Offices to close for Memorial Day

All city, county, state and federal government offices, including Crittenden County Public Library and the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service, will be closed Monday in observance of Memorial Day. All courthouse offices will also be closed Saturday.

The Crittenden Press will be closed Monday; therefore, the advertising deadline for next week's edition of the newspaper will be at noon Tuesday.

Because of Monday's postal holiday, delivery of The Early Bird will be one day late.

Annual MHS Reunion July 5

According to W.A. Franklin, the annual Marion High School Reunion will be held July 5 with dinner at 5 p.m. at Marion Country Club. For those planning to attend and revisit the past, the Marion High School Memory Room has been moved from Fohs Hall to Crittenden County Historical Museum on East Bel-Iville Street.

Crittenden County Deputy Greg Rushing is out of the hospital after suffering a heart attack while trying to subdue a wanted man last week in Dy-

Rushing, 52, was attempting to serve multiple warrants against 23year-old Jordan Wadsworth at about 7:30 p.m. Friday when he apparently suffered the attack.

Wadsworth escaped custody and Rushing called for backup before driving himself to Crittenden Hospital. At the hospital in Marion, the deputy was stabilized and then transferred to Baptist Health Paducah where he underwent surgery, having a stent inserted to repair blockage in an artery.

"I can't say enough about the care I first class in Marion and Paducah." Rushing was released from the hospital on Monday. He previously had a heart attack and open-heart surgery in 2007. Rushing has been in law enforcement as a Marion policeman and county deputy for 25 years. The incident started at about dusk Rushing as the work week was winding down Friday. Authorities had been wanting to talk to Wadsworth about a recent break-in at a home in Dycusburg. Rushing received a report that Wadsworth was walking along the southern Crittenden County town. When the deputy arrived, he saw Wadsworth behind a tree. In addition to ing wanted for being questioning about the Rushing burglary, also had multiple warrants Wadsworth's arrest, stemming from other criminal cases.

Wadsworth off running when he saw the deputy, but Rushing found him hiding under a stairwell. He ordered Wadsworth to come out from his hiding place, but the suspect refused.

Rushing deployed his taser gun, but Wadsworth's clothing prevented it from being effective. At that point, a physical confrontation ensued as the two wrestled for a time on the ground. Wadsworth eventually got away and as the deputy tried to give chase, he felt pains in his chest.

"I thought it was just the adrenaline rush," Rushing said Monday after being released from the hospital. "But when the pain didn't let up, I knew it was something worse."

A massive manhunt ensued in and around Dycusburg throughout the night on Friday and into Saturday as Marion Police Department, county constables and state police were dis-

Kirk, Kemper lock up party nominations

Robbie Kirk (left), winner of the Republican primary for county jailer, speaks to Don Gatewood, secretary of the Crittenden County Republican Party, Tuesday evening at the party headquarters on Main Street shortly after election results were tallied.

Jailer's race draws voters to ballot box

Daniel Kemper learned he had won his party's nomination for Crittenden County Jailer while sitting at home with friends and family, watching for results on the county clerk's website. Robbie Kirk, meantime, calculated his winning tally as results were announced inside the courthouse.

While the two took different approaches to election night, both are happy to be headed toward November with the confidence of voters

"I cannot even put into words how much I appreciate the support," said

Democratic nominee Kemper Tuesday evening on the phone.

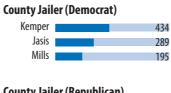

Kemper beat Byron Jasis and Rick Mills with 47 percent of the Democratic vote in the county, 16 points ahead his nearest challenger, Jasis.

The Republican nominee's margin of victory was even larger.

"I am humbled, truly," said Kirk from Republican Party headquarters not long after learning of his victory. "You just never know how it's going to turn out.' Kirk took 54 percent of

In a Republican race for constable in the Tolu and Sheridan areas, Barkley Hughes defeated Tony Alexander 134-87 to become District 2 constable for the county.

In his campaign, Hughes said he wanted to be an advocate for the people of his district and act as a tool for Sheriff Wayne Agent to assist policing in the district.

Digging can help bring to life stories of county's fallen heroes

For so many of our Fallen Heroes we honor inside this issue on Page 4, there is little information on their military service and even less on their lives as a whole. However, with the help of local historians and family members, we have been able to piece together at least a small portion of their lives in order to give them a voice beyond a name on a memorial.

For the World War II genfected by the losses of war, there are few people left to tell the stories of their friends or family members found on our memorial page. But, with a little digging, some further information on a casualty's military service can be found. For instance, on Pvt. Billy

Bennett Cook's headstone in Mapleview Cemetery, we find that as a medic, he gave his life in the service of others on Mount Cairo, Italy, in the Battle for Cassino.

Every year, it seems we find a little more information about our men who paid the ultimate toll for freedom.

One such man is Staff Sgt. Jack L. Woody, who was reported missing in October 1942 after the bomber on which he was assigned was brought down by the enemy in the South Pacific.

According to clippings from The Crittenden Press found by historian Brenda Underdown, Woody was among at least four men with ties to Crittenden County who were at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. Two of those men, Fireman 3rd Class Thomas W. Collins and Electrician's Mate 1st Class Allen Ray Teer, lost their lives aboard the USS Downes and USS Arizona, respectively. A fourth, Wilbur K. Hunt, survived along with Woody and

Memorial Day set aside to remember those who gave all

It's been almost 30 years since Crittenden County lost one of its own in service to this country's military. That, of course, was Spc. Donnie Paul McKinney, who was fatally struck by lightning while training at Fort Campbell with Marion's National Despite hundreds of deployments and countless training exercises since that time, our community has been fortunate to not lose one of our own sons or daughters in the line of military duty. Lest we forget, there have been life-altering injuries inflicted upon some, but there is solace in the fact that those casualties were able to return home to their loved ones and a welcoming community.

In cities and small towns across the nation, flagdraped coffins continue to arrive from overseas military actions. The pain suffered by the grieving families is immeasurable, but sorrow is surely felt throughout each community.

Though we no doubt would welcome being spared from such sorrow ever again, time and distance between the loss of a soldier, sailor, airman or marine can cause a community to slowly lose perspective on the sacrifices that are made for the freedoms we so reticently accept.

That is why we and others in Crittenden County will never tire of offering reminders to the ultimate sacrifice that so many of our family, friends and neighbors have paid over the years. We can be a proud community when it comes to remembering our own lost in the line of duty. No less than three solemn services will be offered over the next few days to pay homage to those lost while in uniform.

To the organizers and participants in those remembrance services, we say thank you.

But we would be remiss if we did not ask you to take time to look within the pages of this very newspaper to find our own annual tribute to the dozens of men with ties to this county who gave their lives in service to the country.

You may find many of their last names familiar. You may find a family member or friend. You will find many were in their teens or early 20s when they died. You will also find the community paid a heavy toll during the four years of World War II. You will find no less than eight men from here having died during a bloody string of only 13 days in July 1944. You may also find yourself moved.

Monday is Memorial Day.

Certainly, the meaning of the day has become overshadowed by society's urge to welcome summer with a three-day weekend. Yet if you are reading this, we plead with you to take if only a moment to gaze upon the faces and names of the men found on Page 4 who have died to keep American freedoms intact. We also encourage you to take time out of one day to attend one of the services our community offers to our fallen heroes. They gave all. Effort to honor them takes so little.

Report: Ky. adds low paying jobs

Kentucky added more than 3,500 jobs in April as the unemployment rate fell to 7.7 percent - but a new report from the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce says those are mostly low-paying jobs replacing high-paying ones

University of Louisville economist Paul Coomes said Kentucky's average annual pay is $46,000 compared to the national average of $55,600. Kentucky's average pay has not increased in eight years. The state is tied with West Virginia for the lowest pay per job among the seven states that border Kentucky.

Kentucky lost 104,000 jobs during the recession, Coomes said, and has added 65,000 jobs during the rethose jobs have been in lowwage industries including temporary jobs, educational services, restaurants, nursing, transportation and warehousing. The biggest job losses have come in construction and coal mining, two industries that pay above average wages.

"We've not kept up with the national growth in (the technology) sector, which is sort of your brain part of the economy," Coomes said. "It looks like we're about 16 percent below the national average in pay per job and really not making any gains.

More in-depth research from Coomes about the economy in Kentucky regions and counties is expected to be released in July.

Air-Evac begins dirt work for medical base

Air Evac Lifeteam has begun construction of its new air medical base at Crittenden Health Systems.

Air Evac last week received permits to build a new helipad at the hospital campus in Marion and began moving in dirt for construction of the base earlier this week. The area behind the hospital where Air Evac will build a new helipad, fueling station, hangar and office had to be built up to raise the ground out of a flood-prone

According to Whitney Miller, a business development manager with Air Evac, 200 dump truck loads of dirt will be needed to complete the job. She said at a meeting last Thursday with Crittenden Health Systems Ladies Auxiliary that the company hopes to open the base by late July, depending on weather condi-

By placing an air medical base and one of the company's signature red, white and blue helicopters in Marion, Air Evac will be able to cut its response time to major hospitals in nearby cities. The base will be 20 minutes flight time from Paducah and 35 minutes from Evansville, Ind.

David Webb, who serves as program director for Air Evac's base in Hopkinsville, will take the same role in Marion when the base becomes operational. The base will be manned 24/7.

Air Evac's expansion into Marion is being completely funded by the private company. In fact, they will be paying Crittenden Health Systems a monthly lease for the property on which the base is lo-

1st Street open soon

Employees with the City of Marion and Burlington Civil Inc. of Owensboro have been working to replace a cross drain under First Street in Marion. After winter weather and heavy rains eroded the roadbed above the previous drain, the street had to be closed between Brook and North Walker Streets. At left, workers on Friday carefully lower in 7.5-ton sections of tiling to complete the drain to allow a creek to flow under the street. Burlington Civil is the contractor for the job, which Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant estimated to cost $30,000. At press time, Bryant said the road should be open by the end of the week, weather permitting.

was cited for bravery.

Woody was stationed at Hickam Field, an air base located near Pearl Harbor. According to a clipping from The Press, Woody survived uninjured, but lost all of his belongings in the Japanese Fittingly for a young man interested in aviation, Woody served in the U.S. Army Air Corps. After the declaration of war was made on the Japanese on Dec. 8, 1941, Woody ventured into enemy territory in the Pacific Theater a number of times as a member of an air combat unit.

His fate would be met less than a year after Pearl Harbor as an engineer aboard a B-17 Flying Fortress in the South Pacific. The entire nine-man crew of the bomber would be lost as explained in an excerpt from the book "The Search That Never Was: The Untold Truth about the 1948-49 Search for World War II American Personnel Missing in Action in the South Pacific.

The book tells us that on Oct. 4, 1942, Woody's Flying Fortress was deliberately rammed off the coast of New Georgia in the Solomon Islands by a Japanese "Pete," a reconnaissance floatplane piloted by Katsumi Kiyomi. The biplane slammed into the bomber in order "to prevent the plane from dropping its bombs on the Japanese battleship Nisshin. The collision damaged the B-17's vertical stabilizer, causing the aircraft to crash. It was last seen spiraling downward and two crewmen were observed bailing out."

Woody was 32 at the time of the incident.

According to the book, neither the B-17 nor any of its crew were seen again. However, the two-man crew of the Japanese plane bailed out to safety. The enemy pilot received a commendation for taking out the American aircraft.

Woody's parents, Leonard and Ola H. Woody, were notified their son was missing in action two weeks later on Oct. 17, 1942. In April of the following year, the couple was honored with the Distinguished Flying Cross in Staff Sgt. Woody's absence. Two months later in June, his brother, R.L. Woody of Baltimore, accepted the decoration on behalf of his parents in a formal ceremony in Washington. The citation was for extraordinary achievement in flying engagements Sept. 30, Oct. 2 and 4, 1942, in the Solomons, according to a Press article uncovered by Underdown.

Woody and his crew were finally declared dead on Dec.

14, 1945, four months after World War II ended. His body was never recovered, but a monument to his life sits today in Mapleview Cemetery, and he is listed on the tablets of the missing at Manila American Cemetery in the Philippines.

While we have no photograph of Staff Sgt. Woody and know very little of his personal life, the information found adds to the legacy of the sacrifices made at least one man with ties to this county.

We encourage anyone with information or photos of the fallen found on Page 4 to document and share that information with us so that future generations may better understand the toll exacted for freedom.

EMS Week honors ambulance crews

To the editor

National Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week is this

EMS Week is a celebration that honors the hundreds of thousands of EMS practitioners serving our communities across the nation

As a partner to the Crittenden County Ambulance Service, 911 Billing Services invites you to join us in extending a heartfelt thank you to the people who make the service in your local community the success that it is today

While serving your local service in the past years, we have worked with the ambulance crews, director(s) and elected officials. We may have even talked to a few of you during the course of our business. To all of you, it has been a real pleasure.

United by the common goal of helping our fellow neighbor, often in their times of greatest distress, the EMS community is very close-knit. We consider ourselves to be an integral part of this extended family as we help with the funding side of the business. As such, we want to give a special thank you to the unsung heroes we have the privilege of working with.

We would like to highlight the way that Crittenden County Ambulance Service benefits your community. In the past 12 months, they have responded to 1,303 calls. Of those calls, 809 were emergency transports and 494 were non-emergeny trans-

Parties choose frontrunners for senate

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mitch McConnell and Alison Lundergan Grimes ran victory laps Tuesday in Kentucky as they rallied their party faithful to nominate them for a colossal showdown in November that will help decide which party controls the U.S. Senate.

Grimes, Kentucky's Democratic Secretary of State, rolled to victory over nominal primary opposition. And Mc-Connell easily defeated tea party-backed challenger Matt Bevin, who spent $3.3 million in his failed bid to oust the five-term Republican Senate leader.

But it was another politician who stole the spotlight Tuesday night: Democratic President Barack Obama. In their victory speeches, Mc-Connell and Grimes both invoked the name of the two-term president who has the disapproval of more than 60 percent of Kentucky vot-

"Barack Obama's candidates preach independence but they practice loyalty above all else," McConnell said. "Kentuckians are not going to be deceived. Alison Lundergan Grimes is Barack Obama's candidate. And they'll issue the same verdict on this candidate that they did twice before.'

In Lexington, Grimes told supporters she won't answer to the president - "whoever he or she may be." She added that "no Kentucky woman will sit on the back bench," a reference to McConnell's argument that it would be bad for Kentucky to lose his position of seniority in the Senate.

"Mitch McConnell will have you believe that President Obama is on Kentucky's 2014 election ballot," Grimes said. "Sen. McConnell, this race is between you and me."

Bevin appeared poised to give McConnell the run for his life. The military veteran with nine children had hoped to capture the same spirit that catapulted tea party favorite Rand Paul into the Senate nearly four years ago. But despite the financial backing of outside conservative groups like the Senate Conservatives Fund and FreedomWorks, Bevin's campaign never gained traction against McConnell. The longtime senator used high-profile endorsements from the

The 62-year-old Hatchett is a real estate broker who lives on a small farm in Benton. His campaign has focused on establishing a reservation for American mustang wild horses in western Kentucky.

He carried Crittenden County over Bolin 460-299.

Hatchett will be an underdog in November against 10term Republican Rep. Ed Whitfield. Whitfield did not have opposition in the pri-

U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Rifle Association to tout his conservative bona fides.

With recent polls showing a razor-thin race between Mc-Connell and Grimes, the question now is whether Bevin supporters will vote for McConnell in November. After months of attacking Bevin in negative ads, McConnell asked his supporters to give Bevin a round of applause Tuesday night in Louisville.

"Matt brought a lot of passion and tenacity to this race, and he made me a stronger candidate," McConnell said. "A tough race is behind us and it's time to unite. To my opponent's supporters, I hope you'll join me in the months ahead and know that your fight is my fight.' Bevin did not endorse Mc-Connell on Tuesday. But he said he would not support Grimes in November, saving Democrats have "zero chance" of solving the nation's problems.

the GOP vote, outdistancing Mike McConnell, who took in 30 percent of the vote. Ricky Winders earned 13 percent. Robert "Rocky" Roberts had withdrawn from the race months ago, he gathered 31 votes.

Both nominees carried nine of the county's 12 precincts for their respective parties.

Kirk and Kemper is going to be a helluva a race," said political pundit Gordon Guess.

Perhaps drawn to the polls because of the significance of the jailer's race, 37.5 percent of eligible voters cast a ballot Tuesday. Kentucky Secretary of State Alison Lundergan Grimes reported a 27 percent turnout statewide.

In Crittenden County, the jailer will oversee a 133-bed, $7.6 million detention center

Fiscal court moving to Thursday

This will be the last month when the county's regular business will be conducted on Election Day.

Crittenden Fiscal Court amended its Administrative Code during Tuesday's monthly meeting. The changes reflected a strengthening of some codes, modernizing of others and striking a balance on the fiscal court's normal meeting day that will avoid conflicts and improve timing of public notices.

The county's general busithat has the ability to sink the county financially under poor management. In the five-plus months until the general election, Kemper and Kirk will have an opportunity to convey to voters how they plan to prevent that from happening.

On Tuesday, Kemper was

ness meeting has traditionally been held on the third Tuesday of each month. That will change in July. From that point on, the fiscal court will regularly convene at 8:30 a.m. on the third Thursday of each month.

Newcom said this week's conflict between the Election Day demands on the county clerk and her role as the fiscal court clerk were obvious to county leaders. By moving the fiscal court meeting day, elections will be avoided in the fu-not prepared to outline any specific plans outside of doing what he could to keep the jail full and expenses down.

"I'm just kind of soaking it all up right now," he said.

Kirk, however, will continue to push his plan to convert a building adjacent to the jail into a trusty workshop where mattresses will be stitched together to sell for a profit to other jails across the state. He believes the plan can generate an additional $100,000 in revenue for the jail over the money it is paid for housing state and federal inmates.

Currently, the fiscal court has $334,000 set aside to supplement the jail's budget.

Despite months of campaigning for the nominations, both Kemper and Kirk were complimentary of their opponents, crediting each with civility down the stretch.

"I'm really happy we had a good clean race - all the candidates," Kemper said.

Kirk is confident of the same in the months to come. "I think it will be a clean and fair race," he said. Though the primary election is over, County Clerk Carolyn Byford said results would not be certified until Friday.

second with 34 percent of the tally. Laura Alvey Peak, of Morganfield, finished third.

"I'm humbled by the outpouring of support," Leonard said Tuesday evening after his Rogers, too, was appreciative to the people who cast a ballot for her.

"I'm glad voters saw that my story and personal experience give me a unique perspective on the job," she said. "That means something."

While all three candidates campaigned on their knowlstanding of what is needed edge of family law, Rogers also shared that her own experiences in family court as a child gave her a clearer under-and expected from the bench.

The judicial circuit covers

Crittenden, Webster and Union counties. Each candidate carried the counties in which they live. Of Leonard's 3,214 total votes, 1,822 came from Webster County. Rogers earned 1,431 of her 2,653 votes in Crittenden County, while Peak garnered 1,422 of her 2,032 votes in Union Rogers and Leonard will have more than five months of campaigning left before voters decide on who will be Judge William E. Mitchell's replacement. Mitchell is retiring from the bench at the end of his current term.

The new justice will preside over family law matters such as divorce; child custody; paternity and adoption; child custody, support and visitation; dependency, neglect and abuse; status offenses such as runaways and truancy and domestic violence.

1, beat out challenger Bob Trowbridge 107-98. In the district, Ellis had the advantage at the Marion precinct by a 13vote margin while Trowbridge won the Rosebud precinct seven votes ahead of Ellis. Ellis also earned five of the seven absentee votes.

"I'm thankful to those who voted for me in District 1," said Ellis, who will face Democratic challenger Danny Fowler in November. "I look forward to their continued support as we head into the fall.'

Both Ellis and Underdown believe keeping the county in the black is the most important job of the entire Crittenden Fiscal Court.

"That has to be our main objective, while providing the necessary services that people expect and deserve," Ellis said.

Underdown further expressed his ongoing concern about keeping revenue up and expenses down at the county's 133-bed detention center. He said he has confidence that both men emerging victorious from their party's primary for county jailer - Republican Robbie Kirk and Democrat Daniel Kemper - understand the importance of working with the fiscal court to get that job done.

"I would like to see the jail continue like it has the last several months," the threeterm magistrate said, referring to the revenue stream as a result of keeping the jail full with state prisoners and the trimmed expenses at the facility under current Jailer Phil

Farmers can sign-up for TAP

The Salem Service Center Farm Service Agency, which serves both Crittenden and Livingston counties, is currently conducting sign-up for the Tree Assistance Program (TAP) to eligible producers who suffered losses beginning Oct. 1, 2011.

TAP provides financial assistance to qualifying orchardists and nursery tree growers to replant or rehabilitate eligible trees, bushes and vines damaged by natural disasters.

Eligible trees, bushes and vines are those from which an annual crop is produced for commercial purposes. Nursery trees include ornamental, fruit, nut and Christmas trees produced for commercial sale. Trees used for pulp or timber are ineligible.

To qualify for TAP, orchardists must suffer a qualifying tree, bush or vine loss in excess of 15 percent plus normal mortality from an eligible natural disaster. The eligible trees, bushes or vines must have been owned when the natural disaster occurred; however, eligible growers are not required to own the land on which the eligible trees, bushes and vines were planted.

If the TAP application is approved, the eligible trees, bushes and vines must be replaced within 12 months from the date the application is approved.

The cumulative total quantity of acres planted to trees, bushes or vines for which a producer can receive TAP payments cannot exceed 500 acres annually.

If you have suffered losses, contact the Salem Service Center FSA office at (270) 988-2180 or stop by the office located at 2027 U.S. 60 East, Suite B, Salem KY 42078, for additional information regarding this proUpcoming/ongoing

Cause of Asian carp die-off narrowed dition similar to "the bends" in divers likely played a role in the deaths of hundreds of thousands of Asian carp in two western Kentucky rivers last month. The die-off of invasive sil-

they've got bubbles in the gills," said Aquatic Nuisance Biologist Species Paul Wilkes of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "You can see it very clearly.'

Gas bubble disease can occur in water supersaturated with dissolved gases, and biologists believe it is a contributing factor in this case.

"Gas supersaturation is something that can happen below dams," Wilkes said. "When a fish is breathing this water with gas supersaturation it essentially causes an air embolism in the gill, which is similar to a diver getting the bends. A gas bubble will get trapped in the gill tissue of a fish and prevent blood circulation." Biologists returned to the impacted areas May 8 to collect dying silver carp, a nonnative species that threatens the well-being of native fish and mussels by over-harvesting plankton.

Tissue samples taken from those fish are being processed by staff from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Warm Springs Fish Health Center in Warm Geological Survey. searchers are looking for evidence of bacterial, viral and fungal infections. Kentucky State University previously conducted disease testing on specimens collected after the fish kill was first discovered April 23.

When I say that gas supersaturation played a role, it was likely causing some of scarring and open wounds we've seen on the fish," Wilkes said. "It's also likely that secondary infections were setting in and causing a lot of the ulcerations and other tissue erosion that you're seeing on the fish.

Multiple agencies are assisting the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife with the investigation, including the Illinois Department of Natural ReWildlife's Carterville Fish and Wildlife Conservation Office in Marion, Ill. and Warm Springs Fish Health

"There's national interest in Asian carp for obvious reasons and these agencies jumped on board," Wilkes said. "This is a big team effort. We needed help and people from other agencies were ready to pitch in and give us a hand.

Kentucky Fish Wildlife has created a webpage devoted to the Asian carp fish kill. It can be found online at fw.ky.gov. Click on the "Fish" tab, choose "More" from the dropdown menu, and then "Kentucky and Barkley Lake Asian Carp Fish Kill." The page will be updated as test results become available.

Jobs grow in state's automotive industry

The auto industry is partially to thank for Kentucky's emergence from the economic recession, according to the Bowling Green Daily News, and three plants in Marion are to partially credit.

Paul Coomes, senior ecomic adviser for the tucky Chamber of Commerce and emeritus professor of economics at the University of Kentucky, analyzed data from the U.S. Bureau of Labor and Statistics to determine how Kentucky has fared in recovery from the recession.

One of the industries in Kentucky with the fastestgrowing employment over the past four years was the manufacturing of motor vehicles and parts, such as Par 4 Plastics, Tyler Manufacturing Co. and Harminie Enterprises, Manufacturing of motor vehicles and parts added 11,700 jobs over the past four years, many of which were in Marion.

Coomes told The Daily News he believes Kentucky's location in the nation has made it attractive to motor vehicle manufacturing compa-

New CDL rules now active in Ky.

A new rule takes effect this month for people with commercial driver's licenses.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet says drivers with commercial licenses will be required by the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration to be examined by medical professionals whom it has certified.

The new rule took effect Wednesday. It pertains to health care professionals who perform medical exams for interstate truck and bus drivers. The providers must be trained, tested and certified on the specific physical qualifications that affect a driver's ability to safety operate the vehicle.

State transportation officials say the new rule also creates a national online database of certified providers. The registry is online at nationalregistry. fmcsa.dot.gov.

Early horticulture lessons

Crittenden County Conservation District presented an education program to the five Head Start classes at Crittenden County Elementary School May 12. Students were led in a hands-on activities by District Administrative Secretary Frankie Vailes and volunteer Mindy Wood. The lesson included discussing colors and varieties of flowers, parts of a flower, and what is required for a flower to grow. Each student planted a marigold to take home at the end of the day. The pots, soil and flowers were donated by the Crittenden County FFA. Above Bristol Pate and Aiden Rushing from Denise Guess' morning class show off their plants. The program was coordinated with Head Start teachers and staff members including Guess, Angel McDonald, Carla Tinsley, Mary Lynch, Melissa Croft, Kayla Faughn and volunteer Marcie Greenwell.

Demolition set for old Ledbetter Bridge

As the old U.S. 60 Ledbetter Bridge across the Cumberland River into Paducah continues to move, the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KyTC) has arranged for emergency demolition of the 83year-old bridge over the Tennessee River between Mc-Cracken and Livingston coun-

The old Ledbetter Bridge, closed to traffic since July 2013, has become unstable because of land slippage along the McCracken County river bank following heavy rains on April 29.

A joint venture of Haydon Bridge Co. and Kay and Kay Construction Co., which built the new U.S. 60 Tennessee River Bridge, will carry out demolition of the old structure under a change order to its contract. The company is completing finish work on the new bridge.

The negotiated price of the demolition will be $5.62 million. The contractor is to begin work immediately, with the first step being to mobilize equipment and conduct a thorough engineering analy-

While the main truss spans of the old bridge are stable, two approach spans have dropped more than 2 feet due to slippage of the ground under their piers.

After getting a call from a resident on April 30, inspectors found a land slip along the bluff below the bridge had moved two of the land-based piers supporting the west approach spans. Since that initial investigation, inspectors have regularly checked the aging structure for additional signs of movement. On Friday, the Kentucky Transportation Center installed sensor and a video camera to monitor the slumping approach spans.

Over the weekend the sensor sent an alert indicating additional earth movement at the site. The additional halfinch of movement means the approach spans have showed 2.75 inches of both vertical and horizontal movement since May 11, indicating the shifting hillside is continuing to move the land-based approach piers.

'Quick action is needed, and this is the fastest way to eliminate a potential hazard to river traffic," State Highway Engineer Steve Waddle said of the imminent demolition of the bridge.

A schedule for the project calls for crews to spend four weeks removing the bridge deck, beginning about June 10. Next would be removal of the steel truss, throughout most of July. Support piers would be cleared by the end of August. All work, including debris cleanup and demobilization, would be completed by Dec. 1.

The old Ledbetter Bridge opened to traffic in 1931. It was reduced to a 3-ton load limit in January 2012, which led to expedited opening of the new bridge on July 31, 2013.

He, who can't lie, offers precious promises

Every Christian will at some time have disappointments, trials, grief. heartaches and suffering. Satan will see to it, but know also Jesus said in Matthew 28:20, "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

The Hebrew writer reminds us that God has said in Matthew 13:5-6, "I will never leave vou, nor forsake you. So that we may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me.

How true the words of the Psalmist in Chapter 119, Verse 165, "Great peace have they which love thy law; and nothing shall offend them.

Peter reminds us in 2nd Peter 1:3-4 that God has given us all things that pertain unto life and godliness and states, writing, "Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these you might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

How sad, with all the suffering and strife in the world and all the love and help available for a wonderful life that most people do not even read God's word so they can take advantage of all His great and precious promises.

There are 31,101 verses in the Bible and more than 33,000 promises for all the human race He gave so they could be partakers of all His resources.

Every tear, heartache, sin, suffering, sickness, disease, misery, violence, hate, murder, rape, hunger and death comes from Satan.

Far too common is the fact we aren't taught as children the brilliance, happiness, wisdom and gain by loving God and our neighbors with all our hearts. souls, minds and bodies as ourselves.

Millions are in prisons around the world, starving or suffering all because man continues to sin against the God who not only owns them and provides them with everything they have, but also loves them and has so many wonderful things for them instead of the hell on earth they choose with sin.

To the Christian who may be going through trials at this reading, know the real value of Isaiah's promise to us in Chapter 26, verses 3-4 as he speaks to God for us: "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. Trust you in the Lord forever, for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength."

Many times, we have to pull our mind off our troubles and force it to read and believe all these great and precious promises from God who keeps His word. We must keep our mind on Him and His word, because Satan wants to pull our mind back to our troubles or something other than God's word.

The Bible also tells us in Hebrews 11:6, "Without faith, it is impossible to please Him. For he that comes to God must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him."

Too many times we aren't diligent in seeking Him. We put in a little request and say, "Now, God, you fill my order."

The next scripture came alive in my life when I first started declaring God's word with so much to learn. I was called to speak in Paducah one night. I had prayed faithfully for the message for that night but came up blank and the time to go was drawing so near and I was truly grieved. I cried out to God for help and let my Bible just fall open, and this verse jumped out to me. It was Isaiah 41:10. which teaches, "Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed; for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee; yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness."

Taking God at His word, but admittedly still scared as I never wanted to speak for God unless He was directing the message, Kenny and I drove on to Paducah without a message.

When time came for me to speak, God began to speak through me and when an invitation was given, the people began to rejoice all over the church because a dear man they had been praying for many years made his way to the altar and was beautifully forgiven and changed on

He became a real servant called you to do? Many for the Lord and his life spoke volumes of the wonderful life God gives those who name their sins to Him, take Him at His word and begin to follow Him. God surely changed that man, as He must all of us if we want to live for Him and make Heaven our home.

The age-old and thousands-of-years-proven great and precious promise I cling to especially when things are really dark and heart crushing is Romans

Just listen to each word, especially when you need help in a dark and seemingly hopeless situation: "For we know that all things work together for good to them that love the Lord and to them that are the called according to His purpose."

Too many professed Christians want the good things from God but never really love Him. They love other things and people, but never truly love and worship God.

Then there are those who say they are a Christian and are not living His purpose. He said, "and to them that are the called according to His purpose."

What is your purpose in life? Is it what God has preachers are trying to do a job that they were not called by God to do.

Many call themselves. Many are called because they can speak. Many are called by some person or persons. But the job is too hard, too unique, too demanding, too important and too dangerous to try to do without God's call.

God has many callings. They aren't all to stand before people to proclaim His word. But whatever the call is, it is for God's word to be gotten out by voice, actions and appearance.

What an honor to be called to serve the God of the whole universe. Every Christian is called to serve Him in a particular way, and how sad that many never seek to find out what their calling is.

So as Proverbs 3:5-6 reads, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart: and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy paths."

God is sifting the church in preparation for the last feast

By FELTY YODER GUEST COLUMNIST

In our reflection on the Feast of Tabernacles, we learn that 10 days after the blowing of the trumpets, there was a day of atonement.

"Also on the 10th day of this seventh month, there shall be a day of atonement," reads Leviticus 23:27.

In scriptures, the number 10 signifies trials and testing. In this hour of the sounding of the trumpets, we may be assured there will be many more problems and trials arising in the near future. We could say this trumpet call is a wake-up call to the Day of Atonement and the Feast of Tabernacles. This is the day when God would call us to repentance, meekness, humility and contrition of heart that we might receive from Him that genuine victory over sin that the Bible teaches.

God is sifting and sifting His people as never before, in preparation for this last feast. I believe that the Lord is sending the man clothed with linen with the writers inkhorn by his side through our midst to set a mark upon the forehead of the men that sigh and cry for all the abominations that are done in our midst. (Read Ezekiel 9:3-4)

We know both the world and the church are in turmoil and getting worse every day. Leaders in the world and in the church seem to be at loss on how to cope with the problems. They seem to have the idea that the people are dissatisfied when they are unsatisfied. Therefore, there is a tendency to tighten the reins and hamper the populace, causing all the more unrest.

But God is calling and marking His people, and they know there has got to be a better way. God has better things in mind for His church than what we have seen up to now. There is no question that there is still a certain amount of blessings in the old systems that God may very well have longer be on par on the day of Atonement.

The full and complete Atonement was made for the whole human race by Jesus Christ on the cross. There is no doubt whatsoever.

But as we consider our own individual lives, as well as that of the historical church, we realize that we have never appropriated the great atoning work of the cross in its fullness. We are thankful that God has given us the pattern we find in Israel's feasts and that we acknowledge and visualize there is a place of real victory over sin and the flesh for the Church of Jesus Christ for all who believe in it.

Many have been preaching victory over sin for years and have attained to it in some measure, that is true enough. But we cannot say that men ever experienced it in any degree of fullness. We would do well to stop trying to justify ourselves and insisting on our used for a season but will no holiness when it is apparent to everyone about us that we do not posses it.

When the trumpet call (as far as the Feast of Tabernacles is concerned) has served its purpose and the Church experiences the day of Atonement, the world will see it and be amazed to discover something real and genuine in the midst of this wicked and perverse generation. It is to be a light to the world, for many people are like Thomas, they won't believe until they see. We are not going to take the history of the church as our pattern for the future. For it is a sad story of rivalry and defeat that will have to give way to the very victory of Christ Himself.

This blessed, glorious victory that we are talking about is declared in God's word. It is held out to us who have the hope, desire, longing, vision and expectation for it. We want to keep our vision high, for there is a vast expanse out there to appropriate.

"Today, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts," reads Hebrews 3:7. Let us examine just a few scriptures that clearly promise this overcoming life in the John 17:21, "That they all may be my one; as thou Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me."

of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." John 8:36, "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." As long as the world, the flesh or the devil can bring you into any measure of servitude, you are not "free indeed."

Tips for making your yard sale a success

Having a yard sale does not necessarily mean it will be a success. Careful planning and preparation beforehand can help you have the most successful yard sale possible.

Planning ahead is essential and should be done well in advance of the yard sale date. Start by sorting

If you have a family member or friend who lives near a main thoroughfare, subdivision or other desirable location, you may ask them if they would like to have a multi-family yard sale at their location. Another option is to talk with your neighbors about having neighborhood-wide vard sale.

When you price your items, make sure your asking price is reasonable for the piece and its condition. You may want to visit a few yard sales around the neighborhood beforehand to

City may allow sale of fireworks

The City of Marion may allow the sale of certain fireworks from seasonal retailers if an ordinance introduced at Monday's city council meeting is passed upon next reading.

The five-page ordinance allows for the sale of flying fireworks commonly sold by retailers from roadside tents near the Fourth of July. Previously, the sale and use of such fireworks were banned in the city. The new ordinance would also allow for the use of those fireworks during certain days and hours.

The ordinance stemmed from a visit at last month's council meeting by Jeremy Collins of C&T Wholesalers in Morganfield. He was requesting the city consider allowing the sale of the flying fireworks he sells each year in several nearby cities.

The council is expected to vote on the ordinance at its next regular meeting.

Cities leaving KU could raise costs

A dispute over the price of electricity has led nine municipalities who deliver power to notify Kentucky Utilities Co. that they intend to seek other providers when their contracts expire.

The Courier-Journal reports the cities say in a letter that they believe moving to the open market could save money and lead to a more flexible contract.

The threats follow new contract demands KU made last year that would raise rates and fees and extend commitments from five years

Both sides continue to negotiate - another settlement discussion is set for May 29 - in hopes that an agreement can be reached before the current contracts expire in five years.

The nine municipal power providers who have threatened to break away include Providence and Madisonville.

If the cities leave, it could force KU and sister company Louisville Gas and Electric to spread costs among remaining customers like those in Marion and portions of rural Crittenden County.

Kentucky's heroin surge mirrors U.S.

Kentucky's heroin surge reflects a national trend. The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports a percent increase in heroin-related overdose deaths from 2000 to 2010. And as in Kentucky, four national studies show heroin users first abused prescription narcotics.

Law enforcement officials said heroin first took root in northern Kentucky, coming south through Chicago and Detroit to Cincinnati, before moving on to Louisville.

More recently, it has spread to eastern Kentucky, the area hardest hit by prescription pills.

And while the problem is much less pronounced in western Kentucky, Dr. Tracey Corey, Kentucky's chief medical examiner, said it is instatewide creasing 'spreading out."

U.S. Sen. Mitch Mc-Connell, R-Kentucky, told a Senate hearing last week "the problem of heroin abuse is spreading like a cancer" across the state.

Sisters aid casualties during World War II

n the past, I had found an obituary for Matilda Griffith, a Crittenden County nurse serving in World War II. Hoping to find a picture of her and a little more information, I called Mary Ann Lowery Cox, Matilda's niece.

Talking with Mary Ann, I found she knew much more than I ever dreamed and that Matilda also had a sister who was a nurse both strong, brave women who served in the military.

This week's Memorial Day article, which is written by Mary Ann, is honoring two Crittenden County Women's Army Corps (WAC) nurses who served their county during the terrible days of World War II. Thank you, Mary Ann, for sharing these incredible memories of your aunts and to Paul Lowery for providing the wonderful pictures of these military women.

ois and Matilda 'Maggie" Griffith were two women from Crittenden County who served in the Women's Army Corps during World War II. They were daughters of Guy and Nellie Griffith – originally of the Sheridan community - and were raised by their mother's family after their parents' death. The eight siblings included four boys and four girls. Lois was the eldest, born in 1910, and Matilda was the fourth, born in 1915. All eight graduated from Tolu High School between 1928 and 1938. Their home after 1923 was a farm west of Tolu on Ky.135 with Charlie and Dancy Moore Donakey and Celia Donakey.

As I was growing up during the 1950s and 60s, my parents and all the aunts and uncles did not discuss World War II.

By the time Lois moved back to Marion as a widow in 1997, she and my mother, Nellie Lowery, were ready to talk. Evidently, I needed to be 50 years old to appreciate the details.

After graduating from high school, Lois went to Louisville to study nursing at Louisville General Hospital. The nursing school sent patterns and instructions on how to make her uniforms of blue checked gingham purchased from a country store at home prior to her arrival. To get there, she came to Marion, and her great-uncle. George Foster, took her to Princeton to catch a passenger train. Someone from the hospital met her and took her to the dorm. She said when they opened the door to go in, a nude student was chasing another one trying to retrieve a bath towel. Lois always said, "It was quite an experience – I had, of course, never seen one of those before!" She graduated as a registered nurse, and followed that profession for her entire professional ca-

Matilda followed Lois to Louisville after her graduation to study at Louisville General, too. She used the same uniform patterns left over from Lois. (The uniforms were eventually made into flower garden quilts by their grandmother.) Uncle George also ferried her to Princeton. She and Lois shared apartments of a "size to swing cats" and worked at the hospital until "the war" was declared after Pearl

Lois did basic training at Camp Atterberry in Indiana, and met Roy Waymire, whom she married after they came back from service in Europe. Her trip overseas was on the Queen Mary, and she was stationed in England until the invasion in 1944. During this time, the Army made many opportunities for the nurses to see historical sights, which Lois appreciated, but felt illprepared to fully absorb. She mentioned the cathedrals and castles and Hitler's Eagle's Nest, after Germany's defeat.

Lois's experience in Europe came on the Normandy beaches on D-Day Plus 6. At that point, paratrooper casualties were still sadly visible in the trees. Her unit followed Gen. Patton's troops to the conclusion, and she saw him several times in the course of events. Her job after invasion was as a member of a MASH (mobile army surgical hospital) unit, as she always said, "before MASH units were invented." The first-aid crews would bring in the wounded, and her group's task was to get the injured stable enough to be airlifted to an English hospi-

She really did use a shower made from a bucket with holes, and she had a series of foxholes. However, she did not dig her own foxholes - there were enlisted men who did that, and she asserted, did it exceedingly well. Worrier that she was, she felt as safe as anybody.

After the war, she lived in Central Indiana, where her husband had family. and worked at the veteran's hospital in Marion, Ind. She and Roy took seriously the bonds formed during World War II and were active in veterans' organizations. Especially in retirement years, as the funerals piled up, he served at numberless color guard memorial services.

My brother and I were sincerely touched when we went from Crittenden County during September 2001 to take her remains back to Peru, Ind., to be warmly welcomed by several seriously elderly veterans who had come to pay their respects.

(The Crittenden Press, Sept. 20, 2001: Lois Griffith Waymire, 91, of Marion, formerly of Peru, Ind., died Sept. 17, 2001. She served as a captain in the U.S. Army Nurse Corps during World War II and participated in campaigns in Normandy, northern France, Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe. Her decorations include the American Campaign Medal, the European-African-Middle Eastern Campaign Medal, the World War II Victory Medal and the Meritorious Service Medal.)

'atilda's World War II experiences were in some ways similar, but in others harsher with a sadder outcome. She was not posted to England and Europe, but to North Africa, leading to Italy.

Her lingering illness and survival attempt was spent at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C., so she chose to be buried at Arlington, in a section for military nurses within yards of the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier and the Mast of the Battleship Maine - Major Matilda Mary Griffith of Kentucky.

(Her obituary from The Crittenden Press, Aug. 3, 1961, tells that Major Matilda M. Griffith died July 20, 1961, in Walter Reed Army Hospital, Washington, D.C., where she had been a patient for most of the time since Nov. 20, 1960. Major Griffith would have been eligible for retirement in early 1962, having served in World War II, being in the first group of nurses to land in Africa from the U.S. and was also among the group to land on Anzio Beachhead in Italy, serving out the remainder of the war in Italy. She was with the Army of Occupation in Germany for several years and served two different times in San Juan, Puerto Rico, as well as Fort Knox, Fort McArthur and Fort Stewart in the States.)

Just prior to her death, my mother handed us a Bunny Bread bag of letters her aunt Celia Donakev had received in Tolu from the brothers and sisters away from home during the war. Brother James Pres had flown in bombers from northern England and from North Africa in support of invasion forces. Lois was further south in England and in Europe. Maggie and Jimmy were both on the ground in North Africa and Italy, and on several occasions, actually met. The letters were full of accounts of outings, dangers, dustups, food, rumors and needs. Maggie especially needed things sent from home - "bobby pins, and Halo shampoo, if you can get it," and we could tell from the letters that the folks got it to them. It was love in a box during hard times. Some

Transcripts can now be sent to colleges via Internet

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public high school students in Kentucky may find it easier to have records sent to colleges and universities now that their schools are online with electronic transcripts.

Kentucky education officials say the transcripts can be sent directly to 44 public or private colleges and universities in Kentucky as well as participating schools outside the state.

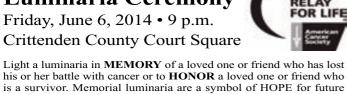

The Kentucky Department of Education, Kentucky

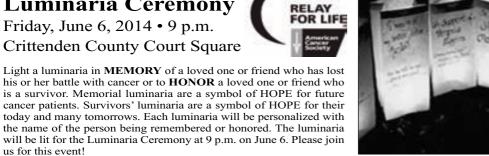

Council on Postsecondary Education and Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority worked together on the project. The agencies said in a news release Wednesday that students are able to request transcripts 24 hours a day, seven days a week online at www.parchment.com.

Previously, counselors had to physically handle transcript requests, which sometimes were a cost to the student.

Chamber recognizes award winners

By JASON TRAVIS STAFF WRITER

It was a night to honor and recognize local individuals and businesses that have made a significant contribution to the City of Marion and Crittenden County.

The Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce hosted its 41st annual meeting and awards ceremony last Thursday at First Cumberland Presbyterian Church's Fellowship Hall.

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom began the ceremony by presenting the Volunteer of the Year award to local educator Kim Vince.

"This year's recipient of the Volunteer of the Year award learned what it meant to be a volunteer at a very young age through participation in youth groups and numerous organizations and high school and college and our community," Newcom said.

He added that Vince learned early on that in order to make things better, individuals need to volunteer.

Vince has served on the Fohs Hall Community Arts Foundation for the past 10 years. She is the past president of the organization and currently serves as treasurer. Five years ago, she became the chairperson for the Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show.

"It's an honor to be considered a volunteer," Vince told audience members. "I accept this award on behalf of all those that help with the projects that I may lead or be a part of."

the Johnson family has always supported the community and their business has been an important showplace.

In business in Marion since 1950, Margaret Johnson and her late husband, Jim, started the furniture and appliance store. Their son Jim, who owns and operates the store with his family, accepted the award.

With a lot of pride I accept this award for the entire staff at the furniture store. It takes a lot of people a lot of years to get an award like this," he "We appreciate the Chamber for recognizing us.'

Local businessman and emergency volunteer Mike Crabtree was recognized with the Unsung Hero Award, which was presented by incoming Chamber president Robin Curnel. Crabtree has served for the last 20 years on Crittenden County Volunteer Fire Department, during which time he has also served as assistant fire chief. He is a member of the Crittenden County Rescue Squad and currently serves as assistant chief. He is a member of the Marion City Fire Department, a first responder and trained storm spotter.

"I love my community. I love the people here. I appreciate this award. You don't know what it means to me, and I'm just thankful to be here in Crittenden County,' Crabtree said.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant presented the Customer Service Award to fellow city employee City Clerk Pam Enoch.

"With her title comes great responsibility and authority," Bryant said. "Yet Pam is to all who know her an extremely sensitive and humble public servant. She was voted the city's employee of the year a few years ago by her own coworkers. She is truly worthy of the Chamber's recognition for customer service of the Enoch, who hadn't learned she had received the award until its presentation, told the audience she was in shock and thanked the Chamber for the honor and recognition.

Outgoing Chamber President Jeff Ellis recognized Marion Feed Mill Inc. for 50 years of service in the community. Owners Charlie Hunt and Keith Hart, who began operating the company in the 1970s after its establishment in 1964, were recognized for their commitment and service to the community. The feed mill brings customers from 14 Kentucky counties and Illinois. It delivers feed to destinations including Paducah, Owensboro and Hop-

"We really appreciate it," Hart told the audience. "We appreciate all the community does for us, and we try to be good community members." Hunt and Hart, business partners since 1977, were also college roommates and fraternity brothers. Hunt also thanked the Chamber and expressed the importance of listening to their customers through their years of service in the community.

The last award of the night, Person of the Year, was presented to Crittenden County Public Library Director Regina Merrick. The award was presented by Terry Bunnell, who listed Merrick's accomplishments in the community and its

"I thank you so much for this award. This community has become very special to us," Merrick said, including her family. "Marion is our home. I appreciate you and hope to serve with you many more years."

New board members include Gilbert, Elliot West, Randa Berry and Meredith Hall. Officers for 2014-15 include Curnel, president; Tammy Wallace, vice-president; and Scott Belt, treasurer.

Crittenden County Elementary School hosted the school district's Council of Councils meeting during the board of education's regular working session on May 13.

The Council of Councils meetings provide open dialogue between site-based decision-making members, student council representatives from each school, school principals, administration officials, the superintendent and board of education members to highlight current events and what's forthcoming for the district. It's also an opportunity for students to lend their voices to what they enjoy about their school experience and what they feel can be improved.

Superintendent Rachel Yarbrough outlined the district's six overall goals, which include cultivating college and career readiness, improving attendance, increasing student achievement, maximizing resource effectiveness, enhancing internal and external connectivity and boosting a positive culture and climate within the school system.

Among the initiatives implemented during the current school year include added technology in the middle and high school for lesson planning and student learning; additional dialogue with students through a superintendent-student committee and full implementation of the Brideway Learning Center at the middle school.

Crittenden County Schools Instructional Supervisor Vince Clark addressed the importance of the digital conversion plan at the middle and high schools. He said the goal is to not only engage students in learning but also Crittenden County will now have three athletes headed to the Kentucky Class A State Track and Field Meet this weekend at Shively Field on the University of Kentucky campus.

Tabor's name etched in stone of memorial

KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE RESOURCES

Denver Tabor was active with the Boy Scouts, cared for the elderly and was quick to help the less fortunate.

More than once the Kentucky conservation officer surprised his wife, Linda, by coming home with a stranger in need of a homecooked meal or a hot shower.

Hardin grew to know her father from such stories. "Mom has told me that he was the kind of person that if he gave a ticket sometimes people would thank him before it was over," she said.

Denver Tabor, of Crittenden County, gave his life in 1973 trying to rescue a boy who had tumbled overboard from a boat on the Ohio River, and is one of six Kentucky conservation officers killed in the line of duty since 1918.

A new memorial honoring their sacrifice was dedicated in Frankfort Saturday afternoon, May 17.

"To know that this will be here forever and appreciated by future generations is so ' Linda Tabor humbling,' said. "Denver would be so thankful, and proud."

Located on the campus of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, the centerpiece of the keyhole-shaped memorial designed by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife graphic artist Obie Williams and constructed by Searcy Monument Company of Carrollton is a bronze statue of a saluting officer by Indiana sculptor David Benches placed around the statue represent the state's nine law enforcement districts.

Images of conservation officers Elijah Roberts, James R. Claxton, John C. Martin, Tabor, Robert C. Banker and Douglas W. Bryant are etched on stone tablets atop stone pedestals lining either side of a brick pathway leading to the statue.

The Kentucky Conservation Officers' Association (KCOA) led the drive for the memorial and financed its construction through sponsorships and other fundraising activities.

Kentucky Fish Wildlife Conservation Sgt. Scott Herndon chaired the group's memorial committee and said Saturday there are plans to establish a Kentucky Fallen Officers Memorial Scholarship Fund.

"This memorial honors the six officers who gave the ultimate sacrifice," Herndon said, "but also the conservation officers who worked before us and those who are going to work here in the future.

Saturday's ceremony featured the Louisville Police Pipes and Drums, a rifle salute by representatives of the Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Honor Guard, the playing of "Taps" by Anderson County Middle School student Noah Medley and flag presentations to family members or representatives

KEVIN KELLY, KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT OF FISH AND WILDLIFE RESOURCES Linda Tabor (left) and her daughter, Stacy Tabor Hardin, show their emotions Saturday in Frankfort in front of a monument to Denver Tabor at the dedication of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources memorial to its six fallen conservation officers since 1918. of the fallen officers.

Kentucky Fish and Wildlife conservation officers and Kentucky State Police assembled in rows, shoulder to shoulder behind the families during the ceremony.

The six officers now forever memorialized serve to remind the public of the dangers Kentucky conservation officers face every day, said Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Commissioner Gregory Johnson.

They make all of our lives better by protecting our fish and wildlife resources that richen the landscape and the quality of our life in this great Commonwealth," he said. "This memorial should always remind us of those who picked up the standard from their fallen comrades and carried on those tasks.

"Our fish and wildlife family recognizes the impossibility of ever repaying our debt to these six men. As humans, we strive to express our gratitude to them."

Following the ceremony, Sherry Bryant clutched the flag given to her and made her way to the pedestal honoring her late husband.

Douglas Bryant was killed in May 2003 when his patrol truck was intentionally struck by the car of a man he was pursuing on Interstate 71/75 in Fort Mitchell.

"The people that will come through here now will ensure these officers will not be forgotten," she said. "You continue through life and you move on, but something nobody will ever take away is the memories. They'll live
