LIQUOR SALES MODERATE AS FY21 COMES TO CLOSE

With just days left in the City of Marion's fiscal budgetary year, it's clear that local liquor sales are outpacing last year. Marion legalized liquor sales in August of 2019. The city receives a five-percent tax on the sale of wine, beer and distilled alcohol, and places that sell must buy a license. Those revenues are remitted each month to the city. After 10 months reporting from FY21, tax revenue generated from liquor sales and licenses has been $63,006.37. That's well above the entire first year of tax taken in from legal liquor sales. FY20 tax receipts were $46,766.95, but that was for 11 months because sales were not legal until the second month of the fiscal year.

Sales tax revenue for alcohol was $5,449.06 in March and $6,090.19 in April, both below average for this budgetary cycle. Tax revenue derived from the legal sale of alcohol is primarily spent on law enforcement.

INSERTATE 24 WORK IS HEATING UP IN JUNE

Work on the westbound lanes of I-24 in Trigg, Lyon and Caldwell counties will mean some traffic disruptions that began on Tuesday. At times the entire westbound lanes will be closed and moved to the eastbound lane for two-way traffic. The $17.3 million project is expected to continue until December as 10 miles of westbound pavement is being replaced and nine more miles being repaired.

OVERDOSE DEATHS ARE UP

Overdose deaths in Kentucky are up 49 percent since the pandemic began, according to the latest CDC data. Since the start of the pandemic, 1,939 people have died of a drug overdose in Kentucky, that's 639 more people than in 2019. Kentucky's increase was second in the United States to Louisiana, which saw its rate spike by 53 percent. West Virginia, Colorado and South Carolina round out the top five states with the highest increase in drug overdoses between 2019 and 2020.

CITY WORKERS GET RAISE

All non-elected employees of the City of Marion will be getting a two-percent raise starting July 1. The bump in pay was part of the city council's $8.4 million 2021-22 budget, which was approved late last month.

USPS WANTS TO RAISE STAMP PRICE IN AUGUST

U.S. Postal Service is wanting to raise postage stamps Aug. 29 from 55 cents to 58 cents and postcards to 40 cents. Price increases are requested for all public and commercial mail. The increase is part of a new USPS business plan and must be reviewed by the Postal Regulatory Commission.

UPCOMING MEETINGS

Meinschein, new Livingston school head, is no foreigner

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

He has family ties from Carrsville to Bells Mines, business connections from the Deep South to Silicon Valley, a doctoral degree and a captain's rank. Meet your new Livingston County School District superintendent David Meinschein.

It sounds like Mine-Shine, and yes, it's German, but don't let the Old World name fool you. Meinschein has generational roots right here in Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties and he's related to Smiths and Dickersons, and even the Crittenden County Duncans, who have an ancestral cemetery in what is now Big Rivers Wildlife Management Area.

"I'm excited to circle back home and do what was done for me," he said, which is provide a quality education to Livingston County students.

Last Wednesday, Meinschein was pegged as the new school head to replace Victor Zimmerman, who resigned in February. Long-time Livingston educator and administrator Darryl Chittenden has been serving as interim superintendent since Zimmerman left, and will continue in that capacity until Meinschein takes over July 1.

Meinschein, who graduated from Livingston Central in 1989, has been serving as an assistant superintendent in the Ballard County School District, where he was previously the high school principal.

Out of high school, Meinschein, 49, went to Murray State where he earned a bachelor's degree, doctoral degree in leadership and a U.S. Army officer's commission as a member of the ROTC program. He spent six years in the military, earning his captain's bars while serving with the 101st Airborne and 25th Infantry. His first career stop after the military was the San Francisco Bay Area where he

Baseball pastime reflecting

A field of dreams, both figuratively and literally, Gordon Blue Guess Field at Marion's City-County Park has been for many boys – some who are now grown men.

After hearing stories of influential men and coaches who paved a way through life for my Dad, I could sit and write for hours the details, though until recently I didn't really take into account how important they were.

Taking some time to umpire a little league softball game last week, I turned and looked behind the plate to see Dad standing there with a child-like grin. He has always had a heart for the game, and he gave that to me, too. Moments later, he walked off toward another game, the high school baseball team was playing Trigg County. The result of that game was the team's 20th win of the season. The Rockets have now set a new school record with 21 wins, and have defied all odds after a 2020 COVID-cancelled season.

With tears in his eyes, Dad's face beamed with pride as he watched this group of high school boys enjoying the sport just as he did. Watching their coaches pouring so much more knowledge into them than just the sport itself, he started to recall the many years that his favorite coach Red Benton put into kids his age.

In the 1970s and 80s, Benton coached my father and many others in the community on a small field named after the late Soupy Grady, which now stands vacant except waist-high grass behind the former Carson G. Davidson National Guard Armory.

With a telephone pole smack dab in the middle of centerfield, Grady Field housed many pick-up and little league games during its day. Benton, who once tried out for the Pittsburgh Pirates, was no stranger to the game and recognized the talent of boys in Crittenden County, even in that little outdated stadium, if you could even call it a stadium.

From the late 70s up until 1981, Benton, alongside others in the community such as Gordon B. Guess, the late Paul Mick and the late Jim Hatfield, had a hand in moving the game to the City-County Park. I've been told the property chosen for the field was on the market but it typically held way too much water and wasn't suitable for much else other than a park.

After a few financial strings were pulled, it was no time before the boys my Dad's age were able to play the game they loved on a new field. These days, Gordon Guess says it is the best of its kind around here.

Time to Fish

C.J. Belt of Marion and her father Paul Coy recently boated 114 sunfish during an angling trip to Lake Barkley. She said her mom cooked them for dinner. Bluegill are plentiful in area lakes and they're mighty tasty. Bluegill and other sunfish can still be found in shallows at area lakes and they're also quite common in farm ponds. These fish are perfect for rookie anglers and are typically found in groups. If you catch one fish, keep fishing the same spot as these fish often make colonial spawning beds. Below are creel limits and some information about the most common sunfish in this part of the state.

BLUEGILL

Also known as bream, sunfish, perch or copperbelly, there is no limit on this species on Kentucky and Barkley lakes. Bluegill can be found in good numbers in the backs of bays and inlets on both lakes. The bluegill is a moderately large, deep-bodied sunfish with a small mouth. Their sides are dark bluish-green with vertical bars and their belly is deep orange to rust color. There will be a large dark spot present at the rear of the soft dorsal fin. Adults can grow to 16 inches, but typically only reach 6-11 inches.

RED EAR SUNFISH

Also known as shellcracker or yellow bream, the daily limit is 20 per day on area lakes, with a possession limit of 40. There is no minimum size limit on this fish. The red ear are known as good fighters. They are a moderately large, deep-bodied sunfish with a small mouth and relatively long, pointed snout. Adult males have a red margin on the gill cover flap while females have a light orange flap. Adults can grow to 15 inches, but usually reach 8-11 inches.

LONG EAR SUNFISH

These are moderately small sunfish with a deep body and small mouth. They are bright red-orange with iridescent blue spots on the back and sides, grading to mostly red-orange on the belly. It has a long gill or "ear" flap, and wavy blue lines on cheek and gill cover. The adults can reach up to 9 inches, but are typically less than six inches. There is no limit on this fish.

Because there are liberal limits on red ear and no limit on most other sunfish, it's easy to get a cooler full of them of them during an early summer outing.

Local households can qualify for up to $50 discount on broadband Kentuckians are urged to apply for the newly available discount through the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to help temporarily reduce their cost of home internet services.

A $3.2 billion Emergency Broadband Benefit program, established by Congress last year in response to ongoing economic hardships caused by the pandemic, is providing some temporary assistance, which includes up to $50 per month toward broadband service for eligible households. The benefit also provides discounts up to $100 per household toward a one-time purchase of a computer, laptop or tablet, if the household contributes more than $10 but less than $50 toward its purchase from a participating broadband provider.

It's simple to go online to see if you or your household qualifies for this benefit. Kentuckians can apply now through participating broadband providers or at mergencybroadband.org.

“Now more than ever, Kentuckians need reliable internet access to stay informed and connected to school, work, family, church, health care and other critical services,” said Gov. Andy Beshear. “By providing some temporary financial assistance, this program may be what allows eligible Kentuckians to retain their service and remain online as we defeat COVID-19.”

Discounts will continue until all funding is exhausted, or six months after the Department of Health and Human Services declares an end to the pandemic.

A household is eligible if one member of the family meets at least one of the criteria below:

- Has an income at or below 135 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines or participates in certain assistance programs, such as the Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program, Medicaid or the FCC's Lifeline program;
- Is approved to receive benefits under the free and reduced-price school lunch program or the school breakfast program, including through the USDA Community Eligibility Provision, in the 2019-2020 or 2020-2021 school year;
- Received a federal Pell Grant during the current award year;
- Experienced a substantial reduction in income through job loss or furlough since Feb. 29, 2020, and the household had a total income in 2020 at or below $99,000 for single filers and $198,000 for joint filers; or
- Meets the eligibility criteria for a participating provider's existing low-income or COVID-19 program.

Additional information about the Emergency Broadband Benefit is available at www.fcc.gov/broadbandbenefit, or by calling 833-511-0311 between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m., any day of the week.

Here is an interesting trail camera photo from a Crittenden County farm. The time stamp shows that it was taken late morning on May 25. It depicts what appears to be a coyote that just missed bagging a wild turkey hen. Coyotes are among the wild turkey's most predators in this part of the world. Hunters may take coyotes year round in Kentucky.

Leave deer fawns alone

As more people venture outdoors with the onset of warmer weather, encounters with newborn animals are likely to occur. Though young wildlife may seem vulnerable, the mother is likely nearby.

This is why the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources recommends leaving young animals undisturbed.

"This time of year, anyone spending time outdoors has the chance of accidentally stumbling upon baby animals," said Ben Robinson, assistant director of the department's Wildlife Division. "The parents will often leave their young unattended, but they usually aren't too far away."

Late spring, the peak of deer fawning season, also brings an influx of calls to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife from well-intentioned people concerned about seemingly abandoned young wildlife.

"The best thing to do is leave them alone, even if they look abandoned. Chances are, they're just fine," Robinson said. "The mother will be watching and listening from a distance."

Deer fawns are carefully groomed by their mothers to minimize their scent and therefore reduce vulnerability to predators. They survive by spending much of their time motionless and bedded down until they are about a month old. At that age, they are strong enough to follow their mother. The fawn's reddish-brown coat patterned with pale spots helps camouflage them in dappled sunlight.

Landowners who encounter a fawn that is in the way of cutting hay or mowing can move it a short distance out of the way. The mother should still be able to find the fawn using sight, vocalization or scent.

SUMMER DEADLINE FOR UNINSURED TO GET COVERAGE

Uninsured Kentuckians are eligible for reduced-cost health care coverage under the American Rescue Plan (ARP) Act of 2021. To take advantage of reduced- and no-cost plans, eligible Kentuckians – both uninsured and current enrollees – must be properly enrolled through the health insurance marketplace at healthcare.gov. The deadline to enroll is Aug. 15. “Health care is a human right, and increased affordability and health insurance coverage expansion allows historically uninsured communities – especially those who have faced significant health disparities during the COVID-19 pandemic – to access coverage,” Gov. Andy Beshear said. “The historic American Rescue Plan is already deeply impacting Kentuckians by ensuring that more of our families get the care they need and deserve.” Through Aug. 15, more than 35,000 uninsured Kentuckians with incomes greater than 400 percent of the federal poverty level can sign up for a recently launched health insurance marketplace subsidy. Uninsured Kentuckians with incomes between 150% and 400% of the federal poverty level potentially qualify for additional financial support to reduce out-of-pocket costs for Marketplace premiums. Furthermore, through Aug. 15, 7,100 uninsured Kentuckians with incomes below 150% of the federal poverty level can sign up for free health insurance coverage. Though savings will vary on an individual basis, premiums will decrease on average by $50 per person per month, or by $85 per policy per month. Register on the health-care.gov website.

JOBLESS RATE DOWN

Unemployment rates fell in Crittenden and all other 119 Kentucky counties between April 2020 and April 2021, according to the Kentucky Center for Statistics (KYSTATS), an agency of the Kentucky Education and Workforce Development Cabinet. Crittenden’s rate has dropped to 3.5 percent as local businesses continue to struggle to find workers. Across the state, Cumberland and Woodford counties recorded the lowest jobless rates in the commonwealth at 2.8 percent each. Magoffin County recorded the state’s highest unemployment rate at 10.3 percent. It was followed by several other eastern Kentucky counties. The commonwealth’s county unemployment rates and employment levels are not seasonally adjusted because of small sample sizes. Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure trends rather than actually to count people working.

■ CCHS GRADUATION

Valedictory addresses 2021

Jada Michelle Hayes

Good evening! I may be graduating with an Associates degree, but that doesn't mean I excelled in public speaking, so bear with me. I would like to start off by thanking my family, friends, teachers, and coaches for always pushing me to be the best I can be and never giving up on me. I would like to especially thank my mom and dad for always being there for me and never letting me feel like I wasn't good enough. I wouldn't be where I am today without you two.

Now to the class of 2021, I know these past two years haven't turned out the way we wanted them to, but I wouldn't trade the past thirteen with you all for anything. Along the way, I've made some lifelong friends and memories that I will never forget. Like that one time Caden yanked out Kaiden Holli's tooth in the middle of class. I'm sure Caden will be every teacher's favorite graduate knowing they will never have to have him in class again. As a class we've had our fair share of ups and downs, but at the end of the day we know we can always count on one another. I am thankful that I am able to share this special night with each and every one of you. I wouldn't want it any other way.

Jada Michelle HAYES
Daughter of Randy and Dana Hayes

I would like to leave my classmates with this, Albert Einstein once said, "Never give up on what you really want to do. The person with big dreams is more powerful than the one with all of the facts." Don't be afraid to always dream big as you are capable of everything you set your mind to. Never let anyone or anything stop you from reaching your full potential. I am beyond proud of this class and all of the things we have and will accomplish in life. Thank you!

I would like to welcome our next valedictorian, Miss Kalli Champion.

Kalli MaRay Champion

Thank you, Jada. Good evening, I would like to thank everyone for gathering to celebrate the great accomplishment my fellow classmates and I have achieved.

I remember, in my early middle school days, I decided on my biggest dream at the time. I told my father,

"When I graduate, I want to be Valedictorian!" Said by a young girl with no clue how much work was ahead of her to achieve this. My father assured me my dream could be a hard one to accomplish but standing here today I have officially conquered the one goal I have worked hard towards since the day I dreamt of it.

The day we walked through the doors of CCHS

Kalli MaRay CHAMPION
Daughter of Jason Champion and Jessica Champion

as freshman, I know most of us had graduation on our minds. Now four years has slipped by like seconds and we are here today having no clue if our tassel goes on the left or right side.

Even if we may be a little clueless on what life holds next for us, the class of 2021 has and will continue to make big waves on the world.

To my parents, you have always made sure I knew the potential I had and pushed me to apply myself in every aspect of my life. My sisters, I know I have a best friend for life in both of you thank you for being by my side through everything.

To my classmates, it was a long, hard road but we made it. I want to wish each of you the best of luck in every upcoming endeavor you will embark on. Looking at each of you brings a memory to mind. I have known most of you since pre-school and will have a friend in each of you for the rest of my life. Congratulations to all of us, we did it.

Please welcome Mr. James Crider to the stage to deliver his speech.

James Harrison Crider

Thank you Kalli and congratulations to each of my fellow classmates—the Class of 2021!

I want to thank a few people who have been influential in my life. First I want to thank my parents for being supportive of me in everything that I did both in school and out of school. You provided me with diverse and numerous opportunities to grow and learn as a person. You also both served as phenomenal role models to me.

Secondly, I want to thank my Mamaw, Margaret Johnson, who passed away this spring. No matter what I did, she was always my biggest fan and always let me know how proud she was of me. If she were still with us, I hope that she would be proud of me now.

I also want to thank my math teacher and academic team coach Billy Cunningham for being so dedicated to his students, listening to our problems, and always giving us good advice.

So what do we do now?

James Harrison CRIDER
Son of Ken Crider and Rebecca Johnson

For the first time in our lives, we are able to set our own path in life. After this graduation ceremony, we will all go in different directions. Some of us will go to college, some of us will enter the workforce, and some of us will take time to find our path in life. We should all be thankful that each of us have so many options, even though some paths may be harder to navigate than others.

Regardless of the path that you take and wherever that path may lead you, always stand up for what you believe is right. It might not be the popular thing to do and it might not be the easiest path to take, but your ideas and beliefs are what make you different. My ideas and beliefs are what make me James Crider.

As a military history buff, a quote by General George S. Patton frequently comes to mind: "If everyone is thinking alike, then somebody isn't thinking." (Don't worry, the irony of using someone else's words is not lost on me.) Your ideas and beliefs are what make you unique, so don't be afraid to express them.

There are three points that I hope you take with you tonight:

First, be thankful for the opportunities that God has given you and the people that he has placed in your path to guide you.

Secondly, choose your own path—don't just follow the crowd.

Finally, don't be afraid to express an idea that is different. Don't be afraid to take a stand that is different from the rest of the people in the room. Above all else—be yourself!

Please welcome Katharine Keller to the stage.

Katharine Havana Grainger Keller

First and foremost, thank you to my mom for being my very best friend, and my dad for pouring such genuine wisdom into my life. Thank you also to my grandparents, siblings, church family, teachers, coaches, administration, classmates, and staff who have pushed me along in this journey. Standing here as a Summa Cum Laude, you might think I am going to talk about success.

Well, actually, I am going to talk about quite the opposite, failure. To reach success in my life, I have had to fail first. I have had hundreds of bad races, bad assignments, and mistakes in general. After each time I've failed, I learned something that brought me one step closer to success. I remember one particular time when I had gotten a bad grade on an assignment. I was very upset, and sat in the classroom crying. Mr. Hodge walked in. He asked me what was wrong, I told him, and... he started laughing. He said, "You realize that this is just one small part of life, right? This is not the end of the world, you have so much more to look forward to." Suddenly, this made me feel better. My Dad told me about a quote by Franklin D. Roosevelt that said "A smooth sea never made a skillful sailor." One thing I can take away from high school is that life isn't perfect. "Give up perfection. But never give up trying for it," Dana Perino. We all have struggles. We all fall down. What you choose to do after you're down is what defines you. Olympic Marathoner, Meb Keflezighi said, "it's not how many times you fall down, but how many you get back up." You will get knocked down. Life will give you lemons. You will fail. But it is your choice on what you do next. Our struggles do not define us, they motivate us. I would not have succeeded without failure. Mrs. Coach Starnes always told me, "Suck it up, buttercup!" I encourage you—embrace failure. It's where you learn, grow, and succeed. James 1:2-3 says, "Consider it pure joy whenever you face trials of many kinds, because you know that the testing of your faith produces perseverance." Without Jesus, I am nothing. All the credit, honor, glory, and praise goes to him. Thank you.

Katharine Havana Grainger KELLER

Ten seniors earn valedictorian honors

Kenlee Faye McDaniel

Thank you, Kate! For those of you that don't know, Kate and I share a lot of special moments together. I can without a doubt say that I have never witnessed a Presidential Inauguration with anyone else. Thank you for all the fun adventures over the last four years, and I cannot wait to see what all you accomplish.

Good evening family, friends, teachers, staff, and the graduating class of 2021.

Right before I started to write this speech a Facebook memory from our fifth-grade recognition ceremony popped up on my phone. It was a video of me giving a speech as student council president. I had been looking for some inspiration for this speech somewhere, and honestly who better to give me that inspiration than the 10-year-old version of myself.

As I watched the video, all I could think was how little that girl knew just how amazing the adventure she was about to embark on would be. One that no doubt was full of trials and tribulations, but one that would be full of exciting times, memories, tears, hard-work, and a whole lot of love.

Kenlee Faye McDANIEL
Daughter of Ryan and Jennifer McDaniel

Life is always an adventure. Make it an adventure that makes you happy and excites you. Looking back,

I can definitely say high school has been an adventure I will always treasure. Because of each one of you, I can without a doubt say that my adventure has been made more whole. But, it doesn't end here, don't forget that.

Before I leave tonight,

there are a few people I would like to thank...

Mom and Dad, thank you for your outpouring of love and support each and every day. You both never fail to help make me the very best version of myself. I love you both and cannot thank you enough for all you do for me.

Bennett and Elle, leaving home is going to be hard, but leaving the two of you will be one of the hardest things I have ever had to do. God really did give me two built-in best friends when it comes to you two, and I cannot wait to watch you make your own mark on this world.

Momma Rosie and Pappy, thank you for teaching me that some of life's greatest adventures begin with just taking that first jump, and the true importance of family.

Maddox, who knew that the boy from Wisconsin that I just happened to go to church with would be someone I could love so much. Thank you for helping to make life so fun, memorable, and supporting me no matter the situation.

Lilianne Grace Newcom

Two minutes is not long enough to tell you all what I want to, but honestly, if I did that, you would be here all night, so I will try to keep it short.

Growing up in Crittenden County has not been easy. It is a small town where everyone knows every single thing you do. Anything you say or do is probable to follow you around. There are times I would convince myself that anything I did was not good enough for this town, as I am sure many of you did and still do. But, the truth is, your value does not rely in the hands of other people. It isn't dependent on the way that other people think of you, It is dependent on the way that you think of yourself. Each one of us has that thing that makes us special, it is just a matter of finding it for ourselves. So, do not take yourself for granted, ever.

Jennifer Jareau once said, "There are things we don't want to happen, but have to accept, things we don't want to know, but have to learn, and people we can't live without, but have to let go."

Lilianne Grace NEWCOM
Daughter of Steve and Dawn Newcom

I do not want to say goodbye to this class or this town. Despite the challenges I have faced here, I do not want to say goodbye to this place, and the opportunities it has offered me, because it helped raise me.

But it is a necessary chapter in order to see what is next for each and every one of us.

I just want to thank a couple of people before I get off the stage. One to my family, your undying support and love means more than you know. No matter what happens, I know I can count on you to be there for me. Two. My parents. I cannot put into words how appreciative I am for you; I owe you my life. Thank you for putting up with me. I know I can be stubborn, but know that it is out of complete and whole love. To my best friends, I would not be here without you. You know who you are. You saved me at some of the lowest points in my life with no hesitation, without even knowing it. And to my classmates, thank you for going through every bit of the last four years with me. I love you each and every one of you. Go out of high school knowing that you have got this. I am so excited to see what all of you do in life and I am beyond proud and honored to know you.

Simon Shepard, it's your turn!

Simon Gabriel Shepard

Thank you, Lili. Before I begin, I would like to thank my friends, some of my teachers, and especially my family for shaping me into the person I am. Now, inclusion, the act of being included. Included, past tense of include. Include, to allow someone into something, for example a group or a clique. Earlier in our school careers, friend groups were being formed across the student body. As a result, in high school especially, close groups and cliques are omnipresent, and this makes it hard for many people to be included into a group of their own. Maybe that person is hard to relate to. Maybe he or she doesn't have access to the best hygiene. Maybe, to some, he or she gives off a vibe that makes him or her hard to approach, even if he or she craves interaction as much as the next person does. Maybe

Son of Danette Shepard

he or she looks too bad to be included, or maybe he or she looks too good. As someone who did not join Crittenden County until my 6th grade year, I struggled quite a bit with inclusion. It took me a year and a half to finally find "my people," and I have stayed in that group to this day. With close-knit cliques, though, there is another problem: many people in different cliques do not interact with each other much. In other words, cliques lead to only a few really close friends and a whole lot of just acquaintances. People would rather interact with the people they know as much as possible instead of breaking away from their comfort zone and talking to the new kid with bad acne and a limp. Really, in this situation, the bad acne and the limp aren't the problems, but rather, it's the fact that they're a new kid; they can't be trusted, or they aren't "an OG." It could be someone really talented, outward, strong, or any other trait, and the same circumstance would apply. What I'm trying to say is: Make yourself accessible to others. Talk to someone you haven't talked to before. Learn about them, what they like, what they do in their free time, and just give them your time. Who knows? You might make a new friend, or better. Now, I will pass it over to someone who has given me their time and interest, Mr. Cole Swinford.

Steven Cole Swinford

Thank you, Mr. Shepherd, and thank you to all the students, teachers, coaches, advisors, and parents that made these four years everything they were.

Thank you Mr. Don Winters for putting up with me for the last 12 years on the chess team and for guiding us to nationals not once but twice. Although you may not be here in person tonight, thank you Mrs. Hardin for getting me into FBLA and helping me find my passion in business. By the way, I still need to show you my China pin from nationals. Thank you Mr. and Mrs. Martinez for making cross country and track a fun and memorable experience — despite my lack of skill. Thank you Mrs. West for teaching me the difference between a verb and a noun and for always having an interesting story to tell. Lastly, thank you mom, grandparents, family, and church members for always being there and pushing me to strive for the best.

Steven Cole SWINFORD
Son of Steve and Tammy Swinford

Four years ago I decided that I would be valedictorian, and that decision led me to prioritize my academics. From taking all advanced classes to loading up on dual-credit courses, this decision helped me push myself to learn more and be better prepared for college. Today, all that hard work has paid off as I reflect on a blur of meetings, due-dates, tests, and shenanigans.

We have all been told that high school goes by faster than we think, and I feel like this is something you don't truly understand until you experience it. It seems like just yesterday we were freshmen, excited to finally sit in the top bleachers of the middle school gym each morning. Now, we're adults graduating, and it almost doesn't seem real. As a four-year band member, the strangest part about graduation has to be hearing Pomp and Circumstance played for me rather than by me.

From freshmen lost in the hallways, we have grown into ourselves throughout our time in high school. Some will go into the workforce, some the Army, trade school or college, and some—well, they don't really know. No matter where you go, I wish you the best of luck and I hope to see you all at future reunions. After all, we didn't make a time-capsule on totally-not-skip-day for nothing.

As my last speech at Crittenden County High School comes to a close, I will leave you with this: Mathew 19:26 "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible."

Thank you for your time, and please welcome Seth Taylor!

Seth Harrison Taylor

"It always seems impossible until it's done" - Nelson Mandela

As put by President Mandela, life will present a multitude of seemingly impossible tasks with high school seeming to be one. Growing up, to me high school seemed like such an impossible futuristic experience that appeared as though it may never come. I distinctly remember always logging into the computers in elementary and middle school with the 21 before the rest of our username for the class's graduating year and always thinking it was some far off impossible date. Well now the date has come. Personally,

Seth Harrison TAYLOR
Son of David and Kalli Taylor

not only large events such as prom and even this one, but even simply eating cereal straight out of the bag in your best friend's car are moments that will forever live on in my memories.

I will not fool everyone in thinking that high school was a magical stereotypical movie. Definitely not. High school was truly a place and time in which everyone experienced growth whether personally or academically. And while many times we have all failed, there's always been something to learn and something to gain.

I'd like to end with a message to my fellow graduates. Just as high school seemed like a daunting and unbearable task, we've made it and now we can continue to succeed throughout our lives. Take what you've learned and felt over the past four years and embrace that as you go into life remembering that most things feel impossible in the moment but will be worth it in the end.

Thank you.

Board chair commends staff

CHRIS COOK

Chairman, Crittenden
County Board of Education

As I have thought about the last 15 months and the many ways that you have cared for our kids and each other, Matthew 25:21 has come to me over and over, “Well done, thou good and faithful servant.” That verse describes each of you and the commitment and sacrifices that you have made over these last 15 months. So I want you to hear the cheers and clapping of a standing ovation for you all.

I just want to highlight a few of the acts of service that you have performed over the last 15 months. Our maintenance team has worked to make sure that our ventilation systems were operating at peak performance. Our bus drivers have cleaned and sanitized their buses before every route this year. Our janitorial team has deep cleaned our buildings every night. Our food services team has prepared breakfasts and lunches for our in person learners as well as our virtual learners. Our in person teachers and instructional assistants have worked to help our students recover any loss of learning. Our virtual teachers have worked to support our students learning from home, even doing home visits for those students who were not engaged. Our FRYSC (Family Resource and Youth Service Center) team...speaking of standing ovations...what have they not done. Our school office teams have helped manage all of the administrative extras associated with the last year. And our administrators have developed, implemented and modified as necessary a Healthy at School plan that is second to none and that should have been adopted as the model plan across our state. In fact, we have had students and staff alike that have asked if they could transfer to our district. And your Board has supported you behind the scenes every step of the way. And now many of you are preparing for TWO sessions of the most engaging summer school program that I think our district has ever offered. Each of you have been courageous champions for our kids. In fact, although we did not have an official theme for this school year, I would offer that our unofficial theme has been courage. Each one of you has had the courage to put our kids above everything else every day and the impact that you have made will be felt for generations to come. Many of you may remember a quote that I have shared from a dear family member. His quote is “we are the sum of our experiences.” I would offer an extension of that, “we are also the sum of all of the experiences of those that came before us” (parents, grandparents, great grandparents and so on). And never forget that our kids come to us as the same sum of their experiences. As I ponder this thought, I reflect on my own sum and a conversation that I had with one of our graduates at our Work Ethic Certification Luncheon. My maternal grandmother was dedicated to my Mom going to college, because of her own hunger for learning and desire for her daughter to have an opportunity that she did not have...the privilege of going to college. So she got up early to milk their cows and gather the eggs from their chickens, so she could sell the milk, cream and eggs. This was all before she went to work at the Tolu School cafeteria. Then she would return home to milk the cows that evening. Because of her sacrifices, my Mom went to college, became a teacher that impacted thousands of students over her career and raised Charles and I to know that going to college was not a question. So when I was talking to this soon-to-be graduate who would be a first generation college student in her family, I shared the impact that her decision and her determination would have on her family for generations. Notice that I referred to my Mom having the privilege of going to college. Our kids continuing their education beyond high school should be more of a statement than a question. That may not be a four-year college or university, it may be a technical school, a community college, the military or an on-the-job apprenticeship, but it should be education beyond high school. Each of you under Mr. Clark's leadership as well as that of his predecessors have been working hard to make that a reality through dual credit opportunities, Madisonville Community College Senior Academy and more. One of the ways that we can help that become more of a certainty is through our Rocket Foundation. I want to challenge each of you to consider a gift to our Foundation, if you are not already doing so. Our payroll deduction plan for this purpose is one option for this. Even a dollar per pay period makes a huge impact. You may ask...how will a dollar make a difference? If every employee donated just one dollar every pay period for a year, that would be in the neighborhood of $5,000 a year for dual credit scholarships and eventually help with other opportunities to help our kids continue their education beyond high school. As our Foundation grows and we seek more donors and grants, one of the first questions that they will have is “what is your staff giving percentage?” In other words, do those on the inside believe in this mission and vision. I want you to know that each of your Board Members has stepped forward and committed to a regular gift to the Foundation with a combined annual total in the neighborhood of $3,000.

Now, let's take just a few moments to think about the last 15 months, the lessons that we have learned and how we can impart those lessons to our students this summer, next school year and beyond. And I want to do that in the context of a quote from Nelson Mandela on the back of this year's Senior Honors Day program, “Education is the most powerful weapon for changing the world.” As we reflect over these last 15 months, the focus has been on the things that divide us. Let's focus on the things that bring us together. One strong example is our kids, who always bring us together. A common purpose truly brings people together.

Lesson 1...we are not always going to agree. In fact, a quote from one of our valedictorians' from General George S. Patton is “If everyone is thinking alike, then somebody is not thinking.” So how do we disagree, without becoming disagreeable or even worse?

1. We love and respect everyone, regardless of their backgrounds or beliefs.

2. We seek to understand through active and empathetic listening.

3. We realize and acknowledge that we can learn something from everyone.

4. We remember that how we say something determines how it is received.

5. We recognize that one of our country’s strengths is in our diversity, including our diversity of thought.

Notice that I never said that we will always agree, but I did use words like love, respect, understand, listen and learn. So how do we impart this lesson to our kids?

1. We demonstrate love and respect, even of people that we do not particularly like or agree with.

2. We listen to our students, our coworkers and others.

3. We highlight things that we have learned from our kids.

4. We always remain humble and kind, neither of which are weak. In fact, it takes an inordinate amount of strength to embody these virtues.

5. We offer opportunities for our students to have healthy, respectful debate.

6. We celebrate our country’s diversity and spotlight how our diversity, especially of thought, has made us the most powerful nation in the world. Our innovation is one of those key examples.

Lesson 2...we are a democracy. To quote President Abraham Lincoln in the Gettysburg Address, it is a “government of the people, by the people, for the people.” In other words, it is (in very general terms) a form of government where the people in a country, state, region or locality elect their fellow citizens to establish, enforce and interpret the laws that govern them. So how do citizens ideally behave in a democracy?

1. They are educated.

2. They acknowledge that one person can make a difference.

3. They participate in the democratic process by

a. Voting,

b. Being active in the political party of their choice,

c. Running for public office,

d. Contacting their elected officials to express their views on issues and

e. Understanding and respecting that their view may not always be the prevailing view.

So how do we impart this lesson to our students?

1. We continue our calling in public education, including lessons on our country, current events, government, history and so on.

2. We share examples of how one person can make a difference, which might include reading one of the stories in The Butterfly Effect by Andy Andrews.

3. We participate in our democratic process by a. Voting and letting our kids know that we voted (perhaps not who we voted for) and

b. Contacting our elected officials to express our opinions on issues and letting our kids know that we did (perhaps not what our opinions are).

4. We provide opportunities for our students to be involved in the democratic process, such as

a. Running for elected offices in school organizations,

b. Offering clubs like the Young Politicians, Young Republicans, Young Democrats and so on and

c. Encouraging them to contact their elected officials on issues, perhaps in the form of a writing assignment.

So as you begin your summer, I challenge you to think about how you can incorporate these lessons into your interactions with our kids. But above all, thou good and faithful servants, take some time to rest from all of your hard work.

Congratulations
GRAD!

We are proud of your accomplishments & wish you a great successful future.

BASEBALL Rockets take Lyon to limit in 5th title game

Crittenden County trailed by seven runs after four innings in Monday's late-night Fifth District championship game at Eddyville. However, the Rockets whittled away and took Lyon to the limit before falling 9-8 in the title match.

It was the third time CCHS has lost to Lyon this season. The Lyons (25-7) are ranked No. 16 in Kentucky.

Crittenden kept pressure on the Lyons' defense late, scoring two runs in the top of the seventh, but couldn't muster anything further. Seniors Tyler Boone and Braxton Winders each had three hits and drove in runs for the Rockets. Maddox Carlson and Gabe Mott had two hits apiece.

Carlson started and threw 3½ innings, giving up eight earned runs and striking out six. Boone pitched 2½ scoreless innings in relief with four strikeouts.

Despite the loss, Crittenden (22-9) will advance to the Second Region Tournament for the fifth straight season. Tournament pairings will be announced later this week.

Rockets dispatch Trigg

Crittenden County's offense was not overwhelming, but provided enough firepower to knock Trigg County out of the playoffs Monday and earn itself a spot in the regional tournament. CCHS got three hits from leadoff hitter and senior Caden McCalister to lead a 6-1 win over the Wildcats in Monday's Fifth District semifinal game at Eddyville.

Senior Logan Bailey pitched a complete game gem, scattering five hits over seven innings while striking out seven and walking only one.

Freshman Hunter Smith drove in two runs for CCHS while McCalister, Trace Adams and Tyler Boone had an RBI apiece.

Rockets break school record for most wins

Crittenden County's baseball team set a new school record for victories on Saturday as the Rockets closed out their regular season with a 7-2 win over Union County.

The boys won 21 regular-season games to set a new record. Crittenden's 2007 team won 20 games.

Junior Ben Evans got the start and the win, going four innings on the hill, striking out three and walking one. Freshman Jeremiah Foster worked the final three innings, allowing no runs.

At the plate, Caden McCalister, Logan Bailey, Gabe Mott and Evans each had hits.

State's Highest Track Honor

Keller is Female Athlete of the Year in Kentucky

STAFF REPORT

Last week, Kate Keller graduated valedictorian from Crittenden County High School.

On Saturday at the First Region Class A finals in Murray, she will be at the vanguard of her track and field team's hopes of qualifying for the state meet. She will also be carrying a new banner – Kentucky Female Student-Athlete of the Year.

Keller was notified last week that she's been selected for the honor. It's the first time a CCHS athlete has earned such lofty recognition.

Keller is a school record holder who has won almost 50 competitive high school track and cross country races and was ranked the top cross country female in Class A last season. She's qualified for Class A state track meets since she was in middle school, and has finished as high as fifth in the state 1600 meters.

Additionally, Keller's resume is chocked full of great performances, plus she's been busy outside the realm of competition, achieving high marks in studies, taking mission trips abroad and earning a track scholarship to Kentucky Wesleyan.

In cross country, Keller has nailed down Class A state finishes of 10th and 15th. She was a Junior Olympian in 5K Cross Country, two-time regional champ in track in the 1600 and 3200 meters and cross country regional champion.

Keller will be recognized during a ceremony June 7 at Midway University near Lexington. Midway sponsors the annual awards, which aim to showcase and promote girls' sports in Kentucky.

Crittenden's Braxton Winders dives back into first during the Rockets' final regular-season game against Union County Saturday when CCHS notched its record-setting 21st win.

Rockets fall at Tilghman

Crittenden County left 10 runners on base and had three key errors in a 6-2 loss at No. 12 Paducah Tilghman last Wednesday.

The Rockets led for the first half of the ballgame, but Tilghman scored two in the fourth and three in the fifth to take command of the outcome.

Junior Maddox Carlson pitched well before tiring in the fifth. Carlson allowed three earned runs, walked three and fanned two while allowing five hits. Junior Logan Bailey finished it in relief, allowing no runs and striking out two in 1½ innings.

Crittenden outit the Tornado 7-6. Carlson and senior Tyler Boone had two apiece.

Senior Caden McCalister was hit by three pitches while batting during the game. This season he has been hit 22 times by pitches. He recently broke the career school record, formerly held by Jordan Roberts. The senior now has been hit 39 times in three seasons, a career shortened because his junior year was lost to the pandemic.

The state record for HBP in one season is 26. The career record is 51. Both McCalister's totals – season and career – qualify for Top 10 listing in the KHSAA record book.

SOFTBALL

Lady Rockets lose in 10, out of playoffs

After playing to a stalemate for nine full innings, Livingston Central senior Micaela Suarez knocked in the game's only run to beat Crittenden County in the semifinal round of the Fifth District Softball Tournament at Eddyville on Monday.

The loss eliminates CCHS from post-season play and ends its season at 16-7.

Livingston turned a double play to end in the game in the last of the fifth with Crittenden threatening to extend in further.

Neither team could get any offensive momentum going during regulation play. With senior pitchers dueling it out – Chandler Moss for Crittenden and Sydney Lasher for LCHS – the bats were relatively silent. Crittenden had seven hits over the 10-inning game, three by Brylee Conyer and two apiece from Jada Hayes and Ashlyn Hicks. Victoria Harris and Suarez each had two hits, accounting for four of Livingston's seven in the game.

With the win, Livingston (17-9) advances to the regional tournament this weekend. The Lady Cardinals were defeated 16-0 by Lyon County in the district championship game, also played Monday.

worked with a startup broadband company during the heyday of Silicon Valley’s tech bubble. That gig took him to Atlanta where he left the business world for education at the urging of some friends who were teachers. He taught, was an athletic director and assistant principal at two schools in Georgia before landing in Ballard County 10 years ago.
Meinschein describes his homecoming as an opportunity to give back to the community that set him off into the world armed with a solid foundation. He wants to touch lives like teachers did for him in the 1980s. Unfortunately, none of his former teachers remain in the district, all have retired. He does draw an interesting connection, however, to someone he will work closely with the central office.
“Jennifer Head is the finance director,” he said. “Her mother (Lisa Head) was my English teacher and she had such an influence on my life.”

Meinschein says teachers in Livingston County encouraged him to work and study hard and those elements helped him to travel and see the world.
“I received a wonderful education at Livingston County and Murray State. I want to provide the same opportunity to Livingston County students,” he said, whether today’s students want to stay at home and continue to build their community or move on to post-secondary education and work and travel abroad.
Meinschein’s mother, Jane, hails from Caldwell County and his father Allan was a longtime Pentecostal pastor in Carrsville. The German surname comes from an adoption in the family tree.
Meinschein is married with seven children ranging in age from 12 to 26.

BALL

sides, in-ground dugouts and covered stadium seats, Guess told me that people coming in from other communities are blown away by the facility at Marion’s park. It sure is an upgrade from Grady Field. The ball fields at the M-CC Park were built in the 1980s, but have seen many improvements over the years. The fences around two youth fields were replaced over the past winter.
It’s no secret to me that the group of men playing baseball under Benton back then were able to learn immensely about the sport, but the most rewarding part they took away from the sport was the advice their coach gave them about life.

After dad stood there watching the local schoolboys’ victory, he turned to me and said, “He taught us it’s not all about how to play ball or how to win or lose – it’s about becoming respected in the community. That was our coach’s goal to get through to us and it’s the same with these coaches, too. It’s not about being out here taking grounders and batting practice. It’s about coming together as individuals and loving each other until the day you die.”
With a record-breaking team, the boys on this year’s roster have played together the majority of their lives and their coaches have followed them through the years just as Benton followed his group.

This year’s baseball team’s results speak for themselves – the winningest team in school history. It’s quite sobering to realize the five seniors have played their last baseball game in Marion before heading into the “real-world,” but they’re great kids and I’m sure they’ll look back just as Dad does and thank God for the men who have taught them more than just baseball strategy.
