Opposition to city annexation may force question to November ballot

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

Residents living along Airport Road, who are the target of annexation, say they feel misled and misinformed about the city's expansion plans.

Several residents attended last Wednesday's special meeting of the Marion City Council to express their feelings. Speaking for the residents was Priscilla Graham of 350 Airport Road. She said the city has not been truthful with residents about its intentions.

"All I want is clarity and to be dealt with honestly," Graham said.

Graham said city officials are wrong if they think most of the people living in the targeted area are in favor of annexation of their property into the corporate city limits, which means they will receive city services and also go onto the city's property tax rolls.

"As of now, 19 of the 25 property owners have signed our petition," Graham said a day after last week's meeting.

Residents present at the meeting mostly confirmed their opposition to the plan, even though they have been promised city sewer service.

Currently, the residents' homes have septic systems.

City Administrator Mark Bryant said second reading of the annexation ordinance – scheduled for last week – was delayed because the city did not inform residents by formal letter in the legally required time frame.

According to KRS 81A.410 "Notice of the proposed annexation must be mailed to each property owner within the area to be annexed no later than 14 days prior to the meeting at which the intent to annex ordinance will be read for the second time."

Plans are to revisit the ordinance during the city's regular monthly meeting at 6 p.m., on Monday, June 18.

Although nine residents came to last week's meeting and 78 percent of property owners have reportedly signed the petition, the city administrator does not believe that hurts the city's chances of getting the plan approved.

"Only a handful of people showed up," Bryant said. "They claim to represent the majority of the people out there, but that is not necessarily the case."

Bryant said once the second read-

Annexation is a compound Latin word meaning "ad the joining." It is a legal right given to many geopolitical entities such as cities. Annexation differs from cession and amalgamation, because unlike cession where territory is given or sold through treaty, or amalgamation where authorities of both sides are asked if they agree with the merger, annexation is generally a unilateral act where territory is requisitioned through statutory means.

Presumptuous? A sign near the airport welcomes folks to the city, even though the road behind it is not yet inside the city limits.

ing occurs, residents have 60 days to present their petition. If they meet statutory requirements, the matter would be put on November's general election ballot. Only residents from the targeted would be allowed to vote on the question. If 55 percent oppose it, the plan fails. Otherwise, it passes.

Graham said those fighting annexation will put in time and effort to stop it.

"When it goes to ballot that's when it favors Marion because you need less than the majority to win the vote," Bryant said. "The city only needs 45 percent of the vote for annexation to go through."

Residents have until Aug. 14 to complete their petition and have it certified.

State dedicates Sturgis WMA More land acquisition coming later this year

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

Just fewer than 100 people came out to the dedication ceremony of the Big Rivers Wildlife Management Area in Union County last Wednesday. The new, 2,500-acre recreational area is located two miles north of Sturgis off of Ky. 1508.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife presented speakers, lunch and tours of the new Big Rivers WMA.

Kentucky state senator Dorsey Ridley said the dedication of the property is only the beginning.

"It's the start of a dream come true," Ridley said. "For me I use the term perpetuity. We are going to use this in perpetuity, meaning forever. It's a great effort on all of our parts."

Terry Cook, state director of The Nature Conservancy, said no one group gets credit for the creation of the property, but instead many will share its benefits.

"These types of acquisition projects don't come along very often," Cook said. "When they do come along it takes partnerships to make it happen."

Cook said it is the people of western Kentucky who will benefit most from the creation of Big Rivers WMA.

"This will provide great benefits for this generation and many generations to come," Cook said.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife spokesman Mark Marraccini said the area will be supported by the selling of Nature's Finest license plates along with proceeds from hunting and fishing licenses. He also said the area is open to all forms of outdoor recreation, not just hunters and anglers. More than 60 percent of Big Rivers is forest, according to the Kentucky

Division of Forestry.

"We want to see all sorts of people come and find use in this area," Marraccini said. "Hikers and hunters, fishing and canoeing, all are welcome."

While the Big Rivers WMA is open to most outdoor recreational activity, Fish and Wildlife officials said there will be no allowed burning of any kind and there will be no trails for hikers or horses or camping of any kind.

Purchase of the land from Forestland Group was the first part of a two-phase plan to create an even larger wildlife management area. More than 4,000 acres on the southern side of the Trade-water River in Crittenden County are targeted for purchase later this year. The land is part of the former Alcoa or Kimball property purchased at auction in 2008 by a North Carolina timber group.

Company exploring fluorspar

■ First of a 2-part series

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

A Lexington-based mine engineering and consulting company is actively pursuing mineral rights in the southern part of Crittenden County with plans to begin core drilling for fluorspar within days.

Joe Zaluski, vice president of ECSI, LLC, says his company represents Appalachian Spar, which is backed by a much larger American company with global reaches. Zaluski said the company behind the fluorspar exploration cannot be disclosed at this time because of competitive reasons.

Appalachian Spar has been negotiating with residents in the Brown Mine Road area and other parts of Frances and Dycusburg for the last few weeks. Exploration plans include sample drilling from 400 to 1,200 feet deep, seeking sufficient quality and quantity of fluorspar.

Old timers say there is plenty of spar left here. Crittenden County was once the world's largest producer of fluorspar, but by the 1960s the industry was virtually gone. A few small mines hung on until later, but the best mining days have been gone for almost half a century. When fluorspar was feeding the local economy, Crittenden County's population was about 15,000. Now, it's down around 9,000.

"I was just a kid but I remember everyone saying there was still plenty of spar there," said Tommy Highfil, who lives near Mott City and not far from the sites of renewed interest for fluorspar.

"They just pulled up and left, walked away and went to Mexico," Highfil says about the companies that once mined here.

Lower production costs and higher quality spar were among the reasons fluorspar mining left the United States and moved to Mexico, China and South Africa. Today, there is virtually no fluorspar produced in the U.S.

Fluorspar remains, however, in high demand by domestic and international companies. There are many and greatly varied applications for fluorspar, but it mostly goes into the production of hydrogen fluoride. Large amounts are also used as a flux in steel

Obama is America’s most biblically hostile president

Most of the following is taken from comments by famous Wall Builders Organization President David Barton of Feb. 9. My few insertions are in italics.

When one observes President Obama's unwillingness to accommodate America's four-century long religious conscience protection through his attempts to require Catholics to go against their own doctrines and beliefs, one is tempted to say that he is anti-Catholic. But that characterization would not be correct. Although he has recently singled out Catholics, he has equally targeted traditional Protestant beliefs over the past four years.

He has been equally disrespectful in his appalling treatment of religious Jews in general and Israel in particular. So perhaps the most accurate description of his antipathy toward Catholics, Protestants, religious Jews and the Jewish nation would be to characterize him as anti-Biblical.

And then when his hostility toward Biblical people of faith is contrasted with his preferential treatment of Muslims and Muslim nations, it further strengthens the accuracy of the anti-Biblical descriptor.

In fact, there have been numerous clearly documented times when his pro-Islam positions have been the cause of his anti-Biblical actions.

Listed below in chronological order are numerous records of his attacks on Biblical persons or organizations, examples of the hostility toward Biblical faith that have become evident in the past three years in the Obama-led military, a listing of his open attacks on Biblical values and finally a listing of numerous incidents of his preferential deference for Islam's activities and positions, including letting his Islamic advisors guide and influence his hostility towards people of Biblical faith.

All of these facts are documented and can be found in the endnotes in the article of Mr. Barton on the web.

In this column there will only be room for the first list, and hopefully I will get to report the other three in a later column.

1. Act of hostility toward people of Biblical faith or organizations: As you read this, please remember he said five days before the 2008 election: "We are only five days away from fundamentally transforming America." This is only part of that transforming he spoke of and is doing.

April 2008 - Obama speaks disrespectfully of Christians, saying they "cling to guns or religion" and have an "antipathy to people who aren't like them."

February 2009 - Obama announces plans to revoke conscience protection for health workers who refuse to participate in medical activities that go against their beliefs, and fully implements the plan in February 2011.

April 2009 - When speaking at Georgetown University, Obama orders that a monogram symbolizing Jesus' name be covered when he is making his speech.

May 2009 - Obama declines to host services for the National Prayer Day (a day established by federal law) at the White House.

April 2009 - In a deliberate act of disrespect, Obama nominated three pro-abortion ambassadors to the Vatican. Of course, the pro-life Vatican rejected all three.

October 2010 - Obama begins deliberately omitting the phrase about "the Creator" when quoting the Declaration of Independence—an omission he has made on no less than seven occasions.

November 2010 - Obama misquotes the national motto, saying it is "E pluribus Unum" rather than "In God We Trust" as established by federal law.

January 2011 - After a federal law was passed to transfer a World War I Memorial in the Mojave Desert to private ownership, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the cross in the memorial could continue to stand, but the Obama administration refused to allow the land to be transferred as required by law and refused to allow the cross to be re-erected as ordered by the court.

February 2011 - Although he filled posts in the state department, for more than two years Obama did not fill the post of religious freedom ambassador, an official that works against religious persecution across the world. He filled it only after heavy pressure from the public and from congress.

April 2011 - For the first time in American history, Obama urges passage of a non-discrimination law that does not contain hiring protections for religious groups, forcing religious organizations to hire according to federal mandates without regard to the dictates of their own faith.

August 2011 - The Obama administration releases its new health care rules that override religious conscience protections for medical workers in the areas of abortion and contraception.

November 2011 - Obama opposes inclusion of President Franklin Roosevelt's famous D-Day Prayer in the World War II Memorial.

November 2011 - Unlike previous presidents, Obama studiously avoids any religious references in his Thanksgiving speech.

December 2011 - The Obama Administration denigrates other countries' religious beliefs as an obstacle to radical homosexual rights.

January 2011 - The Obama Administration argues that the First Amendment provides no protection for churches and synagogues in hiring their pastors and rabbis.

February 2012 - The Obama administration forgives student loans in exchange for public service, but announces it will no longer forgive student loans if the public service in related to religion.

Not only did he open our military to a homosexual paradise, now the crowning insult in his anti-Biblical transforming America, in May 2012 - Obama went on record with his anti-Biblical support for same-sex marriage. This is anti-Old Testament and the New. God will respond sooner or later.

Letters to the Editor

Let’s take stand for God’s plan

Dear Editor:

For those of us who have lived more than half a century, we have seen many changes in our beloved America. Not all changes have been in our best interest. At no time in our history has there been such a division among our people. There is political, racial, social, financial and most troubling, moral troubles. Some would argue that we should be more tolerant of those who disregard all moral restraints and seek to impose their lifestyle upon the rest of us.

Jesus said, "A divided kingdom cannot survive."

Rus Walton wrote in his book One Nation Under God, "Sooner or later freedom goes out the window if the laws of man are not in harmony with God's laws."

The Bible says, "Godliness exalteth a nation but sin is a reproach to any people."

Our country was founded upon Biblical principles. Without such guidelines the nation's morality will become corrupt.

William E. Simmons said, "It is my firm belief that any government that taxes away more than half of what people can earn has robbed them of their economic freedom and therecs can be no doubt that when our economic freedoms are destroyed our personal and political freedom will not survive. We have enjoyed freedom so long that perhaps we are in danger of forgetting how much blood it cost to establish the Bill of Rights."

Our brave young men and women are still paying the ultimate price to preserve that freedom. But each day we are seeing the loss of more and more of our freedoms.

We need to take a stand and oppose anyone or cause that would rob us of our religious, personal or political freedom.

honor our nation ensign, the United States flag. Flag Day is dedicated to honor the stars and stripes and to commemorate the flag's adoption.

Flag Day falls within National Flag Week, a time when Americans reflect on the foundations of our nation's freedom. The flag of the United States represents freedom and has been an enduring symbol of our nation's ideals since its early days. Flag Day is also when we reaffirm our loyalty to our nation, reaffirm our belief in liberty and justice and observe the nation's unity. Flag Day is also one of several days many of us honor our nation by displaying the American flag at homes and public buildings. This year on Flag Day, June 14, weather permitting and should our burn ban be lifted, between 3:30 p.m. and to 5:30 p.m., at the Riding Club, the Virgil Jones VFW Post 12022 will host a flag burning ceremony. Attending the flag burning ceremony will be Marion Post Commander Joe Lanham and Commander-elect Joe Hunt. Also, on hand will be the Post 12022 Ladies Auxiliary and our local Boy and Girl scout troops.

The VFW encourages everyone to bring to the ceremony their flags which are tattered or faded and beyond condition to fly. Instructions on folding a flag before burning is an important honor that represents our flag's true meaning and will be presented at the ceremony.

June 11-14 until noon there will be a drop box placed in front of the VFW at 412 North College Street for those who cannot attend the ceremony to leave their your flag for disposal.

Grant beefs up library's computers

Training sessions planned for summer

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

Crittenden County Public Library has added 10 new computers for public access. The desktop computers have 21-inch screens and they run on Windows 7 Operating System.

Library Director Regina Merrick says the new computers were provided through The Broadband Technology Outreach Program Grant, a federal award administered by the Kentucky Department for Library and Archives.

"The last group of computers we were able to get were running Windows XP.

And that was about six years ago. We've been very fortunate here because we do not have the budget to be able to replace our computers on a regular basis, which would be ideal," Merrick said. "We have been very fortunate that we have been able to replace our computers with grant funds each time it has really been needed."

The grant also provided eight laptops and a wireless printer. In addition, the grant also covered connectivity.

"We've upgraded our wireless Internet. We've put a booster in our meeting room so we can use it for training sessions," she said.

The new computer equipment and software will lend opportunity for basic computer skills training as businesses and organizations increasingly supply more information online. The training will include instruction for those who do not know how to use a computer.

"We're seeing more and more that everything is done online. From filling out an application for employment to making changes on your Social Security and insurance, everything is online," Merrick explained. "We are going to be offering instruction on basic computer use. It will include how to set up an E-mail address and how to do basic searches on the Internet. It's designed to serve unemployed people and underemployed people. Then we have a lot of adults who have to re-enter the work force."

Merrick said training sessions will be scheduled later in the summer.

New desktop computers at the library have 21-inch screens and run Windows 7 Operating System. Previous computers ran on Windows XP.

Engineers working on 641's phase 2

Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KYTC) engineers are developing alternate alignments for reconstruction of U.S. 641 around Fredonia and to Eddyville.

This will be part of the second phase of building a highway from Marion to the interstate section.

Crews have completed most of their survey work along a wide swath between the two communities, apparently prompting speculation that the new highway will run through Fredonia, displacing a number of businesses.

"We have not selected a route," said KYTC Chief District Engineer Jim LeFevre said. "However, we are required by law to look at all options, to weigh them based on the information we've gathered and develop alternatives that best provide for traffic flow while minimizing the impact on the community."

Project engineers and designers will develop alternate alignments for the Fredonia-Eddyville section for review by area citizens in a public meeting. LeFevre said would likely be scheduled sometime in early 2013.

"This section has a number of challenges, including several historic cemeteries that will have to be avoided and an environmentally sensitive underground water feature that somewhat restricts where the highway can go," LeFevre said. "Surveyors have been checking property lines along a wide swath near Fredonia to aid in the development of alternate routes. Our goal is to construct a highway that improves safety for the public while being sensitive to the environment and the people who live along the proposed route."

Construction has already started between Marion and Fredonia for "grade and drain" work along U.S. 641 in Crittenden County. The $18 million grade and drain along the 5.5-mile project is the first step in widening U.S. 641 from Marion to Eddyville.

The new four-lane is aimed at helping attract new investment and jobs, and providing an improved transportation route for existing industries and the public.

The present project area extends from just south of Marion to the northern edge of Fredonia near the Crittenden-Caldwell county line. The 5.5-mile section is expected to be ready for paving in late 2014 or early 2015.

Plans call for the new four-lane highway to cross the existing two-lane U.S. 641 between the Fredonia city limits and the Caldwell-Crittenden county line. The highway will route west of Fredonia, then roughly follow the existing highway to within a few miles of Eddyville. When completed, the new highway will provide an improved connection to Interstates 69 and 24.

The estimated cost of the entire 16-mile project is about $109 million. That's $39 million for the Marion to Fredonia section and $70 million for the section from Fredonia to Eddyville.

SPAR

About 75 property owners in southern Crittenden County are in the target area. Most have already been contacted and some have leased their mineral rights to Appalachian Spar with the company retaining an option to buy the rights if it finds ample amounts of spar. The company is paying $20 an acre to lease mineral rights for two years. If it exercises the purchase option, Appalachian Spar will pay $500 per acre to buy the mineral rights. Mineral rights were severed many years ago from a good portion of the deeds in Crittenden County. Now, those who do not own their mineral rights are being paid a courtesy fee if a drilling operation is established on their land.

Steve Gardner, president of ECSI, says core drilling could take about a year. Core drillers will take small tube-like samples by drilling deep into the earth. Those samples will be collected and processed at a local warehouse. The company says it will open the warehouse and office in Marion within two weeks, but would not disclose the location because their rental agreement was not complete at press time.

Jeff Baird, a senior project coordinator for the exploration company, said about one dozen jobs will be created during the core-drilling phase of the project. Samples will be brought to Marion where they will be crushed and analyzed by the company's own geologists. Baird said trucking and warehouse jobs will be among the first, but predicts many more will come if exploration is successful in finding good spar in high volume. As many as 200 jobs could be created.

Part Two: Next week

Next week, The Press will examine in more detail the company's future plans for exploration and mining. We will also take a closer look at what fluorspar mining meant to this community in days past.

Those jobs would be associated with the mining and milling phase, which is at least two years away, Gardner said.

"Design and permitting of the mine sites would be done in the second year," he said.

The company predicts that two or three mines could be operating within a few years. A processing plant which takes the material from raw ore to a concentrated fluorspar would also be built somewhere in the southern part of the county. The company projects it would transport the spar out of Crittenden County by barge. Right now, there is no existing, public riverside loading facility in the county.

Marion woman hurt in rollover

A Marion teen was injured in a single-vehicle automobile accident last week on U.S. 60.

The wreck happened about 10:45 a.m., last Wednesday about six miles from town.

State police say Pellicia Yeish, 17, was operating a 2011 Nissan Altima east-bound when her vehicle exited the right side of the highway and struck an earth embankment then overturned.

Yeish was transported by ambulance to Crittenden Hospital. She was wearing a seatbelt.

Trooper First Class Chris King investigated the accident.

care Preparedness Program, said the western part of the state needs training in this type of emergency response.

"The ice storm was a wake up call to the state and western counties and showed us what we need to improve on," Giannini said.

He said the state's first response was to provide the needed equipment to responders, but now the time has come to train many of the people who are important to helping deal with any sort of mass fatality situation.

"In recent years with all the natural disasters in Kentucky it has had an impact on the planning," Giannini said. "Looking at fatalities is a part of natural disasters."

He also said the program is looking specifically to help train more funeral directors and coroners in the region.

third largest grape-producing state. It is now resurging in the commonwealth and the Whites believe they can grow great grapes and make great wine in Kentucky again.

White Buck gets its name as a variation on the name of Allen's father. His name is "Buck" White. Also, since this is deer country it just seemed to be a great fit.

Madisonville's Little takes over in Stout's position

The United States Department of Justice Office of U.S. Trustees has chosen Mark Little to serve as Chapter 7 Trustee in the Western District of Kentucky, replacing Alan Stout, who has become a federal bankruptcy judge.

Samuel Crocker, U.S. Trustee for Region 8, announced selection of Little last month. Little was chosen from a total of six approved applicants which included applicants from out of state.

Little was selected to fill the vacancy created when Stout, a Marion attorney, was selected as U.S. Bankruptcy Judge for the Western District of Kentucky. As Trustee, Little will review and verify the accuracy of bankruptcy petitions filed with the court and authorize the entry of the bankruptcy for discharge. Little, who lives and practices law in Madisonville, will continue his private practice while serving as a trustee. He is the first attorney from Madisonville to be selected for the position of Bankruptcy Trustee.

Early-warning system not ready just yet

The new early-warning weather system installed on top of the new Marion Fire Station will not be operational for another two weeks, say city officials.

City Administrator Mark Bryant said the city still needs to install the remote switch, which will allow operation of the device from city hall's central dispatching center.

Bryant also said the county plans to install a similar system soon, using about $180,000 in grant funds.

The early-warning system will use notifications from the National Weather Service to determine when to alert residents.

First responders invited to course on mass fatality

A free course in Mass Fatality Planning and Response for Rural Communities will be offered at the University of Kentucky Research Center in Princeton on Thursday, June 21. The eight-hour course is for first responders, coroners, law enforcement, hospitals, Red Cross and other volunteers from across the region. The course will teach participants a variety of skills in case of a mass fatality event including the role of volunteers and responders, the identification and disposition of remains and how to develop a local mass fatality plan. The training will last from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Vineyard opens in Morganfield

There is a new vineyard and winery in Union County.

White Buck Vineyards and Wineries is now operating in Morganfield. It actually started when Allen and Carla White planted grapes in the spring of 2009. They have continued to plant grapes annually and are up to six acres. Last summer, they purchased property on U.S. 60 west of Morganfield at the corner of Robinson Road. The property was a recycling center and it's now the winery. After obtaining a small-farm winery license last fall, they began making wine.

Grape growing and wine making was once a major industry in Kentucky. Before Prohibition, Kentucky was the

The Woman's Club of Marion was "off to the races" on May 3. The theme for this year's Spring Gala was the Kentucky Derby. Ginger Boone started the festivities by singing My Old Kentucky Home. Tables were decorated with red roses and ladies wore lovely hats in every size and color. Dessert was cake and more cake. Ten plus cakes were put up for auction. These proceeds are used for the yearly Marie Frazer Scholarship, The English Award and upkeep of the building.

Here’s to the newlyweds:
The honeymoon is over

Flowers. A white dress. Pachelbel’s “Canon in D.” Nothing makes the heart soar like a romantic wedding. But now that the wedding is over, you may better recognize the differences between you and your spouse and the realization that you need to learn to live with these differences. The truth is marriage is one of the most challenging human relationships to maintain.

To help transition from unmarried to married life:

View the relationship as a “we AND me.” Too often newlyweds lose sight of personal goals and desires because they place so much emphasis on the relationship. A good marriage is made up of two good people. It is important for each person within a couple to take time for him or herself, pursue individual goals and better him/herself as an individual while also putting time and energy into the marriage. Think about marriage like a car — each of the parts needs to be maintained for it to run well overall.

Accept the Differences. Differences exist in all relationships. Try to balance what irritates you with what you love about your partner. Remember that you both have strengths and weaknesses. Keep in mind that some differences might be meaningful, worth holding on to or meeting halfway. Couples must figure out which differences they can let go of, accept and live with.

Communicate and work through conflicts. There are many life issues that a couple will need to discuss — finances, jobs, housework and intimacy. It is important to maintain an open line of communication, especially when times are tough or things are particularly stressful. It is advantageous to communicate the issues and properly problem-solve to best manage conflict. Remember to attack the problem, not the person.

Schedule and maintain date nights. Every marriage goes through a “honeymoon phase.” This is the romantic, passionate, stars-in-the-eyes phase of a marriage. But with time, daily stresses and busy schedules, some newlyweds stop making time for quality time together. Dating your spouse helps keep the spark and spirit alive. A consistent date night can help couple keep the spark and spirit alive.

Talk Money. Poor money habits and secrets can doom a marriage and bring about endless arguments. Some couples pool their money and others keep finances separate. It is important to decide and agree on what works best and to make a financial plan to which you can stick. Upon getting married, each person should bare his/her financial soul to avoid dragging debt down the aisle. Regardless of joint or separate finances, every couple needs to make and follow a budget. Couples may decide to put one person in charge of the bills, monitoring investments and crunching taxes — but both people should have an understanding of what is going on and both names should be on major accounts. It is also important to build “mad money” into a budget for each person to spend at his or her own discretion. This will help you to better compromise and avoid sweating the small stuff. As newlyweds, it is easy to overlook financial emergency planning, as it is hard to think about something bad happening. However, financial security and protection from life crisis is one of the best gifts you can give to your spouse.

Maintain a team mentality. It is destructive to frame fights into a win/lose situation. Try to create a non-judgmental environment that helps both of you to be on the same team.

Seek counseling. Counseling helps newlyweds prepare for the inevitable conflicts that arise when two people of different backgrounds meet and join lives.

Volunteers work in the ag classroom at Crittenden County High School to assemble 26 beds for children who needed them. Beds were constructed in late May and were assembled and delivered Saturday.

Building a foundation for dreams

STAFF REPORT

Twenty-six children in the Crittenden County School district had their days brightened when AmeriCorps reading tutor Mary Ann Winders and Family Resource director Holly White delivered new beds to each one Saturday as part of the Build-A-Bed program. Last year, 12 students received beds but this year the number of children in need more than doubled. Winders said the original goal was to make 25 beds, but the program finished with 26.

As a community group project with several volunteers, including students, teachers and other community members, each bed that is built is handmade. Everything from the lumber and screws down to the mattresses and other materials are donated. Lumber for the first 20 beds was donated by Nashville Plywood and the lumber for the remaining five was donated by Marion True Value.

“We were blessed to have many people with generous hearts that gave to our project,” Winders said. “Our mattresses, the biggest expense of the entire project, was discounted by the Mattress Guys of Paducah, helping us out quite a bit.”

Churches that gave to our build were Frances Presbyterian Church, Emmanuel Baptist Church, Marion Methodist Women's Circle #2, Sturgis General Baptist Church, Fredonia Baptist Church and Caldwell Springs Baptist Church. Local businesses that gave to our project were Larry Davidson Insurance and the Law Offices of Rebecca Johnson. Dairy Queen fed lunch to several volunteers at the end of the day.”

Many teachers gave donations, helped with the work and helped with deliveries,” Winders said. “Several students enjoyed bringing items for the bedtime baskets. All three schools allowed teachers to wear jeans for one week for a $5 donation to Build-A-Bed and we were also allowed to sponsor a Valentine's Dance at the middle school as a fundraiser. We are just beyond blessed to have been able to have so many people pitch in and help.”

Life in Christ Church donated the hardware, stain and cleaning supplies for the beds, while others brought in supplies for the bedtime baskets – a laundry basket filled with bedsheets, hygienic items like toothpaste and toothbrushes, stuffed animals and even a few snacks.

The project involved 30 volunteers to make the beds on May 26, leaving the assembling and delivery for Saturday.

“We want to thank each and every person who made the 2012 Build-A-Bed project successful! Twenty-six children now sleep in their own bed, with bedding supplies bought just for them,” Winders said. “We know how important a good night's sleep is to our students, and how much the lack of it can affect their academic performance. We hope this will make a difference in the lives of children in our community.

Silk Stocking Row celebrates 100 years in 2012

The strong-hearted and loyal citizens of Marion didn't wait long after the March 1905 fire that wiped out the downtown area to start planning for it to be rebuilt. Within weeks they were working and planning on the reconstruction of their businesses.

The area homes were also being updated and improved. From the archives of The Crittenden Press we learn of the developments that were taking place.

May 11, 1905 Grants Franchises

The city council met in regular session Tuesday night at the courthouse. Permits were granted for many new buildings to go up as rapidly as possible on the burned district. Ed McAfee was given a permit to erect a brick stable and E.J. Hayward to build a two-story brick store room. James & James were given a permit to erect an office building on Carlisle street, two stories and of brick where Frazer, Rogers & Peek Law Office is located.) Blue & Gugenheim were granted permission to rebuild the post office building, two stories of cream pressed brick and plate glass front (location of Coach's Cleaners). S. M. Jenkins was granted a permit to erect a two story office and store building, containing basement, four stories and 10 offices on second floor, cream brick and plate glass front (back of People's Bank building reaching to the alley on Carlisle St.)

J.H. Orme was granted a permit to build a two-story brick rug store with plate glass front, 24 x 85 feet with brick warehouse in rear, 35 x 15 and also to build a two-story brick and plate glass front, 36 x 100 feet, for Cochran & Pickens Hardware Co., with brick warehouse in rear and across the alley.

The Marion Bank was given permission to rebuild its building of pressed brick, two stories high (location of People's Bank today.)

With all of her troubles Marion has much to be proud of in the way of beautiful homes, which have been completed or improved this year. One of the most striking improvements to the appearance of the city is the transformation of G. C. Gray's residence. While the old one was comfortable, and in its day was quite pretentious, the new one is modern and up-to-date in all its appointments, with long halls, sliding doors, tile hearths and mantles of oak with glistening mirrors. It is harmonious in its general effect and has an appearance of refinement which is especially desirable in a home. The color scheme of the exterior is good and linked with the broad veranda, supported by massive columns presents at once a pleasing panorama to the passer by. (This home was taken down many years ago.)

Only a stone's throw away Orme has had a number of workmen building his house. This site is particularly good and great taste has been displayed in the arrangement to get a pleasing effect. The steep roofs, dormer windows, circular verandas and tinted gables all go to make the place one of the most attractive homes in the city. Mr. Orme will have sliding doors, higher ceilings and a most attractive interior besides several bay windows, which add so much to the interior as well as exterior appearance of the house. The delicate tints selected for the coloring are all beautiful. (This was on East Depot St., but is no longer there, but many would love to have seen this home.)

Farther East on Wilson Avenue, (now East Depot St.) attorney A. C. Moore has not let the thought that he is in the suburbs deter him from keeping pace with the best of them in making his home attractive. Here he has installed double parlors with grille work in each connecting arch on either side of the fire board, and the reception hall has a hand carved oak stairway that is a beauty. It is of the finest grained white oak, delicately and beautifully carved and would grace acceptably a house of much greater pretension. It is the crowing feature of the cosy and elegant home, a dormitory for the boys in the upper story, with dormer windows and nice linen closets being two convenient and sensible features of this home. The mantles and tiling hearths are well selected and set as if molded in their places.

On College Street, Dave Woods, the banker, is just completing a house of eight rooms with halls and verandas all convenient and tasty. His house sits on the lot where Mr. Woods' house was burned last winter, but faces east instead of north and fronts College instead of Bellville Street. The house adds much to that section of the city and is in every way an improvement over the old one. Mr. Woods and his estimable family are to be congratulated on the plan and general arrangement of their new home, which will soon be ready for occupancy. (This is Rip and Barbara Wheeler's home)

Attorney John Moore's new house on Lake View Avenue is nearing completion and is an attractive 1½ story cottage of six rooms, halls and verandas, and it adds greatly to the appearance of that section of East Marion.

One Hundredth Anniversary Homes – Silk Stocking Row

Some seven years later in 1912 (now 100 years) South Main Street was beginning to come alive. The three wood-frame two-story structures celebrated their 100th anniversary in May of 1912. Here is their story and how they were known as located on Silk Stocking Row.

In 1911 Felix Cox, a young man who owned a prosperous farm in the Sheridan community and was also involved in the fluorspar and mining industry, purchased a lot on the up and coming South Main Street.

Mr. Cox's lot was located on the corner lot, down from the Clements house, which was constructed in 1910 (Mick and Susan Alexander's brick home). Soon he started having a new home built for his family, which included wife, Nannie and daughter Anna.

About the same time, his sister, Mrs. Ellen Cox Croft, widow of George T. Croft, also a prosperous farmer and land owner from the Tolu area, purchased the empty lot next to her brother and decided to build her a new two-story home.

In May of 1912, the two new beautiful homes being erected on South Main Street for Felix Cox and his sister, Mrs. Croft, were fast approaching completion and added much to the appearance of that street. The contractor for these homes was George Miller from Evansville. The present owner of the Ellen Cox Croft home is Ethel Tucker. In one our history chats, her husband, the late Thomas Tucker, told me that each house cost around $4,500. For $40 extra, the Ellen Croft home (which is Ethel's home) got oak hardwood floors added in the entrance hall, living room and dining room. The identical, a few different touches were given to each house, but all were built in a four-square design, that is, they are square in shape. Tucker's home has two bay windows upstairs, the Felix Cox home (now empty) only has one, the Barnett home had no bay window upstairs, but has a wrap around porch.

Mr. Barnett didn't get to enjoy the family's new home for very long, he died in 1917 from pneumonia. His wife, May Fleming Barnett, continued to live here and she died in 1949 and her funeral was conducted in their home.

Ethel and Thomas Tucker shared with me that after the homes were built, Mrs. Ida Clement is the person that gave this section of South Main Street the name of "Silk Stocking Row."

The reason for this was these homes were the first in Marion that were constructed with all the newest conveniences such as indoor running water and plumbing and hot water radiators to heat the homes.

Framing this row of homes on South Main Street was an impressive white concrete side walk and concrete fence fronting their property. This feature still graces this street today. In their time these sidewalks were an added attraction to the fine homes just being built. The owners took great pride in having this addition to their home.

Yankee arrest of circuit judge prompts protest from the governor

Submitted by Berry Craig

On this date in 1862, Gov. Beriah Magoffin was waiting to hear from Sen. John J. Crittenden over the arrest of Circuit Judge Wiley P. Fowler of Smithland for refusing to take the Union loyalty oath.

Nothing would come of Magoffin's protest.

Trouble brewed between Fowler and the Yankees after Col. Silas R.J. Noble, Union army commander at Paducah, complained to the judge "that many of the officers of your court in different counties are secessionists, and have not taken the oath of allegiance." Noble charged, "they are constantly oppressing Union men, and talking treason in the very presence of the court."

The colonel demanded that Fowler swear the oath and ensure all other judges, lawyers and jurors do likewise. Fowler ignored Noble's order, arguing it was sufficient that he swore allegiance to U.S. and Kentucky constitutions when he took office. That was, of course, before the Civil War started.

In any event, on May 13, the judge was holding court in Marion, the Crittenden County seat, when Union cavalrymen showed up. Led by a Capt. Stacey, the troopers dismounted and marched into the courtroom. They barred the doors while Stacey demanded that the judge, jury and attorneys immediately swear the oath.

Crittenden County leaned toward the Union side.

Craig

When Fowler and four attorneys refused, Stacey arrested the quintet. But he released them on their promise to appear before Union army authorities at Paducah on May 21.

Fowler complained to the Southern-sympathizing Magoffin. He urged the judge not to go to Paducah, "for the dignity of the bench, for the honor of the State, in the name of the liberties of our people." The governor agreed that the Union soldiers' action was "illegal, unconstitutional, and tyrannical."

By the time Fowler received Magoffin's reply, he had already been to Paducah. He said he was honored to go, adding that a pair Southern sympathizers in Yankee custody in Paducah had asked him to help secure their release. Fowler failed to win their freedom, at least by the time he left Paducah.

Reportedly, before the war ended, Fowler was twice imprisoned in Louisville for refusing to swear the oath.

Fowler became a hero to pro-Confederate western Kentuckians. To Unionists, he was a traitor, or close to it, who belonged behind bars.

Berry Craig is a professor of history at West Kentucky Community and Technical College in Paducah and is the author of True Tales of Old-Time Kentucky Politics: Bomb, Hidden History of Kentucky in the Civil War. Hidden History of Kentucky Soldiers and Hidden History of Western Kentucky. The books are being sold to raise money for scholarships at WKCTC. # Catholics giving more to Kentucky church

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Catholics in northern Kentucky and Cincinnati are giving more to an annual fund drive than they have in almost a decade.

The Kentucky Enquirer reports church officials attribute the increase to members recognizing need is greater in the tough economy and to the church's vocal opposition to the national health care reform law.

Collections are expected to hit $3 million in Covington by December and $4.2 million in Cincinnati. That would be the highest amount for each since 2003.

The increase is especially encouraging to church leaders since it comes as attendance at Mass declines in the region.

The church doesn't usually get an explanation for monetary gifts, but the officials at the Diocese of Covington and the Archdiocese of Cincinnati both said they have received letters and calls with donations that express support for the church's stance on health care reform.

The Diocese of Covington, which oversees 14 northern Kentucky counties with about 89,000 Catholics, has also seen an increase in donors. Church officials say they've received contributions from 9,300 people this year, up from 8,900 last year.

The fundraiser known as the Catholic Ministries Appeal in Cincinnati and the Diocesan Parish Annual Appeal in Covington goes to similar causes, including Catholic charities and social services, retired priests and Catholic education programs.

Bob Stautberg of Indian Hill, Ohio, said he gave $1,000 this year instead of $500.

"With the economy the way it is, the need for what the archdiocese does is great," he said. "But I also think they're doing a better job of communicating the need."

We little knew that morning that God was going to call your name. In life we loved you dearly, in death we do the same. It broke our hearts to lose you, the day God called your name. You left us peaceful memories, your love is still our guide, And though we cannot see you, you're always at our side. Our family chain is broken, and nothing seems the same. But as God calls us one by one, the chain will link again.

This is for the best husband, daddy and papaw this world has ever known.

We know it's silly to write to you this way, because anyone that knew you knows that you are at the feet of Jesus, praising Him in song. So I guess this is for the rest of us. Although for you it only seems to be but a blink of an eye, but to us left behind it seems it's been a million years since we have seen your smile and heard your voice, when in reality it's only been a year. We all miss you so very much. It's hard to face the days without you here, but you left us your legacy of love, hope and with the knowledge that because of Christ we will be with you again, THAT is what we hang onto. We look at each other and see your hand on each of us. We know that life goes on because that is what you taught us. So we cry and laugh with each other, remembering all the precious moments you made with us. We are trying to honor you by doing what you ask of us, taking care of each other and treating people good. We love and miss you.

Retired

Two long-time federal employees of the National Resources and Conservation Service retired last week. Larry Starr and Linda Perry celebrated their last day at work Friday with an office party. Starr, a native of Glasgow, graduated from Western Kentucky University and started working in Crittenden County in 1981. He now wants to spend his time practicing banjo and traveling. Perry, a Marion native, attended Paducah Junior College and has been employed here for many years. She wants to spend more time visiting family in Iowa. Both plan to stay in Marion, saying they really enjoy the area. No replacement has been named for either position.

City approves spending plan

STAFF REPORT
Marion City Council approved its 2012-13 fiscal year budget last week during a special meeting.

The council voted unanimously to okay a $2.87 million spending plan with anticipated revenues of $2.94 million. The budget includes the city's general fund, sewer fund, municipal aid fund, water department fund, Local Government Economic Assistance fund and the restaurant and motel tax.

The budget includes a three-percent across-the-board pay increase for city employees. The pay scale was voted on separately and Councilman Donnie Arflack cast the only dissenting vote. Arflack said he would rather see pay increases that are not based on a percentage of salary because lower paid workers get much less of an increase than higher paid employees.

The city budget includes no new capital items, but does include a seven-percent hike in health insurance costs for employees and what will be the first of 25 annual installment payments of $37,200 for the new fire station. City Administrator Mark Bryant said the insurance plan was changed to a less expensive policy. To keep the previous policy would have meant a 16-percent increase.

The city has about $1.8 million in general fund investments. Mayor Mickey Alexander said low interest rates are hurting the city's bottom line.

"There is no fluff in the budget," City Administrator Mark Bryant said.

Bryant said the city has 25 employees right now, six fewer than when he was hired in 2006.

Wood finishes 6-1

Alex Wood and the Indianapolis University baseball team were disappointed in the NCAA Division II Championships last weekend at Cary, N.C. Indianapolis lost to Catawba and St. Mary's in the championship series after the Greyhounds won their conference championship and the NCAA Midwest Regional. The club went into the championship series ranked 11th in NCAA Division II.

Wood, a 6-foot-2 right-handed sophomore pitcher, got a victory after throwing six innings in the quarterfinals of the Great Lakes Valley Conference Tournament over Rockhurst, Kan. He also pitched one inning in Indy's victory over Rockhurst in the Midwest Regional.

The Marion native finished the season 6-1 with a 4.43 ERA. In 42.2 innings, he struck out 28 and walked 10 batters.

Hunt has 10 RBIs

Ethan Hunt of Marion and the Murray-based Stinger baseball team won another tournament last weekend in Jackson, Tenn. The team won five games in the 12-under 3A division. Hunt batted .500 in the tourney and drove in 10 runs.

UPCOMING GAMES
Friday, Bobcats at Owensboro
Saturday, Bobcats at Fulton
Sunday, Bobcats at Hopkinsville
Monday, Bobcats host Madisonville

RECENT MARION BOBCATS' RESULTS
Friday - The Madisonville Pirates scratched out an-opening season 3-2 victory from the Bobcats Friday. Too many runners left on base was the real weakness for the Bobcats. Two Marion players had two hits each, Tyler Bernqard and Clint Ambrosch. Darren Travers pitched well enough to win, allowing 3 runs and scattering 6 hits. Both teams appeared rusty, but exhibited solid defense in most cases. However, 2 unearned runs helped the Pirates win.

Sunday - The Bobcats grabbed their home opener over the Hopkinsville Hoppers behind good pitching by Chris Hunt and Caleb Luttrell. The Bobcats took advantage of 8 walks, 2 wild pitches and 4 hits to win in spite of a 3-run homer by the Hopper catcher.

Monday - The Bobcats improved to 2-1 after dishing out a 4th straight loss to the Railroaders in Fulton in an abbreviated 6-inning game called for lightning and weather. Marion pounded out 17 hits led by Tyler Bernard, who went 5-for-5, including 2 doubles and a 3-run homer for a total of 5 RBIs. Fulton did manage 10 hits and the Bobcats made 2 errors. David Roper earned the win for Marion, pitching the full 6 innings.

Major League Baseball Draft

Former Bobcat Jankowski 44th overall

STAFF REPORT
Former Marion Bobcats outfielder Travis Jankowski was selected 44th overall in the 2012 Major League Baseball Draft on Monday by the San Diego Padres.

He's the first Bobcat to be drafted. Jankowski is still playing collegiate baseball as a junior at Stony Brook University in New York, where his team just qualified, also on Monday, for the NCAA Baseball Tournament by beating Central Florida.

Prior to Jankowski's selection this week, Stony Brook had never had a player selected earlier than the third round. Jankowski's selection came in what is commonly called the "Sandwich Round," the free-agent compensation picks given to teams between the first and second rounds.

Jankowski is billed as a speedy, left-handed hitting outfielder who reminds scouts of Jacoby Ellsbury. He was the America East Conference Player of the Year for 2012 and was named a second-team All-American by Collegiate Baseball Newspaper.

Jankowski played for the Bobcats two summers ago. He was with the Marion club for one year and set seven single-season offensive records, including highest batting average (.484), slugging percentage, on-base percentage, stolen bases and hits.

Jankowski was an all-star for the Bobcats and last year he was MVP of the Cape Cod League.

Jankowski grew up in Lancaster, Penn., where he was a standout football player, too.

Curlytail Anglers grub for fish with top bait

KENTUCKY AFIELD
One constant since the Nixon White House is the curly-tailed grub for fishing. Rated by Field and Stream magazine a few years ago as the greatest lure of all time, it is not a gimmick. To a predator fish, the curly-tailed grub looks just like a baitfish swimming in the water.

Mister Twister invented the curly-tailed grub in 1972. Most plastic lures up to that time possessed little action on the retrieve, but Mister Twister made a mold where they attached a flap of soft plastic shaped like a sickle to a length of ringed plastic. The sickle-shaped tail fluttered with the slightest movement and fish went crazy for them.

Although most popular for black bass fishing, curly-tailed grubs catch crappie, bluegill, redear sunfish, hybrid, striped and white bass; practically every predator fish that swims in fresh or salt water will strike a grub.

Summer is here and the time is right for fishing curly-tailed grubs.

A three-inch black, pumpkinseed or smoke-colored grub works wonders on summertime stream smallmouth bass. Fish grubs on a ½-ounce leadhead above and below ruffles by letting the lure drift in the current and occasionally ticking bottom. Resist the urge to work the lure; allow the current to do it instead. Summer smallmouth bass in streams often ignore lures like crankbaits that fly by or soft-plastic lures worked erratically. They look like frauds.

A curly-tailed grub tumbling by its nose with the tail slowly undulating in the current draws strikes, even during the hottest months and the lowest water conditions. It is hard to find a more effective lure for this situation.

When largemouth bass in lakes get a little sleepy during the hot summer days, a four-inch black, Junebug or green pumpkin curly-tailed grub may wake them up enough to strike. Rig the grub weedless on a leadhead and slowly work it along deep weed lines, just above channel drops and down points.

Lethargic largemouth bass that refused other offerings strike grubs in summer. Their subtle action and streamlined profile appeal to heat-stressed largemouth bass that don't feel like doing much to eat during the day. A little grub swimming by is often too much to resist.

A small 1½-inch yellow, chartreuse, white or red grub rigged on a 1/32-ounce leadhead is a killer for big "bull" bluegills and redear sunfish, commonly called shellcrackers, in summer. Work these grubs beside and through cuts in weed beds in summer for these fish. Some anglers tip them with wax worms or organic wax worm imitations for better effectiveness.

Fishing grubs for sunfish targets the big ones, so you won't catch as many as with other methods.

Assistance Center brings many programs, help to community

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

With a goal to help those in need, Crittenden County Assistance Center offers a variety of services for individuals facing difficult financial and emergency crisis situations. Located at 402 North Walker Street in Marion, the center houses the Crittenden County offices of Pennyrile Allied Community Services Center (PACS), Crittenden County Food Bank, Crittenden County Cares and Red Cross. The center is located at the former health department building.

The food bank distributes groceries on the fourth Friday of every month outside the offices on North Walker Street.

Kathy Penn Belt is the community services block grant coordinator. She says donations from the community enable the center to offer needed assistance. Belt says in-kind donations are welcome for such items as food, clothing, personal hygiene items and fans for cooling during the summer months. Monetary donations are also welcome to help assist those in need.

Assistance is provided to qualifying low-income families and individuals. Help ranges from cash for home utilities to clothing. To qualify for assistance programs, individuals must provide verification of their financial situation.

Assistance also comes through the Title 5 Program. The program refers people age 55 or older to the center to gain job experience while working there on staff. Participants work 20 hours per week filing, organizing and learning necessary computer skills.

"Two people in my office are on staff. It's a service offered, a training program. It trains them for places where they may want to go to work. It builds secretarial skills. If they went to an office they would have those skills," Belt said. Currently, all Title 5 positions at the center are filled.

The center also accepts donations of clothing that are neatly organized by size and gender.

"We get help with clothing through the generosity of our community. We couldn't do it without the community," Belt says, emphasizing her appreciation to the many local churches that help supply laundry detergent and assistance with utilities.

Clothing donations are tax deductible. Belt says clothing is sorted to check for holes or stains. Then they are cleaned.

Beginning July 1, a new requirement will be put into effect. Households reporting zero income will have to actively participate in case management services in order to receive services. The goal is to get individuals out of a crisis situation and back on their feet financially by gaining employment.

"We're going to do income management. The goal is to make them self-sufficient," she explains. "I understand that things happen. A person may lose a job. That could happen to anybody. But they are going to have to seek employment. We will teach them how to dress for a job interview. That first impression is so important. We will also work with resumes and interview etiquette."

In May, Belt says the center was able to assist two people to find employment.

"The first week of May, I had two people come in here who were seeking employment. I found out about a couple of places that were hiring."

Belt said one individual received a part-time job and the other received a full-time position.

"That was awesome. I was so happy. They both called me back and told me they got hired. That's part of the plan, Community Services Block Grant Coordinator Kathey Penn Belt (left) and staff associate Christina Dobyns are grateful for the community contributions to the center. Dobyns will utilize the skills she developed while on staff to major in Business Administration when she attends Madisonville Community College beginning in August.

when we are working together. Both gentlemen came to this office and got attire, including polo shirts, khaki pants and shoes. One of the gentlemen received clothes to wear every day of the week for a job in an office environment that required business casual attire."

In the coming weeks, the center will organize the annual drive to collect fans for those needing cooling assistance. Belt says she knows the community will offer their full support.

"We're all one big team. We're all coming together to help those who are in need. And that's what it takes. Our community is wonderful. Crittenden County should be proud that they have a community like that."

Explosives, other military items found in 2 counties

Investigation has resulted in no charges

STAFF REPORT

Sheriffs in Crittenden and Livingston counties were looking for a stolen pickup and a missing motorcycle last week when they found a virtual arsenal of dangerous military ordnance at rural locations in each county.

Authorities confiscated grenades, flares, guns, ammunition, mortars, binary explosives, an anti-tank weapon, two Claymore mines and dynamite.

The items were found at two unoccupied homes, one at the intersection of Ky. 855 North and Brown Mines Road in Crittenden County and the other at 1079 Shelby Store Road near Salem in Livingston County.

The stolen Chevrolet pickup and a stolen Pinhead Harley-Davidson motorcycle were also found at the Crittenden County location.

No one has been charged at this time, but the investigation is continuing.

"The thought of these weapons in the wrong hands is very scary," said Sheriff Bobby Davidson.

"The investigation has just begun. Now we will focus on finding where all these weapons came from," added the Livingston sheriff, who initiated the investigation after learning of the truck and motorcycle thefts in Livingston County.

The truck and bike had been at a home belonging to the estate of the late Larry Doom. The executor of the estate reported them missing last Tuesday morning, May 29. Acting on a tip, the sheriff came to Crittenden County later that day, and with help from Sheriff Wayne Agent, Davidson found the pickup parked at a vacant home belonging to the Peek family on Ky. 855 North.

Davidson said he went to the door of the home and through a crack saw a hand grenade on the floor. A search warrant was obtained and inside the house authorities found several modified fragmentation and smoke grenades, flares, guns, ammunition, military grade body armor, an 81mm high-explosive mortar round and binary explosives. They also found approximately 26 marijuana plants growing on the property.

Bomb Technicians with the Paducah Police Department and Kentucky State Police were requested to assist at the scene and dispose of the explosive material.

Based on a hunch, authorities figured the military items may have also been stolen from the Doom estate property. They are believed to have been part of a collection at that residence.

Because those type items can be potentially dangerous to the general public, a search warrant was obtained last Wednesday and executed at the Shelby Store Road address. During their search, officials located thousands of rounds of various types of ammunition, an M72 LAW (light anti-tank weapon, 66mm), rocket motor and warhead, two Claymore mines, several projectiles including 105mm mortar rounds, dynamite, and other ordnance. Fort Campbell Bomb Squad disposed of all the dangerous ordnances.
