Colonial Captain

Adam Barnes and family of Salem – wife Leslea, and daughters, Emmelea, 10, and Morgan, 7 – enjoy their weekends of learning and togetherness as they portray a military family during the French and Indian War. They participate in re-enactments throughout the country and have developed countless new relationships.

History's road less traveled draws interest of Barnes clan

BY PAMELA STRINGER
PRESS REPORTER

When most people think of battle reenactments their minds jump to the Civil War or Revolutionar War. However, when Adam Barnes thinks about history, he chooses the road less traveled. Barnes along with his wife, Leslea, and daughters, Emmalea 10, and Morgan, 7, take part in the reenactment of the French and Indian War, also known as the Seven Years' War.

"I got started a long time ago with the Civil War and quit because I took over the family farm. Leslea knew that I liked it and we wanted a family activity. So Leslea and both the girls got into it, too," Adam said. The war, which took place from 1754-63 in many different theaters, not just the United States, was fought between Great Britain and France, which had the help of the American Indians. In North America, the Colonials joined in to protect their land from the French and conquer land the French held that would be helpful in the fur trade industry.

The war, which concluded with a treaty granting a majority of the French land to the British government caused great financial strain to both nations. As a result, the British government started taxing the colonies to help balance the debt. That taxing led to the slogan heard in every seventh-grade classroom: "No taxation without representation." And as many know, that slogan fueled the Revolutionary War a few years later.

Also, the Seven Years' War was one that saw soldiers bringing along their wives and children, which is one reason the Barnes family participates in these reenactments, rather than the Civil or Revolutionary wars. That's what it's all about for the Barnes clan, learning about history in a family-friendly setting.

"The girls get aggravated when they don't get to go because there are some weekends when just the men participate. We've got friends from all over that do this. We know other units and other people at

No texting on state roadways

■ New law bans any person operating a motor vehicle in motion on the traveled portion of the roadway from writing, sending or reading text-based communications using a personal communication device.

STAFF REPORT

Starting today, it's illegal to send or receive text or other multimedia messages while behind the wheel of a vehicle.

The law also makes it illegal for drivers under the age of 18 to talk on their cell phones while driving.

Law enforcement will issue warnings to drivers who break the texting law until Jan. 1. After that, first offense drivers will be fined $25 and a $50 fine will be issued for subsequent offenses.

There are exceptions for emergency situations in the case of cell phone use and text messaging, like using those devices to report illegal activity and to call for medical help.

Crittenden County Deputy Greg Rushing said he doesn't have any particular statistics to back it up, but he thinks cell phones are the primary cause of an increase in teen accidents.

"Texting is the biggest problem on roads today," said the deputy, who pointed out that local law enforcement will use creative observation methods to watch for drivers distracted by their PDAs.

The new law, Senate Bill 23, bans any person operating a motor vehicle in motion on the traveled portion of the roadway from writing, sending or reading text-based communications using a personal communication device. This includes text messages, e-mail, Internet and instant messaging.

City Police Chief Ray O'Neal says he thinks the law stops a bit short of solving the problem of distracted drivers.

"I think it would be best to ban cell phone use all together if they are serious about really wanting to control it," said O'Neal, who explained that Marion patrolmen will also be watching for those breaking the new law.

Sen. Harper Angel's bill also prohibits drivers under the age of 18 from using a personal communication device while operating a moving motor vehicle on the roadway. The bill re-

Marion has iPhone app of its own

STAFF REPORT

It's almost like a handheld concierge with information on restaurants, attractions and services available in Marion.

The City of Marion Tourism Commission has developed its own iPhone application – in other words, the software that puts information into an easy-to-read format that appears in a uniform manner on handheld devices such as cellular phones or PDAs.

Cost to create the software, known commonly as an "app," was $1,200 for the first year, which includes licensing through iTunes. There is a $600 annual recurring charge.

A single tap on a device capable of operating the Marion tourism application provides the reader with events, Amish information, places to go for antiques, dining, hunting, shopping and where to find area attractions. It will even provide a map showing your destination and a GPS tracking of your current location.

Businesses interested in being listed among the data should contact Marion Tourism Director Michele Edwards 965-5015.

Marion native returns to head MCC's local education efforts

Madisonville Community College has announced Jeremy Wheeler as the educational specialist representing the college in Crittenden County.

Wheeler, 29, will assist middle and high school students with college and career planning, recruit and market the programs of Madisonville Community College in the area, and will coordinate community education programs for the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation.

Wheeler will ensure students have information about postsecondary education opportunities and will provide assistance with completing all the necessary materials for financial aid and scholarships.

"I am looking forward to coming back to Crittenden County and making a difference," Wheeler said.

The position is an expansion of the college's programming in the area and is made possible by the support of the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation, Crittenden County Schools and MCC.

This partnership is focused on improving college attendance rates of students in the school district and increasing the educational level in the region.

Wheeler says his goal will be to help students understand the importance of continuing their education beyond high school in order to be competitive in today's job market.

Wheeler graduated from Crittenden County High School in 1999 and joined the United States Marine Corps.

His record of distinguished service includes receiving the National De-

There is no pain compared to missing Heaven

Death does not always take people out of their pain. If we miss Heaven, there is no pain on earth compared to the pain we will suffer in Hell.

The fleshly, carnal mind does not want to think about or even be reminded of Hell any more, and too many professed Christians accommodate their fallen nature by ignoring it or denying it.

This is not doing people favors but actually helping them in refusing to truly believe the Word of God, Jesus Christ, that was made flesh and suffered untold agony so we could miss Hell and make Heaven our home.

There is only one reason I venture onto this subject. I don't want anyone to have to go to Hell, but all will who do not obey the Bible. If we really study the Bible with a sincere heart, God will send His Holy Spirit to teach us His Word.

There are many religions teaching there is no Hell. This is not only unbiblical, but so dangerous for those who fall for this teaching. I've spoken to people who are convinced of this. They were not born again, and were not interested in salvation because they didn't believe in Heaven or Hell. They think we just die like hogs and it is all over.

They were not interested in living for Jesus here since there was no punishment for sin. What they did not realize was, there is not only punishment for unconfessed and unforsaken sin in Hell, but plenty of suffering right here.

This is what Paul was telling us and all of us have experienced it, that we reap what we sow. That law was made by God before He made us from the dirt that everything He sowed in that dirt reaps its own likeness.

Just as surely as we sow cucumbers, regardless if we thought it was cantaloupe seeds that look the same, we still reap cucumbers, and a whole lot more from that one seed we sow.

So it is with us, we sow good, we will reap much more good. If we sow bad, we will reap bad and a whole lot more than we sow because God also made the multiplication table. One seed can produce many cucumbers that have multiple seeds in itself.

That is a good law as long as it is good we sow, but when that same eternal law comes into play when we sow bad, we want to complain. But every farmer and gardener is so grateful for the law of sowing and reaping the same and much more than we sow.

In the four Gospels, Jesus talked more about Hell than He did Heaven. One of such is, "If your hand or foot offend thee, cut them off, it is better for you to enter into life maimed than having two hands or two feet to go into hell, into the fire where the worm dies not and the fire shall never be quenched.

"And if thine eye offend thee, pluck it out, it is better for thee to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into hell fire, where their worm dies not and the fire in not quenched." Mark 9:43-48.

No one can force us to believe these statements of Jesus. We will be led astray by false teaching if we do not. Many will continue to teach these false theories but will do so at their own peril and all those whom they convince to follow them.

Many are taught that Jesus loves us so much that He will overlook unconfessed and un-forsaken sin in our lives when we die, and refuse to even reverentially fear God.

Here again let Jesus speak, "And I say unto you my friends, be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do. But I will forewarn you whom you shall fear; fear him, which after he hath killed hath power to cast into hell, yea I say unto you Fear him." Luke 9:4,5.

In both the Old and New Testaments we are told over and over to fear God. We will prove our foolishness if we fail to heed God's warnings. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge, but fools despise wisdom and instruction." Prov. 1:7.

Let's remember Mauzy and others like him across U.S.

We celebrated the official birth of the United States on July 4. It was our 234th birthday.

Across the land, this holiday is always celebrated by picnics, fireworks and speeches. And ceremonies of all kinds.

But there are also monuments across the country which remind us that this birthday is not celebrated without cost. Most of these commemorate the men who lost their lives on foreign battle fields, or even here at home during our Civil War.

But there are few which record tragedies mostly forgotten. Tragedies which brought broken hearts, devastated lives and tremendous sadness to families and friends.

There is a monument at the Battery in Charleston which denotes one such tragedy. On the night of April 26, 1952, the navy destroyer USS Hobson was participating in training maneuvers out of Charleston in the mid-Atlantic. It was escorting the carrier USS Wasp. They collided and the Hobson was cut in half. It sunk within four minutes, losing 176 of its crew. Their names and hometowns are on that monument. Also, a stone from each of the 38 states yielding sons to this loss combine to help make up the base.

I visited this monument on this 4th of July weekend. One such name that I saw was Cecil Mauzy from the little west Kentucky burg of Draksboro, Kentucky. I thought of the tremendous pain and heartache this must have caused his family when they received that fateful call.

Seeing that name etched in the stone made me wonder. Does anyone come to this marker anymore? Does anyone study the names? Does anyone give reverence to these many lives that died serving their country, just as surely as if they had died in the Battle of Guadalcanal or some other epic battle spot?

So, I went on line. Mauzy is an unusual name for west Kentucky. I found Bill Mauzy in the village of Beechmont, not far from Drakesboro. I called him. He was Cecil Mauzy's brother, some five years younger. His brother had lied about his age, joining the Navy at the end of World War II, and had remained in the service. No doubt Cecil's family was relieved and happy at the conclusion of that war, thinking he was at last out of harm's way.

Bill Mauzy told me that his mother - now dead - never got over this tragedy which seared its way through this humble family of America 58 years ago. I expressed my condolences to him. It was all I could say. And thank you. Thank you for what your family did for my country.

There were 175 more names on that monument. One hundred and seventy five more vacant chairs at the tables; empty beds; lost hopes and dreams fondly remembered in fading gray photographs in which long ago smiles still water the eyes. The thought weighs down upon the soul like a leaden winter sky.

So, as we yearly celebrate our country's birthday, we must honor not only those who helped give this country birth - the Jeffersons, Franklins, Washingtons and Hancocks - but also those who have kept it alive. The famous and not so famous. Mostly, the not so famous.

Thousands, perhaps millions, of teaming tourists have streamed by that monument on the Battery in Charleston. It occasionally will receive a glance, maybe even a quick read of the larger print. But no one ever studies the names, the hometowns, the real life tears and suffering these 176 fading names represent. We hurry along with squealing kids with ice cream cones, friends to meet, sites to see. Freedoms to enjoy.

So, I paused and peered at the name. Cecil Mauzy. I wondered what he was like. Was he handsome or plain? Big ears and crooked teeth or silver screen jaw and hair? Were his last words spoken in calm conversation during his last supper that fateful evening born on that same west Kentucky accent as mine? In that we share the kindred circle.

Here's to you Cecil. Couldst thou know? And wouldst us all. How many of our meager names, 58 years from our demise, will stop the feet of rank strangers a thousand miles from home and be thoughtfully mouthed with reverence as the name upon the stone is studied? Your name. Your life. Your immortality.

Let us remember the monuments across this great land which speak for the dead. Look at the hungry sea and the rolling lands and commemorate all those who have died there, and in dying helped afford us the blessings of liberty for ourselves and our posterity. It's a good way to celebrate the 4th of July. It's a good way to celebrate every holiday. In fact, it's something we should think of every day.

Letters to the Editor

Animals appreciate moist food and treats

To the Editor:

On behalf of the animals of the Crittenden County Animal Shelter, I would like to say thank you to the Crittenden County "Cubbies" and their group leader Sandy Urbanowski for their recent donation to the shelter. This is the second time this wonderful group has collected aluminum cans and sold them, donating all the money to the animals.

Thank you also to the individuals who continue to put their grocery stamps on our card at Food Giant, the $10 we receive from a filled card is used to purchase moist food for those puppies and kittens that come into the shelter too young to eat dry food, dog and cat treats and medications.

I would also like to mention that our very loyal volunteer, Ashley Harris, designed a great T-shirt for the shelter with all proceeds going to the shelter, and these can be purchased at the Marion Welcome and Tourism Center.

The next time you are considering adding a member to your family, please visit the animals at the Crittenden County Animal Shelter for you are their last chance. These animals may not have a pedigree but they have plenty of love to give. Donations are appreciated and volunteers needed.

She joined Frazer after graduating from law school in 2006. Her focus is on family law, and she also provides representation in estate planning, legal contracts, criminal and civil litigation.

"She is very much an asset to the firm, and we wanted to recognize that," Frazer said. "She has a very strong practice in this area."

AT&T SuperCell announces new employees

The AT&T SuperCell Store in Marion has employment changes that have resulted in some familiar faces.

Jessica Stewart, a Salem native, is working at the Marion store after being with the company in its Princeton location for eight months. Stewart is the daughter of Wompie Stewart of Marion and Christina Stewart of Livingston County.

Stewart's time in Marion will be temporary until Marion native Darrick McCree begins work full-time in Marion. McCree is the son of Ramona Ford of Marion.

The AT&T SuperCell Store was purchased earlier this year by Jeff Parker of Paducah, who owns AT&T stores in six other locations including Paducah and Princeton.

The change in employment in Marion resulted when Danielle Duncan left to pursue other business ventures.

In addition to landline and cellular service, AT&T's local store sells high-speed internet and DirecTV.

Hamby among 86 who participate in rural electric event

A Marion teen was among the 86 high school students from across Kentucky who participated in the 39th annual Kentucky Rural Electric Washington Youth Tour held June 11-18 in Washington, D.C. Selected on the basis test scores, Casey Hamby of Marion was sponsored by Ken-ergy Corp., a rural electric co-op that serves 14 counties in western Kentucky.

Each year in June, an action-filled week provides high school students opportunities to learn first-hand what it is like to be involved in politics, community service, and today's pressing issues. The theme of the 2010 program was "Commitment to Community." Highlights included meeting with their elected representatives in the U.S. House and Senate to discuss the process of government and issues of the day and increasing their knowledge of cooperative electric utilities and American history.

The Kentucky Rural Electric Washington Youth Tour is conducted by the Louisville-based Kentucky Association of Electric Cooperatives (KAEC) on behalf of 22 participating Kentucky electric distribution cooperatives. The activity is part of a larger, nationwide youth program sponsored by the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association (NRECA), Arlington, Virginia, that brings almost 1,500 high students to the nation's capitol each year.

Hamby said he had the experience of a lifetime meeting with peers from other counties and states and with the KAEC and NRECA staffs during the Washington stay.

"While in Washington, DC, I met people from all corners of the country and visited historical monuments, museums and Capitol Hill," Hamby said. "I learned so much about the role of electric cooperatives in the energy industry."

"What I learned on the Washington Youth Tour makes me proud to be an American and to show that America's young people are involved and care about this country and our communities," he added.

In addition to taking in the sights and sounds of the nation's capital, the Kentucky students joined students from around the country for NRECA's Youth Day on June 14 to learn from public figures and other inspirational speakers.

TIP FOR PREVENTING HEAT-RELATED ILLNESS:

Stay indoors and, if at all possible, stay in an air-conditioned place. If your home does not have air conditioning, go to the shopping mall or public library—even a few hours spent in air conditioning can help your body stay cooler when you go back into the heat. Call your local health department to see if there are any heat-relief shelters in your area.

SURE program available for 2008 crop losses

The Farm Service Agency in Kentucky encourages producers who suffered crop production losses during the 2008 crop year to contact their local FSA office before a deadline is announced to see if they are eligible to participate in the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Payments Program (SURE). This program provides financial assistance to producers who have suffered crop losses due to natural disasters. SURE provides crop disaster assistance payments to eligible producers on farms that have incurred crop production or crop quality losses. The program takes into consideration crop losses on all crops grown by a producer nationwide. SURE provides assistance in an amount equal to 60 percent of the difference between the SURE farm guarantee and total farm revenue. The farm guarantee is based on the amount of crop insurance and Non-insured Crop Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) coverage on the farm. Total farm revenue takes into account the actual value of production on the farm as well as insurance indemnities and certain farm program payments.

To be eligible for SURE, producers must have suffered at least a 10 percent production loss on a crop of economic significance. In addition, producers must meet the risk management purchase requirement by either obtaining a policy or plan of insurance, under the Federal Crop Insurance Act or NAP coverage, for all economically significant crops. For 2008 crops, producers had the opportunity to obtain a waiver of the risk management purchase requirement through a buy-in provision. Producers considered socially disadvantaged, a beginning farmer or rancher, or a limited resource farmer may be eligible for SURE without a policy or plan of insurance or NAP coverage. For more information on the new SURE program, visit your local FSA county office in Salem.

When animals go bad, they may need to go

BY ART LANDER JR.
KENTUCKY AFIELD

Kentucky is blessed with a diversity of wildlife – some 74 species of mammals, 380 species of birds, and 112 species of reptiles and amphibians.

Many of the state's outdoor enthusiasts encourage wildlife on their property and spend countless hours and considerable sums of money to get close to nature and its wild creatures.

But, when a family of raccoons takes up residence in the attic, or an opossum spends more time in your garage than the family car does, it doesn't take long for these uninvited guests to become a nuisance.

That's when it's time to call the local Nuisance Wildlife Control Operator.

"They are permitted to take and transport wildlife causing damage or threatening public health and safety," said Chad Soard, a wildlife biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "At the present time, we have 106 licensed Nuisance Wildlife Control Operators in Kentucky."

Operators are typically small business owners – men and women working in Kentucky cities, suburbs and rural areas. Operators charge fees to remove nuisance wildlife and operators they work year-round, often outside legal hunting and trapping seasons.

Based on the annual reports submitted by operators, the raccoon is the number one nuisance wildlife species based on the annual reports. A majority of the raccoons captured live in the state's three largest metropolitan areas – Louisville, Lexington and northern Kentucky.

"During the 2008-09 license year operators captured 4,723 raccoons, 3,016 squirrels, 1,854 opossums and 878 skunks," said Soard. Other nuisance wildlife species that operators encountered included bats, woodchucks, coyotes, muskrats, beavers, chipmunks, birds, foxes, snakes, river otters, turtles, rabbits, mink and bobcats.

Robert Chilton, who operates Wildlife Animal Control in Henry County, said problems with nuisance wildlife change with the seasons.

"In January and February, when skunks are breeding, the females are seeking out dens, and that's when you get problems with them digging under porches," said Chilton. "The males are fighting over females and they do a lot of spraying."

In May, there can be a spike in calls when raccoons begin to bear their young, and decide to set up a home in somebody's attic. "They walk on the roof and find a way to get in from under the eave," said Chilton. "Squirrels will do that too. They like to go through air vents."

The telltale sign that something is living in the attic is when homeowners hear the pitter-patter of tiny feet running across attic joists.

In mid-summer, snakes can become a nuisance when they shed their skins. "They want to get away, where there isn't any activity. They are vulnerable when they molt," said Chilton. That's why snakes try to come inside garages and out buildings and sometimes crawl between walls in houses.

With the onset of cold weather, squirrels seek out warmth in attics. Squirrels have a bad habit of actually working their way downstairs into houses. "They follow the light and gnaw their way through gaps in the plywood, where a pipe goes through a wall, the ceiling or into a closet," said Chilton.

While many homeowners ask that the animal is taken from their property unharmed, Soard said relocating nuisance wildlife is not always the best option. "The primary threat is the spread of disease to new populations," he said. "Also, relocated animals often die soon after release due to natural mortality factors – starvation from not being able to find food, or injury from fights with animals they encounter, when attempting to establish a new territory."

By law, injured or diseased wildlife must be euthanized.

Nuisance wildlife control operators are permitted to deal with native wildlife under state jurisdiction, but they can't capture and transport federally-protected species unless they get a permit from the US Fish and Wildlife Service.

Federally protected species include song birds, birds of prey (such as hawks and owls) and migratory waterfowl.

Resident Canada geese only migrate during periods of severe cold and snow and are a problem in urban areas, where they live around lakes in city parks, golf courses, and suburban neighborhoods. Goose droppings create a mess on sidewalks and driveways, and at times the big birds can be aggressive.

Great ideas for family time

Summer is a great time to do things together as a family. There are many things you can do to enjoy being with one another. Sit down as a family and set aside some time, without distractions to make some plans for things to do together. Involve all ages! When kids feel like they have a voice in the planning, they will be more interested in making it happen and in being involved.

As you start planning, first pick several activities that everyone in the family agrees on doing this summer. Make a strong commitment to follow through with the ideas you choose and to have involvement from every family member. Then decide when you will do the activities you choose.

Is a certain activity better for a rainy day? Is it better for the weekend? How much time will be needed from family members for the activity? Making these decisions at the beginning will help you make your ideas become reality and will give everyone something to look forward to during the summer.

Nancy Hunt Home Notes

UK Cooperative Extension Agent

Here are just a few ideas to get your family started:

- Plan a summer celebration. Some ideas for the celebration could be a picnic, time to visit relatives, or a day trip together. Use your imagination to pick something everyone in your family will like.
- Hold a family fun night. Choose several favorite outdoor or indoor games or puzzles for your family to play together. Turn off the TV and focus on each other. See how much you end up laughing together.

- Create a scavenger hunt out of a walk in your neighborhood. Have a list of items for each family member to look for and write down who finds each item along the way. Let the winner choose what you will eat for dinner or make a family trophy for the winner.
- Go fishing together, plant a garden together, or make something in the kitchen together. All of these are great ways to spend time together and share lots of smiles.
- Go on a mystery car ride together. Have one parent or a parent and one child pick a secret destination together. Have the rest of the family try to guess where they are going.

There are many more ideas that your family can do together. Time spent together as a family has many rewards. It helps you bond with each other. It helps parents see their children do new things and have a chance to praise them for their success. Most importantly, it gives your family a chance to have fun together and laugh together, instead of doing all the things we have to do every day of our lives.

Two CCES teachers go to summer science camp

For some local teachers, this year's summer vacation included a stint in summer school. Science summer school, that is.

Six local elementary school teachers spent time with Arkema scientists learning what's new, exciting and effective in enhancing science education.

The program was held June 22-24 and in addition to two Crittenden County teachers, Rita Binkley and Julie Millikan, and CCES assistant principal Rhonda Calloway, it was attended by teachers from South Livingston Elementary and Christian Community Academy.

Now in its 12th year at Calvert City, Arkema Inc.'s Science Teacher Program has provided hands-on training to more than 80 western Kentucky teachers.

This year's science kits explored topics including magnetism, electricity, circuits, friction, kinetic energy, motion and design. Teachers choose the topics they wish to focus on during the program and then bring new skills back to school in the fall.

Arkema developed the Science Teacher Program in 1996 to address a negative trend discovered while interviewing teachers in elementary and secondary education: teachers did not enjoy teaching and were not adequately equipped to teach hands-on science. In many cases, science was taught in a very superficial way or not at all.

Julie Millikan and Rita Binkley, teachers at CCES, participated in Arkema's three-day mentoring program. Teachers were able to create vehicles from building pieces and use them to explore effects of force, friction and wind resistance on distance and speed.

In Loving Memory of

John G. Brown

November 18, 1928 - July 12, 2009

God looked around His garden and found an empty place.
He then looked down upon His earth and saw your loving face.
He put His arms around you and lifted you to rest.
His garden must be beautiful. He always takes the best.
He knew that you were suffering. He knew you were in pain.
And knew that you would never get well on earth again.
He saw your path was difficult, he closed your tired eyes,
He whispered to you "Peace be Thine" and gave you wings to fly.
When we saw you sleeping so calm and free of pain,
We would not wish you back to earth to suffer once again.
You've left us precious memories, your love will be our guide,
You live on through your children, you're always by our side.
It broke our hearts to lose you, but you did not go alone.
For part of us went with you on the day God called you home.

Love, Thelma & Family

A heartfelt thank you to everyone who in some way helped me during the illness and passing of Mom. The cards, calls, hospital visits, flowers, Bibles, food and most importantly prayers were appreciated.

Thank you to Dr. William Skinner who gave us nearly 8 years we were not supposed to have. You are a true angel on earth who forever has my gratitude. Dr. Starkey, Calva was your biggest cheerleader.

Vanderbilt University Medical center team, you did a top notch job in such a short time. Unity Baptist Church in Crayne, I can never say thanks enough. Especially Leela, Shelia and Sue.

Teena York, you are the definition of a true friend, always helping in time of need in so many ways. The casket spray was awesome and very unique.

Thank you to the pallbearers -- John and Johnny Newcom, Herb Tucker, Billy Bob Bebout, Barry Hix, Darrin Tabor and Carsen. She would be honored at your final act of kindness. Thank you also to Greg Rushing for leading the way to her resting place.

Thank you, Shelley Riggs and Barry Hix for singing her favorite song "I'll fly away," and to Alexis Tabor and Carsen Easley for feeding the cats.

And the most important thank you to Tom and Sandra Easley for your neighborly loyalty for 21 years. Always there. Simply the best. You were precious to Granny and to me.

Everyone--let Granny's legacy live on--take those Geritol.

Love, Jamie, Mittens and Snowball

Remembering some senior citizens of yesteryear

This article is another one from the series in the 1928 Crittenden Presses that honored county citizens who were 80 years or older. This is an interesting and informative feature about our past citizens, their lives and families. It has been abstracted from the archives of The Crittenden Press.

May 18, 1929
 Mrs. Mahala Hughes, who before her marriage was Miss Mahala Williams, is nearly 99 years old. She was born in Hopkins County on July 20, 1831, but has lived most of her life in Crittenden and is well known in this county.

Mrs. Hughes was in splendid health and able to go about her home until January of this year when she received a fall, which has since confined her to bed.
 On Oct. 11, 1848, Mrs. Hughes, then Miss Williams, was married to Richard R. Hughes. They made their home in Crittenden County until Mr. Hughes' death in 1899. Since that time, Mrs. Hughes has made her home in Webster County with her daughters.

Mrs. Hughes is the mother of nine children, four of them living. The oldest in now 76 years old. A son, Thomas A.

Mahala Hughes

Hughes, lives near Marion; a daughter, Mrs. Frank Dorris, lives at Shady Grove, and two daughters, Mrs. A.T. Dorris and Mrs. Douglas Dorris live in Providence.

Note: Mrs. Mahala Hughes died in April the following year, 1929, at her daughter's home in Providence and was buried in the Fox Graveyard in Webster County.

June 15, 1928

Mrs. Sarah F. Hurley, widow of Walker Hurley is 87 years old. She is a native of this county where she was born in the year 1840. Mrs. Hurley is the daughter of William and Rebecca Matthews Gregory. She was married to Mr. Hurley in 1859. Mr. Hurley died Dec. 8, 1883.

Mrs. Hurley is the mother of eight children and had 35 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Her children are W.M. Hurley and Mrs. Burnett Williams of this county, Mrs. Robert L. Williams of Sturgis; George, Thornton, Burnett and Oscar Hurley, and Mrs. Simon Station of Illinois.

Since her children are all married, Mrs. Hurley makes her home with them. She is very active for a woman of her age.

Note: Mrs. Hurley lived to be 92 years old and passed away June 22, 1933. She was buried next to her husband in the Deer Creek Cemetery.

July 20, 1928

Mrs. Perlina E. Paris, daughter of Conrad and Mary Deboe Crayne, was born Oct. 9, 1838. She married Wm. F. Paris on May 19, 1858 in Crittenden County. They were parents of 10 children. Of her 10 children, seven are living. They are William Grant Paris, Ulysses Sherman, Thomas Henry, Obediah Edward, Mrs. Nola James, Mrs. Edith Massey and Peter Paul Paris.

Note: Mr. Paris died Oct. 15, 1912. He was a Civil War veteran. He is buried in the Paris Cemetery on Weldon Road. Mrs. Paris died Nov. 20, 1930 and is also buried there.

August 17, 1928

Mrs. Margaret Shaw McConnell, who will be 81 years old Nov. 10 of this year, was born in Caldwell County, but moved to Crittenden in December 1867.

From 1867 to 1904, Mrs. McConnell lived on a farm in this county and since 1904 has made her home in Marion.

On March 30, 1870, she was united in marriage to Thomas J. McConnell, who died a number of years ago on Feb. 15, 1923. They were the parents of 10 children - of those five, Florence, Clyde, Marion, Sallie and an infant son, are dead.

The living children are Walter McConnell of Marion,

Perlina Paris

Mrs. Olive Reed of Harrisburg, Ill., Mrs. Fred Lemon of Providence, Mrs. Joseph Kail of Detroit, and Charles D. McConnell of Anaheim, Calif.

During the past few years, Mrs. McConnell has traveled a great deal, most of the time visiting relatives.

In recent years, Mrs. McConnell has been twice to Michigan, to Canada several times, to Illinois, Indiana, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Mississippi and Texas. She returned the early part of this summer from her second trip to California.

Note: Mrs. McConnell lived to be 83 years old. She passed away on Dec. 7, 1930 at her home in Marion. Mr. and Mrs. McConnell are buried in the Mapleview Cemetery.

August 31, 1928

Mrs. Fannie Travis was born Feb. 13, 1844, in the home of her father, William Redd, which was then located on the Dycusburg and Salem Road.

Her mother, Elizabeth Waddell Redd, was born in Virginia and came to Kentucky when she was about seven years old, her parents having located in Trigg County. Mrs. Travis' paternal grandfather, also named

Margaret McConnell

Wm. Redd, came from a long line of distinguished ancestors famous in both English and American history, who had located in Trigg County about 1800.

He built a large brick home which still stands near Cadiz. His son, Wm. Redd, Mrs. Travis' father, came to Crittenden about 1840 as manager for the Cobb Foundry Company of Cobb's Furnace, which was located about one and one-half miles below Dycusburg near the Cumberland River. This was at that time a thriving center of industry and commerce. The town, dwellings, stores and offices are now gone, but at that time the furnaces alone employed more than 50 white men and over 200 negroes. Mrs. Travis remembers very vividly this bustling, bustling town now vanished from the map.

She was married in 1866 to Lt. William L. Travis, who was born in Livingston County, son of Blake Travis, and who organized Co. K of the 17th Kentucky Cavalry at Dycusburg following the robbery by Confederate forces of his store at Canton (also on the Cumberland River.)

Mrs. Travis had 10 children. The following eight are still living, Mrs. Tom Wring,

Fannie Travis

Mrs. Etta Stubblefield, Mrs. Pollie Patton, Mrs. Birdie Peek, Mrs. Nellie McKinney, Mrs. Maye Perkins, Mrs. Miriam Simpkins, all of Crittenden, and Mr. Phil S. Travis of Salem. Her only brother, Wm. Redd III, also resides in Marion.

Mrs. Travis did not witness any action during the Civil War, but was near the fight at Salem. Her stories of the earlier days of Crittenden County are very interesting and historically valuable.

In spite of her 80 years, she is very active and more alert mentally and physically than many people half her age. Her friends say that they have never seen her angry nor heard her say an unkind word of any one.

Note: Mary Frances "Fannie" Travis died March 7, 1936, and her husband William L. Travis, died Dec. 30, 1905. They are buried in the Owen Cemetery near Frances.

School administrator
sues board of education for being transferred

A Crittenden County School System administrator is suing the Board of Education and Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough. The lawsuit was filed last Wednesday, July 7 in Crittenden Circuit Court by Kathryn Turner of Providence.

The civil action alleges that Yarbrough demoted Turner "without substantial evidence over the whole record" and that the action was "arbitrary, capricious and/or characterized by an abuse of discretion."

According to the lawsuit, Turner was notified in writing on April 30 that she was being transferred from coordinator of the FRYSC program to director of the Alternative Learning Center. In a letter from the superintendent to Turner, which is part of the case file, Yarbrough called it a "lateral" move and cited Kentucky law that provides for a reduction in salary if a reduction in responsibilities developed as a result of a change in jobs. In subsequent correspondence with the plaintiff, which was also part of the case, Yarbrough wrote that the change was necessitated by a reduction in school district funding.

Turner appealed the transfer, but it was upheld following a private hearing and an executive special session of the school board in which three of five members were present. Those present, Bill Asbridge, Chris Cook and Pam Collins, voted unanimously to support the superintendent's decision. Board member Phylis Orr was sick and did not attend the meeting, according to court records, and board member Eric LaRue recused himself from the process for reasons not disclosed in the case.

Turner is seeking reinstatement to her previous job with her previous salary, fees and costs associated with her legal action and any other relief in which she is entitled.

According to the court records, the transfer will cost her $13,201.75 in yearly salary.

A civil case tells only one side of a story. Dr. Yarbrough and Chris Cook, chairman of the board of education, both declined to comment on the matter because of the pending litigation.

The school board is still involved in a lawsuit filed in 2005 by former superintendent Fred-erica Hargis, who alleges that she was wrongly fired. A technical issue in that case remains before the Kentucky Court Appeals. It has not yet been litigated in civil court.

Dotiki mine is cited for inadequate roof plan
following April deaths

ASSOCIATED PRESS

State officials have cited the company that operates a massive western Kentucky mine where a roof fall killed two workers in April.

The Kentucky Office of Mine Safety and Licensing issued a report last Wednesday on the April 28 roof collapse at the Dotiki mine on the Wester-Hopkins County line.

The mine's operator, Webster County Coal, was issued a notice of noncompliance for violations of state laws that require companies to have adequate roof control plans in underground mines.

"It is our belief that the plan in place was inadequate," Kentucky Energy and Environment Secretary Len Peters said in a statement. "Our agency will aggressively pursue a course of enforcement and inspection to prevent any further accidents or fatalities in Kentucky mines."

Charlie Wesley, Webster Coal's executive vice president, did not return calls seeking comment last Wednesday. Webster Coal is a subsidiary of Tulsa, Okla.-based Alliance Resource Partners.

Wesley told The Associated Press in May that the collapse was a "terrible accident." He said a small fault in the area where the collapse occurred had not been detected by workers who were securing the overhead rock with roof bolts. The report said the roof supports failed, leading to the collapse that killed 27-year-old Justin Travis and 28-year-old Michael Carter. Travis was moving a continuous miner, a tractor-like machine that digs coal, when the roof collapsed on the men, the report said. The failed supports were installed the day of the accident, the report said.

Investigators said last week they would refer the report's findings to the state's Mine Safety Review Commission, which could choose to impose fines on Webster County Coal.

The federal Mine Safety and Health Administration also investigated the incident, and that report is still under review, spokeswoman Amy Louviere said last week.

The state's report said revisions to the mine's roof control plan, including the use of additional roof bolts, have since been submitted and approved.

Records show state inspectors issued 31 orders to close sections of the Dotiki mine or to shut down equipment because of safety violations since January 2009.

The report was released a day after Kentucky officials announced efforts to step up awareness of potentially dangerous roof conditions at underground mines. Mine officials are traveling to all of the state's underground mines and meeting with miners to urge them to be vigilant about potentially unstable roof conditions.

Four of the five deaths at mines in Kentucky this year have been attributed to underground collapses.

State police on lookout for inattentive drivers with summer patrols

Kentucky State Police are on the lookout for inattentive drivers.

Troopers say the campaign that began June 1 is gaining momentum. The effort will continue through Labor Day weekend and will include more than 1,000 safety checkpoints across the state.

State police commissioner Rodney Brewer says the initiative is aimed at reducing highway crashes by reminding drivers to be alert and have their vehicles road ready. Brewer says inattentive driving has become a trend with sometimes-deadly consequences. He says it's the No. 1 cause of crashes in Kentucky.

State police have already conducted 371 safety checkpoints netting 176 DUI arrests, 715 seat-belt citations, 68 drug arrests, one stolen vehicle recovery and 13,622 vehicles inspected.

School reading grant is slashed in half

Anticipated funding for a Read to Achieve grant has been cut without notice, according to the Crittenden County Board of Education.

The grant was to be fulfilled on June 30, but the school system received only half of the expected money.

Crittenden County School Board already had that money budgeted since it was slated for the 2009-10 school year, which has concluded. Therefore, it has to take the remaining balance out of a contingency fund. The grant was originally $60,000, so the board is making up the remaining $30,000 that failed to come in from the grant.

Read to Achieve is a program created to focus on reading intervention for struggling readers within Kentucky primary schools. The competitive grant program also doles out money for diagnostic programs in schools. To receive the grant money, schools must offer short-term one-on-one of small group instruction sessions for readers who need improvement to reach proficiency.

Sponsored by Kentucky Utilities, Crittenden County Elementary fifth-grade teacher Tammy Brantley recently participated in the weeklong National Energy Education Development (NEED) Project's tour of energy facilities in eastern Kentucky as well as the nuclear power plant located in Oak Ridge, Tenn. The NEED Project is dedicated to promoting an energy-conscious and educated society by creating effective networks of students, educators, business, government and community leaders to design and deliver objective, multi-sided energy education programs. The NEED Project's educator network includes over 65,000 classrooms nationwide who use NEED's annually updated curriculum materials. This picture was taken atop Buffalo Mountain, Tenn., where 18 massive wind turbines supply energy to 55,000 households. Brantley is on the front row second from left.

Man charged after going into home on Cherry

Marion Police have charged Lonnie Ray Woodall, 42, with criminal trespassing for allegedly entering a home on Cherry Street at 9:33 p.m., Friday.

Officers were summoned to the home by a woman who said Woodall had entered the front door and asked if it was okay to smoke in the house. She ordered him to leave and he did.

Police later found Woodall and charged him the following day. He is listed on the Kentucky State Police sex offender registry and only recently was released from jail on another charge, according to police reports.

KSP announces activity report for Month of June

Kentucky State Police Post 2 at Madisonville has released its activity report for June. Post 2 serves Caldwell, Christian, Crittenden, Hopkins, Muhlenberg, Todd and Webster counties.

Last month, officers arrested 39 drivers for DUI, issued 1,671 citations, 716 speeding tickets, 227 seat belt citations 15 child restraint citations and wrote 554 courtesy notices. Police investigated 87 traffic crashes, assisted 163 stranded motorists, responded "In Kentucky last year, 53,000 crashes occurred due to distracted driving, 199 of which were fatal," said Sen. Harper, author of the law when when it passed the General Assembly earlier this year. "These numbers are alarming and, sadly, the numbers continue to grow."

Kentucky joins 20 other states and the District of Columbia that ban texting while driving. In addition, novice drivers are banned from texting in nine states and school bus drivers are banned from text messaging in Texas.

FFA Leadership Camp

Crittenden County Chapter of the FFA recently sent eight members to the third week of FFA Camp, June 28 through July 2, at the Kentucky FFA Leadership Training Center in Hardinsburg. Those who participated were (pictured from left) Kari Buntin, Corey Bruns, Matt Berry, Matt Papineau, Daniel Patton, Stacia Snow, Joseph Tedford and Jake Woods. There were over 300 FFA members from across the state attending. The camp was designed to prepare FFA officers and members for the upcoming year's activities by providing leadership opportunities. They attended officer classes, special interest classes and participated in numerous sports activities. Members participated in activities including the FFA Quiz contest, chapter volleyball, chapter waterball and others. New this year was the ropes course designed to develop critical thinking and teamwork skills. During their stay at camp, members set goals for their chapter and for themselves. The week's goal was to increase their knowledge and prepare them to be leaders for their community and FFA chapter.

WAR

Continued from page 1 reenactments. It's good rest and relaxation. You can get away from the rat race," Adam said. "I assume my wife likes it because she keeps doing it with me."

For most events, Adam portrays a Colonial captain in the Hogg Company of the First Virginia Regiment, which was led by George Washington. The unit protected what is now the border between Kentucky and Virginia. However, for some of the larger events, he is a Colonial major.

Most reenactments are fairly small, so there aren't battalions present. At larger events, the reenactment might have two battalions, which is when Adam would act as a Colonial major instead of a captain.

The Barneses have gone to Detroit and Indianapolis, Missouri, Tennessee and a host of other states to take part in events. His favorite is a fall reenactment at nearby Fort Massac in Metropolis, Ill. The next stop will be Boonesborough near Lexington, later this summer.

"I can't tell you what my favorite part is," Adam said. "The longer you're involved, the more authentic it becomes. It's just a good way to get exercise and history. You get to see new places. It's a slower pace and it's fun."

Learning history, hands-on, is the biggest draw for the Barneses.

"My kids know a lot more history than I did. They're learning it first hand. You can read it out of a textbook, but if you experience it for a weekend, you learn a lot more," Adam said.

One interesting tidbit you won't find in the history books: "My County 'tis of Thee," had different lyrics at one point – "God Save our Noble King," Barnes explained.

Congressman Ed Whitfield (R-Hopkinsville) was among the guests at last week's annual meeting of the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation at the Marion Ed-Tech Center. Whitfield spoke briefly and pointed out the damaging effect that proposed cap and trade regulations would have on Kentucky coal.

Lawmakers speak at annual meeting of development group

STAFF REPORT

An overflow crowd attended last Thursday's luncheon and annual meeting of the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation.

Congressman Ed Whitfield and state lawmakers Sen. Dorsey Ridley and Rep. Mike Cherry were among the dignitaries attending the meeting. Ron Crouch, director of research and statistics for the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet, was the keynote speaker.

Dr. Stan Hoover, director of the economic development group, outlined various projects for which the corporation had provided assistance in the past year. The biggest feather in the group's cap is an expansion at Safetran that has provided 150 new jobs to the area. Safetran is using the Marion Ed-Tech Center to train some of its new employees.

Jerry Peter, human resources director for the company, said two Safetran-owned soldering devices are at the Ed-Tech Center and continue to be used for training new hires.

Gareth Hardin, president of the economic development corporation, said that despite its efforts to improve the local economy, the group continues to see its funding drop. The group is a public-private entity with shareholders investing from $100 to $10,000 each. The largest investor, Crittenden Health Systems, has cut more than half of its funding to the group, leaving Farmers Bank, the City of Marion and Crittenden County Fiscal Court as the largest stakeholders at $10,000 apiece.

The group continues to spend almost $30,000 a year more than it takes in, relying on savings to make ends meet.

Re-elected to the CCEDC Board of Directors during the annual meeting were Jim Christensen, hospital CEO; Charlie Hicklin, Par 4 president; and Terry Bunnell, The Peoples Bank president. They join other board members Gareth Hardin, board chairman and past president of Farmers Bank; Dwight Sherer, city council member; Glenn Underdown, county magistrate; Alan Stout, a local attorney; Chris Sutton, Pennyrile Area Development District director; Fred Brown, county judge-executive and Mickey Alexander, mayor.

■ U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield (R-Hopkinsville) said policymakers in Washington will severely damage Kentucky's coal industry if cap and trade legislation passes. He said the United States will be at a competitive disadvantage when it comes to energy costs if cap and trade is approved. He said China continues to build coal-burning energy plants at the rate of one every two weeks in order to provide inexpensive power to fuel its march toward becoming the world's largest economy.

■ State Sen. Dorsey Ridley (D-Henderson) commented on the continued efforts to bring I-69 through western Kentucky, largely along current parkway routes. He said a study is underway to identify the changes needed in the existing parkways between Princeton and Fulton in order to bring them up to interstate highway standards. He also pointed out that a new bridge would be needed in the Henderson-Evansville area at a cost of about $2 billion.

■ State Rep. Mike Cherry (D-Princeton) continued his optimistic forecast for construction of a new U.S. 641 highway between Marion and Fredonia, which would constitute the first leg of the two-phase project that would eventually tie into the West Kentucky Parkway. Cherry said utility relocation is ongoing and projected that construction will begin next summer with paving set for 2014 or 2015.

Bad timing on brake failure puts Marion man in jail

STAFF REPORT

A Marion man told police that his brakes failed causing his S-10 truck to jump a curb, cross a sidewalk and run through the lawn at City Hall Sunday evening.

Four city and state police officers just happened to be in the parking lot when the incident happened.

David Mathew Faith, 28, was arrested for DUI, possession of marijuana, failure to wear a seat belt, booster seat violation and improper equipment after police got the vehicle stopped while it was still in the parking lot.

According to the police report, authorities found a marijuana joint inside a cigarette box. Faith's child was also in the vehicle.

Kentucky State Trooper Matt Foster filed the charges against Faith, but there were three other Marion policemen in the parking lot at the time of the incident, including Chief Ray O'Neal, Bobby West and George Foster.

Rescue squad buys new device for search & recovery at rivers

Funds limited for county's rescue efforts

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Rescue Squad has had a busy last few weeks. The group, which responded to 12 automobile accidents in its last fiscal year, has worked a double-fatality on U.S. 60 East, another serious accident on U.S. 60 East, a drowning and a fatal helicopter crash in the past three weeks.

Rescue Chief Donnie Arflack said summertime is always the busiest for the squad, but the end of June and early July were especially trying with numerous tragedies. There have been six accidental deaths in the county since Jan. 1.

During the group's fiscal year, which ended June 30, it had responded to a dozen auto accidents for a total of 144 man-hours, responded to one tractor accident for a total of 15 man-hours and responded to one drowning for a total of 450 hours. Its total man-hours of volunteer work for the year was 609. Members also had 489 hours of training last fiscal year.

Arflack said the squad has purchased a $3,000 Lowrance HD10 side-scan unit to go on its 20-foot G3 patrol boat, which is used for searching for drowning victims.

The squad chief said the new equipment, purchased from Jet-A-Marina in Calvert City, will improve recovery efforts.

"At drownings, you want to find the body as quickly as possible," Arflack said. "The waiting is the most trying time for a family."

There have been two drownings in the county in the past year, prompting the squad to purchase the high-tech sonar device.

The squad relies largely

on donations and fundraising events to pay for its operations. Crittenden County Fiscal Court pays its vehicle insurance and utilities, which is over $8,000 a year. The City of Marion recently provided some funding toward a new truck.

The group sells family portraits, which generates about $6,000 a year.

"We get no money from the state or federal governments unless we happen to luck into a grant which is rare," Arflack said. "Contributions are sporadic. Most people give during our yearly fundraising period and we get very little during the rest of the year because of that."

The squad has debt of about $25,000, which are loans for equipment.

is proud to welcome Kay Harness for drop-off service beginning July 19th 8 a.m. - 3 p.m. Mon. - Wed.

Chess team wins gold at Fort Knox

The CCMS Chess Team brought back gold from Radcliffe, home of the Fort Knox Gold Depository, but it was gold medals instead of gold bullion that they returned home with. The duo of Micah Hollamon and Cole Foster won the team gold at the chess portion in the Bluegrass State Games held on Saturday. In individual competition Micah Hollamon won all four of his games to capture individual gold while Cole Foster won three of four games to win the individual bronze. This marks the second year in a row that CCMS has won team gold at the event. The chess team will also start practice for the coming year in August. The team includes grades kindergarten through high school and competes in tournaments beginning in October. The team could use some additional elementary school players for the coming year. In addition, they could use the help of adult players from the local community interested in playing games against team members during practice. If you would like to be a part of the team or are a community member who would like to contribute their time to the continued success of the chess team, please contact Greg Hollamon at 965-2746.

Memories of vintage car stir Stout's passion to repatriate, restore Caddy

STAFF REPORT

Boyhood memories often initiate a smile, but seldom do they turn into a passionate pursuit that the whole family can enjoy.

For Marion attorney Alan Stout, some fond memories of a car have moved him to track it down, restore it to its near original form and now he's headed to Kansas City to show off the fully-restored, 1938 Caddy that looks like it just rolled off the showroom floor.

Just 58 of this model were made and it is believed that only five of these Cadillac Fleetwood 75 convertibles still exist, making this rare breed a true talking point no matter the company.

"I'm not a car collector," said Stout. "I didn't buy it to show it. I just love the car and my children are under strict orders to never sell it if something happens to me."

He owns a couple of other restored vehicles – a 1951 MG and a 1946 Willys Jeep – but the topless Caddy has a special place in his garage - and its own carrying case. He recently purchased a box trailer to haul the priceless car to its first, and perhaps only, show.

What makes this vintage rig so special is that Stout has repatriated it to his family. His aunt Ethel and the late Thomas Tucker once owned the Cadillac. They bought it in 1961 from the original owner, Vance Haines of Marion. Haines was a prominent figure in the fluorspar industry and probably paid around $4,300 for the new Cadillac.

The 1938 Cadillac in a vintage photograph in front of the Haines' home in Michigan. The family had homes in Michigan, Marion and Florida. They would transport the car via train to the location where they'd be staying, then drive it while there.

"I remember Aunt Ethel and Uncle Thomas taking my brother Keith and I for Sunday drives. The backseat seemed so big back then."

Ethel Tucker says her memories of the car go back to when the Haines owned it and their son drove it from time to time.

"It wasn't such a show-piece at that time, but it was still a very nice car for a high school boy to be driving," she said.

The Tuckers sold the car to a man in Bristol, Tenn., in 1981. Stout had kept track of its whereabouts through the years, offering to buy the car a time or two. He was a bit surprised when the owner called him from Huntington, W.Va., and offered to negotiate its sale.

Armed with a sentimental attachment to the convertible, Stout wasted no time transacting the deal. He trailered the car home and set out to restore it, which was an odyssey of its own.

The body was in very good condition for its age, only two fatal rust spots were totally removed and replaced. Randy Nesbitt of Marion did nearly all of the body restoration, fully disassembling the vehicle, stripping each part down to bare metal and repainting it. Randy also performed all the mechanical work.

Mike Wheeler of Marion fabricated some new wooden dash parts and restored others Local attorney Alan Stout says he isn't a car collector, but he's mighty proud of the fully restored 1938 Cadillac that has been around Marion on and off since it was new. At top is Stout and his Aunt Ethel Tucker, who once owned the car.

and Seat Cover Jims in Paducah redid the upholstery, soft top and carpet.

The car has two running boards down each side which proved the biggest challenge to restore. They were removed and sent to a specialty shop in Canada where they were almost lost forever. Thanks only to an observant neighbor of the service provider in Canada was Stout able to get them back and have another company in New Jersey complete the job.

In the trunk are the original tool kit and jack. It has two spare tires riding underneath the front fenders and a retractable privacy glass for separating the front from back seats. A cigarette lighter was a luxurious addition in 1938 as was the AM radio, which still needs some work before its replaced in the dash.

Stout will be displaying the vehicle this weekend at the Cadillac & LaSalle Club of America's 2010 Grand National Meet at Overland Park, Kan. He will be accompanied by his wife, Doris, and son, Logan. And, oh yes, Aunt Ethel is going, too.

River group cries mercury foul

Proposed changes to current pollution control standards for the Ohio River could equal greater amounts of mercury entering a river that already receives more toxic pollution than any other in the nation, according to a watchdog group that monitors the river.

The Ohio River Valley Water Sanitation Commission (ORSANCO), a multi-state compact that recommends standards for the river's water quality, has initiated an Accelerated Review of Pollution Control Standards to address emerging issues for the river. One of the proposed changes would give polluters the right to dump increasing amounts of mercury and other toxins into the river using methods that are being phased out in the Great Lakes and across the country due to health concerns.

Specifically, ORSANCO said in a news release issued last week, polluters would be allowed to apply for a waiver of the Oct. 2013 moratorium on mixing zones for Bio-accumulative Chemicals of Concern (BCCs). A mixing zone is an area where toxic pollution is allowed to be dumped in quantities greater than health standards and diluted to meet the legal limits for water quality. BCCs, like mercury, are toxins that build up in big fish as they eat many smaller fish. Most mercury pollution in Kentucky comes from coal fired power plants.

"People are exposed to mercury through air emissions and by eating fish and seafood containing mercury from polluted waters. Over time, this exposure causes mercury to build up in the body causing damage and poisoning. Mercury affects the human brain, spinal cord, kidneys, liver, immune system and pituitary gland and is associated with elevated risks for autism, mental impairment, and Alzheimer's disease," ORSANCO said in its news release.

The group said that at greatest risk are pregnant women, women of childbearing age and children who eat fish.

"ORSANCO's own data shows the Ohio is at a tipping point for mercury. At the same time, millions of people are using the river for recreation and eating fish from the river every year," said Jason Flickner, Kentucky Waterways Alliance water resources program director. "Why don't Ohio Valley residents deserve the same protections from a destructive toxic chemical as the rest of the country? The Ohio should not be allowed to be degraded at the expense of our children's health and future generations. ORSANCO should seriously rethink the message this proposed change sends to the public and make the decision to protect public health."

ORSANCO has scheduled a series of four public education workshops and a public hearing. The nearest to Marion will be from 4-7 p.m. Tuesday at the Aztar Conference Center (Maple B Room) in Evansville. Others are planned for Louisville, Huntington, W.Va., and Washington, Pa.
