Rocket Renovation

Sandra Herrin (top) and Cindy Williams work to put a new blue and white paint job on the rocket that stands in front of Crittenden County Middle School. The rocket – actually a Nike Ajax missile – was a late World War II-era projectile developed as a line-of-sight anti-aircraft munition. Some community leaders were able to get one of the missiles after city and county schools consolidated and chose Rockets as their mascot. The rocket is located in front of Crittenden County Middle School, which was originally the high school.

Police seek owners

Marion Police Department is holding several items found over the past four years in Marion and Crittenden County. Many of the items were turned in to police by residents who found them. Others were found by police officers.

Marion Policeman Bobb West, who is in charge of the department's evidence room, which also includes lost and found items, says the rightful owners may come forward and claim their property.

Unclaimed items will be sold at public auction, West said.

"We have several bicycles," West said. "We want to get these items back to their owners and we are running out of storage space. All these bikes take up a lot of room."

Legislators say U.S. 641 will get moving in 2011

STAFF REPORT

Area legislators are confident that grade and drain site preparation work for relocation of U.S. 641 will begin within a year.

Sen. Dorsey Ridley (D-Henderson) and Rep. Mike Cherry (D-Princeton) went over details of the new state budget last week, outlining spending for Crittenden County.

Both lawmakers say they are confident that the – now nearly 10-year-old U.S. 641 project – will move to the forefront of the Kentucky Department of Highways road construction plans.

Cherry said property acquisition is complete except for four parcels of land. Those have been identified for reappraisals, which should be completed soon, he said. Even if acquisition of those properties requires litigation, Cherry believes that it will not hold up the timeline currently being discussed for construction.

"We're talking about letting a contract, which is a six-month process starting July 1. Probably by winter, we will have that done. Then drain and grade work should begin next spring," Cherry said.

Ridley concurred with that timeline, but stressed that the legislature controls the purse strings, not the controls to the equipment that will be required to build the road.

"We certainly don't handle the whole thing," he said. "What we do is make available the money... then we

What's in the budget for Crittenden County

■ Wildlife Area gets $10 million.

Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has been approved to appropriate $10 million over the next two years toward buying the former Kimball property in Crittenden and Union counties for a wildlife management area.

■ $29 million for U.S. 641 grade and drain work in preparation for relocation of the highway between Marion and Fredonia. An additional $22 million is in the 6-Year Highway Plan approved by the state legislature, but those funds are not readily available at this time.

■ $804,000 to operate ferry at Cave In Rock for the next two years. Illinois shares the cost with Kentucky, appropriating an equal amount.

■ $90,000 for ferry landing improvements at the Ohio River. The work will prevent ferry from closing for dredging at the landing.

■ Crittenden County School District was approved for land swap that will give the district the state highway department property on the north side of its high school campus. In return, the state highway department will get a piece of property in the Industrial Park North.

■ A new access road to Industrial Park North appears to be on track for design work to be done internally by the Kentucky Department of Highways.

MHS grad gearing up for annual reunion

BY W.A.FRANKLIN
MARION HIGH GRADUATE

When Stan "Hawk" Oliver, a Marion High School graduate, founded the first Marion High All-Class Reunion in the summer of 1980 many thought it would only last for one year.

However, it is now 2010 and at 5 p.m., July 3 the 30th Marion High All-Class Reunion will be held at the Marion Country Club dining room.

Oliver wanted the reunion to be continued for as long as possible and before his death, he asked W.A. Franklin, a graduate of the class of 1956 who had been serving as master of ceremonies, to continue to plan and hold the reunion.

Everyone who attended Marion city schools is invited to attend whether they graduated or not. Marion High School was founded in the late 1800s and it became an official four-year school in 1909 with the passage of the state law that created the modern-day format for high schools in Kentucky. The typical size of a Marion High School senior class over the years was between 20 and 35. Many graduates have distinguished themselves as teachers, lawyers, doctors, college professors, business owners, professionals and U.S. servicemen and women.

The last Marion High School Senior Class was in 1957. After that date, the Marion schools and Crittenden County schools consolidated. The consolidated schools did continue to use the Marion High School blue and white colors largely because the high school already possessed both blue and white football uniforms and band uniforms. Crittenden County colors had been green and white.

The new school nickname was Rockets and the Marion High Blue Terrors name became part of history.

Attendance at the reunion was fewer than 70 last year, but it has been as high as 125. No reservations are required. The cost for the meal will be shared equally among those who attend the event.

A few individuals, including Tink Hicklin and Ethel Tucker have attended all of the previous reunions. Both of them are over 90 years old.

People travel hundreds of miles to attend. Denton Hughes, from the class of 1954, drives more than 800 miles each year from Florida. Mark Mahan and one of his sons drive more than 400 miles from Indiana to Marion. Others have come from excess of 1,000 miles for the annual event.

The afternoon begins with two hours of visitation time called, Tall Tales. That runs from 3-5 p.m.

A buffet is served at 5 p.m. Individual classes often hold their own class reunions in conjunction with the All-Class Reunion.

Bible’s wisdom is mighty powerful when applied

So much of our lives are ruined – and if not ruined wasted – because we do not take the Bible as our road map through life.

The following story shows the great value of God’s Word even in a deadly war.

Jesus is God’s Word made flesh and dwelt among us. The Bible plainly tells us that God’s power, wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption are all ours through His Son Jesus. 1 Cor. 1:24,30.

When we have Christ in us “the hope of glory” we have all those five attributes for our use.

Doesn’t it stand to reason that we would be so much smarter to seek God’s Word for our road map through the land mines of this short life than the road map made by man and our little finite minds?

The Atlas Road Map is great but it too can be full of mistakes, just as the map we follow for our lives when God’s Word has not mapped it out for us.

The Bible is full of instructions on everything we need to know and do in life if we want to come out on the other side the victor.

A good example of just how good that Good Book is, is told in an incident that happened in World War I.

On Feb. 13, 1918, in Palestine during the closing phases of the war, Viscount Allenby, the commander of the British army in the Middle East, was trying to take Jerusalem away from the Turks, but first he had to defeat them at a village called Mishmash which is nine miles north of Jerusalem.

This town sits on a hill north of the narrow and deep Wadi es-Suweinit, which leads from the tablelands of Ephraim down to Jericho.

While Allenby’s Gen. Watson was outlining this to his officers, one of them, a Major Gilbert, thought he had heard this name before but could not remember.

He spent a sleepless night trying to remember and it finally occurred to him that Mishmash was a place mentioned in the Bible.

He lit his lamp and began to search the Bible and found it in 1 Samuel 13 and 14.

It was the account of the battle 3,000 years before, telling how King Saul’s son, Jonathan, and his armor-bearer – just two men alone – climbed up a steep path by two sharp rocks and surprised the enemy, who thought the whole Army of Saul was upon them and in their bewilderment began to fight each other. Saul’s army came up the other way and overcame the Philistines, saving thousands of Israelite lives.

When Major Gilbert showed all this to Gen. Watson, whose plan of a frontal attack would cost many casualties, Watson sent out scouts and sure enough they found this mountain passage.

The major sent out one infantry company in the dead of night along the pass. The few Turks they met were quickly and silently dealt with.

They passed between these two sharp rocks, climbed the hillside and, just before dawn found themselves on the very flat piece of ground of which the Bible spoke.

When the Turkish soldiers awoke, they thought they were surrounded by several British armies and fled in disorder.

Every enemy soldier who had slept that night in Mishmash was either killed or captured and again hundreds of lives of the victors were spared and Jerusalem was freed from the Turks.

After thousands of years, the tactics of Jonathan and Saul, who had trusted God to show them the way to defeat their enemies, succeeded a second time, just because a soldier not only had read his Bible but also had it with him.

Oh that all people would seek the wisdom of God through knowing Jesus and having Him live in our hearts, minds and souls.

Wisdom comes only from God. Knowledge is a collection of facts, but wisdom is the power of God to rightly apply those facts that better everyone’s life, family and nation.

“Get wisdom... neither decline from the words of my mouth. Forsake her not, and she shall preserve thee: love her, and she shall keep thee. Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom... Exalt her, and she shall promote thee; she shall bring thee to honor, when you embrace her. She shall give to your head an ornament of grace; a crown of glory shall she deliver to you.” Prov. 4:5-9.

BP should be held liable for its destructive greed in Gulf

Still saying “Drill Baby Drill”?

An ugly but brilliant doctor and a beautiful but dimwitted nurse got married because they thought their children would be pretty and smart. Unfortunately they ended up with dumb and ugly children. Too many times we suffer from the unintended consequences of our actions. Jimmy Carter would agree since we are coming up on the 31st anniversary of his “Crisis of Confidence” speech that angered Americans as they lined up around the corner waiting for their turn at the gas pumps.

Every president since Jimmy Carter has talked about an oil-free America, but little effort has actually been put towards achieving it. For too long, the oil companies have been in bed with our Washington politicians, and now we are reaping the consequences of their greed.

Video footage and photographs are streaming in of birds and animals covered in oil, inhumanely dying in the scorching southern sun, and balls of tar washing up on our white sandy beaches and destroying the marshes that provide work to some of the poorest Americans.

Meanwhile BP, the seventh wealthiest company in the world, is raking in $160 billion of profit a year, just finished spending $50 million on an ad campaign to improve its image. Riddle me this: Why is it that BP can scrape together a last-minute multi-million-dollar marketing campaign trying to improve its image, but can’t put its nose to the grindstone to get the supertankers that are needed to suck up the oil that is ruining our oceans, beaches and the livelihood of our fishermen? The answer is simple math, it will cost $125 million per supertanker. It is a lot cheaper to air $50 million worth of ads talking about how great they are, trying to sweep as much of the problem as they can under the rug, seeing what they can get away with, rather than facing the music and eating the tab that they deserve.

President Obama is growing less than tolerant with BP as the oil continues to gush out of the well and their continued semantics to dodge responsibility for a lack of preparedness on dealing with this tragedy. They say they want to make it right – that’s part of the advertising campaign. Well, we want them to make it right.

Despite this terrible tragedy, Obama has the perfect opportunity to shine if he stays the course. The gulf has been permanently altered and the cleanup effort will be long, expensive and is sure to create American jobs for months and years to come with BP paying their salaries. We can think of it as a British export that never leaves American soil.

I believe the comedian Stephen Colbert put it best saying, “They busted out the diamond saw to cut the oil pipe just for the occasion, because like diamonds this oil spill is forever.”

It is a plus knowing that BP will be the one picking up the tab. Obama has talked plenty about the company footing the bill for the environmental damage it has caused, but he needs to take it one step farther. BP should subsidize every single last fisherman and shrimper for their losses until the fishermen and shrimpers on the Gulf Coast can return to their usual profit margin.

BP’s greed that led it to drill farther than it was permitted will haunt the company and the ecosystems it has destroyed for many years to come and has provided everyone a hefty life lesson about unintended consequences.

State tightens belt with new budget

The General Assembly passed a budget almost two weeks ago during the 2010 Special Session. A month after the regular session adjourned without one, Gov. Beshear proposed a compromise that, with some slight tweaks by the House and Senate, resulted in a spending plan that we could accept and that will help us get through the next two years while the economy recovers.

As it stands, no one is really happy with the spending plan – but then no one is happy with the state of our economy or any of the choices we faced in crafting this budget. Our position all along has been to protect education, social services and public safety as much as possible while recognizing that all areas of government must share in the sacrifice and that some savings can be found virtually everywhere.

Under our $17.1 billion spending plan for the next two years, taxes will stay as low as they are now, because Kentucky families are facing enough burdens already. At the same time, this budget authorizes the smallest debt load since 1996, acknowledging the fact that a truly balanced budget focuses not only on the next two years, but on the years after that when interest on our state debt must be paid.

The budget also preserves our full 177-day school year to keep our students competitive in the 21st century economy. The Senate has consistently focused on our public schools as a key tool in our economic development, and now is not the time to take a step backward. At the same time, we made sure that new school construction for Category 5 schools (those in most need of replacement) follows the needs and desires of the local school districts, not politicians in Frankfort. School districts that levy a “second nickel” tax – an extra five cents per $100 of valuation – would be eligible for state matching funds to construct new facilities to replace their most deficient buildings. Some districts have already made that effort, and we hope the rest will follow suit to make maximum effort toward new and modern facilities.

Another key economic development item is the construction and repair of our roads and bridges, and the road plan we passed last week will keep those projects moving, providing jobs to thousands of Kentuckians. The $3.6 billion plan includes not only funding to continue the Louisville Bridges project to revitalize our largest city and economic engine, but more than $100 million to improve the area around Fort Knox, which will soon receive thousands more soldiers and civilian employees due to Base Realignment and Closure.

The budgets were not the only items on our agenda, though. We also passed House Bill 5, which will reform our unemployment insurance trust fund. With the recession taking its toll on employers, more Kentuckians need assistance from the state’s unemployment pool. In fact, our trust fund is depleted and we are borrowing money from the federal government to cover these claims — $800 million and counting.

It is obvious the system must be overhauled, and leaders from both the business and labor communities have come together to craft a solution. Under HB 5, employers will pay more into the trust fund, while employees will receive less generous benefits beginning in 2012. The changes are only slight, however, and Kentuckians would still receive unemployment compensation in line with what other states are paying.

In 2000, when the economy was rolling along – thanks to the technology boom – employers were given a discount and employees got a bump in benefits, both of which made the fund unstable when the economy bottomed out last year. HB 5 should restore that structural balance.

Unless pressing issues arise again in the coming months, we will conduct information-gathering meetings during this interim and return to Frankfort in January for our 2011 Regular Session.

BUDGET

go to bat to move these things forward. Short of something out there that we are not aware of, this project is supposed to move forward."

Relocating and making U.S. 641 a four-lane highway from Marion to the West Kentucky Parkway has been a priority for local leaders for many years. The process was started in the late 1990s, but stalled in the past few years due to a shortfall in state funds because of the slow economy.

Almost $30 million in construction funds is qualified as state highway construction bond funds. The legislators say that's real money ready to be spent and not some elusive distant figure. Both agree that once the project is started, it will continue to be pressed ahead.

"We're not going to spend almost $30 million then let this thing lay fallow," Cherry said. "You're going to see a lot more activity this summer with utility relocation."

While plans are complete and work is apparently almost ready to begin on Phase 1 of the project, Phase 2 is another question. Caldwell and Lyon county leaders are not in agreement with state officials on where the road should go. Some are against the idea all together.

Crittenden County is getting its normal appropriation to operate the Cave In Rock Ferry on the Ohio River between Ky. 91 North and Illinois Highway 1. The Ohio River Ferry Authority oversees funding of the service, the cost of which is shared equally between Kentucky and Illinois. It costs about $402,000 a year to keep the ferry open. A private contractor provides the service.

Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife property acquisition funds have been approved for release over the next two years to assist the state in buying about 7,000 acres on the Crittenden-Union county line near Sturgis. The property was formerly owned by Kimball International, but sold at auction in 2008. A timber management company from North Carolina purchased the vast majority of the property and Kentucky leaders believed they had an agreement to buy the land once funds were made available.

Ridley said the state budget includes language allowing KDFWR to allocate $5 million in each of the next two years with the intention of spending it on what is now being called the Sturgis Property. Ridley said KDFWR land acquisition funds can be used only for buying property for public use. Plans are to make the area a wildlife management area.

Ridley said federal matching funds will likely be used to acquire the land.

A couple of other projects appear to still be on the table despite a streamlined state spending plan. About $900,000 in economic development funds has been appropriated for building an access road into Industrial Park North, the site of the former Tyson Foods chicken houses. Another $1.1 has been earmarked for building a new Kentucky Department of Highways maintenance facility in the industrial park. Plans are to move the maintenance operation from its current location on Old Morganfield Road and give that land to the Crittenden County School District. In return, the state highway department will get about 14 acres inside the 105-acre industrial development site for a new maintenance facility.

The state intends on spending about $1.1 million for the new maintenance headquarters.

"The highway department expects to advertise for and contract the architectural and design work this fall and begin work on the building next spring," Cherry said. "The building of the maintenance facility and the access road can go on at the same time. We don't have to have the road first."

Female hunters making mark on Kentucky's trophy deer list

Four of 40 biggest bucks in Kentucky taken by women

BY HAYLEY LYNCH
KENTUCKY APFELD

Every year, during production of Kentucky's annual hunting and trapping regulation guide, I get to peruse photos, letters and official scoring sheets from hunters who took Kentucky's largest deer the previous season. I always enjoy seeing these incredible animals, all of them evidence of a healthy and thriving deer herd.

These deer and the hunters who spend months or even years pursuing them put Kentucky in the top five states in the country for deer considered trophies under the Boone and Crockett Club scoring system. But this year, something else stood out.

All of our previous trophy deer lists had one thing in common – the hunters were almost always male. In fact, in five years of producing our guide I had received only one trophy deer taken by a female hunter. But this year was different. Four of the 40 deer currently on the list were taken by women. Even more impressively, three of those women are teenagers.

Andrea Davis, a 19-year-

Andrea Davis, a 19-year-old hunter from Ohio County, took this 14-point buck last deer season that, as a typical-antlered buck, scored 165%.

old hunter from Ohio County, took a 14-point buck with typical antlers that scored 165 1/8 in the Boone and Crockett Club's official scoring system. She thinks this year's results are part of an overall trend. She says more girls and women are hunting deer.

"I'm seeing a lot of kids going hunting with their dads," Davis said. "I think women are seeing what's out there, what they can bring home."

Davis herself was hunting with her father Thanksgiving morning in Muhlenberg County when they heard antlers crashing near the edge of a Conservation Reserve Program field. They were on their way to a tree stand, but the sound of nearby deer changed their plans.

"We just sat down right there," Davis said. "We saw two does, but they busted us. Then we saw a 9-pointer. I was getting ready to shoot him, but decided to wait."

The wait paid off when the trophy 14-pointer stepped out of the woods. "All I could say was, 'Horns!'" Davis remembered. "My dad told me, 'Please don't look at the horns.' I braced my gun on a little sapling and took a shot."

The deer ran only 40 yards after the 20-yard shot from Davis's .30-06.

Sixteen-year-old Deirdre Bryant of Meade County shot her first buck on opening day of the 2009 season. The 22-point deer with non-typical antlers scored 196 6/8.

"I've always wanted to get a buck because of my dad and my uncle," Bryant said. "It's always been in my family. And I'm not going to stop."

Two more female hunters round out this unprecedented year. Spencer County's Michaela "Mikie" Monroe was just 14 years old when she shot the biggest deer taken in Kentucky for the 2009-10 season. The buck scored an incredible 219 5/8, putting it in the top 30 deer with non-typical antlers ever taken in Kentucky. Mitzi Mobley of Berea shot a 160 4/8 typical buck in Madison County.

I hope these four women are a sign of even better things to come for Kentucky hunting. More women in the field may be one of our best chances to turn around a decline in hunter numbers. And with deer like these, it's easy to see what's in it for the hunters themselves.

"I've hunted since I was 12 and the only bucks I've gotten have been spikes," Davis said. "So anything can happen at any time."

The 2010-11 Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide, available in early July, will include a complete list of trophy deer from the 2009-10 season, as well as several photographs of the deer and their hunters. The guide will be available online at fw.ky.gov and wherever hunting licenses are sold.

Summer expenses

Kids love time out of school

Summer means a lot of things to a lot of people, and for the most part our vision of summer varies by age.

I'd venture to guess if you polled people of all ages, you would find these general results.

The oldest among us probably dislike the heat of summer about as much as we all dislike the dead of winter. This population likely dreads hot weather about as much as I dread the cost of summer.

Cost of summer?
Oh yes, summer is expensive.

Very few things are free – other than classic summertime pleasures like swimming in ponds, wading through rocky creeks, catching lightning bugs and chasing frogs – but unfortunately most of our kids would rather ride a roller coaster or seek the thrill of a water park than dip in the murky green water of the nearest pond.

You can bet your bottom dollar that your kids will try their best to milk you out of your entire paycheck during the summer months. There's a small twinge of guilt when we wish them back in school because their entertainment and child care expenses start to make our trips to work each morning seem little more than a means to fund their summertime fun.

If you aren't dolling out money for amusement park visits, shopping trips, lunch with friends or ice cream after dark, you're lucky – but likely among the minority. Sure we want our kids to have fun-filled summers, but personally, I don't recall being so expensive as a child.

The closest thing to an amusement park ride my neighbor Tricia and I had was a race down Elm Street on bikes or big wheels.

Before they were outlawed, the closest thing my friends Marcy, Margie, Stacy, Danette and I had to Splashin' Safari was an old tire inner tube in the middle of the country club pool.

We were city kids – as metro as you can get in the big town of Marion, so we didn't chase too many frogs, we were scared of crawdads, but we felt comfortable making mud pies. We didn't have creeks but as soon as a good rain came we'd run outside if our moms didn't catch us and stomp around in puddles.

Truly, kids love summer more than any of us. It means sleeping late, staying up late, eating whenever they're hungry (throw the school-year schedule out the window). It means chasing girls at the ballpark, climbing up the slide a million times without getting bored and throwing rocks and sticks until someone gets hurt.

Frankly, summertime for parents is quite tiring, in addition to expensive, but it only lasts nine weeks, and we can endure anything for that long, can't we?

Jehovah's Witnesses host convention this weekend

Starting Friday, Jehovah's Witnesses will host two consecutive weeks of conventions in Roberts Stadium located at 2600 Division Street in Evansville, Ind.

This year's theme is "Remain Close to Jehovah."

Friday morning's symposium, entitled "Imitate Those Who Maintained Intimacy With Jehovah," will discuss how Bible characters including Abraham, Ruth, King Hezekiah and Mary, the mother of Jesus, drew close to God and how it benefited them. Friday afternoon's talks will demonstrate the importance of family communication.

Saturday morning's highlight will be a discourse featuring the importance of dedication to God, followed by water baptism. The afternoon program on Saturday will discuss Satan's subtle efforts to distance us from God and the tools he uses including pride, money and even technology.

If you go
What: The "Remain Close to Jehovah" district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses in Evansville is among 90 cities in the continental U.S. to host similar conventions.
When: Two separate gatherings: Friday through Sunday and June 18-20. Morning sessions begin at 9:20 a.m., each day. Afternoon sessions begin Fridays at 1:50 p.m., Saturdays at 1:35 p.m., and Sundays at 1:20 p.m. The public is invited to attend any session or the entire program. The sessions conclude at 4:55 p.m., Friday and Saturday and at 3:40 p.m., Sunday.
Where: Roberts Stadium at 2600 Division Street in Evansville, IN Sunday's theme, from Habakkuk 2:3, will help the audience appreciate some of the features of Jehovah's endearing personality, including his approachableness, empathy, generosity and loyalty. The keynote address on Sunday has the theme, "How Can You Draw Close to God?" A special feature Sunday afternoon will be a full-costume drama set in the first century.

Throughout the continental United States, there will be 357 conventions in 90 cities. Worldwide, there are over 7.3 million witnesses in more than 105,000 congregations. They are members of a worldwide Christian religion who actively share with others information about God, whose name is Jehovah and about his son, Jesus Christ. They view first century Christians as role models. They believe that in addition to drawing one closer to God, living by Bible principles gives purpose to life, promotes strong family ties and develops productive and honest citizens.

The convention is open to the public. Admission is free, and no collections will be taken.

For more information, call 956-99673 or visit www.jw-media.org/gbl/gbl04e.htm or www.watchtower.org/.

The Press sponsors community reporting

As far back as 1878, when the first Crittenden Press was published, there have been community items submitted to the paper.

A person from the different communities would submit news worthy and sometimes colorful articles to be printed. This would be the only way news items could be shared by all the different locations in the county. About any kind of news was appreciated by the paper, as to fill up space and help sell papers.

In August 1928, The Crittenden Press featured a contest. The prize would be $2.50 for the best news contribution sent to The Press.

Here are some of the newsiest items submitted for the week of Sept. 7, 1928.

Smithland bridge work will limit traffic for about two months

Deck rehab work on the U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge in Livingston County is scheduled to start Monday. It will include strict load width and speed restrictions.

Work zone restrictions on the bridge at Smithland will severely restrict truck traffic at the site. At night the bridge will be restricted to passenger vehicles only.

"We recognize the lane and width restrictions required for this deck repair project will create a hardship for farmers and shippers who have trucks that travel U.S. 60 through Livingston County," said Project Delivery and Preservation Engineer Denny Alvey. "With that in mind, our contractor will be working around the clock to complete the project as quickly as possible."

Monday through Friday, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., the bridge will be restricted to a maximum lane travel width of 10 feet. At all other times, the bridge will be restricted to a maximum travel width of 7.5 feet. The restrictions will prevent trucks and farm equipment over 10 feet wide from crossing the bridge during the day. At night, the work zone will essentially be restricted to passenger vehicles and emergency vehicles only.

A marked detour for trucks traveling between Paducah and Marion will be established via Interstate 24 and U.S. 641. The work zone will include a 20 mph speed limit and enhanced police presence.

If work is able to start as scheduled next week, the contractor is expected to complete the job before Aug. 15, weather permitting. The project includes bridge deck restoration work, curb repairs and deck joint replacement.

"We want everyone to be aware of these lane restrictions well in advance to help minimize the potential for problems during the work," Alvey said. "The load width and speed restrictions will be strictly enforced to help maintain safety for both the public and construction workers in this work zone."

The U.S. 60 Cumberland River bridge at Smithland is also known as the Lucy Jefferson Lewis Memorial Bridge. About 5,500 vehicles cross the bridge in an average day.

Intech Contracting, LLC, of Lexington is the prime contractor on the $991,424 highway improvement project.

Unemployment rates falling slightly in area

Unemployment rates are down in Crittenden and surrounding counties, according to the Kentucky Office of Employment and Training, an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet.

Crittenden's jobless rate fell seventh-tenths of a percent from March to April of this year and it was down similar amounts in each of the surrounding counties.

Livingston had one of the biggest drops, going from 12.8 to 11 percent, much of which could be attributed to seasonal workers around the lakes area.

In April, Fayette County recorded the lowest jobless rate in the Commonwealth at 7.7 percent. Magoffin County recorded the state's highest unemployment rate at 19.2 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working. They do not include unemployed Kentuckians who have not looked for employment within the past four weeks.

Local couple targeted in 'grandparents' scam

If you get a call from a distressed grandchild asking for money, make sure you check out the story thoroughly before forking over any cash.

Last week, a Marion couple was targeted by a phone call, which Attorney General Jack Conway is dubbing a "grandparents" scam.

The Crittenden couple, who did not want to be identified, called local authorities, but there is little that can be done in most cases, because calls are coming from outside of the country.

The local couple received a phone call from a man claiming to be their grandson. He was crying, saying he was in jail because he was in a friend of a friend's car, which had drugs in it. He asked the couple not to tell anyone he was in trouble, but wanted over $4,700 to get out of jail.

The couple didn't think the man sounded quite like their grandson. The caller had made some minor mistakes that alerted the grandparents that something wasn't right. With those discrepancies and due to a recent television report on phone scams, the couple asked the male caller some questions about their family. At that point, the caller asked why they needed to know that and then hung up.

Sheriff Wayne Agent says you should contact law enforcement if you receive a phone call and someone asks for money. The sheriff said his department can help verify requests for money if necessary. He said the local couple handled the situation last week perfectly. To report a scam phone call, contact the sheriff's office at 965-3400.

Attorney General Conway issued a warning early this week advising citizens that the "grandparents scam" is still targeting Kentucky seniors and he believes social networking sites are a contributing factor.

Protection has received several calls and an actual complaint from one Kentucky consumer who recently lost $6,000 after falling victim to the scam. Reports of these incidents escalated in 2009 with 1,134 reported in the U.S., according to the Canadian Anti-Fraud Call Center (CAFFCC).

Recently, a Vine Grove, Ky., grandmother fell for the scam. In that case, the scammer, or "grandchild," asked the victim not to tell her parents about the "grandchild's" arrest for drug possession during a traffic stop. The victim then wired $6,000 to Canada through Western Union. Last year, a Louisville man also lost $6,000 as a result of the scam.

"Although it has been the subject of multiple consumer alerts, the 'grandparents scam' continues to victimize seniors by preying on their generosity and desire to help a beloved grandchild," Conway said. "Due to the wide availability of contact information on the Internet and through social networking websites, scammers are now able to retrieve personal information, such as family members' names, by visiting Facebook or MySpace."

New reports also reveal that scammers are now portraying themselves as policemen or lawyers calling on behalf of a grandchild.

Kentucky consumers are advised to obtain the caller's name or ask a question that only a relative would know if receiving this type of call. Also, contact your relative by cell phone to verify the situation. All consumers should also check the security settings on social media accounts. Privacy settings should only allow confirmed friends to access personal information.

Consumers who suspect they have been a victim of a scam can call the Attorney General's Consumer Protection Hotline at 1-888-432-9257.

Crittenden Grand Jury indicts seven

STAFF REPORT

A Crittenden County Grand Jury has handed down indictments against seven individuals. The grand jury met in regular bi-monthly session Monday at the Crittenden County Courthouse.

A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence in a case. It decides whether enough evidence exists to continue prosecuting cases as felonies in Crittenden Circuit Court.

Those indicted last week were:

•Willard C. Brewer, 53, of Metropolis, Ill., on charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity; manufacturing methamphetamine, second offense, by complicity; possession of drug paraphernalia by complicity; and second-degree persistent felony offender.

Brewer was allegedly caught in an undercover drug operation by the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force and the Crittenden County Sheriff's Department. He arrived at a home in rural Crittenden County – with another suspect, Charles S. Scott, who was also indicted this week – allegedly to cook methamphetamine. Police say Brewer had at least three ingredients used in making meth and that they found meth in a pipe in the suspect's vehicle.

•Charles S. Scott, 40, of Paducah was indicted on charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity; manufacturing methamphetamine by complicity; possession of drug paraphernalia by complicity; and for being a second-degree persistent felony offender.

Scott was arrested as a result of the same undercover investigation as Brewer, in the above case. The two allegedly drove from Paducah to near Sheridan under the notion of cooking methamphetamine for a confidential informant.

•Eric L. Wright, 29, of Princeton was indicted on a single charge of second-degree burglary. Wright is suspected of entering a home in Tolu on the night of March 28, a Class C felony. The homeowner was awakened by the intruder and Wright left the residence. Police say the suspect left a liquor bottle on the front porch of the home matching the description of one a witness saw him with earlier in the evening. Other evidence linked Wright to the scene of the home invasion, according to court records.

•Christopher R. Hackney, 19, of Zion Cemetery Road in Marion was indicted on charges of DUI, second offense; first-degree possession of a controlled substance (morphine); second-degree possession of a controlled substance (hydrocodone); and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Court records indicate that Hackney was arrested after being stopped at a road check conducted by Kentucky State Police and Crittenden County Sheriff's Department on U.S. 641 on the night of April 26.

•Garrett Edward Hunter Jr., 24, of Ky. 297 in Marion was indicted on a charge of theft by unlawful taking (over $500) and for being a first-degree persistent felony offender.

Court records indicate that Hunter is suspected of stealing a 1985 Ford F250 pickup parked on the side of Ky. 855 South on April 14.

•Patricia Hunter, 61, of Ky. 297 was indicted on a charge of theft by unlawful taking (over $500) by complicity. She is suspected of being involved in the theft of the Ford pickup on April 14, along with Garrett Edward Hunter (see above case).

•Rebecca Tiffany Myers, 21, of Redbird Court in Marion was indicted on a charge of criminal possession of a forged prescription.

Court records indicate that Marion Police Department conducted an investigation into Myers using a forged prescription in an attempt to get 16 Lortabs at CVS Pharmacy on March 22. A warrant for her arrest was served four days later.

•A charge of failure to make child support payments against Dennis Moss of Marion was remanded to District Court as a misdemeanor.

STAFF REPORT
Crittenden Health Systems is hosting four students who are working on completing clinical hours in order to get their degrees.
This round of students marks the first time the pharmacy department has seen two students simultaneously, the first time the physical therapy department has had a doctorate of physical therapy student and the first time the hospital as a whole has had four students.
Two University of Kentucky pharmacy students are working under Dr. Stuart Collins, director of pharmacy. Ashley Gray of Princeton has completed her class work, but has to complete nine more clinical rotations, which are all scheduled throughout Lexington. Mallory Johnson of Madisonville has one year of school left to complete, plus her clinical rotations. Both girls are finished at CHS in June.

Pharmacy students do a four-week community pharmacy rotation after their first year, a four-week hospital rotation after their second year, which is what Johnson is completing, and a year's worth of six-week rotations after their third year, which is what Gray is completing.
Stringer has to complete four rotations and has two left. She leaves CHS next week and heads West to complete rotations in Albuquerque, N.M., and Los Angeles, Calif.

CHS now offers cardiac rehab

Crittenden Health Systems has recently opened a full-service Cardiac Rehabilitation Center on its hospital campus.
Cardiac rehabilitation is a 12-week exercise and educational program designed to return a person who has undergone a recent cardiac event and/or cardiac intervention to their previous level of function. The idea is to lead the patient toward the lifestyle changes needed to maintain cardiovascular health.
This goal is accomplished by a multilevel approach consisting of exercise, education on various topics and consultations with a pharmacist and registered dietician.
Examples of people benefiting from this program would be recent heart attack patients, recent stent or coronary by-pass graft patients or stable angina patients.
The exercise program is what most people consider to be the core of the program. The patient is introduced to mild exercise using four different pieces of exercise equipment.
Their medical advisor sets a beginning level of exercise that the patient can tolerate. The program is designed to give the patient the confidence that he or she needs to get back to a more normal lifestyle.

Equipment will provide the patient with both upper and lower body workouts. The patient will also use a treadmill, arm ergometer, recumbent bike and a machine called a Nu-step which is basically a recumbent stair-stepper.
The duration and level of intensity of the exercise is gradually increased until the patient is working at a maximum level.
A patient is never pushed beyond their own capacity for exercise, say hospital officials. This program is not designed to be a "no pain, no gain" program, said Susan Brown, R.N. "Our end goal for every patient is for them to be able to comfortably have 30-80 minutes of aerobic exercise three times per week," she said.
Accommodations can be made for patients with orthopedic issues. Included in the program is education that consists of a one-on-one consultation with a pharmacist and dietician.
The pharmacist will go over their medication regimen with the patient, explaining how and when to take their medication along with how particular medications work.

They will also be made aware of side effects, adverse reactions and drug interactions with other prescription and over-the-counter medications.
A dietician will interview the patient as to food preferences and dietary habits.
Using this information, the dietician will come up with a plan tailored to each patient's preferences to help them adhere to a heart healthy diet.
Education on heart disease, anatomy and physiology of the heart, as well as living with heart disease, will be provided utilizing DVD presentations and a question-and-answer session with a registered nurse.
The psycho-social aspect of recovering from, and living with, heart disease is also addressed, said Brown.
Medical advisors say that the road to cardiovascular health is one of behavior modifications such as smoking cessation and changing dietary habits to lifestyle changes such as regular moderate exercise and maintaining a healthy weight.
It is a road that requires a major commitment to follow. Cardiac rehabilitation gives the patient a jump start on making that commitment, hospital officials said.

SALEM GARDEN TOUR PREVIEW

BY PAMELA STRINGER
STAFF REPORTER

With the Salem Bicentennial successfully completed, Salem Garden Club is already in motion for another event. The annual garden tour will feature seven gardens Sunday, including Shannon Riley's.

Riley lives on Shelby Road in Salem. Her property is surrounded by the woods, allowing visitors to feel secluded while they take in the landscape she's been working on for years.

Riley was diagnosed with breast cancer in 2003 and took to her garden for some frustration relief and therapy. She completed the master gardener course at the UK Extension office in McCracken County in 2004.

"I wanted one of those green aprons they wear," Riley said. "I wanted to learn how plants and soil work."

Riley's motto is "take care of yourself because no one else can." That's why when you visit her garden during the tour, you'll see signs – figurative and literal – reminding garden enthusiasts to wear sunscreen and get mammograms, among other things.

Riley is also very practical when it comes to her garden. Two large sinkholes grace the property and she has found a way to plant in and around them, hiding them with roses and bushes.

Also, she makes a point of assuring her riding lawn mower can maneuver the space before she starts a new bed.

Over 20 species of plants find a home in her garden, which she plans to call Blue Birds Garden because three different species of birds with blue bodies enjoy spending time there. Whereas Riley won't pick a favorite garden bed, she will admit that if forced, she'd choose oakleaf hydrangea as her favorite plant because it blooms in three season, showing different colors in all. Currently, it produces a white bloom.

For Riley, her garden will never be complete. And she wouldn't have it any other way.

See the above box for garden tour ticket information. A map of the garden locations will accompany the purchase of tickets.

For more information, contact Janet Hughes at 988-2145 or 988-3835.
