Remember Dad's Day is Sunday

Several local shops have gifts or services that you can purchase to honor dad this weekend. Father's Day is Sunday. The day, first celebrated in the U.S. in 1910, honors fathers and forefathers. It is always celebrated the third Sunday in June. Fifty-five countries celebrate Father's Day.

Seniors get checks

Checks for $250 are going out starting this month to some Kentuckians enrolled in the Medicare Part D plan. The rebates are part of the new health care reform law. The checks are designed to help seniors cover their medication cost and, eventually, to close the Medicare coverage gap known as the doughnut hole. Checks are in the mail to those who have already hit the prescription drug coverage gap this year.

Tourism spending continues upward

Local attractions generating more dollars for effort

STAFF REPORT
Tourism spending in Crittenden County has increased every year since the City of Marion created the Marion Tourism Commission. Over the past seven years, tourism spending has increased 150 percent in Crittenden County. Local leaders point to the efforts of the Marion Tourism Commission, which has been aggressive in promoting the entire county. The commission was started in 2003 by the City of Marion. It launched a new initiative to increase tourism in Marion and Crittenden County and hired its first director, Michele Edwards, who had ties to the lakes area tourism for many years. To fund the plan, Marion levied a three-percent tax on meals and lodging. As predicted when leaders developed the tourism commission, there has been a marked increase in dollars spent on tourism and as a result more tax dollars are going into the city's coffers to promote and market the area. City Administrator Mark Bryant says there is no question that the City of Marion Tourism Commission is on point with its marketing and development plan. "I have never heard anything except admiration for what the commission has done, and especially for its director, who is very involved in tourism efforts at the

Major cuts affect school district staff

BY PAMELA STRINGER
PRESS REPORTER
In an effort to trim the budget, Crittenden County School District has undergone a major restructuring, denying seven contract renewals, one reduction of responsibility, one demotion and two transfers of personnel for the upcoming school year. Like many state-funded institutions, the economy has put a severe strain on the school system's budget. In January, a resource efficiency team began meeting once a month to look at all of the statistics, federal grants and budgets to make recommendations about how to increase efficiency with the dwindling resources, according to Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough. Federal funding reductions have affected many areas of the district's budget. For example, Flex Focus Fund, which is a state grant that helps fund pre-school, professional development and textbooks, among other items, has been steadily cut since fiscal year

For 50 years, the Myers family has been selling automotive parts to Crittenden County customers. The local NAPA store is celebrating its golden anniversary this month. 50 years of auto parts and tales

STAFF REPORT
For 50 years, the Myers family has had its hand in auto parts. Ronnie Myers, owner and operator of the National Automotive Parts Association (NAPA) store in Marion, is celebrating with his staff the store's golden anniversary this month. It was in 1960 when his father, Louis became manager of the NAPA auto parts store and started a family tradition. The NAPA store first opened behind where Five Star Convenience Center is today. Among its early owners were Jackie and Ti Miller and James McKinney

— thus the former name M&Mac — but Ronnie Myers put his name on the deed in 1982 and now his youngest son, Kyle, is the third generation to work behind the parts counter. Customer service has been the trademark of the business, says Ronnie Myers, who started working at the parts store when he was 12 years old. "It's the only job I ever had," said the 57-year-old owner. His brother, Eddie, has also spent time behind the NAPA counter, putting in about 20 years before he left for other pursuits.

The current staff has been together for quite some time. Kathy Moore has been with Myers Auto Parts for 25 years, Darren Young for 20 years and Kyle Myers five. Tanner Nix, a high school student, handles summertime and after-noon deliveries. The vast majority of their parts are overnighted on a truck that runs from Memphis to Marion. If they can't find what you need there NAPA has about 30-40 other warehouses in the region. Myers says that common parts are in stock and anything else can be there within a day or two. Customer pranks are also part of the equation. Regular customers understand that good-hearted jabs come with their parts. From the noontime hangout for lunch-hour merchants to rendezvous on Saturday mornings after Rocket football games, the stools at NAPA are well worn. Spend a little time at the counter and you might hear the story about how an employee put a chicken snake in Patrolman Tommy Croft's cruiser many years ago or the one about Ronnie get-

C-L Water District proposes fee increases

Crittenden-Livingston Water District has applied to the Public Service Commission to raise several of its fees and charges, effective Aug. 1. However, water rates are not part of the increase. Ronnie Slayden, district superintendent, said most of the district's non-recurring charges need to be increased in order to keep pace with rising costs. Those charges include service calls, connection fees, leak investigation and other maintenance fees. Slayden says that if district equipment is found to be faulty on any of the service calls, the fees are not assessed. A list of the current and proposed fee increases is published on Page 5 in this issue of the newspaper. As part of the request to increase the fees, the PSC requires that the district publish the rate changes in the local newspaper for three weeks. Crittenden-Livingston Water District services about 3,400 residential customers in the two counties. It also supplies wholesale water to Salem, Ledbetter, Smithland and Grand Rivers.

Slayden said the proposed fee increases will generate about $15,000 additional income each year. Currently, the district earns about $30,000 on those fees. From water sales, the district earns about $2 million, according to predictions for this fiscal year. In recent months, district directors had considered raising rates in order to restructure some short-term debt. However, those plans are off the table for now, Slayden said. However, he didn't rule out some type of water rate increase in the not too distant future. Fees have not increased since 2006, he said. Among the most frequent charges are for reconnection fees when someone doesn't pay their water bill and has their service shut off. That fee will go up to $50 during normal work hours or $90 after hours. The new cost to test meters will be $80 if the fee increase is approved by the PSC. Normal connection charges are proposed to increase from $25 to $35.

Don't worry, there's no death in a box for believers

Jesus Himself said it, we do not have to die. When talking to Martha at Lazarus's death, Jesus told her, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die." John 11:26.

Jesus reinstated this truth in John 8:51, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, If a man keep my saying, he shall never see death."

How can this be? Jesus also tells us how, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." John 5:24.

John also tells us, "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death." 1st John 3:14.

Let me explain the 'eths on these words. Three hundred years ago the English translators had it right, which most modern versions leave this valuable truth out. The "eth" on the words live, believe, love and hear makes the words not only present tense (now) but also a future tense (continuing into the future.

"He that liveth and believeth (he that continues to live and believe) in me shall never die."

"He that heareth (continues to hear) my word, etc."

What a wonderful truth. The truly saved do not die, they just leave the body and go into the presence of Jesus. Paul said: "...having a desire to depart, and to be with Christ; which is far better." Phil. 1:23.

Jesus also made that clear when He told the thief on the cross: "Today shalt thou be with me in paradise." Luke 23:43.

Some try to say He did not mean that day, but you have to change the truth to deny He was talking about that day.

What death is Jesus talking about when He said "hath passed from death unto life?" When Paul was talking to the Ephesians he said: "And you hath he quickened (made alive) who were dead in trespasses and sins... even when we were dead in sins, hath made us alive together with Christ, (by grace you are saved) and has raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus." Eph. 2:1,5.

When we are made alive in Jesus from our trespasses and sins, we are resurrected unto life in Him. This is the first resurrection that Rev. 20:5,6 speaks of on which the second death, our physical death has no power.

Paul also says the same to the Colossians: "And you, being dead in your sins... hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses." Colossians 2:13.

So we have eternal life here that lives on as we leave the body and go to be with the Lord.

It is like climbing out of one suit into another. We climb out of this old body that is good for this life, and enter another one that is suited only for that Heavenly World.

It is so sad to see even people who profess Christianity to teach that we are like the cattle, we are only body and we die and are put in the ground and that is the end of us until the end of time and the Resurrection.

What a horrible thing to teach people that we are stuffed into a box and put six feet under, and have to lay there for generations, especially those that are claustrophobic and do not know the Word of God. No wonder so many Christians so fear death.

Those who die in the Lord are resting with Him or asleep with Him and Paul tells us that when Jesus appears in the clouds in His second coming He will bring all those who are already with Him and those who are alive and remain and living in Him will arise to meet them in the clouds, and so shall they ever be with the Lord. 1st Thess. 4:14-17.

As Christians, we are commanded to "Wherefore comfort one another with these words." V. 18.

These truths are so much more comforting than what the grave sleepers teach. No, we won't be in the ground. We will either be with the Lord in Paradise or in torment with the rich man begging for a drop of cold water to touch our tongue because we will be tormented in the flames.

It is all up to each of us, as God offers forgiveness to all who will name their sins to Him in faith and turn the other way (repent) and continue to follow and obey Him. It is truly a wonderful life, here and hereafter.

With gun at head, here are 10 musts to being a good father

Any father who has raised children knows this truth. There is no playbook for raising children that ensures victory. No easy formula, no set rules. In short, no instructions written on the back of each baby to follow in the rearing of a productive, law abiding, and stable human being. All too much, we are aware that there are wonderful parents whose kid doesn't turn out so wonderful. There are also not so wonderful parents who turn out wonderful kids.

And even when a father's head presses the dying pillow, he still doesn't know for certain. As a trial judge, I sent elderly people to prison whose parents have long passed from this world.

If you have raised kids and they are good people – not in prison or dysfunctional – don't slap yourself on the back. Thank the good Lord.

Therefore, it would be presumptuous for any of us to lay claim to any special knowledge as to how to succeed in the most important job any man will ever have.

However, if I had a loaded gun put to my head and commanded to write my own personal guidelines for a father to follow in raising children, here is what I would write.

1. Take your children to church. Many lament the hypocrisy of church members and preachers to rationalize not giving their children haven't stayed married to mom, at least treat the mother of your children the way you would want your mom to be treated. Whether you are still married to mom or not, how you and your children's mom get along will still affect their welfare.

4. Make few rules. Curfews are, of course, a must for teenagers. Other than that, you might get by with the commandment, "Do what you are told." That should about cover it.
5. Enforce the rules no matter what.
6. Ask one question of your child each day. I don't mean the old stale inquiry, "How was your day?" Instead, ask something that requires your child to think, reflect, and verbalize. "What did you talk about in history today?" is a little better. This not only requires your child to communicate a little, but a lot of times it gives you an idea of where your child has been all day mentally. If your child seems to be remote and adrift, send him or her to their room and require them to write down five things that they believe in. It will tell you more about your child than a thousand hours of counseling.
7. Say grace at meals. Every child in America should be thankful.
8. Share one meal each day. For most of us men, this will require some strict attention to rule number three. The mother of my children deserves a medal and a pension for her devotion to this cause.

9. Suffer in silence. This (outside of banning TV) may be the toughest rule to follow. This is especially true with school-age children. There will be injustices and slights imposed upon your children by well-meaning teachers, principals, and coaches from the first day they enter school. Unless they are major eruptions in your child's life, never pass up an opportunity to keep your mouth shut. Children must learn early that life is not always just, fair or enjoyable. The younger they learn to cope with this on their own, the better. If there are unfair teachers and coaches, there will be unfair employers and laws they will have to follow as grown men and women. And here's a brutal truth. Most times when dealing with disagreements with school bosses, your child will be in the wrong. Don't be an enabler. It bears bitter fruit later when it's drugs and sex instead of playing time on the team or a bad grade in Algebra.
10. Teach by example. When all is said and done, "Values are caught, more than taught." And be careful what you say. Don't pass your prejudices along to your children.

dren. For instance, we would have all been better off if previous generations of parents in the South had carried their racist views unspoken to their graves.

So there you have it. You can now take the gun away from my head.

Being a father is the most important job any man will ever have. If you're not a father, you are still a father figure to many youngsters in your community. All men will tell you that they have been strongly influenced by men other than their fathers.

So, Father's Day should be a day when all men, whether they have children of their own or not, should rededicate themselves to being the very best they can be.

There is a picture on my wall at home of the great, late baseball announcer Jack Buck. It is inscribed to my children, but is an apt instruction to all men everywhere.

"Good, better, best. Forget all the rest. First be good. Then be better. But don't quit 'till you're the best." Happy Father's Day!

Letters to the Editor

Here's rest of the cattle story

To the Editor:

In 1977, W.J. Rhea bought a farm from the David Tharkel family. Bobby Rhea and his family moved in, put new fences all the way around the farm, fixed the ponds, stocked them, leveled the land, planted clover, hay, grass and so on.

Then we went to our neighbor, David Lynn Loveless, and asked if he would put up half of the fence between his farm and ours. He agreed to. Now, had this happened the cows would not have gotten out. Instead, for years we got ours off his property and his off ours. Then our neighbor sold his cattle, sold hay and told people they could drive across our field to haul the hay out, never offering to fix the ruts, never checking to see if a gap had been closed. Children and their friends were allowed to ride four-wheelers and dirt bikes across our fields, to fish in our ponds, to borrow gas from our tanks. No gas or fish were replaced. Every day it was something – a favor – and we never complained. Then our neighbor gave Bob a rusty, old stock trailer with no floor, to get it out of his way because he had no cattle and use for it. Bob replaced the floor and did some other work on it. This is the stock trailer Loveless claimed in court that he loaned to Bob six years ago. Last year, our neighbor rented spots to hunters. The spots were on our property and the other neighbors. I don't think anyone was asked. That is when the problem really started about the fence and the cows.

If you're a cattle farmer, you know cows will get out. Twenty-five out in 13 years, I think, is pretty good.

Our neighbor asked Bob for the hunting rights to his property. Bob told him no. A week later, there were a few cows on him. Our neighbor came to the house around 10 p.m., opened our door, walked in our bedroom and told

Bob he was going to sue unless he got the hunting right. Bob told him to leave. Four to five days later, a few more cows were on our neighbor again, strange after all these years. Nevertheless, the police were called, who told Bob they saw no damage. The cows were put in a back field, behind a gate which has been opened three times in the past two weeks. Now you know the rest of the story on cattle at large.

If our neighbor would spend more time at his other home out of state and put his money into fences and property like a good Christian would maybe life would be easier.

Shame on you! And shame on other neighbors who have spoken to us three times in 13 years then go to court picking on a 68-year-old man. It doesn't surprise me. And you wonder why we do not attend church in this small town?

Sharon Markham,
Marion, Ky.

Editor's Note: This letter was submitted in response to an article previously published after Mr. Rhea was convicted in Crittenden District Court of allowing cattle to run at large.

Swish played until the whistle blew

I thought my buddy Bob Swisher would be around forever. His smile and stories will certainly last even though he's gone from our midst. Swisher passed away last week in Paducah. He was 82.

"Swish" was well known in sports circles throughout the region. He was somewhat of a star. He'd been calling ballgames, as he put it, since the 1940s.

Swisher had already defeated cancer when I first got to know him while I was a sports writer at The Paducah Sun. After his bout with prostate cancer, Swisher set out to raise money for the American Cancer Society. Largely due to his efforts, the Sports Against Cancer series of events were started in western Kentucky. In the end, it was something other than cancer that took him. Doctors still aren't sure, but it sounds like what grandma called old age.

Swisher's voice was synonymous with Paducah athletics, especially Tilghman football and basketball.

He grew up in Marion not too far from where I am typing this article. When we launched the Marion-Crittenden County Football Hall of Fame in the 1990s, Swisher was a driving force behind its early credibility. He had played football on some of Marion High School's legendary teams in the mid 1940s. A two-way player at halfback and defensive back, Swisher was a senior on the 1945 Marion Terrors that finished 7-1. He was inducted into what is now the Farmers Bank Crittenden County Athletics Hall of Fame in 2000 and served as a director and member of the selection committee until his death.

I owe a great debt to Bob Swisher. He was always among the first calls I'd make when there was a need for history. He was a great resource. He had a mind like a steel trap and he'd tell you if he was embellishing a story.

"Swish" was my buddy and I will miss him dearly. What I admired most about Bob was his grit and enthusiasm for life, even in its fourth quarter. Age may have set him back in recent years, but it never got him down. He played until the whistle blew.

Jada Breeann Cruce has graduated as salutatorian from Castle High School in Newburgh, Ind. She earned the Legacy Scholarship and a Presidential Scholarship from the University of Kentucky where she plans to study biosystems engineering.

Cruce is the daughter of David Cruce of Henderson and JoEllen Sobotka of Newburgh, Ind. She is the granddaughter of Richard and Betty Cruce of Marion.

Suggs earns masters from Murray State

Howard Suggs, a teacher at Crittenden County High School, earned his master's degree in school administration from Murray State University. The degree was conferred following the spring semester.

Agencies cooperate to coat trail

STAFF REPORT

Three government agencies are chipping in $1,200 apiece to seal coat the 1.25-mile walking trail at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

The City of Marion, Crittenden County Fiscal Court and Marion-Crittenden County Park Board are each participating in the project.

Crider Seal Coating will do the work at a cost of $3,550.

The walking trail was built more than five years ago around the 54-acre park.

Judge-Executive Fred Brown said it is developing some structural cracks, which if sealed now, should prevent any long-term damage to the trail.

Clements featured on KET program

Dave Shuffett, three-time Emmy nominee, host of KET's Kentucky Life, rockhound and friend of the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum, is the producer and host of a documentary entitled "Father Loss, How Sons Of All Ages Come To Terms With The Deaths Of Their Dads." The production airs nationally on PBS/KET, at 7 p.m., Saturday.

Ed Clement and his father Ben are featured in that television special. The local mineral museum is named for the late Ben Clement, who was a local geologist during the fluorspar era.

Veggies earn spot in Kentucky Monthly

Fresh vegetable dishes from one of Marion's own cooks grace the pages of the June/July issue of Kentucky Monthly. The magazine, which features all things Kentucky, contains a food segment from Paula Cunningham of McClanahan Publishing in Kuttawa. This month's recipes are from the files of Marion's Susan Yarbrough.

Recipes for Fresh Corn Casserole, Green Beans, Hot Onion Souffle Appetizer, Country Ham and Asparagus Tartlets and Summer Fruit Crisp are just a few of those featured by Kentucky Monthly.

Yarbrough and her husband Joe often find new recipes while attending cooking schools and while traveling in the South.

Wildlife commission establishes early migratory hunting seasons

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission, at its quarterly meeting June 11, proposed to the General Assembly the 2010-2011 early migratory bird season dates. The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commission recommends all hunting, fishing and boating regulations for approval by the General Assembly and approves all expenditures by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. All recommendations must be approved by legislators before they become law.

Early Migratory Bird Seasons

Dove
Sept. 1 – Oct. 24
Nov. 25 – Dec. 3
Jan. 1 – Jan. 7
Canada Goose
Sept. 4 – 12
Wood Duck and Teal
Sept. 15 – 19
American Woodcock
Oct. 16 – Nov. 29
Virginia and Sora Rail, Common Moorhen and Purple Gallinule
Sept. 1 – Nov. 9
Common Snipe
Sept. 15 – Oct. 31
Nov. 25 – Jan. 23

Season lengths and bag

limits remain the same as last year.

The commission also proposed extending the spring squirrel season dates. Under the proposal, the spring squirrel season would open on the third Saturday in May and close the third Friday in June. Previously, the season opened on the first Saturday in June.

The commission also recommended removing the restriction on shot size for hunters using shotguns to hunt furbearers such as coyotes. Previously, furbearer hunters could not use buckshot to take these species.

On shooting ranges on wildlife management areas, the commission barred certain weapons and ammunition from use. Users of shooting ranges on wildlife management area cannot use cannons, artillery or replicas of these weapons, mortars, grenades, incendiary bullets, explosive devices or explosive bullets. They cannot fire shotgun slugs larger than 10-gauge or modern firearm bullets with more than 500 grains of powder. They also may not use muzzleloader balls larger than .78 caliber, rifles that are not shoulder-mounted or pistols that are not handheld. The commission proposed these changes to reduce damages to the shooting range caused by these weapons and for safety reasons.

Cutter Singleton, 3, of Marion recently caught his first fish with help from Papaw Roger Paulson in a farm pond.

Anticipatory grief is normal, but serious

Anticipatory Grief: When you know someone is going to die, but you don't know when Upon learning your mother has Alzheimer's disease or you have terminal cancer, you may find yourself feeling hollow over a loss that has not yet occurred. The anxiety and dread you feel is a normal reaction to the anticipation of loss. What you are feeling is called anticipatory grief. Anticipatory grief is normal mourning that occurs when you or someone you care about is expected to die. Depending on the illness, such grief could last from months to many years. The slow decline can be a heavy burden.

A whirl of emotions surrounds anticipatory grief because you know and come to expect that a person you care about is going to die. You do not know when, nor do you have control over when, the death will take place. People also suffer with thoughts and anxiety about what they will feel like when the person they care about is gone. Such suspense is agonizing – it torments you and overwhelms your thoughts. Anticipatory grief has many of the same symptoms of grief experienced after a death has occurred. Such symptoms include:

- feeling disconnected and alone
- depression
- weight loss
- sleeping problems
- nervous behaviors
- fatigue
- denial
- mood swings
- forgetfulness

- disorganized and confused behavior
- anger
- bouts of crying

In tune to a society that teaches us to be quiet about our grief, and so as to not upset anyone, many individuals hold back their overwhelming emotions in order to be "strong." Holding back feelings and pain depletes energy and leaves a person even more exhausted and unable to handle the cards that have been dealt.

To heal and move forward, it is very important to face anticipatory grief. Healing will involve a process that takes self-honesty and soul searching. One way to face grief is by allowing yourself to cry. Tears can be an emotional release. Tears can also help bring people together as crying often evolves into sharing your story with others, and they with you. Keeping a journal to track your thoughts and feelings is another way to face your grief. Journaling helps you identify what you feel and may make it easier to tell someone about your experience. If you do not have a friend with whom you can talk, there are church leaders, health care workers, counselors, and support group facilitators and participants who will lend a caring ear.

Pulling from your own inner strengths can be a powerful mechanism for healing. Use your intelligence, skills, and hobbies to your advantage and prepare yourself for the variations in intensity of your emotions as you prepare to move forward.

Anticipatory grief symptoms are a big deal. Taking charge of your symptoms today will help you be better prepared for the road to come. The source for this article was Amy F. Hosier, Extension Specialist for Human Development, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Diabetes awareness is crucial

Submitted by Nancy Hunt

Individuals with diabetes, family members of people with diabetes and friends attended the nine-hour diabetes self-management education class held June 1 at the Ed-Tech Center.

Kelly Dawes, RN, BSN, CDE and health educator of the Pennyryle District Health Department, taught the class along with Crissy Carter, MS, RD, LD and Director of Community, Wellness and Nutritional Services Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services, Inc.

The free class was designed to help individuals to be better informed about diabetes by using the "ABCs of Diabetes" curriculum developed by the Kentucky Diabetes State Program.

Information included how important it is to monitor blood sugar, eating properly to control fluctuating blood sugars and medications that are needed.

"I have attended three diabetes awareness classes over the years and this was the most informative," said Micki Crider, a participant in the class.

Why is diabetes becoming more common? According to the Kentucky Diabetes Prevention and Control Program it is related to the high rates of obesity and low rates of physical activity. In addition, individuals with high blood pressure or high cholesterol are at an increased risk for developing diabetes.

Diabetes can be controlled with diet, exercise and medication, including insulin therapy.

Twenty-three local residents took advantage of the diabetes self management education class sponsored by the Pennyryle District Health Department, Livingston Hospital and the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service. Sponsoring groups were represented by (from left) Nancy Hunt, Crittenden County Extension Service; Kelly Dawes, District Health Department; and Crissy Carter, Livingston Hospital.

It was noted that the more a diabetic knows and understands the condition the better equipped they will be to live with the condition, which is on the rise in the United States.

According to a 2007 report from the Kentucky Institute of Medicine, seven percent of the population in Crittenden County has been diagnosed with diabetes. It is also becoming more prevalent among younger adults.

"We know it was a long day but we tried the one-day program in hopes of getting more younger adults. It is hard to get audiences for programs spread over three to four weeks. We hoped people might miss one day of work and get all the information instead of having to come back several times," Dawes said.

Nancy Hunt, County Extension Agent for Family & Consumer Sciences, says her office has seen an increase in the number of requests for information on diabetes over the past year.

"We encourage everyone with diabetes to work with their doctor and a registered dietician on their meal plan and recommendations for exercise. The Extension Service can provide free information to help with meal preparation, recipes, and ways to have a healthier lifestyle," Hunt said.

In Kentucky, about 57 percent of adults have been tested for diabetes in the past three years. Of those, eight percent have been diagnosed as having "pre-diabetes," meaning that their blood sugar levels are above normal, but not yet high enough to be considered diabetes.

"Being diagnosed with pre-diabetes means taking action instead of ignoring it. Watching diet and starting an exercise program can make a huge difference in blood sugar levels as I personally know," Hunt said.

"When I was diagnosed with pre-diabetes in February, I immediately started reading everything about it from reputable sources. I found great material from the Extension Service, American Diabetes Association and UK Health Care. Afterwards, I started out with a small walking program and writing down everything I ate."

"For the rest of my life I know I will have to continue to monitor my blood sugar levels, exercise and make healthier food choices. I want to be around and be healthy to see my future grandchildren," Hunt said.

The Extension Service plans to partner with the Pennyryle District Health Department in the future on other diabetes classes.

"We would like to have a luncheon program focusing on pre-diabetes later in the summer and we are looking for other groups to help sponsor," Hunt said.

The Crittenden County Extension Office is currently located at 112 W. Carlisle Street and will be moving in July to 1534 U.S. 60 East.

Dawes, a registered dietician, can be contacted through the Crittenden County Health Department at 965-5215 for diabetes counseling.

Piney Fork camp remembered fondly

Rev. James F. Price was a past noted historian, greatly loved minister of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church and also a gifted writer. He wrote many historical articles about Crittenden County, its schools, churches and people. In 1936, he compiled several historical articles about these different items and they were published in The Crittenden Press. This article is about the old historical camp meetings that were held at Piney Fork Church. He wrote about events he witnessed and took part in, which is what makes this article so great.

Piney Fork Church Camp Meetings

The Camp meetings at Piney Fork began in 1812 and still continue. (The camp meetings were still going on during the time Rev. Price wrote this article). With a few exceptions they have been held every year since. It is reasonable to presume that more annual camp meetings have been held on Piney Fork hill than any other place in the world; those meeting having commenced at this place soon after their origin and continued almost successively. Thousands have been converted on this sacred hill, and the shouts of the redeemed have seemed to make the dome of heaven ring.

We have no record of many of those earliest meetings, but it was not uncommon for them to have 100 professions of faith at a meeting.

In 1865 an excellent meeting was held. There were 40 professions this year. Who assisted in this meeting is unknown, possibly Rev. Thomas Young, as he was a great evangelist, and we know that he was in meetings at Piney Fork.

Nearly all of the most noted ministers of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in the last 50 years of its history attended these camp meetings and preached with great power.

We know that Finis Ewing preached here and possibly Samuel King. Many of these pioneer preachers were endowed with excellent voices.

At the earliest camp meetings occurred many cases of the remarkable phenomena so general during the great revival of 1800 and widely known as the "jerks," of jerking exercises.

These bodily agitations were very violent and wholly involuntary. No state of culture, nor position in the church, was exempt from them. A staid old minister of the Presbyterian Church once took "jerks" sitting in the pulpit, and in his violent agitations, his wig flew from his head and fell in the midst of the congregation.

One's head would be thrown backward and then brought forward so suddenly that the long hair of women, when loosened by the agitations, would pop like a whip cracker.

Some fell as if dead. Some were seized with spasms of convulsions and were thrown backward and forward in a way frightful to behold, yet it was perfectly useless to try to prevent these physical exercises.

Some of high rank and polite manners would find themselves wallowing in the straw. Some would be thrown into visions and trances. Sometimes they would lie for hours in a state of apparently suspended animation. And yet, after coming out of this state, they would speak of their minds having been uncommonly active and that visions of beauty and glory passed in review before them.

The writer (Rev. Price) has seen two cases of these "jerks" and witnessed a number of cases of trances.

The singing at these old-time camp meetings was spiritual and powerful. They sang the old standard hymns, such as "Amazing Grace," "How Firm a Foundation," "Did Christ O'er Sinner Weep" and "Jesus Lover of My Soul." They also sang many other choruses with great power, such

The shed for the Piney Fork Church camp meetings was re-built in 1886 after the 1867 building was destroyed. The building was designed to seat 1,000. It was torn down in 1970 after extensive damage was done to the roof by winter snowfall. The pulpit that was used in the building is in the Crittenden Historical Museum. The logs used to build the shed were cut from the Henry Brown Farm and hauled to the sawmill by Jim Bug.

as, "A great Camp-Ceeting Over Yonder."

After the camp meeting had closed, so continuous and powerful was the singing that the songs would seem to ring in ones' ears for a week. While some would go to the camps and retire at night, others would be singing over the penitents until late in the night.

Another peculiar feature of these camp meetings was the powerful conviction of sinners. Strong men and full-grown women would fall prostrate in the straw, weeping and crying for mercy.

Camp meetings usually would last only five or six days, but the services were intensive. Every morning before breakfast they would have prayer at the camp. As soon as breakfast was over and the dishes washed, they retired to the secret grove for prayer, the men going in one direction and the women in another.

The pastor, like a commanding officer, would pass around to see that everyone who could leave the camps was gone to the secret grove. If he found careless groups of Christians in idle conversation he would direct them at once to the secret grove and his order was usually obeyed.

At 9 a.m., they would assemble at the shed for prayer meeting, where ringing songs and earnest prayers filled the hour. In earlier days they would begin the preaching at 10 a.m., and have two sermons in succession, followed meeting." As Christians, young and old, would relate their trials and victories in the Christian life, every eye would be moistened with tears and every heart drawn near to God.

When the brethren would break camp on the last day of the meeting, with their wagons packed with beds and utensils they had brought with them for the meeting, they would assemble at the shed for the "camp holders service," while the loaded wagons would stand in a circle around the old shed.

The parting words would be said, the parting tears be shed, the last hearty hand shake be given and then the teams drawing the families would wind their way in different directions toward their various homes.

Piney Fork is a name sacred to Cumberland Presbyterians; indeed, it may be said, sacred to all Christians who visited these annual meetings and have seen the power of God so marvelously displayed. Thousands claim this as their spiritual birthplace.

Mr. W.A. Dean, of Tulsa, Okla., after reading Rev. Price's history of the camp meetings, wrote the following poem about Piney Fork Camp Meetings:

*Old Piney Camp Ground,
what a picture and screen
As time takes us backward and points to the scene.
There's the brick meeting house and the old-fashioned shed
And the sloping hillside where are sleeping the dead.
There are groves all around,
dedicated by prayer,
The spring in the distance and creeks everywhere.
See the hill and the bluff as the picture goes by,
And the choir-haunted valley
where the South winds sign.
Where else in the world,
in prairie or wood,
Is there less of the bad and more of the good
Than we see in that picture
in memory bound,
A long living picture of Piney
Camp Ground.*

They would squeal like pigs, quack like ducks, gobble like turkeys, crow like roosters or all of these sounds intermingled, until some of the elderly men, the committee on order, or regulators, as they were sometimes called, would go to the shed and settle the young men.

On Monday morning they usually held their "experience

Former sheriff reflects about changes in county

STAFF REPORT

James D. Wheeler worked as Crittenden County Sheriff for four years from 1970-74 and county clerk for eight years from 1974-82, and the 80-year-old Crittenden native loved every minute of it.

"I love people. I can't remember who said, 'I never met anyone I didn't like' I suppose haven't either, but I did find I like some more than others," Wheeler joked of his 12 years of service to the county.

Wheeler left county service about 28 years ago for his car dealership. And since then, a lot has changed, according to him.

On the top of the change list is money.

Wheeler commends both the sheriff's office and the circuit clerk's office for the money they revenue every year.

"I think we have a great county clerk, even if she is a Republican," Wheeler said with a wink and chuckle.

When Wheeler was at the helm, he hired five women for the office: Maudie Summers, Rozella Gough, Evelyn Elder, Judy Cosby and his wife of 63 years, Patty Wheeler.

In the 70s, Wheeler said he only had $5,500 left after paying the expenses. Also, the sheriff's office had to furnish all of its own vehicles then, whereas now they're supplied.

Wheeler

"Sheriff was the toughest job I believe I ever had," Wheeler said.

Now Wheeler is as busy as ever. He takes pride in his 1968 John Deere lawn mower, which he fixed and cleaned up and got operational again.

To continue to stay busy, Wheeler bought a house on Walker Street in Marion at an auction recently, which he plans to repair and sell.

"I don't know why I did it. I don't like to just sit, I like to stay busy," Wheeler explained of his newest project. "It's going to be a long process, but I'm in no hurry."

HAVING MORE RETIREMENT ACCOUNTS IS NOT THE SAME AS HAVING MORE MONEY.

When it comes to the number of retirement accounts you have, the saying "more is better" is not necessarily true. In fact, if you hold multiple accounts with various brokers, it can be difficult to keep track of your investments and to see if you're moving toward your goals. At the very least, multiple accounts usually mean multiple fees.

To learn why consolidating your retirement accounts to Edward Jones makes sense, call today.

Work on bridge will continue to limit traffic

Motorists are reminded that deck rehabilitation work on the U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge in Livingston County is scheduled to continue through Aug. 15. There are some delays and load restrictions impacting large trucks and farm equipment.

Monday through Friday, 6 a.m. to 6 p.m., the bridge will be restricted to a maximum lane travel width of 10 feet. At all other times, the bridge will be restricted to a maximum travel width of 7.5 feet. The restrictions will prevent trucks and farm equipment over 10 feet wide from crossing the bridge during the day. At night, the work zone will essentially be restricted to passenger vehicles and emergency vehicles only.

Marion department busy in 7-day flurry of city home fires

Marion Fire Department has been busy the last couple of weeks. During a seven-day period ending early Monday morning, the station responded to three house fires in the city.

The last was a mobile home just off North Main Street after midnight Sunday. When firemen arrived, they found that the owner of the stripped down mobile home had purposely set the blaze to structure. Firemen extinguished the blaze. The trailer was owned by Jackie Jones.

At 12:15 a.m., Friday, firemen responded to a house fire on South Main Street next to the new coin laundry. The Fletcher home was gutted by fire before it could be extinguished. The fire started in the kitchen area.

The previous Monday morning about 4 a.m., firemen were called to a mobile home blaze on Redbird Court. That fire was put out before it destroyed the mobile home. The cause remains under investigation. It was a rental unit owned by Willard Easley.

Parking lot wreck leads to charges

A Marion woman was charged with DUI after police found her pickup literally stuck to another vehicle's bumper, which it had rammed in the parking lot east of old city hall last Wednesday night.

When tested following the wreck, the driver, Amanda J. Kennedy, 28, had a blood alcohol content of .228, according to police reports. That's almost three times the legal limit for a driver.

Police reports say that Kennedy crashed into a utility trailer, a stack of bricks and a parked vehicle that belongs to Mike Wheeler. There was also some minor damage to two buildings, according to Police Chief Ray O'Neal.

Seniors can get free food, over 30 pounds

Senior citizens who qualify for the new USDA Seniors Supplemental Food Program can receive free food, which includes peanut butter, canned vegetables, noodles, pasta, cheese spread and more.

A Crittenden County man was injured Sunday afternoon when his three-wheel motorcycle was clipped by a combine on Ky. 295 south of Dycusburg. Larry Smith of Yandell Mine Road was on the motorcycle. He was thrown from the bike and suffered a leg injury. The name of the farmer driving the combine was not available at press time. This was the second injury-accident involving farm equipment and a motorist in Crittenden County in the past month. Smith was flown from the scene by PHI air ambulance.

In May, the local Senior Center received 125 boxes of food weighing more than 30 pounds each. Only 58 boxes were distributed.

Mona Manley, director of the PACS Senior Center, said people 60 years older who meet certain income criteria can apply for the free food. Those who did not receive a box in May, can get two in June.

June 30 is the distribution date for this month, but if you didn't register in May, call the Senior Center for more information.

Talent show winner releases first video

America's Got Talent winner Kevin Skinner has released his first music video last week. The video has been added to the cable-TV country music channel's rotation beginning with CMT Pure Country.

The video was made in Skinner's hometown Mayfield at the home of one of his relatives. The singer's single, "Like It's the Last Goodbye" was released to radio stations May 24.

Prescription drug program continues

A program to eliminate the county of outdated or unwanted prescription drugs continues. The Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community is sponsoring the collection, along with local law enforcement agencies. Pills can be dropped off at the Crittenden County Sheriff's Department during normal business hours Monday through Friday or at the Marion Police Department weekdays between the hours of 7 a.m., and 3 p.m.

Stolen, stripped bike found in area creek

A Harley-Davidson stolen from the Hog Rock Motorcycle Rally in Cave In Rock, Ill., was found in a creek near the Crittenden-Webster County line Monday.

Crittenden County Deputy Greg Rushing was alerted by a motorist who saw two men in a light blue pickup throw the remnants of a motorcycle into the creek, which is a tributary of the Tradewater River.

Rushing found identifying numbers on the bike, which had been totally stripped of most of its parts, including the engine and transmission.

"The only thing that was left was the frame, rear wheel and rear fender," Rushing said.

The bike was identified as a 1977 model belonging to Mike Baker of Crofton. Illinois authorities are handling the theft investigation. Rushing said the motorcycle was stolen from the rally site sometime late Saturday night.

The pickup seen by a motorist at the site of the bike's recovery was traveling toward Marion. If anyone has information, Rushing asks that you call the sheriff's office at 965-3400.

Other than the recovery of the stolen motorcycle, local authorities say there were no other issues arising from the increased amount of biker traffic through the county last week and weekend.

At the rally, there were some problems. An Indiana man is accused of cutting another man's throat and stabbing a woman. Hardin County prosecutors charged 39-year-old Keith Craig of Evansville, Ind., man with one count of attempted murder and two counts of aggravated battery.

Investigators say the altercation happened Sunday near the main concession area. A bystander also was treated for burns he suffered during the fight when he was pushed onto a pot of boiling water.

Statewide, three people died in motorcycle accidents. It's unclear if any of those were related to the rally.

Judge-Executive Fred Brown did report marrying a couple that was in the area for the bike rendezvous across the river. He said that's not uncommon. Last year, the judge, who has powers to unite men and women in marriage, helped two other couples tie the knot.

Mother scheduled for arraignment in child's death

STAFF REPORT

The mother of a four-year-old Crittenden County preschool student killed in a single-vehicle automobile wreck in December was scheduled to be arraigned in Livingston Circuit Court this week.

Andrea N. Crain, 25, of Lola was indicted in April by a Livingston County Grand Jury on one count of second-degree manslaughter; DUI, first offense; and possession of an open alcoholic beverage container in a motor vehicle.

According to police reports, Crain was under the influence of alcohol, opiates, marijuana and barbiturates when she crashed her car into a concrete bridge abutment near Joy in rural Livingston County at 10:30 p.m., Dec. 2, 2009.

Her son, Damien Crain, died on impact, according to authorities. The vehicle, they said, was ripped in two.

Crain is currently out of jail on bond.

If convicted of the manslaughter charge, a Class C felony, the mother could serve 5-10 years in prison. The DUI charge carries a fine of $200 to $500 and from four to 30 days in jail.

PARTS

ting balled out for the price of his parts even after delivering the $7.80 engine belt to a stranded motorist at Rosebud in the middle of a wet and foggy night. Then there was the time a guy came to Myers' home twice, the second time at nearly midnight, wanting only a lug nut. A few bikers left him a cold check, too, after he'd spent three hours helping them get all their parts installed using his own tools in the parking lot of a nearby grocery store.

Those memories are not all good, but they're still fun to talk about.

"Ninety-nine percent of the people we deal with are wonderful and that's what keeps us coming back doing this day after day," says Myers.

Of course you can't catch Ronnie at the shop mid-afternoon. That's his regular tee time at the local golf course. Like the NAPA parts business in Marion, some things never change.

The free community shred day coordinated by the Crittenden County Extension Council collected 6,476 pounds of paper Friday in the City Hall parking lot. This was the fourth year for the event in which Extension partners with Piranha Mobile Shredding of Evansville. Magistrate Dan Wood (center) brought a container full of papers for shredding to the event and was assisted by Extension Council volunteer Melissa Tabor and Joe Beck from Piranha. Shred day is a project of the County Extension Council which wants to help people prevent identify theft and encourage recycling. Some participants reported bringing cancelled checks and medical records over 50 years old and were grateful this type of service is available annually.

CUTS

2007. In FY 07 the account included $305,916, in FY 10 which is just ending – it dropped to $172,146. For the upcoming fiscal year there will be another three-percent reduction, bringing the amount down to $166,120.89.

"The Flex Focus fund is a good example of other sources to supplement education that continues to diminish," Yarbrough said. "It's been a challenging time in the last three years. You have to be as resourceful and efficient as possible, especially in small districts like ours, that don't see growth in student numbers."

The resource efficiency team didn't just cut jobs to save money, buildings were shut down over the holidays to save almost $30,000 in energy costs, which is equivalent to a teacher's salary, according to Yarbrough.

As far as staffing cuts go, class sizes will not be affected. The average size of classes in Crittenden County has been at the maximum that the state allows and that won't change, Yarbrough said.

"We're going to have to find a balance between getting work done and streamlining resources," the superintendent said. "If we find more hours are needed, we'll make sure we'll be able to respond."

The elimination of one position in the high school art department attracted attention from students, parents and Crittenden County alumni.

Terri Sauer was CCHS' fine arts and graphic arts teacher. Her replacement, Tammy Duvall, who was a Pathway Academy teacher, was repositioned as a graphic arts and technical education teacher at the middle and high schools. Duvall, however, isn't qualified to teach fine arts, only graphic arts.

At a recent school board meeting, Amelia Gilley, a sophomore at CCHS, presented the board with a petition containing 157 signatures of students, parents and CCHS alumni to save the art program. Her petition, which she read aloud to the board, covered the positive aspects of having a fine arts outlet in students' educational options.

Discipline, enthusiasm, self expression, communication, cultural and historical understanding, cooperative decision making and imagination were among many personality traits Gilley's letter highlighted as positive outcomes of involvement with the fine art program.

The school board didn't make the decision lightly, according Yarbrough, who also commended Gilley on the way she went about voicing her opinion.

"We realize art has been an important part of education for Crittenden County students and keeping it as an option for students is important. It's a way for kids who are gifted in art to stay connected in school," Yarbrough said. "The high school administration is looking at a variety of possibilities."

One plan is to find a teacher with an art minor and get him or her an emergency certification to take over the visual art classes.

While there is no definite decision as of now, Yarbrough said she hopes there will be a visual art option by the start of the upcoming school year.

In addition to Sauer's contract, six other teachers' contracts were not renewed for the 2010-11 school year. Glenna Rich, CCHS chemistry teacher; Jared Brown, alternative school staff; Denise Lynn, CCES teacher; Kelli Payne, CCMS social studies teacher; Kathy Maynard, CCES instructional assistant, and Linda Fortune, CCES instructional assistant, will not be returning.

The majority of job cuts, transfers and reductions of responsibilities in conjunction with Pathway Academy and alternative education are due to funding reductions, Yarbrough said.

Todd Merrick and Kathryn Turner will assume different positions in the school system, as well. Merrick will leave his position as CCHS principal and teach middle school social studies, while Turner will move from Family Resource and Youth Services Center (FRYSC) director to Alternative Learning Center director.

The high school principal's job should be filled by the end of June, school officials said.

Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) - the highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) - the level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no Below Detection Level (BDL) - laboratory analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.	If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. Your local public water system is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials contained in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has drinking water testing kits, and states you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline at

Porter, Quisenberry sign letters of intent

Quisenberry to play softball at Rend Lake

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

After being a seven-year letterman and playing varsity softball since the sixth grade, recent Crittenden County graduate Sammie Jo Quisenberry has signed a letter of intent to continue her collegiate career at Rend Lake Junior College in Ina, Ill.

After visiting the school a few months ago, the former Lady Rocket hurler was impressed by the campus and the politeness she was shown by the people around the softball program.

"He treated me like I was already one of his own," Quisenberry said, referring to Rend Lake head coach Dave Ellingsworth.

Having played on a summer traveling team based out of Evansville, Ind., for the past four years, the former Lady Rocket hurler has already been teammates with one of her future college teammates.

After taking up the sport in fourth grade and joining the varsity ranks a short two years later, the successful hurler thought she might have a shot at the collegiate level while watching her older sister Jessica, who was also a former Lady Rocket pitcher.

"I just knew I had a lot of work to put into it," said the recent Crittenden County High School graduate.

While believing she has been a hard worker in the sport for several years, Quisenberry acknowledges that her work ethic will have to increase even more when her college softball career begins next season.

She also knows it will be tougher to juggle being a college athlete and finding time for the most important thing she is there for – academics.

"I don't think I will have any problems," she said.

Quisenberry lists signing a college scholarship and qualifying for the Second Region Tournament in her senior season as a Lady Rocket as the two biggest achievements of her athletic career.

Besides her, the Rend Lake coaching staff recruited two other pitchers for next season. However, she believes that she will get the opportunity to compete for a starting role her freshman year.

Ellingsworth has also informed the former Lady Rocket that she could see some action at second base.

"I'm just so versatile in every position," she said.

Porter to play baseball at North Central Missouri

While taking up baseball before he even started kindergarten, little did recent Crittenden County graduate Alex Porter realize that it would eventually lead to a college scholarship years down the road.

Back in April, the former Rocket center fielder went to North Central, Missouri Junior College located in Trenton, Mo. for a workout.

He enjoyed the campus and its surroundings and made the choice to begin his collegiate baseball career there.

"I wanted to go there because it is a Division 1 junior college," Porter said.

While loving the sport right when he took it up, the five-year varsity letterman had no idea that he would one day be signing a college scholarship.

"Really, I never thought I would be a collegiate player," said the longtime Rocket varsity center fielder.

But as he began to play for the Wolf-pack team in sixth-eighth grades coached by his father, Jeff, and Vince Clark, Porter began to believe he could attain that level through hard work and dedication.

While playing in a junior varsity game his eighth-grade year, Porter remembers a tremendous catch he made in center field that caught the attention of former Rocket baseball coach Denis Hodge.

Hodge believed it was such a great catch that he gave the young eighth grader a promotion to the varsity level and Porter never looked back.

In the next five years, Porter would be a part of 75 wins, three Fifth District Tournament titles, one Class A Second Region Championship and a pair of wins in the Second Region Tournament.

He said North Central coach Donnie Hillerman has informed him that he will play either left or right field at that level. Although being a regular in center field for the Rockets, Porter does not believe it will be a problem switching outfield positions.

In addition, the Bears lost some outfielders to graduation and one will not be returning for his sophomore season, so the former Rocket believes he stands a great chance of competing for a starting role next year.

He lists speed and strength as the two areas he needs to improve before starting his freshman year in Trenton.

He thanked several of his high school coaches including Hodge, Clark, Nathan McDowell, Bryce Winders and Jered Myers for helping him succeed in the sport he began to love as a mere toddler.

"They've been a really big influence on me. They've always seem to push me to do bigger and better things," said Porter.

Rocket Special Olympics team wins at state

The Crittenden County Rockets Special Olympics Team competed at the state level at Eastern Kentucky University June 4-5. The team brought home four gold medals, three silver medals, five bronze medals, as well as two first place ribbons and one second place ribbon for an art contest sponsored by Special Olympics Kentucky. Pictured above are members of the team (front from left) Mason Ryan, Brittany Lemon; (middle) Tahla Trail, Mandy McConnell, Amber Notestine; (back) David Walker, Wesley Cox and Amanda Collins. The team would like to thank all individuals and groups who contributed to help make the trip to state possible.

Challenger Soccer Camp

Some of Crittenden County's youth soccer players participated in the Challenger Soccer Camp last week. On the last day, the campers dressed up their two coaches in eccentric outfits and cheered them on as they completed in a coaches challenge.

MSU hitting clinic

Five young baseball players from Marion attended the Murray State Youth Hitting Clinic last week for players ages 9-10. The boys learned hitting basics, from stance to swing. Attending were (front from left) Ryan Belt, Will Tolley, Bobby Glen Stephens (second row) Trent Champion, Adam Beavers and Murray State assistant coach Dan Skirka and Murray State head coach Rob McDonald.

Josh Stewart gives Trey DeBoe pitching advice during the All Pro Dads pitching clinic Saturday. About 15 area little leaguers received advice from the former professional baseball player.

Bobcats coach offers youth baseball lessons

Jason Stowers, assistant coach for the Marion Bobcats, will be offering private baseball lessons to youth this summer.

A Division I NCAA coach at Coppin State University in Baltimore, Md., Stowers has agreed to provide guidance in all aspects of the game — hitting, pitching, defense and base running — to interested youth ages 6 and up. Sessions will be available in the mornings or on off days when the Bobcats are not in action.

Stowers, a pitcher and shortstop in college, just completed his fourth year as pitching coach at his alma mater, Alice Lloyd College in Pippa Passes, Ky. He is also the winningest coach ever at June Buchanan (Ky.) High School.

As a player, Stowers was an all-star in the Southern Collegiate League where he played with the Asheville Thunder and Johnson City Redbirds.

To reach the coach for further information on lessons or to sign up, call him at (606) 497-6855.

SEQ CHAPTER 14, 1
TITLE: This being the same property conveyed to Marc English, single, by Michael D. Powell and his wife, Kazuko Powell, by Deed dated June 4, 2001, and recorded in Deed Book 190, Page 162, in the Crittenden County Clerk's Office.

The description provided herein was provided by the parties and is contained in the Judgment and Order of Sale.

1. The Master Commissioner will sell same at public auction to the highest and best bidder at the Courthouse door for cash or a deposit of 10% of the purchase price with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days. The successful bidder shall be required to give a bond with good surety for the unpaid purchase price with said bond bearing interest at 12 % per annum from the date of the sale. In the event Plaintiff is the successful purchaser, Plaintiff shall be entitled to a credit of its judgment against the purchase price and shall only be obligated to pay the Court costs, fees and costs of the Master Commissioner and any delinquent real estate taxes payable pursuant to the Order of Sale.

2. The Purchaser shall be required to assume and pay any ad valorem taxes and all taxes assessed against said property by any City, State, County or any school district which are due and payable at any time during the year 2010 or thereafter. Said sale shall be made subject to: all easements, covenants and restrictions of record; assessments for public improvements; and any facts which an inspection and accurate survey may disclose. Said property shall be sold with the improvements thereon "as is".

3. The purpose of this sale is the satisfaction of a Judgment entered on May 13, 2010 on behalf of the Plaintiff against the Defendants, Marc English, and unknown wives, widows, heirs, grantees, devisees, personal representatives, successors and assigns; and any unknown owners, heirs, devisees, legatees, grantees, representatives, assigns, and all persons claiming any right, title or interest in or lien upon any of the lands described; and generally all persons whom it may concern for the sum of $2,846.91, and for all court costs expended herein, including a reasonable attorney fee. This Judgment is prior and superior to the Lien of CitiFinancial Mortgage Company Inc, Tax Ease Lien Servicing, LLC, and Crittenden County Kentucky.

Dated this 28th day of May, 2010.

Bunk houses were full last week for the annual Hurricane Youth Camp. Almost 50 youngers attended the camp, the most in recent years. Pictured above are campers during a singing program during the 122nd annual Hurricane Camp Meeting. # Pillows scarce at Hurricane; youth numbers up this year

The 122nd Hurricane Camp Meeting was held last week at the non-denominational, open-air tabernacle near Tolu.

In addition, the annual youth camp drew almost 50 youngers, the most in recent years. Camp director Janet Kemper said every bed was full and every pillow taken.

While the youngsters – age 8-13 – stay overnight all week long, there are nightly services that draw dozens more adults. Some churches suspend their regular prayer meetings on Wednesday night to attend the services and there is special music nightly by area churches.

Steve English, a Marion native and missionary in Guatemala, was the evangelist.

Below is a list of those who attended the youth camp along with their hometowns.

Law Office, but the two do not share a common wall. Still, it will be tedious work, tearing down the building without disturbing the adjacent building, said City Administrator Mark Bryant. City leaders have fully vetted the company which received the bid, Bryant said, and found it to be well qualified.

The city paid $40,000 for the building and lot. It also purchased the former Red Front lot for $90,000. By the time demolition is complete, the city will have at least $161,500 in the two lots prior to starting construction of the new fire station.

Bryant said demolition work should not disrupt traffic in town, but it will close down the parking spaces directly in front of the work site.

Court meets in special session

Crittenden County Fiscal Court will meet at 8 a.m., on Tuesday, June 29 to close out the current 2009-10 fiscal year and to discuss a few other agenda items.

Among the items to be discussed is a proposed new solid waste ordinance, which could affect commercial and residential trash collection customers. Sealed bids on some surplus county property will also be opened.

state and regional level," Bryant said.

The year before the tourism commission was created, Crittenden County took in about $2 million in tourism dollars, according to the Kentucky Department of Tourism, which also includes a multiplier effect on such spending.

Last year, more than $5 million in tourism dollars was poured into the local economy.

Edwards
Tourism Director

The original idea more than seven years ago was to make tourism pay for itself and grow. So far, it's working.

When the city started focusing more closely on tourism and adopted its room and meal tax to feed the effort, collections were just under $150,000 for the first year. In 2009, just five years later, more than $180,000 has been collected in tax dollars, which means new receipts are being generated for local restaurants and lodging facilities. While most of the money goes right back into promoting the community's attractions, funds are also distributed to parks and recreational opportunities which benefit local residents as well as those coming in from out of town.

Because of Land Between the Lakes and Barkley and Kentucky lakes, western Kentucky draws most of the state's tourists. The Lane Report lists LBL as the state's No. 1 tourist draw with Barkley and Kentucky Dam state parks not too far behind.

"When you see the number of people coming into the Marion Welcome Center, you know it's working," Bryant said. "We have people come

Fireworks prohibited at Dam 50; trash is stopping up restrooms

Fourth of July fireworks displays are prohibited at River View Park, formerly known as the Dam 50 recreation area.

There have been organized efforts in the past to create large fireworks displays at the park overlooking the Ohio River, but county officials say those are unauthorized.

"Fireworks are prohibited at the park," said Judge-Executive Fred Brown.

Michele Edwards, tourism director for the City of Marion, said there is another problem at the park. Patrons are throwing trash into the toilets, creating major problems for those pumping out the restrooms.

"We need to make sure everyone understands that trash cannot go into the toilets," Edwards said. "They found bottles and all sorts of trash while trying to pump it out. It's stopping up the machine and they had to just quit."

The toilets are water-free devices that are supposed to have up to 15,000 uses each before a pumpout is required.

into city hall who say they were visiting the lakes area and drive to Marion, largely to visit the Amish community, which is one of our biggest drawing cards."

Mike Wheeler, a local furniture maker, has been on the tourism commission for five years. He says the mission of the tourism commission is to bring people to town every day. Seasonal events such as deer and turkey hunting and regular festivals such as Back Roads Tour and Heritage Days draw plenty of people, but that's only a small part of the overall effort, Wheeler said.

"No one dreamed it. It's hard to grasp that we've come this far in such a short amount of time," said Wheeler, pointing to the relatively new Welcome Center, a marketing campaign that stretches to television commercials in Evansville and more than 50,000 brochures distributed annually.

Like Bryant, Wheeler commends the efforts of Edwards, who he says sees everything through the eyes of a tourism marketing specialist.

"When we hired her, she hit the ground running and has the contacts we need to keep growing," he said. "Everything she does is to promote Marion and make sure we're cast in the proper light."
