Auction indicates plummet in land value

STAFF REPORT

About 80 people, including 24 bidders from five states, attended the highly advertised land auction Saturday that most observers said would be a good indicator of where farm prices had dropped in the struggling economy.

While earlier indicators had foretold of a major decline in local land prices, the stark reality became very clear when only 349 acres in two of six tracts advertised for an absolute auction were sold for an average of $918 an acre.

About a year ago, undeveloped properties and farmland were fetching upwards of $2,000 an acre, driven by a demand for recreational hunting property. Now, prices appear to have dropped, but local real estate professionals are not ready to say the bottom has fallen out.

Albert Burney, Luxury Real Estate Auctioneers, of Gadsden, Ala., conducted the auction last week for a private, out-of-state owner, who did not attend the auction. Offered were 877 acres in six tracts in Crittenden, Caldwell and Livingston counties. Although advertised as absolute – generally meaning the land would sell regardless of price – the auction was stopped much to the chagrin of many in attendance after only two tracts were sold.

Carl Carter, a spokesperson for the auction company, said the auction was ended at the owner's request.

A 151-acre tract sold for $874 an acre and a 198-acre parcel sold for $951, according to the auction company. Both of the tracts sold were in the northern part of the county near Tolu. The prices could not be immediately verified because deeds had not been recorded as of press time.

"It gives us a really good indication of what land is going to bring," said Robert Kirby, a local real estate agent and owner of Bluegrass Auction Realty.

Safetran unveils expansion plans

Gov. Steve Beshear, with the Commonwealth of Kentucky flag in the background, announces last Thursday at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion that cooperation between state economic development interests and Safetran Systems will bring 150 new jobs to Marion. Gov. Steve Beshear joined company and community leaders in Crittenden County last Thursday to formally announce the expansion of Safetran Systems Corp.

Safetran, which has been operating a plant in Marion since 2002, is part of the Invensys Group, a worldwide leader in railroad crossing technology and crossing warning systems.

Safetran is investing up to $2.8 million into its Marion facility, creating approximately 150 new jobs over the next two years. Renovation of the building will begin within weeks and applications are already being accepted by People Plus, Inc.

Company officials say that Safetran will begin ramping up almost immediately and will reach its jobs goal within the next 18 months or so as new

Class of '09 commences adult lives

By DARYL K. TABOR
MANAGING EDITOR

Nearly one-third of Crittenden County High School's graduating class of 77 in 2009 was recognized with some type of academic honor, but for six of the scholars, the honor was special.

Five valedictorians and one salutatorian had the opportunity last week to address their classmates on the last 13 years of academic achievements, friendships and hard times they have shared. Those six made the most of the opportunity to share their reflections and thoughts toward the future.

"We have five valedictorians, and the only reason we don't have more than that is because this class strives, as the saying goes, to be all that it can be," valedictorian Anna Palmer said Friday, addressing her peers during commencement. "Rather than take an easy class for an assured A, most of us would take the harder class, for perhaps a lower grade."

Though her dream job would be to run her own aviary, Palmer, the daughter of Stan and Lola Palmer, will be attending Centre College in Danville, Ky., and is considering pharmacy as a major. She calls earning the honor of valedictorian with nothing but A's during her four years of high school "an accomplishment I have worked toward for a long time."

English to lead Hurricane Camp Meeting

By ALLISON EVANS
PRESS ASSISTANT EDITOR

Steve English is one of those people who can say he grew up at Hurricane Camp Meeting. The camp holds a special place in his heart, as he rarely missed a summer tromping through the graveyard as a child and wiggling on the wooden pews during church in the tabernacle.

Hurricane is one of his greatest loves, so it's no wonder his invitation as evangelist of the 121st camp meeting was accepted with great emotion.

His passion for Christ and love for Hurricane will be evident when English, 39, addresses the congregation next week. Hurricane Camp Meeting begins with dinner at 5:30 p.m., nightly Monday through June 13. Church begins at 7.

"I feel a mixture of being honored, humbled, and blessed. If I were given the option to preach at Hurricane Camp Meeting or a Billy Graham Crusade, I would pick Hurricane without hesitation," English said. "No other place has had a greater spiritual impact on my life."

English, the son of Ann and Phil English and the grandson of the late Rudell and Muriel Jacobs, is a missionary in Guatemala. He and his wife Pam, who met at Asbury College, opened a home for orphaned and abandoned children in Guatemala 15 years ago.

English's son Andrew, 6, traveling to Kentucky with him next week, will be the sixth generation of his family to attend Hurricane.

"Hurricane holds so many happy memories... a sampling of those includes hay rides, hide-and-go-seek in the graveyard, country ham night at the dining hall, my family shacking up in a wasp-filled cabin with our cousins the Micks, Don Donaldson's chalk-talks, and singing old-time hymns under the tabernacle. The list could go on and on."

English and Janet Kemper organized the youth camp that is held concurrent with Hurricane Camp Meeting.

"Of all the memories, the two I'm most proud of are Hurricane's 100th anniversary booklet that I published with the help of the late Paul Mick and the youth camp. The youth camp has seen so many children give their lives to the Lord. This alone fulfills the very purpose of Hurricane's existence which now touches three different centuries."

Don Donaldson, a missionary in Guatemala who was the evangelist at Hurricane many years, had a great impact on English's spiritual life. It was under Donaldson's ministry that English received his calling to the ministry.

English will be speaking on our Trinitarian Relationship with God. He knows he will be filled with emotion as he stands behind the pulpit, recalling the many godly, influential people he knew at Hurricane.

"Some of those are Rodney and Velda Phillips, who served as Hurricane's president for most of my younger years; Hazel Smith, a fellow camper and dear friend now approaching 100 years of age; Leroy Hodge; and my parents. I also have great respect for Janet Kemper who has continued with the youth camp all these years."

Church honors nine graduates

Schools awarded stimulus money

The Crittenden County school district is receiving more than $360,000 in federal stimulus funds for education programs designed for low-income students and students with disabilities, State Rep. Mike Cherry and Sen. Dorsey Ridley confirmed last week. Stimulus funds scheduled to be received by the district for the federal Title I program, which works to provide children with high-quality educational opportunities, and the federal IDEA (Individuals with Disabilities Education Act) program, which helps educate students with disabilities, total $362,384. The funding comprises half of the district's 2008-09 allotted stimulus funds for the Title I and the IDEA programs. The district will receive the rest of the 2008-09 allocation in September. "Funding from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act, which most of us know as the federal stimulus package, is expected to make a tremendous difference to Kentucky's workforce, economy and education system," Rep. Cherry, D-Princeton, and Sen. Ridley, D-Henderson, said in a joint statement. "The approximately $200 million in total Title I and $173 million in total IDEA funds that Kentucky will receive from the stimulus package will help ensure that all Kentucky's children are able to meet state and federal academic standards." Title I programs will receive $198,628 of Crittenden County's share of the stimulus funding, with IDEA programs for school age and preschool children receiving the rest. More funding will be allocated for the 2009-2010 school year, according to state officials.

local real estate agent, still think property values are a bit higher than the auction indicated, depending on the type and location of the land. Standing timber and tillable soil will drive prices upwards, they said. "For hunting land, this appears to be where the price will be for now," Kirby said. "I think the last three auctions we've had in the area have given us a good indication of what ground is worth right now in this economy." A farm near Frances did not sell a few weeks ago at auction because bids, of under $1,000 an acre, did not reach an undisclosed reserve. Williams, a sales associate for Red Hat Realty, said there's no question that prices are down from a year ago, but he still thinks land values are greater than the auction indicated. Williams said values in nearby counties such as Christian and Ohio, where he represents clients, have not tumbled to lows witnessed in recent auctions in Crittenden County. Williams and Kirby say land values in general are still between $1,300 and $1,600 an acre, depending on many factors. "We've had fewer than six farms trade hands since Jan. 1 in Crittenden County. And that's counting these that sold last weekend," Williams said. "So that's not enough to get an accurate figure on where land prices are. I don't think this auction was a market-setter. I think land values are still higher than that." Kirby agreed, but says prices are indeed closer to the 10-year average right now. "Six or seven years ago, land was bringing $1,000 an acre. It's still worth that or more," he said.

Thanks to a new titanium hip,
Jim can use his lead foot again.

ORTHOPEDIC SURGERY

Among the many benefits of his hip replacement is the pressure Jim Lingle can put on the gas pedal of his '68 Chevelle.

JIM LINGLE IS AN ACTIVE GUY. So he didn't take kindly to the damper that his bad hip put on his lifestyle. For example, he had trouble working on his prized 1968 Chevelle. "I'm certified as a GM Master Mechanic," he says. "I like to take care of things myself." Jim sought the help of Dr. Reid Wilson, an orthopedic surgeon at Methodist Hospital. According to Dr. Wilson, a hip replacement was the best option. "This gentleman is really full of life, and there was just no way for him to maintain his vigor without a new joint."

In addition to the total hip replacements like Jim's, Dr. Wilson performs leading-edge procedures that use only partial implants. "Many adults in their fifties, even forties, have hips and knees that keep them from doing the things they love," he says. "But at that age, their joints are not so diminished that we'd consider a total replacement. Using the latest techniques, however, we can repair it with only a partial replacement. Their pain is gone, their mobility's restored and they get back to the activities that make their lives complete."

torian set academic prowess as a goal from an early age.

"It has been my dream since about third grade," said Molly Beavers, daughter of Ronald and Teresa Beavers, about achieving valedictorian status.

Her newest goal is to become a physician. She plans to attend the University of Kentucky, majoring in chemical engineering on a pre-med track.

But the goals the six graduates have shared during school do not make them carbon copies of one another. Since their first kindergarten assignment, each has gone about achieving success with their own personalities and different likes, dislikes, influences and desires.

A couple have embraced math, even calculus, as a favorite subject, while others would choose American history or animal science as their can't-do-without studies. For valedictorian Kayla Buntin, who raises prize goats and was heavily involved in the county's 4-H and FFA program, her love of animal studies correlates to her career aspirations.

"I want to have my own vet clinic," the daughter of Curt and Melody Buntin said.

Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green is where she will begin her undergraduate studies.

Mary Hollamon, whose parents Dawn and Greg Hollamon are teachers at the high school, would like to be a news anchor or host a comedy show, but will study pharmacy at Freed-Hardeman University in Henderson, Tenn., just in case the entertainment career doesn't work out.

The valedictorian enjoys a round of "Jeopardy!" on the television and would most like to meet Olympic skater Michelle Kwan.

"Michelle has a great personality on and off the ice," Hollamon said of her idol.

While country music seems to be popular among the valedictorians and salutatorian, Kara Berry and Andrea Travis also enjoy Christian music. Travis, in fact, would choose Jesus as the person she would most like to meet.

"I would love to have so many unanswered questions answered," the daughter of Brett and Tammy Travis.

Along her journey, the valedictorian hopes to become a kindergarten teacher, earning her studies at Murray State University. Her mother, who has worked in the school district's central office for several years, also earns a living in education.

The daughter of Jack and Michelle Berry, the lone salutatorian of the Class of 2009, Kara Berry, also plans to major in elementary education at Murray State. While her favorite television show is "Jon and Kate Plus 8," a reality show about a couple raising sextuplets and twins, Esther from the Bible would be someone she would like to bump into.

"I admire her ability to stand up for what she believes in," Berry said.

A couple of decades from now, when the memories of graduation have faded and they have made a name for themselves as adults, many of the top six academic achievers from the class of 2009 hope to have their own families and stable jobs. For Palmer, whose graduation speech was the shortest of all six, one simple word best describes where she would like to be at the age of 40.

What an honor

Valedictorian: In Crittenden County, any students who maintain the highest grade-point average, or GPA, in their graduating class are honored as valedictorians. In the case of this year's five valedictorians, all had a perfect 4.0 GPA by earning nothing but A's throughout their entire four years in high school.

Salutatorian: Salutatorians in Crittenden County are honored for having achieved the ranking of second-highest GPA. This year's salutatorian, Kara Berry, was one B shy of a perfection, earning a 3.92 GPA.

Gatton Academy: Matthew Brasher is the first-ever Crittenden County graduate to graduate the Carol Martin Gatton Academy of Mathematics and Science in Kentucky at Western Kentucky University. A member of the inaugural class of academy graduates, Brasher earned 70 college credit hours while concurrently earning his high school diploma.

Commonwealth Diploma: State qualifications for a Commonwealth Diploma require that a student take Advanced Placement courses (one English, one science or math, one foreign language and one elective) and sit for the Advanced Placement exam in at least three of the four areas.

College Prep Diploma: A district honor only, College Prep Diplomas are just below the state standard, requiring students to have taken advanced English their junior year, Advanced Placement senior English, four sciences, two foreign languages and a computer technology class.

Honor Graduate: Any senior who has earned a 3.6 GPA or higher during their high school career is considered an honor graduate.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

Dr. Yarbrough, Board members, Mr. Merrick, Mrs. Nasseri, CCHS faculty and staff, family, friends, and graduates: Good evening and welcome. I really wasn't sure what to speak about tonight. I have been thinking and dreaming about giving this speech since sometime in elementary school, so you'd think I'd have a topic by now. Seven years ago I announced to, well all of you, at our fifth grade DARE graduation that I would be standing here today giving this speech. I'm pretty sure most of you were just shocked that I knew what a valedictorian was at that time, but after all that time we finally made it here to our "real" graduation. Instead of trying to be remotely serious and lecture you about something that I myself have no experience in, I will instead impart some humorous words of wisdom to you. It might be in your best interest to try to actually remember something I say too.

1. If you're too open minded, you're brains will fall out.
2. Not one shred of evidence supports the notion that life is serious.
3. For every action, there is an equal and opposite government program.
4. If you look like your passport picture, you probably need the trip.
5. A balanced diet is a cookie in each hand.
6. Opportunities always look bigger going than coming.
7. Junk is something you've kept for years and throw away three weeks before you need it.
8. Experience is a wonderful thing. It enables you to recognize a mistake when you make it again.
9. Blessed are they who can laugh at themselves for they shall never cease to be amused.

10. When you eat a candy bar or have a wonderful dessert, have a diet drink. The calories are cancelled out by the diet drink.
11. The speed of time is one-second per second.
12. A rich man is nothing but a poor man with money.
13. Have no fear of perfection. You'll never reach it.
14. Risk taking is inherently failure-prone. Otherwise, it would be called sure-thing taking.
15. Always and never are two words you should always remember never to use.
16. The problem with experience is that you don't get until just after you need it.

17. Wisdom is accepting that some days you're the pigeon and some days you're the statue.
18. No man's life, liberty, or property is safe while the legislature is in session.
19. Smoking kills. If you're killed, you've lost a very important part of your life.
20. Ignorance has always been the drug of choice for most people. It is easy to rely upon, easy to digest, and much easier to wake up to the next day.
21. Do not meddle in the affairs of dragons because, to them, you are crunchy and taste good with ketchup.
22. Evening news is where they begin with 'Good evening', and then proceed to tell you why it isn't a good evening.
23. Everyone makes mistakes. The trick is to make mistakes when nobody is looking. And finally...
24. If you can't see the bright side of life, polish the dull side.

Well, hopefully those bits of wisdom helped someone out there. I really just want to let

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

Good evening friends, family, faculty, staff, and most importantly the Class of 2009. First off, I would like to thank each and every person in this arena for coming out tonight to help celebrate the graduation of the Class of '09. I have always wondered how it would feel to stand up on this stage and address my fellow classmates. As a spectator it seemed so exciting and admirable. No one ever mentioned how many people are actually watching you and the result of jittering legs behind this podium. I am truly honored to be standing before you today. I have pondered for the past few days on what to write my speech. I didn't know if I wanted it to be inspirational, reflective, for it to be long, short and so on. I finally decided to relax and just express what God has put on my heart to tell you guys tonight. Every student in a blue gown tonight has succeeded by making it to this day. We all deserve to be here and have earned the diplomas we are about to receive. Since we all have been inspired to make it this far, I have decided to thank the individuals who have helped us in our journey and reflect on some memories we have made throughout our school years. I can't take all of the credit for standing before you today. My parents have provided support and love all throughout my life. They have never forced me or pressured me to make good grades or told me to take the advanced courses. They believed if I performed 110 percent and thought I did the best I could, they were extremely proud of me. My brother also contributed to my academic accomplishments. He pushed me to want to strive to be better than him. He has always encouraged me to apply myself by taking the advanced classes because he believed I was capable of being successful in them and would be prepared for college level courses. The Man who deserves all of the credit is God. I have put my faith in His hands since I got saved, and he has guided me with wisdom to succeed all throughout my school years. There is no way I could be standing before you today if it wasn't for Him and the numerous blessings he has provided me throughout my entire life. The last set of individuals who deserve credit for all of us making it to graduation tonight are the outstanding educators in the Crittenden County school district. We have been taught by excellent teachers throughout our 13 years of school. Mrs. Rita began my journey in kindergarten, Mrs. Burnes taught me the Bill of Rights, Mrs. Iddings taught me how to take bites out of the grammatical elephant, Mrs. Vince has helped bring history to life, Mr. Hollamon has helped me reach the level of calculus, and Mrs. Quertermous has guided me in writing a distinguished portfolio. There are so many other influential teachers I could name, but we would be here all night. These educators deserve a pat on the back for all the hard work and stress they go through to help each student in Crittenden County be successful. There are numerous memories during our school years that I will never forget. I remember carrying Lonna's Barney pillow around all day in elementary school when she had a broken arm; becoming a victim of the perm and braces era; taking the first class trip to Washington,

I have seen the potential of everyone in here, each one of you has a very special talent. Some have social skills, artistic skills, work well with children, agriculture abilities, athletic skills and various others. I have made it this far by the support of my family and God. Philippians 4:13 has helped me through everything. "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me." I am going to miss each and every one of you and have enjoyed growing up and maturing with you. Class of 2009, dream big and prove we can make something of ourselves. We did it! Congratulations!!!

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

It's hard to believe that we are here tonight, preparing to conclude one chapter of our lives and begin another. This week has been something we have all anticipated, but it has also been a difficult one for me, as I struggled to put my feelings and thoughts into words to say. I've had so many ideas run through my head and then the next minute they would disappear. So I thought I would just resort to one of my prepared goat speeches, since I am the goat girl and all. So here goes: Did you know that one thousand barber pole worm larvae can consume over 800 cc of blood a day?... Okay, I'm just kidding. I don't want to make you all suffer any more than you have to. First off, I would like to share something that one of our fellow classmates helped me out with. I sent out a mass facebook message asking for words of inspiration for my speech, only a few replied, but I did get some great material. One message really stuck out to me, and it was words of wisdom from the one and only, my locker buddy, Preston Blake. His words of wisdom were "Stay focused on life and the things that mean the most to you because it goes by fast." I couldn't put it any better. And I hope that when all of this is over and we go our separate ways that each and every one of you will remember to stay focused on your priorities and don't waste a minute of your life, because like Preston said, it flies by, just look at these past 13 years. Besides seeking inspiration from our class, I also turned to a poem titled "The Man in the Glass" that I would like to share.

*And the world makes you king for a day,
Just go to a mirror and look at yourself,
And see what that man has to say.*
*For it isn't your father or mother or wife
Whose judgement upon you must pass;
The fellow whose verdict counts most in your life
Is the one starring back from the glass.*
*Some people may think you a straight-shootin' chum
And call you a wonderful guy,
But the man in the glass says you're only a bum
If you can't look him straight in the eye.*
*He's the fellow to please, never mind all the rest,
For he's with you clear up to the end.
And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test
If the man in the glass is your friend.*
*You may fool the whole world down the pathway of life
And get pats on your back as you pass,
But your final reward will be heartaches and tears.
If you've cheated the man in the glass.*

Now to me, that poem is screaming to work to be the person that I want to be, not what the world wants me to be. I hope that it relates to you in the same way. Because, it's not what the world wants of you, or what our boyfriends or girlfriends want us to be. It is important for us to strive to be the person we wish to be and that God wants us to be. Each and every one of you is unique and has your own special

WHAT DOES BEING VALEDICTORIAN MEAN? It's a great honor to represent my class in this fashion. It's also a goal of mine that I am happy to have met.
WHERE WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE AT 40? I would want to be happy and successful. I hope I would have started a family and my own business.

qualities. Look at Justin Kinnis, who has an amazing voice, James Artist who is an amazing cartoonist and Katie Head who I'd bet can out weld any guy around. It's important that we exercise those talents and gifts that make us who we are. As I leave you all tonight, I want to one day meet up with our peers like Cody Dunham or Mary Hollamon and still laugh like crazy when we talk. I hope that when I see Justin Shuecraft he's still the vehicle fanatic and hard worker he is now and when I seek help for my math homework from Matthew Brasher that he is still the super genius I have always thought he was. As you adventure out into this crazy world, my aspiration for you all is that each and every one of you never loses sight of who you really are, and if you do I hope you find your way back to the mirror. I've said a lot about venturing out into a new world and setting priorities. But what path are you going to take and what is going to keep you from straying from it? Whether you're going to be a great chef like Ashley Cinkovich, be a professional saddle bronc rider like Clint McConnell, work with wildlife like Keathley Brown or work in the healthcare industry like Jessica Gatten, remember this Bible verse from Proverbs 3:5-6. "Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will make your paths straight." When things get crooked, confusing and hard to handle, lean on God and He will straighten things out. All of you who know me know that I am the girl that seems to never stop talking, and for those of you who didn't know me, you are probably wishing I would end this speech sometime soon. In closing, I want to send my appreciation out to my parents, my relatives, and teachers who have shaped me into the young woman I am today. I would like to end, with a few remarks that will be very familiar to my fellow FFA members. As we leave CCHS and mingle with others, let us be diligent in labor, just in our dealings, courteous to everyone and, above all, honest and fair in the game of life. I wish each of you the best of luck in all of your endeavors. Remember, that this isn't good bye, but a see ya later. So, I'll see ya later.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

You should have found a dark blue bead in your chair, I will use this later. What has always amazed me about this class is how talented everyone is. We can perform great athletic feats, such as doing the splits. We have an abundance of artists, hence the kangaroo astronaut. We have state officers and award winners for many national organizations. We also have several talented musicians whom we saw perform yesterday. However, the most widespread talent seems to be in academics. I mean, we have five valedictorians, and the only reason we don't have more than that is because this class strives, as the saying goes, to be all that it can be. Rather than take an easy class for an assured A, most of us would take the harder class, for perhaps a lower grade. For the past four years, we have consistently had the largest advanced classes and typically did very well in them. We didn't develop these talents entirely on our own, of course. Throughout our school years, teachers and others have helped us hone and develop these abilities. Our parents have encouraged and supported us, too. We couldn't have gone this far without them. Back in elementary school we were rewarded with star stickers when we did well. I'd

SALUTATORY ADDRESS

Sarah Caldwell, an American Opera conductor once said, "Learn everything you can, anytime you can, from anyone you can - there will always come a time when you will be grateful you did." We have spent the last 13 years of our lives in classroom learning lessons. Some we were excited about; while we have had lessons to help us develop and thrive in life outside of Crittenden County Schools. Even if we never realized it, the lessons we learned that will stay with us longest are those that our peers taught us. Those people sitting right beside you are the ones that have helped you reach this milestone in life, and the lessons they have taught you are the ideas that will lead you to future success.

is deserved. Stay focused on people with qualities of dedication like Kayla and Jessica have for FFA, motivation like DeBoe and Cody Mac have toward managing their own funeral homes one day, or the optimism Tiffany and Anna have towards life. Many of our peers have the characteristics of success; remain bound to these types of people and you are sure to achieve high.

■ Lesson No. 1: Never Judge a person by Your First Impression. When Keester first joined our class in the fifth grade we all thought he was a quiet boy who kept to himself. Who knew that he would become the person who ripped his pants in Horse Cave, locked himself inside a closet at Dauphin Island during sophomore year, or just recently shaved his head in order to become Jewish in Chicago? David's journey here at Crittenden has taught us that our first impressions aren't always correct. It only takes three to five seconds to make that first impact on a person. Who would want their entire life and abilities to be judged before they even had time to speak? If you allow yourself to learn about someone past those first few minutes you may discover that they are someone just as computer savvy as John, as creative as James or Johanna, as charismatic as Preston, or as musically inclined as Justin, Megan or Dunham. The characteristics our peers possess are things that no one could see unless they were willing to get to know them. Always give someone a chance to make a second impression because you might find a person who will help you succeed, just like your peers have.

■ Lesson No. 2: Who You Surround Yourself With Determines Who You Become. We are an amazing class, filled with some of the most astonishing people I know. The reason each of us has had success in the past is because we have surrounded ourselves with kind, hardworking individuals who have encouraged us to do our very best. Everyone is guilty by association. Become guilty of caring and thoughtfulness instead of uncaring and thoughtlessness. As you go out into the world continue to surround yourself with the type of people who you have already been privileged to have in your life. Never forget how your peers influenced the person you have become and always give them credit where it caps and gowns are moved to the back of our closets. To me, friendship is anchor in this crazy world. Friends are those people who, no matter what is going on in our lives, we can go back to and they will be willing to take us away from it all. It is as C.S. Lewis once said, "Friendship is unnecessary, like philosophy, like art...It had no survival value; rather it is one of those things that give value to survival." To my friends, thank you for being my stronghold, continue to be the people you are right now, never change. Stay close to your true friends and you will have the strength to move mountains.

■ Lesson No. 5: Keep a Thankful Heart. Several people have had a major impact in teaching me essential lessons in life and supported me through whatever I chose to do, and I will always be eternally grateful. To my yearbook girls and Colby, our book's amazing and I'm sure everyone else will think so. To David and Jessica, youth would definitely be different if you weren't around. You have amazing hearts, and I can't wait to see what you do for God with them. To Ashley and Tiera our Dairy Queen days are almost over and I'm not sure how Meri will ever survive without us. Mary, Sandra, and Karl I will miss traveling with you all to those FCCLA meetings. What will we do next year without the stress of Star Events? Ann, I can't wait until next year. I would also like to thank my grandparents for their guidance. I love you all! Last and most important I want to thank Corey, Janson, Jacob, Momma and Daddy. Their love and support has meant the world to me and been an essential part of survival. Thank you for teaching me to put others first, because as Momma always says, "Life's not about you, unless it's your birthday." Thank you for being my best friend. We have spent the last 13 years of our lives in classrooms, but we learned the most when interacting with each other. Characteristics of success was a lesson our peers taught us just by living their lives. The characteristics they possessed lived as examples of how to be. Success is everyone's future, if the last years of our lives are any indication. While I go out into the world to become the next Mr. Hollamon, I give you his words of advice, "Stay committed to excellence and never settle for mediocrity." Take the life lessons you have learned while at Crittenden and make yourself into the person you want the world to see. As Cinderella once sang, "Have faith in your dreams, and someday, your rainbow will come smiling through." No matter how your heart is grieving, if you keep on believing, the dream that you wish will come true."Enjoy the ride!

Warmer weather attracts new basketball coach

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County High School has named Wisconsin native Chad Hayes the new boys' basketball coach.

Hayes, 33, replaces Rob Towery, who resigned last month after four seasons as the head coach.

Athletic Director Angela Starnes announced Hayes' hiring Tuesday afternoon.

"We were fortunate to have had several applicants apply for this position," Starnes said. "We are proud to announce that Coach Hayes has been given the job."

Hayes played basketball at Kohler High School in Kohler, Wisc., and earned a bachelor's degree from Marian University in Fond du Lac, Wisc., where was basketball team captain and a three-year starter.

He leaves a small public school, Princeton High School in Princeton, Wisc., where he has served for five years. There, he was head boys' basketball coach and assistant golf coach. His team finished 11-11 this past season.

A middle school social studies teacher in Wisconsin, Hayes will teach social studies at Crittenden County Middle School. He also has experience as a vice principal and has taught history, religion, English, health and spelling. He also taught for a period in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Hayes said he, his wife and eight-month-old son have been looking to move to the Southeast to escape Wisconsin's brutal winters.

"I hope to get down there build some excitement, develop a lot of relationships and build the feeder programs," he said.

A point guard in high school and college, Hayes says he will employ North Carolina University's style of basketball because his high school coach had played for legendary Tar Heels skipper Dean Smith.

Workers ‘tickled pink’ with Safetran growth

By CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

Now that formal announcements have been made regarding the Safetran expansion in Marion, the question on everyone's mind is when will the new jobs be available.

Last week, Gov. Steve Beshear, Safetran President Kevin E. Riddett, local plant manager Donnie Bane and other company and government representatives officially announced 150 new jobs and a $2.8 million investment in an expansion project in Marion.

"I was tickled pink when I found out about it," said Joey LaPradd, who graduated high school three years ago and found his first 40-hour-a-week job three months ago as a temporary employee at Safetran.

LaPradd and several other of the 25 temps who work at Safetran were part of the assembly at the Marion Ed-Tech Center last week where the governor and others offered real hope for their future.

"For me it means a whole new life," said Josh Tinsley, who graduated high school last year and signed up as a temporary worker at Safetran a few weeks ago. "It could mean more money and a chance to move out on my own."

Most of the temps will be hired on as full-time workers once the expansion project kicks into full gear, Safetran officials said. Those temporary employees say it will mean better pay, better benefits and more job security.

Many employees at Safetran Systems' Marion plant joined company officials, media and other interested parties last Thursday at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion for a joint press conference between state and company officials announcing the company's plans for expansion in Marion.

"Because we're temps, there is no disciplinary plan for us," said George Congenie, another local worker. "When you're a temp, you get one chance, but if you're a full-time employee you are on a points system."

People Plus, Inc., provides all of the temporary workers for Safetran. The company, with offices in Princeton, Henderson, Paducah and Madisonville, conducts interviews and places workers with the local manufacturer. People Plus has also provided employees for other Marion companies such as Henry and Henry Monuments, Par 4 Plastics and Tyler Manufacturing.

Adrian Boyd, manager of the Princeton People Plus office, said all but one of Safetran's 25 temporary workers are from Crittenden County.

Temporary workers have an option of participating in a benefits plan that includes a cost-share health insurance program. However, the temporary workers who spoke to the media last week said they earn $8 an hour and chose not to participate in the benefits that were offered.

Bane, the plant manager in Marion for almost five years, said the average full-time worker on the Safetran payroll earns $13 an hour, plus benefits.

Safetran employees say their cost is very low for health insurance. Safetran picks up the balance. They also said the 401K and vacation plans are incentives for being a Safetran employee instead of a temporary worker.

However, all new workers will be hired first through the temporary service, Bane said. Applications are taken online at www.peopleplusinc.com or at one of the area offices. The Princeton office phone number is 365-2300. Interviews are scheduled and generally conducted in Princeton.

Once a temporary worker has established himself as a productive employee, he or she will be added to the Safetran payroll and offered a full-time benefits package. The company does not receive state economic assistance until the employee becomes a full-time Safetran worker.

Vicki Hobbs, a temp at Safetran, said workers have not yet been told when they might be transitioned into a permanent position, but she like many of the others are optimistic that they will be among the first to get a full-time job thanks to last week's announcement.

In addition to hiring new employees, Safetran will conduct a major renovation project, refurbishing inside and out the former Marion Mining Bolts facility where it is located.

"Renovation could start within a few weeks," Bane said.

Gov. Beshear pointed out that construction workers independent of Safetran will also be put to work on the renovation and expansion project.

For Dean Ingram, seeing the company grow is very special.

Ingram is a manufacturing engineer at Safetran. He and former partner Dale Kemper are largely responsible for the company locating in Marion earlier this decade. The two were Tyco employees when it closed the manufacturing facility here in 2001. They started their own company, D&D Automation in a metal garage next to Kemper's house on Crittenden Springs Road.

Their company of fewer than a dozen employees started out adjusting one particular relay switch for Invensys Rail Group. It was a device they had all worked on at Tyco. Little did they know back then, that by landing the contract, it opened the door for Safetran's future in Marion.

Safetran eventually absorbed D&D's operations and has already expanded one other time at its Marion facility.

"I am really proud for the community," said Ingram.

Riddett, the president of Louisville-based Safetran, said competition for these new jobs was "fierce." He said the Marion facility was chosen because of its production record and its employees. Riddett pointed out that new federal law will open new markets for safety switches in the rail industry and he thinks Safetran is well positioned to grab part of that market share well into the future.

lines are moved to Marion.

"The expansion of our existing industries is vital to our economic progress," said Gov. Beshear. "Today's announcement that Safetran Systems Corporation will make an additional investment into the Marion facility, creating 150 new jobs, is wonderful news. The economic impact will be felt throughout the entire region. I'm delighted the Commonwealth could partner with Safetran and the community to make this project a reality."

Safetran plans to significantly upgrade and expand its current facility, a 110,000-square-foot facility in the South Industrial Park. Safetran's corporate headquarters is in Louisville. Kevin E. Riddett, president of Safetran, said the company had many options when it came to expansion and chose Marion because of its work force.

"Companies have lots of choices. Our choices are no longer local choices, they're about global choices whether to produce in India or China or somewhere else around the world," Riddett told a crowd of more than 100 assembled at the Marion Ed-Tech Center for last week's announcement. "When you're competing against the global environment and companies make these decisions, they're really committed and it's all about people."

Riddett said the work force at Marion is what drew it here and along with cooperation from the Kentucky Economic Development Cabinet and local government, the partnership will remain strong well into the future.

"My congratulations to the employees of Safetran who made this possible," he added. "I really look forward to this company continuing to grow. My challenge to the governor and the rest of the people here is that we continue to do that and come back in the next few years or sooner and announce the next expansion."

Established in 1920, Safetran has five facilities, two located in Kentucky, and one in California, New York and Florida. Products include electro-mechanical signal devices, the electrical/electronic control systems that activate them, communications systems, as well as complete signal system design and construction.

Riddett and local plant manager Donnie Bane explained that the new jobs will include many technician positions and more assembly workers with a focus on electronic devices.

The Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority (KEDFA) preliminarily approved Safetran for tax benefits up to $2,275,000 under the Kentucky Rural Economic Development Act, an incentive program designed to attract and expand manufacturing employment in the state. Additionally, the company was approved by KEDFA for a $525,000 Economic Development Bond to assist in the expansion.

"This is tremendously positive news for our community and a testament to the skills of Kentucky workers," said Sen. Dorsey Ridley, (D-Henderson). "The people of Marion — and all Kentuckians — should be proud of their partnership with Safetran Systems. It's an example of the great things that can happen when private businesses work with local and state officials to build stronger communities."

Job applications should be made through People Plus, Inc., which has offices in Princeton, Henderson, Paducah and Madisonville. Bane said new hires will begin almost immediately.

"The transition is already under way," he said.

"I'm delighted with this announcement and happy state government was able to make a positive contribution," said Rep. Mike Cherry, (D-Princeton). "But, I am particularly pleased that Safetran has recognized our most important asset — the quality and productivity of our local, home-grown work force. Given the opportunity, I'm confident they can compete favorably with any work force anywhere. We all need to thank them for their pivotal role in making this expansion happen."

Chamber honors community's best

STAFF REPORT

A tearful Merle Myers accepted the award of Unsung Hero alongside her husband Jim, at last Thursday's annual meeting of the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce.

Recognized for their years of service to the community as both volunteers and owners of Myers Bed and Breakfast on East Depot Street, the Myerses graciously accepted the honor.

"When told the committee had chosen them, Merle's first comment was, 'There are others who deserve it more,'" presenter Barbara Myers said before handing over a plaque designating the award.

Born and raised in Crittenden County, Jim's desire to one day return to the area came to fruition in 1988 when he and his wife opened the inn. Since that time, the couple has not only been getting up at the crack of dawn to cook breakfast for occupants, but taking them on tours around the county and volunteer efforts in the community like playing Santa Claus, cooking for the Crafters' Cafe, decorating patient trays at the hospital or driving the Marion Bobcats' bus they donated for team travel. Last December, the Myerses were also honored as grand marshals of the annual Accepting the Volunteer of the Year Award was Sarah Ford. When presenting the award, Corey Payne had to catch his breath as he named off the long list of organizations and groups for which Ford has contributed countless hours over the years. From Sunday school teacher to 4-H leader, Ford has been donating her time to the community since 1972.

Chris Evans, editor and publisher of The Crittenden Press, was named Person of the Year, top honor from the Chamber. Besides guiding the local news for the last decade and a half, Evans has established Hunters for the Hungry and served on various committees and boards.

Rick Riley accepted the Community Pride Award on behalf of Crittenden County Detention Center, chosen for the virtually-free labor contributed by inmates to keep municipal and community interests clean and maintained.

Alma Tabor, a longtime employee at Marion True Value, was honored with this year's Customer Service Award.

She treats every customer with courtesy and respect," outgoing Chamber President Mark Bryant said of Tabor.

Club gala has Hatfield, McCoy theme

The clash of forks and knives was heard in downtown Marion last Friday night when the Woman's Club of Marion held its annual Spring Gala. The guest list was made up of Hatfields and McCoy's, who put away their fuedin' when they sat down together for a meal consisting of fried chicken, country ham, black eyed peas, greens and other traditional fare.

Musical entertainment was provided by Thom Hawthorne, Larry Starr and Stephen Crider. Jackie Cook kept things hoppin,' as she roamed from table to table pickin' on both clans. A real descendant of the McCoy family was present as Jake Urbanowski played the revenueur.

A highlight of the evening was William Ralph Paris Jr., who sang an Appalachian folk tune and made a small wooden man dance on a paddle as he tapped the paddle with his fingers.

The excitement heightened as bids were taken from each table during the cake auction. Thanks to Sandy Urbanowski and her committee for making this fundraiser a success.

Stephen Crider, Larry Starr and Thom Hawthorne – members of the Possum Wranglers – entertained guests at the Woman's Club of Marion's spring gala.

The money raised will go for the Marie Frazer Scholarship, which is given to a Crittenden County senior girl each year at graduation. It also funds the English Award and upkeep of the club building.

A potluck salad luncheon and meeting will begin at noon, June 10. After the meeting a trip is planned to Caroline Kieffer's home and garden. There will be no meeting June 3.

Natalie Tabor and her daughter, Shelby Peek, spent spring break in Puerto Rico. They visited Old San Juan where they toured the historic district (including the capitol and Castillo de San Felipe del Morro) and enjoyed shopping. They went to dinner with friends from Paducah also vacationing in Puerto Rico and ate at a reportedly wonderful restaurant, Marisqueria Atlantica.

The BODIES exhibition was on display and Shelby, a future doctor, had to go see it. Natalie said, "We joked that we had to go all the way to Puerto Rico just for this exhibit since we missed it when it was in St. Louis!"

The highlight of the trip for Shelby was touring the El Yunque Rainforest. Natalie said, while she had moaned and complained about having to get up early to go with 'a bunch of old people' to the rainforest, her whole attitude changed when she learned Johnny Depp was filming a movie there. "As we were winding up through El Yunque (which reminded me of The Smokies, but with palm trees), we rounded a curve and there he was! He was filming a scene with Aaron Eckhart." After blowing kisses at Johnny for an hour and taking his picture, she spent the next 10 hours texting, Facebook-ing and calling all of her friends to gloat!

Parents can help newborns strengthen vision, muscles

Parents may need ideas for playing with their newborn baby. Carole Gnatuk, UK Extension Child Development Specialist, says, "It would be easy to think that such a young baby is not very responsive. She sleeps a great deal, sometimes when the rest of the world is awake. She cannot talk or even smile. Her cries may be difficult to understand from the communication standpoint." However, there are helpful ideas for playing that advance the very young baby's development and responsiveness. A few play ideas are described below.

Strengthening vision. The newborn's ability to see objects and people is not well developed at birth. With practice, the baby's vision improves to nearly adult level by less than one year of age. During the first few weeks, you are your baby's best plaything. Stay about 10 inches above your baby's face while he is awake and alert. His eyes can focus on your face at that distance. Talk to him softly and smile while you look into his eyes. Call him often by his name. He especially likes gazing at your moving mouth and your bright eyes. By four to six weeks of age, he will begin to imitate your smile. To strengthen your baby's eye muscles to improve focusing at longer distances, try hanging infant toys that are brightly colored above the crib and to start with, about eight to 10 inches above his face. The toys should have no sharp edges. The baby may try to bat or swipe at them, especially if they make pleasing sounds.

Strengthening muscles in the head and upper body. Spread out a blanket on the floor. Place your baby face down on the blanket. Sit on the floor beside the baby. Place a rattle in front of the baby's head and shake it. Call her by name and say, "Here is a blue rattle. Can you raise your head and look at it? Listen to the sound it makes." Watch her try to raise her head and shoulders to look at the rattle. Praise her for her effort and tell her what she is doing. "I see you can raise your head a little bit. Good for you!" If you play this game regularly with various toys or small books, she will improve her ability to raise herself. Be sure to notice when she gets tired, and stop the play.

Developing the sense of touch, awareness of body parts, and well-being. Place baby lotion within easy reach of the changing table or a blanket on the floor. After you have changed your baby's diaper and while the baby is lying face up on the table or the floor, place yourself in front of the baby. Reach for the baby lotion and place a small amount on your hands. With soft, gentle stroking motions, message the baby's body from the center to the outside. Then do the same for each arm and each leg. You may name the body part you are stroking, count the strokes out loud, or sing a slow lullaby or counting song. Smile and look at the baby's eyes as you nurture your child in this way. You are helping your baby become wonderfully aware of his body. He will also feel relaxed and nurtured, and may even fall asleep.

These are only a few of the many games you can play with your young baby. Even at this young age, you are your baby's first and most important teacher. You are helping your child develop that essential trust in you and the world around, the foundation for all further development. You will also feel nurtured as you play with your baby in these ways.

I'm following the path God laid for me.
I took His hand when I heard Him call
I turned my back and left it all.
I could not stay another day, to laugh, to love, to work or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way.

Hodge hanging up ball spikes

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER
Citing a desire to spend more time with his family and watch his daughter Jessi rodeo during the summer, Rocket baseball coach Denis Hodge resigned last week after 14 years at the helm. Hodge finalized his decision last week, informing his team of his intentions the day after they were eliminated by Christian County in the Second Region Tournament.

"It's something I've been struggling with all year. I've prayed about this decision for a long time," said Hodge. The longest tenured head baseball coach in school history, Hodge said he wanted to give the administration all the time it needed to find a new coach. "The team deserves the best coach we can get," he said. After serving as an assistant for former Rocket baseball coach Vince Clark for one season, Hodge took over the reins in 1996. Despite his inaugural season being a bit rocky with a 6-20 mark, it did not take long for Hodge to turn things around. In his second season, they rebounded to go 17-14 and made an appearance in the Second

Region Tourney as the district runnerup. After capturing his first Fifth District title as head coach in 2000, Hodge would capture two more – both coming over the last two seasons. More accomplishments during his tenure included the 2007 squad setting a school-record 20 wins, last year's team capturing the Class A Second Region Tournament title for small schools and making it to the Second Region semifinal round the last two postseasons. But in his usual humble fashion, Hodge deflected the accomplishments to others and the hard work they put in. "It's nothing I have done," he said. He thanked former Crittenden County School Superintendent Dr. Dennis Lacy for hiring him back in 1995 and giving him a chance to do what he loves at his alma mater. He also thanked longtime local baseball supporter Gordon Guess and many others.

BASEBALL UPDATE
Henderson County defeated Christian County 4-1 in the Second Region Baseball Tournament last week at Madisonville. Christian eliminated Crittenden in the semifinal round and Henderson beat Madisonville in the other semifinal.

Seven earn post-season honors

Seven Crittenden County softball and baseball players earned All District and All Region honors over the past couple of weeks as high school seasons wrapped up. From baseball, Rocket pitcher Ronnie Howton and shortstop J.D. Gray were named to the All Second Region Team. The Rockets were 1-1 in the regional tournament, losing in the semifinal round to Christian County.

Gray, first baseman Dylan Clark, outfielder Alex Porter and third baseman Cody McDonald were named to the All Fifth District Team. Crittenden won the district title. Softball players Sammie Jo Quisenberry and Shanna Williams were named to the All Fifth District Girls' Fast-pitch Softball Team. The Lady Rockets were defeated in the first round of the district tournament.

Marion Bobcats fall 6-1 in home opener

The Marion Bobcats grabbed their first-ever share of first place since joining the KIT League last season with a dramatic 7-4 extra-inning affair Friday at Tradewater. Marion pushed the Pirates to extra innings on opening night across the league by scoring two runs in the top of the ninth to knot the score at four, allowing Andy Harris the opportunity to drive in three runs in the 10th with a bases-clearing double. Reliever Ryan Rogers (1-0) pitched the final three innings for the win. But the Tradewater club would exact revenge in the last two games of the three-game set at Riverside Park, taking Saturday's contest 4-0 and Sunday's 5-2. Sunday's game was marred by controversy when the Bobcats protested the Pirates' use of composite bats, which are prohibited in league rules. General Manager Gordon Guess filed a formal complaint to league headquarters Monday, which could force the game to be replayed if Commissioner Randy Morgan rules against the Pirates. On Monday, the Bobcats opened their home schedule with a 6-1 loss against defending KIT League champion Owensboro. The result of Tuesday's game against the Oilers was not available at press time. The Bobcats are at Sikeston tonight (Thursday), but play the next six games at home starting on Friday against Sikeston.

Traveling Players

Ethan Hunt (left) and Paxton Riley recently joined the P-Town Tigers traveling 9-under baseball team. Hunt and Riley both stepped in and helped the team win three games at a recent tournament in Owensboro. They were stopped Sunday, May 24 in the semifinal round by Jasper, Ind., a team that they had defeated the day before. The Tigers finished third in the tournament. The team has qualified to play in the Little League World Series July 29 through August 2.

This team of area golfers recently won its second straight championship in the Western Kentucky Homebuilders Golf Scramble at Drake Creek Golf Course in Ledbetter. The team won with a score of 59. Young animals galore, but it’s best not to disturb them Wildlife seems to be everywhere in spring. We see birds nesting, ducks and geese taking their young for a swim, and sometimes we even spot a deer fawn resting under a bush or in a field. When young wildlife appear to be orphaned, many people want to step in. However, these animals are almost never abandoned. The best thing to do is leave young wildlife alone.

“Mostly, people find fawns while mowing a pasture or cutting hay,” said David Yancy, a big game program biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. “Based on the phone calls we occasionally get, they tell us they saw a doe (female deer) hit on the road, and they know for a fact that was the fawn’s mother. That isn’t necessarily true – this is getting into the time that they’re all fawning.”

More likely, the fawn’s mother is nearby and will return later. Does leave their young for several hours at a time, which not only gives the adult deer time to feed, but also keeps predators away from her fawn.

“Sometimes people will find a fawn while mowing and need to move it out of the way, but they think the doe won’t take it back if they touch it,” said Yancy. “We used to think that was the case. But more and more it appears that isn’t true. The doe will take the fawn back.”

Yancy said the fawn can be moved a short distance, and the mother will be able to find the fawn later. “Usually the mother-fawn bond is pretty resilient,” he explained. “Fawns are very rarely orphaned or abandoned.”

These two fawns were captured on camera by Crittenden Countian David Brown. He said the deer were less than an hour old. He snapped a couple of shots and left the site undisturbed as prescribed by wildlife officials.

Many farmers must cut hay in May or June to get the best crop. However, landowners who are mowing only for looks may consider delaying their mowing until early July. This gives fawns a chance to grow stronger, and they will be able to stand and run from the oncoming mower after a few weeks of life.

People are also likely to encounter young birds at this time of year. The same rules apply to these wildlife as with deer fawns: it’s best to leave them in the wild.

“If you see a baby bird or a fledgling, you should leave it alone. Most likely the parents are nearby,” said Shawchyi Vorisek, an avian biologist with Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. “The parents stay with their young at least until they can find food on their own.”

People also should never move a nest with eggs or young in it. It is a violation of federal law, and it may cause the parents to abandon the nest.

“Observe nests from afar,” added Vorisek. “Don’t go up to the nest or touch it, as that can leave a trail for predators to follow.”

Only licensed wildlife rehabilitators may possess injured or orphaned wildlife. People should not attempt to take wildlife to a game warden or area wildlife center. To locate a licensed rehabilitator, go to Kentucky Fish and Wildlife’s website at fw.ky.gov and click on the “Hunting, Trapping & Wildlife” tab, then on “Injured and Orphaned Wildlife.”

Here is some news from Ford’s Ferry 1917

Thanks to the local chatty and informative Ford’s Ferry correspondent to The Press, we can have a look back at what was going on in the town of Ford’s Ferry in 1917, as well as the surrounding areas, business on the Ohio River, and even some world news.

Crittenden Press, July 10, 1917

The farm products are all growing nicely in this neighborhood at the present time and the prospects for a good crop are usually bright. We do not think that many of the American people are likely to starve, notwithstanding all the predictions which have been made to that effect.

Most enthusiastically do we endorse the great aeroplane construction program which is being promulgated by the American War Department and which calls for the expenditure of $600 million in the building of aircraft for military purposes. The airship has proven to be an tremendously important factor in the present great conflict and if the Allies can maintain the complete upper hand in the sky they will conquer the enemy much quicker than they would without the aid of this great advantage.

Your correspondent took a real nice bycicle ride a few weeks ago and after it was all over he also experienced a real nice fainting spell – the only time during his whole life that he has ever collapsed from over-exertion, thus proving that bicycle riding is harder work than any farm work.

There are many people who claim that the steamboat has long since passed its great era of usefulness. We do not deny this assertion which so many people are making but we do deny any statement which says that the steamboat is of no further use whatsoever. For many years to come the river commerce will be profitable and beneficial for quite a number of people.

The railroad may still be the principal means of transportation but it is certainly not the only means. There is no likelihood whatsoever of the steamboat being entirely done away with any time during the immediate future.

Candidates are thicker than fleas in August and each one of them is trying to impress upon the people what a tremendously fine fellow he is, and what a catastrophe it would be for the county if he is not nominated and elected. We are afraid there will be quite a number disappointed once the final test is made at the polls. It is utterly impossible for every office seeker to be elected but some benefit at least will accrue from their candidacy. They will at least practice courtesy and politeness during the period in which they are running for office even though they should relapse back into the old rut after it is all over.

We are highly gratified to know that Gen. John J. Pershing will be the Commander in Chief of the American Army which will be put upon the fighting line in Europe. According to all appearance, Pershing is possessed of unusual qualities as a military leader and we believe that he will conduct the operations in a most skillful energetic matter. Under his able, an efficient leadership the American troops will not suffer more than half the losses which they would sustain if they were directed by a headstrong man like Roosevelt.

Quite a number of people from this vicinity attended Children's Day at Mt. Zion on Sunday, July 8, and it certainly proved to be some entertainment indeed. Mt. Zion has long been noted for the immense crowds which have gathered at that place and we think that the last big crowd was just as large as any that have ever been seen at Mt. Zion.

There were people from almost every part of the county including a considerable number from Marion. People came in automobiles, in buggies and almost every other variety of vehicles imaginable. For fear of falsely misrepresenting the situation we will not say that everybody experienced a fine time, for somebody is always half sick or feeling bad on an occasion like that. We firmly believe, however, that the great majority of those who were present enjoyed themselves nicely and were well pleased with the entertainment, which consisted of a beautiful arranged program on the parts of both the children and grown ups who participated in the exercises. A number of excellent recitations were rendered by the children in the morning and a number of splendid songs were given by the Marion quartette in the afternoon.

In addition to many other things, the people were also treated to a nice dinner, so sumptuous and magnificent as to be fit for the gods. It was a day which will be long remembered by those who were present.

November 29, 1917

A number of splendid potato crops have been harvested in this part of the county during the past few weeks. The potatoes of the present year are unusually large and thrifty and some of the crops in this county have averaged at least 1,000 bushels per acre.

The river is rising, rising and the steamboats are chugging, chugging as they play backward and forth up and down the great stream. The river commerce seems to be unusually active the present year and a large amount of stuff is being shipped by water.

The transportation facilities of the railroads are completely overcrowded at the present time, which explains in a large measure the greatly increased activities of the steamboats.

A patent medicine vendor recently visited this community and he endeavored in a most conscientious manner to convince some of the people that his medicine was the real, genuine stuff for all people who are afflicted with bad health. He refused to put any satisfactory guarantee behind his medicine, however, and was somewhat disappointed on account of his lack of success in this neighborhood. Your correspondent has got but little confidence in the great majority of the medicines which are being advertised and at the present time. There is no medicine in the world which is equal to the pure air, good water and bright sunshine which God has given us.

A large amount of splendid sorghum was produced in the neighborhood during the present season, which is quite remarkable when we take into consideration the unusually inclement weather which prevailed during the month of October.

Uncommonly large frost and even freezes failed to damage a large part of the cane in this vicinity and only one crop was damaged so badly that it could not be made up.

There is something rather strange and unexplainable about sugar cane. Sometimes a single frost will ruin a crop of cane but there are other times when even a series of continuous freezes will not seriously damage it.

Your correspondent recently visited the Seminary School and he was treated in a real nice manner by the teacher and the pupils. Your pencil pusher was ardently requested to deliver a speech for the benefit of the school and after some persuasion he finally ventured upon the floor and gave his listeners a number of his ideas and opinions in regard to education and also narrated a number of his school experiences when he was a little boy.

Both teacher and pupils seemed to appreciate the address and your correspondent was invited to come back again and make another talk, all of which he agreed to.

Walter Hughes, of Possum Ridge, who is now a member of Uncle Sam's National Army at Camp Zachary Taylor, has recently won a gold medal in a big fiddling contest which was held at that place. According to some reports, this medal was emblematic of the championship of the American soldiers who are situated at the camp.

The people of Crittenden should be proud that one of its boys was fortunate enough to win this important honor.

Mr. Hughes having been distinguished on account of his ability as a violinist, and he has practiced a great deal with this instrument during the past 10 years.

In addition to his musical accomplishments, he is also a good marksman and this qualification combined with his husky strength and endurance will enable him to make a splendid soldier, one which our country can well be proud of.

Injuries in 3 wrecks Saturday in county

Local and state authorities investigated three automobile accidents Saturday. Motorists were injured in each of three wrecks on Ky. 1917, Ky. 132 and U.S. 641. Brenda K. Blanchard of Providence Road was injured when her 1988 Dodge Ram pickup ran off Ky. 1917 and hit a tree shortly after noon. She was taken to Crittenden Hospital with chest injuries. According to Kentucky State Police, Eddie Knight of Marion was slightly injured when his vehicle ran off the road in front of Jones' Pawn Shop on U.S. 641 South just before 4 p.m. A third accident occurred on Ky. 132 and the driver was taken to the hospital and later cited for traffic violations. The name of the female driver was not available at press time.

Arizona man dies in Livingston accident

An Arizona man died in a two-vehicle accident Thursday afternoon when the SUV he was driving collided head-on with a Livingston County school bus on U.S. 60 just east of the Cumberland River Bridge near Smithland.

Trevor Wayne Hammond, 22, of Camp Verde, Ariz., was traveling east at about 2:30 p.m., when his vehicle crossed into the westbound lane, striking the school bus. The driver of the bus, Denise Kazumba, 40, of Salem tried to stop but couldn't avoid a collision, according to police reports. The Livingston coroner pronounced Hammond dead at the scene.

A passenger in Hammond's vehicle, Heather Jo Travis, 21, was transported to Western Baptist Hospital by ambulance and was later taken by PHI air ambulance to Vanderbilt Hospital in Nashville. Another passenger in the SUV, Colton Lawless, 1, of Smithland, was transported to Livingston Hospital with minor injuries.

Neither the school bus driver nor her two passengers, ages 12 and 9, were injured.

Road checks net little; police beef up patrols

Only a handful of minor violations were found during police road checks on Ky. 91 North and U.S. 641 South this past weekend. State Trooper Matt Foster said a few drivers were cited for license infractions, but no moving violations were found. Police will continue beefing up patrols this summer in an effort to curb the number of accidents in the county.

"As we enter into the summer months, Kentucky State Police will step up our traffic enforcement activities with an increased emphasis on impaired drivers, speeders and seat belt infractions," said Commissioner Rodney Brewer. "The increased police presence will hopefully curtail the rising number of injury related crashes that we traditionally see during the 100 deadly days of summer."

Police: Park death was self-inflicted

Local police say a Marion man committed suicide in his SUV parked near the track at Marion-Crittenden County Park early Saturday morning. Investigators, including county coroner Joe Myers, were dispatched to the scene. No foul play was suspected. No further details were made available.

Crittenden among 22 counties to get aid

President Barack Obama on Friday declared parts of Kentucky devastated by May storms, tornadoes, flooding and mudslides a major disaster, making federal funding available for recovery.

Gov. Steve Beshear said in a news release that Crittenden and 21 other counties will be eligible for federal funding, and in four of those counties, individuals will be able to apply for grants, low-cost loans and other programs to help rebuild. According to the White House, the eligible counties are Ballard, Breathitt, Carlisle, Clay, Crittenden, Floyd, Grayson, Hickman, Jackson, Knott, Lawrence, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Madison, Magoffin, Marshall, Owsley, Perry, Pike, Russell, and Trigg.

In all of those counties, federal funding will be available to eligible local governments and certain private nonprofit organizations on a cost-sharing basis for emergency work or the repair or replacement of facilities damaged by severe storms, flooding, toradoes and mudslides. Additionally, the federal funds will be available for "hazard mitigation measures" for the entire state, the White House statement said.

The White House says the federal funding will be available for weather events that occurred from May 3 to May 20.
