■ Despite some chilly overnight lows, it does not appear that April's cold hand seriously damaged local fruit crops or trees too a great degree. The daily low temperature was under freezing just once, that was on April 2. However, it dipped to only a fraction above freezing – 32.5 and 32.6 – on back-to-back days April 20-21. There was also measurable snowfall, one of the latest in recorded history, on Tuesday, May 20.

Program focuses on interacting with cancer patients

Lesson five of the Kick Kentucky Cancer program is "Interacting With Someone With Cancer," will be held via Zoom May 20 and May 24.

The Crittenden County Extension Service has sponsored these events, which focus on taking care of people with cancer.

"All too often, we forget about the patient's emotional fight while they're physically fighting their diagnosis. But cancer is a disease of the body, mind, and soul," said Chris Prestano, a thyroid cancer survivor.

Knowing what to say to someone who has been diagnosed with cancer can be hard. Talking to someone with cancer often creates fears of saying something inappropriate or making the person upset.

According to the American Cancer Society, confusion over how to talk to people with cancer stems from personal fears and uneasiness over this daunting disease. For others it is a reminder of personal mortality.

The final session of Kick Kentucky Cancer will provide tips on proper communication and interaction with someone living with cancer.

The May 20 Zoom session begins at 6 p.m., and the May 24 meeting at 10 a.m.

Call the Crittenden County Extension office at 270-965-5236 to get the zoom link and lesson material. The lesson will specifically cover identifying personal fears and uneasiness related to cancer and appropriate things to say and do for someone living with cancer.

988 supports mental health

Editor:
May is Mental Health Month. By urging my public officials to prioritize suicide prevention, mental health, and crisis care, I am hoping to influence collective change to support #MentalHealth4All.
Right now, individuals in crisis are able to call 1-800-273-8255 to reach the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline. The Lifeline provides 24/7, free and confidential support for people in distress and those that care for them. Soon, it will be much easier to remember how to reach the Lifeline as the number will be changing to “988” nationwide by July 2022.

Knowing this, it is critically important that states pass legislation NOW to reliably fund 988 and their state’s crisis response system, just as we fund 911 and emergency services - through small fees on our phone bills. Reliable funding will help to ensure all 988 callers can reach a counselor in their own state who is familiar with and can connect them with local resources. Culturally competent support and local connections can better help all callers through their crisis and in their recovery.

Join me this month in urging your public officials to fund 988. We all play a role in changing the culture around mental health. Together, we can ensure #MentalHealth4All.
Sincerely,
Kaitlin Loveless

LBL WILL NOT BE CUT AFTER ALL

Several regional news organizations last week reported that U.S. Representative James Comer says recent reports about budget cuts at Land Between the Lakes were erroneous. He blamed the miscommunication on a government employee who shared an incomplete budget document with government leaders from the area.

The USDA Forestry Service says there will be no upcoming budget cuts to the 170,000-acre LBL recreation area.

Comer told news agencies that he was surprised when he read reports a couple of weeks ago and began receiving calls from citizens angry about the reported cuts at LBL.

Comer is hopeful that LBL might actually receive an increase in funding in the coming budgetary cycle. He also said safeguards have been put into place to avoid similar situations in the future.

51 NEW JOBS IN AREA

Ahlstrom-Munksjö, which manufactures fiber-based materials, will build a second facility in Madisonville with a $70 million investment expected to create 51 well-paying jobs, Gov. Andy Beshear announced earlier this week.

Leaders of Ahlstrom-Munksjö noted ongoing North American market growth as the primary driver for the project. The new facility will house a glass fiber tissue production line to make luxury vinyl tiles and vinyl sheet materials. Its smooth, homogenous glass fiber tissue also will be marketed for building panels, energy storage and thermoplastic molding for the transportation industry. The company's current 133-employee facility in Madisonville produces filtration materials for automotive and industrial applications. To encourage the investment and job growth in the community, the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority (KEDFA) in December 2018 preliminarily approved a 10-year incentive agreement with the company under the Kentucky Business Investment program. The performance-based agreement can provide up to $1 million in tax incentives based on the company's initial planned investment of $62.8 million plus annual targets for job creation, employment and pay scale.

BIKE SAFETY MONTH

In recognition of May as Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month, the Kentucky Motorcycle Association (KMA) is encouraging Kentucky motorists and motorcyclists alike to commit to "sharing the road" in a collective effort to reduce motorcycle deaths and injuries across the region. Judge-Executive Perry Newcom last week signed a proclamation recognizing biker safety month alongside area KMA members.

Motorcycles are among the smallest and most vulnerable vehicles on the road and riders are at greater risk of death and serious injury than other vehicle operators if they are involved in a crash. According to the Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), per vehicle mile, motorcyclists are 30 times more likely to die in a crash than occupants of cars, and five times more likely to be injured. Despite historical declines in automobile fatalities, motorcycle deaths have increased every year for 13 of the past 14 years, except 2009 which saw a decline.

History of the Court Square church building

Here is some interesting history about one of Marion’s old church buildings and congregation. Still a beautiful building today gracing the corner of West Carlisle Street and Court Street.

On the 17th day of March 1884, the First Baptist Church of Marion was organized with 24 members. The elders being J. M. Peay, J. W. Crewdson and Thomas C. Carter and of the following members: J. P. Pierce and wife, Emma-line Pierce; Florence and Cora Pierce; M. H. Weldon and wife, Florence; B. F. Crowe and wife, Carrie; J. J. Hughes and wife Susan; W. R. Gibbs and wife, Mary; T. A. Cole and wife, Mary; J. W. Weldon and wife Rosa E.; Wm Hughes and wife, Jane; J. W. Johnson, Mollie Beard, N. M. Boucher, Annie Duvall, J. S. Henry and wife Bettie.

After much prayer, planning and all pulling together, this little band was permitted early in 1886 to worship in their own little church home, a frame building owned by the Cumberland Presbyterians.

In July 1904, Judge James Fleming Gordon, of Madisonville, purchased the Dr. Crawford property west of the court house square. A survey of this property was made and was then divided into 10 or 12 good lots. (James Fleming Gordon was the nephew of our Sen. Ollie M. James)

The first corner lot was purchased by the Trustees of the Baptist church for the building of their new church in the near future.

The new Baptist church will stand on a plot of ground on the corner of Court and Bank streets (now W. Carlisle). This will place the church well up town and close to the business section. We presume the members desired to locate the new church at a point as near the center as possible.

The new church building is to be of brick trimmed with dressed stone, and the roof is to be covered with slate. (From earlier history, the brick for the church has been reported to have been made at the Travis brick works in the northern part of town). The basement will also be brick.

All the windows will be ornamented glass of opalescent variety. This glass permits all the light to enter but keeps out the sunlight. There will be three large arch windows of four sash to each window.

The building will be 50x68 feet and the main auditorium will be 45x45. The heat will be hot air, and it will be lighted by electricity. It will contain a pastor’s study with grate, three Sunday school rooms, one baptistery and two robbing rooms.

The large Sunday school room will connect with the main auditorium by a sliding curtain. When necessary, this curtain can be raised and the auditorium will be increased by the size of the Sunday school room. Then the seating capacity will be from 500 to 600.

It will be seated with pews of approved and late pattern, and these seats will be installed after the raised section plan. (These pews were of oak in the curved design)

All inside work is to be hardwood. The ceiling is the dome effect and will be bordered by an electric light circle.

There will be two entrances. The main entrance from the front corner will be large and have double doors. The side entrance will be for the Sunday school room.

There will be a concrete walk in front and also concrete steps.

The church will contain four memorial windows. One furnished by the Ladies Aid Society of the Baptist Church. One by the Sunday school. One by Mr. Zed Bennett as a memorial of Mrs. Melville and one by the family of Judge J. P. Pierce as a memorial of Mrs. Emeline Pierce.

The church committee, having the building of this church in charge, have awarded the contract to Mr. J. S. Braswell, of this city, for $6,290. This is exclusive of windows, heating plant and seats.

The contract for the windows has also been awarded to a St. Louis firm and the total for memorial windows and all is $650. The heating plant will cost about $300 and the seats about $500. The lot cost $1,200. This will make the total value of the property about $9,000.

The new Baptist Church, which stands as a monument to the liberalty of the members here and other friends of the church, will be dedication March 1. Rev. W. D. Powell of Louisville will preach the dedicatory sermon and will assist the pastor, Rev. J. H. Butler, in all the exercises.

The structure is a beauty, and is situated on the court square in the most commanding location in the city.

The tower is capped with white limestone finished in block and space style. It adds much to the attractiveness of the house, as do the stained glass windows.

The pews are massive, being of carved oak and placed in circle effect.

The house is to be heated by furnace and lighted throughout by electricity.

On Sunday, March 1, 1908 the new First Baptist Church was dedicated to the service of God. The Rev. Powell officiated. It was a happy day for the Baptists and their friends, for the new church which had been under construction for about 11 months was dedicated.

The building is truly a credit to a little city like Marion as well as the Baptist Church.

The services were conducted by Dr. W. D. Powell of Louisville, assisted by the pastors of various churches of the city.

The Baptists have done nobly in building this handsome structure, which cost them over $10,000, all of the amount except about $3,500 having already been paid.

At the close of the sermon in the evening, quite a number of the Baptists, Methodist and Presbyterians responded to the invitation given by expressing their gratitude and appreciation of the new church.

Services will continue to be held in the new church every Sunday morning and evening, prayer meeting every Thursday evening and Sunday School at 9:30 every Sunday morning.

The history of this church building wouldn’t be complete without mentioning Brother James C. Lilly.

In October 1926, Brother J. C. Lilly was called to pastor the First Baptist Church. The Press reporter stated that “church members under his leadership are expecting the church to move forward as never before.” The membership of the church in October 1926 was numbered at 415.

Brother J. C. Lilly pastored this church for 41 years until his resignation in 1967. The church continued active for several more years.

Over the years, internal dissension rocked the church and began the decline of its membership.

The largest split came in 1928, when 140 members left the First Baptist Church to form Marion

This is a picture postcard of the First Baptist Church that was made soon after the church was built in 1907.

Baptist, Marion’s largest Baptist congregation today.

The membership over the years had decreased and only 25 to 30 people were attending services regularly. The building was in need of several repairs, and in 1978, Bro. Leroy Cox, and what few members were left, decided to sell the old building in hopes of getting enough money to relocate on the edge of town.

Today in 2021 this 114-year-old historic church building is the home of the Ambassadors For Christ.

Love the giver, not the gifts

There is an encouragement in the New Testament from the apostle John written to encourage believers to stay focused on what is important. He says, “Do not love the world, or the things in the world. If anyone loves the world, love for the Father is not in him.” (1 John 2:15).

I may be sharing too much of myself here, but it took me years before my first thought here was not something akin to, “sex, money, and power.” It is true that it is a short trip to get there, but to start there misses the point and stops us short of the depth of what John is saying. The principle is not only for Christians but has broader implications for our families and our nation.

Before he spoke of what has become a pietistic understanding he honored the beauty of the gifts of creation and “the things that are in the world.” They are good things, they are useful things – yes, even “sex, money, and power.” But these are not things to be loved. They are, rather, gifts and responsibilities that come as a result of loving God.

Augustine of Hippo explained it this way, “[It is] as if a bridegroom should make a ring for his bride, and she having received the ring, should love it more than she loves the bridegroom who made the ring for her; would not her soul be found guilty of adultery in the very gift of the bridegroom, albeit she did but love what the bridegroom gave her?”

When John Kennedy became President, the world was on the verge of nuclear war. There were other problems as well. In his inaugural address on January 20, 1961, he laid out the problems we faced as a nation. Here is part of his address including one of his most memorable lines.

“In your hands, my fellow citizens, more than mine, will rest the final success or failure of our course. Since this country was founded, each generation of Americans has been summoned to give testimony to its national loyalty. The graves of young Americans who answered the call to service surround the globe...

“In the long history of the world, only a few generations have been granted the role of defending freedom in its hour of maximum danger. I do not shrink from this responsibility—I welcome it. I do not believe that any of us would exchange places with any other people or any other generation. The energy, the faith, the devotion which we bring to this endeavor will light our country and all who serve it--and the glow from that fire can truly light the world.

“And so, my fellow Americans: ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country.”

This is an acknowledgement of the same principle that John addresses. If we only fall in love with the gifts, we can find ourselves living in contempt of that from which we have received. I have seen it in relationships of all kinds.

Ultimately the rest of our lives flow from the state of the health of our relationships. We must tend to them without regard to what we think we deserve. This is hard to do. However, if we do not — especially for believers’ relationship to God — we will fall prey to thinking we deserve good things for all the work we have put in. And this view will follow us into every part of our lives.

If we only love the things we get from God, or others, or our country, we will eventually be disappointed. We will eventually allow our thankfulness to turn to bitterness and blame when things do not go well. I love fresh vegetables – no, I love the garden and it yields fresh vegetables. I love the opportunities given to all (somewhat unevenly) in our nation — no, I love the nation and care for it and all its citizens, and it will yield opportunity. To accept gifts without responsibility or relationship is at best using others and is a form of prostitution, or in the terms of Augustine, the gifts become a form of adultery.

It is one thing to love and chase happiness or joy or any of those things John talks about (sex, money, power). It is quite another to tend carefully and love what is important, which is more likely to produce sustained satisfaction in life. Love the giver, not the gifts.

Social media can interfere with intimacy with God

Question: Being connected to social networks and answering texts endlessly make it hard for me to log off. I feel obligated to keep checking in—just in case! It’s becoming a wall hampering my closeness to God. What can I do to regain my intimacy with Him?

Answer: If we are not careful, social media will cause us to neglect dear friendships and to squeeze out the most important relationship of all—with God. To really know God, we must take the time and make the effort to connect with Him through reading His Word.

Jesus desires an intimate relationship with us. He told His followers, “I no longer call you servants, because a servant does not know his master’s business. Instead, I have called you friends, for everything that I learned from my Father I have made known to you” (Jn. 15:15).

Our prayer times should be much deeper than just asking God for what we want, but they should become conversation with Him. We must move beyond the rote and our request lists and really connect with our heavenly Father. We need to go deep.

I suggest each of us replace at least 15 minutes of social media time [or TV watching] with time Bible reading and prayer. Doing so, we will soon begin to feel the calming touch of His unseen presence throughout our day.

Hopkins has variety of skills Wildcats can use

Kentucky basketball has had player and coaching defections as well as player and coaching additions recently. That's made it easy to lose perspective on signee Bryce Hopkins

The 6-7, 220-pound Illinois standout is not a top 10 national recruit but Fenwick High School coach Staunton Peck believes his star has an unlimited future.

"When he faces adversity or hardship his response is not blaming issues on anyone else. Instead, he just works to get better," said Peck. "That's a big part of the reason he keeps getting better."

"He is 6-7, 220 (pounds) but has guard skills. He handles the ball like a point guard. He has a real good first step getting to the rim. He has a great combination of size and skill. He is a mismatch problem. If he has a smaller guard on him he is comfortable cutting to the post and finishing physically at the rim. A bigger guy on him has no chance to stay with him on the perimeter."

"He is very physical finishing at the rim. Guys bounce off hm. It's not just drive to the rim and dunk. He can be creative. He has a strong spin move to finish at the rim. He can also shoot the 3."

Want more? Peck says he also has great vision that makes him a good passer to add to his feel for the game. Peck recalled a game where the game's final play was designed for Peck but he drove and drew three defenders.

"He kicked the ball to the best shooter to make a 3 to win the game and conference. That shows his ability to understand the game. When he was younger, he might have just jacked up a 3 himself," Peck said. "He's more than just a scorer. He is a playmaker."

Others are noticing. At the Allen Iverson Roundball Classic last week in Memphis, ESPN NBA draft analyst Jonathan Givony got his first in-person look at Hopkins and liked what he saw.

"Kentucky commit Bryce Hopkins had a great day. First time seeing him; just a good all-around basketball player. Did some really interesting things defensively, made a bunch of shots, and is a really smart and unselfish passer. Exactly what Kentucky needs at that position," Givony said.

Hopkins, a one-time Louisville commit, averaged 24.4 points, 12.5 rebounds and 2.9 assists per game last season. He shot 58.9 percent overall from the field (32 percent from 3-point range) and 75.7 percent at the foul line and 31.8 percent from 3-point range.

Peck called Hopkins a "man-child" because of his physicality.

"He does not get pushed around. He does a good job using his length and physicality on defense but is also a smart defender," Peck said. "I had him guard inside guys because I didn't want him to use all his energy on the perimeter running around. He's a good rim protector and anchored our defense. He jumps straight up without fouling."

"At the end of our season he really emerged as a leader and just finished his career on a real, real high."

Kentucky basketball fans were thrilled last week when former assistant coach Orlando Antigua returned to Kentucky — the place he called "Camelot" in his first press conference back at UK.

He's been gone from UK seven years and was head coach at South Florida and most recently assistant coach at Illinois. He says he's changed as a coach since his five years at UK when the Cats won the 2012 national title and made the Final Four two other times.

"I've got a better appreciation now having had the opportunity to sit in that seat (head coach). To know, not quite know, but a better idea of what is coming at Cal, what he has to do, and our jobs as assistants is to try and take things off his plate," Antigua said.

"We need to figure out tomorrow's news yesterday. So staying on the ground, staying connected with the kids, staying connected with just people in the basketball world and our relationships, and doing those kinds of things so we can better serve him and make sure that he's prepared for everything."

Problem is times have changed recruiting-wise since Antigua was at UK. There was no G League then to compete against for top recruits.

"But you can't use a brush to paint all of them. Each individual family has different circumstances that they have to weigh and what experience they're trying to go through to get to their dreams. Some of the families are going to want the educational piece of it," the UK assistant said.

"Some are going to want the value of sacrificing and playing on a team and playing and competing with other really, really good players and getting into an NCAA Tournament and making a Final Four run and potentially a national championship. There is extreme value in that."

Antigua also has an appreciation for what the Kentucky experience can mean to players.

"There's also extreme value in an unbelievable experience that happens when you go through that that you can't put a price on. The kids that have been here and go through those experiences are going to outweigh anything they've ever done in their lives because it's special," Antigua said.

"It's such a rewarding experience, and they're loved in the state, they're loved throughout history and then you get a chance to become one of those special groups that are endeared for life. Our job is to try and communicate how special that experience is when you come to a place like Kentucky."

Just how good could Nebraska transfer Wan'Dale Robinson be for Kentucky next season?

The Wildcats certainly need a boost in the passing attack and the former Western Hills High School standout certainly showed at Nebraska he could do that. In his two years at Nebraska, Robinson had 91 catches for 914 yards and three touchdowns and ran 134 times for 580 yards and four scores.

One national media member expecting a big year from Robinson is CBS Sports college football analysts Barrett Sallee. He wrote this recently on CBSSports.com.

"The Nebraska transfer and Swiss Army Knife will be the ultimate playmaker in the SEC and vault Kentucky back into SEC East contention. As a result, he'll put himself in the Heisman race and make a push for a spot in New York as a Heisman finalist," Sallee wrote.

Heisman Trophy finalist? That's a pretty bold statement.

"OK, that might be too much of an overreaction," Sallee wrote. "But he was the buzz of the spring in Lexington, and when combined with dual-threat quarterback Joey Gatewood -- who is a big-time threat running up-the-middle -- this Wildcats offense could be extremely dangerous."

Kentucky senior defensive lineman Josh Paschal quickly became a Robinson believer this spring.

"He's going to be the truth. I believe that," Paschal said after one spring practice. "He's a humble guy. My locker is right next to him so I talk to him a lot. Today, he had a hell of a play. He jumped up between two defenders and caught a post and I was like 'Wow, he's going to be a special player for sure.'"

Junior All-American Alli Stumler received a lot of attention for her NCAA Tournament play that helped propel Kentucky to its first volleyball national championship. However, she said never to doubt that this team belonged to seniors Madison Lilley, Gabby Curry, Avery Skinner and Kendyl Paris.

"They are unbelievable," Stumler said. "On the court they are obviously the ones who got us here (to the national championship). They came in every day knowing our end goal was the national championship. "They knew this group could do it. They had big hopes and didn't shy away from that. They inspired us all."

Stumler also appreciated the sacrifices the four made for the team.

Curry said the four seniors are considering an autograph signing soon as a way to say thank you to fans for their support this season.

"Just a way to give back to all those who supported us," Curry said.

Kentucky's six NFL draft picks this year were the most Kentucky has had since the draft was reduced to seven rounds and the most Kentucky has had in any draft since 1979 when it had seven players drafted in 12 rounds. A year earlier Kentucky had six players drafted.

Wonder who the seven picks were in 1979? So did I. Here the players are with the round they were drafted:

James Ramsey, defensive end, Cleveland Browns, 3rd; Jim Kovach, linebacker, New Orleans Saints, 4th; Kelly Kirchbaum, linebacker, New York Jets, 5th; Bob Winkel, defensive tackle, Minnesota Vikings, 7th; Robert Hawkins, running back, Oakland Raiders, 8th; Dan Fowler, guard, New York Giants, 10th; and David Stephens, linebacker, Minnesota Vikings, 12th.

In the last 10 years, former Kentucky players have played in three Pro Bowls and two have won Super Bowls. The highest draft pick was Randell Cobb in the second round in 2011. Larry Warford was a third-round pick in 2013 and Za'Darius Smith a fourth round choice in 2015. All have made a Pro Bowl.

Danny Trevathan, sixth round in 2012, and Mike Edwards, third round pick in 2019, have both been Super Bowl champions.

"Some of these guys we had drafted this year are going to have long NFL careers, too," UK recruiting coordinator Vince Marrow said.

Turkey season ends

Many local hunters like young Hayden Hughes (pictured) had a big turkey season. Hughes tagged out on his family farm in northern Crittenden County, taking two gobblers that each weighed over 24 pounds. One had a beard that measured 11.5 inches and one had a 1.25-inch spur.

Local hunters bagged about 50 more gobblers over the final week or so of season to turn in the county's best wild turkey harvest figures since 2013. Many local hunters continue to lament the lower number of turkey sightings, but data show that this season was the best in eight years as hunters took 396 turkeys during the 23-day spring season. A few years ago, biologists completed a survey to determine whether the local turkey population was being affected by some type of disease because harvest figures had fallen from more than 500 a year to just 233 in 2014. That study found no apparent reason for the decline, wildlife officials said at the time.

Mott flirts with perfect game on senior night

On Senior Night Tuesday, 12th-grader Gabe Mott got his first start on the mound and almost reached perfection. He went seven innings, threw a one-hitter and walked none. He narrowly missed a perfect game. The only hit he surrendered was half-swing single to right field as Crittenden beat Webster County 7-0 and improved to 13-6. Senior Tyler Boone and freshman Hunter Smith each had two hits and drove in two runs apiece for the Rockets. Ben Evans also drove in two runs. Mott, who had thrown less than one full inning so far this season, struck out four. He threw 73 pitches in the contest and 54 were strikes.

Freshman Foster gets 4th win in five starts

Crittenden County freshman hurler Jeremiah Foster got his fifth start of the season Monday as CCHS beat Livingston Central 13-3. Foster scattered five hits over five innings, keeping the Cardinals off the base paths much of the game. He struck out six and walked one, improving to 4-0 on the mound this season. Tyler Boone, Braxton Winders and Hunter Smith had two hits apiece and Boone drove in four, including the final two runs of the game to run-rule the Cardinals. The win lifted CCHS's district record to 2-2 and the Rockets snapped a three-game losing streak.

Rockets fall at St. Mary

St. Mary jumped on Crittenden Friday with five runs in the first, but CCHS bounced back with a five-run inning of its own in the second to tie the game temporarily. The CCHS rally was led by singles by Braxton Winders, Logan Bailey, Maddox Carlson and a double by Caden McCalister. In the end, CCHS lost 14-7 on the road. Gabe Mott, Ben Evans and Winders all had multiple hits for Crittenden. Mott and

Boone turns in stellar job on mound in 2-1 loss performances in the 2-1 Marshall County win. The Rockets bats were slow as they only recorded two hits by Maddox Carlson. Despite the loss, Boone's performance was a key indicator that the senior left-hander is getting ramped up for more work on the hill. A pre-season injury set him back early. It was just his fourth pitching appearance of the season and first start. With ace Maddox Carlson still recovering from a groin injury, Boone's presence in the rotation will be a big factor for CCHS down the final stretch of the season.

Hicks hits 6th in win

Ashlyn Hicks hit her sixth homer of the season and drove in four runs with four hits as the Lady Rockets beat Hopkins Central Tuesday by the mercy rule 13-2 at Morton's Gap. Matthia Long had three hits and drove in six runs for Crittenden. Seventh-grader Anna Boone pitched three innings for the win and freshman Riley Smith finished it in the circle as Crittenden won for the eighth time in nine games. Jada Hayes also had two hits for CCHS and Crittenden got more RBIs from her, Chandler Moss and Elliot Evans.

Lady Rockets pound Trigg behind Moss

Lady Rocket hurler Chandler Moss threw a two-hit shutout Monday as Crittenden beat Fifth District foe Trigg County 11-0. It was CCHS's second win this season over the Lady Wildcats. Crittenden scored in every frame, but really turned up the juice in the fifth inning, scoring five. Seventh-grader Elliot Evans hit a two-run double to end the game by the mercy rule in that stanza. Freshman Riley Smith had three hits and two RBI and senior Ashlyn Hicks drove in four runs on two hits. Moss and Matthia Long each had two hits for CCHS. Moss and Hicks both homered. It was Hicks' fifth round-tripper of the season and Moss's second.

The Lady Rockets did not commit a single error in the field. Moss was in the circle and got the win for the Lady Rockets, going the distance and allowing seven hits and two runs, while striking out five and walking none.

Girls beat Hancock

The Lady Rockets started slowly on the road at Hancock County on Saturday, but took the lead late in the opening game for a 6-5 victory. It was tied at three in the seventh when Matthia Long doubled in three runs to give CCHS a lead that it would not relinquish. A pair of seventh-graders were in the circle. Anna Boone threw well and got the Lady Rockets in the seventh inning before Elliot Evans came on for the save. Hicks and Jessie Potter each had multiple hits to lead the way for CCHS.

Hancock gets revenge

In the second game of Saturday's doubleheader, Hancock County's bats came alive. The Lady Hornets had 14 hits and won 11-5. The Lady Rockets scored two in the fourth inning and three runs in the sixth. The big sixth inning was led by a single by Evans, a groundout RBI by Kalli Champion and a double by Hicks. CCHS had nine hits itself with Long leading the way with two hits in three at bats.

Keller runs personal best in 800 meters

Senior distance runner Kate Keller competed against some of the state's strongest athletes last weekend at the Eastern Relays hosted by Eastern High School in Louisville. Keller had a personal best time of 2:37.16 in the 800 meters and finished in 21st place at the invitation-only meet. Keller was 40th in the 3200-meter race at 12:35.56 and 19th in the 1600 meters at 5:56.21. The CCHS track and field team hosted a meet Tuesday at home to raise awareness for lung cancer prevention and treatment. It done largely in honor of Marty McKenney, a local woman who was instrumental in getting a track built at the park decades ago.

Cinco de Mayo – the Fifth Day in Spanish – was celebrated last week on the high school campus. May 5 is the anniversary of Mexico's surprising victory over the French Empire at the Battle of Puebla in 1862. Ironically, Mexico lost a subsequent battle there and the French won the war. Cinco de Mayo became a widespread celebration in the United States several decades ago as a celebration of Mexican-American culture. Chamber planning Farm to Table

STAFF REPORT

There will be a new spin this fall on the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce's dinner event "Farm to Table." In recent years, the Chamber called on farmers and others in the community to showcase their products during the event.

This year, Chamber President Elizabeth Floyd says the event will feature "nothing but good ol' home-cookin'."

In its first couple of years, the event featured an elegant but rustic theme held under outdoor string lights on the lawn of First Cumberland Presbyterian Church. That was followed up by 2019's Mexican-themed dinner party at the Lions Club building. This year, the Chamber will take the event to Fohs Hall.

Scheduled for Sept. 9, the party will continue to spotlight locally-grown table fare, but with a potluck theme on the menu.

"It is such a phenomenal night that showcases a different entrepreneur in each ingredient, in every single course," said Chamber officer Madison Qualls. "I'm truly glad it's getting to take place."

Last year's event was cancelled due to the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic. Chamber members hope the comfort foods on this year's menu will give attendees a sense of normalcy – and nostalgia – even though capacity for public gatherings remains restricted. Hopefully by September, some of those restrictions will be loosened, Qualls said.

In the meantime, the Chamber is excited to be moving ahead with the planning process, Qualls said.

Police activity increases as pandemic eases

STAFF REPORT

As pandemic limitations begin to be lifted and more people are moving around, calls for police service are picking up.

April's police activity report in Marion shows 205 calls for service, that's up markedly and it's the most in a single month since January 2020.

Felony cases were also up last month in Marion, but Police Chief Ray O'Neal said that number is a bit skewed because one individual was charged with 33 felonies. The suspect was an inmate in the Crittenden County Detention Center, and he's not a Marion resident.

Traffic accidents and moving citations were also up in April, again largely because of increased human activity as the community emerges from the pandemic.

Tech Center. Plans are underway to renovate it at a cost of about $1 million.

County offices could have stayed in the downtown courthouse with the judicial teams, but it would have cost local taxpayers about $3 million. County leaders have said that the savings to move to an independent, off-site location were simply too great to ignore.

The decision to keep the justice center downtown is being widely heralded, particularly by the public which has had its courthouse there for almost 200 years.

District Judge Daniel Heady has been a proponent of keeping the judicial center in the center of town as long as it was economically feasible.

"While courthouse location may not create a large amount of direct economic stimulation, keeping the courthouse downtown promotes and enhances the long-term economic viability of existing business and makes it more likely that local businesses choose to stay or come to the downtown," said the district judge. "Even for those who don't have much interaction with the courthouse, the new building should at the very least serve as a symbolic centerpiece for the community."

Federal Bankruptcy Judge Alan Stout, who for many years practiced law in Marion and served as county attorney, was at last week's hearing. He applauded the decision to keep the center of justice in the center of town.

"I understand the county offices needed to relocate to the Ed-Tech Center from a financial standpoint," said Stout, who still lives in Marion but sits on the bench in Louisville and Paducah.

Judge Heady

"But I strongly support the judicial center staying on Main Street on the court square where it's been since the 1840s. The judicial function needs to remain downtown."

The current courthouse will be razed. There will be funding available for temporary off-site office space during the demolition and construction period for judicial operations. County offices plan to move into the Ed-Tech Center by next spring.

Although spatial characteristics have largely been determined for the proposed judicial center, the exterior design is not. However, there is some deliberate intent to design it with historic integrity in mind, such as built to resemble the courthouse that existed in Marion prior to the one that is downtown now.

Construction will not likely begin until late 2022 or 2023, according to the county judge.

23rd COVID death reported here

Although cases of COVID-19 continue to drop in Crittenden County, the sad news of another death was reported here over the past week. It marked the 23rd death related to the virus since the pandemic began in March 2020.

Public health officials do not disclose the identity of individuals who die from the virus.

Over the seven-day period from May 4-10, Crittenden County saw only three new cases of COVID-19. That's the lowest weekly figure here since the earliest days of the pandemic.

Meanwhile, public officials say that children as young as 12 can now begin to get inoculated. The Pfizer vaccine requires special storage procedures which could make it difficult to maintain and provide at rural health departments like Crittenden County.

More than 80 percent of Kentuckians 65 and older have received at least one COVID-19 vaccine dose. To date, 1.8 million people in the state have received at least their first dose.

Gov. Andy Beshear said this week that 852 out of 857 (99.42 percent) of all Kentuckians who died due to COVID-19 on or after Feb. 1, 2021, were unvaccinated.
