

Budget will be top priority for this year's session

Legislative sessions are much like snowflakes. They appear the same from a distance, but look closely and you'll see each has a pattern all its own. (I confess to borrowing this great metaphor from a fine staff writer, Rebecca Hanchett.)

Right now, the 2010 regular session that began in Frankfort last Tuesday looks to the casual observer like most legislative sessions held in even-numbered years. It will last 60 legislative days. Its main purpose is to pass a state budget before a new two-year budget cycle begins in July. And legislative procedure will be the same, too.

What's different this session is the challenge we face to pass a FY 2011-12 balanced budget in the face of a state budget shortfall of nearly $1.5 billion in the general fund when areas like Medicaid cost increases are factored in. The shortfall is one of many the commonwealth has faced since 2007. It comes on the heels of a $100 million shortfall for the remainder of this current fiscal year that the governor has plugged with three percent spending cuts, fund transfers, and around $25 million of the $250-$300 million in federal stimulus dollars available to the state next fiscal year.

Each round of shortfall-and-cuts has been painful, requiring sacrifices from most state agencies. Only a few areas – base public school funding known as SEEK, Medicaid, higher education, certain public safety and mental health services – have escaped cuts. Many, many agencies have lost more than one-fifth of their budgeted revenue and state government employees have been reduced by 1,600 to the lowest level in two decades.

Now, as we try to stop the state's financial bleeding and avoid more drastic future cuts, perennial issues like tax reform and expanded gambling at racetracks have been resurrected, though they are proposals that mostly offer only long-term relief.

Among tax reform proposals are modernizing the state tax system by reducing the tax burden on lower- and middle-income taxpayers and shifting more burden to higher brackets; creating an income-tax credit for the state's working poor; eliminating state income taxes; and removing certain sales-tax exemptions while expanding the sales tax to services. I think talk is all that will be done, as there seems to be little support for real action in this regard.

Expanded gaming, like tax reform, is not a new issue and has many facets. Supporters of expanded gaming – which would essentially allow casino-style gambling via video slot machines at racetracks in Kentucky – say it could potentially bring $400 million a year into the state treasury (though opponents use a much smaller figure). Some support allowing video slot machines at Kentucky racetracks upon simple enactment of legislation passed by the general assembly, as the House did and the senate killed last session. No constitutional amendment approved by a majority of the state's voters would be required under that proposal. But legislation requiring such voter approval has been introduced in the senate this year. I think legislation putting the question on the ballot for a vote has a good chance of passing both chambers, but the other route is unlikely.

The highlight of our first week was, as is traditionally the case, the governor's state-of-the-commonwealth speech. In it he primarily talked about the budget challenges and emphasized the importance of economic development. His more difficult address to the general assembly will take place Jan. 19, when he presents his two-year budget proposal. That speech is greatly anticipated, and perhaps a little dreaded in some quarters, as it will shed more light on how competing priorities will fare in the budget.

While the governor's address dominated our opening week, some legislation got started. Most notably last Thursday, the House Judiciary Committee unanimously approved House Bill 1, known as Amanda's Bill, which would allow judges to authorize electronic monitoring in domestic-violence cases. It is named after Amanda Ross, whose murder in September is being investigated as a domestic-violence case.

Another event from last week of local interest was the announcement that the Western Kentucky Correctional Complex in Fredonia will become a female prison later in the year. The details of this move should be well known by the time you read this, but I want to stress that I've been personally assured by the secretary of the justice cabinet that no "farm" (as my dad always called the facility) employees will be laid off or asked to relocate out of the area. The shift is expected to be finalized in the July time frame.

Finally, I should perhaps mention that last week I was honored by my peers and elected by acclamation as the new chair of the Western Kentucky Legislative Caucus. The caucus includes all Kentucky legislators from both parties of the house and senate who represent districts from Elizabethtown and west of there.

Transparency is key to greater government efficiency

Members of the Kentucky General Assembly convened the 2010 legislative session last week with a variety of issues that need attention, including the always-challenging task of compiling a two-year budget plan for the Commonwealth.

Even-year sessions, like this one, meet for 60 days. The two-year state budget is written during this "long session," and this budget session will be difficult because of the magnitude of the decisions we must make. Even if we only flatline the spending already in place, Kentucky faces at least a $900 million deficit. That is 10 percent of the annual budget, and a number that large cannot be remedied with simple changes.

Since we passed the current budget two years ago, it has been cut six times, mostly through wholesale cuts across state government, for a total of about $900 million. As Gov. Beshear said in his state-of-the-commonwealth address, out of adversity comes opportunity. This is our chance to re-evaluate our priorities for state government, assess which state programs work and generally slim down our agencies to a manageable level. Simply requiring all areas of government to reduce spending by 10 percent will not necessarily make government more efficient in the long run.

One way to make government more efficient is make government more transparent and ethical. We will have several bills this session aimed at putting state spending and campaign finance reports online. Twenty years ago, Kentucky was at the forefront of ethics reform and we need to continue this distinction.

We also want to be a leader in education. This week, University of Kentucky President, Dr. Lee Todd, spoke with the Obama Administration about federal initiatives to increase the number of math and science teachers in our K-12 schools – a push we have successfully made in Frankfort for several sessions. We will be continuing those efforts this year, along with keeping a close eye on the implementation of school testing reform measures we passed last year.

Of course, during the next three months, there will be many other issues to arise, ranging from criminal code reform to energy independence to domestic violence. Each week, I will report on our work in Frankfort, but to truly be your servant at the Capitol, citizens must be actively engaged. In addition to following news reports and reading my columns, you can keep up with legislative action through the Kentucky legislature home page and the general assembly's toll-free phone lines, or our free e-mail news service.

Kentucky should follow smoking suit

Bev Perdue I salute you.

On Jan. 2, the governor of North Carolina, the top-producing tobacco state, decided to ban smoking in bars and restaurants.

The tobacco industry has a rich history in my beloved North Carolina. The second- and third-largest tobacco companies, R.J. Reynolds and Lorillard, call North Carolina home. Even Phillip Morris, the country's largest cigarette company, has a plant in the Tar Heel state.

James B. Duke started the American Tobacco Company, based in Durham. Yes, that Duke, one in the same as ACC powerhouse Duke. The cancer stick also funded the ACC non-powerhouse Wake Forest.

I haven't always lived in North Carolina, so I have no loyalty to the crop that made many so much money. Also, the antismoking campaigns of my youth really stuck with my impressionable mind. Not to mention the pictures of the mouth cancer smokeless tobacco can cause. Gross.

I remember visiting an aunt in a rural farm town in eastern North Carolina when she was renting a house located on a tobacco farm. If only cigarettes smelled the way they do when the tobacco stalks are being hung to dry, I might not be so annoyed by people smoking around me.

Here are the top five reasons why I don't enjoy people puffing their cigs around me:

1. The immediate effect is that it makes me smell bad. A smell that takes multiple showers to rid myself of is just unacceptable.
2. The smoke makes it difficult for me to breathe well.
3. Secondhand smoke is just as dangerous to me as it is to actually smoke the cigarette. Tobacco smoke, the smoke from the actual cigarette and the exhaled smoke, contains over 4,000 chemicals. More than 60 are known to cause cancer. Non-smokers who live with smokers account for 46,000 deaths from heart disease. Non-smoking adults account for 3,400 lung cancer deaths. Secondhand smoke is also responsible for 150,000 to 300,000 lung infections in minors. Those infections result in 7,500 to 15,000 hospitalizations annually. (Source: American Cancer Society)

4. The smoke irritates my eyes. So not only do I smell bad, I can't breathe. I can't stop my eyes from watering.
5. Being in the car with a smoker is the worst. Nothing signals a bad vehicle experience more than when ash flies back into the window and hits the backseat passenger.

Asheville, during college, is where I spent the most consecutive time in North Carolina. It's a mountain town I hope to get back to one day. Asheville's biggest industry is in service and hospitality. The town is home to at least 11 breweries and it seems like a new one opens about once a month.

Once I turned 21, I experienced the glorious delight of the pub and bar scene in the downtown area. Nothing was better after finishing finals during my senior year than going downtown and knocking back a few stouts, ales and lagers with friends who studied equally as hard or in some cases equally not as hard. Either way, going from pub to pub was a welcome relaxation from the stress of being tested.

The major problem is, all of these pubs are only slightly larger than a dorm room, which fits two single beds, and if you're lucky, a chair.

During an average fight for a spot at the bar to order or, if the stars aligned correctly in my favor, a table big enough for a couple of gnomes to sit around, I'd have to battle the treachery of cigarette smoke.

Even if only a handful of people are smoking, the concentration of smoke in such a small area, with so many bodies, made me feel like someone was holding an entire lit pack of cigarettes under my nose.

But, now when I'm able to venture back to Asheville or Cape Carteret, where my parents live, I won't have to battle smoke to get a beer or dinner. I'll only have to deal with all of the smokers taking a break right outside of the entrance, which brings a whole new set of rules that need adopting.

So, sorry smokers of Kentucky, but I implore Gov. Steve Beshear to make my dining and drinking experiences more enjoyable and lung-friendly here in my new home. If the largest producer of tobacco can do it, so can you, not to mention the other handful of states that haven't.

HAVING MORE RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS IS NOT THE SAME AS HAVING MORE MONEY.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying "more is better" is not necessarily true. In fact, if you hold multiple accounts with various brokers, it can be difficult to keep track of your investments and to see if you're moving toward your goals. At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

Johnson's Furniture earns chamber's business spotlight

December Business of the Month

Johnson's Furniture & Appliances is proud to have served western Kentucky and southern Illinois since 1950 with locations in Marion, Princeton and Murray. All locations carry displays of General Electric appliances, including G.E.'s Profile and Café series. Johnson's is the only dealer in western Kentucky licensed to sell G.E.'s professional series known as Monogram and has a complete display at its Marion location. Johnson's is one of the oldest independent GE dealers in the region.

Johnson's also specializes in furniture, carrying brands such as Berkiné, Broyhill, Lay-Z-Boy, Riverside and Standard. With the second and third generation of the Johnson family in the business, they pledge to uphold the quality service and professionalism their customers have come to expect.

Garland completes Road Masters class

The Technology Transfer Program of the Kentucky Transportation Center has announced that Johnnie W. Garland of Marion has completed the 2009 Kentucky Roads Scholars/Road Masters Training Series.

To honor outstanding efforts and commitment to quality roads in Kentucky, graduates were honored this fall at the James E. Bruce Convention Center in Hopkinsville.

Garland joins the 1,630 Roads Scholars and 1,036 Road Masters who have already completed these programs.

The Roads Scholar/Road Master Training Program consists of nine and seven full-day courses, respectively. The combined programs total 96 training hours and serves individuals from local and state transportation agencies as well as private businesses. The Roads Scholar and Road Master Training Programs, as well as a broad selection of other training courses related to transportation, are offered throughout the year by the Technology Transfer Program of the Kentucky Transportation Center, located at the University of Kentucky, College of Engineering.

Newcom retires from Henry & Henry

The bucket list Dianne Newcom shares with her husband Virgil is the primary impetus for an early retirement from the company she's been a part of for many of her 57 years.

For 12 years, Dianne Newcom and her brother Billy Fox have been sole owners of the family's monument business, Henry and Henry Monuments. At the end of December, Newcom sold her interest in both the monument and trucking companies to Billy Fox.

With Newcom on standby and her father Bill Fox's continued involvement, Henry & Henry Monuments, Marion's oldest family-owned business, is still a family effort.

"I will miss the people – the great employees and the customers who I felt I was able to help. That was the part I really did enjoy," Newcom said.

Steve Hoskins of Henderson has joined the eight-person staff, along with Billy Fox's wife Charlotte.

"I am wanting to get involved in the community, because I never had time working 55-60 hours a week, but for a little while I want to do what I want to do," she said with a chuckle.

Crittenden Relay All-American for 2009 fundraising

Padgett

Blackburn

Stephanie Elder, community representative for Relay. "Thanks to the generosity of corporate sponsors like Conrad's, Par 4, Fraternal Order of Eagles and Crittenden Health Systems, the money raised by participants goes directly to the American Cancer Society's lifesaving programs."

The next Relay For Life meeting is scheduled for 5:30 p.m., Monday, Feb. 8 at the courthouse. Anyone interested in forming a team or sponsoring the event is welcome to attend.

Padgett said that seven teams have already organized and are preparing for fundraising activities. This year's goal is $30,000.

Information about how to form a team or become involved in Relay For Life is available from the American Cancer Society at (270) 444-0384, or from local event coordinators, Padgett or Blackburn in Marion. The registration fee this year is $10 per person, with a minimum of eight on a team.

The American Cancer Society is dedicated to eliminating cancer as a major health problem by saving lives, diminishing suffering and preventing cancer through research, education, advocacy and service. Founded in 1913 and with national headquarters in Atlanta, the Society has 13 regional Divisions and local offices in 3,400 communities, involving millions of volunteers across the United States.

Gov. Beshear singles out Crittenden in State of State speech

Crittenden County was mentioned in Gov. Steve Beshear's State of the Commonwealth Address last week at the beginning of this year's session of the Kentucky General Assembly.

Beshear was talking about what he called a bipartisan overhaul of Kentucky's tax incentive programs passed last summer by state legislators.

"The new program streamlined and modernized existing business development tools, added flexibility, updated incentives, and improved our ability to nurture existing Kentucky businesses and reach out to smaller businesses," Beshear said. "The pay-off has been dramatic."

He pointed out that between July and December, 66 economic development projects were approved across the state under the revised incentive programs. He said 44 of them were existing industries and when naming the job additions across the state he singled out the 150 new positions created by last year's expansion at Safetran in Marion.

Overall, Beshear said recent programs could create more than 1,135 jobs, save another 1,450 jobs and result in a capital investment of almost $130 million.

Forty-nine lose jobs at Burna rock quarry

Forty-nine workers, both salaried and hourly, were laid off last week from the Martin Marietta Three Rivers Rock Quarry near Burna in Livingston County.

Gene Whelan, district production manager at Paducah, characterized the situation as a "seasonal layoff" primarily due to the economy. The company has no time table for recalling any of the employees, Whelan said. Any call backs would be "economy-driven," he added.

The quarry had 105 workers on its payroll, including several from Crittenden County who were laid off.

There are four limestone quarries in Livingston County. Livingston County Judge-Executive Chris Lasher said that overall mining is probably the largest employer in the area. He deferred all questions regarding the layoffs to quarry officials.

Martin Marietta Aggregates is a leading producer of construction aggregates in the United States, supplying the crushed stone, sand and gravel used to build the roads, sidewalks and foundations on which we live. It also operates the Fredonia Quarry. Mark Champion said there had been no layoffs at the Fredonia facility.

Vulcan Materials in Grand Rivers has also experienced some layoffs in the past few weeks, according to local miners.

Woman pleads guilty to false reporting

A Salem woman has pleaded guilty in Crittenden District Court of falsely reporting that her car had been stolen.

A 2001 convertible Ford Mustang was found burning on Bells Mines Road on Oct. 2. Mattoon Fire Department responded to the site, but the vehicle was a total loss.

Terri Pryor, 43, of Highland Street in Salem, originally told Marion police that the car had been stolen from a residence in the city. She later recanted and admitted to authorities that she had burned her car. She withdrew an insurance claim for the loss and last week received a pro-

KSP makes 486 DUI arrests in 7-county area in 2009

Kentucky State Police out of Post 2 in Madison County have reported their activity for all of 2009.

Officers made 485 DUI arrests last year and investigated 35 automobile accidents that resulted in 37 deaths in the seven-county area that includes, Caldwell, Christian, Crittenden, Hopkins, Muhlenberg, Todd and Webster.

State police investigated one fatal crash that resulted in one death in Crittenden County. That accident involved Barbara Raineri, 68, of Marion, who died April 14, 2009 at Vanderbilt University Hospital in Nashville from injuries sustained in an automobile accident in Marion on April 7.

The 37 fatalities was a slight increase from 2008 when 36 lives were lost in 31 fatal crashes.

The following is a breakdown by county of fatalities in the Post 2 District in 2009:

•Caldwell 1 crash, 1 fatality
•Christian 10 crashes, 11 fatalities
•Crittenden 1 crash, 1 fatality
•Hopkins 10 crashes, 10 fatalities

•Muhlenberg 5 crashes, 5 fatalities
•Todd 5 crashes, 6 fatalities
•Webster 3 crashes, 3 fatalities

Of the 37 fatalities in 2009, 10 were not wearing seat belts, 15 were wearing seat belts, one was using a booster seat, four were not wearing a helmet, one was wearing a helmet, five were pedestrians and the seat belt status of one was unknown. Alcohol was a suspected factor in eight fatal crashes that killed eight people.

Here are some other statistics:

•Issued 1,015 citations
•Issued 8,005 speeding citations
•Issued 2,569 seat belt citations
•Issued 210 child restraint citations
•Issued 7,456 courtesy notices
•Investigated 1,262 traffic crashes
•Assisted 2,377 stranded motorists
•Answered 13,427 calls for service
•Opened 823 criminal cases
•Made 2,229 criminal arrests

SUV stolen from home in Fredonia last week

Someone stole a 2005 GMC Yukon Denali XL SUV between 3-4 a.m., last Friday morning at a home on Grandview Drive in Fredonia. State police found the vehicle just over 24 hours later, burnt to a crisp in Crittenden County.

Josh and Natasha York reported that their vehicle was stolen from the driveway during the middle of the night. The black SUV had four chrome decorative Arkansas Razorback hogs on the back. Inside were York's wallet, his wife purse and two child carseats.

Caldwell County Sheriff's Department was alerted at 7:30 a.m., Friday when the Yorks realized their vehicle was missing. They and a neighbor had heard another vehicle in the area during the middle of the night, but did not get out of bed to investigate. They theorize that was the time the SUV was stolen.

"There were several footprints in the snow. They had walked all around our vehicles and had tried to take a Jeep but the battery was dead," said Natasha York.

The vehicle was recovered at about 8 a.m., Saturday at 201 Lone Star Road in the southern section of Crittenden County, not too far from where the vehicle had been taken.

State Trooper Darron Holimon said the auto theft remains under investigation. Anyone with information, should contact state police or your local sheriff's department.

Tips to keep your home warm, safe

House fires are most common when it's the coldest and people are trying to stay warm. The American Red Cross has the following tips to help keep your home safe this winter:

•All heaters need space! Keep things that can burn, such as paper, bedding or furniture, at least three feet away from heating equipment, fireplaces and stoves.

•Place portable space heaters on a hard, level, nonflammable surface. Do not put space heaters on rugs or carpets, near bedding or drapes, and keep children and pets away. Look for a model that shuts off automatically if the space heater tips over. Do not use heating equipment to dry wet clothing.

•Never use the stove or oven to heat your home.

•Never leave portable heaters, wood burning stoves or fireplaces unattended. Turn them off before leaving or going to bed.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Earl G. Writtenberry; a son, Paul Glenn; and two grandsons.

She was a member of Freedom Church and Eastern Star.

Funeral Services are at 2 p.m., Thursday, Jan. 14 at Gilbert Funeral Home. Visitation is from 10 a.m., until the service. Burial will be at Rose Bud Cemetery.

The new policy shouldn't create any extra work for the caregivers of Crittenden Hospital, according to Curnel.

The hospital was very willing to work with the coalition when they brought the idea to the hospital, according to Rogers.

"It's very exciting for the coalition," Rogers said. "We see this as a very big step to keeping our county protected from the drug abuse industry."

The policy will also help in thwarting patients that come from outside Crittenden County into the hospital to abuse the previous system.

According to a UK College of Agriculture report in October, Kentucky has one of the highest rates of prescription drug abuse in the nation.

WINTER

Continued from page 1 have resulted in 17 days of operation of an emergency Red Cross shelter at the elementary school. Shouse says that if we have more of the same this January or February, she's ready.

"I saved everything I could from last year and bought up every blanket I could find at yard sales over the summer," she said. "I have bought several blankets for 50 cents."

The blankets and dozens of others items are stored in eight plastic totes at the former county jail.

"We will be in a lot better shape than we were two years ago," she said. Living through a double dose of paralyzing ice storms that knocked out power for thousands of local residents has been a learning experience.

"I've gathered up soaps, deodorant, towels, wash rags and anything else that's washable," she said.

When the power goes out and you have to seek refuge at an emergency shelter, try to take along personal items such as a toothbrush, blanket, pillow and other such things.

"Last year, people came into the shelter with literally the clothes on their backs and that's it," said Shouse. "Bring what you can."

A few donations came in last year following the winter storm, but most of that money has been used over the past 11 months to help people affected by house fires.

"We've spent about everything we took in on donations last year on seven fires," said Shouse. "Any time there's a burnout and people lose their home and everything else, we give them a gift card and try to put them up in a motel room for two or three nights until they can get on their feet."

With winter bearing down on Crittenden County, Shouse says she is indeed more prepared than ever before, but donations are always accepted. Contributions to the American Red Cross are tax-deductible.

Some of the more active local volunteers for the Red Cross are Brent and Lindsey Morrison, Russ and Debbie Eaton, Charles and Judy Tabor, Larry and Cathy Smith, Yvonne Thornton, Minnie Lou Brown and Ken and Marcie Floyd.

Crittenden, Livingston landowners in good position for federal program aid

Local wildlife biologist Philip Sharp says landowners in Crittenden and Livingston counties have a high opportunity of being accepted for wildlife improvement projects on their farms.

"Most of Crittenden and all of Livingston lies in a priority area for EQIP so practices such as native warm season grass establishment, tree/shrub plantings or forest stand improvements are a sure bet to get funded," he said. "In many cases EQIP cost sharing can actually exceed a landowners out-of-pocket expense," Sharp said. "In hard times such as we are in now that is a very important take-home message. Not only can you improve your land for hay production, cattle grazing and wildlife habitat, you may be able to make a little money while doing so."

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) is accepting applications for the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP) and the Wildlife Habitat Incentives Program (WHIP). To apply or learn more, contact Sharp at the USDA office at 118 East Bellville Street in Marion or call 965-3921, ext. 110.

Landusers may apply for these programs at any time, however, only applications received by Jan. 29 will be considered for this program year.

Applications received after Jan. 29 will be held until the next evaluation period.

EQIP and WHIP allow cost-share assistance to persons engaged in livestock or agricultural production on eligible land. Applications are evaluated and ranked using criteria to determine which applications provide the best environmental benefits and address priority resource concerns. Cost-share payments are calculated using a payment rate established for each practice.

All conservation practices are subject to NRCS technical standards adapted for local conditions. For applications selected for funding, a conservation plan will be developed with the landuser to identify appropriate conservation practices. Practices in Kentucky include, but are not limited to, critical area planting; pipeline and watering facility; pasture and hayland planting; grassed waterway; diversion; and fencing to exclude livestock from woodlands and streams.

Additional information may be found at ky.nrcs.usda.gov/programs. To apply, or for more information, please contact Larry Starr, District Conservationist, or the local conservation district office located at 360 West Main in Salem or 118 East Bellville Street in Marion. You may also call 965-3921, extension 3, in Marion or 988-2180, extension 3 in Salem.

"This was one of the hardest fires we've ever had," said Billy Arlback, assistant fire chief of the Crittenden Volunteer Fire Department. "The house had been added on to so many times, there were layers of walls where the fire could hide."

Firemen were called back to the scene after daylight Friday when hotspots rekindled and started flaming.

Officials said it was the second, maybe even the third time, they remembered the house catching on fire in the past 20 years or so.

The American Red Cross initially assisted the family in finding alternative housing for the night. They were lodged at Marion Inn for two nights.

Geraldine Shouse, local coordinator for the Red Cross, said the family was given gift cards to buy basic supplies to start getting back on their feet. Pennyville Allied Community Services and the school system's Heart to Heart outreach program was also offering assistance.

1915 prohibition brought mixed feelings to Crittenden

During the summer of 1915, our local paper was scattered throughout with articles on the cause of state-wide prohibition. These articles were "tell it like it is" facts and opinions on the terrible effects that liquor had on towns, communities, families, businesses and our country. It makes for very interesting reading on some of our past history. Our local citizens were very interested in the outcome of this unsettling time in their state and country, and some wanted to express their opinion on the subject, and also some comments about the people that were making some of the speeches. The articles and speeches from people in office must have caused a lot of people to think and worry about what was happening to their world. So much that one of The Press readers had a dream that stemmed from all the excitement. He shared it with the other readers of The Crittenden Press. I enjoyed reading it and I hope you will too. It was good for a chuckle. I think you will be surprised at the outcome of his dream. His article goes like this:

Liquor dealers plead that if their "great industries" in this state, are destroyed by state-wide prohibition that they will be thrown out of employment and have no means of making a living. Are they so helpless and weak that they can't make a living as others do? If that be the case, this state has charitable institutions for the helpless and can better afford to support them in this manner rather than have their atrocious business continued. This calls to mind a dream that I had not long ago, which ended in an unexpected manner, which I will relate as follows.

A few weeks ago I read in one of the large daily papers, a bitter and violent speech against state-wide prohibition by a distinguished Kentucky politician.

As I slept that night I dreamed a unique dream. I dreamed that my earthly career had ended and I was on trial before the great just judge, who is called St. Peter by some, of all our good and evil deeds. I was required to give my name, my place of abode on earth, my occupation and the age in which I lived.

St. Peter took a very large book, informing me as he did so, that if my good deeds were more than my evil ones that I would be permitted to go in at the right hand, but otherwise I would be taken to the left.

After a time my name was found and my account posted up. St. Peter said, "Such an account as yours I have not had before for centuries, for your good and evil deeds number exactly the same and before I can act I must look up a precedent." But at this moment a loud knocking was heard at the front entrance and an attendant was sent to answer.

He returned and told St. Peter that a very distinguished looking being was demanding admittance and a room with all the modern improvements including a fire escape.

St. Peter said he never heard of such nerve before (remember that this is a dream) and turning to me said I might stand aside until this case was disposed of. The new arrival was admitted and strode forward saying as he came that he had an awful trip and must have - but here St. Peter interrupted to say no more of that. I have been running things for several million years and you will do as I say. Give your name, your place of abode on earth, your occupation and the age in which you lived. He gave his name, and to my great surprise, it was the distinguished politician who had given the bitter and violent speech against state-wide prohibition I had read in the paper. St. Peter took the large book and began to look for his name but after a long search failed to find it.

Several attendants were called to assist in finding it, but without success. Every book was searched carefully again, but the name was not there and St. Peter finally gave up the search, and sat with a worried look on his face.

After a long meditation he told an attendant to have the head architect to come in, who promptly did so. St. Peter said, "I have a case, the like I never had before. I have a being here whose name is not on the book. He cannot be sent to the left because there are no evil deeds against him, neither can he go in at the right hand for there are no good deeds to his credit. The only plan I have is for you to build a new place out and out for him."

The architect said he would do his best but that he would like to hear him talk some before he began the work.

St. Peter asked the politician if he would make a talk. He replied that it was in his line of business exactly and at once launched into the "booze" speech, word for word, that I had read in the local paper. As he warmed up he grew more violent in his language. He said that Prohibition did not prohibit that H. V. McChesney was a hypocrite and a humbug, and as he came to the "personal liberty" part of his speech, His Satanic Majesty (the devil) came tip-toeing up to the rear of the room with his hand behind his ear listening intently. However he soon slunk away muttering to himself "That fellow is not in my line, for say what they may of my subject, no one has ever said that one of them is a fool." When the speech was ended, I saw a pleased look come over St. Peter's face and he said, "this speech has made a puzzling case an easy matter."

Turning to me, he said, as he pointed to the Southeast; you take this fellow back this way, take him away back to the very back field, the old Thorn field; when you get there take down the bars and turn him in with the donkeys.

When you get back from the trip I will give you credit for one more good deed and this will allow you to go in at the right hand, and thus ends my dream.  Another interesting fact in this article is that H. V. McChesney, that is mentioned, was a local person. He was born near Shady Grove, and his parents were John Mansfield and Elizabeth McChesney. They are buried in the Maplevue Cemetery. Mr. McChesney attended the old Marion Academy and also attended school in Hampton, which is in Livingston County. He taught school here in Crittenden in 1888 and in the year 1893 was elected as County Superintendent in Livingston County. He went on to be State Superintendent of Public Instruction in Frankfort and in 1915 was a candidate for governor. He ran again Augustus O. Stanley, who represented the anti-prohibition faction of the party and McChesney represented the prohibition faction.

Stanley won the race for governor with 107,585 votes to McChesney's 69,722 votes. But McChesney gave it his best try and stood up for what he thought was right.

Harry McChesney died on Aug. 15, 1947 at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington.

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS IN CRITTENDEN COUNTY

January 1 through March 1 is the period for listing your real estate for assessment of the State, County, Library, County Extension, Health, Special Districts and School taxes for the year 2010. The assessment date for real property is January 1 as required by KRS 132.220.

REAL ESTATE: Farms, homes, houses and lots, mobile homes, vacant land and Commercial buildings. Anyone who has built a new structure or made an addition, deletion, or improvement to an existing structure on their property during the preceding year should list that.

HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION: Persons who are eligible for the Homestead Exemption for 2010 should come into our office and apply anytime during the year. If you are currently drawing the exemption because of your age you do not need to reapply. The exemption for this tax year is $33,700.

Were you born in 1945 or before? Are you classified as totally disabled from any retirement agency? Apply for the homestead exemption and save approximately $265 on your tax bill. If you live in the Marion area, you would save approximately $73 more off of your city tax bill. These estimated are based on 2009 tax rates and may vary depending on what local taxing jurisdictions adopt in 2010. You must live in Crittenden County and own property here to qualify in our county for this exemption. If you are already receiving the disability exemption, you will need to reapply for this benefit in December 2010. DON'T WAIT UNTIL YOUR BIRTHDAY or until the tax bills have been printed, come in now for this benefit.

The Revenue Cabinet, Frankfort, KY, from motor vehicle registration assesses all MOTOR VEHICLES and BOATS. 2010 motor vehicle and boat taxes will be paid to the County Clerk when the vehicle is relicensed for 2010. The assessment shall be due if not protested in writing, along with supporting documentation to the Revenue Cabinet within forty-five (45) days from the date of notice. January 1 is the assessment date.

TANGIBLE PERSONAL PROPERTY: The filing date is January 1 through May 15. This would include merchant's inventories, shop tools, construction and office equipment, airplanes, etc. All tangible property tax returns postmarked after May 15 will be forwarded to the Revenue Cabinet omitted for billing with 10% penalty as required by KRS 132.290. Intangible returns are no longer required.

The Property Valuation Administrator (PVA) does not have any authority in setting property tax rates and does not collect any taxes. With the exemption of the State rate, local citizens that are on the governing bodies of local taxing jurisdictions set all property tax rates.

The Mission of the PVA Office is to provide accurate assessments and efficient services to property owners or anyone utilizing the PVA office records and administer the statutes of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in a fair and impartial manner.

If you buy or sell property during the year we make every effort to get it to the right person at the right address. We assess all property as of January 1st. We will use the address on the deed until notified otherwise.

State Law requires that every property be physically examined every four years. This year we will be reviewing the northern portion of the county including Mattoon and Shady Grove.

Our regular office hours are 7:30 am to 4:30 pm Monday through Thursday and 7:30 am to 4 pm Friday. If you have a special need, call our office at 965-4598 and I will be happy to extend our hours to meet your needs.

O'Nan - Hunt

Ashley Brooke O'Nan of Sturgis and Duncan Anderson "Andy" Hunt of Marion were united in marriage April 4, 2009, at 6:30 p.m., at the Sturgis Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Brother Jeff Ellis of Marion officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Ms. Ginny O'Nan and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis O'Nan of Sturgis. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Tom Riggs, Mr. and Mrs. William Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Nan, all of Union County.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hunt of Marion. He is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. James W. Davenport and the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hunt.

Mrs. Suzanne Woodring, pianist, and Mrs. Linda Brown, organist, presented a program of nuptial music.

Escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride selected a white strapless satin gown with pleated bodice and beaded lace appliqué. She wore pearl and crystal earrings, a pearl necklace borrowed from her mother, and a pearl bracelet, a gift from the groom. She wore a crystal and jeweled tiara and a finger-tip length veil. She carried a hand-tied bouquet of stargazer lilies, white amaryllis and pearls.

Special music was provided by Miss Darla Blackburn, soloist. The reader was Miss Maggie Davis, the bride's cousin of Lexington.

Matrons of honor were Mrs. Kassie Green of Sturgis and Mrs. Heather Gaddis of Nicholasville. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Stephanie Shouse of Morganfield, Mrs. Amita Shah of Chicago, Mrs. Kim Vince, sister of the groom of Princeton, Miss Darla Blackburn of Lexington; Mrs. Mandi Back of Nicholasville, and Miss Amber Henderson of Elizabethtown. The attendants wore floor length two-piece watermelon pink satin dresses with a light pink blush satin sash and carried hand-tied pink stargazer lily and white amaryllis bouquets. Each wore matching crystal earrings and necklaces.

Flower girls were Miss Shelby Cooper and Miss

Emma Herrin of Marion, cousins of the groom. They wore white satin tea-length ball gowns with watermelon pink sashes. They carried white baskets adorned with pink roses.

The best men were Mr. Brad Hart of Marion and the groom's father, Mr. Charlie Hunt of Marion. Groomsmen were Mr. Nathan Thompson of Austin, Texas, Mr. Tyler Guess of Marion, Mr. Travis Farmer of Lexington, Mr. Trent O'Nan, the bride's cousin of Morganfield, Mr. Kyle O'Nan, the bride's brother of Sturgis, and Mr. John Mark Holder of Scottsville. Ushers included Mr. Mark Vince, brother-in-law of the groom of Princeton; Mr. William Riggs, cousin of the bride of Sturgis; Mr. Kevin Pride, cousin of the bride of Henderson and Mr. Lee Johnson of Warsaw. The men wore black tuxedos with black vests, black long ties and pink rose boutonnieres. The groom wore a black tuxedo with a white vest and a long white tie and a pink stargazer lily boutonniere.

Master Spencer Pride of Louisville, cousin of the bride, was the ring bearer. He wore a black suit and black tie and carried a white silk satin ring pillow.

The mother of the bride chose a platinum tea-length taffeta dress with an embroidered jacket with pewter accents. She wore a pink rose corsage.

The step-mother of the bride chose a red taffeta long sleeve blouse and black chiffon evening pants. She wore a pink rose wrist corsage.

The mother of the groom chose a floor length three-piece champagne set with beaded lace blouse and jacket and solid chiffon skirt. She wore a pink rose wrist corsage.

The guests' register and program attendants were Miss Abby O'Nan of Lexington and Miss Ali Muno of Chicago, both cousins of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the James D. Veatch Camp Breckinridge Museum and Art Center in Morganfield. The club was decorated with twinkly lights, tea lights, and greenery. Centerpieces were flowers in tall crystal vases on mirror tiles on white tablecloths. The wedding party's table included a crystal chandelier.

Flowers for the service and reception were designed by the bride's step-mother Mrs. Dennis O'Nan. The wedding coordinator was Mrs. Cindy Dyer of Sturgis.

The four-tiered square cake had white and chocolate layers with a white butter cream icing. It featured pink satin ribbon and stargazer lilies. The cake topper was a glazed porcelain bride and groom, a gift from the bride's mother. The groom's table had an arrangement of various pies from Ramsey's of Lexington.

Servers were Mrs. Susan Squires of Nashville, Ms. Ashley Scott of South Carolina and Mrs. Natalie Davenport of Louisville, cousins of the groom.

The couple selected At Last by Etta James for their first dance. The bride chose I Loved Her First by Heartland for the father-daughter dance and the groom selected You Raise Me Up by Josh Grobin for the mother-son dance. The couple was serenaded by the groom's Farmhouse fraternity brothers.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at the John Arnold Center in Sturgis. Pre-wedding events were hosted by friends and family in Lexington, Sturgis and Marion.

Mrs. Hunt is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is employed by Crittenden Health Systems as a speech-language pathologist. Mr. Hunt is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and is employed by Farmers Bank and Trust Company of Marion as a loan officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Hunt honeymooned in Hawaii and Las Vegas and reside in Marion.

We cannot begin to express our appreciation for the compassion and love shown to us, The Alexander family, during the recent passing of our loved one, Larry.

From the cards, visits, donations of Bibles, to the meal following the funeral service, every act of kindness will never be forgotten. We especially want to thank Rev. Gary Hardesty for the kind words spoken about such a great man, whom we will miss terribly and, to Lourdes Hospice who gave us strength and courage as we walked with Larry to the end of his life.

We ask for your continued prayers during the coming days for they will be long and hard, but we take comfort in knowing that in Christ there are no goodbyes.

Heating the home safely is a must

If you plan to use a wood stove, fireplace, or space heater, be extremely careful. Follow the manufacturer's instructions and remember these safety tips:

- Use fireplace, wood stoves, or other combustion heaters only if they are properly vented to the outside and do not leak flue gas into the indoor air space.
- Do not burn paper in a fireplace.
- Ensure adequate ventilation if you must use a kerosene heater.
- Use only the type of fuel your heater is designed to use—don't substitute.
- Do not place a space heater within 3 feet of anything that may catch on fire, such as drapes, furniture, or bedding, and never cover your space heater.
- Never place a space heater on top of furniture or near water.
- Never leave children unattended near a space heater.
- Make sure that the cord of an electric space heater is not a tripping hazard but do not run the cord under carpets or rugs.

•Avoid using extension cords to plug in your space heater.

•If your space heater has a damaged electrical cord or produces sparks, do not use it.

•Store a multipurpose, dry-chemical fire extinguisher near the area to be heated.

•Protect yourself from carbon monoxide (CO) poisoning by installing a battery-operated CO detector and never using generators, grills, camp stoves, or similar devices indoors.

Woman's Club News

Submitted by Sandra Belt

For the Woman's Club of Marion's 2009 Christmas dinner, speaker Berry Craig took us to Deadwood Dakota Territory, now North Dakota, for a visit with James Butler "Wild Bill" Hickok. Born in 1837 in Illinois, he went to Kansas to farm. There he became involved in the Free State Movement, which was against slavery.

He later served as constable and stage driver at Rock Creek, Neb. Here he and fellow employees killed three men, pleaded self defense and were acquitted.

He served as wagon master, scout and spy during the Civil War and after the war, while gambling, killed another man in a shoot out in Springfield, Mo.

He was tried for murder and was again acquitted. Soon after this, an inflated story appeared in Harper's Magazine and from this grew the legend of "Wild Bill."

He served as deputy U.S. marshal, sheriff and city marshal in three different towns in Kansas.

He helped establish law and order, all the while drinking and gambling and killing more men. After threats on his life he took to sitting with his back to a wall.

On Aug. 2, 1876, he forgot to do this and while playing cards, he was shot in the back of the head by Jack McCall. Wild Bill was holding two aces, two eights and a jack. This became known as "dead man's hand."

Members and guests enjoyed a catered dinner and sang Christmas carols accompanied by Rebecca Johnson-Crider on the piano.

I'd like the memory of me to be a happy one, I'd like to leave an afterglow of smiles when life is done. I'd like to leave an echo whispering softly down the ways, of happy times and laughing times and bright and sunny days. I'd like the tears of those who grieve, to dry before the sun. Of happy memories that I leave when life is done.

God desires to come along in the new year

“There is nothing new under the sun.” Ecclesiastes 1:9
Someone asked, ‘What’s new about the new year?’ We begin a new decade and a new year of 365 days stretched out before us.
They will be filled with untold joys and sorrows, successes and failures. Also, they will be filled with new opportunities and difficult challenges.
But we need to remember that God desires to take the

Lula Mae Gostley Devotions

Crittenden Press guest columnist journey with us.

We cannot relive a single day of last year, but if we have learned the lessons of the past we can forge ahead with new energies and renewed hope for the future.

The Psalmist describes a new song that God give his children. Jesus told of the importance of a new birth. When we have this life-changing experience the Bible says, “We are a new creature in Christ Jesus.” Many of us have to cope with physical limitations, but when Jesus returns we will have a new body “fashioned like his glorious body.”
As we begin the journey into this new year, the words of Solomon ring true. The best lesson can be found in the book of history, because everything we will experience has already happened before. The book of history is the word of God, which holds the answers to our modern-day problems.

The Psalmist said, “Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, a light unto my path.”
Take the Lord with you as you journey through this new year and you will find that it will be filled with peace, joy and immense blessings.

Hoops back on track after week off due to weather

Lady Rockets down Dawson Springs 77-54

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

After a six-day layoff between games due to snowy weather, the Lady Rockets got back on the winning track with a 77-54 road win at Dawson Springs Monday night.

They jumped out to a 23-7 lead in the first half and were never headed as guards Jessi Hodge and Laken Tabor had great performances to lead their team to victory.

Tabor had 22 points, five rebounds and four assists connecting on four of her team's nine treys.

Meanwhile, Hodge only came up one assist and three rebounds shy of a triple double. The junior point guard poured in 25 points, grabbed seven rebounds and dished out nine assists as the visitors seized control of the contest from the outset.

After Crittenden experienced some early foul trouble, they switched to a 3-2 zone to try and protect any more players from getting into deeper trouble.

Lady Rocket coach Shannon Hodge was happy with her team's defensive performance in spurts, but still wants to see a more consistent effort on that end of the court.

"We're not handling screens as well as I would like for us to," she said after the game.

Offensively, the visitors burned the nets up, shooting 33-of-64 for a tremendous 51.5 percent. That included an impressive 9-of-19 performance from three point land - the most treys they have made in a contest this season.

"It's nice to get a win that did not come down to the wire. You've got to be happy about that," said Hodge.

The assist-to-turnover differential was also glaring in the contest. Crittenden handed out 20 assists compared to 13 turnovers, while the Lady Panthers only had one assist opposed to 15 turnovers.

Hodge also praised the play of young freshman Randa Leidecker, who scored 11 points, handed out a pair of assists and recorded a steal.

"I was glad to see her have a good night," the Lady Rocket coach about her freshman.

One area she was displeased in was her team getting outrebounded 46-31 as well as surrendering 23 offensive rebounds against the Lady Panthers.

Another thing she disliked was the fact that her team sent the hosts to the free throw line 35 times in the contest. Although they only made 19-of-35 free throws, the Lady Rocket skipper knows they can't afford to put an opponent on the line that many times.

Conversely, Crittenden only had five free throw attempts and Hodge believes they need to be attempting around 20 per game.

Eleven different Lady Rockets got in the game as their lead never dipped below double digits when they took the commanding first quarter advantage.

Rockets drop game to Webster in OT 53-49

Although playing some of the best basketball they have put together this season, in the first half Tuesday at Dixon, it was still not enough to stave off Webster County as the Rockets dropped a hard-fought 53-49 decision in overtime.

Crittenden (3-9) had a tremendous defensive effort in the first half mixing things up between a 2-3 and 3-2 zone. It helped limit the Trojans to only one field goal in the first quarter as the visitors took an 11-4 lead at the conclusion of that quarter.

Webster continually misfired from the perimeter making just 1 of their first 9 treys.

After leading 21-16 at half-time, the Rockets were outscored 11-6 to begin the second half and the hosts knotted the game for the first time at 27-all, thanks to an old-fashioned three-pointer.

Trailing 39-37, Rocket point guard J. D. Gray put his team back on top connecting for a trey with 3:52 left in the third period. After losing the lead, Webster got burned long in their full court pressure defense as Patrick Nielsen extended the lead to 42-39 on a layup.

But in the end, surrendering 17 offensive rebounds and a bad 11-of-20 performance at the free throw line came back to haunt the Rockets as they could not pull an upset against one of the better teams in the Second Region.

Trailing 43-42 with :04 ticks left in regulation, Nielsen was fouled and went to the line for a chance to give his team the lead. But he missed the first and made the second to take his team into overtime.

Rocket off guard Casey Oliver was the only player who shot better than 50 percent for his team-going 3-of-4.

The tone was set early in overtime as the hosts controlled the opening tip and the Rockets allowed them four shots before getting fouled on that first offensive possession.

Leading 47-45, Scott connected for one of his five treys, giving his team a 50-45 lead they would never relinquish.

Oliver scored four of his team's six points in the extra frame to keep Crittenden in striking distance, but it was still not enough to pull the upset.

After being defeated by 19 by the Trojans last month at home, Rocket coach Chad Hayes was pleased with his team's play in the opening half.

Hayes lists Webster as the third-best team in the Second Region and was proud of his team's effort throughout the contest.
