- Alison Lundergan Grimes (D): 40%
- Ed Marksberry (I): 6%
- Dean Patterson (L): 4%

Board of ed inks deal to keep school health clinics open

By JASON TRAVIS

Crittenden County Schools will continue to maintain nurses at its two school clinics thanks to a new agreement with an area health department.

At a special-called meeting June 10, Crittenden County Board of Education approved an agreement with the Graves County Health Department that will keep two full-time nurses at its existing school clinics for the 2014-15 school year.

Previously, the school district had partnered with the Pennyryle District Health Department to provide the school health program. In late February, its district board of health voted to discontinue services for its eight school clinics located in Crittenden, Livingston, Caldwell, Lyon and Trigg counties effective July 1.

In a press release at that time, Allison Beshear, director of the regional health department, said the program was struggling, in part, due to cutbacks from Medicaid and having to meet a 30-percent match on every Medicaid dollar received.

At the beginning of the 2013 fiscal year, the health department had 10 school clinics in its five-county health district. During that year, two clinics closed, one at Crittenden County High School and another in Caldwell County due to limited funding tied to Kentucky Spirit, a managed care organization, not paying for services. To continue its partnership with Pennyryle District Health Department, last year it cost the local board of education approximately $55,000. The Crittenden County Board of Health funded an additional $10,000 to keep the remaining two school clinics open.

The new agreement with Graves County Health Department will cost the school district $70,000. The school board will commit $60,000 with the rest of the funding coming from Title 1 federal grant money for improving basic programs operated

Man sentenced to 15 years in DUI manslaughter case

Above, Ann Carrigan reads a statement last Thursday in court on behalf of her five brothers and sisters. Looking on is her daughter, Aspen Carrigan, prior to sentencing of Adam Sanders, who pleaded guilty to drunken driving and causing an automobile crash in November 2012 that killed Kenneth Guess, 76, of Marion and seriously injured his wife Hazel, who are both pictured on an easel in the background. Below, Crittenden County Jailer Phil Parker leads Sanders from the courtroom.

Family of victim gives emotional testimony before sentencing

By CHRIS EVANS
PRESS PUBLISHER

By his own admission, Adam Sanders doesn't remember the afternoon 19 months ago when he was drunk and crashed head-on into Kenneth Guess and his wife.

The Guess family will never forget it.

Sanders, 25, of Clayton, Ga., was sentenced to 15 years in prison last Thursday by Circuit Judge Rene Williams. The Georgia man had pleaded guilty last month to drunken driving and causing an automobile crash in November 2012 that killed 76-year-old farmer and retired coal miner Kenneth Guess of Marion and severely injured his wife, Hazel.

Guess's daughter, Ann Carrigan of Paducah and the victim's granddaughter, Aspen Carrigan, a recent college graduate, both spoke on behalf of the Guess family during a 30-minute victim's impact statement as part of the sentencing phase of Sanders' case. The sentencing hearing was held under uncommonly tight security at the Crittenden County Courthouse.

The family's comments were both emotional and pointed. Guess' children remain upset with what they believe is a less than adequate sentence for the death of their patriarch and the suffering of his wife. That unity was made very clear by Ann Carrigan's statement on behalf of her five brothers and sisters, all of whom were in the courtroom, along with other members of the extended family and friends.

"Our faith in the justice system - that justice will prevail - is gone," she told the court. "The justice system has devalued our father's life."

Sanders received the maximum 10-year sentence on the second-degree manslaughter charge, a Class C felony, and a five-year sentence on the second-degree assault charge, also a Class C felony. He could have gotten a 10-year sentence on the assault charge, too, which could have meant a total of 20 years behind bars.

Because manslaughter, as written in Kentucky statutes, is not considered

Pastoral fixture Garvey retiring

STAFF REPORT

If preachers are called to preach, then certain preachers can be called to preach at a certain place, right?

That particular calling is strongly attested to by congregants of Marion United Methodist Church where Rev. Wayne Garvey has spent the final 14 years of his long career as a Methodist minister.

Garvey will be behind the pulpit for the final time on Sunday. The church where he has ministered for the past decade and a half says he has been a friend, a de facto family member, an inspiration and a guiding light. Some say his virtues and nurturing manners mirror very closely those of Jesus Christ.

Mike Hamilton, a former Methodist lay leader and currently head of staff and parish relations at the church, says Garvey's reach has been far and wide as minister of the county's largest Methodist church.

Garvey

"Bro. Wayne has been much more than a pastor. He is a unique person that has not only become part of our church family, but also a part of our family at home. From family gatherings, hospital visits, funerals, mission trips to Guatemala and Honduras, Bro. Wayne has always been there for us. We will truly miss him, but wish him the best in his well-deserved retirement," Hamilton said.

Garvey's tenure at the Methodist church has been quite lengthy in regard to Methodist standards. Unlike many other congregations that independently hire their own pastors, United Methodists belong to a conference which places pastors, generally rotating them throughout the system. Traditionally, four to seven years has been the normal term, say local church leaders.

Garvey has been instrumental in church missions and outreach, including facilitation of the Boy Scout troop in

Courtroom atmosphere sobering reminder of DUI dangers

Pain, sorrow, anger and even remorse.

Such public displays of emotion are not unheard of in the atmosphere of America's courtrooms, but they are often met with indifference by many of those present. Yet no one there was left unaffected by the outpouring of emotion found last week within the confines of the courtroom at Crittenden County Courthouse.

Last Thursday was the sentencing of Adam Sanders, the 25-year-old whose regretful decision to get behind the wheel while intoxicated on a late November day in 2012 took the life of 76-year-old

Kenneth Guess and severely injured his widow, Hazel. The head-on collision just outside of Marion on U.S. 641 robbed a family of a beloved member, creating a deep chasm not yet bridged by time nor circumstance.

For Sanders, who pleaded guilty in May to DUI, manslaughter and assault, the wreck took a physical toll, assured he will spend much of his youth behind bars and ensured a future filled with regret.

There were no winners in the saga, but on Thursday the Guess family offered the public a look inside the deep wounds left by the tragic circumstances.

Certainly deserving of their day in court before formal sentencing, the Guess family exercised that right with gut-wrenching testimony that made it clear the profound loss, pain and sorrow that still exists 19 months later. The pages of statements read aloud in court by the family were filled with pleasant memories of the loved one lost; the pain endured by his widow, immediate family and longtime friends; and the ire that still plagues a family dealing with the fallout from the senseless incident.

The courtroom was thick with emotion with friends and family struggling in vain to hold back the tears while the court's justice, attorneys,

Familiar face returns to lead CCHS

By JASON TRAVIS

A former Crittenden County High School journalism and English teacher has been hired to head the school in 2014-15.

Lyon County resident John Curtis Brown has been selected as the new principal for CCHS. He taught English and journalism at Crittenden County High School from 1990 to 1997 and also coached the speech team during his tenure. He will succeed high school Principal Rhonda Callaway, who is leaving the school district in July to assume a central office position with Webster County School District.

A graduate of Caldwell County High School, Brown left Crittenden County and spent 15 years teaching in the Lyon County school district beginning in 1997. Two years ago, he accepted a teaching position at Reidland High School, knowing it was going to only be a one-year stay. Last year Reidland, Heath and Lone Oak high schools were consolidated to form the new McCracken County High School, where Brown taught English.

Brown said he wanted the opportunity to be a part of the newly formed high school, calling it a new, innovative and exciting opportunity. He said teaching at McCracken County was a terrific experience and called its principal, Michael Ceglinski, an innovative educator with a vision and passion for the job.

As he prepares for his new responsibilities at CCHS, Brown understands the challenges smaller school districts face.

"I'm familiar with a lot of things about Marion and Crittenden County and the struggles that all small communities have, whether it's maintaining their industry base or ensuring the standard of living for people. I know that the educational system is a big part of that," Brown said. "Schools are important to people who live in the community. They want strong schools, and I want to make sure our school continues to do its part to fulfill that responsibility."

Brown said one of the biggest challenges public schools face today is preparing students for their careers beyond high school and college as they enter an ever-changing workforce. He said schools have to do their part to help students prepare for uncertainties in the workforce by providing them with the skills to meet changing business and economic conditions.

He praised the high school administration's dedication to college and career readiness and said the school is on the right track. Brown expects the school to continue to be effective in getting students college and career-ready.

"From the things that I know and the people I've talked to and the data I've looked at, it's already progressing in the correct direction. It's just a matter of maintaining the course," he said.

Brown received his teaching certification from the University of Texas at Arlington. His first teaching position was at a school in Texas. He has also taught in Florida. Upon returning to Kentucky, he received his master's degree and Rank 1 certification in education from Murray State University.

He became a teacher after obtaining a bachelor's degree in journalism. Early in his professional career he worked at The Times Leader newspaper in Princeton. He also has farming experience and still enjoys small-scale farming.

Vince Clark, the incoming superintendent of Crittenden County Schools, said the CCHS Student-Based Decision-Making (SBDM) Council on Friday interviewed four candidates from Livingston, Lyon, Paducah and Henderson for the principal's position. Clark indicated there weren't any Crittenden County applications submitted for the principal's position.

After careful deliberation, Clark said, it was decided unanimously to offer the position to Brown.

"His references and interview confirmed that he is the man for the job to replace Rhonda Callaway. He is a good man who knows what good instruction looks like. He will be thoughtful in his decision making and will put students first," Clark said regarding the hire. "The SBDM interview committee was impressed with his leadership roles, experience in the classroom and strong communication skills. Plus it's nice to bring back someone who was connected to Crittenden County."

"I am proud of the SBDM decision which gathered input from a survey posted on the district and The Crittenden Press website that influenced the questions we asked in the interviews. We are proud to have Mr. Curtis Brown on our Rocket team."

Brown and his wife, Susan, have been married for 32 years. She is a math teacher at Lyon County Middle School. The couple has a son and daughter and three grandchildren. They are currently on a two-week vacation to Europe, and plan to visit their daughter who works in environmental studies in Bonn, Germany.

Brown will begin his duties after July 1 and said he's looking forward to his new position and the opportunity to reconnect with familiar acquaintances while making new ones. He calls the experience a type of homecoming.

"I have fond memories of my time in Crittenden County, and I'm really looking forward to working with the school to ensure the success of the students," Brown said. "I look forward to meeting students, parents, faculty and members of the community."

Pathway graduates 58th student

At the June 10 Board of Education meeting, the Pathway Academy's 12th commencement ceremony was held as school officials celebrated the 58th graduate from the alternative school program. During the ceremony William Henry Odom, Kenneth Wayne Robinson, Phelicity Yesh Rowley and Audrenna Swetland each received their high school diploma.

School officials praised the graduates for their commitment and dedication in earning their high school diploma and preparing themselves for the future.

"Tonight is proof of how much one choice can make a difference because you all chose to enroll in Pathway Academy and earn your high school diploma. That has forever changed your life and the lives of your families," school board chairman Chris Cook told the graduates. "On behalf of the board I want to congratulate you all tonight. We want to hear from you all. We want to hear the successes you are going to have in life. We are proud of you all and we are celebrating with you."

Crittenden County Schools Supervisor of Instruction/superintendent-elect Vince Clark praised the graduates for their hard work and overcoming adversity to reach their goal. He also recognized the importance of having family and friends to lend their support.

"We want to challenge you to go forward and be good citizens of your community," Clark said. "We wish you all the best and I want to say I'm very proud of you. Good job."

Outgoing superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said she was glad to be a part of a program that allowed young people to get a second opportunity to achieve their high school diploma.

"It's a good first step. This is a great ticket to the next thing. I would just encourage you not to stop with your learning, growing and development. Whatever interest you love, pursue that," Dr. Yarbrough said.

After the ceremony, family members and school district officials joined the graduates in a celebration of their accomplishments.

The Pathway Academy was enacted in 2008 to give students who quit high school an opportunity to study and earn their high school diploma in an alternative setting.

New Salem-based doctor offering surgical procedures in both Crittenden, Livingston

STAFF REPORT

A Salem-based health care clinic has added a new physician to its medical team that now offers surgeries and procedures to each hospital in Crittenden and Livingston counties.

Dr. Demetrius Patton recently joined Tri-Rivers Healthcare, teaming up with Drs. William E. Barnes and Ghassan Yazigi at the Salem clinic. Though the clinic is independent of Crittenden Health Systems (CHS) and Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services (LHHS), Tri-Rivers Healthcare Business Manager Michael Heneisen said Drs. Barnes and Patton now have privileges at both facilities.

Charlie Hunt, chairman of the board of directors for CHS, said Dr. Barnes has had privileges at the Marion hospital for some time. Dr. Patton's privileges were formally granted at the board's last meeting on May 27.

Hunt said the increased number of combined procedures performed by Drs. Patton and Barnes, both general surgeons, are a direct result of the addition of the new surgical suite at CHS. Increasing procedures helps CHS's cash flow.

"We get the fees from the

use of the facilities," said Hunt.

Heneisen said the procedures performed by the two doctors can be done at CHS or LHHS, whichever facility the patient chooses.

The Tri-Rivers Healthcare business manager said Dr. Patton is a wonderful addition to the clinic and his services will be a great help to Drs. Barnes and Ghassan Yazigi since Dr. Michael Gavin has been on active duty with the military. All three doctors are considered partners in the clinic, which formed in 2000. In addition, Dr. Khai Truong practices family medicine out of Tri-Rivers' Smithland clinic.

"Dr. Barnes is very excited about him being here to help and take care of the communities of Crittenden and Livingston counties," Heneisen said.

Dr. Patton specializes in surgical oncology and advanced laparoscopy and is also accepting new patients at the Roscoe Faulkner Physicians offices, also in Salem.

The doctor said he is looking forward to working at both hospitals in Crittenden and Livingston counties.

"I'm very excited to be here and I'm always accessible," he said. "I look forward to taking care of people in both communities."

A graduate of Indiana University School of Medicine, Dr. Patton completed his residency in general surgery at Albert Einstein College of Medicine in Hyde Park, N.Y., where he served as chief resident.

"I went out there because I wanted specialization in areas of surgical oncology and advanced laparoscopy," Dr. Patton said. "Here I practice all forms of general surgery but those are my areas of specialty."

He previously practiced in Greencastle and Bloomington, Ind. Before coming to Tri-Rivers Healthcare, he was director of surgical oncology at Baptist Health Paducah.

"That's a fine hospital. But I actually wanted a lifestyle change. I really enjoy working in smaller communities. And Dr. Barnes, the gentleman that I joined, is a wonderful man and that's how I came here."

Born and raised in southern Indiana on a farm in Bedford, Dr. Patton said he felt the call to care for others at a young age while attending church.

"When I was 5 years old we had a lesson about the laying on of hands and I actually prayed from the age of five on that God would allow me to heal people with my hands. By the time I was in the sixth grade I decided that meant I wanted to be a physician," he said.

While in high school Dr. Patton said he knew he wanted to be a surgeon. He said he was lucky to job shadow with a local surgeon in his hometown during high school and continued working with him while attending medical school.

A single dad with two children, Dr. Patton enjoys a close relationship with his parents, sister and niece, who were all able to move to Kentucky to live near him.

"We're just very close and I'm lucky to have that kind of closeness," he said. "They actually moved to Paducah to be with me."

Having grown up in southern Indiana, Dr. Patton isn't a stranger to western Kentucky. One of his favorite passions is bass fishing and, he has been a tournament bass fisherman since the age of 14.

"My son and I have come down here for several years and fished on Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley," he said. "We knew we wanted to relocate somewhere in western Kentucky because this area is just beautiful and we love to be able to fish at the lakes."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New local doctor top-notch surgeon

To the editor

Dr. Demetrius Patton, the new surgeon to join the Tri-Rivers Healthcare staff is a top-notch surgeon.

I had a procedure performed by Dr. Patton in January, and I couldn't have asked for a more knowledgeable, professional and compassionate doctor. He helped me immensely, and was able to answer questions that no other doctor could.

We are lucky to have this doctor – one who listens, explains and gets to the bottom of an issue – in our area. I would highly recommend anyone to him and I, myself, would go to him again.

Best of wishes in his new practice.

NEWS BRIEFS

Park board looking for lighting upgrade

Informal discussions took place last Wednesday between members of Marion-Crittenden County Park Board and stakeholders in the facility it oversees over funding an extensive upgrade to the lighting at multiple fields.

Last month, Crittenden Fiscal Court awarded the park board $60,000 in coal severance funds to go toward lights at the park where board members have demonstrated that safety issues exist from aging poles and light fixtures. However, park officials are now looking at taking the upgrade a step further with a more permanent, widespread solution to lighting issues.

Because lighting is woefully inadequate at the high school baseball and softball fields, as well as a Little League field, the park board is looking at possibly financing a longterm solution from Musco Lighting using the $60,000 in coal money as a down payment for a 25-year, all-inclusive guaranteed system with metal poles to replace an aging lighting infrastructure.

"It's a safety issue," said Frank Pierce, a park board and Marion City Council member, of the poor lighting.

In the recent past, two light crossarms came crashing down from the wooden poles on which they were affixed. Fortunately, no one was hurt in either incident.

To light all three fields to adequate standards, Musco quoted a cost of $303,000 for parts and labor. Lighting the high school fields to those standards would allow the park, the largest single tourism draw in the county, to host regional high school tournaments on a rotating basis.

Of course, scaled-down versions of the more extensive lighting overhaul are also being considered, and in-kind contributions are likely to cut down on any installation cost.

In the coming weeks, the park board will revisit the issue with entities like the City of Marion, Crittenden Fiscal Court, Crittenden County Board of Education and Marion Tourism Commission, as well as members and groups from the community with a vested interest in the park.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said there is little hope for outside help from the state or federal government.

"There's just no money for parks," he said at the informal meeting last Wednesday.

County jail exceeds capacity this month

Crittenden County Detention Center has been full this month, perhaps housing the highest number of inmates in its near-seven-year history.

Crittenden County Jailer Phil Parker reported to Crittenden Fiscal Court Tuesday morning that the 133-bed jail inn June was averaging 140 inmates through Tuesday with a high daily count of 148.

"I don't know if it's the most there's ever been, but it's the highest since I've been there," said Parker, who began his duties in August of last year.

Cots are used to sleep the overage of inmates, most of whom are housed for the Kentucky Department of Corrections as a revenue source for the county.

KCTCS tuition up over next two years

Students at Kentucky's community and technical colleges are facing higher tuition costs the next two years.

The Kentucky Community and Technical College System's board of regents on Friday approved a budget for the upcoming academic year that includes a nearly 2.1 percent tuition increase for in-state

The board approved a $924.1 million budget for the statewide system of 16 colleges and more than 70 campuses for the next year.

Board members approved higher in-state tuition rates for the next two academic years. For the next school year, tuition will increase from $144 per credit hour to $147. In-state tuition for the 2015-16 academic year will be $150 per credit hour.

KCTCS board of regents Chair P.G. Peeples says the system remains the best post-secondary education value in the state.

Ambulance service losses drop in 2014

Crittenden County's ambulance service continues to lose money despite a monthly $12,500 financial injection from the fiscal court, but the deficit each month since 2014 began has been considerably less than in previous months.

Crittenden Health Systems Chief Executive Officer Greg McNeil reported to magistrates at Tuesday's fiscal court meeting that EMS had a net loss of $10,927 in May. Through the first five months of 2014, however, the service has a net loss of $38,584, or just $7,717 per month compared to an average of $17,878 for each of the previous five months.

McNeil began his duties at CHS in November 2013.

City of Marion OKs new spending plan

Marion City Council on Monday adopted a spending plan that gives an across-the-board, 3-percent raise to all full- and part-time employees.

The $3.05 million budget was approved unanimously with a few minor changes made to outlays from the budget first proposed earlier this month.

Full funding for the Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community was restored to $12,000 after its allocation was cut in half in the first budget proposal.

Also, $10,000 in funding for membership to the Crittenden County Economic Development Corp. was shifted from the city's $1.43 million general fund to now come from its revolving loan fund, pending approval from the loan fund board. Using money from the source of funding from which loans are made for business development projects frees up money in the city's general fund for expenses, such as the Coalition and other endeavors.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said the city has tentatively set aside about $200,000 for health insurance coverage for full-time employees and their families over the next year.

Fredonia magistrate opposes higher tax

A Fredonia-area magistrate voted against Caldwell County's new budget that reflects an occupational tax increase to address burgeoning expenses.

Elbert Bennett opposed the fiscal court's $6.3 million spending plan for 2014-15 that has revenues based on a proposed half-percent increase in the county's occupational tax, according to The Times Leader. He also stood in opposition of the tax increase introduced by ordinance at the June 10 Caldwell Fiscal Court meeting, according to the newspaper.

The proposed occupational tax increase would bring the current rate of 1 percent up to 1.5 percent of gross employee wages and net profits. Judge-Executive Brock Thomas said the budget was balanced with anticipated receipts from the increase.

The budget passed 2-1, with Bennett casting the lone vote against the spending plan, according to The Times Leader.

The occupational tax increase is expected to generate an additional half-million dollars for the county, reports the newspaper. A vote on the tax ordinance is scheduled for 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Scavenger hunt to benefit local park

As chairperson of the Marion-Crittenden County Park Board, Kory Wheeler tries to hold an annual fundraising event to benefit the park's capital projects fund.

This year, it will be a photo scavenger hunt on Saturday.

The scavenger hunt will be for folks of all ages, and teams will be comprised of four to five people. At least one team member will need a driver's license and a vehicle in order for the outfit to be competitive.

Some of the items featured by the scavenger hunt organizers will be found in rural areas, others might be readily available in town or right under a participant's nose.

Each team will need a digital camera or smartphone with a camera. There are more than 100 items listed on the organizers' list of defined objects. Points are assigned to each item. The difficulty factor of locating and photographing each item drives point values.

The cost to enter the game is $5 per person if paid in advance. The day of the event, the price goes up to $7. Registration begins at 9 a.m. at the park. Check-in will be at 11:30 a.m.

Local merchants have donated gifts and prizes for the event and Gilbert Funeral Home is a sponsor of the contest.

Arnold asks court to dismiss decision

Former state Rep. John Arnold asked Franklin Circuit Court last week to dismiss the Legislative Ethics Commission's decision that found him guilty of three ethics charges in a sexual harassment case.

Arnold, a Democrat from Sturgis, wants the court to set aside his fine and reprimand by the commission.

He contended in his appeal that the commission did not have any jurisdiction over him as a former legislator and had no say over any sexual harassment regulations.

On May 7, the commission, in its second hearing on the case, found Arnold guilty of three ethics charges in a case brought by three female legislative staffers who said he had touched them inappropriately. On a vote of 5-1, the commission issued a $1,000 fine and a public reprimand on each charge.

Arnold, 69, has denied wrongdoing. He resigned from the legislature in September. His attorney has that said Arnold is suffering from dementia.

Murray State University will offer a new graduate-level program in sustainability science this fall.

The school says the decision to offer a new master's of science degree in sustainability science comes as students show an increased interest in a cleaner earth and a healthier environment.

Robert Pervine, the school's associate provost for graduate education and research, says the program will include mandatory core courses and electives.

The school says elective courses will be in agriculture, chemistry, biology, mathematics, geology, occupational safety and health and education.

Pervine says the program can be tailored for a variety of interests, including environmental or agricultural sustainability.

Summer Reading starts

It's all about science and reading at this year's Crittenden County Library Summer Reading Program. On Tuesday morning, children learned about viscosity, the state of being thick, sticky and semifluid in consistency due to internal friction. The science experiment helped engage students and provided useful background for their reading material. Children and Youth Services Librarian Kathleen Guess demonstrates the concept in front of a rapt audience. The summer reading program has both a morning and afternoon session on Tuesdays for children entering kindergarten through sixth grade and a morning session on Fridays for children age 3 through pre-kindergarten. Registration for Summer Reading participants is ongoing at the library.

GARVEY

Marion. He also developed the church's bicycle mission, which provides overnight accommodations to cyclists touring the country. Over the past decade, literally hundreds of cyclists have signed the church's registry during a brief respite from the road.

"When God said in Jeremiah 3:15, 'I will give you pastors according to mine heart, which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding,' He gave not only to Marion United Methodist Church, but to the whole community," said Marty McKenney, who is a member of Garvey's church and whose family is greatly involved in missions here and abroad.

"Bro. Wayne has fed his flock, comforted, protected, nourished, visited and loved us with the love of God," she added.

Brent Brantley, another member of the local congregation and a theologian who has missioned overseas, says Garvey has two very unique gifts. First, is his sincere love and concern for people. Secondly, is that he never keeps score.

"No one will ever know how many folks in the community he has helped, how many visitations to the sick he made, how many cyclists he aided, how many children with whom he talked, how many hours he took to quietly counsel others," Brantley said. "No one will know the true score because he will not tell them. However, the Divine Scorekeeper knows."

Garvey's altruistic persona and his devotion to others never stopped at the Methodist church doors.

"I praise God for what Bro. Wayne Garvey means to his church, this community and to other pastors and church leaders in this area," said Marion Baptist Church minister Rev. Mike Jones. "I am so thankful for his testimony and for his friendship. He will be greatly missed by everyone in Crittenden County. I wish him the very best."

Garvey's relationship with the local pastorate has been exceptional. He has worked very closely with First Cumberland Presbyterian Church on shared programs and special events.

Rev. DeeAnn Thompson, minister at the Presbyterian church that sets only a couple of blocks from Garvey's church, has cherished their bond and relishes his talents.

"His creativity, many talents and dedication to the Lord, will be sorely missed," Thompson said. "I will most remember Bro. Wayne for our work together on Holy Week services. His rendition of 'Were You There' from the balcony in the darkened sanctuary still gives me chills when I think about it. Holy Week services will not be the same without him."

Thompson also praised Garvey's work as chaplain at the hospital, his ministry at the nursing home and for his service and leadership on the county's ministerial association.

"He is a great example for all of us ministers in Marion," Thompson added.

Garvey's career began in 1968 at a small church called Penny's Chapel in Ashbrook, Ky. He has remained within the Kentucky Conference throughout his 46 years in ministry, serving at 10 different churches, including Cadiz, Frankfort, Carrollton, Russell Springs, Cynthia and Georgetown.

He started as a student local pastor and became a full minister in 1976 while serving a church at Somerset. While Garvey was ministering at Carrollton, Ky., from 1984 to 1991, he was a first-hand witness to a community's grief following the tragic bus accident involving a drunk driver that killed 27 people, mostly youngsters from the Elizabethtown, Ky., area who were headed home from a church outing to King's Island in Cincinnati, Ohio. The incident created a nationwide movement to stiffen drunk driving laws and to create stricter safety guidelines for school buses.

Alan Stout, a federal judge and member of the Marion United Methodist Church, summed up Garvey's work as a minister quite simply: "He has been a pastor in the truest sense of the word – a teacher, preacher, counselor and friend. We have been blessed to have Bro. Wayne as a part of our family."

Garvey plans to retire in Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. David Combs, a native of Lexington, will become the new pastor at Marion United Methodist Church starting next week.

Historical Society unchanged

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Historical Society last week set its officers for the coming year and extended the terms of three members.

Percy Cook was re-elected by the nine-member board of directors as chairman. Other officers remaining in their posts will be Brennan Cruce, vice chairman; Rita Travis, treasurer; and Brenda Underdown, secretary.

Underdown, Sarah Ford and Fay Carol Crider were each re-appointed to the board for another three-year term. Other members of the board are Steve Eskew, Pat Carter and Barry Gilbert.

The historical society is charged with preserving the county's history, primarily through overseeing the operation of Crittenden County Historical Museum.

Crider remains treasurer of the Braxton McDonald Foundation, which was legally transferred last year under the care of the historical society. The philanthropic foundation was created by its namesake as a benefactor to preserve history and genealogy in Crittenden County.

a violent crime, Sanders will be parole eligible after serving 20 percent of his sentence.

The manslaughter conviction was for the death of Kenneth Guess and the assault conviction was for the injuries caused to Hazel. Guess. Sanders also was convicted of aggravated DUI, to which he received a 90-day sentence.

The prison term for each felony offense will run consecutively, but the DUI sentence will run concurrently with the other time for a total of 15 years.

Ann Carrigan told the court in detail about the injuries her mother suffered in the crash. There were a concussion, rib fractures, a sternum fracture, collapsed lung, bladder damage, spinal fracture, broken bones in her arm, wrist and hand and many other cuts and bruises that took weeks, even months, to heal. She also talked about how healthy her 76-year-old father was and said that he would have lived many more years.

The grief, Carrigan said, for her mother, has been even more difficult to overcome than the physical injuries.

"Her spirit is broken," she said.

Carrigan retold a story her mother had told her about the moments following the crash.

"She remembered reaching down and grabbing daddy's hand and calling his name in the car. She knew he was gone."

Kenneth Guess died at the scene of multiple blunt force trauma. Hazel Guess was in the hospital for weeks before returning to Marion to an empty house in the Frances community, said Carrigan.

While Carrigan and her daughter spoke, Sanders, wearing a blue jail jumpsuit and bound at the hands and feet, sat beside his attorney Marcy Day Groves of Henderson. He stared into his cuffed palms and appeared at times to be wiping away tears.

Adam Sanders pleaded guilty last month to drunken driving and causing an automobile crash in November 2012 that killed Kenneth Guess, 76, of Marion and seriously injured his wife Hazel. Above, Sanders reads a statement of apology in court last Thursday to the Guess family prior to his sentencing.

told the court what an impact her grandfather had on her life, and the lives of six other grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. She said there was no more sacred place than on "pop's lap."

It was an emotional account of how her papaw doted on his family, especially the youngsters. At one point, she had to stop and recollect her emotions.

Aspen Carrigan talked about how her grandfather enjoyed showing off his garden with watermelons, pumpkins and cantaloupes.

"He loved taking us to see the cows and calves," she said.

"Because of Adam's thoughtless decision to drive under the influence," she said her grandpa was gone forever, but not forgotten. She said he was a very healthy grandfather, so much so that he had ridden a Pogo stick a few months before his death.

"My grandparents prided themselves on being model citizens," she added.

Ann Carrigan said she never saw her parents touch alcohol and spoke of the inseparable irony of how her father was once before hit by a drunk driver many years ago in a crash. That wreck severely injured one of her brothers.

Ann Carrigan said Sanders' blood alcohol level was 0.22 at the time of the wreck, although that information had not been part of court documents reviewed previously by the newspaper. Kentucky recognizes a threshold of 0.08 BAC as legally too drunk to drive.

Sanders read a statement he had prepared once the family was finished. It was a remorseful testimony in which he took responsibility and said he's ready to accept the punishment. He told the court and victims' family in a muffled and cracking voice that he remembered nothing from the accident which happened about 3 p.m. on U.S. 641 near Industrial Park South on the edge of the city limits.

"I hope the family can one day forgive me," he said.

Sanders had moved to Crittenden County within the last few years, first being attracted to the area because of its hunting opportunities. He worked at various farming jobs as a laborer. No testimony nor court records have revealed where Sanders had been in the hours leading up to the crash.

The Guesses had gone into town for groceries and were heading home at the time.

CLINICS

by local educational agencies such as the school district.

An issue involving state laws for a special taxing district prevented Crittenden County Board of Health from providing assistance for the new agreement. Graves County Health Department already collects its own tax money and the local board of health is prevented from giving money to another entity that already has its own special taxing district.

The agreement with Graves County Health Department is for one year. It keeps one nurse at each of the school district's clinics. One clinic is located at Crittenden County Elementary School. The other clinic is on Crittenden County Middle and High schools' campus and is utilized by both schools.

The arrangement allows the school district to maintain its current nursing staff and those individuals will become employees of the Graves County Health Department and follow health department protocol. Crittenden County Schools Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said at this time there isn't a provision for a clerical position to assist at the clinics under the new agreement.

Under the Graves County model for operating, school board members anticipate nurses on task more days and hours than the previous model under which they were operating.

Dr. Yarbrough suggested board members revisit the matter and renew the agreement year by year.

Graves County Health Department has already partnered with both Trigg and Livingston county school districts. Both districts were also formerly associated with the Pennyryle District Health Department's school nurses program.

Circuit clerk’s office recognized by Organ Donation Awareness Program

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County's driver's license office has been presented a large tin of gourmet popcorn from the Trust for Life as a thank you for their exceptional participation in the state's organ donor awareness program during National Donate Life Month in April.

"Crittenden County Circuit Court Clerk's office has shown incredible initiative in their efforts to support this program and help save lives. Without their enthusiasm and hard work, thousands of Kentuckians would not know about the life-saving mission of organ donation," explains Trust for Life Executive Director Shelley Snyder. "The popcorn is a fun way to show how much we appreciate the important work they do every day in the circuit clerk's office."

This year, a record 72 offices received popcorn.

The Trust for Life is a separate, 501(c)(3) non-profit organization dedicated to increasing awareness about organ donation to help save

Office ranks 2nd in May for gifts to organ donor awareness effort

STAFF REPORT

In May, Crittenden County ranked second in Kentucky in percentage of dollar donations to the state's organ donor awareness program, Kentucky Circuit Court Clerk's Trust for Life.

Last month, 75.5 percent of drivers issued a license through Crittenden County Circuit Clerk's Office donated a dollar to the Trust for Life. That was second only to Magoffin County's 83.9 percent, according to Shelley Snyder, executive director of Trust for Life.

Individuals obtaining an identification card can also donate to the Trust.

"Thank you all for asking these questions and adding names to the (Kentucky Organ Donor) Registry to give hope to those waiting," Snyder said in an e-mail last Thursday to circuit clerks. "Thank you for raising dollars to make education possible all over the state."

Neighboring Caldwell County ranked seventh in the state with 69.1 percent of drivers donating a dollar to the Trust for Life when renewing or being issued a license.

Currently, 44 percent of Kentucky residents are registered donors. In comparison, more than 60 percent of residents in Ohio and Indiana are registered to save lives.

"Public attention to this cause is essential. From presentations in schools and civic clubs, to statewide PR campaigns, the Circuit Clerks' Trust for Life aids patients in need of transplants," says Snyder.

"The Trust for Life's mission is easy to stand behind, as we all know someone who has been touched by the gift of life. It is an honor to educate the public on the importance of organ donation through the dollars we collect in the driver's license office. We know it is the law that we ask for the dollar, but we do it because the impact each dollar makes in the community is so significant," explains Guill. "We want to keep up this momentum. We will continue to help our community become registered organ donors and raise awareness so more lives can be saved through the miracle of transplantation."

Everyone can register as a donor by going online to www.donatelifeky.org.

If you would like to learn more about the Trust for Life or make a tax-deductible contribution, go to www.trustforlife.org or call (866) 945-5433.

County committee nominations begin

The nomination period for local Farm Service Agency (FSA) county committees begins Sunday.

To be eligible to serve on an FSA county committee, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and reside in the local administrative area where the person is nominated.

Farmers and ranchers may nominate themselves or others. Organizations representing minorities and women also may nominate candidates.

To become a candidate, an eligible individual must sign the nomination form, FSA-669A. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at Elections will take place this fall.

While FSA county committees do not approve or deny farm ownership or operating loans, they make decisions on disaster and conservation programs, emergency programs, commodity price support loan programs and other agricultural issues. Members serve three-year terms. Nationwide, there are about 7,800 farmers and ranchers serving on FSA county committees. Committees consist of three to 11 members that are elected by eligible producers.

FSA will mail ballots to eligible voters beginning Nov. 3. Ballots are due back to the local county office either via mail or in person by Dec. 1. Newly-elected committee members and alternates take office on Jan. 1, 2015.

Dates to remember

New drivers can go online for required safe-driving course

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Kentucky residents who are learning to drive have a new option for completing a required safe-driving course.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet says an online version of the graduated driver license course is now being offered through a driver education website, I Drive Safely, at [teen.idrive safely.com/Kentucky](http://teen.idrive safely.com/Kentucky).

Three other options that have been available to complete the course remain. They are a four-hour course provided free at least twice a year in each county; a high school driver's education course or similar program offered by a Kentucky community college, vocational school or Job Corps; or private driver training at an approved school.

The cabinet says the online course costs $15 and takes about four hours to complete. The cost of the course is collected by the website and not the state.

Satan’s goal: a lazy, immoral United States

Since the world began, God planned for man, made in His own image, to run Earth for Him and everything He had made. He gave him everything one made in His image could ever need or want for happiness.

He gave man power over all He had created to subdue the earth, have dominion over fish, fowl, cattle and over every living thing that moves upon the earth. And He gave him a woman to help him run Earth for Him.

Since man was made in God's image, man had the same free will God has.

In that free will, man made a miserable choice in listening to his God-given mate instead of God who gave her to him.

Eve, with her free will, listened to the devil instead of God, who gave her the honor of creating her in the first place to help her mate obey God and manage all that was in God's earth and be the mother of all living things.

Both, no sooner had they listened to something or someone other than God, regretted it and did so for the rest of their lives.

God was very clear in His instructions: Eat of the Tree of Life and live forever; eat of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil and die.

Because of their stupid decision, all their offspring are born in sin with their fallen sinful nature. But everyone retained the law in their conscience that was breathed into man by God in the beginning, and therefore, all of us are born with the knowledge of good and evil and right and wrong in our conscience.

That sinful nature will always lead us into sin until we are "born again" by the "divine nature having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust" that Peter tells us about in 2 Peter 1:4.

Peter had already told us in 1 Peter 1:22-23 how to "purify our souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit, being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God, which lives and abides forever."

God's plan, as well as His Eternal Word, has been corrupted by fallen man ever since the Garden of Eden.

Just as in the time of The Great Flood, God preserved His Word for a fallen world. When the Jews would not return to His truths, He sent Jesus to again preserve His truths to the world. During the Dark Ages, when the light of God's truth was almost extinguished by the corrupted Roman Church, God sent the 16th century Reformation to Europe.

Again, many of those God had entrusted His truth with did as many of old had done – listened to Satan instead of God's true Word and went man's way, corrupting again God's Holy Word.

The torch of truth was again picked up by the humble, godly, downtrodden, persecuted souls for their holiness stand. The Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock for the sole purpose of having a place to worship God in freedom, spirit and truth and to carry that truth to those to whom God had brought them.

From this small group eventually issued the Founding Fathers, who put their life, living and reputation on the line to fight, and die if need be, to birth the unusual government of the people, by the people and for the people. This government has withstood war and peace against innumerable odds of many kinds of foes, domestic and foreign, these 238 years as a republic.

But slowly, a democracy has almost decimated the republican form of government. As was said two centuries ago by Alexis de Tocqueville, "A democracy cannot exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters discover that they can vote themselves largesse [money, bounty, assistance, gifts] from the public treasury." Alexander Fraser Tytler added to that later: "From that moment on, the majority always votes for the candidates promising the most benefits from the public treasury with the result that a democracy always collapses over loose fiscal policy, always followed by a dictatorship."

Americans, aren't we already here? We are already at almost one-party rule because of these very evils all planned and calculated by Satan and carried out by his minions.

So many facets of this evil octopus' tentacles are destroying the greatest nation on earth because Satan hates Jesus who has been honored by this nation for hundreds of years as no other nation on Earth has done.

There are those among us working to take away our freedoms of speech and religion, push mind altering drugs and deviate sex evils and destroy everything good that God has given us. Thousands upon thousands of our finest have fought, been mangled and died in defense of this once great nation.

America has gone from the Pilgrims, who lived in bondage to the English Crown, to a spiritual and courageous people with great freedom. This has produced abundance, which has developed selfishness that always leads into complacency. Then apathy sets in and a no-care attitude produces lazy, drugged-minded beggars demanding those who will work support them. They demand all kinds of sins to be accepted, and now, once free Americans are going into horrible bondage to self, sin and Satan with dictators standing in line to put us to our knees.

The Jews, whom God had so abundantly blessed and forgiven over and over, finally had God's blessings and protection withdrawn and they have been world wanderers, without peace and security since 70 A.D. Now, America has followed their pernicious ways.

God's judgment is falling on us with haters, murderers, bombers, freedom-takers, floods, fires, earthquakes, landslides and a lying political leader who supports the perverted sins and killing of the most innocent among us. I claim this leader is a follower of a tenacious religion dedicated unto death to kill all who will not become one of them and millions support him and still think we are going to get by?

All who support him who believe they can be a Christian are mistaken.

Please, read the Book! How sad to see that at the Great Judgment Day their eternal destiny will be sealed in hell, along with all who have deceived them into thinking they are right with God.

In a perfect world,
you'd still be by our side,
lighting up our happy lives.
You never would have died.

In a perfect world,
sadness would not be found.
Love and life and happiness forever would abound.

Perhaps that perfect world awaits us when we die.
A world where eternal bliss is found in Heaven's sky.

We'll cling to faith and hope,
for God is a God of Love, and in His time we'll join you in a perfect world above.

clerks and law enforcement remained in stoic silence.

All the while, just a few feet from the heartfelt testimony, Sanders sat with his head hung beside his defense attorney and surrounded by men who would eventually escort him from the courtroom in shackles and cuffs.

Those who spoke on behalf of the Guess family held back little in their expression of emotion.

A prepared statement read by Sanders before he was taken before the judge for sentencing seemed to do little to ease the pain of a family still reeling as he expressed his own emotional apology with his eyes fixed on the paper filled with the solemn words he delivered.

Suffice it to say, no one in that courtroom last Thursday afternoon was left untouched by what took place.

But no matter the words spoken in court, reality has not changed. The Guess family remains without Kenneth – a husband, a dad, a grandpa, an uncle – and his widow struggles on with her own recovery. Sanders, still a young man, is forever burdened with the guilt of taking that life and leaving a family with a huge hole never to be filled...all over a terrible decision to drive while impaired.

In time, the family's wounds, still raw and open, will scar over but never heal. Forgiveness might become easier to grant. And Sanders' might one day find peace.

For those who have driven impaired, the odds have escaped many. The foolish mistake will not catch everyone, but it can anyone. For those it does in such a tragic manner as to take or destroy a life, there is no way to erase the torment for all involved, a torment that will linger a lifetime over a thoughtless decision to get behind the wheel.

Thursday was a sobering reminder of that fact.

Plan ahead for successful summer canning

Whether you've been canning for years or are just starting out, you need the right equipment, in good working condition, to produce safe, high quality canned foods at home. Now's the time to plan ahead, so that you'll be ready to make the most of this summer's fresh fruits and vegetables.

First, you need to decide which type of canner you'll be using. There are two types of canners available: boiling water canners and pressure canners. A boiling water canner can safely be used to can high-acid foods like fruits, jams, jellies, pickles and acidified tomato products. You can purchase a boiling water canner for $20 to $80, or use a large stock pot with a tight-fitting lid and a rack to hold the jars off the bottom of the pot. The pot must be deep enough for one inch of boiling water to cover the tops of the jars during processing. If you use an electric stove, you'll need a canner with a flat bottom.

To safely can low-acid foods like vegetables, meats, poultry and fish, you must use a pressure canner to reach the higher temperatures needed to kill the spores of Clostridium botulinum, the bacteria that causes botulism.

Pressure canners may cost from $80 to $200 and will have either a dial gauge or a weighted gauge to indicate pressure. The accuracy of a dial gauge should be checked at the start of each canning season. This can usually be done at your local Extension office. If the gauge reads high or low by more than two pounds at 10 pounds of pressure, replace it. A weighted gauge should maintain its accuracy, as long as you don't drop it or plug the vent.

For either type of pressure canner, check that the rubber gasket in the lid is flexible and soft. If it is brittle, cracked or sticky, it should be replaced. Also check that vent ports and other openings are clean and open.

Whichever type of canner you use, you'll also need jars, lids and ring bands. The USDA recommends Mason-type jars with two-piece self-sealing lids. Single-use commercial jars, like those from mayonnaise or peanut butter, are not recommended. They are more prone to breaking during the canning process. As long as they are in good condition, Mason-type jars and ring bands can be re-used, year after year. Before use, check jars carefully for cracks or chips, especially near the top sealing edge. Check ring bands for dents, bends or rust. The standard metal self-sealing lids are designed for single use only and should be purchased new each year. Other tools that will make home canning easier include a canning funnel, jar lifter, magnetic lid wand, headspace tool and flexible spatula or bubble remover.

To ensure safe, high-quality home-canned foods, always follow research-based recommendations when canning. Reliable, up-to-date home canning recipes are available on the National Center for Home Food Preservation website (<http://nchfp.uga.edu/index.html>), in the USDA Complete Guide to Home Canning (at http://nchfp.uga.edu/publications/publications\_usda.html) or from the Extension office. For more information on canning supplies and equipment ask for publication, FCS3-578, Home Canning Basics.

The Crittenden County Extension Office will be offering canning workshops in August for individuals who are new to canning or for those who want to brush up on their skills. Call (270) 965-5236 for more information.

Joe and Barbara Myers were honored to have WMJL – AM & FM, MAGIC 102.7 chosen as the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce Business of the Month for June. WMJL itself is a small business and has maintained its independence while many other stations have been purchased by large corporations. # Defew to be published seventh time in book series

STAFF REPORT
Writer Linda C. Defew of Livingston County has been published for her seventh time in the popular "Chicken Soup for the Soul" series of books.
Released earlier this year, "The Multitasking Mom's Survival Guide: 101 Inspiring and Amusing Stories for Mothers Who Do It All" is a collection of inspirational and funny stories for women as they experience the joys and difficulties of motherhood.
"From taking time for yourself and slowing down, to handling housework and juggling a career, this collection will support, inspire and entertain you as you try to do it all," reads a news release about the book's publication. "Plus, you'll pick up some great tips from other busy moms who pass on their best advice."

Defew's two-page story, "While Time Flew By," is about the missed opportunities to document at the time the special relationship moms have with their children while they grow up. She explains in her submission that at all stages of her son's and daughter's growing up, she always seemed too busy to jot down what they said, what they had done and what she was feeling as a stay-at-home mom.

"Not everybody had the privilege to stay at home with their children and see their first steps and hear their first words. I wouldn't have missed it for the world," Defew writes of her job raising two toddlers. "I really should be writing this down, I thought. But there simply wasn't time."

Days passed. They turned to weeks, weeks to months and months to years. There was a lot of growing up that she just never found the time to write about in the days before her writing career budded.

"Then, all of a sudden, they were grown up. The years of bottles and diapers were over. The years of learning to crawl, walk and talk – gone for good," Defew continued. "The most precious days of my life were gone in the blink of an eye. I wish I had written it all down."
Defew, a regular columnist for The Crittenden Press, has been writing and submitting articles to various publications for around six years. She estimates about three dozen of her submissions to various magazines and compilations like "Chicken Soup" have been published. She even started her own writers' group in 2009 that has grown to 10 people.

Between writing, Defew divides her time entertaining family and friends. Living on a farm, the summer involves gardening and food preservation; the fall and winter are spent taking pictures of wildlife out of her 14-foot enclosed tree stand.
"Chicken Soup for the Soul: The Multitasking Mom's Survival Guide," is published by Chicken Soup for the Soul Publishing LLC and is available online or at most major bookstores.

Cole Foster participated in the Crop Impromptu Career Development Event.

Other members represented their local chapter by serving as delegates at each session. Members attended many workshops to improve their own leadership skills to lead their chapter in the upcoming year.
Local FFA Alumni member Patrick Thomas took the seven members to the University of Kentucky for a tour

Early automobiles were a challenge for drivers

Although it was exciting getting to a destination faster, owning one of the new rubber-tire automobiles in the 1920s could definitely prove to be a challenge. Many perils awaited most of the owners. The vehicles also proved a danger for the traditional travel of the horse and buggy.

From the archives of The Crittenden Press, we can read many of these adventures of our fellow citizens of yesteryear. It looks like the reporter for the paper was kept pretty busy keeping up with all the automobile news.

Oct. 19, 1911 Narrow escape

Sunday afternoon, the horse driven by R.A. Rodgers became frightened at a passing automobile and was soon unmanageable. After rearing and plunging, he fell and broke the shafts and otherwise damaged the vehicle which was a new and handsome one. Mr. Rodgers was accompanied by his wife and son. None of the occupants were hurt, as they escaped by jumping out and were only frightened by their experience.

Nov. 12, 1920

Three automobiles have been destroyed by fire in this county, all within the past week.

A Ford belonging to Fred Crayne was burned Saturday night. Mr. Crayne was driving the car when the machine caught fire from a short circuit.

C.M. Dillard of Marion lost an Inland truck by fire Saturday while on his way to Rosiclare, Ill. The fire originated as above while he was driving near Sheridan. The flames from the burning machine ignited the dry leaves, and the woods caught fire resulting in the burning of a fence.

A Ford belonging to Frank Butler caught fire from backfire in the carburetor while being driven near Frances Sunday and was destroyed.

All these machines were

Loses foot in automobile accident

Thursday morning of last week, an automobile accident occurred on South Main Street in which Hally Wilcox, colored of this city, was seriously, but not fatally injured.

Wilcox was riding on the fender of T.C. Bennett's car driven by Walter Fritts, who was driving close behind the car of Carl Henderson. As they neared the top of the hill on South Main, the cars met Fonnle Belmear in his "Lizzie." The dust was so dense that the second car and Mr. Belmear's crashed from which the negro was injured. He was taken to the hospital at Paducah where his foot was amputated.

Aug. 5, 1921 Car runs away

Thursday morning about 9:30, Elzie Moore, who works at Cochran's Garage, cranked a Chevrolet car that belonged to Cochran and Co. after he had filled it with gas and oil. The car was in gear and before Mr. Moore could get in, the car started backward down the street. It ran into a buggy belonging to Mr. George Conditt and threw him out.

The horse became frightened and ran away, doing considerable damage to the buggy. The car backed into Mrs. Mary Cameron's front porch and stopped.

No one was injured.

Sept. 1, 1922

Injured in auto accident

Wednesday morning, while Mr. J. Hicklin was motoring near the Cave In Rock landing, he met with a rather painful, though not serious accident. The roads in that section are nothing to brag about, and while he was going along, the car ran against a stump.

When the car wheel hit the stump, Mr. Hicklin struck the windshield of his car, bruising and cutting his face in a number of places. He drove home and had the wounds dressed, and it is reported he is doing well. The car was not damaged.

July 28, 1923

Automobiles collide

A Star automobile occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Willie George of Salem and Mr. and Mrs. Press Guess, while being driven on Bellville Street opposite the residence of Mrs. Clara Carnahan Sunday afternoon, collided with a Ford car driven by Sig Hopson, slightly injuring Mrs. George and badly damaging both machines.

A buggy being to the right of the approaching car, Hopson in trying to pass, collided with the other car as it met the buggy.

Buggy's beware

Last Sunday, as H.B. Hamby was driving in a buggy in the vicinity of Haf-faw Mines near Mexico, he was run into by an automobile and the buggy wrecked. Mr. Hamby escaped with slight injuries as did the horse.

The driver of the machine was not reported.

May 23, 1924

Auto runs over cow

Saturday afternoon, as Squire Charles LaRue was driving a cow along the Salem Road near J.E. Sullenger's place, the animal was run over by an automobile driven by George Dowell of Tolu, dislocating the lower joint of the cow's leg. The collision is reported to have been purely accidental or unavoidable, with the cow delaying or refusing to give the necessary right of way until it was too late for the driver to stop his machine.

Dr. Slayden was called to set the injured limb.

Seated in the sporty new touring vehicle is Nellie Croft with her daughter Roberta standing in front of her. Behind the wheel is a very young Ollie Phin Croft. Perhaps making the picture was the father, James Buckner Croft.

Stephens was overturned near the R.H. Enoch place on the Morganfield Road. The car was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stephens; Misses Ada Barnes, Jewell Dean Glore, Nellie Belt and Gladys Barnes; and Messrs. J.D. Glore and Arnold Travis. The following persons were injured in the accident: Jewell Dean Glore, a gash behind ear and bruises; Ada Barnes, gash on right cheek; Gladys Barnes - cut across nose.

Dr. Cook dressed the wounds.

June 20, 1924 Two injured

Lonnie James and Cecil Sigler, who live near Marion, were seriously injured Sunday afternoon on the Marion and Princeton Road when their automobile was struck and run over by another car.

Sigler, who was driving, and his companion were going south and overtook another car driven by a Mr. Gilland. Sigler, in passing Gilland's car, swerved too quickly in front of it and was struck and turned over.

James suffered two broken ribs and a cut on the chin besides several minor cuts and bruises. Sigler's ankle was dislocated and his left arm and small bones in his hand were broken.

While Mr. and Mrs. B.F. Caps, who reside near Mexico, were returning home from Princeton one day last week, the automobile in which they were traveling went over a culvert, turned turtle and threw the occupants out, resulting in a broken rib for Mrs. Capps.

Dr. Cook dressed the wounds and she is reported to be improving.

July 1924

More accidents

Mr. A.C. Babb, while driving on North College Street, received injuries, none serious, in an automobile accident. The rear axle of the machine struck some high stepping stones and Mr. Babb was thrown forward on the windshield, resulting in the loss of one tooth and being considerably bruised and shaken up. His car was also considerably damaged.

Last Sunday as P.P. Paris, who lives near Marion, was driving on the Marion and Princeton Road near Crider, his car, a new Chevrolet, was struck by another car and badly damaged. Mr. Paris, while heading south and passing some buggies, was met by a Ford car, which is stated was going at a high rate of speed, and collided with his car. Mr. Paris was slightly injured by bits of broken glass.

None of the occupants of the other cars were reported injured.

Both cars were damaged. (Brenda Underdown is Crittenden County's historian and serves on the board of the historical and genealogical societies in the county. She is also active in maintaining Crittenden County Historical Museum.)

Market gains experience during internship at Extension Service

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Makenzie Market is spending the summer as an intern at the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service in Marion. A native of Henderson County, Ky., Market is under the direction of county agriculture and natural resources agent Meredith Hall. She is gaining professional experience assisting Hall with not only ag-related duties but also 4-H activities.

For Market, the internship will prove to be invaluable. She is majoring in agriculture education at Murray State University and will obtain an education certificate teaching. Market is interested in pursuing a career as either an Ag educator or extension agent and cited the many career choices available in agriculture today.

"The job opportunities are unlimited in the field. You can be in extension, a teacher or a seed represen-

upon graduation next

May. She returns to MSU in the fall for her last semester of course work. In the spring she will begin teaching. Market is interested in pursuing a career as either an Ag educator or extension agent and cited the many career choices available in agriculture today.

"The job opportunities are unlimited in the field. You can be in extension, a teacher or a seed representative," she said.

Whether it's helping Hall collect insects from a property owner's tree for identification or learning how to send specimens to the UK research lab, Market enjoys the work and the opportunity to meet others.

"I really like applying what I know and then taking it out in the community and connecting with people," she said.

In addition to assisting

Hall in agriculture this summer, Market will join Hall and Jessica Cummins, the new 4-H and Youth Development extension agent, as they chaperone youth attending 4-H Camp in Dawson Springs. This year's 4-H Camp will be held July 14-18 at the West Kentucky 4-H Camp in Dawson Springs. Cummins will begin her position as 4-H Extension Agent July 1.

Market is looking forward to assisting at both the 4-H camp and this year's county fair which will feature 4-H youth exhibits in arts and crafts and pet shows. She said 4-H is a good way for youths to learn responsibility and become active in a variety of projects as they assume leadership roles.

She is especially looking forward to this year's pet show. Market owns two barrel horses. She is a member of the rodeo team at Murray

State University. This year she was selected as the rodeo queen. One of her responsibilities will be to preside at all rodeos held at the expo center in Murray.

Being a horse owner and having grown up on a farm, Market said it was only natural that she was drawn to agriculture.

"It was a stepping stone to this point," she said. "I love agriculture. I couldn't see myself anywhere else."

Livingston schools receive grants

STAFF REPORT

Gov. Steve Beshear on Tuesday announced Kentucky will fund 25 born-learning academies this fall, including two in Livingston County.

This is the first step of a four-year, $1.4 million expansion of 150 academies across the state. This initiative, funded by Kentucky's Race to the Top Early Learning Challenge federal grant, will build upon the investment of Toyota manufacturing operations of $1 million through 2016.

"Race to the Top funds have given us an opportunity to build on a proven practice for supporting families," said Gov. Beshear. "Parents and caregivers often need support and guidance on how to best teach their children and set them on the right track for learning. These academies provide them with tools to prepare their young children to succeed in kindergarten and beyond."

North and South Livingston Elementary schools are among the 25 All-STARs funded academies to receive money through the born-learning initiative.

The born learning academies are innovative, school-based workshops that meet a critical need in Kentucky communities - early childhood parental education. The academies consist of six sessions designed to demonstrate how to turn everyday moments with children into learning opportunities.

Quality Care Right At Home

“After talking with Dr. Maddux, my family doctor, I decided to have my gall bladder removed at Crittenden Hospital. The surgeon, Dr. Manayan, was fantastic. I was really pleased with him. I’d tell anyone about my experience. A lot of people drive to Nashville to have these things done, but for something like this, I wanted to stay close to home so it would be easier on my wife, Ramona.”

Wet spring hampers farmers with harvesting of hay crops

STAFF REPORT

Whether it's winter wheat or hay, Mother Nature seems to be playing havoc with Kentucky farmers as a wet spring has followed on the heels of a brutally cold winter.

According to the Kentucky Field Office of U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service, the winter wheat crop for 2014 in Kentucky is expected to be down 20 percent from the previous year. Growers can expect a yield of 73.0 bushels per acre, down 2 bushels from 2013. That is still better than the expected national average, which is predicted to be 42.4 bushels per acre.

Kentucky farmers expect to harvest 36.5 million bushels of winter wheat during 2014 according to USDA's data. Across the nation, 1.38 billion bushels are expected to be harvested.

But it isn't just winter wheat that's been affected by the weather. Consistent rain has caused problems for hay growers.

Local farmer Mike McConnell said he estimates a loss at $7,000 to $9,000 for a field of alfalfa. McConnell said the field was cut right before Memorial Day, and it has rained ever since.

McConnell, who has been selling hay for about 15 years, has between 150 to 200 acres of hay. He raises 40 acres of alfalfa with the rest being a mixture of grasses.

"The weather has actually delayed me sowing some hay I was planning on this spring. It's not been favorable," he said. He said days of consistent rain haven't been ideal and goes against the farmer's adage of hoping for a half of an inch of rain every Saturday night.

"What's happened this year is we're getting a couple of dry days and about the time hay is ready to do something with, it starts raining and sets us back again," he said. "In the case of this field we cut in May, it's more or less rotted in the field."

Depending on how thick it is, McConnell said it's usually between a three- and four-day drying period before hay is dry enough to bale.

University of Kentucky Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service officials indicate even a slight amount of rain on curing hay can cause serious losses of feed quality. The losses occur because much of the nutrition in the plant is water soluble and can be removed by leaching. Studies have shown that rainfall of only 0.05 inches on hay which is partially cured is sufficient to cause leaching losses.

Victory Gardens nearly ready

Harold Hardin of Life in Christ Church tends one of the church's garden plots in the late spring heat Monday evening at the Community Victory Gardens in Marion. Hardin said the bell peppers and tomatoes from the gardens, which are spearheaded by his church but are tended by several other churches and organizations, should be ready for giveaway in two to three weeks. He said several of the garden plots had to be replanted multiple times because of heavy rains. This marks the third year for the gardens, aimed at helping keep those in need in supply of fresh produce. Hardin, who retired four years ago, said he enjoys the volunteering. "I would rather spend my time doing something like this to help others," he said.

Another Success Story

Case Study:
Mr. Leroy Cox suffered from hip pain for years, causing him difficulty in leading an enjoyable life. After years of arthritic pain and difficulty walking, Leroy elected to have his hip replaced. After a brief stay in the hospital, Leroy chose Crittenden County Health and Rehabilitation Center for his rehabilitation needs.

Comprehensive Team Treatment Plan:
An interdisciplinary team developed care maps specific to Leroy's situation, providing a guide for his smooth and successful recovery. Leroy received physical and occupational therapy five times a week throughout his 20 day stay.

Case Outcome:
Leroy was able to learn modified self care tasks specific to his surgery. He also had improvement with his overall strength, balance and walking. At the end of his brief stay, Leroy was able to return home.

Comments on Care
"I feel like my time spent with therapy was well worth it. I feel better than I did before surgery! My therapists were outstanding both as individuals and as a team".
