Mills to headline fair's Family Night

Former University of Kentucky basketball star Cameron Mills will be headlining Wednesday night of the Crittenden County Lions Club

Mills

Fair, which starts Aug. 2. In 1998, Mills was sinking 3-point shots for the Wildcats down the stretch of the 1998 NCAA men's basketball championship game. Today, Mills, an ordained minister, represents Compassion International and Christian Speakers.com, traveling the country for motivational speaking engagements.

Lions Club President Ronnie Heady said Wednesday night of the fair in recent years has been a difficult draw. He and the club are hoping Mills' appearance increases the attendance on Family Night, which has a free gate courtesy of Conrad's Food Store and Farmers Bank & Trust Co. Heady is encouraging area churches to dismiss their regular Wednesday services Aug. 5 and join at the fairgrounds.

Permit required for building in city

City officials want to remind residents and property owners that a City of Marion building permit is required any time a permanent or temporary structure is added to property.

Storage buildings, tool sheds, carports, decks and swimming pools are examples of structures that require a building permit. Additions to existing structures also generally require a building permit. Before any such structure can be built or placed on a property, the landowner needs to visit Marion City Hall and apply for a permit. Then, the city code enforcement officer will visit the location where the building is to be constructed or place and determine whether that particular location meets city codes such as existing set-back ordinances.

Structures cannot be located too close to a property line or street. Moving a structure after the fact can be costly to the landowner.

Permit cost is based upon the value of the addition or new structure. The minimum cost is $10, which normally covers small outbuildings.

Meetings

- Crittenden Fiscal Court will meet at 8:30 a.m. today (Thursday) in the judge-executive's courthouse office for its regular monthly meeting. On the agenda is a public hearing on the discontinuance of Ken Spar Road from the county road system.

- Crittenden Health Systems Auxiliary will meet at 4 p.m. today (Thursday) in the education center behind the hospital.

- Marion City Council will meet at 6 p.m. Monday at Marion City Hall.

- Livingston County Board of Education will meet at 7 p.m. Monday for a special-called meeting at the board office in Smithland.

- Salem City Council will meet at 6 p.m. Tuesday at Salem City Hall.

- Crittenden County Board of Education will meet for its monthly work session at 3 p.m. next Thursday at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion.

Summer rains giveth, taketh away from farmers

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

As a farmer, Adam Barnes lives and dies by the rain.

Each spring, the rains that cause the Ohio River to spill its bounds deliver rich deposits to the bottoms he has farmed his entire life. And he normally welcomes the summer showers that feed his grain crops. This year, however, the rains have been abnormally heavy, pushing the river past its banks once again and putting hundreds of acres of mature crops under water.

"The rain, it's a double-edged sword," said the 41-year-old. "I just don't remember a July when the water broke the bank."

Barnes estimates about half, or 300 acres, of the grain sorghum planted this spring on his land in the Ohio River floodplain has been ruined. That includes crops in the bottoms around Tolu and on McKinley Island, which sits in the middle of the river. After steady rains last week, he was able to check in on his crops in a kayak.

"What is traditional wet-natured ground wasn't really wet-natured," Barnes said, "It was underwater."

Like those in Crittenden County who plant in the Ohio River floodplain, and to a lesser measure, those who sow along the Tradewater River, Livingston County farmers who grow along the banks of the Ohio, Tennessee and Cumberland rivers have been swamped. Those acres will, in most cases, be lost to Mother Nature this year.

"There's no replanting at this late of date," said Barnes, who holds a bachelor's degree in agriculture from Murray State University and is in his third year as Livingston County's Extension Service agent for agriculture and natural resources.

He said it's just too late to expect optimal yields.

Despite the losses, Barnes and other farmers along river bottoms have endured due to a soggy start to summer, the Extension agent said the rains have helped feed most crops.

"Overall, we've got a pretty good crop," he said of the grains – sorghum, soybeans and corn – that dominate the summer fields of this area. "It's just the guys in the floodplains that took a hit."

As an ag agent, every day, Barnes works with farmers who have cursed the rains and others who have praised

Soldiers with Marion armory judged top Guard combat engineers for 2014

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

Soldiers with the Carson G. Davidson National Guard Armory in Marion are the very best the U.S. Army National Guard has to offer, and they have the hardware to prove it.

Marion's association with the National Guard is a long and proud one dating back to the Civil War when the "Marion Rifles" road horseback against the Confederacy. Guardsmen from the local units have served as combatants in the Spanish-American War, World War II and the ongoing War on Terror. They have been called upon domestically to serve as peacekeepers during insurrections and provide disaster relief when Mother Nature has lashed out at Kentuckians. But today, the combat engineers with the Marion armory boast the title of the Guard's Most Outstanding Engineer Company of the Year for 2014.

Last week, it was announced

The company belongs to the Kentucky Army National Guard's 206th Engineer Battalion of the 149th Maneuver Enhancement Brigade and is broken into two armories located in Marion and Leitchfield. The Marion armory serves as Detachment 1 of company headquarters in Leitchfield.

First Lt. Colby Davis of Marion, an eight-year National Guard veteran, is commander of the local detachment.

"You cannot give them too much," the lieutenant said of his soldiers' efforts during training. "You cannot break their spirit."

First Lt. Davis, whose civilian job is a senior environmental compliance engineer with National Railway Equipment Co. in Paducah, said there are currently 26 men assigned to the Marion

Duvall retiring from classroom after 32 years

Education has a variety of components, such as building leadership and relationships of mutual respect. That's what Larry Duvall has done for the last 32 years at Crittenden County High School.

Duvall, who is regarded as a mentor and friend to both his colleagues and students, recently announced his retirement from the classroom. His decision will undoubtedly reverberate not just within the hallways of CCHS but across a community that has depended on his influence in developing its future leaders.

Dr. Steven Crider has specialized in smiles for more than 35 years.

Crider, who was born in Crittenden County, chose dentistry as a profession, in part, because he wanted to pursue a career that would allow him to remain in his hometown. Recently, Crider announced his retirement from his local practice effective July 30. Retirement, however, doesn't mean saying goodbye to Marion. Both he and his wife, Debbie, still plan on remaining active in the community.

Crider said he had been contemplating retirement for the last several years. He finally set an official date only a few months ago. For the last 15 years, he has been the only practicing dentist in Crittenden

Boy with rare condition still in need of bone marrow transplant

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

A family with ties to both Crittenden and Livingston counties continues seeking help as they search to find a bone marrow match for their son.

Earlier this year, Mason Fuller, the son of Brad and Jenny Fuller of Salem, was diagnosed with Nucleo factor kappa B essential modulator mutation, or NEMO deficiency syndrome. The diagnosis was made at Cincinnati Children's Hospital.

The condition is so rare, the hospital has treated only five patients who have had the syndrome, said Brad, a Tolu native.

The boy's condition requires weekly plasma transfusions and a bone marrow transplant. A side effect of the condition is a weakened immune system.

Although a bone marrow match was identified several weeks ago, that individual, a 24-year-old who lives in Brazil, is now unable to participate in the bone marrow transplant due to an unforeseen health issue.

Mason was just preparing to enter Cincinnati Children's Hospital on July 14 to begin prep work and chemotherapy treatment before receiving the bone marrow transplant. The transplant was expected to occur at the end of July.

Now the search for a new

bone marrow match begins.

Toward that effort, a bone marrow donor drive will be held next month in conjunction with a local golf scramble to benefit the Fuller family. The donor drive will run from noon to 4 p.m. Aug. 1 at Deer Lakes Golf Course in Salem. Earlier that day, a golf scramble to benefit Mason will be held at the golf course.

Officials say it's simple to be placed on a bone marrow registry. All it takes is a simple swab of the cheek and some paperwork. Participants must be between the ages of 18 to 55 years old to be placed on the registry.

The golf scramble begins with a 9 a.m. shotgun start. The cost is $250 for a four-person team. There is a $100 hole sponsorship for local businesses or organizations who want to contribute. Donations and hole prizes will be accepted with payouts for winners.

To participate in the golf scramble in Salem, contact Emily Phillips at (270) 339-1642.

Brothers returns from fighting Alaskan wildfires

By DARYL K. TABOR
PRESS EDITOR

A Marion man was among a team of Kentucky wildfire specialists who returned last week from two weeks of battling woodland blazes across Alaska's interior.

Chad Brothers, a ranger with the Kentucky Division of Forestry (KDF) for the last 18 years, left for the dangerous assignment in America's Last Frontier on June 22. He made it home safely to his wife Crystal and two young sons – Caeden, 7, and Logan, 5 – Friday. By the time he went back to work on Kentucky soil Monday, this year's fires in Alaska had burned an area as large as Connecticut and Delaware combined.

"The two fires we were on, we took care of business," Brothers said of the 19 KDF rangers and one federal intern at Land Between the Lakes who comprised his team of firefighters.

One of the fires – Fire 377, Iditarod River – saw his team charged with protecting the historic value of the once-booming gold mining community of Flat, which now boasts a population of zero and an empty post office. Brothers' duty was to keep the flames away from a local cemetery.

The fire, started by a lightning strike on June 20, burned nearly 100,000 acres, but the KDF crew succeeded in their specific mission. As of Tuesday, the fire was on monitor status.

The crew was then flown in to tiny Tuluksak to mop up an 81-acre fire – Fire 624, Mishevik – also started by lightning.

"The second assignment was completely different," Brothers said, explaining that the terrain was not what most people picture when they think of Alaska. "It was completely flat and swampy."

While at Tuluksak – population 373 – the Kentucky rangers were able to interact with the indigenous Eskimo residents. That gave them an opportunity to learn a bit of the local culture, which included more than one Bigfoot tale.

"They would just tell you these stories with a straight face," Brothers said. "We thought they were joking at first, but they were serious."

The crew never saw Bigfoot, but they did see moose, a plague of mosquitos and a few grizzly tracks. Most locations they were assigned to were accessible only by aircraft.

"It's beyond remote," he said.

Amenities are few in Alaska's interior, even for residents. If the Kentucky crews wanted to experience the creature comforts of home, they paid a stiff price. Brothers shared a photo of a grocery shelf with $8.93 packages of Doritos. The same 10.5-ounce bag might cost $3.50 at a Marion store.

During the first half of their 13 days on the fireline, Brothers and his team subsisted solely on military MREs – Meals, Ready-to-Eat. Those self-contained, lightweight rations gave way to better fare a week into the mission when fresh food boxes offered steak and chicken that could be cooked on a camp stove.

All of the Kentucky rangers survived their deployment without injury, but not without sacrificing hygiene and connections to loved ones back home. Brothers went 13, 16-hour days in the field without a shower and got to speak to his wife for only two minutes by satellite phone the entire time on the fireline.

"That was nice," he said of the Taking time to breathe can add perspective

I'm the kind of person that likes to stay busy and keep a full schedule. The past two summers, I have been kept busy with at least one internship and another job. Having a full schedule and being forced to manage my time wisely makes the free moments all the more worth enjoying. That is why I don't take those moments for granted.

I have that always-on-the-move lifestyle that goes along with being a student. I keep my schedule full at school, and I've worked a part-time job for almost the entirety of my high school and college career.

I enjoy making money as well as learning new skills and getting experience. It's all worth it. Sometimes I need a reality check though. I need something to make me look up from work and focus on the present.

I met what some would call a "free spirit" last week as I was walking back to the office from the corner after getting a soda. He knew what it was like to just enjoy the day and delight in simple pleasures. It was easy to tell that from looking at him. He had a smile that made him appear lighter and freer than the average Joe.

I'm mentally checking off my to-do list as I go through the day and keeping myself in line with what I should and shouldn't be doing, where I have to be, etc.

I've been lucky enough to have the opportunity to learn the ropes here at The Crittenden Press. I've also had the pleasure to be training as the morning edition producer for WKMS, an NPR affiliate located in Murray. I started the producer job with no experience in radio and had to learn a lot fast. So I had the attitude of coming in every day and working as hard and as fast as I could.

Toward the end of my training, I was told to walk out to the balcony with the woman who had been training me. She turned to me and told me to try and come out there every day to take a break and watch the sun rise or just look out at the beautiful view.

I think it's important to stop every once in a while and just look around, listen to your environment and be present. As a soon-to-be college graduate, my mind is constantly racing about what the future holds, what is expected of me and what I expect of myself.

I urge those who are reading this to pause for a few moments every day and absorb what you are living, not what it means or who created it or anything as complicated or debatable as that. Just take a second to breathe and be happy despite the presence of stress or unhappiness.

Courthouse chairlift back in operation

The chairlift at Crittenden County Courthouse is back in operation after being down following a malfunction several weeks ago.

Installed 19 years ago, the chairlift is the only means of handicap accessibility to all three levels of the courthouse. At the time it stopped working in May, paramedics from the local ambulance service were called on to help a woman get down from the upstairs courtroom to the downstairs exit. Since that time, multiple court proceedings have been cancelled and public meetings relocated to Marion City Hall to accommodate those with mobility issues.

A fix was delayed when the wrong parts were shipped from Canada. When the right parts were finally installed, operators noticed a cable was frayed nearly in two.

brief opportunity to talk to Crystal. That phone call was on July 4. Alaskans later in the day celebrated the nation's birthday with gunshots into the air. Fireworks were pretty much pointless since the summer sun never dipped below the horizon – 22 hours of daylight and an hour of twilight at dusk and dawn.

"We never used a flashlight the entire time we were there," Brothers said.

CCEDC's annual meeting next week

Crittenden County Economic Development Corp. will hold its annual meeting next Thursday at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion. The meeting will begin at noon.

The meeting will consist of a chairman's and treasurer's report, election of at-large members and presentations by Siemens, Par 4 Plastics, Midwest Transport and Crittenden Health Systems.

New Food Giant manager settling in Steve Jones has been named as the new manager of Food Giant. Jones, a resident of Morganfield, began June 7. He was assistant manager at the Marion store from 2010 to 2011 before transitioning to the Food Giant in Sturgis.

Jones began working in groceries in his hometown of Henderson beginning in 1981. He enjoys working in the public and the opportunity to meet new people each day.

Citing its meat department and the convenience of its deli, Jones said the grocery has a friendly staff that are good to work with and can help with questions about stocking certain brands if customers have a specific item they would like to request.

Jones and his wife have five children.

The start of school in Crittenden County is less than a month away, and the school district will prepare students and parents with annual back-to-school functions.

For elementary students, Sneak-A-Peak will be held Aug. 6 at the school. Students' whose last name starts with the letters A-L will meet with school officials from 5 to 6 p.m. Remaining students are invited from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

For middle and high school students, the Back to School Bash will be held the same day from 4:30 to 6 p.m. at the middle school gym.

The Crittenden Press will publish its annual back-to-school section July 30.

$1 million lottery ticket sold nearby

According to the Kentucky Lottery, the person holding a winning $1 million ticket from last week's Powerball drawing has yet to come forward. The ticket was sold at Minit Mart 541 off Interstate 24 in Grand Rivers. The retailer will receive $10,000 for selling the winning Powerball ticket.

The winner matched the five white ball winning numbers – 4, 15, 25, 27, 30 – but not the Powerball – 18.

McDonald's cutting number of locations

The burger chain that put "supersize" into the American vernacular is slimming down. For the first time in more than 40 years, McDonald's says the number of U.S. restaurants it has is shrinking. In April, McDonald's said it would close about 700 underperforming locations around the world this year. Several locations have already closed.

There is no indication the McDonald's in Marion, one of 14,300 locations in the U.S., is targeted for closure.

them. Those who plant on higher ground have mostly enjoyed the June and July rains. In Crittenden County, that rainfall has totaled more than 11 inches of rain as of Tuesday afternoon, according to the Kentucky Mesonet weather and climate data station near Repton.

Barnes has crops in the ground across Crittenden County, as well as some he farms with his father in Livingston County, that have weathered the rain. But unseasonably cool temperatures to start summer may prevent a repeat of last year's high yields.

"It doesn't look like a bumper crop like last year, he said.

If heavy rains persist, disease could become a concern for some farmers whose crops may become waterlogged.

According to Chad Lee, UK agriculture agronomist, conditions are still favorable for good yields across the state.

"Overall, we've got a good crop of corn," Lee said. "The beans may be a little behind, but visually appear to be good. We've still got good yield potential."

The corn crop is in better shape mostly because it was bigger when the rains came, Lee added.

FACEBOOK IMAGE

From the window of his tractor, Adam Barnes looks upon a flooded crop of corn last week. Barnes, who farms in the Ohio River bottoms near Tolu and on McKinley Island that sits in the middle of the river, has lost scores of acres of crops dues to heavy summer rains.

"Being bigger, it had a better root system established," he said. "What we need now is one week of good, sunny, warm weather and a nice gentle rainfall ... that's what we need for the state really."

"This year, our yield limitation is sunlight. We're shaping up to have a year where overall yields are pretty good, on a county average, but we are not going to see any phenomenally high yields."

Barnes said the rain has also caused headaches for farmers trying to put up hay for the summer.

"It's hard to put up hay when it's raining every day," he said.

While the hay is in good condition, it's mostly overripe, Barnes said.

Meantime, the above-average rainfall and temperatures in the low-to-mid 80s have kept lush pastures throughout the summer.

Cattle farmers are especially benefiting.

"We have phenomenal pasturing in both counties," said Barnes, referring to Crittenden and Livingston counties.

Barnes' counterpart in Daviess County agrees.

"For people who have animals grazing these pastures, no one has experienced summer, cool-season, grass growth like what we got right now," he said. "Cool-season grass, like tall fescue, is growing like it's April because of the moisture and cooler temperatures."

classroom this August as a hard decision to make. It will be an adjustment both for him and the high school. Since 1982 Duvall has been a fixture at CCHS.

"I was hired on a Wednesday and went to FFA Camp on a Monday with a bus load of kids I'd never met," Duvall recalls. "That was an experience in itself." One of the students in Duvall's first class was Curt Buntin, who has served as a magistrate for Crittenden County.

Ironically, Duvall didn't initially pursue a career in education. Originally from Muhlenberg County, Duvall graduated from Madisonville Community College with an associate's degree in surface mine reclamation, a branch of agriculture within the mining industry that focuses on restoring land that has been mined to a natural or usable state. But employment trends in that field of study were down so Duvall attended Murray State University where he obtained his degree in ag education.

When he began his teaching career, Duvall said computers, as we know them today, barely existed. He utilized an Apple IIc, which had a 128KB of memory. By comparison, today's personal computers easily have 500GB of memory, or more than 8,000 times Duvall's first computer.

"There probably weren't five computers in the entire building and I had one of them," he said. "The counselor had one of them. The principal had one of them. It was a very interesting time technology wise."

Lab equipment included basic welders and table saws. That's now changed with mig and tig welders and more advanced welding techniques. However, Duvall said much of the equipment he used at the beginning of his career is still usable and in good shape.

"When the equipment was bought it was good, sound materials and good purchases so it has had a long lifespan," he said. "Of course we've added constantly with things you take today for granted such as cordless drills. Cordless drill didn't exist (in 1982). That's a big change in teaching style because you're not dragging cords everywhere and you're more efficient as a result of that."

Throughout his teaching career, Duvall stressed education that went beyond the classroom and reached into the community where his students could develop leadership skills. Much of that experience was gained through FFA participation.

"My goal has always been not what a student can do at graduation but what a student can do five, 10 or 15 years after graduation," he said. "So I wanted to make sure they had the speaking skills and leadership skills and be successful whether they chose to go into an ag, welding or a management career in whatever industry or vocation they chose. FFA is a huge part of leadership development."

He said watching a student succeed, whether it's in a class project or at a FFA competition, has been the best part of teaching. He also stressed it's important to support students not only in their successes, but in their failures as well and added that failure is just a learning curve.

Duvall's students weren't limited to four walls inside a classroom. In addition to FFA participation, in recent years students have had the opportunity to learn hands-on through such projects as the FFA Alumni Plots located across from Par 4 Plastics and the ag-ed greenhouse that was built just a few years ago behind the high school. FFA Alumni Plots allows the opportunity for students to conduct on-site soil sampling, help with planting and harvesting and see the end result of a project over the growing season. The ag-ed greenhouse allows students to learn skills in production, marketing and sales, build customer relationships and learn the overall operation of a business. Each project was an additional opportunity to place trust in his students and teach the importance of leadership.

"You build leaders by leading. Too many kids are spoon fed. If you don't give them responsibility how can they learn responsibility?" he explained. "You're only going to get out of somebody what you expect of somebody."

His students haven't forgotten the trust Duvall placed in them. Over the years many have stayed in contact with him and now work in different forms of the industry. Three former students have pursued careers in agriculture education. Two of those students eventually went on to pursue careers in the private sector. One however, Jessica Cummins, is still active in teaching and is employed by the Crittenden County School District. Cummins will assume many of Duvall's classes in the upcoming school year.

Duvall's influence at the high school extends beyond teaching. For the last 17 years he has been an active member of the site-based decision making council (SBDM).

When he first met Duvall more than 25 years ago, CCHS Principal Curtis Brown said Duvall had already established a reputation as a strong teacher. Brown now describes him as an institution at the high school.

"In conversations I had with Larry this year, he said that when he retired he wanted to 'go out on top,' and he has. Our ag and FFA programs are recognized throughout the state for their quality and the enrollment numbers in our ag program are stronger than ever," Brown said. "We thank Larry for his years of service here and his commitment to excellence in his job and with his students. But we're especially appreciative to him for the positive impact he has had on the hundreds of young people who have come through his classroom over time. It's a legacy that will serve Crittenden County for years to come."

Superintendent Vince Clark echoed Brown's sentiments on Duvall's commitment and impact on the Crittenden County School system.

"He is highly respected by his peers across the state. Mr. Duvall is beloved by his students, past and present. A week rarely passes that someone doesn't mention what an impact Duvall has played in their lives," Clark said. "In 32 years he has served as a highly engaging teacher, SBDM member and mentor to countless teachers. He challenged his students to think and be problem solvers while being a good neighbor. Crittenden County has been fortunate to have someone like him teach their students and serve our community."

Duvall said retirement will give him the opportunity to play catch up on several projects at home. He indicated he may pursue another career option or even substitute teach one day. But not any time soon.

"I've got five years' worth of catch up to do at the house and farm. Down the road I'll possibly look at something," he said. "Everybody says I'll drink sweet tea and sit on the porch. I doubt that. I'll be on the farm. I'm going to look at some other activities. I'm not in a hurry to jump in the job market again because I do want some time off."

KyTC sends message with theft convictions

FROM AP AND STAFF REPORTS

Kentucky Transportation Cabinet officials are hoping the guilty plea of a Clark County couple accused of a rash of thefts that stripped copper wire from highway lighting systems sends a message to other thieves.

"This indicates that our agency is prepared to prosecute those who damage public property," said cabinet spokesman Keith Todd.

The transportation cabinet has been plagued by thefts across the state, including a significant one in Livingston County, over the last few years, Todd added.

Aaron Ferguson and his wife, Cindy Ferguson, entered pleas last week in Franklin County. Aaron Ferguson admitted to 28 felony counts of theft, criminal mischief and being a persistent felony offender. Cindy Ferguson admitted to five misdemeanor counts of criminal facilitation.

Aaron Ferguson had originally faced 88 counts and his wife 44 counts stemming from 22 incidents in 2014 in which copper wire was taken from lighting systems on interstates and parkways in Bath, Fayette, Franklin, Grant, Jefferson, Laurel, Nelson, Scott and Woodford counties.

The Commonwealth is recommending a sentence of 10 years in prison – five years for each of the theft and criminal mischief charges, to be served concurrently, and five more years by Ferguson's status as a persistent felony offender. The transportation cabinet says Aaron Ferguson will be sentenced on Aug. 28. Cindy Ferguson's 12-month sentence was probated.

Todd said the thefts can be expensive to taxpayers. Copper wiring taken from navigation lights on the Ky. 453 canal bridge south of Grand Rivers caused an estimated $50,000 in damages.

Longtime EMT Shouse retires

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

After a 30-year career, last Friday was Crittenden County EMT Stephen Shouse's last day on the job. Shouse has worked as an EMT in Crittenden County for six years. He has also worked in Evansville, Ind., and Union County and part time as an EMT in Livingston County. He still serves as the Union County coroner, a position he has held for 12 years.

A Union County native, Shouse initially received a degree in agriculture from Western Kentucky University and began a career as a full-time farmer. That all changed after his father died in a farming accident. Shouse said because there wasn't an ambulance service available, CPR was performed on his father in the back of a station wagon while en route to the hospital. From that experience, Shouse became committed to helping others and several years later had the opportunity to pursue a second career as an EMT.

During his career, Shouse said he has responded multiple times to an emergency that involved someone he knew. He described it as a

Substitute teacher training set for Aug. 6

STAFF REPORT

Ask any teacher his or her No. 1 desire for students when illness or professional development takes him or her away from the classroom, and you are likely to get the same answer: Continuous instruction.

That's why the role of substitute teachers is so vital to a school system. In fact, the Crittenden County school district is so committed to its substitute program that it hosts annual training sessions and even recently established a Substitute of the Year award at each of its three schools. Teresa Foster, Nancy Lacy, and Sabrina Stokes were the inaugural winners of the awards.

Foster, Substitute of the Year at Crittenden County Middle School (CCMS), began her tenure as a substitute upon retiring from education in 2007. According to Foster, teaching is something she finds impossible to leave.

"The most rewarding aspect of substitute teaching is connecting and reconnecting with people," said Foster. "I enjoy meeting students who are children of my former students and working with former students and colleagues. I love the looks on children's faces when I tell them I was their parent's teacher."

Those considering substitute teaching may be eligible in one of three ways:

- If a person is a certified teacher (either retired or not currently teaching).
- If a person has a bachelor degree in any field.
- If a person has at least 64 college credits.

Pay ranges from $65 per day to $109 per day, depending upon rank and certification.

Crittenden County Elementary School Substitute of the Year Sabrina Stokes said the flexible schedule and family-friendly nature of the job are obvious benefits of substituting, but the most rewarding aspect, she feels, is the smiles on children's faces.

"It's a wonderful feeling knowing that you can make a difference in a child's life with a simple smile or hug," said Stokes. "Sometimes that's all they need to know they are loved."

According to Diana Lusby, Personnel Director for Crittenden County Schools, trying experience but said training keeps emergency responders focused on saving lives. The ability to help those in need is what he finds rewarding about his profession.

"In those cases you feel like you've helped somebody and that's gratifying," he said. "That's what kept me in the business all these years."

Not all emergency calls have involved accident scenes. Shouse said one of the best parts of his job is having the opportunity to deliver babies, some of which were born in the back of an ambulance. During his career he delivered six babies.

Shouse, also known as Petie to his friends, will turn 70 on July 19. He and his wife will spend some time visiting with their children and grandchildren, some of which live in California.

Crittenden County EMS Director Kevin Hilkey said Shouse is a natural leader and someone everybody in the department looks up to.

"He's always smiling, always happy and is willing to help people when they have an issue or a problem whether it's medical or other questions. He's always been the kind of person who looks for ways to improve himself. He's been involved in a lot of different organizations. He's very good at what he does," Hilkey said. "We're certainly going to miss him."

those considering substitute teaching should enjoy working with young people and desire to continue instruction in a teacher's absence.

"Time is of the essence in education," said Lusby, "and that is why we need substitutes who are willing to follow teachers' lesson plans and ensure learning continues even when the regular classroom teacher cannot be there."

Neal Bryant, science teacher at CCMS, agrees.

"I think that a substitute teacher needs to be dedicated to a student's education and not just a paycheck," Bryant said. "The assurance that 'business as usual' is taking place is priceless."

Lusby explained that substitutes in Crittenden County are now made aware of teacher requests via an automated system called Aesop. Teachers schedule absences online, which post for substitute viewing. Substitutes can view the postings and choose to accept the job based upon his or her availability or preference. Jobs can also be accepted via automated phone calls.

"Aesop has really streamlined the substitute process for both teachers and substitutes," added Lusby. "It ensures the timely fulfillment of needs at all three schools."

Those interested in substitute teaching opportunities should apply online at the school's website at crittendenskyschools.us.

All classroom substitute teachers are required to attend a training session which will be offered from 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 6 in Rocket Arena. Those attending will receive classroom management and instructional training, as well as participate in a mini active-shooter drill, a professional development exercise all Crittenden County staff completed earlier this summer. Lusby said substitutes, bus drivers, custodians, food service workers, office staff and instructional assistants also are needed, but are not required to attend the Aug 6 training. People interested in these positions also may apply online.

For more information, visit the school districts' website or email diana.lusby@crittendenskyschools.us.

3 Marion men charged with Salem trailer theft

STAFF REPORT

Three Crittenden County men have been arrested in connection with the theft of a utility trailer last month from a Salem parking lot.

According to Chief Deputy Devin Brewer of the Livingston County Sheriff's Department, Chris A. Fitzgerald, 46, Chris M. Fitzgerald, 25, and Charles Walker, 47, have each been charged with one count of theft by unlawful taking under $500, which is a Class A misdemeanor. All three men are residents of Marion.

The utility trailer, which was used for the collection of recycled goods, was reportedly stolen June 29 from the parking lot of Salem Food Market. Video footage of the crime showed the theft occurred at 3:15 a.m.

The trailer was recovered by Livingston County Sheriff Bobby Davidson and Crittenden County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Agent. The trailer was located hidden behind trees on the Fitzgerald property in Frances in Crittenden County.

It has been returned to its owner, Darrell Todd of Marion.

Both Fitzgerald subjects were lodged in McCracken County Jail. Walker was lodged in Crittenden County Detention Center.

Additional charges may be forthcoming.

Construction boomed in Marion during early 1900s

This interesting and informative article was printed in The Evansville Sunday Courier and Journal on April 10, 1927. It's titled "Marion Smashes Former Building Records in 1926. Completion of Fohs Hall and Addition to High School Big Events of the Year." It was written by W.P. Hogard, who was publisher of The Crittenden Press at the time.

Building records smashed
The year 1926 in Marion was one of the greatest in the history of the city from the standpoint of buildings erected regarding business and residential property. Not since the Great Fire of 1905, which wiped out more than half the business houses in town, has there been a greater activity in business property construction.

The outstanding feature of this activity is the Fohs Hall addition to the Marion High School system. This magnificent structure cost more than $100,000, and the building and grounds in their entirety are the gift of a former Marion High School student, F. Julius Fohs, a widely known oil geologist who has accumulated a fortune of considerable proportions and made his home town an absolute gift of this property.

The building contains the music, home economics, agriculture and athletic departments of the local high school and is the scene of all the winter recreational activities of the town. Mr. Fohs asked that it be used as much as possible for a community center. The gymnasium and auditorium are of ample size for these purposes.

The structure is three stories high, the lower floor being half-basement containing the showers and lockers and the agriculture and home economics departments. The main floor contains the gymnasium, auditorium, music and lounge rooms. The public library occupies the entire third floor.

Masonic lodge
Early in 1926, the Masonic lodge completed two additions to their home on the corner of Main and Belleville streets, with one of the new buildings fronting on Main Street, two stories in height. It was occupied by D.B. Moore as soon as completed. He conducted a grocery there. During Christmas week, fire ravaged the contents of the store and considerably damaged the building. Plans are being made to replace the structure with one of three stories in height. Fronting Bellville Street, the Masons added a two-story building last year, the ground floor being occupied by The Crittenden Press with one of the most modern and completely equipped newspaper plants to be found in the smaller towns. The second floor is tenanted by the Travis Photography Studio.

Shelby building
Early 1926 also saw the completion of the Shelby building on the north side of the public square. This structure is occupied by the local company of the Na-

Woman's Club building
The Woman's Club of Marion erected a club building on Carlisle Street adjoining the post office grounds. It contains an exceptionally beautiful auditorium for the club meetings; a restroom, which is open to the women of the community at all hours; and two business rooms, one of which is occupied by the local office of the Kentucky Utilities Co., and the other by the Kalos Beauty Shop. Officials of the club claim it is the smallest in the country to own such a splendid home.

Local contractors, J.N. Boston & Sons erected all of these buildings, with the Fohs Hall construction being the largest contract they ever handled.

Residential building
There has been considerable activity in the residential section of town, the largest part of it on North Main Street. O.S. Denny, a cashier at the Farmers Bank & Trust Co., built one of the most beautiful homes in Marion at the corner of North Main and Poplar streets. It is a brick veneer bungalow-type. The residence was built by J.N. Boston & Sons and is one of the most attractive in Marion, being constructed of brick with pretty windows and roomy porches, with a large sun parlor on the north.

(This home has since been torn down).

SUBMITTED PHOTOS
Shown above, the Spanish stucco bungalow that belonged to George and Maude Rogers was built in 1926. It was the only Spanish-style home in Marion and was torn down in September 2008 to make room for the new People's Bank drive-thru. At right, Fohs Hall is depicted as it nears its completion in the summer of 1926. It would be dedicated in October of that same year.

on North Main near the city limits and moved into it with his bride during the summer of 1926.

(This home is located at 428 N. Main St., and Louise Allen Watson lived there for many years.)

Work was started in the closing weeks of the year on a brick bungalow Ted Boston is to erect on the corner of South Main and West Depot streets. The "Wilsonia," for many years in the early history of Marion was the finest residence in Crittenden County, was razed to make room for the new Boston dwelling.

Last year, the Kentucky theater leased the building on Main Street occupied for a number of years by The Crittenden Press and remodeled it into a handsome motion picture house.

(This was where Robards Drug Store/Babb's Drug Store/Nelson's was later located.)

The Strand Theater also underwent extensive alterations, though it was operated only spasmodically during the latter part of the year.

(The Strand Theater was located in the building that would later be home to the Kentucky Theater.)

Business changes
Considerable alternations were made by Cook's Auto Laundry to make room for a modern greasing rack. The alterations make this institution second to none in equipment for washing and oiling cars.

A number of business changes were made during the year. The Kentucky Utilities Co. in February purchased the plant and franchise of the local electric light company from S.M. Jenkins, who had owned it for more than 20 years. Marion was cut over to the higher tension circuit from Earlington for its electric supply in the early fall.

S.M. Jenkins purchased from George R. Orme his interest in the Orme Drug Co., one of the best known drug stores in this section. The business was founded by James H. Orme many years ago, and he had sold it to the Orme Drug Co., composed of George R. Orme, Ted Frazer and G.N. Rankin, two years ago.

J.R. Daugherty, for a number of years a merchant at Casad in this county, purchased an interest in the W.W. Runyan & Co., motor car dealers, and the style of the firm was changed to the R & D Motor Co.

Harold Yates purchased the interest of R.S. Elkins in the firm of Clark & Elkins, automobile dealers, and the firm became Clark & Yates.

R.S. Elkins purchased the Weldon Coal Co. and is now the proprietor of the Elkins Coal Co. Mr. Elkins was in the coal business for many years before associating with Mr. Clark in the automobile business.

Albert M. McConnell purchased the Marion Coal Co. from S. J. Sullenger, but no change was made in the name of the business.

Closing thoughts
It's really interesting to read about the history of our town during this time period. It must have been a very booming, growing and prosperous town. I would like to thank my friend Brenda Joyce Jerome of Newburgh, Ind., for sharing this article with us.

Supreme Court ruling doesn’t change God’s Word

Regardless of how anything I write might be misunderstood, I want to go on record as saying that it is the love for God, His truth and the love for my fellow man that leads me to take the time, work and research to write, speak or even live, because He put that burden on me almost 56 years ago. I will die trying to obey Him.

God knows my heart, and I don't want anyone to go to hell, so I give my life informing, praying and living to help remind people of God's words.

The comfort zone is the back seat in the church, running from all conflict and letting the world not only go by, but go to hell.

But God's called servants are worn out and used up in trying to help people understand what living for God is all about, what this nation was founded on and what it will take to destroy it. They are never allowed the tranquility of the comfort zone.

We all are put here to help people live the plan their Creator set for them and to teach them the horrible repercussions of failing it.

The evil and unconstitutional ruling of the Supreme Court of the United States on same-sex marriage does not change God's ruling, which calls it an abomination. The sad truth is, many professed Christians support these abominable things and Paul addressed them.

“They profess that they know God; but in works they deny Him, being abominable and disobedient and unto every good work reprobate,” Titus 1:16 tells us.

We have again been made painfully aware of what some of us have cried out for years – 98 percent of America's institutions of higher learning are run by atheistic, socialistic and communistic-minded professors who scoff at a power higher than man. They are brainwashing the young, who in many cases are not Bible-trained at home. And they attend churches which are purveyors of social gospel instead of Jesus' gospel. Millions of these precious young minds are taken captive and shaped into the minds of their captors, who will answer to God.

Addressing the stunning and heartbreaking defense in the recent publication of this noble and dearly-loved local news outlet, I want to quote Ms. Becca Schimmel: “It is the humane thing to allow everyone their equal rights.”

I agree wholeheartedly with that, and thousands of our best citizens left their bones on wretched foreign soil dying for equal rights for all of us. Yet she is “disappointed in the county clerks that are shirking their duties and refusing to do their jobs,” thereby disregarding equal rights.

Another quote I am also in agreement with is, “It's right and proper to allow people their equal rights, and it's discriminatory to grant rights only to some and not others.”

It will be refreshing to hear Ms. Schimmel and like-minded people bravely standing up and defending the equal rights of Christians refusing to make wedding cakes for the same-sex weddings, the photographers refusing to photograph the weddings and the ministers refusing to marry them. Where will they be when the ministers are punished for preaching the Bible's condemnation of same-sex relationships, as is already happening in Canada?

The fervently-expressed defense for same sex marriage surely gives me an equal right to explain why Christians are so fervently against it. Christians believe and obey God's Words which openly and explicitly tells us same-sex relationships are wicked, unnatural, destructive and punishable by God. In fact, God said they were to be punished with death in Leviticus 20:13.

Those are God's statements, not mine.

Let us please pray that our young people will not be influenced by this strong and sadly misguided support of this wicked sin. May they listen to Jesus who said in Mark 10:6-9, “From the beginning of the creation, God made them male and female. And they twain shall be one flesh: so then they are no more twain, but one flesh.”

It is biologically, physically and humanly impossible to make two men or two women "one flesh."

When God made them male and female, He told them to “multiply and replenish the earth.”

Again, no way can this happen in this distorted and sinful plan of man.

Even in electricity, to have power to produce, you have to have the receptacle and connecting components.

God made the law in nature and humans that likes repel and opposites attract. The only power that twists that is Satan in the hearts of sinful man.

God knew when man disobeyed Him in the Garden and instead obeyed Satan so that man would end up in these sins. In the very beginning, He not only made the plan, but made it impossible for the disobedience of it to work.

Yes, the quote, “Marriage has changed over time,” is looking only at what man has done to it.

God was the one who made marriage, not man. He made it for one man and one woman and has not changed and never will. God said, “I change not... and My word is forever settled in Heaven.”

He also said, “What man has joined together, let not man put asunder.”

But sin in the hearts of man has torn asunder God's plan for man and his happiness. Misery, crime and death are the consequences.

He condemned divorce and remarriage, adultery, fornication, homosexuality and bestiality, but sinful man has condoned all of these sins down through history. If Jesus doesn't come soon, it all will become commonplace and accepted practice with most of the population of the world, making it the prophesied time for God to destroy the world.

Godly people will join with Him in Heaven, and all the millions of Satan's followers would be “cast into hell fire, where the worm dies not and the fire is not quenched,” Jesus said in Mark 9:43-48.

“The wicked shall be turned into Hell, and all the nations that forget God,” reads Psalms 9:17.

So I would like to explain to all interested that as Christians wanting to obey God and end up with Him in Heaven when this is all over, we take very seriously Jesus' words in John 14:23, “If a man love Me, he will keep My words, and My Father will love him.”

The Beloved John said in 1 John 2:4, “He that says, I know Him, and keeps not His commandments, is a liar and the truth is not in him.”

One of those commandments found in Hebrews 12:14 is, “Without holiness, no man shall see the Lord.”

Assisting in needs of others by offering a helping hand is a God-given responsibility

By JOEY DURHAM
GUEST CONTRIBUTOR

Today my devotional is centered around this thought, “Lifting up weak hands,” and my text is found in Hebrews 12:12, where we read, “Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down and the feeble knees.”

All who have been born again by faith in Jesus Christ, and Him alone, are members of His body, the church. As such, every member has a responsibility to all the other members. One of those obligations is to lift up the hands which hang down.

Helping, encouraging and strengthening fellow believers is a much-neglected ministry today, but we can remedy this situation by recognizing that assisting others is a God-given responsibility and a wonderful privilege.

Of course, those believers who are strong in the faith have a special responsibility to help and encourage the weaker members of Christ's body, the church. But even new believers should be aware of the fact that the joy they exhibit as a result of their new life in Jesus Christ will be a great blessing and encouragement to the faithful veterans of the faith.

Are you in need of a helping hand today?

Trust Christ, look to Him and take seriously your obedience to the precious Word of God, but in addition, be looking for someone else to encourage and uphold, even as others along the way are lifting you up in your times of weakness.

(Editor's note: Joey Durham, pastor of Sturgis Baptist Church, shares his views periodically in this newspaper. His opinions are his own and are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

County.

"I still feel good but at the same time I'm just ready to sit back and relax a little bit," Crider said. "Maybe do some things we really haven't had time to do."

Although he was born in Marion, Crider grew up in a suburb of Detroit. His family relocated there once his father began working in the automotive industry. However, his grandparents still lived in Crittenden County and Crider had the opportunity to spend his summers on their farm.

"I was more or less a summer farm boy and a city boy the rest of the time because we lived in Allen Park, Mich.," Crider said.

A Vietnam War veteran, Crider served in the infantry from 1969-1970. After completing dental school, Crider worked with local dentist Dr. Robert Baker. He later had the opportunity to work with a dentist in Nashville. He would later receive a call from a dentist in Providence, Dr. James Phillips, who asked Crider to join his practice.

Eventually both doctors opened a joint practice in Marion until 1985, when Crider assumed the practice.

With the exception of extractions, Crider said in 35-plus years much has changed in the field of dentistry. For example, infection control became a concern during the AIDS epidemic of the 1980s. Crider said when he graduated dental school most dentists didn't wear gloves. Modern changes have involved advancements in the latest technology that Crider describes as exciting for the field of dentistry. Also noteworthy is the expansion of corporate dental offices across the country where many dentists start their careers. Without the expense of overhead, these companies offer them the opportunity to work only for their salary.

Television advertising among dentists has also seen an uptick over the last decade. Crider said when he began his career, many dentists were mindful to not have too large of a business sign out of professional courtesy to other practicing dentists in the community.

Dr. Steven Crider recently announced his retirement from his local dental practice effective at the end of this month. Retirement, however, doesn't mean saying goodbye to Marion. Both he and his wife, Debbie, still plan on remaining active in the community.

In regard to recruiting another dentist into the community to take over his practice, Crider said that option doesn't look too promising. While he's not officially “Dental work has always been scary. I tried to make it not as scary. I don't want to be the doctor. I want to be the person that's trying to take care of you, and I'm doing the very best I can to not cause pain.”

who will be retiring from his dental practice at the end of this month

Monday to obtain copies of their medical records. Crider said he's got mixed feelings about retirement and said it's sometimes sad to think about leaving his practice.

"I've developed a lot of friendships and loyal patients. When I see them coming in and getting their records that's sort of hard to think about," he said.

He offered his appreciation to the dental assistants who have been employed at his practice and said he enjoyed the time training them over the years. Compassion for patients has also been an integral part of his practice.

"Dental work has always been scary. I tried to make it not as scary," Crider said. "I don't want to be the doctor. I want to be the person that's trying to take care of you and I'm doing the very best I can to not cause pain."

In addition to working on a few projects around the house and farm, Crider is also interested in photography and hopes to pursue that hobby more. Retirement will also lend itself for the Criders to attend more of their son's performances. Corey Crider, an operatic baritone, performs on stage both nationally and internationally. It will also give them more time to spend with their grandchildren.

"I'm a traveler," Crider said. "There are a lot of things in the United States I haven't seen. I'd like to do that."

However, Crider stresses Crittenden County is still home and he isn't saying goodbye to the community just because he is retiring. He'll still keep watch of the game clock at ballgames. The Criders also are members of Marion Baptist Church, where Crider is both a deacon and Sunday school teacher. He also serves on the local board of health.

While he's adjusting to the thought of retirement, there are aspects of his practice he will miss, including patient care and helping those in need.

"A lot of times people have come in and they didn't think there was really anything we could do, and I was able to build the tooth up and give them their smile back. That's a pretty good feeling to be able to do that. I'll miss that," he said.

OBITUARIES

Dismore

Louie M. Dismore, 58, of Carrsville died July 11, 2015, at his home.

He was employed by Livingston Fiscal Court as a deputy animal control officer. He enjoyed bowling and fishing.

Dismore is survived by his wife of 25 years, Rose M. Dismore; three sons,

Dismore

Louie Thomas of Calvert City, Carl Dismore of Calvert City and James Evan Dismore of Calvert City; his mother, Lilly Charlton; four brothers, Arty (Tonya) Charlton of Calvert City, Robert Charlton of Calvert City, Billy Wayne Charlton of Waynesboro, Tenn., and Jimmy Dale Charlton of Waynesboro; five sisters, Faye (Charlie) Barrett of Salem, Jossie (Robert) Childers of Owensboro, Dora Carlson of Gilbertsville, Della (Joe) of Calvert City and Doris (Ken) Underwood of Rintz, Ga.; and three grandchildren.

He was preceded in death by his father, Joe L. Dismore; and his stepfather, Harvin "Scoot" Charlton.

Funeral services were Tuesday in the chapel of Boyd Funeral Directors in Salem. Burial was in Carrsville Cemetery in Livingston County.

Engler

Eugene Johnson "E.J." Engler, 71, of Providence died July 10, 2015, at his home.

He is survived by his wife, Pastor Donna Engler; three brothers, Hollis Engler, John Engler and Charles Wayne; two sisters, Roberta Whitner and Nancy Conner; a stepdaughter, Elizabeth (Roger) Taylor; two grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were Monday at Jones & Kirby Funeral Home in Providence, with Evangelist Marater Randolph officiating. Interment will be conducted during a private service on a later date.

KMA Poker Run to benefit Happy Feet Equals Learning Feet

STAFF REPORT
District 14 of the Kentucky Motorcycle Association (KMA), which includes Crittenden, Union, Webster and Henderson counties, will be sponsoring two poker runs during this weekend's Kentucky Bike Rally in Sturgis to benefit school-age children. The poker runs will raise money for Happy Feet Equals Learning Feet, a non-profit organization that provides shoes to income-eligible students in preschool through their senior year in high school. Proceeds from the poker runs will be used to benefit Happy Feet organizations in all four counties of the district. One poker run will be Friday and the other will follow on Saturday. KMA is a volunteer organization dedicated to protecting the rights of all Kentucky motorcyclists. KMA has become the premier grassroots lobbying force in Kentucky on issues regarding motorcyclists.

The efforts of members have been able to affect elections and bills moving through the state legislature and Congress. Registration for both rides will begin at 9 a.m. at Gate 2 of the Union County Fairgrounds with the first bike out at 9:30 a.m. All bikes should be back by 1 p.m. Friday's run will take riders from Union County through the Amish country of Crittenden County, across the Cave In Rock Ferry into Illinois then back to Union County. Saturday's ride will leave Union County taking back roads through Webster County into Hopkins County to Dawson Springs, then to Princeton, where they will take back roads through Caldwell and Webster counties back to Union County. Cash prizes will be awarded for the best hand and worst hand at the conclusion of each poker run. There will also be a drawing for a gas card after each ride. This will be the second year KMA has conducted poker runs to benefit Happy Feet Equals Learning Feet. Happy Feet has attempted to improve a child's perspective about attending school by providing them with a quality pair of athletic shoes. A happy student becomes a better learner, thus the name "Happy Feet Equals Learning Feet." Not having basic personal items can distract a child from performing well in school. A new pair of shoes can help build self-esteem and reduce teasing and bullying. Since its creation in 2009, the Happy Feet program has grown rapidly.

Fowler displayed on local poster

Sometimes the right picture really is worth a thousand words. That's what Crittenden Circuit Court Clerk Melissa Guill thought when she arranged for a local man to appear on a poster advocating organ donation. Danny Fowler, a magistrate on Crittenden Fiscal Court, has been the recipient of two kidney transplants. After doctors determined there was a problem with the first transplanted kidney, Fowler received a second transplant a few years later. Guill said posters showing how local residents benefit from organ donation will bring more awareness to the subject and help stress its importance. She arranged for Fowler's image to be on a poster that will be displayed in the clerk's office. Circuit clerk offices in Kentucky receive posters displaying organ donor recipients. However, those posters display strangers who live across the state and don't focus on individuals in local areas. Guill would like to have posters featuring more local organ donor recipients or those of donor families to help raise awareness. Fowler said he appreciates the organ donor system and calls it a God-send.

Crider-Harper

Steve and Donna Crider and Ricky and Marcia Sirls announce the engagement of their children, Kellye Crider and Dallas Harper. Wedding vows will be exchanged at 2 p.m., July 25 at Sugar Grove Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Family and friends are invited to attend the ceremony. A reception will follow in the church's fellowship hall.

Community Christmas credit classes available

STAFF REPORT
Individuals have until the end of October to obtain the three-class requirement for Community Christmas participation in December. Now is the time to take advantage of many classes being offered in the community. Crittenden County's Extension Service in cooperation with the PACS office is teaching community members how to properly preserve a variety of foods by offering free food preservation workshops from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m., July 28-30 at Marion United Methodist Church. A team of experienced home food preservationists will lead the three-day workshop, covering a variety of methods, from water-bath and pressure canning to drying and freezing. During this hands-on workshop, participants will learn how to can green beans, dry apple slices and preserve homemade salsa, jams and jellies. Most importantly, participants will gain the confidence and experience needed to safely preserve food in their home kitchens. Food preservation techniques from the workshops are based on new recommendations and use the safest methods. By learning how to preserve food properly, residents will protect and maintain the health of their families. All necessary canning materials will be provided for participants. Additional information is available by contacting Rebecca Zahrtre at the Crittenden County Extension Service at (270) 965-5236 or by emailing Zahrtre at rebecca.zahrtre@uky.edu. These classes count toward Community Christmas class credit. Space is limited and individuals are asked to register.

Livingston food pantry to stuff-a-truck for donations
Truck to be parked at Food Mart in Salem

STAFF REPORT
Livingston County Helping Hands has recently lost one of its major contributors for funding. At this time, the food bank is in great need. "As part of our community, we do not want to see anyone turned away hungry," said Faye Gibson of American Legion Auxiliary Unit 217 in Burna. "Our auxiliary has stepped forward and will be hosting an event at the Salem grocery store to help meet the great demand."

Next week, the auxiliary will be hosting a stuff-a-truck summer food drive for Livingston County Helping Hands Food Pantry. The food drive program is a fun, community-based way for the food bank to receive urgently needed donations during this crucial time of the year. A truck accepting donations will be on the parking lot of Salem Food Market from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., July 25. "We are inviting local residents and businesses to bring non-perishable food items and literally 'stuff the truck,'" Gibson said. "We hope you will join with us in helping out our neighbors and friends in need. No donation is too small or too large."

Rogers participates in Family Court Law conference

STAFF REPORT
Fifth Judicial Circuit Judge Brandi Rogers, who serves Crittenden, Union and Webster counties, recently participated in the 2015 Family Law Conference at the Administrative Office of the Courts (AOC) in Frankfort. AOC provided the education program in May for Kentucky circuit and district judges who oversee cases involving families and children.
Fifty-sixth Judicial District Court Judge Jill Clark, who serves Caldwell, Livngston, Lyon and Trigg counties, also participated in the program.

The judges attended sessions about recent changes in family and juvenile law, the affects of traumatic experiences on parents and children, and time frame for deciding child welfare cases. They also took part in courses on child development, human trafficking, and the use of medications with children who have mood and other disorders.
“Cases involving families and children are some of the most complex and important matters that judges handle,” Chief Justice of Kentucky John D. Minton Jr. said. “It’s important to give our judges updates about legal, societal and developmental topics that can affect those involved in these cases. This gathering was especially timely as the Judicial Branch was preparing to implement juvenile justice reform with Senate Bill 200 going into effect July 1 of this year. I’m encouraged by the progress our judges and court personnel are making to fulfill the court system’s requirements under this important legislation.”

Rogers

SB 200 is designed to steer more young offenders into community-based treatment rather than locking them up in detention centers. Deputy Chief Justice Mary C. Noble of the Supreme Court gave an overview of the legislation and of plans to develop the first statewide, uniform rules for handling juvenile cases. As chairwoman of the Supreme Court Civil Rules Committee, Justice Noble heads the committee responsible for developing and recommending the rules.

Case specialists for the judges also participated in the conference, attending a separate session on working effectively with people who represent themselves in cases of domestic violence, child custody and divorce. Meanwhile, the judges had a session to discuss their ideas on how to improve the court system’s outdated case management system, which is being overhauled.

The AOC Department of Family and Juvenile Services worked with the Education Committees of the Kentucky Circuit Judges Association and Kentucky District Judges Association to provide the conference. The program was funded by the federal Court Improvement Project.

Ky. Baptists give $18.2 M so far this year to spread Gospel to nations

STAFF REPORT
The largest denomination of Christians in Crittenden and Livingston counties are helping fuel a growth in Southern Baptist Convention action around the state.
Churches with the Kentucky Baptist Convention (KBC), excited by significant gains in numbers of new believers, have given more than $18 million so far this fiscal year through the Cooperative Program to help spread Christianity around the world, according to a KBC news release issued last week. That includes nearly $2 million given in June alone.
“There’s a sense of excitement in the air, and that’s being generated by the many successes we’re seeing,” said Kentucky Baptist Convention Associate Executive Director Curtis Woods. “Baptisms are up. Memberships are up. Our people are on fire and working harder than ever to get the gospel into a lost and hurting world.”

The Ohio River Baptist Association, the local coalition of Kentucky Baptist Convention congregations, boasts 42 churches with a combined membership larger than any other denomination found in the two counties.
Kentucky Baptist churches baptized 14,228 new believers last year and 154,922 over the past five years. By supporting the Cooperative Program financially, they also had a hand in more than 305,000 baptisms internationally last year.

Total Cooperative Program receipts through the third quarter of the current fiscal year stood at about $18.2 million. The $1.99 million given in June puts contributions up $431,569 compared to the same period last year.
The Cooperative Program is the primary means through which nearly 750,000 Kentucky Baptists in 2,400 churches support the work of missionaries in the state, across the country and around the world.
“If the current trend continues, we are well positioned to exceed last year’s Cooperative Program totals by $500,000 or more,” said Lowell Ashby, head of the KBC’s Finance and Business Services Team.

Fans needed at PACS

This week’s extreme heat can be dangerous for those without air conditioning. PACS is currently asking for donations of new box fans or any other type of fan for cooling to give to those in need. Shown above, Kathey Penn Belt, PACS block grant coordinator, puts together a desk fan that was recently donated. PACS office hours are 8 a.m. to noon and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m., weekdays. The office is located at 402 N. Walker St. in Marion.

Benefit to be held for local no-kill animal shelter

STAFF REPORT
Mustang Mafia of western Kentucky will host a Sheltered Paws Christmas in July Cruise-In from 5 to 9 p.m., July 24 at the Food Giant parking lot.
Registration includes either a $10 fee or a donation of pet supplies for the shelter.
All proceeds benefit the Mary Hall Ruddiman No-Kill Shelter located on Just-a-Mere Road off Ky. 120, about four miles outside of Marion.
Organizers encourage the public to come out and help the shelter by filling the Christmas tree.
Music, a top 25 awards and paws pictures will also be part of the festivities.
A rain date is set for July 31.
For more information contact on the event contact Leigh Elsey at elsey.leigh@gmail.com or Karen Harris at kentuckygirl160942003@yahoo.com.
The no-kill animal shelter is in need of basic pet supplies. Cash donations will be accepted.

Child Find for Children with Disabilities in Need of Special Education or 504 Services

Child Find
The Crittenden County School District keeps educational records in a secure location in each school and Board office.

The Crittenden County School District obtains written consent from a parent or eligible student (age 18 or who is attending a postsecondary institution), before disclosing personally identifiable information to an entity or individual not authorized to receive it under FERPA.

For students who have been determined eligible for Special Education, educational records will be destroyed at the request of the parents when they are no longer needed to provide educational programs or services. The Crittenden County School District may destroy the educational records of a child without parent request five years after they are no longer needed to provide educational programs or services. Parents are advised that data contained in the records may later be needed for Social Security benefits or other purposes. The Crittenden County School District may retain, for an indefinite period of time, a record of the student’s name, address, telephone number, grades, attendance records, classes attended, grade level completed, and year completed.

Children eligible for Special Education include those children with disabilities who have autism, deaf-blindness, developmental delay, emotional-behavior disability, hearing impairment, mental disability, multiple disabilities, orthopedic impairment, other health impairment, specific learning disability, speech or language impairment, traumatic brain injury, or visual impairment and who because of such an impairment need Special Education services.

Children eligible for 504 services include those children in a public elementary and secondary education program who have a current physical or mental impairment that currently substantially limits some major life activity which causes the student’s ability to access the school environment or school activities to be substantially limited.

Children eligible for the State-Funded Preschool program include three- and four-year-old children identified with disabilities and four-year-old children who are at-risk, as defined by federal poverty levels up to 150%. Preschool children eligible for special education must have an Individual Education Plan (IEP) instead of a 504 plan to receive State-Funded Preschool program services.

The Crittenden County School District has an ongoing “Child Find” system, which is designed to locate, identify and evaluate any child residing in a home, facility, or residence within its geographical boundaries, age three (3) to twenty-one (21) years, who may have a disability and be in need of Special Education or 504 services. This includes children who are not in school; those who are in public, private, or home school; those who are highly mobile such as children who are migrant or homeless; and those who are advancing from grade to grade, who may need but are not receiving Special Education or 504 services.

The district’s “Child Find” system includes children with disabilities attending private or home schools within the school district boundaries who may need special education services.

The Crittenden County School District will make sure any child enrolled in its district who qualifies for Special Education or 504 services, regardless of how severe the disability, is provided appropriate Special Education or 504 services at no cost to the parents of the child.

Parents, relatives, public and private agency employees, and concerned citizens are urged to help the Crittenden School District find any child who may have a disability and need Special Education or 504 services. The District needs to know the name and age, or date of birth of the child; the name, address, and phone number(s) of the parents or guardian; the possible disability; and other information to determine if Special Education or 504 services are needed.

Letters and phone calls are some of the ways the Crittenden County School District collects the information needed. The information the school District collects will be used to contact the parents of the child and find out if the child needs to be evaluated or referred for Special Education or 504 services.

If you know of a child who attends a public, private or home school within the boundaries of the Crittenden County School District, who may have a disability, and may need but is not receiving Special Education services, please call 270-965-3525 or send the information to:

Karen Nasser, Director of Special Education
Section 504 Coordinator
Crittenden County Schools
601 West Elm Street
Marion, KY 42064

“Child Find” activities will continue throughout the school year. As part of these efforts the Crittenden County School District will use screening information, student records, and basic assessment information it collects on all children in the District to help locate those children who have a disability and need Special Education or 504 services. Any information the District collects through “Child Find” is maintained confidentially.

Written Policies and Procedures have been developed which describe the District’s requirements regarding the confidentiality of personally identifiable information and “Child Find” activities. There are copies in the Principal’s office of each school, and in the Board of Education office.

The District office is open Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4p.m.

The Crittenden School District provides a public notice in the native language or other mode of communication of the various populations in the geographical boundaries of the District to the extent feasible.

If you know of someone who may need this notice translated to another language, given orally, or delivered in some other manner or mode of communication, please contact the Director of Pupil Personnel, the Director of Special Education or the Section 504 Coordinator at the address or phone number listed above for the Crittenden County Schools.

Jr. Legion 2nd in state

Lyon County's Junior American Legion team lost 12-5 to Oldham County's Post 39 in the Kentucky Junior Legion State Championship title game at Eddyville Sunday. Lyon's Post 68 lost in the opening round to Paducah Post 31, but came out of the loser's bracket of the double-elimination event by beating Mayfield Post 26 and Paducah Post 31. Marion's Ryan James played third base for the Post 68 team.

GOLF

Juniors score on Go Series

Local junior golfers continue to score well on the Go Junior Golf Series at various courses throughout the region. On Friday at Lakeshore Country Club in Madisonville, Braxton Winders was third in the 11-12 boys division with a 43 and Sammy Greenwell was fourth at 44. Marion's Tate Roberts shot a 55 to finish tied for 11th. Last Wednesday, July 8, Greenwell shot a 43 and finished second at Western Hills Golf Course in Hopkinsville. Winders shot a 44 for third and Roberts scored a 51.

Gilchrist wins invitational

Marion's Lauren Gilchrist shot a 45 on nine holes to win the 12-14 girls age division at the Drake Creek West Kentucky Junior Invitational Monday.

MISCELLANEOUS

ATVs not allowed on roads

With ATV riding season in full swing, the Kentucky State Police want to remind citizens of the Commonwealth about ATV safety, laws and regulations. Kentucky has seen an increase in ATV related fatality accidents over the last several years. ATVs are not allowed on Kentucky roadways with one exception, to allow farmers to travel from one field to another separated by a roadway. ATVs are not designed for highway usage, riding an ATV on a paved surface greatly increases your risk of accident or injury. According to the Kentucky Office of Highway Safety, 35 percent of ATV-related deaths involve children 16 years of age or under. Monitor youth, observe and correct unsafe riding habits.

SOFTBALL

Tournament at Marion park

Marion-Crittenden County Park will be hosting an all-star softball tournament this weekend. Admission will be charged to tournament games, but not for residents entering the park for other activities. There will be games Thursday and Friday night and much of the day on Saturday. Crittenden and other surrounding counties will have teams participating.

Ethan Thomas takes a deep breath as he continues toward the finish line in a recent race during a Marion swim team event. The Stingrays won their second meet of the season last week at Calvert City and competed in a meet Monday at Muhlenberg County. The Muhlenberg results were unavailable at press time.

Swimmers notch second win at Calvert City meet

The Marion Stingrays swim team captured its second win in as many meets against a talented Calvert City swim team last Thursday by a score of 1,370-1,265. The squad lost to a strong Greenville Country Club swim team Monday night.

Results from Calvert are as follows:

The 8-under and 10-under Crittenden all-star teams will be in action this weekend at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

Don't go so deep for summertime fish

KENTUCKY AFIELD
Fishing instruction for decades preached anglers should fish deep, cool water during the hottest days of the summer. This makes sense as fish are cold-blooded animals and their bodies are the same temperature of the water that surrounds them. However, fishing deep water in summer on a lake mean your offerings are in a dead zone. Warming air temperatures change the nature of the water in a lake. Anglers need to consider these changes while summer fishing. The water column in lakes begins to stratify in late spring, like a layer cake with a warm top layer, a mixing layer in the middle and a cold layer as the air temperatures rise. Lures or bait presented there is the same as casting into a desert. Anglers want to target the area just above the thermocline for the best summer fishing. The fertility of the lake determines the location of the thermocline. Water clarity is a good indicator of fertility; murky lakes contain more nutrients in the water than lakes where you can see the bottom at 12. "Find banks, channel drops or humps at that depth and fish them," Dreves said. "I always remind myself to fish the right depth in summer." The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers webpage has charts showing the water temperature and depths of the dissolved oxygen.

Bryant completes half Ironman, plans full race in October

STAFF REPORT

Marion's Neal Bryant just completed a half Ironman endurance race at Muncie, Indiana and is training to double the distance in October. Bryant, 35, finished the Muncie Ironman 70.3 in 6 hours, 54 minutes and 54 seconds. The race includes a 1.2-mile swim, 56-mile bike race and a 13.1-mile half marathon. The October Ironman in Louisville will include twice the distances for swimming, cycling and running. "It's a hilly course in Louisville so I will have to train for that, but hills are not hard to find in Crittenden County," he said.

Marion armory home to best sappers in Guard detachment. He is the only local man serving at the Marion armory. The rest of the soldiers are from all across the region. However, Staff Sgt. Jonathan McMackin, a Marion native, is now assigned as a squad leader to the Leitchfield armory.

Over the years, the local armory has been home to infantry, artillery and armored units. Eight years ago, it transitioned from an armored unit to that of combat engineers. In fact, Staff Sgt. McMackin was serving with B Co., 2nd Battalion, 123rd Armor when he was injured in Iraq in March 2007. He remained with the Marion unit and transitioned into the engineer company.

Itschner Award

First awarded in 1960, the recognition bestowed on the 1123rd is named in honor of Army Lt. Gen. Emerson C. Itschner. In 1974, the competition for the Itschner Award was broadened, and now awards are given each year to the best engineer companies of the active Army, Army National Guard and the Army Reserve.

"Winning the Itschner Award speaks of the caliber of soldiers within the 1123rd Sapper," said Lt. Col. James Richmond, commander of the 206th Engineer Battalion. "The unit is only eight years old and to have achieved superior achievements in strength, training and performance in such a short time and against such a complex mission set is simply incredible."

Sappers – a term that comes from the French "saper," which means to dig or trench – are charged with mobility and countermobility. In other words, their job is to support combat missions by clearing the way of enemy obstacles and to slow the enemy by creating obstacles for advancing troops.

"He is the Swiss Army knife of soldiers," Lt. Col. Richmond calls the combat engineer, "in essence an infantryman who specializes in laying or clearing minefields, demolitions, field defenses and general construction, as well as road and airfield construction and repair."

1123rd Sapper Co. MARION • LEITCHFIELD 2014 Most Outstanding Engineer Company of the Year

Just above, soldiers with the 1123rd Engineer Co., 206th Engineer Battalion, 149th Maneuver Enhancement Brigade of the Kentucky Army National Guard gather for a group photo during annual training last August at the National Training Center in Fort Irwin, Calif. The three-week rotation at the training center was the culminating event of a hard year of training for the unit of combat engineers belonging to the Marion and Leitchfield armories. At top left, one of two route clearance packages consisting of soldiers from the 1123rd Engineer Co. and a platoon from the U.S. Army Reserve's 441st Engineer Co. return from a situational exercise at the national training center. Performance in the field

The level of proficiency that this company achieved during the evaluated period – Oct. 1, 2013, to Sept. 30, 2014 – has inspired the unit's leadership, who said the award serves as a testament to the soldiers' unwavering motivation, dedication to their unit and their ability to learn, adapt and overcome any obstacle. Given the many hurdles National Guard units inherently face with training continuity between drill weekends, this unit's non-commissioned officers (NCOs) and officers are exceptionally outstanding, military brass said.

"The soldiers are truly honored to receive this award," said Sgt. 1st Class Thomas Elmore, readiness NCO for the 1123rd. "This unit went from standing up the 1123rd in 2009 to the best National Guard engineer unit in the country in 2014. Don't know how else to put it except they are proud to be the best."

For the 1123rd, a 20-day rotation at the National Training Center (NTC) in Fort Irwin, Calif., was the culmination of a rigorous six-month journey. The 1123rd had only two weeks worth of training days from March to July to prepare for NTC held during August of last year. The pace of training became very intense and success hinged on detailed planning, commitment to excellence and, most importantly, leveraging the knowledge of experienced route clearance personnel to increase training efficiencies without compromising quality.

"We accomplished in 16 training days what it takes an active duty unit six to nine months to train for," said 1st Lt. Davis. "It's a testament to the flexibility of a guard unit."

The sappers executed their strenuous training plan and completed the NTC rotation with remarkable results. Competence, adaptability and readiness for any mission was displayed throughout the exercise. The 1123rd received accolades from a variety of training supervisors and both reserve and active duty counterparts. The predominant theme conveyed during the course of training was the unit's willingness and desire to learn and better themselves.

The 1123rd was given professional development and networking opportunities that would not have been available without a rotation at NTC. These opportunities allowed the 1123rd leadership to collaborate with their active duty counterparts and higher headquarters in order to establish the unit's relevance and credibility. This paid dividends as the 1123rd maintained an active voice in their utilization and had the opportunity to contribute to missions for the battalion in addition to route clearance.

"The national training center is the closest thing to combat the U.S. military has," said 1st Lt. Davis.

The lieutenant said the Marion unit was responsible for clearing all obstacles during exercises at NTC for all the supplies to get to the maneuver element of the force.

Not just combat engineers

But the 1123rd Sapper Co. is not just an operational machine. In addition to their rigorous training schedules, they incorporated time to give back to their communities. Both armories of the 1123rd have long been and continue to be involved with their respective communities. During the 2014 training year, the two armories actively contributed to several community events, either during scheduled drills or by soldiers volunteering outside of normal duty periods. The 1123rd participated by marching in parades and providing speakers and representatives to Veterans' Day events and a Memorial Day ceremony. Additionally, they collaborated with the local American Legion for military funeral honors for veterans upon their families' request.

The soldiers of the 1123rd are revered throughout the 206th Engineer Battalion for always maintaining a high level of motivation in any training environment and with every mission; this training year they have raised the bar. Engrained into this company is a true sense of ownership and pride, where each soldier maintains a stake in its success and proactively works to improve the unit.

(Capt. Desiree Dillehay of the 206th Engineer Battalion contributed to this story.)
