County declared disaster by Feds

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) announced last week that federal disaster aid has been made available to Crittenden and several other counties in Kentucky to supplement the commonwealth and local recovery efforts in the area struck by severe storms, tornadoes and flooding beginning on April 22, and continuing.

Federal funding is available to the commonwealth and eligible local governments and certain private nonprofit organizations on a cost-sharing basis in the counties of Ballard, Carlisle, Crittenden, Daviess, Fulton, Henderson, Hickman, Livingston, McCracken and Union for emergency protective measures, limited to direct federal assistance. Federal funding is also available on a cost-sharing basis for hazard mitigation measures statewide.

Steven S. Ward has been named as the Federal Coordinating Officer for federal recovery operations in the affected area. Ward said additional designations may be made at a later date if requested by the state and warranted by the results of further damage assessments.

Primary election overshadowed by flood

STAFF REPORT

Election officials are not expecting a rush on the polls for next week's primary elections.

"I'm expecting a very, very low turnout," said Hugh Highfil, one of the county election officers. "I don't see much interest out there."

Sharon Hunt, another election officer, said primary elections without national or local races generally don't garner much interest.

The last time Crittenden County had a primary election for statewide offices only was in 2007 when just 1,204 voters went to the polls. That's just under 20 percent, but this time local observers don't think it will be that high.

"It seems like it might be around 12-15 percent," said Crittenden County Clerk Carolyn Byford. "There's just so much going on right now with the flooding. People's minds are just elsewhere."

As of Monday, fewer than a half dozen absentee votes had been cast.

"I haven't seen hardly any yard signs this time," Byford added. "And I haven't seen a single TV commercial."

Next week's election has drawn little attention. Perhaps the most interest has been in the GOP primary for governor where three seek the nomi-

Battle of the Buildings

BY JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN
PRESS REPORTER

EcoPals, a small energy club at Crittenden County Elementary School, received quite a surprise last week when it learned that CCES was selected to participate in a national contest sponsored by the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) Energy Star program.

Trying to create a green school beneficial for both the environment and students, EcoPals – under the direction of Tammy Brantley – has taken measures to ensure that energy waste is being prevented. The effort helped put the school in the running for Energy Star's Battle of the Buildings.

CCES Principal Melissa Tabor was excited last week after learning about the school's selection for the contest from Darrel Pfingston, the district's energy manager.

"The whole process leading up to this has been exciting and if it weren't for Darrel, we wouldn't have had this wonderful opportunity to be a part of the contest," Tabor said. "I know the students are very excited about this – they can't wait to see how we do."

Battle of the Buildings is a national competition that is aimed at improving energy efficiency of commercial buildings like retail stores, schools, hotels and museums. CCES is one of 245 buildings in the competition, and one of 62 schools. CCES is the only school in the western Kentucky area, according to Brantley.

"It's a steep competition but we know that we can do it," Brantley said. "The EcoPals are very dedicated to conserving energy and if it weren't for them, the school may not have had this chance."

Every day, members of EcoPals take turns checking various things through the school, conserving energy where they can. If a light is on in the classroom but it isn't occupied, EcoPals turn it off. The energy club is also responsible for a VendingMiser that controls power to a drink machine in the teachers' workroom. The little device senses when a room is vacant and lowers the amount of wattage used by the machine. Brantley said EcoPals have also replaced weather stripping around windows, doors, fixed a leaky faucet in the cafeteria and is spreading awareness to promote conservation.

"These kids are wonderful and they're doing such a great job by doing this," Brantley said. "If they walk by a teacher's room and the lights are off, they leave them a sticker letting the teacher know that they're doing a great job. The teachers love it."

It's because of little things like turning off unused computers that has led the school of 600 students to be about 95 percent energy efficient, a feat that qualified it for the contest. EcoPal students Ross Crider and Kierra Tidwell are making sure the school stays green.

"We're making a difference by doing this, one light switch at a time," Crider said. "We're providing a greener environment for everyone."

"And we have a chance to really win the contest," Tidwell added.

During the competition, CCES will keep track of its monthly energy consumption using the EPA's Energy Star online energy tracking tool, make improvements to performances and sharing its progress online. Out of the 245 participant buildings, only a portion will be selected to move to the next level of the competition in July. The building that demonstrates the greatest percentage-based reduction in energy will be named as the winner in November.

"The students are working incredibly hard and we're all doing our part here at the school to help with the contest," Tabor said. "Over the summer, air conditioning will be kept to a very low, low minimum and lights will only be turned on in parts of the school that are being used. Teachers have started using task lamps at their desks when they're the only one in the classroom. That alone saves a lot by not having the overhead lights on."

The winner of the contest will be recognized nationally. If it wins, CCES will be a model for other districts.

"We're setting the example to help improve the environment and if we win, our school can be used as a guide for others on how to conserve," Brantley said. "Especially since our school was built in 1980, it's not a new building that was built for energy efficiency. We're making it that way, though, by taking these little steps and it shows. I'm glad that the energy club members and their hard work are being recognized."

Flooding continues

Roads remain closed; slow recession expected

STAFF REPORT

State and county officials continue to anticipate a very slow recession of floodwaters. Most roads, streets and highways closed late last week when the Ohio River reached its crest were still under water and closed as of early Wednesday morning.

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newom said he couldn't speculate when roads and highways would be safely passable. The Crittenden Press Online continues to update road closings regularly and it will post updates as they are opened when floodwaters recede.

Fifty homes in Crittenden County have been evacuated and floodwaters are affecting many others in the Shady Grove, Tolu, Dycusburg and Weston areas. Many residents are trapped behind flood waters with

Why is our world steeped in darkness?

The real culprits here are many religious leaders and many professed Christians, especially in America.

No one will deny our world is steeped in the darkness of evil. Why aren't more people seeking the reason?

The answer to this question is simple when we realize the only light that dispels the darkness of evil is Jesus Christ and His true followers.

Jesus said to the people in the temple in John 8:12, "I am the light of the world; he that follows Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life."

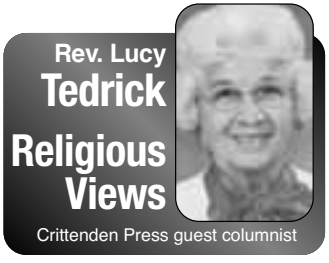

He then told His disciples, "You are the salt... and the light of the world." Matt. 5:13,14.

In the mid 1800s, 97 percent of Americans claimed faith in Christ in the protestant persuasion. The other three percent were 2% percent Catholic and one-third of one percent Jewish. America became the light of the darkened world of paganism, false religion and poverty. Millions wanted to emulate her or come to her shores.

In The Herald and Presbyter, Sept. 6, 1822 was this quote, "In the end, the state of the Union comes down to the character of the people. I sought for the greatness and genius of America in her commodious harbors and her ample rivers, and it was not there; In her rich mines and her vast world commerce, and it was not there. Not until I went into the churches of America and heard her pulpits, aflame with righteousness, did I understand the secret of her genius and power. America is great because she is good, and if America ever ceases to be good, America will cease to be great."

How much holy righteousness do we hear from many pulpits today? How many pulpits even teach the truths about holiness and righteousness, and the Bible standards for holy living?

How many people today believe that once you are saved you cannot be lost regardless of how you live? This all is in the face of, "Without holiness, no man shall see the Lord." Heb. 12:14. Yet many preachers will not preach this scripture and therefore become false preachers. Or if they quote it, they explain it away.

People will say, "No one can live holy" and therefore they go on speeding toward the judgment steeped in their deception that makes them think they are off the hook.

We ministers of the Holy Word of God will be held responsible for what we preach and what we lead people to believe. We will be judged for what we permit people to believe without showing them through the Word when they are wrong. We also will be held responsible how we live our lives before people and in private.

We must not only be forgiven for our sins, but must be sanctified, filled with His Holy Spirit or we cannot live His life. Paul said, "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ he is none of His." Romans 8:9.

Jesus is returning for His bride the Church. He is coming for a pure, chaste, holy bride, not one living in sin.

Let Him tell us about what He died to do for a bride and her sanctification... "Christ loved the church, and gave Himself for it; that He might sanctify and cleanse it with the truths of His word, that He might present it to Himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." Eph. 5:25-27.

He suffered atrocious beatings and six long hours nailed to a cross to save and sanctify a people the Bible calls the true Church and His Bride. He has given us everything we need to meet His requirements. He is returning for nothing less.

Our world is in darkness because Jesus, the Light of the World, is not living in so many that claim Him and it turns people away from the Gospel.

When Jesus told His disciples that they were the light of the world, He also said to them, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in Heaven." Matt. 5:16

If our lives as ministers and professed Christians do not glorify God in this world of wickedness, then at the judgment we will be reminded of His words, "Many will say to Me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not preached in your name? And in your name have cast out devils? And in your name have done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from Me, you that work iniquity." Matt. 7:22,23.

So we can't die with sin in our lives and make it to Heaven, and this is also proof our works won't save us. Jesus has to be in us doing His works through us in order for us to hear Him say on that last and fateful day, "Well done, thy good and faithful servant... enter into the joys of the Lord."

Patients with diabetes face lifelong challenges

Most people have known someone who has diabetes, but very few of us have ever really understood it. It is estimated that 26 million people in the United States have diabetes, while another 79 million have pre-diabetes. Let's take a moment to discuss Type 2 diabetes, which accounts for 90-95 percent of cases, making it by far the most common form of this disease.

Traditionally Type 2 diabetes (previously known as adult-onset diabetes or non-insulin dependent diabetes) has predominantly affected adults of 40-plus years of age. However, Type 2 diabetes is affecting an increasing number of children today as a result of the growing inactivity and obesity in children.

The pancreas, a small but important organ located behind the stomach, is responsible for manufacturing and secreting hormones, or chemical messengers, into the bloodstream. Insulin, one of these hormones, allows the liver and muscles to remove excess glucose (sugar) from the bloodstream.

For diabetes to develop, an individual must have both insulin resistance and inadequate insulin secretion. Insulin resistance is a condition in which insulin becomes less effective at lowering blood sugar levels. The pancreas is now required to produce more insulin to lower glucose levels to normal. When the person's pancreas is no longer able to produce enough insulin to compensate for the insulin resistance, the person is no longer a pre-diabetic, but is now said to have Type 2 diabetes.

In summary, while pre-diabetics and Type 2 diabetics both have insulin resistance, Type 2 diabetics also suffer from inadequate insulin production.

Approximately 90 percent of people that develop Type 2 diabetes are overweight. Presumably, someone following a lifestyle with excessive caloric intake and inadequate exercise is at increased risk of developing diabetes. This is evident by observing the fact that when non-western countries with low calorie diets (which thus have a low incidence of Type 2 diabetes) change to a western diet/lifestyle, Type 2 diabetes becomes epidemic.

Most people do not realize how serious the effects of diabetes can be to their health. Diabetes is one of the leading causes of sickness and death in the United States. This disease is the major cause of blindness in adults ages 20-74. It is the leading contributor to end-stage renal disease and is the No. 1 cause of non-traumatic lower limb amputations. There is an increased risk of developing depression, and diabetics are at an increased risk of developing many types of cancer. Coronary heart disease risk is two to four times greater than in non-diabetics. Two-thirds of diabetics in general will die of heart disease or stroke.

Patients with diabetes have a lifelong challenge to achieve and maintain blood glucose levels as close to the normal range as possible. With appropriate glucose control a patient may markedly avoid worsening of the complications associated with diabetes.

Letters to the Editor

Moffett is right choice

To the Editor:

When I saw the great responses in support of the Lady Rockets' softball team, I thought wouldn't it be great if we could get that much enthusiasm for the May 17 Republican Primary.

Don't get me wrong, I'm a sports fan, but Kentucky faces serious problems and we have the opportunity to correct some of those problems on Tuesday. Crittenden County held the first-ever Pennyrile Republican Dinner on April 2, the same night UK played Connecticut in a Final Four basketball game. There were about 150 attendees who came to hear the candidates' positions on important statewide issues. Sen. David Williams, who had agreed to attend and present his arguments for why we should elect him as our Republican candidate for governor, got a better deal a day or so before the dinner and attended the ballgame in Houston.

We are one of three states holding elections this year and the only one with a governor who supports President Obama, so we must bring someone out of the primary who can unseat our current governor. Phil Moffett is the clear choice in my mind. Allow me to explain why. Phil Moffett has no political debt or baggage; he is a Louisville businessman not a politician; he brings business solutions to Kentucky's growing fiscal problems and ridiculous tax system. Phil Moffett is running on a four corners platform of State Sovereignty, Jobs and Improved Business Environment, Improved Public Education and Smaller, more Efficient State Government. On the other hand Phil Moffett's main primary opponent, Sen. Williams, has been in Kentucky politics for 27 years (two years in the House and the rest in the Senate) including the last 10 years as President of the Senate. During those 10 years Kentucky has gone from about $3.5 billion in municipal debt to $10 billion in municipal debt and Kentucky's public pension funds went from about a half billion dollars overfunded to $34 billion underfunded.

Our state debt and underfunded pension obligations translate to $24,500 for every tax-paying family in Kentucky. If that wasn't bad enough, Forbes Magazine has ranked Kentucky as the worst run state in the nation. Now I hear radio ads telling me he's a conservative. Are you kidding me? In 2005, Sen. Williams lobbied hard for passage of House Bill 299 and the Kentucky General Assembly passed the bill which allows legislators to enrich their pensions greatly. This bill allows legislators to retire and receive 100 percent of their highest three years of pay – for life – while also getting taxpayer paid medical benefits.

Now, Williams wants us to promote him to governor so he can fix Kentucky's problems. I think not. Exercise your right to vote on May 17, and choose wisely.

What are all those yellow-flower plants covering our fallow fields?

Family and friends think I'm a little goofy sometimes because of an inner desire to track down the names of and to understand the types of plants and animals that share my world.

Each spring, fields and unmowed areas around west Kentucky fill up with brightly colored yellow wildflowers. A few weeks ago, some folks from the Great Lakes region were in our county to hunt turkeys. A couple asked me about a specific species of plant that turns our countryside into a veritable golden plain.

Some folks call the yellow-flowered plant wild mustard. Certainly, there's some wild mustard out there, but it's not quite as plentiful as the daisy-looking yellow weed that grows about two feet tall and covers a fallow field like red at a St. Louis Cardinals baseball game.

Being a student of wildflowers and other flora and fauna, I disagreed with the mustard theory. It looks too much like a daisy to be mustard.

There probably aren't too many turkey hunters who carry a field manual around in their hunting vest, but I'm one of them. I'd just as soon meander through the forest identifying unique plants as I had to take a bead on a tom's cranium. I keep a National Audubon Society book of wildflowers and one for trees in the truck seat at all times. During the spring, I pack them around in the field.

I've had three different wildflower field manuals and literally worn them out. Or, well, they got wet and the pages stuck together. I heard a news report not long ago about a laboratory in Colorado that specializes in removing mold and water from historic documents. I thought about having some of my old field manuals sent out there for repair, but I'm sure it's too expensive. Yet the books themselves are generally about 20 or 30 bucks because they have so many color photographs. A wildflower book printed in black and white – and there are some out there – are virtually useless to the amateur botanist like myself.

Back to the original issue, these bright yellow wildflower has 9 to 14 petals on a bloom surrounding a yellowish-brown bulb in the center. It has a chartreuse stalk with heavily lobed leaves.

Using the resources at my disposal – the Audubon Society book in the front seat – I tried to match the plant, but couldn't make a certain identification. It mostly resembled Ragwort, but the green leaves attached to the stalk didn't fit the book's description.

After conferring with Crittenden County's most noted specialists and greatest authorities on plant life, I think the mystery is solved.

This plant is a derivative of Ragwort, but it's actually Senecio glabellus, or Butterweed. It's a member of the Aster family. Rip Wheeler once told me that some of the old-timers call it Bitterweed because dairy cows grazing on it produced some ill-tasting milk.

The Crittenden County Extension office has an excellent book published by the University of Kentucky Press and written by a botanist in Lexington. That's where I was able to find the sub-species and positively identify the plant.

Right now, those of you who notice these type things or even care what's growing in no-till fields, might also see some Fleabane. It's a white daisy like flower that sometimes has a purplish cast to the flower. This plant gets its name from the idea that it will repel fleas. Don't worry that it's a common carrier of chiggers and ticks.

I've always coveted the eccentric folks who tend wildflower gardens in their backyards. You can have color year round if you know what to grow. The wife won't go for it though.

Burks to join CCHS staff

Cheryl Burks has been named as the new coordinator for the Crosswalk Learning Center at the Crittenden County High School and will begin on May 16. As a former consumer educator for the Pennyrile Allied Community Services, Burks was already working in the district when the opportunity became available to work for the Crittenden County School System.

Burks

"Crittenden County has welcomed me with open arms and I can't be more appreciative," Burks said. "I'm very excited to be working here and working with the students." As part of a $500,000 21st Century Learning Center grant awarded by the Kentucky Department of Education, the Crosswalk Learning Center will be used to implement effective, out-of-school programs that will improve student achievement and enrichment. Burks also said that there will be parent workshops to help further benefit students. The bers worked their way to a Personal Fitness merit badge. Taking 12 weeks to complete, the badge is Eagle-required. The scouts worked with Rocket football coaches Denis Hodge, Jared Brown and Jeremy Wheeler as they learned several workout regimens.

Kirby earns Eagle Scout ranking

After 12 years of working through the ranks of the Boy Scouts, Marion native Alex Kirby has been awarded the rank of Eagle Scout. There will be a Court of Honor held on Sunday, June 5 at 2 p.m. to officially award the rank of Eagle Scout.

Now a senior at Crittenden County High School, Kirby, 17, first joined the Boy Scouts program at age five as a Cub Scout and has been a Boy Scout for six years. A member of the United Methodist Church, Kirby said it was natural for him to join since the Boy Scout program is held there. Kirby said that only one out of every 100 scouts obtain the ranking of Eagle Scout.

"It was really important for me to get this honor," said Kirby. "It is very prestigious and only a few get the privilege to actually become an Eagle Scout.

"I feel proud of myself because I have committed myself to it for so long, that it has made me proud to be amongst them."

As a 1st class scout, Kirby said he really noticed how important the Boy Scout program was to him. His troop had five Boy Scouts go on to achieve the Eagle Scout rank and it motivated him to do the same.

The Boy Scouts of America motto is to help young people build character, train them in responsibilities or participating citizenship and develop personal fitness. Kirby is also a member on this year's Crittenden County Rocket baseball team.

"It has trained me to be prepared for life and that is what the scouts do for you, to train you for your next step in life," Kirby said.

The scout program not only trains youth, but also helps others in the community. Kirby said his most memorable honor was during the winter ice storm of 2009, when he and several scouts went into a couple's house and noticed they were impaired and having trouble breathing. The scouts immediately called 911 for help to retrieve the couple.

"We received the Honor Medal for Life Saving," Kirby said. "That memory will stay with me for the rest of my life. Being a scout, it is your duty to help others."

Kirby is prepared for his next journey in life, one that will take him to Lyndsey Wilson College next year where he plans to study psychophysiology and eventually apply for a pre-medical program. He has carried a 3.6 grade-point-average this year and said he does have a scholarship that is not affiliated with the scout program.

Housing complexes in Marion completed

STAFF REPORT

The Pennyroyal Center and its housing unit, Quad County Housing, celebrated grand openings of two new duplexes in Marion recently.

There was a ribbon-cutting ceremony at the new housing unit on Rochester Street near the National Guard Armory.

Quad County Housing has contracted the building of the two duplexes, one on Rochester and another on Weldon Street. Lots that the duplexes are situated on were deeded to Quad County by the City of Marion. The duplexes are among 14 being built in Crittenden, Caldwell and Lyon counties. They will house low-income individuals who have disabilities. Residents who are placed in the apartment units will pay 30 percent of their gross income for rent.

As of right now, 19 housing applications have been turned in for the duplexes, according to Pennyroyal Housing Coordinator Kibby Davis.

"And that's without advertising," Davis added. "We look to have several more turned in now that the duplexes are finished."

The selection process is already in the works and Davis said that Quad County is hoping to place residents in the next week or so.

The apartments are energy efficient. They feature four to five skylights and have tank-less water heaters. A dish washer and washer and dryer are provided and utilities such as water, electric and gas are included in the rent.

"We're helping underprivileged people with housing so that they're not forced to live on the streets," Davis said. "The Pennyroyal Center is excited to be a part of Quad County Housing and we look forward to adding more duplexes in the years to come."

Simpson-Smiley

Terry and Tanya Simpson of Marion announce the engagement and upcoming marriage of their daughter, Kelsey Taylor Simpson, to Evan Heath Smiley, son of Mike and Lisa Smiley of Marion.

Simpson is the granddaughter of Frieda Heady of Marion and the late Paul Heady and H.F. and Joyce-dene Simpson of Marion.

Smiley is the grandson of Charles and Jenny Sisco of Marion and Carolyn Brou-sard of Antioch, Tenn., and the late Bill Smiley.

The bride is a 2007 graduate of Crittenden County High School and 2009 graduate of Madisonville Community College. She is a member of Sullivan Baptist Church and is employed by Crittenden Health Systems.

The groom is a 2007 graduate of Crittenden County High School and is employed by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 2 p.m., May 21 at Marion Baptist Church.

FCCLA members head to nationals

Crittenden County High School FCCLA members recently won several awards at the 66th state leadership meeting. Students placing first in state will advance to national competition held in Anaheim, Calif. They are Corey Berry, Emily Bruns and Mandy York in the senior category of National Programs in Action; Brittany Phillips and LaDonna Herron in Senior Chapter Service Project Manual; and Taylor Fritts in Junior Illustrated Talk. Also competing in the state competition was Rebecca Adams in the Junior Financial Planning event. The CCHS chapter was named a Unite to Read chapter and retired CCHS teacher Dawn Hollamon was recognized for serving as a chapter FCCLA advisor for 27 years. FCCLA members also attended a regional meeting earlier in the year where new members were elected to office and senior Brittany Phillips was awarded the Rosemary Pace Region 2 Scholarship. Bruns was elected to serve a second term as Region 2 president and Fritts was elected to serve as vice president of individual programs. Nikki Conger completed her term as the 2010-2011 vice president of peer education. Pictured to the left are (front from left) Corey Berry, Taylor Fritts, Rebecca Adams; (back) Emily Bruns, LaDonna Herron, Mandy York and Brittany Phillips.

Easley-Burton

Darah RaeAnn Easley and Dakota Cole Burton announce their engagement and upcoming marriage.

Easley is the daughter of Darin and Terri Easley of Marion. She is the granddaughter of Dennis and Janet Thomas, also of Marion, and Larry and Dottie Easley of Tolu.

Burton is the son of Carrie Smith of Calvert City and Billy Burton of Adairsville, Ga. He is the grandson of Ann Burton of Grantsburg, Ill., and Billy Burton, Sr., of Adairsville, Ga., and Jaunita Smith of Calvert City and the late Earl Smith.

The bride is a 2007 graduate of Crittenden County High School and is pursuing a degree in nursing.

The groom is a 2007 graduate of Marshall County High School and is employed by the Army Corps of Engineers.

Wedding vows will be exchanged at 4 p.m., May 29 at Kentucky Dam Village Convention Center in Gilbertsville.

Flood-damaged homes are ripe for mold growth

Torrential rains and resulting flood damage in April have left a path of destruction for homeowners across Kentucky. Sunny skies and warm temperatures will help clean-up efforts, but with high-moisture content in the air, conditions are ripe for the growth of mold and fungi in waterlogged buildings.

Mold is a type of fungi that begins to grow on materials that stay wet longer than two or three days. It produces tiny cells called spores that float and spread easily through the air. Live spores act like seeds to form new colonies when they find the right conditions. These include moisture, nutrients and a suitable place to grow with moisture being the key factor.

Some people are very sensitive to mold, but long-term or heavy exposure to it is unhealthy for anyone. Mold can trigger allergic reactions, asthma attacks and also can compromise a person's ability to resist illness. Young children and the elderly are most vulnerable.

Special care is needed to safely and effectively remove mold from a flood-damaged building. Here are suggestions to help you safely manage the removal of mold from your home:

1. Consider the size of the mold problem. According to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, if the area is less than 10 square feet (less than roughly a 3 feet-by-3 feet patch), in most cases, it can be handled by the homeowner.

2. Wear protective gear including gloves, goggles and an N95 respirator. Depending on the severity and extent of the mold, you may need to consider adding a VOC filter since mold gives off gases known as microbial volatile organic compounds (MVOCs). An N95 respirator will filter fungal particulate matter, but it will not filter gases.

3. Isolate the area you are working in by closing doors and ventilate by opening a window, if possible. Disturbing mold colonies during cleanup can cause a huge release of spores into the air. Take necessary steps to insure that mold spores are not able to spread. Cover air vents and turn off central air conditioning

4. Remove and dispose of moldy, porous materials that have been contaminated. These may include carpeting, upholstery, fabrics and mattresses. Insulation can wick up moisture and stay wet for a long time. Cut wall covering above the water line and remove insulation to prevent the growth of mold and fungi inside walls. Remove vinyl wallpaper and flooring, ceiling tiles, gypsum wallboard and processed wood products that have retained moisture.

5. Clean and disinfect. You can effectively clean surface mold from nonporous materials such as hard plastic, concrete, glass and metal. Clean to remove the mold, not just kill it, because dead spores can still cause health problems. After cleaning you may choose to disinfect. In cases where sewage contamination has occurred, disinfection is a must. Follow label directions for the disinfecting product and wear rubber gloves.

6. Dry all wet materials as quickly as possible by running fans and a dehumidifier. Air out the building by using window fans to pull mold spores outdoors.

7. Remain on the lookout for mold recurrences. If it returns, repeat cleaning and use speed drying equipment. Consider having vents professionally cleaned and sanitized to ensure spores don't spread.

8. Do not attempt restoration until all materials have dried completely.

Currently, there are no government licensing programs in Kentucky for mold remediation. If you choose to hire a contractor to remove mold, seek out a licensed contractor with special training and equipment such as HEPA vacuums and dehumidifiers. Ask about cost, the methods to be used, the steps to be taken and references. Request details in writing.

For more information about how to manage recovery and cleanup from flood damage, contact the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service.

FBLA place at conference

Crittenden County FBLA Chapter attended the Future Business Leaders of America State Leadership Conference at the Galt House in Louisville on April 12-14. The chapter had eight officers, advisors and members attending. Six members competed in team and individual competitive events. Other activities included dances, workshops, guest speakers, officer elections and the awards ceremony. Colin Belt and Roy Givens placed second in Digital Video Production. Emily Myers and Talaney Werne placed third in Business Ethics. Rebecca Clark placed fifth in Business Law. First through third place winners will advance to national competition in Orlando, Fla., this June.

Woodmen of the World donates flags to local agencies

Local Woodmen of the World Representatives Grant Rogers and Jeff Winn presented new flags to local businesses in Marion to replace flags that were worn and old. Flags were presented to the Crittenden County Courthouse, received by Judge-Executive Perry Newcom; Dam 50, received by David Travis; and Crittenden Health Systems, received by Orman Hunt. Pictured at top are (from left) Grant Rogers, Perry Newcom, David Travis, Keith Rogers, Jeff Winn and Orman Hunt. After receiving his flag, Hunt then presented the flag to Crittenden Health Systems CEO Jim Christensen. Boy Scout Troop 30 was on hand to help put the new flag up, replacing the older one. Pictured at left are (from left) Hunt, Boy Scout Jake Urbanowski, CEO Jim Christensen, Cub Scout Deken Platfoot, Boy Scout Carsen Easley, Boy Scout Ryan Dunham and CHS employee Todd Ojeda.

CCHS takes high school book fair for a spin

STAFF REPORT

As elementary students, book fairs were once viewed as an exciting time. With rich, glossy covers gracing shelves and novelty knick knacks sitting on boxes, a student marveled all that could be bought. Fast forward a few years and book fairs have since been left behind. Or so they used to be.

Through Friday, CCHS students will have the opportunity to shop for books in the library during their language arts classes. Although the idea of a book fair sounds reminiscent of elementary school where books were smaller and riddled with pictures, CCHS librarian Carol West assures that the books are age appropriate.

"They're definitely high school-level books," she said. "I think that students will absolutely love them."

CCHS is one of a select few that has been selected by Scholastic to do a trial-run of book fairs for high school students. West, who approached Scholastic first about the idea in the fall, said that it did sound a bit silly.

"It's not something that is associated with high school," West said. "So of course, when I mentioned doing one for here, Scholastic was a bit shocked."

It didn't take long for Scholastic to get back with West on the idea, explaining that they were setting up trial runs in several schools.

"I was excited," West said. "I couldn't wait to tell the students. Even the language arts teachers thought it was a great idea."

Students will be able to purchase books during their designated times throughout the day until Friday. For more information, call Crittenden County High School at 965-2248.

Freshmen Ashley Hudson, Bailey Hart and Kennidy Lanham check out the book selections at the book fair.

nation. They are Sen. David Williams, Phil Moffett and Bobbie Holsclaw.

Both parties have contested races for Secretary of State and Commissioner of Agriculture. The Republicans will have a primary for Auditor of Public Accounts and Democrats have a race for State Treasurer. Polls will be open from 6 a.m., to 6 p.m. There are no changes in the county's normal 12 polling places.

Although turnout will be light, Byford said the election costs the same.

"It's a shame really because it costs the county so much to have an election," she said.

The cost will be about $12,000. Forty-eight poll workers are hired at a cost of $6,720. There are other costs for programming voting machines, printing ballots and advertising.

The county's insurance has paid to replace several voting machines damaged earlier this year when the courthouse basement flooded. Fourteen eSlate machines and one eScan machine were damaged. Replacement cost was about $70,000.

Absentee voting continues at the courthouse through 4 p.m., Monday. Anyone who will be out of town on election day may cast their vote early. The deadline for requesting a paper absentee ballot has passed.

See sample ballot on page 8 of this edition.

no way out other than boating. If you need emergency assistance, call 965-3500.

Mosquitos and other pests are becoming a nuisance to people living and working in low-lying areas near the Ohio, Cumberland or Tradewater rivers.

U.S. 60 near Sullivan remains closed. Keith Todd of the Kentucky Department of Highways said Tuesday night that if the river continues falling as expected, the highway could possibly be re-opened this weekend.

"If the river falls as predicted, we get no more rain and if there is no major damage to the roadway, we might be able to open it sometime this weekend," he said.

Todd said there many factors that weigh on the issue.

On average, about 2,000 vehicles pass that stretch of highway at the Crittenden-Union County line each day.

Ky. 120 at the Crittenden-Webster County Line remains closed, too. Todd said it will be among the last roads to reopen due to flooding on the Tradewater River.

At one time, Todd said more than 200 sections of state highways in western Kentucky were closed because of high water.

Tabor Road in southern Crittenden County is now open, allowing traffic to move between Eddyville and the Caldwell Springs area.

Here are lists of known state, federal and county roads closed at press time due to high water:

County Roads Closed

Axel Creek, Charlie May, Enon Church, Emmaus Church, Phin Croft, Weston, Providence, Hebron Church, Cool Springs, Gum Creek, Bells Mines, Cottonpatch, Blackburn Church, Old Ford's Ferry, Blackford Church, Baker Hollow, Monroe Wesmoland, Caney Fork, Barnett Chapel, Railey, South Railey, Claylick Creek, Templeton, Elizabethtown Landing, Willard Easley, Millie Peek, Wolf Creek, Ray Peek, Owens and many streets in Tolu and Dycusburg.

State and Federal Highways Closed

Ky. 135, Ky. 1917, Ky. 132 Ky. 91 North, Ky. 120, Ky. 387, Ky. 365, Ky. 295 and U.S. 60 East and West (in Livingston).

Humans are not the epitome of smart

On my way home from Buckner, I spied a dead opossum in the middle of Hwy. 24. That in itself was not unusual – opossums are slow and not safety savvy. They often meet their demise on the pike. However, this dead opossum had a big yellow streak down its back. The highway paint crew had not bothered to remove the animal when they painted the stripe down the middle of the road.

My thoughts quickly moved from opossum sympathy to painter apathy. Did the paint stripper not see the dead animal? Did he or she not care? Were they just too lazy to remove the creature or turn off the paint sprayer as they passed over it? Did this painter have instructions to stay in the paint vehicle and not remove obstacles from the road?

Next my thoughts turned to the yellow streak. People often speak of cowardice as a yellow streak down one's back. Yellow is the color of caution and fear. To refer to one as yellow, e.g. "he's yellow" is not a compliment. Opossums are not particularly fearless; maybe the yellow streak was appropriate.

With these new thoughts I returned to mourning for the poor, dumb possum. "Pogo the Possum" was my longtime favorite cartoon. More than once Pogo observed, "We have spotted the enemy, and he is us." The abundance of animal carcasses along the highway bears witness to this truth.

Dr. H. Wade Paris
Shepard's Call
Guest columnist

For these creatures, ignorance was their enemy. It is easy to smile about a beast too dumb to stay off the highway, but don't laugh too much. We humans are not always the epitome of "smart." A parishioner was diagnosed with cancer. The doctor recommended surgery.

"These doctors are all knife happy," she said and refused the surgery. Not smart. She died.

To get some needed cash John robbed a bank. He wrote the note demanding the money on personal stationery and left it with the teller. Not smart. He was quickly apprehended.

A lady stopped for speeding told the officer she was speeding because she was almost out of gas and was in a hurry to get to a service station. Not smart. The officer gave her a ticket.

Now here is the dumbest of all. "The fool has said, 'There is no God.'" (Psalm 14:1) Not smart!

White Cappers were enforcers of a different time

In the late 1800s and early 1900s, there were groups of individuals who took the law into their own hands. The groups in Crittenden County were known as White Cappers by the local citizens. It was a lawless movement mostly among local farmers and was originally a form of enforcing community standards, appropriate behavior and traditional rights. Men who neglected or abused their family, people who showed excessive laziness, people who stole from their neighbors and women who had children out of wedlock or were seen with too many different men were all prime examples of possible targets.

Despite the different white capping targets, the methods used by the White Caps remained somewhat constant. Generally the members of this society were disguised in a way that somewhat resembled that of the Ku Klux Klan, and the group always attacked at night. Physical attacks could include such things as whippings or beatings with sticks, firing shots into houses or just a strong verbal warning to straighten up or face the consequences.

Some people thought of them as a useful asset to the community while others, such as the ones they visited and the elected local law enforcers, had a different opinion of their activities. In a few instances they did get out of control and severely injured people with their beatings and there is even documentation of one hanging.

From the archives of The Crittenden Press, here are some interesting cases that attracted the attention of the local White Cappers.

Dec. 12, 1895 The White Cappers Make Things Unpleasant

It was hoped that the night marauders, commonly called White Caps, had retired from business in the county, but such is not the case. According to reliable reports more depredations have been committed in the Hurricane neighborhood since circuit court.

Two or three persons have been called from their homes by these self-constituted regulators and shamefully treated and the community is still in a state of unrest. Some of the best people in that section think the matter will end in very serious trouble unless a speedy stop is put to the business. So far, all efforts have failed to bring to light any of the persons connected with the shameful affair but should a killing or two grow out of it, and such a consequence is only a matter of time if the thing continues, then there will be a reckoning which will cause some sober thinking.

It may be possible that some good people were unwittingly drawn into the clan at the start, being deluded by the idea that wrongs could thus be effectually righted, and that would be the end of it. Results so far certainly have shown to them what a grave mistake they have made and have pointed out the vortex of trouble that is sure to come in the end if such a course is persisted in. It is possible, even probable, that the clan can save its members endless and serious complications even in this late scene of the play. Complications will cost them life and liberty by acquitting a field that can possibly bring nothing but dishonor.

April 4, 1895

Weston Community Items

William Holloman, wife and two dogs, from south of Weston, crossed the river a few days ago. According to a pretty authentic report, the "White Caps" had given Holloman his marching orders after giving him a thrashing. He was told that he must go to work and support his family or leave or take worse. He left. The dogs remained in town long enough to rob Dr. Truitt's hen nests.

Reports from the Bells Mines country came here this morning that a mob of disguised persons went to the home of Bert Curier and A. T. Cooper who live somewhere in the area and gave each of them a severe whipping, and told them it would be dangerous for them to remain longer in that locality, giving them a certain time in which to depart. They are suspected of being connected with some local vandalism and barn burnings.

Masked Men Visit a Home and Whip Three Persons

On Saturday night, several masked men went to the home of Obadiah Burgess,

A frightening sight for anyone to hear and see coming their way would be these masked, self-chosen community traditions enforcers.

who lives about seven miles north of Marion. Using switches and sticks, the men severely beat Burgess, Isaac Hughes and a 15-year-old boy who lives with Burgess. The particulars of the affair are meager; in fact, a simple statement is about all there is known concerning it.

Hughes is an unmarried man about 30 years old and is said to be a quiet, unoffensive man who rarely goes away from home.

Obe Burgess married Anna Lee Hughes, a local person, and is so far as we have learned a peaceful citizen. All three of the persons, it is said, are badly bruised. A bone in Hughes' arm is broken and the boy is fearfully bruised and his flesh lactated. The switches used were more in the shape of sticks and clubs than anything else. No reason has been assigned for the whipping. Even the parties themselves were not told why they were shamefully treated except for the boy and he was told that he was thus punished because he had been talking too much.

More white Capping

On Sunday night, several masked men went to the home of Will Orr, about eight miles north of Marion, and called for a man named Martin who was at Orr's house. The mob told Orr that it had come for Martin and proposed to have him even if the door had to be broken down.

They took the object of their wrath some distance from the house; tied him to a tree and unmercifully beat him and then told him to leave the county or he would suffer a still worse fate. He went to the Ohio river below Fords Ferry and begged a man to ferry him over to the Illinois side. So far no reasons are offered for the outrage except that he was thought to be associated with another group of men in the area connected to stealing cattle and hogs.

More trouble is anticipated and trouble of even a more serious nature. It is rumored that there are two factions and that one of them proposes to avenge the assault on Martin.

Another incident in the same vicinity occurred when 52 local men went to John Sliger's house looking for one of his sons. It seems, the young lad had taken some chickens and jelly from a neighbor. But when the White Cappers got there, the young man stuck the jelly into a churn of buttermilk and he crawled up the chimney to hide. The men thoroughly searched the house but the boy stood on the cross-piece of the chimney, happily escaping his punishment.

Also visited was Henry Milligan. He was a very lazy man and his wife had to make all the living. The White Cappers decided to change this so they hunted up old Henry. Finding him, they gave him a whipping and he began working and almost worked himself to death.

Located in the Hebron-Hurricane neighborhood, Joseph Lindsay and L.P. Rigsby were visited by about 30 men one night. They were called from their homes, intimidated and Lindsay was even beaten. The parties didn't know what they were accused of.

These are just a few of the tales and adventures of the long ago White Cappers that roamed our county. I'm sure there were numerous more visits that were not recorded as most people visited were frightened so badly that they wouldn't tell of their visits, and still wouldn't, even under the questioning of the local law.

Imagine the sense of fear one would have hearing the sound of those approaching horses and visualizing the masked men in the dark of night coming closer and closer to your home, especially if you knew they were after you. Yes, I'm sure many stories are lost to these forgotten passages of time.

FSA announces upcoming program deadlines

Kentucky Farm Service Agency reminds producers of the following program deadlines:

- May 27 Deadline for project area proposals for the Biomass Crop Assistance Program (BCAP).
- May 31 Final date to request marketing assistance loan or loan deficiency payment for 2010-crop cotton, feed grains, soybeans and minor oilseeds.
- May 31 Final date to report small grain acreages.
- June 1 Final date to enroll in the 2011 Average Crop Revenue Election (ACRE) Program and the Direct and Counter-cyclical Program (DCP).

Assistance programs available for flood victims

Kentucky Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director John McCauley reminds crop and livestock producers throughout the Commonwealth that have recently experienced severe damage from flooding and tornados that FSA programs may be available to assist with recovery. "Severe weather this spring is making things very difficult for many of our farmers. Learning about our FSA disaster programs is an important first step for producers in the recovery process," said McCauley. FSA administers several important programs that help producers recover from disaster damage and livestock deaths. Among the key programs available to address impacts from disasters are the Emergency Conservation Program (ECP), the Livestock Indemnity Program (LIP), the Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP), the Noninsured Disaster Assistance Program (NAP) and the Supplemental Revenue Assistance Payments (SURE) Program. Fact sheets for all of these programs can be found on our website at www.fsa.usda.gov; click on Newsroom, then Fact Sheets. "We encourage all who have suffered a disaster due to the recent severe weather conditions to read the fact sheets and visit their local FSA county office so they get a quick start in the recovery process," added McCauley.

Pitch cast for high-water bass

LEE MCCLELLAN
KENTUCKY AFIELD

I recently fished Cedar Creek Lake with an old and trusted buddy with whom I've fished a thousand times. A slow fishing day by Cedar Creek's standards. I brought only one largemouth bass to hand by 2:30 p.m.

After unsuccessfully casting a jig and craw combination on a baitcaster for a big part of the day, I picked up my spinning rod. I earlier tied on a straight-tailed brown with orange belly soft-plastic worm on a 3/16-ounce Shaky head on the spinning rod. I made a cast into a pocket near shore overlain with logs and fallen tree branches. The lure never hit bottom or wood.

My line came toward me and I reeled down to eat the slack. My rod tip began to bend from the weight of the fish before I set the hook. This feeling usually means I've hooked a pig.

I swept the rod upward and my medium-power spinning rod immediately bent double. The reel started burping drag. I had no control at all as the fish swam toward some of the flooded timber that lines much of the shore of Cedar Creek.

By the time my buddy asked if I needed the net, it was over. The fish escaped by spitting the lure. I blew it.

In retrospect, the best option would've been to cut off the jig, retie the worm on my baitcasting rod and make a nice pitch cast to the cover. A baitcasting rod contains enough power to turn a large fish hooked in heavy cover. Plus, 12-pound test line gives an angler much more leverage than the 8-pound line on my spinning rod.

I grew up fishing flowing water for smallmouth bass. I fish Lake Cumberland or Dale Hollow for most of my lake trips. These fishing situations favor a spinning rod and light line.

My baitcasting skills languished as a result. In the past few years, I've improved markedly, but I am still below average with a bait-casting rod, especially when it comes to the pitch cast.

"With this high water, pitching is going to be important," said Chad Miles, an expert bass angler who's deadly with a baitcasting rod. "The whole thing is to keep the bait as close to the water's surface as possible on the cast. It allows you to target small areas and not spook fish with a big loud splash. With a pitch, you can cast your lure under overhanging limbs, docks and the like."

You'll need a medium or a medium-heavy power bait-casting rod at least 6 feet, 6-inches long. A 7-footer works better for pitching. Single hook lures such as a jig, grub or worm work best for pitching with a reel spooled with 10- to 17-pound test line.

"Grab the lure and let out enough line to bring it about waist high. Pre-load the rod by pulling on the lure a bit," Miles explained. "Then, use an underhand pitch motion, let the rod release, and point the rod above where you want the lure to land."

Miles also said move the rod toward the target at the end of the pitch. "That way, you don't pull the lure back toward you and make a big splash," he said.

The underhand roll cast is another option for presenting a lure just above the water. This cast employs an underhand hand action like you would use for skipping a rock on the water's surface or pitching a softball.

"I can keep that bait waist high above the surface for 40 feet and that cast is extremely accurate," Miles explained. "Just before the lure hits the water, I extend my hand and point the rod toward the bait, killing the splash."

Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley both reached new record high levels this past week, as did Cave Run Lake. The shoreline of most Kentucky lakes and reservoirs will be up in trees for quite a while. A low and quiet presentation will bring more bites in these conditions.

If I would've only used the pitch cast with my baitcaster at Cedar Creek Lake, I may have held the longest, fattest largemouth bass of my life. Instead, I arrived at a gun fight with a pocket knife and went home brokenhearted.

House For Sale

This home boasts 3 bedrooms, 2 full baths, a living room, a dining room, a kitchen and a laundry/utility room all set on a quiet street in the Greenwood Heights subdivision. The home was remodeled in 2009 and has all new doors (interior and exterior), windows/blinds, flooring (laminade, carpet, tile), light fixtures, and many other items. In addition to remodeling, a new electrical service was installed along with a new sewer line. The home is on a large corner lot with many shady trees and new, low maintenance landscaping. A large backyard gives you lots of room for the kids or pets to play but it also features excellent storage with an outbuilding that measures approximately 16'x20'. The outbuilding has underground electricity, a concrete floor, a 5' roll-up door, large work bench, shelving, and a patio. There is also approximately 300 square feet of attic space floored for even more storage. The master bedroom features a walk-in closet and a full bath. This home has all rooms on the same level.

Please call (270) 704-1330 to schedule an appointment.

RESCUE SQUAD FUNDRAISER

CRITTENDEN COUNTY RESCUE SQUAD'S YEARLY "FAMILY PORTRAIT" FUNDRAISER IS ABOUT TO BEGIN.

We will be having 2 portrait weekends to better accommodate you and your family. We will be using the same photographer we've used the last 2 years. This year we will be doing it differently than in years past. YOU WILL NOT BE CALLED FOR A DONATION, we are mailing picture certificates to each resident in the county. You will receive an envelope with a card and a self addressed envelope (addressed to Crittenden County Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 346, Marion, KY 42064) in the next couple of weeks. Simply fill out the card and put it in the envelope along with your check and send it back to us.

THE ONLY PHONE CALL YOU WILL RECEIVE WILL BE TO SET UP YOUR APPOINTMENT FOR PICTURES. THERE WILL BE NO PHONE SOLICITATION OR DOOR-TO-DOOR SOLICITATION. THIS YEAR 100% OF YOUR DONATION GOES DIRECTLY TO THE RESCUE SQUAD. If you don't want any pictures, you can still mail your donation in the envelope provided.

If for some reason, you don't receive a certificate in the mail, you can send your check to the Crittenden County Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 346, Marion, KY 42064 and enclose a note with your name and phone number and we will contact you for your appointment time.

Portrait Dates:

There will be a 4-Person Scramble Golf Tournament Saturday at Marion Country Club. There will also be a $10,000 hole-in-one prize. Play begins at 9 a.m. Entry fee is $220 with proceeds benefiting the high school golf team booster club. For more information, call 988-2325 or 965-5446. Entry fee includes lunch.

OUTDOORS

Turkey season ends

Wild turkey season ended Sunday with Crittenden Countians bagging 519 birds, up slightly from the past two years despite a very rainy spring. Of those turkeys taken in Crittenden County, 434 were gobblers, 78 were jakes and seven were bearded hens. Last year, Crittenden County hunters harvested 513 turkeys and in 2009 they got 487. In Livingston County, hunters this year took 329 turkeys and in Caldwell they bagged 261.

Kaci Beard, 15, took this 25-pound tom. It had an 11-inch beard and one-inch spurs.

Ricky Elder of Marion was turkey hunting when he called this female coyote to within 23 yards.

Rockets lose 3 of their last 4 games

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

Crittenden County stranded 11 baserunners last Thursday and it came back to haunt the Rockets as visiting Marshall County made them pay in an 11-3 victory.

Crittenden stranded at least one runner in every inning as the visiting Marshals swept the season series.

After battling Marshall to a scoreless stalemate for two innings, the visitors used three hits, one error and a hit batsman to jump ahead 3-0.

In the bottom of the third, Travis Gilbert, Crittenden's pitcher, drew a leadoff walk. After the next two batters were retired, Rocket DH Zac Knight, who went 2-for-3 and was hit by a pitch, kept the frame alive with a single. One batter later, Eli Bebout recorded an RBI-single, scoring Gilbert and making it 3-1.

In the home half of the fourth, Rocket left fielder Colin Belt led off with a single and consecutive sacrifices by number nine hitter Taylor Champion and Landon Young advanced him to third base. Gilbert helped his own cause with an RBI-single, plating Belt and making the contest even more interesting at 3-2.

Marshall loaded the bases with nobody out in the top of the fifth on a double, walk and an error. They would push three more runs across to extend the advantage to 6-2.

Despite striking out nine Marshall batters and making a respectable start, Gilbert departed after five innings trailing by that 6-2 score.

Brian Berry and Knight both reached base after being hit by pitches to begin the fifth, but precious opportunities were missed over the next few swings as the Marshall reliever retired three straight to preserve the four-run cushion.

Despite nine Rocket hits, CCHS skipper Nathan McDowell pointed to four errors and the 11 stranded runners as huge factors.

"We've got to learn from it," he said.

After showing signs of improvement a couple of weeks ago, the Rockets have dropped three out of their last four contests.

"We can't quit and hang our heads when we get down," said the Rocket coach.

Rockets lose to Trigg County

Trigg County had no trouble beating Crittenden14-0 in five innings Friday, eliminating the Rockets' hopes of a tie for the district crown.

Not only did Crittenden get swept by the Wildcats during league play, they did not even score. The Rockets fell to 3-2 in the district with the loss. Meanwhile, Trigg improved to 4-0 and is in great shape to garner the tournament's top seed.

Rocket starting hurler Brian

Berry deserved a better fate, giving up just one earned run. The hosts committed six errors and fell behind 2-0 in the first and never threatened Trigg.

Wildcat starting hurler Hunter Allen was in command, recording seven of the 15 outs via strikeout.

Brenden Phillips, Bebout and Alex Kirby recorded the only three hits for their team.

Girls get Trigg, but lose to Hopkins Central

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

The Lady Rockets found the going very tough at Morton's Gap Monday, striking out 16 times and being one-hit in a 6-0 loss to Central Hopkins.

After a leadoff double and two-out error, the Lady Storm got the only run they would need in the second inning against Crittenden (4-11).

The Storm (19-8) has recorded a whopping seven shutouts and are only giving up 1.7 runs per contest.

Lady Rocket left fielder McKenzie Hewitt managed a leadoff single in the seventh inning to prevent her team from suffering a no-hitter. However, it was not enough to keep them from being shutout for the third time this spring.

Girls avoid district cellar

The Lady Rockets managed to stay out of the cellar in the Fifth District last Thursday at Cadiz by drubbing Trigg County 17-5 in five innings.

Softball

With the win, Crittenden improved to 1-3 in league play. The Lady Wildcats stayed winless at 0-4.

The visitors pounded out 13 hits while getting plenty of help from Trigg, which committed five errors and issued nine walks in the makeup game.

Hewitt, Jenna Odom, Emily Owen and Talaney Werne had at least two hits apiece for the winners. Owen reached base in every plate appearance, going 2-for-2 and reaching safely on a walk and an error.

For the first time this season, the Lady Rockets scored in every inning of a game.

Owen scattered six hits and had a comfortable 9-0 lead before Trigg was able to push a run across, scoring four in the third inning.

The teams square off again today (Thursday) in Marion. If the Lady Rockets win, they will wrap up the third seed for the Fifth District Tournament.

Starnes pleased with homeless track performances

STAFF REPORT

Despite not being able to compete on its own home track, Crittenden County High School's track and field team is having a very successful season. There are 38 athletes on the squad, and one senior manager, Katelyn Newcom.

For the past three years, the team has held what would be its home meets at Caldwell County because the local track is in ill repair. The girls' team has won five of its meets and all the home meets at Princeton.

"The kids just enjoy track," Coach Angela Starnes said. "Sometimes you will have a team that is strong in certain field events, but we are competitive in all areas this year."

Now in her 20th year as the skipper, Starnes says participation remains high for track and field even though there is no place for a home meet.

Other CCHS coaches encourage their players to participate in track because it helps athletes get faster and stay in shape in the spring, Starnes said.

"When you compete against faster kids from other schools, you run with your competition and it helps them to become better athletes," she explained.

Starnes also said the support base is very high among parents and the leadership from her three seniors has been pivotal to the team's success.

"Leadership from older kids like Lauren Hunt, who has been out here since she was a freshman, has been great," Starnes said. "Lauren can remember when we had just five or six girls on the team and only one alternate for relay events. Now, we have three girls' relay teams."

Hunt said this year all the hard work has paid off. She frequently places first or near the top in the 400-meter dash and in the team 400- and 800-meter relays.

"It means a lot for this team to be successful," she said. "Hard workouts are actually paying off now and it more motivating for everyone."

Sophomore Zach Tinsley has run track for three years and credits his work on the field for making him a better athlete. He also plays for the Rocket basketball and football teams. Tinsley said his goal is to continue to get better at the 100-meter dash.

"Track has helped me quite a bit for other sports and strengthened my endurance," Tinsley said.

One of the biggest surprises this year comes from one of the smallest athletes on the team. Margaret Sitar is in the seventh grade.

"Margaret has really stood out being such a young child and she is very strong and competitive in the distance race," Starnes said. "She has potential to be special."

Starnes was quick to point out that track and field paid her way through college, giving her the job she loves and filling her passion for track. Starnes still holds the 100-meter Class A record. She ran track on scholarship at Murray State.

"I want the kids to have the same opportunities as I have had," said Starnes.

Hopefully, the track team will have its home back next year. City officials are currently working with track boosters in an attempt to secure a grant to repair and resurface the track at City-County Park.

CALLING ALL
5 YEAR OLDS

CCES will have its annual TRANSITION DAY
for students in grades K-5 on Wednesday, May 18
at which time students will spend the day in their assigned classrooms for the next school year.

The school encourages you to bring your child if they will be five prior to October 1, 2011 and will be entering kindergarten in August. The children need to arrive in the lobby at 8:30 a.m. and must be picked up at 11:00 a.m.

There will be an informational session for parents starting at 9:00 a.m. and lasting approximately 30 minutes. This session is not mandatory as there will be similar meetings offered prior to the beginning of school in August.

We look forward to a fun and exciting day! This will be an opportunity for your child to experience a day in the life of a kindergartener.

Helicopter crash-lands in Frances

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

An investigation into last week's helicopter crash-landing near Frances could take a couple of months, a U.S. Army spokesperson says.

The military has begun disassembling the aircraft and is taking it back to Fort Campbell piece by piece.

Kimberly Tiscione, public affairs officer with the 160 Special Operations Aviation Regiment at Fort Campbell, wouldn't speculate as to what might have caused the aircraft to encounter problems last Wednesday.

The Chinook military helicopter crash-landed in rural Crittenden County at dusk last Wednesday, slightly injuring a couple of the seven-member crew.

The chopper had been flying low in the Frances area right before it went down. Several witnesses said the chopper had been part of what appeared to be a refueling exercise with a larger fixed-wing plane.

Tiscione said the helicopter was on a routine training mission. Such missions are common in the region, she said.

"I heard it and stepped out onto my porch and saw it go down behind the trees," said Tony Travis, who lives near Maple Sink on Main Lake Road. "I didn't hear a boom or explosion so I figured it had just set down hard."

Mike Maxfield said he'd been in Fredonia earlier in the day and had seen such aircraft operating in the skies above for several hours. His brother, Tony Maxfield, lives near where the chopper went down. He heard it and knew something was wrong.

"I was on the phone and heard it," he said. "It started popping and making a noise and I heard it go down."

Maxfield raced on foot through the forests and fields behind his home, finding the crew to be okay.

Maxfield lives on Lark Loop off Brown Mine Road. The chopper went down about 300 yards behind his house in a 42-acre field. Maxfield said one crewman had a deep cut on his leg.

"He's going to need stitches that's for sure, but they'd already treated (the wound)," he said about the crew.

The public affairs officer said actually a couple of the crewmen were treated on the scene by other flight members for minor injuries.

Jim Defreitas, who owns the farm where the dual-rotor helicopter went down, said it skidded a few hundred feet before coming to rest near a fence row.

"If they'd have gone another 100 yards to the north, they'd have been in the trees on the bluff above John Holoman bottoms," he said. "They were very fortunate."

Authorities secured the area immediately and would not let others get near the chopper.

Maxfield said the helicopter was in tact other than the rotors, which were badly damaged.

"There were pieces of rotor all over the field," he said. "A piece about as long as I am tall was broken off of every rotor. They hit pretty hard."

The aircraft went down just before 8:30 p.m. First responders converged on the area as calls began coming in to central dispatching in Marion about a downed aircraft. Emergency responders didn't find the aircraft until about 9 p.m., when Maxfield and Defreitas notified them of its whereabouts.

Four soldiers arrived later to guard the aircraft overnight. The crewmen were taken back to Fort Campbell by vehicle. Tiscione said the crew's names would not be released because they are part of a special operations unit.

The chopper had been on a training mission, practicing refueling maneuvers with a large fixed-wing cargo plane. The fixed-wing cargo plane, a U.S. Air Force C-130, customarily flies above and in front of the chopper, refueling it with an extension hose and drogue aerial refueling pods.

At top left, the damaged Chinook helicopter sits in a field off Lark Loop the day after it crash-landed. The above photo shows Frances resident Tony Travis looking for more parts in a field near his home. The piece in the foreground was found about two miles from where the chopper went down. The part was from the in-air fueling system.

Early Thursday morning, Travis found what appeared to be a section of the drogue refueling pod in a field at the intersection of Ky. 855 and Main Lake Road. Parts of the aircraft's rotors and what appeared to be sections of the refueling mechanism were found as far as two miles from where the aircraft went down.

Last week's incident brought back memories for many who recall the crash of a B-1 Bomber north of Marion on Feb. 18, 1998. That aircraft was also on a training mission out of Dyess Air Force Base in Texas. The four-man crew bailed out over Frances and the plane went unmanned several miles before crashing into a field behind retired postman Eddie Hendrix's house near Mattoon. It was later determined that a fire was detected by a cockpit instrument panel, which shut down the aircraft's power, causing it to crash.

PRESS REPORTER

Family Resource and Community Educator Holly White has led a charge to resurrect a Crittenden County backpack program. After being inactive for several years, the program has been given a fresh start thanks to White and others.

The Weekend Backpack Program has been in full swing since students have returned to school from spring break on April 11.

The program is almost like new again because it's been idle for so long, White said. It will only service elementary students to see how well-received it will be before offering the program to all three schools in Crittenden County.

White decided to offer the program again after hearing from several teachers and guidance counselors that students were returning to class on Monday mornings hungry. Before spring break, White and other committee members, consisting of Bonita Hatfield, Glenda Blackburn, Shawna Sunderland and Shelley Gobin, sent 60 letters home with elementary students for parents to read and sign up if interested. Fifty backpacks filled with food are currently being sent home over weekends.

"I think that a lot of the parents are somewhat relieved because of the program," White said. "A person's life can change overnight and it's not shameful, in any way, to ask for assistance when you need it."

Partnered with several local churches, the program receives a majority of its food from the Angel Food Ministry offered through Marion Baptist Church. Weekend packages offered by the church are sponsored by individuals and then donated to the Family Resource Center to be used for the backpack program.

"The committee is so grateful of everything and the help we're receiving," White said. "Other churches have donated non-perishable food items and some Sunday school classes have volunteered to help stuff backpacks on Wednesday afternoons. We are so appreciative."

White said that if anyone is interested in donating food items, they can bring the donations to the Family Resource building next to the Crittenden County Middle School. Food items need to be non-perishable and kid friendly, White added. If interested in volunteering to help stuff backpacks on Wednesday or to find out more information about the program, call White at 965-9833.
