thank you to Bro. Tim Burdon, Bro. Chris McDonald, Bro. Steve Thrend and Bro. Donnie Howton for their comforting words. Thank you also to the directors of Gilbert Funeral Home for the lovely funeral arrangements. May God richly bless each of you.

Livingston man faces 36 wildlife charges

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has arrested a Livingston County man charged with 36 counts of illegally taking deer or wild turkey. Conservation officers serving a search warrant on the Smithland property of 32-year-old David Ray found 34 deer heads and two wild turkeys that appeared to have been killed in 2009. Penalties for each illegally taken deer or turkey include up to $1,000 in fines, one year in jail, or both; loss of hunting privileges for up to three years; and forfeiture of hunting equipment. He could also have to pay replacement costs for the animals. In 1995, Ray lost his hunting privileges for a year after an illegal taking conviction. Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Sgt. Bill Snow and Conservation Officers Josh Hudson and Daniel Richardson executed the search warrant after receiving information from a concerned citizen. The seized deer heads had been cut off at the neck or reduced to skullcaps. Twenty-four were still in velvet. Officers found 18 heads inside a freezer located in an outbuilding on the property. The remaining racks came from the residence and the back of a truck. The turkeys were in a freezer. "I don't understand why anyone would think they need to kill every buck they see in the velvet," said Snow, who said it took several trucks to remove all the deer heads.

There will be a Beef Cattle Market Outlook meeting at 6 p.m., Tuesday at the Marion Ed-Tech Center. Guest speaker will be Kenny Burdine, UK Extension Specialist for Livestock/Forage Economics. The meeting is open to anyone.

Multi-Peril Crop Insurance deadlines are nearing

USDA's Risk Management Agency Jackson Regional Office reminds Kentucky producers who wish to purchase Multi-Peril Crop Insurance (MPCI) for the 2010 crop year of the following final sales closing dates:
•Corn – March 15, 2010
•Grain Sorghum – March 15, 2010
•Soybeans – March 15, 2010
•Tobacco – March 15, 2010 (Burley, Dark Air, and Fired Cured tobacco)
•Hybrid Seed Corn – March 15, 2010 (Henderson County, Kentucky only)
Insured growers may also use this opportunity to make important changes to their coverage. Current policyholders and uninsured growers who wish to purchase a policy must make all decisions on crop insurance coverage by the sales closing date for that crop. Decisions include which crops to insure and the level of coverage to obtain. Please contact a local crop insurance agent to learn additional program details. If the traditional MPCI program for your crop is not available in your county, please ask your agent whether you would be eligible for coverage under a written agreement. A list of crop insurance agents is available at all USDA Service Centers throughout the country or on the RMA Web site: <http://www3.rma.usda.gov/tools/agents>

Some energy sources can cause CO poisoning

Nancy Hunt Home Notes

UK Cooperative Extension Agent

Carbon monoxide (CO) is an odorless, colorless gas that can cause sudden illness and death if inhaled. When power outages occur during emergencies such as winter storms, the use of alternative sources of fuel or electricity for heating or cooking can cause CO to build up in a home, garage or camper, possibly poisoning the people and animals inside. Every year, more than 400 people die in the United States from accidental CO poisoning.

CO is found in combustion fumes, such as those produced by small gasoline engines, stoves, generators, lanterns and gas ranges, or by burning charcoal and wood. CO from these sources can build up in enclosed or partially enclosed spaces. People and animals in these spaces can be poisoned and can die from breathing CO.

Exposure to CO can cause loss of consciousness and death. The most common symptoms of CO poisoning are headache, dizziness, weakness, nausea, vomiting, chest pain, and confusion. People who are sleeping or who have been drinking alcohol can die from CO poisoning before ever having symptoms.

Important CO Poisoning Prevention Tips:

- Every home should have at least one working carbon monoxide detector. The detector's batteries should be checked at least twice annually, at the same time smoke detector batteries are checked.
- Never use a gas range or oven to heat a home.
- Never leave the motor running in a vehicle parked in an enclosed or partially enclosed space, such as a garage.
- Never run a motor vehicle, generator, pressure washer, or any gasoline-powered engine outside an open window, door, or vent where exhaust can vent into an enclosed area.
- Never run a generator, pressure washer, or any gasoline-powered engine inside a basement, garage, or other enclosed structure, even if the doors or windows are open, unless the equipment is professionally installed and vented. Keep vents and flues free of debris, especially if winds are high. Flying debris can block ventilation lines.
- Never use a charcoal grill, hibachi, lantern, or portable camping stove inside a home, tent, or camper.
- If conditions are too cold, seek shelter with friends or at a community shelter.
- If CO poisoning is suspected, consult a health care professional right away.

Salem Garden Club

Submitted by Randa Berry

You would think that the January meeting of a garden club would be pretty unexciting, however despite the slowly melting snow, the Salem Garden Club had a wonderful gathering at the home of Beverly and Stan Wallace on Jan. 11. After warming ourselves over steaming bowls of soup and chowder, we got down to business for the busy year to come.

The most exciting subject of the night was the long-awaited groundbreaking of the Salem courtyard. On Jan. 30 we had the official groundbreaking ceremony for the Bicentennial Courtyard. Rep. Mike Cherry was graciously in attendance to help celebrate this special day for our community.

A small reception was held following the ceremony at City Hall directly behind the courtyard. We will be selling memorial bricks to be placed in the courtyard for $50 to help fund the project. You can contact Carolyn Howard at 988-2033, Marty Kaiser at 988-2864, or any of the garden club members for further information.

Keep an eye out this spring as you travel through town, as we hope to have significant progress by Salem Day in May.

While spring seems to be a long time in coming, there are many things you can do to help with the winter doldrums. Now is a good time to look at the bare bones of your garden and see where you need a little boost.

If you're like me, you have a stack of Better Homes & Gardens or Southern Living magazines the size of a small mountain in the back of your closet. Get them out, blow the dust off, and set down with a hot cup of coffee and a notebook.

You can also visit your local library where you will find a wealth of information in the garden and how to sections. Most public libraries have a generous selection to choose from, so take advantage of this free service.

To be a little more prepared before you head to the local nursery, make a list of the things you've seen and would like to accomplish. A little planning goes a long way.

Our next meeting will be held on Feb. 8 at the home of our club's new president, Marty Kaiser. She has been a great asset to the club as a member and now will confidently be leading us in our future endeavors. We will be further discussing progress of the courtyard and our upcoming annual spring banquet.

Please join us as we strive to beautify our wonderful neighborhood, and a resounding "thank you" to all of those who have supported us thus far in our vision for the community.

Renowned clockmaker carries Crittenden roots

I like to call these articles "Crittenden County Folks," as they are about someone that was born and lived in Crittenden County most of their lives.

This is the amazing story of how a young county boy with a love of repairing watches and clocks was able to achieve his goals beyond what he ever dreamed, and became "Fellow in the American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute (FAWI)."

This title is given to a carefully selected individual whose outstanding and meritorious contribution to the field of horology (the art of making timepieces) on a national or international level, has enriched the field of horology.

The title is the highest honor awarded by the American Watchmakers-Clockmakers Institute.

This article is about Archie Perkins, who now lives in Denver, Colo., but Crittenden County will always be close to his heart, for this is where his family roots are located.

Archie Buel Perkins was born on Oct. 31, 1923, to George and Lottie Moseley Perkins in the community of Frances.

Perkins' formal education took place in one-room schools, which had only one teacher who taught first through eighth grades. White Hall was one of the one-room schools he attended.

This school was in the little area west of Crayne that was known as View.

During this time, the Perkins family lived on the Fred Clement farm and Perkins would have to walk to and from school each day, which was about a mile and a half.

Perkins' father, George, worked at the Lafayette Mine which was the main fluorspar mine in the area.

Perkins was the youngest of seven, having four brothers and two sisters.

His oldest brother, Cecil, was in the Army during peace time and was stationed in Honolulu, where he was killed in an automobile-train accident in 1930. His body was brought back to his home and he is buried in the Matthews Cemetery.

Another brother, Thomas, was in the Air Force during World War II when his plane was shot down over Germany and he was taken prisoner by the Germans. He was in a prison camp for 21 months and was released near the end of World War II.

He was in very bad physical condition when released from the prison camp and passed away four months later. Thomas died Sept. 6, 1945 and is buried in the Mexico Cemetery.

Another brother George, was in the Army during World War II, and was later stationed in Germany.

Archie's fourth brother, Lyman, was exempted from military service because of being married at the time with four children.

Perkins was in the Army and did his basic training at Camp Barkeley, Texas.

Perkins became interested in watch and clock repair in 1939 when he was 15 years old.

His interest started after he looked at one of his father's old watch tool catalogs. His father had some knowledge of watch and clock repair, and young Archie liked to watch him work on them.

Perkins' career started out with a few hand tools purchased from Sears & Roebuck watch tool department and the E & J Swigart Co. of Cincinnati.

After completing his Army tour of duty, he received a wonderful break. At this time he went to Nashville to either find a job in defense work or hopefully to find a place to train on the job in watch and clock repair.

He went to a jewelry store asking about training on the job and they sent him to the local watch material house, which was the Young-Neal Company.

The owner of the company asked Archie where he was from and when he told him that he was from near Marion, the man asked if he knew a hardware dealer there by the name of Thomas Cochran. Archie told him that he did. The dealer proceeded to tell Perkins that Thomas Cochran's brother, S. George Cochran, was a watchmaker and had a shop at the Arcade building close by.

Archie Perkins and his son, Richard, visited the Crittenden County Historical Museum this past fall.

Perkins went to see Mr. Cochran and he put him to work the next day training on the job. S. George Cochran and his nephew, Edwin Cochran, worked together and called the business Cochran's Watchmakers.

They started Perkins out fitting watch crystals and practicing on watches.

The starting salary was $20 per week with a $5 raise every three months.

When he left there to go to Elgin Watchmakers College, he was making $40 per week, which was pretty good for 1944.

To prepare Perkins for Elgin Watchmakers College, Mr. Cochran suggested that he take evening classes at Watkins Institute and take some mechanical drawing and violin lessons to improve his dexterity and coordination.

Later, at the Elgin school, Perkins was to take drawing lessons from W. H. Samelius. Archie learned to draw escapements, hairsprings, gears and other watch parts.

Perkins said his second big break came in the spring of 1944 when the G. I. Bill for World War II veterans passed. This allowed him to attend a school for further training.

His employers, the Cochrans, knew W. H. Samelius, the director of Elgin Watchmakers College. Edwin Cochran had attended Elgin Watchmakers College in 1930, so they wrote Mr. Samelius and gave Archie an introduction. Perkins was able to enroll in the college on Jan. 2, 1945.

Archie must have made a pretty solid impression as a student. After about three months at the institute, Mr. Samelius called Archie into the head office.

With some trepidation, Archie heard Mr. Samelius offer him a job as an instructor at the Institute.

Perkins graduated from the Elgin school in March of 1946. His mentor, Mr. Samelius found him a job in Denver, where Archie has resided ever since.

Shortly after his arrival in Denver, Perkins was offered another position as an instructor by Orville Hagans in the American Academy of Horology.

He taught at the academy for about 15 months before returning to his love of watch making in a jewelry store.

Perkins' last major career move was in 1951, when he joined the faculty of Denver Public School's Emily Griffith Opportunity School, where he remained for 32 years until his retirement at the end of 1983.

His long and distinguished career as a writer and educator has also been marked by his service to the art of horology and to AWI and its predecessors.

Archie served on the board of directors of the Horological Institute of America and was also a regional vice president of that organization.

Perkins attended the Bulova School for the purpose of learning to service the Bulova Accutron and later taught the Accutron course to nearly 200 watchmakers in different western states.

He has been a Certified Master Watchmaker since 1955.

He has written over 300 articles for the "Technically Watches" column in Horological Times and did all his own incredible drawings and photographs for these articles.

He worked part time for more than 30 years in his home workshop restoring antique and complicated watches and making wheels and pinions and other parts for antique clocks and watches.

These are only a few of the accomplishments and awards that Perkins has achieved during his professional years.

This past summer Perkins and his son, Richard, made a visit to his home town of Frances and Crittenden County and also visited the Historical Museum while they were here.

Boys upend Tigers, ending losing streak

Clark scores 19 to end 6-game skid

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

After losing six games by nine points or less this season, the Rockets finally got a close encounter to go their way in Princeton Monday night, defeating Caldwell County 52-49. The game was a make-up for last Saturday's game that was snowed out.

Rocket senior forward Dylan Clark, who had a big night with 19 points and six rebounds, scored six of those in the opening quarter, as his team opened up an early 6-0 advantage.

But a pair of Tiger treys produced the first of six ties in the hard-fought contest.

After Casey Oliver connected on a trifecta of his own with :02 ticks remaining in the opening stanza, the visitors took a 14-8 lead.

The Rockets would not score again until about the midway point of the second quarter, enabling the hosts to remain in contention.

Missed layups proved to be a big problem for both teams in Monday's game with the Rockets misfiring on seven. Caldwell was almost as bad, missing six layups in the contest, which helped spell the difference in winning and losing.

Although the Rockets clung to a narrow 19-18 lead at intermission, the Tigers opened the second half on a 10-2 spurt enabling them to open up a 28-21 lead.

But Crittenden refused to go away, running off seven unanswered points to tie the game at 28-all, capped by a short jumper from Patrick Nielsen.

However, after the Tigers retook a 30-28 lead a few seconds later, they would never trail again in that quarter.

Turnovers proved to be a bugaboo for both teams in the game. The Rockets committed 16 and the hosts had 12 of their own in the set-back.

Free throw shooting proved to play a huge difference, helping Crittenden snap a five-game losing streak and win for the first time in nearly a month.

For the game, the visitors went 11-of-13 at the charity stripe while Caldwell was an anemic 7-of-17.

But the Tigers still managed to cling to a 42-36 lead with about 5:00 left to play. However, the never-say-die Rockets went on a 9-3 scoring spurt to knot the game at 45-all.

In a game of ebb and flow, the hosts went back on top 49-45 with 2:24 left to play and it appeared they might be able to hold off the hungry Rockets.

However, back-to-back buckets from Oliver and Clark tied the game at 49-all setting up an interesting finish. On Caldwell's next possession, Tiger guard Tron Gray was called for an offensive foul with just over 1:00 left.

After a Rocket timeout, they patiently worked the ball around to try and get the best shot available. Senior point guard J. D. Gray hit what proved to be the winning shot, nailing about a 10-footer with :16 ticks left to play.

Caldwell elected not to use a timeout, instead going the length of the floor to try and tie or win the game. But a three-point attempt with :05 seconds left did not come anywhere close and the visitors held on for a sweet road triumph.

Rocket coach Chad Hayes was pleased with the way his team kept plugging away and found a way to win in the late stages of the contest.

"We needed to get a win," he said.

The Rocket coach was happy with the way his team handled Caldwell's halfcourt trap knowing that would be a key to coming out with a win.

"We handled it just fine," he said.

Tiger first-year skipper Steve Smiley pointed to the Rockets' getting key rebounds at crucial times as a key to his team's defeat.

"When they needed one, they got one," he said.

Having a four-point lead with 2:24 left to play and not being able to close the deal was the frustrating part for Smiley.

"I think we just ran out of gas in the fourth quarter," he said.

Nielsen leads boys to 2nd win

Rocket senior forward Patrick Nielsen had the best performance of his varsity career Tuesday night scoring a career-high 24 points, helping his team to a 69-60 win over visiting Central Hopkins. The game was not that close with the Rockets holding as much as a 21-point advantage during the second half.

With the Storm missing three starters due to injuries and disciplinary reasons, Crittenden (5-13) wasted no time jumping on them racing out to an 8-0 lead.

Crittenden did a good job of mixing up their defenses, playing a 3-2, 2-3, man-to-man and even some box-and-one, keeping the Storm off balance most of the way.

Leading 36-30, the hosts limited the Storm to just seven field goals during the second half stretching the lead out to 64-43 with around 4:00 remaining in the contest.

For the second straight night, the winners were great from the charity stripe going 16-of-18 for a fabulous clip of 88.8 percent.

Casey Oliver (16) and Dylan Clark (11) joined Nielsen in double-digits as Crittenden avenged a 62-51 loss against the Storm during the Hopkins County Christmas Tourna-

Senior Alex Porter goes up for a shot Tuesday night in the 69-60 win over Central Hopkins.

While Crittenden coach Chad Hayes realizes the short-handed Storm was not the same team they faced in December, he was still proud of his squad for recording consecutive wins for the first time this season.

The first-year Rocket coach keeps a statistic of how many times his team gets three or more defensive stops in a row. During Tuesday's win, the Rockets recorded six stops in a row one time and three stops in a row on a pair of occasions.

With two more games this week, Hayes hopes the Rockets can continue the momentum they have built during the last two contests.

"Right now, you just want to keep playing games," he said.

Eleven different players saw action for Crittenden and the Rocket skipper was glad that the blowout win afforded him the chance to play that many people.

Tabor brings in 21 points for the win

The Lady Rockets held an opponent to less than 50 points for the eighth time this season at Heath Tuesday night, coming away with a hard-fought 48-45 road win.

It appeared as if Crittenden (8-9) might blow the Lady Pirates out as they took a 23-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. But a 3-2 zone in the second quarter got Heath back in the contest.

They held the Lady Rockets scoreless in that stanza, cutting the halftime deficit to 23-18.

"We just had a hard time getting going against it," Lady Rocket coach Shannon Hodge said after the triumph.

With the visitors clinging to a slim two-point lead entering the last 8:00 of action, they limited the Lady Pirates to only four field goals in that pivotal frame.

But Heath still managed to tie the game at 45-all with less than :40 ticks left as Hodge called for a timeout to set strategy for a game-winning shot.

For the second straight game, Lady Rocket forward Laken Tabor, who finished with 21 points and five three-pointers, nailed the winning bucket with :06 ticks remaining.

Hodge praised her team for exhibiting the maturity to keep battling and gutting out an important road win.

An area she would like to see her team show improvement in is being more aggressive in taking the ball to the basket.

They only attempted four free throws in Tuesday's triumph and Hodge wants that to be between 15 to 20 every contest.

"We were just not aggressive enough in taking the ball to the hole," she said.

With two more wins this week, Crittenden would jump over the .500 mark for the first time this season.
