Dad a title to not be treated lightly

Fathers often get overshadowed by mothers in the commercial recognition of parenthood, though they are equally as important in the child-rearing process. Moms, undoubtedly, do hold a special place in our hearts for the warm and compassionate things that only a mother can provide—one no one mends a skinned knee like Mom—but let’s not forget Dad this Sunday. Certainly, the nuclear family of “Leave It to Beaver” is becoming an endangered way of life in today’s society, but Dad does not need be a Ward Cleaver to fulfill his role as the primary male influence on his children.

Dads are the ones who still take time to shoot a few hoops or toss the ball around with junior after a 12-hour shift of back-breaking work. They also make themselves available on a busy Saturday of yard work to have tea time with a young daughter. Dad may seem like a robot with work and projects on his mind, but that doesn’t mean he has any less love or compassion for a child than Mom; he just may not express it in the same tender manner.

Being a father sometimes means being the bad guy. It can mean pouring out all of his wisdom in an uncomfortable discussion about life’s knocks and pleasures. It may mean risking a new set of brakes on the family car in order to teach a child the ways of the road. It may also mean embarrassingly interrogating a boyfriend on a daughter’s first date. The list goes on and on.

But simply being a man who has fathered a child does not a Dad make. Too many dads are absentee providers or fail to provide at all. Dads, like mothers, willingly sacrifice of themselves to make the lives of their children better. Fatherhood is a responsibility, not a right. If a man is not capable of selflessness toward his child, the title of father would be too generously handed out this Sunday.

Conversely, a man need not father a child to fill the role of dad in the absence of a traditional father. Many men have stepped into the role and admirably filled dad’s shoes in the void of a biological father.

The 21st century world has drastically altered the American family—whether it be portrayed on film or carried out in reality—but Dad is still needed in the proper balance of influence on both boys and girls. We believe Dad’s role in the family is as important, or more so, than ever before. We are not ashamed in our thinking that Mom and Dad complete the package of parenthood.

Family structure is more complicated than ever. Having both a mother- and father-figure is certainly no guarantee for a child. For those men, though, who do what it takes to be a true dad, no matter the situation, they are worthy of honor not just on this third Sunday of June, but every day of the calendar.

Rescued wild animals need experts him from the yellow stripes to just outside the white piping along the edge of the pavement.

Having felt that my duty to save a helpless bird from certain death was over, I drove off. But guilt soon took over. He obviously was not up to par by animal kingdom standards. His certain death was only delayed along the roadside. He’d probably fall victim to another bird of prey, raccoon or coyote by the approaching nightfall.

A call to Eileen Wicker at the Raptor Rehabilitation of Kentucky Inc.— who had recently nursed to health a bald eagle struck by a vehicle in the county—led me to discover my find was most likely a great-horned owl with head trauma or vision problems caused by his rough meeting with life on his own.

I certainly couldn’t leave him on his own at this point, despite his long talons that could easily shred human flesh. With advice from the raptor expert, I covered his eyes, kept his legs as far from reach as possible and put him in the floorboard of the back seat. He was a pretty good passenger, save some squawking now and again.

Now what?
Western Kentucky Raptor Center in Owensboro opened their arms to care for Hootie—their name, not mine. I handed off the feathered football along the side of the road, and Hootie was immediately ushered into proper care.

That’s my point here; though it took a while to get to this point. Wild animals deserve our attentiveness and every reasonable effort to protect them from undue danger. But the lay person can never properly care for them—mammal or fowl.

For instance, in my babysitting stint, I found that had I tried to provide water to Hootie, I could have easily drown him due to his unique bird anatomy. So, unless you know how to care for a wild animal, no matter how harmless they may appear, leave them to the experts.

I’ve kept tabs on Hootie since turning him over a few weeks ago. Though he remains blind in one eye, with a reportedly healthy appetite, he is growing into a majestic, beautiful adult great-horned owl at the raptor center in Owensboro. He can never be released back into the wild to prey for himself, but he will remain at the center as an educational tool, hopefully teaching people about his species and the wonder of nature. One look at his talons alone, even as a youth, did that for me.

Would the world have kept turning had I left an ugly little Hootie in the road? Sure. But then I wouldn’t have the personal satisfaction of knowing I did the right—and wise—thing for a helpless creature destined to shed his disagreeable appearance for a majestic beauty.

There are all sorts of wild animal rehabilitation centers in the area—most can be found on the Internet. Don’t try to rehab one yourself if you find a Hootie. He—and you—will appreciate it.

‘Small town’ best compliment a city can get opening. I believe it could do all of us some good to be as excited about church— especially the reopening of one that was about to be shut down—as Ms. Steward was.

I also learned this week that of the cities in Kentucky with populations of at least 3,000, Marion is the smallest. I know city leaders might be disappointed the town isn’t growing, but I wouldn’t be too disappointed. If the city grows too much, then it might lose the small-town feel that I and probably many others enjoy about it.

Some people say New York City is the greatest city in the world. I vigorously disagree. I’ll take a small town like Marion that is on the correct side of the Mason-Dixon line over the “Big Apple” and its rudeness any day.

People in small towns like Marion still know the value of a hard day’s work and doing what they can to help their neighbor. There may be people like that in New York City, but I would be inclined to say they are few and far between. I believe if the rest of the country had some of the morals and values that Marion does, this nation of ours that our veterans fought and bled for would be in a whole lot better shape.

Don’t forget to pick up a copy of The Crittenden Press next week for another installment.

5K run raises money for FBLA trip

Winners of last week’s 5K run fundraiser for Crittenden County High School Future Business Leaders of America club’s trip to national competition were (from left) Ashley Thomas, women’s division champion; Neal Bryant, men’s division champion; Jacob Berry, men’s division runner-up; and Tiffany Hearell, women’s division runner-up. There were a total of 24 competitors in the event, which raised more than $500 for this summer’s FBLA trip to nationals in Anaheim, Calif.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FBLA earns national spot 3rd year in row

To the editor:
I am writing to clarify some information that appeared in last week’s paper regarding FBLA.
The Crittenden County chapter of FBLA is extremely proud of all of the students that are attending the national competition and representing Crittenden County as well as the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The national competition is being held June 27-July 1 in Anaheim, Calif.
This is the third year in a row that the chapter has made it to the national level. Students are competing in the areas of Digital Video Production, Desktop Application Programming and Word Processing I and II.
Brayden McKinney is competing in Desktop Application Programming and has spent many hours creating an impressive computer program for businesses to keep track of their employees.

Kayla Davis is a first-time competitor in the area of Word Processing and has worked very hard to master business documents.
Austin Dunkerson, Ellen Merrick and Daniel Patton are competing in the Digital Video Production category where they placed first at both the regional and state levels. This is the third year that we have had a team to place first and advance to nationals in this category.
We would not have made it this far without the contributions of several people in the community. We would like to thank Marion Mayor Mickey Alexander, Superior Trophies, Main Street Italian Grill and H&R Block for their assistance with the video that earned our trip to nationals.
Last year at the national level, Anna Schnittker and Jessica Tinsley placed in the top 15 in the nation in their events, and we are greatly anticipating this year’s competition.
Thank you to everyone that participated in their fundraisers.

FBLA is a great club that has allowed students to showcase their talents, serve the community, network, learn about business and have fun at the same time. We have earned a positive reputation for Crittenden County and will continue next year with our service, competitions and fun.
CCHS FBLA would not be such an impressive club without the leadership, hard work, dedication and participation of all of the members. I am blessed beyond measure to work with such talented and amazing students every day and am looking forward to a new year full of fun.
Amy Hardin
CCHS FBLA Adviser
Marion, Ky.
(Editor’s note: Last week’s story on the FBLA trip to nationals contained some errors that required clarification and corrections. We regret any oversights and errors that have been addressed in this letter.)

Charlie Peters of Michigan made a stop in Marion earlier this week on a trip en route to his father’s grave in Oklahoma. His mule-powered wagon trip is not just for him, it’s also a mission to thank fellow veterans along the way to his final destination.

Man makes trip to thank fellow vets

By CHRIS MCGEE
STAFF WRITER
Sometimes a simple act can spur someone into action. This was the case with Charlie Peters, a former member of the U.S. Navy and a Vietnam veteran, who made his way through Marion earlier this week in his wagon pulled by two mules.

Peters, of Michigan, said he was in an antique shop three years ago in St. Petersburg, Fla., and saw a commemorative U.S. Navy plate that he was very interested in. “I asked the guy how much he wanted for it, and he said $1 million,” Peters said. “I told him that was a little steep and that I would really like to have it.” Peters said the guy then asked him if he had ever served and if he had gone to Vietnam. He said yes to both and then the guy handed him the plate and shook his hand and thanked him for his service. “I told the guy that he was the first person in 45 years to tell me that,” Peters said. “So I decided I was going to do something for the vets and go around the country shaking the hand of every vet I can find.” He said after making his decision he bought a pair of mules and built a wagon. Peters originally thought about going to California, but then his wife made a suggestion for him to go to Oklahoma to visit his father’s grave. Peters’ father served three years in World War II. “I had never been to my father’s grave, so I decided I would go there and kneel in front of it and thank him for his service.” Peters said everyone he has encountered along the way has been very nice.

“I had no idea they would be this nice,” he said. “It’s fantastic; I love it; I wouldn’t change a thing.” Peters said gratitude is the one thing he would like for people to take away from his journey. “If you see a vet, shake their hand and thank them for their service,” Peters said. “They will appreciate it; I know I did.” Peters camped at the fairgrounds in Marion a couple of days and then continued his journey to Oklahoma, leaving town on Tuesday.

NEWS BRIEFS

Marion man injured in Fredonia wreck

A Marion man was involved in a two-vehicle, injury collision Sunday on U.S. 641 in Fredonia.

The Kentucky State Police preliminary investigation reports Christopher Wright of Marion was southbound on U.S. 641 when he lost control of his 1997 Mercury Tracer in a curve and went into the northbound lane, colliding with Christopher Elder of Fredonia, who was driving a 2001 Pontiac Grand Prix.

The wreck occurred at approximately 11:30 a.m.

Both men were wearing seatbelts and no other passengers were involved. Wright and Elder were both taken to Livingston Hospital.

Trooper Chris T. King investigated the collision. Fredonia Fire Department and Caldwell County EMS assisted at the scene.

88 Dip set to reopen starting next week

The 88 Dip, which closed May 17 under previous management, will re-open next Wednesday under local restaurateur Glenn Conger.

Conger plans to phase-in hours over the next three weeks until situating into regular hours beginning July 1. The eatery will be open for breakfast each week, adding a lunch and dinner menu in subsequent weeks.

The restaurant will be closed Sundays.

Conger plans to re-introduce popular items like Hunt Bros. Pizza, Colonel Jim's Fried Chicken and evening delivery.

The 88 Dip first opened in 1952 and is named for the Oldsmobile Rocket 88 introduced by General Motors in the late 1940s.

Carnival promises to show at county fair

A fair in western Kentucky that booked the same amusement company that has been contracted for Crittenden County Lions Club Fair next month was canceled because the carnival didn't show up.

Mayfield Mayor Teresa Cantrell said officials had signed an agreement with Carnival Tyme/Playland Amusements for this year's event, which was scheduled to begin June 5.

However, no one showed up and Cantrell said she got no response when she tried to get in touch with the company representative. Cantrell says she reached out to other carnivals, but they were all

Zac Greenwell, with Crittenden County Lions Club, said the local organization has been in contact with the carnival since the Mayfield events were canceled.

"We are communicating with them and they have assured us they are going to be here," Greenwell said.

The fair in Crittenden County is slated for July 29 through Aug. 3.

Cantrell said some events, such as equine and livestock shows, were not affected, but a tractor pull and demolition derby, among other events, were cancelled due to the missing midway.

Unions protest case involving Patriot Coal

Hundreds of coal miners, including many from Crittenden County, rallied in western Kentucky over planned cuts to wages and benefits by Patriot Coal Corp. for union members.

The June 4 protest by the United Mine Workers of America outside the Henderson County Courthouse ended with the arrests of about a dozen union members who briefly demonstrated in the street.

Patriot, a spinoff of St. Louis-based Peabody Coal, is seeking to cut worker and retiree benefits as part of a bankruptcy filing.

Kentucky Sen. Jerry Rhoads, a Democrat from Madisonville who attended the rally, said the proposed benefit cuts for union workers "is a matter of life and death."

In late May, a federal judge ruled in favor of Peabody, giving the go-ahead to significantly cut health care and pension benefits to thousands of workers and retirees.

High court to hear local case argument

The Supreme Court of Kentucky will convene this week in Frankfort to hear oral arguments in several cases, including one that originated in Crittenden County.

Phillip Sitar is appealing denial of his custodial rights. His attorney, Kathleen Kallaher Schmidt, argues that Crittenden Family Court had neither jurisdiction nor sufficient evidence to grant an emergency protective order/domestic violence order filed by his former live-in girlfriend, Loretta Glover, on behalf of her daughter.

Mary E. Rohrer is the attorney for the Commonwealth, serving as a special assistant attorney general. She serves as assistant Crittenden County Attorney.

Proceedings are open to the public and arguments in the local case will be made at Oral arguments are available online as they occur in real time and are not available as archives.

The Supreme Court is the state court of last resort and the final interpreter of Kentucky law. Seven justices, including Justice Bill Cunningham of Kentucky's 1st Supreme Court District that includes Crittenden County, sit on the Supreme Court. All seven justices rule on appeals that come before the court. The Supreme Court may order a ruling or opinion to be published, which means that the ruling becomes the case law governing all similar cases in the future in Kentucky.

State gas tax set to rise 2.4 cents in July Kentucky's gasoline tax will automatically rise by 2.4 cents next month to 32.3 cents a gallon.

Lawmakers were briefed on the increase Tuesday in a meeting of the Interim Joint Transportation Committee.

Under Kentucky law, the gasoline tax is subject to periodic increases. That's based on a formula that ties the state's gasoline tax to wholesale prices.

Kentucky surveys wholesale gasoline prices every three months and changes in the tax rate show up at the pumps three months later. That's meant a consistent string of increases over at least the past five years.

Lawmakers implemented the current system in 1980 amid concerns that rising gasoline prices would cause people to purchase less fuel, which would mean less revenue for highway maintenance and construction.

Average retail gasoline prices in Kentucky have risen 3.4 cents per gallon in the past week, averaging $3.63 per gallon on Sunday, according to GasBuddy's daily survey of 2,623 gas outlets in Kentucky. This compares with the national average that has not moved in the last week to $3.64 per gallon.

Beshear to schedule redistricting session

Gov. Steve Beshear and legislative leaders could set a date for a special session within the next week to resolve the lingering issue of redistricting.

Beshear had what he described as "a very productive meeting" Monday afternoon with Republican Senate President Robert Stivers and Democratic House Speaker Greg Stumbo and said they're now working on a date for calling lawmakers back to Frankfort.

Each decade, lawmakers are required to draw new legislative district boundaries to account for population changes recorded by the U.S. Census Bureau. Kentucky had major population shifts between 2000 and 2010, requiring changes in boundary lines to comply with the federal and state "one person, one vote" mandate.

Two federal lawsuits have been filed in recent weeks to speed up the process in Kentucky.

Carsen Easley (inset) has earned 42 merit badges as a Boy Scout and is well on his way to becoming an Eagle Scout, top honors in the organization. One of his latest projects in attempting to achieve that goal was a renovation project of headstones at Hurricane Cemetery. Easley has spent several weeks cleaning and repairing markers at the historic cemetery. At top, Easley's finished work can be seen as compared to the prior appearance of the monuments in the bottom photo.

fall. He would be one of the youngest in the area to obtain Eagle Scout.

An Eagle Scout is the highest rank attainable in the Boy Scout program.

Currently, letting people know about the restoration at the cemetery is his main focus. Easley said he wanted to work on a project that would make a difference for the community and would still be taken care of years later. When he was inquiring about Hurricane Cemetery, he found out that those taking care of it needed help. While the cemetery was always kept clean and mowed, time, funds and manpower were needed to give the cemetery extra attention.

Easley's mother said originally her son was going to work on restoring several broken stones, straighten leaning ones, resetting misplaced ones and cleaning some of the older stones that had become illegible.

During the project, 194 stones were cleaned and more than 63 repaired.

While working on the project, Easley was told of a man found on the Ohio River on McKinley Island by Tolu. No one knew the man's identity. The man was buried in Hurricane Cemetery in September 1929.

Upon learning of the unknown man, Easley wanted to put up a monument in his memory. While researching, he learned of several African-Americans who were also buried in the cemetery in unmarked graves. His mother said he wanted to include them too.

All the work is now complete except the placement of those monuments, which will be set once they are complete.

"This was his idea. He just wanted to do this for the community and let people see it. We really wanted to get the word out so people could be aware while they are down this week (at Hurricane Camp Meeting)," Saundra Easley said.

Input on Smithland bridge alternatives sought next week

STAFF REPORT

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KyTC) has scheduled a public information meeting for discussion of a replacement scoping study of the U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge at Smithland in Livingston County. The meeting is 4-7 p.m. next Thursday at the University of Kentucky Agriculture Extension Office at 803 U.S. 60 East in Smithland.

"We have initiated a planning study to examine the need for and feasibility of various repair and/or replacement options for the U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge at Smithland," KyTC District 1 Chief Engineer Jim LeFevre said. "The purpose of the meeting is to introduce the study and to solicit thoughts, concerns and opinions from the public on the issues, problems and solutions to be considered by the long-term study."

The U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge at Smithland, also known as the Lucy Jefferson Lewis Memorial Bridge and the Smithland Bridge, is at U.S. 60 Livingston County mile point 12.348. The 1,817-foot through truss structure was opened to traffic in 1931. About 5,500 vehicles cross the bridge daily.

The public meeting will have an open exhibit area where officials will answer questions and receive public input. The exhibits will outline the proposed study area, existing conditions and provide the opportunity for public input.

"Input provided by the public will help the Cabinet make decisions about the need for and feasibility of the repair and/or replacement options as well as potential locations," LeFevre said. "Anyone with an interest in this planning study is urged to attend."

While no construction is planned at this time, input provided by the public will assist engineers in planning future efforts to maintain the reliability of the river crossing at Smithland. The bridge is a critical link for Livingston County which is divided by the Cumberland River. U.S. 60 is also a major transportation link for neighboring counties.

Former Levee Pond Church, Cave In Rock, IL

Frankie Moore, Keith Barnes and Roy Belt, members of the church from Kentucky, said, "We need to start having some fundraisers."

Sis. Eva Winters came up with the idea to tape dollar bills end on end...till they reached the current site for the new building 10,560 $1.00 bills.

Thursday, June 13 at 6:30 p.m.

They will start at the old church unrolling the bills along the south side of RT 146. This will go from old to new site.

Everyone is encouraged to attend.

Important farming deadlines near

I hope the wet weather has not caused too many problems for Crittenden and Livingston County farmers and cattle producers.

With all the wet weather this year, we want to remind everyone that if the rain has delayed planting crops, it will need to be certified within 15 calendar days of the final plant date. The final plant date for corn was May 31. This means the 15-day window has started and planted corn has to be certified by Friday.

If you have corn that was unable to be planted due to weather-related circumstance, you will need to call the office and make your crop report by Friday.

If the weather continues to be wet, we will possibly end up with producers in the same situation for soybeans. The final plant date for soybeans is Saturday or June 25, depending upon practice type. Again, you have 15 days after this final plant date to certify. Please remember, it is very important that you file a preventive planted acreage report if you carry insurance and have been unable to plant because of the large amounts of rain and flooding.

County committee
It is that time of year again to start the nomination process for the county committee. This year, Local Administrative Area 1 is up for election. The area that is up for election is located in Crittenden County south of U.S. 60. Nominations will be accepted through Aug. 1. In order to serve on the county committee, the candidate must be associated with the LAA. To be associated with the LAA you must own or operate a farm located in the designated area.

If you would like to nominate someone, or would be interested in running for the county committee yourself, please obtain a Farm FSA-699A. We will have them available at the office or we will be happy to e-mail, mail or fax one to you. We appreciate your participation in this election.

Please return your nominations by mail or drop them off in the office by Aug. 1.

Don't miss CRP sign-up Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) general sign-up will end Friday. This will allow anyone who has an expiring general CRP contract an option to offer the contract back in. It is also for anyone interested in offering new ground.

If you are interested in scheduling an appointment, please call or e-mail the office and we will set one up for you.

Upcoming
- Friday: Final day to file prevented planted corn acreage report.
- Through Friday: General CRP sign-up.
- July 15 is the last day to file a crop report.
- Through Aug 2: Direct and Counter-Cyclical Payment Program (DCP) sign-up.

Senate OKs farm bill; would cut food stamps

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last time Congress passed a farm bill, Democrats had control of the House and the food stamp program was about half the size it is today.

That was five years ago. Conservatives calling for an overhaul of the domestic food aid program will try to trim the nation's nearly $80 billion grocery bill when the House weighs in on farm legislation in a few weeks. The Senate overwhelmingly voted Monday to expand farm subsidies and make small cuts to food stamps in a five-year, half-trillion dollar measure. But passage in the House isn't expected to be so easy—or so bipartisan.

House Speaker John Boehner (R-Ohio) said Monday that his chamber will take up its version of the farm bill later this month. He made clear his own dislike for generous farm subsidies included in the bill, saying his "concerns about our country's farm programs are well-known." But Boehner acknowledged that the rest of the chamber might not agree with him.

"If you have ideas on how to make the bill better, bring them forward," Boehner said in a statement directed to his colleagues. "Let's have the debate, and let's vote on them."

House consideration will come after more than a year's delay. The Senate passed a similar version of its farm bill last year, but the House declined to take it up during an election year amid conflict over the amount to cut from food stamps, now known as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, or SNAP. One in seven Americans now use the program.

The Senate bill would cut the food stamp program by about $400 million a year, or half a percent, and Senate Democrats have been reluctant to cut more. The farm bill approved by the House Agriculture Committee last month would cut the program by $2 billion a year, or a little more than 3 percent, and make it more difficult for some people to qualify.

Food stamps were added to the farm bill decades ago to gain urban votes for the rural measure, which sets policy for farm subsidies, programs to protect environmentally sensitive land and other rural development projects. But with the program's exponential growth during the recent economic downturn, food stamps are now making passage harder.

On the Senate floor, senators rejected amendments on food stamp cuts, preserving the $400 million annual decrease. The bill's farm-state supporters also fended off efforts to cut sugar, tobacco and other farm supports.

Senators looking to pare back subsidies did win one victory in the Senate, an amendment to reduce the government's share of crop insurance premiums for farmers with adjusted gross incomes of more than $750,000. Sens. Dick Durbin (D-Ill.) and Tom Coburn (R-Okla.) said their amendment would affect about 20,000 farmers.

Currently the government pays an average of 62 percent of crop insurance premiums and subsidizes the companies that sell the insurance. The bill expands crop insurance for many crops and also creates a program to compensate farmers for smaller, or "shallow," revenue losses before the paid insurance kicks in.

The crop insurance expansion is likely to benefit Midwestern corn and soybean farmers, who use crop insurance more than other farmers.

Friday final day to submit NRCS CPS applications

FROM STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

The Natural Resources Conservation Service's Conservation Stewardship Program will provide about $175 million in funding for up to 12.6 million additional acres enrollment this year.

Although applications are accepted all year, farmers, ranchers and forestland owners interested in CSP should submit applications by Friday to their local NRCS office to ensure they are considered for this year's funding.

The NRCS office in Crittenden County is located at 118 E. Bellville St. in Marion and can be reached at 965-3921. In Livingston County, the NRCS service center is at 2027 U.S. 60 East in Salem and can be phoned at 988-2180.

The voluntary program allows producers to go the extra mile in conserving natural resources while also maintaining or increasing the productivity of their operations.

"CSP is different than our other financial assistance programs," said NRCS State Conservationist Karen Woodrich. "CSP encourages producers to address resource concerns in a comprehensive manner by adopting new conservation activities and by improving, maintaining and managing existing activities."

Playing a significant part in conserving and improving the nation's resources, producers enrolled an additional 12.1 million acres in CSP last year and more than 26,000 of those acres were in Kentucky.

Many of the CSP enhancements improve soil quality, which helps land become more resilient to extreme weather. Several other improvements are available for producers, including intensive rotational grazing, intercropping and wildlife friendly fencing. Because of the extreme weather in 2012, more interest and participation in the cover crop enhancements is expected this year, according to NRCS experts.

A CSP self-screening checklist is available to help producers determine if the program is suitable for their operation. The checklist highlights basic information about CSP eligibility requirements, stewardship threshold requirements and payment types.

Kentucky Junior Livestock Expos feature education, competition

STAFF REPORT

Hundreds of Kentucky youth will compete for points and prizes and sharpen their skills at three upcoming Kentucky Junior Livestock Expos.

"The junior livestock expos bring together the best exhibitors from throughout the Commonwealth in a head-to-head competition," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said.

The Kentucky Junior Livestock Expo-Western Rivers is scheduled for next week—June 20-21—in Murray. The oldest and largest of the series, the Kentucky Junior Livestock Expo-West, will take place July 25-27 in Bowling Green.

About 1,000 young people will show more than 1,800 head of livestock in beef, dairy, swine, sheep and goat shows. Kentucky Youth Livestock Points are up for grabs for exhibitors and animals in the junior livestock expos as well as other Kentucky Department of Agriculture livestock shows and the Kentucky State Fair. Exhibitors who accumulate the most points are honored in the fall.

For more information about the expos and the Kentucky Youth Livestock Points Program, visit www.kyagr.com or call (502) 564-4983.

'13 corn planting almost complete

STAFF REPORT

Almost all of Kentucky's anticipated corn crop is not in the ground, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture Kentucky Weekly Crop and Weather Report.

As of Sunday, 96 percent of corn planting was complete, several weeks behind last year's schedule and just off the five-year average of 98 percent. Eighty-four percent of the crop has emerged, compared to 100 percent at this time last year. The average height of emerged corn is 13 inches and 96 percent of the crop is fair to excellent.

Soybean planting has reached 48 percent as compared with 89 percent in 2012 and 67 percent over the last five years.

Marion area gets first city hall, fire engine

As the old will continue to disappear to make room for the new, the former city hall building on East Bellville Street will soon be torn down.

When the structure was built in 1927, the City of Marion was proud of the new city hall building and the offices that it would contain. The city meetings of the town officials would finally have a proper place to conduct their business.

Marion, through its early history, had several devastating fires in its business district with much loss to the town and community. A way and means to obtain and house the best firefighting equipment available was always in the minds of the mayor and the city council. The new city hall would have ample storage room for a new fire truck and also the equipment.

From the archives of The Crittenden Press, here is some interesting history about that time.

May 4, 1920
Marion City Council meeting

The matter of the purchase of a fire truck equipped with the necessary apparatus for extinguishing fires came before the council. It was explained that with this apparatus costing only $2,500, it would save the residents of Marion about $5,000 annually in fire insurance premiums. This was contingent on the city having the necessary volunteer fire department. It was voted that the truck be purchased.

Nov. 19, 1920

The new chemical fire engine which the city council purchased last spring arrived on Tuesday. A demonstrator from the factory came with the machine which he assembled immediately.

Brenda Underdown
Crittenden County Historian

Forgotten Passages

The apparatus is mounted on a Ford chassis and has a capacity sufficiently large to extinguish a fire of considerable size and will do it quickly. The engine is equipped with chemicals which when mixed produce carbon dioxide, the most effective gas known for fighting fires.

The new engine cost the city about $2,800. However, the reduction in fire insurance premiums will be enough to repay this in a few years.

A volunteer fire department will be organized immediately. The responsibility of subduing any conflagration, in its early stages, which might happen in Marion will be on its hands.

Jan. 7, 1927

A new fire engine

The new fire engine, which was ordered several months ago by the city, arrived this week. The engine has been tried out and is ready for use when the occasion arises. The guaranteed capacity of this new piece of fire-fighting equipment is 500 gallons per minute. And in a test this week, pumped 420 gallons in one minute.

With the old engine, the firemen had to depend on water pressure alone in fighting flames but the pumping equipment on the new (engine) adds increased force and provides for the use of a larger number of gallons per minute.

April 8, 1927
Council votes to purchase a lot

According to plans presented to the city council at their regular meeting Monday evening by Councilman C.B. Hina, Marion is to have a municipal building.

Mr. Hina was the chairman of a committee named to look into the matter of securing a site for a proposed city hall and fire headquarters and reported to the council that the lot belonging to W.E. Cox, located just north of the Masonic building on Bellville, could be purchased for $1,275.

The proposed building would contain offices for the police, judge, city clerk and mayor, with ample storage room for the fire truck and equipment and a storeroom for other city property.

It is planned to construct this fireproof building at a cost of about $3,000.

April 22, 1927
City installs fire alarm controls

Marion has three new remote control stations for the operation of the fire siren. The installation was completed on Monday by Guy R. Lamb and his assistants.

One of the new stations is at the corner of Main and Carlisle streets, on the Marion Bank side of the street. Another is at the garage of the Stephens Motor Co., where the new fire truck is kept (until the new location is finished), and the other is at the residence of the fire chief, D.E. Moore, on College Street.

The fire alarm system of the town now operates more systematically than ever before. During business hours, all reports of fire are to be telephoned to Stephen's Garage, and after business hours to the residence of D.E. Moore.

Dec. 30, 1927

Passing Year 1 of activity

As the bells Saturday night ring out the passing of the old and herald the arrival of a new year. Marion people will perhaps be reminded, by the triumphant ringing, of the progress that this year has brought to the town.

This year has seen the erection of a much-needed public building, Marion's new city hall, which occupies the Bellville Street lot adjoining the Masonic Hall.

City council meetings had previously been held in the Howard Henry Building on Carlisle Street for a fee of $8 per month.

Council members at this time were: A.J. Baker, Albert Henry, George James, M.O. Eskew, C.B. Hina and E.F. Sullenger, Mayor J.G. Rochester, Clerk John G. Bellamy, City Attorney

John A. Moore and Fire Chief D.E. Moore.

Sept. 19, 1947

For some added history on the fire department, we find in September of 1947 Marion's new fire truck, which had been long awaited, finally arrived.

The new fire truck is mounted on a 1.5-ton Ford truck chassis furnished by Crittenden Motor Co., and outfitted by the Queen City Fire Apparatus Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio. The cost of the new truck is approximately $5,500. The truck is equipped with all modern installations for small town fire departments and has a 500-gallon-a-minute pump. It has a booster tank for carrying 300 gallons of water in the truck and carries 1,400 feet of 2.5-inch hose, 300 feet of 1.5-inch hose and 150 feet of chemical hose. There are two large 2-inch fog nozzles and three fire department-size fire extinguishers.

The new truck, at present, will not be housed in the fire station because there is a hose reel atop the truck that is too high to pass under the doorway. But plans are under way to raise the entrance height soon. When the new truck is stationed at the fire station, the old fire truck will be stationed at the K.U. building near the depot.

Out with the old and in with the much-needed new city hall or Marion Commons, as it is now known, was completed in the fall of 2005, and the new modern fire station was finished and dedicated in May of 2012.

Tri-County Area Welcomes New Veterinarians

Stone Veterinary Clinic is happy to announce the addition of two veterinarians. Drs. Caleb and Kristian Jenkin have recently joined the practice in Sturgis. Caleb is the grandson of Dr. Raymond H. Stone, Jr. and a 2013 graduate of Auburn University's College of Veterinary Medicine. In addition to enjoying mixed animal practice, Caleb has special interests in bovine reproduction and herd health. His wife, Kristian, is a 2011 graduate of Auburn University's College of Veterinary Medicine. Kristian enjoys working with small animals and has a special interest in equine sports medicine and reproduction as well. They are both licensed to practice all aspects of veterinary medicine, surgery and dentistry and are now accepting patients.

PUBLIC INFORMATION MEETING To Discuss a Replacement Scoping Study of THE US 60 CUMBERLAND RIVER BRIDGE at Smithland

Thursday, June 20, 2013

4:00 P.M. to 7:00 P.M., CDT

UK Agriculture

Cooperative Extension Office

803 US Highway 60
Smithland, KY

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet has scheduled a Public Information Meeting to discuss a planning study to examine the need for and feasibility of various repair and/or replacement options for the US 60 Cumberland River Bridge at Smithland, Kentucky in Livingston County. The purpose of the meeting is to: introduce the study and to solicit thoughts, concerns, and opinions from the public on the issues, problems and solutions to be considered by the study. Input provided by the public will help the Cabinet make decisions about the need for and feasibility of the repair and/or replacement options as well as potential locations. Anyone having an interest in this planning study is urged to attend this meeting.

The public meeting will have an open exhibit area where officials will be prepared to answer questions and/or receive public input. The exhibits will outline the proposed study area, existing conditions, and provide the opportunity for the public to detail the nature of and location of issues in the study area.

A comment sheet will be distributed to make it more convenient to provide written comments. A court reporter will be available during the meeting for oral comments. Written statements will be accepted at the meeting and for a period of fifteen (15) days after the Public Information Meeting, addressed to the Kentucky Department of Highways District 1 Office, Attn: Mike McGregor, P.E., 5501 Kentucky Dam Road, Paducah, Kentucky 42003.

All oral and written statements will become part of the official record. Once compiled, the summary of this meeting and other supporting documentation will be made available for review and copying only after an Open Records Request has been received and approved. All Open Records requests must be submitted to the Transportation Cabinet, Department of Administrative Services, State Office Building, Frankfort, Kentucky 40622.

In accordance with the "Americans with Disabilities Act," if you have a disability for which the Transportation Cabinet needs to provide accommodations, please notify us of your requirements by June 17, 2013. This request does not have to be in writing. Please contact Jessica Herring at the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, District 1 address above or call (270) 898-2431 for further information.

Winders' passing leaves holes to fill in community

STAFF REPORT

The community lost an influential voice last week known to thousands of people over the last few decades.

Rev. Nicky M. Winders died suddenly June 5 at the age of 62. An ordained minister, he was pastor at Sturgis General Baptist Church the last 28 years. He was also the longtime radio voice of Crittenden County High School basketball, calling both girls' and boys' games on WMJL. He was a member of the Laymen's Quartet, a local gospel music group, and helped his sons coach high school golf.

"He'll leave a void in so many different areas. He touched a lot of people," said longtime friend and fellow pastor David Davis. "Obviously, it's a huge loss for his family."

Davis said Winders was one of the first two pastors to be ordained under the newly-formed West Kentucky Association of General Baptists in 1985. Since that time, he has been the pastor at the Sturgis church. Davis, pastor at New Union General Baptist Church in Crittenden County, said he and Winders had worked together in the Association since 1990.

"He was my closest friend in life," Davis said. "He was like a brother to me."

Besides pastoring a church in the Association, Winders served many years as clerk and treasurer for both the organization of churches and the presbytery of the Association.

He also spearheaded the Association's youth camp, which has been held at different locations throughout the years. Davis said Winders and others worked to get a campsite in Crittenden County. Five years ago, land just off Ky. 1668 was donated to the Association for the camp. Winders wanted the site named Camp David in honor of his father, the late David Winders, a longtime pastor who died last November. A dedication ceremony was slated for the youth camp property this summer.

Davis said the dedication and development of the local campsite may be delayed until the Association finds someone else to lead the way to see the facility through to completion.

"We're struggling right now," Davis said the day following Winders' passing. "But he would want us to keep on."

And that's just what the Laymen Quartet will do. The group, along with Winders, was scheduled prior to his death to perform Saturday night at the annual Hurricane Camp Meeting. They will still keep that date.

As for calling basketball games, Barbara Myers, who owns WMJL along with her husband Joe, said she is uncertain anyone can fill Winders' shoes behind the microphone.

"You could put that on cruise control," she said of basketball broadcasts.

Each year he would make both home and away games for the broadcasts, often working on his own or with his wife Annalea, who would keep stats, Myers said. The only times he might miss a game would be for a church function, she added.

"He was easy going and easy to work with," Myers said. "I don't think you can replace him. He loved basketball. He knew (the game)."

Winders was also a coach of basketball and other youth sports for many years, touching lives through his leadership in that position as well.

"Our lives are better because of him," Davis said.

Sheriff's office lands grant for weapons, ammo

By CHRIS McGEE
STAFF WRITER

In the battle against crime, any advantage that law enforcement can gain is greatly appreciated by the citizens they are sworn to protect. Forty law enforcement agencies, including the Crittenden County Sheriff's office, gained that advantage recently.

Gov. Steve Beshear announced the awarding of $200,693 in grants from Kentucky's Law Enforcement Protection Program earlier this month. Each agency has to submit an application and specify the intended to use for the money. Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent said he specified patrol rifles and ammunition because handguns and shotguns are the only weapons the department has at this time.

The local sheriff's office was awarded a grant of $5,700 and will use the funds to purchase AR-15 rifles and ammunition.

Agent didn't discount the importance of receiving the grant.

"It's something we've needed for quite some time," Agent said. "We are very fortunate to have received it."

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom said he also was happy about the department receiving the grant but admitted that his part in the process was minimal.

"The sheriff fills out the application, and then I have to sign off on it," Newcom said of his part.

Take time to plan ahead for travel emergencies

Whether you're headed for the beach, the outback, or the big city for your summer vacation, you should add a few more items to your to-do list so that you are fully prepared to travel.

Taking time before your departure to plan ahead for possible medical emergencies and everyday health and medication needs is just as important as making plane and hotel reservations.

The following suggestions from UK Health Care can help ensure you and your family have a healthy and happy vacation.

Road tips

- Pack smart. Pack an adequate supply of medicines and be sure to store them properly. Heat and humidity, for example, can affect many medications, so don't keep them in a beach bag, car trunk, or glove compartment.

- At all times, carry your health-insurance card, doctor's phone numbers, and a list of medications you take.
- Keep medicines in their original containers. Doing so will ensure you have all the information you might need-medicine name, dosage, warnings, interactions-with you. If you take more than one medication and use a pill dispenser, wait until you reach your destination to fill the dispenser.

- Check labels for warnings about how medications may increase your body's sensitivity to the sun, heat, or cold. If you are pregnant or have a chronic health condition, check with your doctor about the potential effect of conditions you may encounter while traveling.
- Wear an identification bracelet with detailed medical information if you have a chronic or life-threatening condition.
- If you suffer from respiratory or food allergies, ask your doctor for advice on how to manage them while traveling.

- Pack a small first-aid kit that includes bandages, antiseptic and antibiotic ointments, anti-itch cream, antihistamines, upset-stomach remedies, anti-diarrhea medicine, tweezers, and pain/fever relievers.
- Ask your doctor or pharmacist for advice about when to take your regular scheduled medications if you'll cross more than one time zone.
- If traveling with children, make sure all medication containers have child-resistant caps.

Overseas agenda

Also follow these suggestions if you're traveling outside the United States:

- Keep medications in your carry-on bags, not in checked luggage.
- Keep all medications in their original packaging or labeled bottles; otherwise, they could be confiscated at Customs. Also, carry a copy of your prescriptions.
- Pack any nonprescription medications you normally take-it can be difficult to find American formulations in many countries.
- Take care when buying medications overseas. Ask the pharmacist for help, especially if the label is in another language. Carefully examine the packaging for signs of tampering.
- Be sure you have the right immunizations. To double-check, visit the CDC Travelers' website. Be aware that some vaccinations require multiple doses and must be started weeks before your departure.

- Check with your health insurance company to determine your coverage abroad. If you're not covered adequately, you may be able to buy more coverage through your insurer or a major credit card company. You may also consider buying medical evacuation insurance.
- Consider carrying a doctor's letter outlining existing medical conditions and any equipment required to manage your health.

Woman's Club members visit Riverview Park

STAFF REPORT

Woman's Club of Marion held its regular monthly meeting June 5 in The Tea Room of the Marion Café. Following the meal, Nancy Hunt, president of the Woman's Club, conducted a short business meeting and shared with the group highlights from the annual state meeting, recently held in Louisville.

Hunt also reminded everyone of the planning session which will be held in July at the Woman's Club building. All members are encouraged to attend and to bring ideas for programs for the upcoming year. A potluck brunch will be served.

Members attending the June 5 meeting included

Carolyn Belt, Becky Zahrte, Kathy Bechler, Ethel Tucker, Barbara Myers, Hunt, Sandra Belt, Linda Schumann, Gladys Brown, Judy Winn and Cindy Davidson.

Following the business meeting and luncheon, members carpooled to Riverview Park, formerly known as Dam 50. Zahrte entertained the group by singing, "In The Garden," and Tucker recollected the dedication ceremony of Dam 50 which she attended in 1928. Others shared memories of picnics and outings they had made to this area.

Vast improvements have been made to this recreational area in Crittenden County, making it an inviting location to fish, camp and simply enjoy the view.

Honor others by understanding their pain

By CHAD LOUGEE
GUEST COLUMNIST

On May 27, we honored the lost soldiers and those whose came home wounded. After the day is over, everyone gets back to work and back to his or her busy life.

But as for the wounded, people tend to forget they are still fighting the war right at home—a war in their body and mind called PTSD, or Post Traumatic Stress Disorder. Some know this as shell shock.

Many soldiers and those who suffer trauma from abuse or other events are afraid to admit they are fighting this war. Soldiers are not the only ones who suffer from PTSD. Anyone who has gone through a life-changing trauma can suffer from PTSD.

PTSD is something that is not visible, and it affects just about every part of a person's daily life.

Can you tell if someone has PTSD?

Sometimes.

But the best way to know is by talking to the person, getting to know them and watching their actions for sudden movements. Never force a person to get help with PTSD. This will only make them more resistant.

There are many traumatic events people can handle alone: heart trouble, diabetes, loss of a family member or a long time pet or close friends that move away and lose contact. But the one thing that is hard for anyone to handle alone is PTSD.

As humans, we are designed to heal after getting cuts and bruises; they heal and go away. But we are not designed to handle such a painful, emotional experience that PTSD brings.

Do you have PTSD? To find out, here are some signs:

Do you avoid going into crowded places?

Do certain noises make you jump or cause your anxiety to rise?

Are you turning to substance abuse for control?

Do you still feel like you are stuck in that one place in time and the tragedy that happened is stuck on instant replay?

These are questions you must ask yourself every day. I know. I had to. I have PTSD so I can truly say I understand what you are going through.

If you can answer more than three questions with a yes, what next? Well, for me, I started with my primary care provider. You can also contact a mental health organization or do some research on the Internet. Veterans Administration hospitals help if you are a veteran.

I have found a local one close to Marion—the V.A. Paducah Clinic at 2620 Perkins Creek Dr. They can be reached at (270)444-8465.

This is a great place to get started, but there is only one starting place before any of these places can do their jobs—you! You need to admit to yourself that you want the help just like I had to admit to myself that I needed help.

Here is a quote to think about: "Although the world is full of suffering, it is full also of the overcoming of it."

This is not an impossible war to win. I am doing it, and so can you!

(Chad Lougee, a resident of Marion since 2003, suffers from Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD) due to childhood abuse. Through sharing his experiences and those of friends with PTSD, he hopes to help others who suffer from the disorder to see that there is light at the end of the tunnel.)

New flags fly above court square

There are new flags flying above the court square in Marion. Last week, Grant Rogers, local Woodmen of the World representative, and Orman Hunt, a local Woodmen lodge member, presented Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom with new American, POW/MIA and Commonwealth of Kentucky flags. Newcom said the U.S. flag replaced at the courthouse was not in bad shape, so he used it to replace the one at Riverview Park. "So due to the Woodmen's presentation we were also able to get a better flag at that location as well," Newcom said.

Marion resident named to dean's list

STAFF REPORT

Bellarmine University has named Marion resident Meera Patel to the dean's list for spring 2013. Patel is a sophomore majoring in biochemistry and molecular biology, and previously attended Wasatch Academy.

Bellarmine's dean's list recognizes students who receive a grade point average of 3.5 or above on a 4.0 scale.

Bellarmine University is an independent Catholic university in Louisville, Ky., offering more than 50 majors, as well as graduate degree programs, and doctoral programs in nursing, physical therapy and education.

Forbes Magazine and the Princeton Review rank Bellarmine among America's best colleges, and U.S. News and World Report consistently ranks Bellarmine as a top tier university. For more information, visit <http://www.bellarmine.edu>.

Campbellsville University announces dean's list

STAFF REPORT

Local students have been named to Campbellsville University's Dean's academic honors list. They include Jessica Michelle Tinsley, a sophomore of Marion; Mark Joseph Bomia, a junior of Fredonia and Lauren Elizabeth Moore, a junior of Sturgis.

Campbellsville University Senior Vice President for Academic Affairs Dr. Frank Cheatham announced the academic honors' list for the spring 2013 semester.

Another area student has also been honored by the university. Autumn Paige Herrington, a senior from Marion, has also been named to the President's academic honors list.

The academic honors' list recognizes students who achieve a grade point average of 3.50 or above for the semester with a course load of at least 12 hours. The spring 2013 academic honors' list includes a total of 556 students, with 222 named to the President's List for achieving a 4.0 grade point average, and 334 named to the Dean's List for achieving a 3.5 to 3.99 GPA.

ADAM H. EDELEN
AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

The Honorable Perry Newcom, Crittenden County Judge/Executive
The Honorable Carolyn Byford, Crittenden County Clerk
Members of the Crittenden County Fiscal Court

Report on the Financial Statement
We have audited the accompanying statement of revenues, expenditures, and excess fees - regulatory basis of the County Clerk of Crittenden County, Kentucky, for the year ended December 31, 2012, and the related notes to the financial statement.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statement
Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of this financial statement in accordance with financial reporting provisions prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting as described in Note 1. Management is also responsible for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of a financial statement that is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility
Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statement, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statement in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statement. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinions.

Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles
As described in Note 1 of the financial statement, the financial statement is prepared by the County Clerk on the basis of the financial reporting provisions prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

The effects on the financial statement of the variances between the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1 and accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, although not reasonably determinable, are presumed to be material.

Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles
In our opinion, because of the significance of the matter discussed in the Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles paragraph, the financial statement referred to above does not present fairly, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, the financial position of each fund of the County Clerk, as of December 31, 2012, or changes in financial position or cash flows thereof for the year then ended.

Opinion on Regulatory Basis of Accounting
In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the revenues, expenditures, and excess fees of the County Clerk for the year ended December 31, 2012, in accordance with the basis of accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Commonwealth of Kentucky as described in Note 1.

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards
In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated March 14, 2013 on our consideration of the Crittenden County Clerk's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is solely to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the effectiveness of the Crittenden County Clerk's internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards in considering the entity's internal control over financial reporting and compliance. Accordingly, this report is not suitable for any other purpose.

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen
Auditor of Public Accounts

Joey, Paisley and I would like to say a few words of appreciation for all the many, many prayers, thoughtful gifts, cards, encouraging words, love and support throughout Paisley's sickness. As many of you know, on September 12, 2012 at just 22 months old, she was diagnosed with a very rare Stage 4 yolk sac teratoma tumor and cancer in her lungs and bone marrow that started from a malignant grapefruit size tumor attached to the base of her spine, which forced and stretched her bladder into her lungs. On September 17, 2012, her surgeon went in to remove the large tumor, but the surgery was unsuccessful. Due to its size and malignancy removal was too risky for Paisley. At this time, her port was surgically inserted to start chemo treatments. This was a very scary time in our lives. But with God by our side and the faith he showed us through Paisley, He have us the strength and faith we needed to get through this difficult and challenging time.

Day after day and even still now our heavenly father would send his angels to comfort her and give her comfort, peace and strength to fight. There were times she would point her angels out in the hospital room or at home saying, "There's angel mommy, see angel, don't touch angel daddy, angels are good." She would wave to them or reach out to them or even talk to them. She would go around the house and the hospital saying, "God is great" all day long. What a blessing and gift from God!

During her sickness she went through 3 surgeries and numerous rounds of CT, MRI and bone marrow scans. Chemo treatments were every 2 weeks for 1 week at a time with blood work every Monday and Thursday. Three blood transfusions were needed during her treatments. Throughout all of this, she never got sick and never lost energy. Once the word got out that she had cancer, family, friends and people all around the world started praying for her complete healing. The word spread like wildfire. During her first round of chemo we saw immediate healing and relief for her. Even the doctors were shocked at how her body was healing so fast. We were told she would lose her hair, and she did. However, we were also told she would lose some of her hearing and have kidney damage due to the chemo treatments' side effects and possibly never be able to walk again after surgery. After testing her hearing before and after chemo, her hearing is even better than it was before and with no other complications. After all the surgeries, she is still running around, playing and just as lively as before, no abnormalities.

During her treatments, a complete stranger (a fisherman) came to us and told us he had been searching for a small child that God had told him to find and pray for healing. This man found us during a delivery one day to a local fish market owner and friend. He saw her picture on a donation bucket and said, "That is the child I am to pray for. I have to get to her and pray for her." He came to us and did just that and from that point on we received nothing but good news. December 22, 2012 was her last chemo treatment and January 22, 2013, was her second surgery to remove all remains from the tumor and any scar tissue. When the surgeon went in, there was nothing left, no scar tissue or remains of any tumor! A few days after, we got the results from her follow-up scans and surgery that showed all the cancer was gone in her lungs and bone marrow and that the tumor was completely gone! She was cancer free and in remission! On March 18, 2013, her port was surgically removed. This was the ending to all the treatments and hardest times! Now she only goes once a month for blood work and every 3 months for CT and MRI follow-up scans.

We would love to list everyone individually and thank each one, but in fear of not listing everyone who showed love, support and most importantly prayed for Paisley, we would just like to thank each and every one of you for praying so faithfully and giving so much of your time to show us so much support and love. Words could never say how thankful we are. Paisley is living proof of complete healing and that miracles do happen. She is our little miracle!

Thank you and God bless,
Paige, Joey and Paisley Timmons

Garland new Seven Springs pastor

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

After officially moving to Crittenden County about six weeks ago, Mayfield native Dr. Bob Garland is enjoying making new friends and becoming acquainted with many area residents. Garland is the new pastor at Seven Springs Missionary Baptist Church, located near Frances. The church supports about 50 missionaries around the world.

“My wife and I just moved our furniture on the 23rd of May,” Garland said. “We just love the area. The people are great. They have accepted us and done great things for us.”

Garland’s educational experience began in Michigan, where he studied at Wayne State University. He also attended Luther Rice Seminary, Southern Seminary and received a Master’s Degree from Liberty Baptist Seminary in Lynchburg, Va. He received his Doctor of Ministry from Baptist College of America in Kokomo, Ind., and is currently working toward his Ph. D.

He spent 34 years as a pastor in west Tennessee including a number of years at Keely Mill Baptist Church in Dyer, Tenn. Later he and his wife had the opportunity to work at the Sword of the Lord, a Christian publication company in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

He also worked with the Rutherford County sheriff’s department as chaplain. Garland recalled the time as a great experience and had the opportunity to bear witness to inmates and see many of them dedicate their lives to Christ.

Another opportunity to witness came at the Nashville Rescue Mission, where Garland was a chaplain and had the opportunity to speak with many individuals on a one-on-one basis.

“That was unique,” Garland said of his time at the rescue mission. “Some of these men had Master’s degrees and somehow lost everything they had.”

Garland saw many individuals who had received training in higher education and yet didn’t have a place to stay or a job. He said it wasn’t unusual for the rescue mission to feed at least 350 individuals every night and offer them a place to sleep.

“To see that many men in that situation was heart-breaking,” he said. “They were educated men. They spoke well. They could take care of themselves. But some of them didn’t have jobs and some of them didn’t want jobs. There were so many different types of folks at the mission.”

Garland and his wife Marcie have been married for 44 years and have three children, Robert, Stacy and John. He invites individuals to visit the church and be a part of many great things.

As new pastor of Seven Springs Missionary Baptist Church, Dr. Bob Garland is enjoying meeting members of the community.

Sunday school begins at 10 a.m., with morning services beginning at 11 a.m. Sunday evening services begin at 6. Wednesday night services are at 7.

“My goals for the church are to let people know we are a lighthouse for Jesus Christ and we are concerned about seeing all souls saved,” Garland said.

Crooked Creek Church reopening

By CHRIS MCGEE
STAFF WRITER

Crooked Creek Church will remain open thanks to the Ohio River Baptist Association. The Association voted to keep the church open just as the doors were about to be closed for good due to shrinking membership.

Tracy Steward, now a member of Crooked Creek, said the church had dwindled to only three members. And because of the aging membership, the church decided to close the doors and find another place to worship.

Don Pugh said keeping the house of worship open was somewhat of a process.

He said 15 members of Repton Baptist Church left and ask to join Crooked Creek Church. Both churches are members of the Ohio River Baptist Association, a collective organization of Southern Baptist churches in Crittenden and Livingston counties.

Pugh said Crooked Creek’s membership was hesitant at first, but later changed its mind and voted to allow in the members from Repton so the newcomers would not have to dissolve the church and start over.

“Linda Morris called my sister, Mary Pugh, and arranged for the members from Repton to come and see the church,” he said.

The members went to see the church on the same day the Association was set to approve the move. After the visit, the membership of the 41-church strong Association voted to allow Crooked Creek to stay open with the new members from Repton.

Pugh said while everything was falling into place with the church, the remaining members of Crooked Creek were attending worship services at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Marion, also a member of the Association.

Pugh said everything, including the checking account, was allowed to stay the same for Crooked Creek. Steward said Easter Sunday was the first service in the building after the Association’s vote.

Once again, the church is going strong.

“On the fourth Sunday of the month, we have a gospel singing where people can come and give testimonies and sing,” Steward said. “We’ve had two of those since the church reopened.”

Steward said the members from Repton received an additional blessing besides getting to use the Crooked Creek building.

“We really wanted Victor Hill to be our pastor, and he has agreed,” she said.

Steward said God apparently didn’t want the light to go out at the church.

Selling alcohol in county will bring more grief

The Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police Executive Director Robert Stevenson wrote in the Detroit News on April 26, "As more alcohol is available to Michigan residents, the risk of crime increases."

The headline to his letter read, "More booze, more reckless behavior." The interview continued: "As local law enforcement officials have witnessed firsthand, more alcohol in our communities opens the door to potentially more crimes, including drunken driving, domestic abuse and violence. These increased risks come at a time when local law enforcement is already stretched thin and must do more with fewer resources. The proposals also weaken critical safeguards that are important to local law enforcement to ensure that alcohol does not fall into the wrong hands."

"Furthermore, these (Michigan) Liquor Control Commission proposals were developed with no input from local police, who are responsible for both background checks and enforcement within our communities. Promoting economic opportunities is one thing, however, endangering the public health and safety to sell more alcohol is irresponsible and reckless."

The local booze petition is still circulating with some outside help pushing it. As of last week's issue of The Crittenden Press, nearly 700 people have signed it. Organizers have until the middle of August to get 971 signatures.

With all the grief we already have—and with a watchful eye for God's judgment, which we know is coming because God never lies—we would do well to remember that our judgment as a nation is going to be far more severe because God has said, "A nation that will not obey Him, He will destroy."

How people who call themselves Christian choose not to care how their actions put curses on innocent people is beyond me.

These are the people Paul was talking about when he said "money is the root of all evil." This drive is only about money in people's pockets as they want to open liquor stores, taverns on Main Street and Sunday diners where children might possibly be exposed to it.

This will not bring more business into restaurants here in Marion as many have already testified to.

It is heartrending to see so many selling tobacco, which can kill people and costs taxpayers more money to pay for health care for people do not care enough for their own health to stop the filthy, stinking stuff.

Now we have people in our midst who want to add this booze evil to their conscience and God's judgment. God said, "Whatsoever you do to the least of these you have done it unto me."

Jesus and Paul also made it very clear that we reap what we sow. All of us are living proof the word of God is true. We will reap what we sow. You sow bad and God can forgive you for it if His conditions are met, but you will reap them bad.

That law is immutable and unchangeable. God made that law before the beginning of man. You sow cucumbers and you get cucumbers, even if you thought you were sowing cantaloupe.

A dear young cousin of mine in another state was told by the doctor he was dying because of his life of drinking. He begged the doctor to please tell him what he could do to live. He said he would do anything. The doctor said "You should have thought of that 20 years ago; there is nothing that can be done for you now."

All these people who won't listen to those who love them and beg them to turn from sin will one day wish they would have had sense enough to resist Satan. They will wish they would have lived their lives like the One who owns them and who will one day bring them to account for their disobedience and hurt to themselves and so many others.

The city and county may have to raise taxes again on all the working citizens and pay thousands of dollars for an election to fight this evil. And then, if it passes, pay for more police, jail incarcerations, health care and welfare, which will enlarge because some people will use their money to drink instead of paying their bills.

Many of the ones who want this evil are already living off the rest of us. Is all of this what we all really want?

(Rev. Lucy Tedrick is a Marion minister. She shares her views regularly in this newspaper. Her opinions are her own, and are not necessarily those of the newspaper.)

God established a better hope as we draw near

In ancient Israel the main religious leaders were from the tribe of Levi, and descendants of Aaron. They were the priests and were experts in God's word concerning the law. The high priest was the highest religious authority and was dressed in special garments and anointed with oil. He was to bear the names of the children of Israel on his shoulders and also bear their name in the breastplate of judgement upon his heart when he went into the most Holy place to minister before the Lord, on behalf of the people. The priests could not forgive peoples' sins, but they offered sacrifices for peoples sins.

The high priest was also to carry with him Unim (lights) and Thummim (perfection.) "And thou shalt put in the breastplate of judgement the Unim and the Thummim, and they shall be upon Aaron's heart when he goes in before the Lord..." As time went on, these objects, or whatever they were, seemed to fade out of the picture. For God was then already making changes in the old system to bring forth perfection through the Spirit of Life in Christ Jesus.

The Levitical order could not bring perfection. It could not bring the work of redemption to fullness. The Levitical order, as good as it may have been in its time, ended in death. Therefore God transferred the administration of the priesthood from earth to Heaven and from Levi to Melchizedek. Not because there was anything wrong with the Law, but the whole order was an earthly priesthood based upon an old covenant that man could not keep. God had to change the old system, because it could not bring forth completion. But it did bring in a better hope, by which we draw nigh to God (Heb. 7:19). The hope of the Law was not another earthly kingdom, but the hope of the Law as a new order with a new priesthood after the order of Melchizedek—a priesthood that will be administered directly from the throne of God in the heaven. The foundation of this new kingdom would be "righteousness" and "peace," for that is what "Melchizedek" means. The name means "King of Righteousness" and his kingdom was over "Salem" which means peace. Melchizedek is superior to Levi, because Levi paid tithes to Melchizedek, and received the blessing of Melchizedek. This proves that Melchizedek was better, because the lesser is always blessed by the better. (Heb. 7:7). In this new order, where we have entered into the new covenant, we are to minister righteousness and peace as representatives of Christ Jesus who reigns as a Priest on a better throne, and in a better priesthood, in a Kingdom of Life.

(Felty Yoder is a resident of the Salem community and has lived with his family in the area for two decades.)

“Soul Surfer” presented on Sunday

STAFF REPORT

Marion Baptist Church will be showing the movie “Soul Surfer” this Sunday.

The film is based on the true story of Bethany Hamilton, who lost her arm to a shark attack at the age of 13.

“Soul Surfer is the inspiring true story of teen surfer Bethany Hamilton,” writes MovieReviews.com. “Bethany lost her left arm in a shark attack and courageously overcame all odds to become a champion again, through her sheer determination and unwavering faith.”

Showing of the 106-minute film begins at 6:30 p.m., in the church's Family Life Center of East Depot Street. Doors open at 6 p.m., and everyone is welcome to attend the viewing.

WHO WE ARE

Betty Little

Who We Are is a feature found occasionally inside The Crittenden Press. In it, we give you a chance to get to know your neighbors a little better.

Betty Little isn't afraid of new challenges. In 1977 she began working in Union County at for the Island Creek Coal Co.

"The first day I went underground it was pitch dark. All I had was my headlight. The first week I was edgy. I was in a totally different world," Little recalls. "We depended on each other. Each one of us had to know where the other person was for safety."

Little soon acclimated to her working conditions and sought new challenges. Initially her job was to shovel the coal belt and get the coal back on the belt line.

Realizing that anybody could shovel the belt, Little said she wanted to learn something while she was there. She soon found herself working as a shot fire. Her job was to tamp up the holes with dynamite and shoot the coal down.

"I had someone to work with me the whole night because there were a lot of wires to hook up to the dynamite before it went in the holes," Little said of her first night as a shot fire. "If there was anybody in the way, I had to shout three times, 'fire in the hole,' before I could shoot it."

Eventually Little found herself working at other areas in her unit. She learned to drive a coal car which hauled the coal to the belt line. She also learned how to drill and pin. A pioneer, she was the first women to go to the face, or the location where the mining is actually done. As time went on, she recruited other women to that area. At that time, Little said about half a dozen women worked at the mine.

"I enjoyed my four years at the mines," she said, emphasizing it was important for members of the unit to work together as a team. "We never got trapped or anything. Every once in a while you would hear the top crackle."

Little said it was an exciting time to work 600 feet underground. She worked with 10 people in her unit and said they were much like family. She planned on a long-term career in the mines when suddenly things changed.

"I had already gone to school to be an assistant mine foreman. Then I met Jim. That changed my world. If I hadn't met him I would have probably careered the coal mines because I really enjoyed it. It was a job that was very good to me," she said.

Little and her husband were married in 1981 and soon moved to Missouri where he worked at Boeing. Both natives of Crittenden County, they each have three children from previous marriages. Their family now includes 16 grandchildren and 18 great-grandchildren.

For the last six years, Little has worked as a teacher's aide in pre-school and kindergarten at Crittenden County Elementary School. Besides the hugs she receives from students, she said she most enjoys being able to work one-on-one with them as they learn a new task. She also volunteers with Crittenden Hospital Auxiliary and works in the nursery at Life in Christ Church.

A night out at the ballpark

John Williams, Wendy Potter and their son, Mason Williams, who is 10 months old, enjoy a youth baseball game Monday at Marion-Crittenden County Park. Weather permitting, games take place at the park each weeknight except Wednesday. This week and next will finish out the regular season schedule for most leagues. The postseason games for each league will begin afterward.

Herndon said the total cost of the memorial, which will be built on a grassy area in front of the Salato Wildlife Education Center, is $130,000.

"We're about $15,000 from that goal," he said. "When the donations exceed the cost of the memorial, we plan to establish a scholarship fund."

One way to contribute to the memorial's construction fund is to purchase a paving stone for $200. The donor's name or any appropriate quote will be engraved on the granite blocks. For more details, visit OfficialKCOA.com.

Artist Rick Hill and the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Foundation have collaborated on another option to donate to the fund. Prints are being made from an original canvas painting by Hill, which appeared on the cover of the Fall 2012 issue of Kentucky Afield magazine.

"It's a scene from the late 1940s. A conservation officer driving a Willys Jeep stopped to check the license of a small game hunter," said Hill. "It was a painting to commemorate the 100th anniversary of fish and wildlife law enforcement in Kentucky."

Signed and numbered prints will be available for pur-

An artist's concept of a new commemoration in Frankfort to fallen Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources officers shows the keyhole-shaped memorial with a statue of a conservation officer at the center. The six pillars to the left represent the conservation officers—including Denver Tabor or Crittenden County—who have fallen in the line of duty since 1918.

chase online at www.KentuckyWildlife.com later this summer.

The memorial's defining features were developed by KCOA members, including benches to represent each of Kentucky's nine law enforcement districts and six pillars with engraved likenesses of the fallen officers.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Graphic Artist Obie Williams designed the memorial with the aid of a 3D digital model. "It's circular because that's an inclusive, inviting shape," said Williams. "It implies the close knit group that our officers are."

The memorial will be constructed by Searcy Monument

Company of Carrollton, Ky.

"This memorial will not only honor those who paid the ultimate sacrifice but will also serve as a reminder of the dangers associated with being a Kentucky conservation officer," said Shane Carrier, assistant director of the department's Law Enforcement Division.

State graduation rates surpass national average

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

Gov. Steve Beshear is praising Kentucky educators and others for their part in improving the state's graduation rate, which rose from 63.7 percent in 2000 to 77.2 percent in 2010.

That moves Kentucky well ahead of the national graduation rate of 74.7 percent.

Beshear credited a coordinated effort by teachers, administrators, parents, business leaders and others to keep Kentucky students on track to graduation.

Crittenden County Board of Education Chairman Chris Cook said in his nine years on the local school board, he has noticed a shift toward more personalized instruction for students and doing what is best for their education. Additionally, after school programs like Crosswalk at the high school and Bridgeway at the middle school, Cook said, give time for additional tutoring and mentoring toward completion of a diploma.

"I really do think at every level of leadership in education Kentucky is really on the right path," Cook said.

Kentucky Education Commissioner Terry Holliday said despite the improvement, Kentucky still has a long way to go. Holliday said the state's goal is that every student graduates.

Cook said simply the lifetime earning capacity of someone who graduates from high school over dropouts leads to a better, healthier life for the individual, their family and society as a whole.

Kentucky passed a law earlier this year that will incrementally increase the state's minimum age for dropping out of school from 16 to 18.

Audit: Clerk's office in compliance

STAFF REPORT

State Auditor Adam Edelen last week released the audit of the 2012 financial statement of Crittenden County Clerk Carolyn Byford. The auditor noted no instances of noncompliance. Edelen also noted no matters involving internal control over financial reporting and its operation that were considered to be material weaknesses.

State law requires the auditor to conduct annual audits of county clerks and sheriffs.

Recent changes in auditing standards require the auditor's letter to communicate whether the financial statement presents fairly the revenues, expenditures and excess fees of the Crittenden County Clerk in accordance with generally accepted accounting principals in the United States. The report found that the financial statement of the clerk did not follow this format; however, the clerk's financial statement is fairly presented in conformity with the regulatory basis of accounting, which is an acceptable reporting methodology.

Mayfield smoking ban passes council vote

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Officials in Mayfield have given preliminary approval to a ban on smoking in public.

The Paducah Sun reports the City Council voted 6-4 to pass the measure on Monday, but it requires a second vote before it is final.

Councilwoman Kathy O'Nan said she supports the ordinance, saying officials "need to be more progressive" in taking care of residents.

Councilman Johnny Jackson said whether to allow smoking should be up to business owners.

Clinics and Showcase

Marion Bobcats players and coaches are hosting baseball clinics this week and a showcase Monday for various ages at Marion-Crittenden County Park. Part of the clinic was rained out Monday, prompting officials to allow younger players to attend the clinic later this week. Through Friday, players up to 14 may attend. On Monday, there will be a high school showcase. College coaches from the area will be on hand to evaluate talent at the showcase. The event is open to any high school player in the region. Contact general manager Kory Wheeler at 704-0279 or coach Jake Long at (662) 213-6310 for information.

GOLF
Buck, Doe this month

The 28th annual Buck and Doe Couples Golf Tournament will be held June 22-23 at Marion Country Club. The 36-hole event tees off at 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., on each day. Contact Melissa Tabor at 704-0600 for more information or to register.

SOFTBALL
Co-ed league starting

A co-ed softball league is being organized with a starting date of July 15. Cost is $100 per team. Play will be at Salem Christian Life Center (old Salem School). Contact Brad Fuller at 969-0015 or bfuller199072@yahoo.com.

Local team tied for first
The 12-under Lady Rockets fast-pitch softball team has a record of 6-1 at the halfway point of the WKBSA season. On Friday the team beat previously undefeated Lone Oak (10-1) and then picked up another victory Saturday over Paducah. The girls are in a three-way tie for first in the league, which is made up of 11 teams from surrounding counties.

FOOTBALL
Youth camp in July

Crittenden County Youth Football Camp will be held July 10-12 at Rocket Arena. A registration form is published on this page.

WKU-UK in Nashville

Western Kentucky University and the University of Kentucky will open their seasons at 7 p.m., Aug. 31 at LP Field in Nashville. It will be the second time in three seasons the teams have opened in Nashville. Both teams have new coaches this year, Bobby Petrino at Western and Mark Stoops at Kentucky. Kentucky slipped by WKU 14-3 in 2011, the last time they met in Nashville. Last year at Lexington, the Hill-toppers beat the Wildcats 32-31 in overtime.

Boys, girls hoop it up this summer

Crittenden County's high school basketball players are participating in summer basketball action at various locations across the state. The Lady Rockets were at Glasgow for eight games in two days last week – four varsity contests – and at Campbellsville this week for varsity-only action. The girls were 0-4 in varsity action at Glasgow, but played well at times, according to coach Shannon Hodge, despite not having Cassidy Moss or Kayla Davis. Those two were traveling with the team to Campbellsville this week for games. Crittenden lost by just two to Warren East. Chelsea Oliver led the Crittenden girls in scoring at Glasgow, averaging 12 points in four games. She also had about four rebounds a game. Maggie Collins had seven rebounds in one game and averaged more than five points.

The Rockets are playing 14 games this summer. They were 2-3 last week at Bethel University in McKenzie and played Tuesday night in a two-game set at Webster County. Next week, the boys will be at the Missouri Rib City Classic at Dexter. Coach Denis Hodge said Landon Young continues to develop as a scorer.

Hodge also mentioned the play of Noah Dickerson, Dylan Hicks, Zac Tinsley, Dakota Watson and newcomer Devin Belt.

"We're going to look a lot different than we have the last couple of years," Hodge said.

Hodge thinks the team will play at a faster pace because there are several competing for playing time and lots of new faces will be in the regular rotation.

The KHSAA dead period is June 25 through July 9, when high school athletes get a mandatory break from sports.

Lady Cards finish in state's top 6

Livingston Central's softball team had a nice run in the Rawlings/KHSAA State Championship Softball Tournament at Owensboro's Jack Fisher Park last week.

Livingston finished among the top six teams in the state after going 3-2 in the double-elimination tournament.

The Lady Cardinals won the Second Region championship on May 29, beating Henderson County 3-1 in the title game at Lee Jones Park in Eddyville.

That victory qualified the club for a berth in the 16-team state championship tournament at Owensboro.

The Lady Cardinals lost their opener to Owensboro Catholic 14-2 in six innings, but bounced back to win three straight in the state tournament. Livingston beat Magoffin County 11-3, Oldham County 2-1 and Notre Dame 4-3 in elimination games Friday. Later that night, the girls lost 4-2 to eventual state runner-up Owensboro Catholic. Greenwood won the tournament.

Livingston finished the season 33-8. The bad news for the rest of the Second Region is that Livingston returns the biggest part of its team next year.

Livingston Central's softball team posed for this impromptu photo just before boarding a bus taking them to last week's state softball tournament. Pictured are (front from left) Tiffany Padon, Katelynn Brown, Laken Smith, Britany Morrow, Courtney Walker, Carlee Mayhugh, Tabby Padon, Heather Chittenden, Ashley Wright and Destiny Lee, (back) Kenzie Dean, Hannah Leidecker, Keely Durard, McKenzie Rogers, Hailee Lampley, Jennifer Head, Emily Jenkins, Caitlin Merritt, Allison Doyle and Danielle Doyle.

Crazy time
for catfish

KENTUCKY AFIELD

When water temperatures warm into the 70s, it's catfish time in Kentucky.

"Late May and June is the prime time for catching catfish from reservoirs, small lakes, rivers and farm ponds," said Gerry Buynak, assistant director of fisheries at the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "The spawn is underway and with the onset of warmer weather, catfish settle into daily patterns. They begin to feed aggressively at dawn and dusk and throughout the night."

The top three catfish species sought by anglers in Kentucky include the channel catfish, the blue catfish and the flathead catfish:

Channel catfish (Ictalurus punctatus) is the most widely distributed catfish species in Kentucky. It thrives in ponds and small lakes. It has a bluish-silver back, white belly and silvery sides with small, irregular dark spots. Adults are commonly 12 to 20 inches long.

To catch channel catfish, an angler must fish on the bottom. That's because channel catfish are scavengers, using their super-sensitive whiskers to detect the odors of food on the bottom.

Use the basic slip sinker rig – a No. 2 hook, leader, barrel swivel and egg sinker – for bottom fishing. Night crawlers, shrimp, chicken liver or scented dough are excellent channel catfish baits.

Blue catfish (Ictalurus furcatus) thrives in big rivers such as the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers, as well as their major tributaries. Blue catfish are also found in Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake. In the last decade blue catfish have been successfully established in several small lakes and four major reservoirs – Taylorsville Lake, Barren River Lake, Dewey Lake and Fishtrap Lake.

The blue catfish is similar in appearance to the channel catfish. The most obvious difference is that the blue catfish has a straight anal fin. The blue catfish is bluish-gray with silvery sides and a white belly. The tail is deeply forked.

To target blue catfish in small lakes, use a bobber to keep the bait suspended about 6-8 feet below the surface. The best bait for blue catfish is cut bait, such as the viscera and gills of gizzard shad, chunks of bluegill, or pieces of minnow.

Flathead catfish (Pylodictis olivaris) is primarily found in large rivers and reservoirs.

It is brown to reddish-brown to yellowish with dark blotches on the top and sides, with a yellowish to white belly. It has a wide, flat head, a triangular-shaped tail and a protruding lower jaw. Flatheads commonly reach 36 inches and can live for 20 years. Adults are solitary and inhabit deep, sluggish pools during the day. They move into rocky shallows at night.

Anglers should use a slip sinker rig with a small foam float attached to the leader.

pay him for the next two months, but there will be no other severance package.

Christensen came to Marion in July of 2007 as an employee of Quorum Health Resources, which was the consulting firm formerly hired to manage the hospital. Quorum's contract was terminated in 2009, but Crittenden Health Systems chose to independently retain Christensen.

During his tenure, the hospital has struggled at times and has weathered an expansion project wrought with problems. The hospital broke ground for a new $2.6 million operating room in December of 2010, but a year later, the original contractor was fired and its surety bond company failed. That left the hospital with serious financial questions with regard to the project. Still, it forged ahead as the price tag nearly doubled.

Hunt said the new operating facility should be ready Monday provided it meets the contractor's go-ahead, but it is well behind schedule.

Low volumes and cuts in federal programs have created problems for many rural hospitals.

Hunt said the board will be working very closely with the interim CEO over the coming weeks to assure an acceptable transition period.

Hurricane camp, revival continue

STAFF REPORT

The annual Hurricane Camp Meeting is under way this week. This year marks the 125th year for the non-denominational, old-fashioned revival held at the campground and church near the Tolu community.

The youth camp portion of the revival will continue through Saturday, but evangelist Rich Gardner will hold services at the outdoor tabernacle through Sunday night.

Services begin at 7 p.m. each evening.

A meal is also available for parishioners. The meal is served at 5:30 p.m. through the final night of the revival. A special noon meal on Sunday will also be served at the campground.

The main entree tonight (Thursday) is country ham and eggs. Fish will be served Friday, followed by open face roast beef Saturday. Sunday's noon meal will be fried chicken, capped by hamburgers and hot dogs in the evening.

Local churches provide the nightly music. The Laymen Quartet will perform at Saturday night's services, despite the loss of one of its members, Rev. Nicky Winders, who died suddenly last week.

Since this year marks a special anniversary for the camp meeting, commemorative photo DVDs will be available for purchase during the revival.
