Memorial Day service plans

There will be two Memorial Day services Monday in Crittenden County. The American Legion Ellis B. Ordway Post 111 will hosts its annual ceremony at 10 a.m., at Mapleview Cemetery. Guest speakers will be U.S. Rep. Ed Whitfield and Judge-Executive Perry Newcom. Shady Grove Cemetery Association will host its annual service at 11 a.m. Guest speaker is District Judge Daniel Heady. Music will be provided by Sharon and Ben Herran and there will be a dinner at the fire station following the service.

In Livingston County, Burna American Legion Post 217 will host a service and free breakfast starting at 8 a.m., Sunday. The group puts out hundreds of crosses on its lawn near the middle school. Members will be on site all day Sunday and Monday to help relatives and friends find markers placed for fallen loved ones.

Closed for holiday

■ Some offices at the courthouse will be closed Saturday. The entire courthouse will be closed Monday.

■ The Press will be closed Monday as will the Clement Mineral Museum. Press deadlines for next week at 5 p.m., Friday.

No driver testing

Crittenden County Circuit Court Clerk's office will not be conducting road or written driver's license tests Friday.

Meet Bobcats Saturday night

There will be a Meet the Bobcats team and community rally at 5 p.m., Saturday upstairs at Main Street Italian Grill. All fans are encouraged to attend and meet this summer's lineup. The club has a new manager this season, former Bobcat pitcher Kyle Medley. Next week, The Press will feature information about the upcoming season.

Furlough Friday

Crittenden County PVA office will be closed Friday for a state-mandated furlough day. This is the last of six furlough days ordered by the governor to save money.

Winters finds honor among first group of high-achieving grads

By DARYL K. TABOR
SPECIAL TO THE PRESS

If a man is truly known for the company he keeps, Ken Winters will be revered as one of the most acclaimed people to have ever come from Crittenden County. From this point forward, his name will forever be associated with the likes of Pogue, James and Fohs – a groundbreaking historian, a U.S. Senator and a world-famous geologist whose chapters have already been written and relegated to history books and memorials.

Winters, along with Forrest C. Pogue, Ollie M. James, F. Julius Fohs and Dr. Albert M. Crider will this week be inducted as the inaugural class of Crittenden County Schools Distinguished Alumni, an academic hall of fame honoring former graduates whose celebrated accomplishments are rooted in an education from here.

Though a current state senator from Murray and former training officer in the Army and Army Reserves,

Crider's cure-hunting influenced by start as City Drug's janitor

By CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

Opportunity knocked early for Albert Michael Crider. After three years of delivering newspapers on his bicycle before school, he latched on to an afternoon job that became a career builder at City Drug in downtown Marion.

It was the mid 1960s and "Mike," as he was known to the neighbors around West Poplar Street, admits his role was more or less janitorial in nature. He stocked a few shelves and became intrigued by medications. With mentoring from druggists Gleaford Rankin and Ted Frazer, the high school senior developed a passion for chemistry and medicines.

He'd steal away to the dimly lit second floor while on break and thumb through books and catalogs that belonged to the drug store. He took chemistry in high school, but it was this brush with practical experience that fueled his jets.

Those early influences germinated in his mind and turned this admittedly average high school student into a cure hunter with three U.S. Patents under his belt. In fact, Crider, 62, and a fellow researcher are on the cutting edge of science right now, looking for a possible treatment for Alzheimer's disease in a small molecule that breaks up debilitating plaque that can form on the brain. They've applied for a provisional patent on that particular chemical compound's application.

Although he has spent years searching for cures for diseases such as epilepsy, Parkinson's, breast cancer, schizophrenia and glaucoma, Crider still considers himself a teacher, first and foremost.

"I feel that doing research brings these things into the classroom and jazzes the teaching up quite a bit," he said.

He has taught at Purdue University, University of Toledo, University of Louisiana at Monroe and now University of Southern Illinois at Ed-

County approves bonds for hospital expansion

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Fiscal Court approved Tuesday at a special meeting a plan that will allow Crittenden Health Systems to issue tax-free bonds in an amount to not exceed $3.3 million to cover costs of new technology and its operating room expansion and renovation.

The expansion project has been underway for some time with bills to this point paid from hospital operating capital. By getting the county's help, the hospital can save thousands of dollars in finance costs and the bonds become attractive to banks. The bonds in question will be bought by Farmers Bank and Trust Company in Marion and Paducah Bank.

The financing is being separated into two bond issues, one at $2.2 million for 10 years on the expansion project and the other at $1.1 million for five years on the technology money. The information technology being upgraded was mandated by the new federal health care law. Some of it will be reimbursed if the hospital meets certain standards. The interest rate on the bigger bond issue is 4.95 percent and the small amount is 3.76 percent.

Alan Stout, the local attorney representing the hospital on the matter, said it was a similar financing plan as the one put together in 1995 for an expansion project at the hospital.

The hospital is paying for 20 percent of the costs associated with the two projects, about $800,000, said CEO Jim Christensen.

According to the bond ordinance, the county will have no financial liability in repaying the bonds should the hospital default. However, the land on which the hospital sits is mortgaged as part of the plan. The county has temporarily handed over its rights to the property so the hospital can put it up as collateral. When the bonds are paid off, the county will get the deed back.

The bonds are essentially the equivalent of industrial development bonds; therefore the issuance of them will not affect the county's general bonding capacity.

The fiscal court voted unanimously to approve the financing plan. Magistrate Donnetta Travis abstained because she is employed at the hospital. Magistrate Curt Buntin did not attend the meeting.

Water line repairs will mean some disruption

For years, when a person dialed 911 for an emergency call in Crittenden County, the operator answering that call was a dispatcher at the Kentucky State Police Post 2 at Madisonville. The call would then be transferred to Marion's dispatch center for disposition. We never experienced any significant issues with that arrangement, but the slight delays were somewhat problematic.

Over the past couple of years, the City of Marion, through a grant obtained by the North Pennyryle 911 Board, has purchased the needed equipment, hired and trained the needed personnel, and worked to become State-certified in order to take over the 911 responsibilities for all of Crittenden County. All 911 calls are now answered by qualified, helpful – and local – dispatchers employed by the City of Marion. We think this arrangement is best for Crittenden County. In coming years, we will be continuously upgrading our equipment and know-how as next generation technologies become mandatory for all 911 systems in the state.

The City's 911 operations are commandeered by Police Lieutenant Marty Hodge. Our dispatchers include Ginny Tinsley, Paula Miniard, Tina Gass, Bob Woodward, Dwayne Davidson and Tracey Beeson.

Police Memorial Week

We recently observed Police Officer Memorial Week (May 15-22) by lowering the flags in front of city hall to half staff and wearing black bands across our badges. This was in honor of the police officers nationwide who have lost their lives in the line of duty. While it is less likely for small town officers to encounter some of the dangers faced by their counterparts in larger cities on a daily basis, the City of Marion's officers never take for granted that dangers are not present. To that end, we take great strides to provide a well-trained, well-equipped force. Our officers are always cognizant of the fact that there is no such thing as a routine call, and are prepared at all times to respond appropriately to whatever action a situation demands of them. We truly appreciate the support shown by this community for Chief Ray O'Neal and his police force.

A Waterline for the Ages

City government is just weeks away from beginning construction on a new 12-inch waterline that will extend from the Front Porch Restaurant on South Main to the intersection of North Main and Second Street. The estimated cost of this project is between $1.5 million and $2 million. The new line will replace existing four-, six- and eight-inch lines that have been in service since the city's existing water distribution came online – in 1925!

The city, in conjunction with the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, will take every step necessary to limit the impact of this project on traffic flow through the main part of our town. However, there will be inevitable disruptions, delays and detours; there is simply no way to complete this project without them. At least one Main Street Waterline Open House will be held at city hall in coming weeks to inform residents and business owners of the specific issues surrounding the waterline project. The Crittenden Press and its website, thepress.com, will announce when this meeting is to take place.

A Good Place to Work

Charles Corley, an employee of the city's water department, retired last year after 30-plus years of service to the city. Our City Treasurer Melinda Gipson recently celebrated 20 years on the job and Maintenance Supervisor Garry Gerard achieved the 10-year employment milestone. As of this past January, Planning Coordinator Terri Hart has been with the city for five years, the same time recently achieved by Street Department employee B.J. Yates. Of the city's 27 full-time employees, all but a handful have close to five or more years of service. One of our part-time employees, Fire Chief Red Howton, has been with the city over 25 years.

The City of Marion constantly seeks to make employment with the municipal government a worthwhile endeavor. We cover 100 percent of the cost of our employees' health care premiums and contribute almost 19 percent of their salaries toward their retirement. With the adoption of the 2011-2012 budget, the average annual salary for a full-time worker in the city service is about $31,000.

Mark Bryant is the Marion City Administration. To discuss any of the items mentioned above – or any other matter pertaining to city government operations – contact him at 965-2266 or mbryant@marionky.gov.

Let's provide a fitting Memorial salute

With the historic flood of 2011, many of us are preoccupied with putting our lives back together as the water recedes. In this time of hardships for many, I want to remind everyone that Memorial Day is May 30 and that we not forget this important Remembrance Day.

This weekend many proud veterans, families and friends of veterans will visit gravesites of lost warriors all across the nation. It is altogether fitting that we do so, especially now that we are engaged in three overt wars. Memorial Day is our day to reflect on the courage, commitment and sacrifice of those who have worn the uniform in service to America, giving their last full measure on battlefields here at home, on foreign shores, in the skies and on the high seas.

Memorial Day originated as Decoration Day and there is evidence that organized womens' groups in the South were decorating graves before the end of the Civil War. A hymn published in 1867, "Kneel Where Our Loves are Sleeping," by Nella L. Sweet carried the dedication: "To The Ladies of the South who are Decorating the Graves of the Confederate Dead" (Source: Duke University's Historic American Sheet Music, 1850-1920.).

Memorial Day was officially proclaimed on May 5, 1868 by Gen. John (Black Jack) Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in his General Order No. 11 and was first observed on May 30, 1868, when flowers were placed on the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. Memorial Day continued to be observed on May 30 until the United States Congress approved the National Holiday Act of 1971 which moved the observation of Memorial Day to the last Monday in May.

Today, Memorial Day weekend has become a time for family gatherings and picnics. It is the day swimming pools open and we watch the Indianapolis 500. It's the unofficial start of summer and I see nothing wrong with that. But, that was certainly not the original intent of Memorial Day and we must never forget that Memorial Day is a day devoted to those who have died in the service of this great nation, a day for us to reflect on the past and those Americans who gave their all so we may pursue life, liberty and happiness.

Can you imagine what America, and indeed the world, would be like without the sacrifice of Americans who answered the call to fight for liberty where tyrants murdered and enslaved millions all over the world, because it was the right thing to do?

We could have demanded much of the countries we liberated; however, all we asked for was a small plot of ground to bury our dead war fighters. Our veterans didn't fight and die to rule over other countries. The servicemen and women we remember on Memorial Day did so out of the love of freedom and the desire to protect it, not only for America, but for the world as a whole.

The roots of service grow deep in America. I love this country and our founding documents, the Declaration of Independence and The United States Constitution, through which our nation came to life. Ours was the birth of a nation that affected the world in a most positive manner. To fully appreciate the price America paid with her most precious resource in the fight for liberty, I submit the total of American military losses in only eight of the 63 wars or conflicts America has partic-

American Revolution	25,000
War of 1812	20,000
U.S. Civil War	625,000
World War I	116,516
World War II	405,399
Korea	53,686
Vietnam	58,209
War on Terror	11,592

That is almost 1.3 million bootless militiamen at Valley Forge, sailors aboard USS Constitution, brave souls in blue and grey at Gettysburg and Shiloh, dough boys and our first aviators in the war to end all wars. It includes GIs charging Omaha Beach from the bellies of amphibious landing craft and holding the line at the Battle of the Bulge and on frozen hills in Korea. Among the dead were young Americans in the rice paddies of Vietnam, sailors and marines on Yankee Station and on river patrol boats. Still, too, our honored sacrifices were among troops in full battle rattle in the deserts of Iraq and mountains of Afghanistan.

We may know the names of American military heroes such as George Washington, Chesty Puller, Audie Murphy and Staff Sgt. Salvatore Giunta, our latest Medal of Honor winner, yet there are so many more whose names were only known by members of their squad or platoon, their shipmates and their families. They rest in France and Germany and Belgium, at Pearl Harbor entombed in USS Arizona, at Arlington and other national and hometown cemeteries.

As I think about the great people from our past, the famous and not so famous, my hope is that in the future there will be no wars to take our sons and daughters, brothers and sisters. If that were to come true I would also hope that Memorial Day not be forgotten and remain a day of reflection.

From the beginning of our nation to the latest casualty in the war on terror, Memorial Day is the time we recognize every soldier, sailor, marine, airman and coast guardsman who have gone before us. No matter the color of their skin, their politics, religion, country of origin or sex, they shared the timeless attributes of honor, courage and commitment. They stood in the face of the storms of history and never faltered and they are the thread that holds the fabric of America together.

Men and women have paid the price for liberty with their lives from Yorktown to Bagdad, the Marine Barracks in Lebanon to Khobar Towers in Saudi Arabia. Those Americans who fought and died on the battlefields of America's struggles were the inspiration for many of us today and will be a source of pride in the future when young men and women take an oath to protect and defend the United States Constitution against all enemies foreign and domestic.

The Declaration of Independence concludes with this sentence, "with firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor." I acknowledge that as our Founding Fathers did, so do members of the United States Armed Forces past, present and future mutually pledge our lives, fortunes and our sacred honor to each other and to this magnificent country.

Two footnotes: On Feb 28, 2011, America's last known World War I veteran, Cpl. Frank Buckles, died at the age of 110. And, we continue to lose 1,000 World War II veterans each day.

Donald (Don) Gatewood is a retired Naval Officer and former Evansville Indiana Police Officer. Don and his wife Paula have resided in Crittenden County since 2002. His opinions are his own, and are not necessarily those of the newspaper.

At 3 p.m., Monday stop to remember them

Let every nation know, whether it wishes us well or ill, that we shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe to assure the survival of liberty."

—John F. Kennedy

Memorial Day marks the unofficial arrival of summer. It is a day off from work and school and often is celebrated by gatherings of family and friends. Memorial Day is a day unlike any other, but not because it is a good day for a family barbecue. Its purpose is much more meaningful.

Memorial Day is a day of remembrance. For almost a century and a half, we have set aside a day to place flowers and flags on the graves of those who have given their last full measure of devotion to our country. Memorial Day is set aside to remember and honor those who have made the ultimate sacrifice for us – for our country.

Though people honored the graves of the war dead even before the Civil War, the National Memorial Day holiday, originally known as Decoration Day, was first observed on May 30, 1868. The concept originated in the mind of General John Alexander Logan, who dedicated this day to decorate the graves of the American Civil War dead. Later, it encompassed all of those – from the Revolutionary War to the present – who sacrificed their lives for our nation. Until 1971, our country celebrated Memorial Day on May 30. It was after that when the federal government issued the orders of holding Memorial Day on the last Monday of May.

Fearing that Memorial Day was losing its significance in the minds of younger generations, a national humanitarian organization based in Washington, D.C., developed the concept of a National Moment of Remembrance. Introduced in 1997 and recognized by the president and members of congress, the National Moment of Remembrance is now an accepted practice. At 3 p.m., on Memorial Day, "Taps" rings out throughout America to honor the contributions of our dead soldiers. At that same time, all Americans are encouraged to pay respect to the soldiers who have given their lives by having a moment of silence in their memory.

The American soldiers who have died in battle did their duty. We know who many of them are as we visit the cemeteries and note the dates of their shortened lives on the headstones. We know they left behind loved ones who missed them – or, in more recent tragedies, still miss them.

Each generation of our fallen soldiers has left a legacy of freedom. They taught their children the value of sacrifice and virtue – necessary conditions of freedom – and they taught us the love of country. Because of their sacrifices, we have the privilege of living in an open society where we can be lovers of liberty and equality – without fear of persecution.

How can we possibly honor our fallen soldiers? Perhaps by making certain that their stories are told to our children and their children.

Perhaps we can remember – and as we remember, issue a sincere thank you to all those who have given their lives – and those who will give their lives – for making sure that this island of liberty continues.

Perhaps, along with Abraham Lincoln, we can say: "Gold is good in its place; but living, brave, patriotic men, are better than gold."

And, we can pray that one day no more of our brave soldiers have to die to preserve freedom. Until that day, we can remember all those who have paid the ultimate sacrifice and honor those who continue to give their lives.

On Monday, as you gather with family and friends or enjoy a day off from work or school, I hope you will join me in remembering and honoring those who have fallen so that we can live freely. At 3 p.m., unite with other citizens around our nation in a moment of silence – and prayer if you believe in a higher being – to honor our fallen soldiers.

God bless you – and all those who have fought for our country and those serving today in the U.S. and on foreign soil.

STLP members showcase projects at state

Crittenden County elementary, middle and high school's Student Technology Leadership Program recently participated in the 2011 STLP state championship in Lexington at Rupp Arena May 13. CCES STLP members Meighan Koon, Mauri Collins, Madison Champion and Emmalea Barnes showcased their project, "How prepared are you?"

CCMS STLP members Ryan Dunham, Logan Bingham, Brayden McKinney, Cole Foster and Nathan Burnett showcased their electric bike that was constructed out of a rusty mountain bike. Unnecessary components were removed and a HUB motor was attached and wired by the STLP members. The middle school members made it to tier three of judging out of 30 showcases, but did not make the final 10, three of which advance to Philadelphia in June to the ISTE Conference. CCMS Advisor Ben Thompson said that he was proud of the work that his students have put in and that they too, were pleased with the results.

"It took a combination of all of their skills to make this happen," Thompson said. "It just goes to show that hard work really does pay off."

The Crittenden County High School STLP showcased their project, "iRockets" at the state competition in Lexington. "iRockets" is an iPhone/iPod web based application that keeps students, teachers and community members updated on school functions through their mobile device.

Zach Sizemore, Jake Tabor, Austin Dunkerson, Corey Bruns, Brody Bruns, Will Hayes, Matthew Pendrick, Emily Shewcraft, Amelia Gilley, Terra Williams, Lindsay Sizemore and advisor Don Winters attended the state showcase.

4-H members win variety show

The spotlight was on the Crittenden County 4-H club during a recent area 4-H variety show. The show was held on May 6 at the Merle Travis Center in Muhlenberg County. Two club acts and four specialty acts from across west Kentucky competed at the event.

In order for an act to compete at the area contest, they had to win their county contest. Representing Crittenden County was the middle school Rocket Club for the club act, as well as Ellen Merrick and Maggie Collins for the specialty act.

The Rocket Club performed "Clue-Less," a skit based on the popular board game while Ellen Merrick and Maggie Collins performed "Impossible" from Cinderella.

Both acts worked very hard to prepare for the event, according to 4-H agent Bonnie Baker, and were rewarded for their efforts by winning the area contest. This is the second year in a row that both the specialty and club acts have won the area contest. Their next performance will be held at the Kentucky State Fair in August within the Cloverville section of the fair.

For more information on this event or other 4-H activities please contact the Crittenden County Extension Office at 965-5236.

Beware of flood clean-up scams

The storms that brought heavy rainfall and flooding during April have left behind a multitude of problems for homeowners, leaving consumers in need of everything from water removal to tree removal. As you begin the process of clean-up and repair, protect yourself from unethical repair people.

Robert Flashman, University of Kentucky family resource management specialist made the following recommendations.

1. Find out about the people with whom you are dealing. Are they licensed by the state? Ask for proof of liability insurance. If a company doesn't have it, you could be sued by someone getting hurt as a result of the repair work or by a neighbor if their property is damaged from construction work. Also make sure the contractor carries workers' compensation coverage in case a worker is injured on job.

2. Check unknown companies out with the Better Business Bureau (Louisville/Western Kentucky, 1-502-583-6546) or call the Consumer Protection Division at 1-888-432-9257 see if information is available about the company.

3. Have a written and signed contract before any work begins. The contract should clearly spell out all details of the work to be completed and include a beginning and ending date for the job.

4. Never pay for work before it has been completed. Do not give workers money to buy supplies unless you know them personally. If supplies are needed ahead of time, purchase them yourself; otherwise the supplier can put a lien on property if the contractor does not pay.

5. Be sure you have the physical address and phone number of the contractor. If you need to call to cancel the job, it is a good idea to follow up with a certified letter sent with a return receipt request.

Courtright's style cottage garden within a budget

BY JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN
PRESS REPORTER

It came as a shock to Mike and Debbie Courtright when volunteers from the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter asked them to participate in a June 4 garden tour. They had only been working on their garden for a little more than two years and still consider it a work in progress.

For Debbie, a home interior decorator, their little cottage and garden wasn't what she thought should be on the tour; however, to neighbors and friends, their property is one of awe with its neatly decorated yard and quaint house.

"When you think of garden tours, you think of really pretty gardens with tons of landscaping," Courtright said. "Ours isn't even close to that. We just have some plants, not a lot, and we still have a few things that we're wanting to add."

Located on a small lot across from Crittenden County Nursing and Rehabilitation, the Courtright's cozy home is immediately reminiscent of a cottage with its criss-crossed window panes and the fully landscaped, grass-free front yard. The Courtright's have been working on the yard for a little more than two years and Debbie said that the beginning of the garden was a small rose that Mike had planted years before.

"It was the only plant in the yard. Everything else was bare," she said. "So I decided to get to work and the first thing I did was start digging a hole for a pond in the front yard."

After the pond came several square feet of decorative pea gravel, plants and various other ornaments that the Courtright's have placed around the yard, some of which have been handmade by either Mike or Debbie.

"When people think of landscaping, they think they have to be rich to be able to do that," Debbie said. "They don't. All it takes is a creative mind and using things around the house that you already have. Mike made several of my flower stands and the decorative things I've either bought on sale or made from stuff I already owned."

"When it comes to budgets, Mike and I didn't have a lot so we made it work with what we could."

The Courtright's garden will be one of several featured in the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter garden tour June 4. The luncheon will be from 11a.m. - 2 p.m., at the Marion Masonic Lodge. A self-guided tour will begin at noon. Tickets can be purchased the day of the tour but need to be purchased at the luncheon prior to beginning the tour.

Homemakers receive recognition at state meeting

The Crittenden County Extension Homemakers were represented by nine members at the state meeting May 9-12 in Bowling Green. Local winners included Kim Vince, first place in the environment contest; Barbara Vaughn, third place in "There ought to be a law" contest; Judith Manley, Nancy Paris, Brandi Potter, Helen Springs and Nadine Thomas, blue ribbons in cultural arts. Members were also recognized for volunteer hours. They were Jerrell James (6,500), Sarah Ford (2,500), Darl Henley (2,000), Barbara Gillihan (1,500) and Helen Springs (1,000). The county homemaker association was recognized for exceeding 100 percent donations to ovarian cancer research at the University of Kentucky. A copy of entries in KEHA writing contests is available at the Crittenden County Public Library. Attending were (front from left) Jerrell James, Merle Myers, and Nadine Thomas; (standing) Nancy Hunt, Darl Henley, Cindy Davidson and Barbara Gillihan. Not pictured: Barbara Myers and Ann Matheny.

Emmaus News

Submitted by Mildred Long

The floods and earthquakes, plus the cold, has been so sad for homeowners all over after losing several things. Items can be donated at pick up locations all over the county to help flood victims. Items for kitchens, bathrooms and bedrooms are needed but while these are replaceable, just think about all of the collections of memories in the form of pictures and other things that are now gone. Peachie Long paid a visit to Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hodge recently. They are well and Mr. Hodge has a garden. Owen Cemetery has been mowed and is looking good. Those who have loved ones laid to rest there, please leave a love offering to show respect to the keeper, Mr. and Mrs. Hodge's son. They will see that he gets his pay. Maplevue Cemetery is beautiful as are other cemeteries during this season. Thanks to each of you who can work. Bro. Berry Dummitt recently said, as well as others, that a mistake has been reported to Ohio River Association that Bro. Berry has resigned as Emmaus Church pastor. Bro. Berry never offered his resignation to the church and action was not taken by anyone. Bro. Berry is still the pastor of Emmaus Baptist Church, Lord bless. We wish Mrs. Beatrice Patterson a happy birthday. She was born on May 23, 1916 and still keeps a beautiful home. Mrs. Clinton Riley is home and improving from surgery. Mr. J.E. Brasher is not well at this time, as well as Bro. Eugene Wyatt who pastored Emmaus church for six years and many others for most of his life - we wish them well. We would also like to congratulate the 2011 senior class of Crittenden County High School. Good luck on many new ventures in life.

Obituaries

Hatfield

James T. Hatfield, 68, of Marion died May 17, 2011 from complications of a Neurodegenerative disease.

He was a 1961 graduate of Crittenden County High School. He continued his education at Eastern Kentucky University earning a degree in chemistry and biology and further advanced his education with a degree in pharmacy from Samford University. He was a member of the Marion United Methodist Church.

Hatfield returned to Marion in 1971 and became a partner in City Drug Company. For over 20 years he managed the Crittenden Hospital pharmacy and finished his career as the manager of the Morganfield Walmart Pharmacy. During his lifetime, Hatfield served on numerous boards and committees, as well as professional and civic organizations. Most notably, he was the charter president of the Crittenden County Lions Club and spearheaded the beginning of the Crittenden County Fair, serving as fair board chairman for 28 years. Hatfield worked with several other community leaders having the vision to create the Marion-Crittenden County Park by obtaining grants and funds for the real estate and he served as park board chairman from 1978 to 1988. He served several terms on the Marion City Council starting in 1987. Hatfield also served on the board of directors for Farmers Bank and Trust Company in Marion until retirement in 2009.

Surviving are his wife of 47 years, Bonita Mattingly; two sons, J. Carl Hatfield and Jason T. Hatfield of Marion; three siblings, Linda and husband Jim McCormick of Lexington, Mary Catherine Hatfield of Cythiana, Ky., and Richard and wife Dee Anna Hatfield of Louisville; and two grandchildren, Jaxon and Hattie Hatfield of Marion.

He was preceded in death by his parents, James T. Hatfield Sr. and Alma Richardson Hatfield; and an infant brother, David.

Funeral services were at Marion United Methodist Church Friday, May 20 with

Rev. Wayne Garvey officiating. Gilbert Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements. Memorials may be made to the James and Bonita Hatfield Family Endowment for Crittenden County students to attend Madisonville Community College. Memorials should be made to Madisonville Community College with the memo: Hatfield Endowment c/o John Peters, MCC Advancement, 2000 College Drive, Madisonville, KY 42431.

Millikan

Ed Millikan, 82, of Clarkston, Mich., died Tuesday, May 17, 2011.

He was retired from General Motors and was a veteran of the U.S. Army during the Korean War. He was also a member of the American Legion.

Surviving are his daughter, Barbara and husband Robert Johnson; sons, Gary and wife Myra Millikan, Larry and wife Berylann Millikan and Randy Millikan; seven grandchildren, Lisa, Nikole, Scott, Cory, Kyle, Jordan and Josie; and a great-grandchild, Parker.

He was preceded in death by his wife, Delcie.

Funeral services were Friday, May 20 at Coats Funeral Home in Waterford, Mich.

Jacobs

Aria "Bobbi" Jacobs was born March 13, 1962, to Roy and Aria Givens. She was not only a joy to be around, but she brought joy where ever she went. She and Mike met at Carrsville Baptist Church and fell head over heels in love. They were soon married, and for several years traveled doing mission work and preaching the gospel. Ten years had passed when God blessed them with their first child, Jerusha, which Bobbi had been told she could never have. He continued blessing and gave them Jeremiah and Jonathon. Not only were they blessed with their own children, but all the nieces and nephews refer to her as "my aunt Bobbi."

She is known by traits like:

Home schooling her children, teaching them Christian characteristics and Godly principles, sharing advice and teaching others cooking skills and how to can vegetables. She was an example to everyone she came in contact with. The last couple of years, she used her own personal loss to strengthen and help others.

This lady is a very special person and she is our sister. We will always love and miss her, as will many others. She is survived by her husband of 22 years, Mike Jacobs of Marion; three beautiful children, Jerusha, 12, Jeremiah, 10, and Jonathon, 8; her mother, Arla Givens; six sisters, Sally Shuecraft of Salem, Milly (Doyce) Suits also of Salem, Pam (Steve) Novel of Normal, Ill., Donna (Allen) Baird of Ellsworth, Ill. Cherrie (Charlie) Baker of Bloomington, Ill., and Debbie (Roger) Ryburn also of Bloomington; two brothers, Billy (Tammy) Givens of Salem and Roy (Laura) Givens of Burna; and many nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by her father, Roy Givens; a brother, Buddy Wagoner; and two nephews, Joshua Baird and Jason Crutcher.

Bobbi left this old world at 2:25 p.m., on Monday, May 16, 2011 Heaven bound. Visitation was at 4 p.m., for the family and Wednesday, May 18 at 5 p.m., to 9 p.m. for the public. Her funeral was at 11 a.m., on Thursday, May 19 at Myers Funeral Home with Rev. Michael Morrow, Rev. Donnie Howton and Rev. Michael Durham officiating.

When you need a familiar, friendly face, we'll be there.

At Gilbert Funeral Home, you can expect to see a familiar face when your family is facing what can be difficult times. The Gilbert family has been serving its community for many years. Whether it be as youth sports coaches, their church or through their involvement in community organizations, Brad Gilbert and his family have always been there. And, they will be there when you need the comfort of a friend and a professional.

As part of its commitment to the community, Gilbert Funeral Home is holding firm on rising costs. A traditional funeral service starts at $5,000, which includes one night visitation, next-day funeral service, use of a hearse and flower car, a made-in-America 20-gauge steel casket, vault, memorial folders, register book, thank you cards and a copy of our memorial DVD.

If you are interested in prearranging a funeral or if you experience the loss of a loved one, please feel free to call us at any time about our services.

When do children ever stop being precious?

Her name was Lauren and she was just three weeks old when she died. Even before she was born, life was hard for her; but she and her mom struggled valiantly. After she was born, life in the real world was too much for Lauren.

There were many people at her graveside service. As I listened to the conversations, I noted how often the word precious was used, "Precious child. Precious girl. Precious baby." Indeed, she was. Despite her difficult and brief entrance into life, she was a beautiful child.

The experience happened many years ago. Something in my notes brought it back to mind recently. Thinking about it today, I asked myself – when does a child stop being precious? When does he or she move from precious to ordinary? Next Monday is Memorial Day, a day for us to remember those who died protecting our country. Friends and loved ones will decorate their graves and remember them lovingly. As we do so, let's remember that many of them, maybe even most of them were precious children – 18-, 19-, 20-year-olds. When compared with our present human lifespan, they were children, precious children.

Dr. H. Wade Paris

Any way you look at it, the cost of war is enormously regrettable; but the greatest price is paid by precious children.

Think about it, the young men and women in those graves never got to go to college, never got to marry, never established a career and never became a father or mother. In short, they never got to grow up. They died like Lauren as precious children.

There is no way to undo what was done to them. There is no adequate compensation for them, for their families, for their sacrifices. Apparently, we are unable or unwilling to stop waging wars. This carnage will likely continue. However, there is one thing we can do; we can remember and be thankful. To help us do that, our country has set aside this special day, Memorial Day. It is so named because we are asked to remember these precious children who died for us.

Remembering our brave veterans on Memorial Day

As we go visit the cemeteries this week to put flowers on the graves of our loved ones, or perhaps an American flag on a veteran's grave who served their country in times past, we might pass by a small military stone placed at the foot of a grave. A name, rank and branch of service might be all that is engraved on the stone with a birth and death date.

That is all we see, but the stone has a story. We know not the real story of what these brave young men did or the horrors they lived through in fighting for the freedom that we have today. I cannot even imagine the terrible conditions they lived in or the sacrifices they gave for their country – America.

Here is the story behind one of these silent stones. The young man was Thomas R. Perkins. He was born Feb. 2, 1921 in the Frances community. His childhood was spent in this area and on different farms in the View community of Crittenden County. He attended the White Hall and Frances schools.

In 1937, Perkins went into the Civilian Conservation Corps and served two years. After serving in the C.C.C.s, Perkins came home to Crittenden County and worked at the Lafayette mine near Frances. In 1942 Perkins was drafted into the military service and was trained to serve in the Army Air Corps. During his service he was made a Staff Sergeant.

He was sent overseas in 1943 and was stationed in England with the 8th Air Force where he was assigned to a B17 Bomber doing raids over Germany. Perkins' position on the B17 Bomber was a ball turret gunner under the belly of the plane.

On July 23, 1943, the B17 Bomber "Hell-Lena" was issued to the Bomb Squad crew that Perkins was assigned to. Just three days later on July 26, 1943, the crew had a bombing mission over Hanover, Germany. During the mission, their plane was hit and damaged so badly that it had to crash land in the North Sea. One crew member was lost, two were ejected but were later rescued, one bailed and there were two casualties. The remaining crew of the plane was rescued by the English and given a safe journey back to land.

Two days after the "Hell-Lena" was shot down on July 28, 1943, the "Flak Happy" bomber plane was issued to the crew. Fifteen days later on a bombing mission over Bochum and Gelsenkirchen, Germany on Aug. 12, 1943, the plane was shot down, shredded by German fighters with anti-aircraft guns, sending the men on board tumbling through the sky, fumbling with parachutes and praying for survival. When they landed on the ground the crew was captured by the Germans and sent to a prison camp.

Their survival now meant their hell on earth was just beginning. In this raid, four planes were shot down and 11 soldiers were killed. The rest were captured and taken as prisoners.

When Perkins and the crew of the Flak Happy were captured they were first funneled into a processing center, Dulag Luft, near Frankfurt, Germany, for interrogation. Then they were packed like cattle into filthy boxcars and shipped by rail to their new homes and lives as prisoners of war.

Perkins and the crew were taken to Stalag 17-B, one of the Nazis' most notorious and harshest prison camps. The prison camp was a series of long, single-story buildings. Each one was divided into halves shared by 150 to 240 men and sometimes many more, who also shared straw-filled, flea-ridden mattresses in triple-deck bunks.

A single stove with scant fuel (54 pounds of coal per week), wash basins into which cold water ran only a few hours each day and a single indoor latrine for use after dark (for daytime use, there were multi-hole latrines a short walk from the barracks). Because of lack of heating and an insufficient number of blankets, the men slept two to a bunk for added warmth. The thin cotton blankets issued by the Germans were described as "tablecloths" by the captives. Lighting facilities were very poor, and many light bulbs were missing at all times.

An average daily menu might contain three potatoes, one cup of soup, half a cup of weak coffee, 22 grams of bread and three grams of margarine. Although Red Cross boxes of food and supplies were issued to the prisoners, few if any, ever reached the men and if they did, there wasn't much left in the boxes to help keep them alive.

Two separate wire fences charged with electricity surrounded the area, and four watchtowers equipped with machine guns were placed at strategic points. The guards were brutal and would shoot at anything they thought suspicious.

Staff Sgt. Thomas R. Perkins survived in these conditions for 21 months. During this time his feet had become frozen in the prison camp and his health worsened. He was liberated from the camp on May 3, 1945, but because his health was so bad he had to wait two months before coming home. He was finally released on July 6, 1945. Perkins came home to the states, but he was to report back for duty in Florida about the middle of September of 1945.

While home in Kentucky, he married Bertha Rustin on Aug. 15, 1945. They went to Florida to visit Perkins' sister, Jewel, and while there he was to report back to duty. Perkins became ill shortly after they arrived in Florida with a bad throat infection that antibiotics would not cure. Perkins died on Sept. 6, 1945. His body was shipped back to Mexico, Ky., and he was buried in the Mexico Cemetery on Sept. 11, 1945 with full military honors. Perkins was also given the Air Medal during his service to his country.

Thomas Raymond Perkins' obituary read as follows from The Crittenden Press Sept. 14, 1945:

Staff Sergeant Thomas Raymond Perkins, son of George and Lottie Perkins, was born Feb. 2, 1921 and departed this life Sept. 6, 1945. Age 24 years, seven months and four days.

He was married to Bertha Rustin, Aug. 15, 1945, in the home of Rev. J. C. Asbridge, in Burna.

He leaves to mourn his going: namely his wife, Bertha; father, George Perkins of Kuttawa; two sisters, Mrs. L. H. Meiners, Vero Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Roy Hamby Fredonia; three brothers, Archie Perkins, Elgin, Ill., Lyman Perkins, Fredonia, and Staff Sergeant George W. Perkins, U. S. Army in France.

Preceding him in death are his mother, Lottie Perkins, who died Feb. 28, 1927 and Cecil Perkins, who died Nov. 1930 in Honolulu, serving our country.

Sergeant Perkins spent three years serving our country. He went overseas in the early part of 1943 and was taken prisoner on his eighth mission in a raid over Bochum Germany in the Ruhr Valley and spent 21 months as prisoner of the Germans. He was liberated May 3, 1945. He spent the last days of his traveling time in a Naval Hospital at Vero Beach, Fla., where he met his death.

Let us join in salute with those who in years gone by have given their best freely

Thomas R. Perkins' stone rests at Mexico Cemetery, but what a story of bravery and courage it has to tell.

that all which our flag represents might be kept true and secure.

A special thank you goes to Archie Perkins, brother of Staff Sgt. Thomas R.

Perkins, who shared his story and pictures with us. Archie, formerly of Crittenden County, now resides in Denver, Colo.

Outdoors & Agriculture

State will be spraying overhead for mosquitos

Area residents may notice low-flying aircraft above Crittenden County during the coming days as the Kentucky Department of Agriculture sprays insecticide to help alleviate the massive number of mosquitos that have appeared largely because of recent flooding. Water is a mosquito’s habitat. There, it lives, feeds, mates and has offspring. Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom said this county is part of a broad effort by the state to help mitigate the problem. Aircraft will be distributing insecticide over large areas of the county. “They will be spraying two miles inland from rivers. The spraying will be done at night when mosquitos are active,” said Newcom. Crittenden County has three rivers affected by flooding: the Tradewater, Cumberland and Ohio. Newcom said spraying will be done along corridors adjacent to each of the three rivers. While a schedule has not been released, Newcom said spraying could begin any day. In fact, he said, it may have already begun in some areas.

Public meeting Tuesday to discuss Asian carp

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will host a public meeting at 7 p.m., Tuesday at the Kentucky Dam Village Convention Center in Gilbertsville to discuss ways to combat the growing Asian carp problem in Kentucky. Employees of the department’s Fisheries Division will present a variety of information about Asian carp, including the biology and history of these species. Employees will also discuss ongoing management plans and Kentucky Fish and Wildlife’s efforts to bring federal attention to the Asian carp invasion in Kentucky and other states in the lower Mississippi River basin. Asian carp are a highly invasive species that can outcompete native fish species for food. To date, commercial fishermen and potential markets offer the most promise for removing large quantities of Asian carp in Kentucky and Barkley lakes, and the tributaries inhabited by these fish. Two species of Asian carp – the bighead carp and the silver carp – have infiltrated large areas of the state from the Ohio and Mississippi rivers.

FSA extends signup period for ACRE certification

Kentucky USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) State Executive Director SED John McCauley has announced that the 2010 Average Crop Revenue Election (ACRE) production certification deadline has been extended to Sept. 1. This new deadline has not been extended for Agricultural producers to participate in FSA's Direct and Counter Cyclical Program or the Average Crop Revenue Election Program during the 2011 crop year. Applications must be submitted by June 1 to be eligible for the 2011 program. Producers who participate in the ACRE program receive revenue-based payments as an alternative to receiving price-based counter-cyclical (CC) payments. "The original July 15, 2011, deadline was extended to Sept. 1, 2011, due to the large workload that many county offices are experiencing," said SED McCauley. "The extension applies to reporting the farm benchmark yields for 2005 through 2009 and the actual farm yield for 2010," he said. Because of the extended deadline, FSA county offices will not be authorized to use a late-file register, meaning no ACRE production certifications will be accepted beyond Sept. 1. For questions regarding ACRE certification, please contact your local FSA county office at 988-2180.

County committee nominations open July 15

Farmers, ranchers and other agricultural producers have until Aug. 1, to nominate eligible candidates to serve on local Farm Service Agency county committees, announced John McCauley, State Executive Director, of the USDA’s Farm Service Agency (FSA). “County committees play a vital role in the administration of federal farm programs and the positive effect they have on rural communities,” said McCauley. FSA county committees make decisions on commodity price support loans, conservation programs, disaster programs, employing county executive directors and other significant agricultural issues. To hold office as a county committee member, a person must participate or cooperate in a program administered by FSA, be eligible to vote in a county committee election and reside in the local administrative area (LAA) in which the person is a candidate. A complete list of eligibility requirements is posted online at www.fsa.usda.gov/Internet/FSA_File/fsa_ccelections_2011.pdf. Individuals may nominate themselves or others as candidates. All nomination forms for the 2011 election must be postmarked or received in the local USDA Service Center by close of business on Aug. 1. The county committee nomination period begins June 15. Voting takes place in the fall. Ballots will be mailed to eligible voters by Nov. 4. The final day to return voted ballots to the local USDA Service Center is Dec. 5. Newly elected county committee members take office Jan. 2. For more information about FSA county committees, call 988-2180.

Trail Day Celebration

Nature Conservancy planning guided event at Mantle Rock

In celebration of National Trails Day, The Nature Conservancy of Kentucky, along with its partner, the American Hiking Society, will offer a guided hike at the Mantle Rock Nature Preserve from 10 a.m., until 12:30 p.m., Saturday, June 4.

Conservancy staff will lead participants along the route retracing the historic Trail of Tears.

Hikers will encounter rock houses, sandstone cliffs, glades, grasslands and forests.

Mantle Rock is a certified site on the Trail of Tears National Historic Trail, which is administered by the National Park Service. Members of the Cherokee Nation passed this way on their forced march from the east to Oklahoma during the winter of 1838-1839.

The Nature Conservancy will provide bottled water. Hikers should bring snacks if desired. The hike will proceed except in the case of severe weather.

Make reservations by phone or email to allow for appropriate planning. The hike is moderate in nature and will follow a three-mile established trail. The hike is open to all ages.

Mantle Rock is located just off Ky. 133 two miles past Joy. On the south side of the highway is a large sign and gravel road marking the entrance to the parking lot.

The Mantle Rock Nature Preserve is open daily from dawn to dark and well-marked hiking trails are open to people of all ages. Activities such as rock climbing, camping, horseback riding, mountain biking and all-terrain vehicles are strictly prohibited.

The Nature Conservancy of Kentucky has a number of preserves across Kentucky in addition to the Mantle Rock Nature Preserve. The Nature Conservancy protects areas of unique biodiversity including both flora and fauna. Learn more about

Farmers markets can now be found online

Many Kentuckians enjoy visiting a farmer's market to purchase home-grown products that are raised on local farms, but not everyone knows where to find one. As part of its Certified Roadside Farm Market program, Kentucky Farm Bureau (KFB) hopes to fill that void and connect consumers with nearby markets through the launch of a new web-based application. This online tool, found at kyfb.com/roadside, allows users to enter either a zip code or a county name and search for the roadside markets nearest to that location. “We are very excited to launch our new search feature on the website,” said Kara Keeton, KFB’s director of commodity marketing. “Our main goal in the Kentucky Farm Bureau Certified Roadside Farm Bureau program is to promote our wonderful farm market members to consumers across the state. Adding the ability to search for a market by location is yet another tool we can use to advertise the markets while also helping consumers easily find quality, farm-fresh products.”

LHHS completes trauma verification process

Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services at Salem has met the state's proposed Level IV Trauma Center criteria and is ready for designation as a Level IV Trauma Center, which should come as soon as regulations are finalized.

Kentucky's Trauma Advisory Committee recently met to review the findings of the Verification Site Team visit. According to a Livingston Hospital press release, the committee recommended to the Commissioner of Health that the facility be verified as meeting Level IV Trauma Center criteria.

"This achievement recognizes Livingston Hospital's dedication to providing optimal care for injured patients," the news release said.

Livingston Hospital is the first hospital in western Kentucky to become a Level IV Trauma Center and second in the State of Kentucky, according to the news release. Kentucky Trauma Advisory verifications are the standards for trauma program verifications, making Livingston Hospital the only verified trauma center west of Louisville.

Established by the American College of Surgeons in 1987, the COT's Consultation/Verification Program for hospitals promotes the development of trauma centers in which participants provide not only the hospital resources necessary for trauma care, but also the entire spectrum of care to address the needs of all injured patients. This spectrum encompasses the pre-hospital phase through the rehabilitation process, the hospital's release said.

Verified trauma centers must meet the essential criteria that ensure trauma care capability and institutional performance, as outlined by the Kentucky Trauma Advisory Committee on Trauma in its current Kentucky State Trauma Care manual.

The Trauma Advisory Committee on trauma's verification programs does not designate trauma centers. Rather, the program provides confirmation that a trauma center has demonstrated its commitment to providing the highest quality trauma care for all injured patients. The actual establishment and the designation of trauma centers is the function of local, regional or state healthcare systems agencies, such as the local emergency medical services (EMS) authority.

There are four separate categories of verification in the COT's program. Each category has specific criteria that must be met by a facility seeking that level of verification. Each hospital has an on-site review by a team of experienced site reviewers, who use the current resources for the Optimal Care of the Injured Patient manual as a guideline in conducting the survey.

FEMA Flood Updates & Information

Kentucky receives $1.1 million to help cope with disaster

Less than one week after being designated for Individual Assistance, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has approved more than $1.1 million in disaster assistance for affected homeowners, renters and businesses in the Commonwealth.

"We have worked hard since the April storms and flooding hit to make sure our communities and families got all the help they need to recover from this disaster. I'm pleased that FEMA has worked alongside our local emergency management teams to assess damages to private property quickly. We'll continue to do everything we can to get our families back on their feet," said Kentucky Gov. Steve Beshear.

The funds are for residents of 11 Kentucky counties – including Crittenden and Livingston – designated for FEMA Individual Assistance on May 19. This financial assistance is intended to help impacted individuals with housing needs, including funds for temporary housing, home repair and uninsured personal property losses. To date, 379 Kentucky residents have registered for federal disaster assistance.

"These funds are just the beginning of the federal recovery effort in Kentucky," said Steve Ward, federal coordinating officer. "FEMA continues to rapidly approve assistance to affected residents so they can begin the process of rebuilding."

Federal assistance for homeowners, renters and businesses of all sizes is available in the following counties: Boyd, Crittenden, Graves, Hardin, Hickman, Jefferson, Marshall, McCracken, Livingston, Union and Webster.

More counties will get public assistance

Eleven additional Kentucky counties have been added to the federal disaster declaration made on May 4. The counties of Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Edmonson, Elliott, Graves, Logan, Lyon, Monroe, Todd and Trigg are now eligible for federal Public Assistance funds to remove debris and help rebuild infrastructure and other public facilities damaged during the severe storms, tornadoes and flooding. In addition, Fulton and Union counties are now eligible for assistance for emergency work and repair or replacement of disaster-damaged facilities.

In total, 55 Kentucky counties are eligible for FEMA Public Assistance.

"These additional counties have been added as a result of the damage assessments FEMA, KYEM and local partners are continuing to conduct in the Commonwealth," said Federal Coordinating Officer Steve Ward. Director of Kentucky Emergency management, John Heltzel, commented, "We appreciate the hard work that has gone into getting these additional counties added and we will continue to seek assistance to all who are determined eligible."

FEMA Public Assistance is available to governments and

RIVER UNDER 35 FEET TUESDAY; FLOOD STAGE IS 33 FEET Ohio may rise slightly next week

Most of the county is back to normal following the second worst flood on record although some victims continue to struggle to put their homes and lives back together. All roads and highways should be open by today. As of Tuesday, only Cool Springs remained closed.

According to hydrologist forecasts, the Ohio River will go back up to around 36 feet next week before dropping back below flood stage of 33 feet, as observed at Shawneetown, Ill.

certain private nonprofit agencies in the following Kentucky counties: Anderson, Bath, Boone, Boyd, Bracken, Butler, Caldwell, Calloway, Campbell, Carroll, Carter, Clay, Edmonson, Elliott, Estill, Fleming, Franklin, Fulton, Gallatin, Grant, Graves, Green, Greenup, Harlan, Henry, Kenton, Lawrence, Lee, Lewis, Logan, Lyon, Mason, Mercer, Monroe, Morgan, Nicholas, Oldham, Owen, Owsley, Pendleton, Robertson, Spencer, Todd, Trigg, Trimble, Union, Washington.

FEMA Public Assistance funds are also available to Ballard, Carlisle, Crittenden, Daviess, Henderson, Hickman, Livingston and McCracken counties for emergency protective measures, limited to direct federal assistance under the Public Assistance program.

Under FEMA's Public Assistance program, FEMA funds at least 75 percent of the cost of eligible work by governments and certain private nonprofits. In addition, federal funding is available on a cost-sharing basis for hazard mitigation efforts in all counties in the Commonwealth.

Here's how to apply for individual help from federal funds

Homeowners, renters and businesses in Crittenden and Livingston counties who suffered damages in the severe storms, tornadoes and flooding can now begin the process of applying for federal and Commonwealth disaster assistance by phone or online. Federal assistance is available to affected individuals in Boyd, Crittenden, Graves, Hardin, Hickman, Jefferson, Marshall, McCracken, Livingston, Union and Webster counties.

To apply by phone, the number is toll-free 800-621-FEMA (3362) or TTY 800-462-7585 for callers with speech or hearing impairments. To register online, go to www.DisasterAssistance.gov, or via smartphone at m.fema.gov. The toll-free numbers are available seven days a week, 7 a.m. to 10 p.m., until further notice.

"Flood survivors don't have to wait for an insurance inspection to begin the registration process; they should apply as soon as possible," said Federal Coordinating Officer Steve Ward. "We will begin immediately working with people who have losses and we will continue to coordinate with the Commonwealth to expedite recovery efforts."

Whether you go online or talk with a teleregistration representative from the Federal Emergency Management Agency, have the following information ready:

- Name and Social Security number
- Address of the damaged property
- Current address and telephone number

- Insurance information
- Total household annual income
- Bank account information for direct deposit
- Description of your damages

FEMA's Individual Assistance program can help eligible applicants with temporary housing assistance, uninsured personal property losses and medical, dental and funeral expenses caused by the disaster, along with other disaster-related expenses and serious needs. Low-interest disaster loans from the U.S. Small Business Administration also will be available to cover residential and business losses not covered by insurance.

Joint damage assessments continue in other counties and additional counties may be added for Individual Assistance. Residents that suffered storm and flood related damage are encouraged to document and photograph the damage and keep any repair receipts. Report any damage to Greg Rushing, emergency management director.

FEMA reps will be contacting victims

To help individuals affected by the severe storms, tornadoes and flooding from April 22 to May 20, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has teams in the designated counties meeting with disaster survivors to tell them about the types of assistance that may be available to help with their recovery.

FEMA has more than 20 Community Relations specialists on the ground in 11 Kentucky counties, including Crittenden and Livingston. These specialists are wearing the familiar blue FEMA shirt, and going door-to-door in affected communities. Their goal is to reach out to as many disaster survivors as possible, providing information about available federal assistance.

"Our Community Relations specialists are working on the front lines, meeting face-to-face with disaster survivors and explaining the FEMA aid process," said Federal Coordinating Officer Steve Ward.

Dealing with mold is common after flood

After a flood, as residents return home, recovery experts from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) want Kentuckians to be on the lookout for mold, which can cause serious health concerns if not cleaned up properly. Water-damaged rooms are ideal for mold to flourish. Cleaning mold quickly and completely is essential for a healthy home, especially for people suffering from allergies and asthma.

When cleaning up mold, residents should protect themselves by wearing protective gloves and a mask, ventilating the area and applying disinfectants to already cleaned surfaces. Clean wet places immediately using these tips:

- Identify the sources of moisture and correct it. Mold cannot grow without moisture.
- Discard any porous materials that already have mold on it, including carpet, drywall, insulation and ceiling tiles.
- Thoroughly clean any non-porous materials like glass, metal and ceramic, with a 10 percent solution of household bleach and water (approximately 1 ¼ cups of bleach per gallon of water). Wash down walls, floors and other contaminated areas.
- When using bleach, be sure that the area is well ventilated. Never mix bleach and ammonia cleaning products.
- Remove damaged wall-board at least two feet above the water line.
- Change heating and air-conditioning filters and have duct work inspected by a professional.

• For highly contaminated areas, or for individuals allergic to mold, hire a professional to do the cleanup as disturbing the mold during cleanup can increase exposure.

• After cleanup, monitor the area for any new mold growth and signs of moisture.

Mold growth is a common occurrence in flood-damaged homes and damp environments. Mold could become a problem in your home if there is enough moisture available to allow mold to thrive and multiply. Dampness in basements, walls, carpets, and wood provides an environment for mold to flourish.

Mold is made up of simple microscopic organisms that are found virtually everywhere. It can often be seen in the form of discoloration, ranging from white to orange and from green to brown and black, and gives off a musty or earthy smell.

Additional information about mold is available at the Kentucky Cabinet for Health and Family Services website or the Centers for Disease Control.

Ferry running again after about 1 month

After being closed for more than a month due to near-record floodwaters on the Ohio River, the Cave-In-Rock Ferry resumed service at about 2:30 p.m., last Thursday.

The ferry was forced to halt operations about 7 p.m., on April 17 when the Shawneetown gauge showed a reading of about 41 feet, putting floodwaters over the Kentucky Landing at the end of Ky. 91 North.

The ferry operator indicated this was the longest period the ferry has been closed by floodwaters in recent memory. It normally operates from 6 a.m., to 9:40 p.m., daily.

recognition during Friday's high school graduation ceremonies. The three posthumous recipients will also be acknowledged during commencement ceremonies.

"I'm extremely honored to be in the first class," said Winters, who added that being in such rare company is important to him.

Winters graduated from Crittenden County High School in 1953 but spent his freshman year at Frances High School before consolidation brought all of the county schools under one roof. He started his post-secondary education at Murray State, earning a bachelor's of science degree. He then went on to receive a master's of science at Indiana University and an Ed.D at the University of Northern Colorado.

His Crittenden County Schools Distinguished Alumni Award won't be the first such honor. He holds similar recognition from both Murray State and Northern Colorado.

"There are not too many things in your life as special as being honored by your alma mater," Winters said. "I'm elated."

While at Murray State, Winters designed and implemented new academic programs and helped secure funding for the new Industry and Technology Building there. But perhaps his most notable accomplishments came during his 11 years as president of Campbellsville, where he started in 1988. While there, he took the school to a master's level institution, implemented many new graduate and undergraduate programs, oversaw numerous capital projects and more than doubled enrollment.

"He took that school from a little Podunk four-year school in the mountains to university status," said Gordon Guess of Marion, a friend since their military days together helping to reopen a military base at Fort Chaffee, Ark., a half-century ago.

Last year, Winters, who will turn 77 next month, was given the Campbellsville University Leadership Award in recognition of his work at the university.

"I'm very happy about that little 11-year interlude," Winters said.

Professional merits aside, Guess added that Winters is "easy to talk to and one of the easiest guys to meet."

Winters was raised in the tiny community of Crayne in the midst of The Great Depression. But despite the tough times and getting his elementary education in a tiny two-room schoolhouse where Mexico Baptist Church now stands, Winters said he feels those experiences never stood in the way of his future.

"I turned out OK, I guess," he said.

And even in education today, it's not the size of the school that matters.

"Anything is possible, but there's a demand on you to make it happen. You have to define objectives and goals and establish a work ethic to make it happen," he said. "And keep in mind where you came from."

Winters believes each individual is ultimately responsible for his own destiny, but having a strong relationship with faculty and mentors along the way certainly didn't hurt his cause.

"Once they said, 'Gosh you're doing a good job,' I tried doubly hard to do a good job," he said. "Encouragement. We all thrive on a feeling of accomplishment."

Growing up in Crayne, Winters had designs on becoming an architect, construction manager or something in the building industry where his father had made a modest living in residential and light commercial construction. Though neither his dad nor mom, a housewife, had gone beyond high school, both encouraged their son to continue his education and become the first in the family to graduate college.

"We talked about it," he said. "There was never any question."

Becoming an educator was not on his mind at the time or even after his first few years of college. He toyed with the idea of working with Bell Telephone but ended up spending three years helping a couple start up a building supply company. It was a strong faith that guides him still today that played a big part in his eventual career choice.

"We sometimes sense being led in a certain direction from powers greater than we are," he said.

Since making the decision to become an educator, Winters has never looked back. In fact, "Winters" and "education" are virtually inseparable terms, even today in the Kentucky General Assembly where he serves as chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

"He has become the last word in education," Guess, a GOP politico, said of his fellow Republican. "No education bill gets by unless he blesses it."

In fact, it was the hint of this leadership position on the education committee that lured Winters to Frankfort. Not particularly inclined to enter politics, it took some persuading.

"Shirley (his wife) and I talked about it and prayed about it," he said. "Then I figured if I'm making kids' lives better, why not do this."

So, in 2004, Winters entered the race for 1st District Senator and won in his first-ever bid for public office. He was then re-elected in 2008 to represent Murray and the seven counties of his district. But as education chair, he feels a responsibility to not just those, but all of the counties in the commonwealth.

"Whether Crittenden or Calloway or all 120 counties, our future in Kentucky depends upon us providing the best possible education to our young people," he said. "Our state's economy will never prosper without it. It's in our best interest."

Even his counterparts in the often rancorous state Senate turn to Winters with matters of education.

"He's well respected on both sides of the aisle, certainly" said Democratic Sen. Dorsey Ridley of Henderson, a friend and contemporary since Winters entered the chamber in 2005.

The Crittenden County native is one of only two senators with a doctorate degree, and of the 138 lawmakers in Frankfort, he is one of just four with both a doctorate and military experience.

Now more than halfway through his second term, politics has become a second career, but education is still his passion. That is evident in the legislation he introduces each session in an attempt to improve education in Kentucky.

"I enjoy very much trying to put in place laws or directives that make life for our young people in school better."

But laws made in Frankfort don't translate to success without the role of educators, which Winters admits is far tougher today than when he first stepped behind the desk of that high school classroom in Henderson so many years ago.

"The world is so complex now. And we have also so many young people who are in single-parent homes and from various difficult situations, it makes our work as educators more important to identify areas where help is needed," he cautions. "We have to stay on top of that ourselves."

And Winters' message to share with this year's and future graduates would be to remind them that the most important key to achievement comes from within.

"I certainly feel good about what Crittenden County does for its students. It doesn't matter where you come from – the largest school in Louisville or Crittenden County – a whole lot of your future and successes depends on you. It takes drive and work ethic."

Posthumous Selections

Distinguished Alumni

Ollie M. James served as a page in the Kentucky General Assembly, studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1891. The following year he was elected to the first of four terms to the U.S. House of Representatives, serving until he gave up the seat in 1913, to run for the Senate. He won the Senate seat and served as chairman of the Senate Committee on Patents. He died in 1918 and was at the time considered one of the most powerful men in politics and a potential presidential candidate. James was also the chairman of the Democratic National Conventions of 1912 and 1916.

Forrest Carlisle Pogue Jr. was an official United States Army historian during World War II. He was a Master Sergeant and was present at the invasion of Normandy. He wrote many books about the war, including Gen. George C. Marshall's authorized biography. Pogue was a proponent of oral history techniques, and was honored with worldwide recognition for those endeavors. Pogue was mentor to another historian and author, Stephen Ambrose. The research library at Murray State is named in his honor.

F. Julius Fohs moved to Marion in 1890 after being born in New York. He graduated from Marion High School. Fohs managed fluorspar mining operations in the county and served as assistant state geologist for Kentucky from 1905 to 1912. He received an honorary doctorate degree from the Israel Institute of Technology for his assistance in the development of mineral resources. He donated a building to Marion that is now on the National Registry of Historic Places. The building has been used as a school and civic center.

wardsville School of Pharmacy. He has been a professor, chairman of his department, won numerous teaching honors and also earned the Lifetime Research Achievement Award at Louisiana-Monroe. His research vita is filled with 66 scientific lectures and presentations, 38 published scientific manuscripts on drug design and discovery. Also, he was a consultant to Novo Nordisk, a Danish pharmaceutical company that has funded much of his research.

Although his mother and father had no formal education beyond high school, they were well read and encouraged Crider and his three siblings to further their education. All went to college.

His mother grew up in Tolu and rode a horse eight miles one way to school. His father grew up in the city and graduated from Marion High.

Crider says he's always been proud of his Crittenden County roots.

"I wouldn't trade where I grew up or the conditions for anything. By today's standards, it was sort of hard times, but those experiences are what define you," he said. "How and where I grew up helped establish fundamental principles and I really treasure that experience."

Crider saved money from his boyhood jobs like the paper route, cutting grass and working at the local drug store. In college, he worked summer jobs to pay for his education, with the exception of a default on one small loan.

"My last semester I borrowed $300 from dad, which I never did pay back," he admits.

After graduating from Crittenden County High School in 1966, Crider went to Murray State. There, he earned an undergraduate degree in chemistry and biology. In 1975, he completed a Ph.D. in pharmaceutical chemistry at the University of Kentucky. Some post-graduate studies were done at Purdue where he first started manipulating naturally occurring compounds to fight diseases. Throughout this career, Crider's research has focused on the discovery of novel compounds with potential therapeutic effects in the central nervous system.

In the beginning, he and colleagues worked on using organic chemistry to make new molecules, in some instances those that mimic the naturally oculinid compounds in the human body. The first patent to which his name is attached came through the development of a molecule that mimics somatostatin, something bodies produce naturally. The following patents were from applications of that molecule for the treatment of eye disease.

Crider turns the table a bit by praising the local school system for its effort to recognize personal achievement.

"The fact that the community and school is doing this says a whole lot. It's important to do things like this and I really appreciate it. It's pretty amazing," he said.

The lessons learned growing up in Marion have all been near memories the past few days as Crider humbly reflects on a career that has put him into the hall of distinguished alumni.

He will keep on teaching as long as his health holds and his passion for the classroom continues. Research and classroom instruction keeps his mind sharp. Riding a bicycle like he did almost 50 years ago delivering newspapers around Marion, keeps his body fit.

"I went on a 12-mile ride yesterday," he said.

Those bike rides provide a metaphor to the career journey on which he continues. They are robust workouts that provide personal vigor, inspire motivation, strength and personal achievement.

Defense launches Rockets into 5th final

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

Behind the superb pitching performance of freshman starting ace Travis Gilbert and great defense, the Rockets ensured their fourth straight appearance in the Fifth District championship game with a thrilling 3-2 win over archrival Livingston Central Tuesday at Smithland.

The Rockets were facing Livingston Central starting hurler Dallas Love, who two weeks ago in Marion was in command the entire way en route to a three-hit shutout over Crittenden County.

But Tuesday was the complete opposite. Love allowed three hits and a pair of walks and was lifted after facing only five Crittenden batters in the opening frame. After falling behind in the count, Rocket leadoff hitter Bryce Willis coaxed a walk out of Love. Gilbert laced a hard-hit single to right field and scored on an RBI-single by junior Wes Evers. A bases loaded walk to Brian Berry plated Gilbert for a quick 2-0 lead.

Evers scored on a wild pitch and Love was removed and replaced by reliever Keegan Gillette with his team already facing a three-run deficit.

Gillette was effective, surrendering just four more Crittenden hits the rest of the way and keeping them scoreless after the first.

The Cardinals started to claw back in it during the top of the second, loading the bases with no outs on two hits and a walk. A sacrifice fly scored Cardinal third baseman Lincoln Mitchell, making it 3-1.

But after a two-out walk in that frame, Gilbert retired five consecutive Livingston batters.

After a Rocket leadoff double by right fielder Taylor Champion in the bottom of the second, number nine hitter Landon Young advanced him to third on a nice sacrifice bunt to the pitcher. Two-out walks to Gilbert and Evers loaded the bases, giving Crittenden (6-20) a golden opportunity to extend its lead.

But Gillette got Rocket cleanup hitter Zac Knight to fly out to right field, stranding the bases loaded.

Missed offensive opportunities hurt Livingston's cause as it stranded four runners from the second through the fourth innings, which could have given the red-birds a lead.

A two-out RBI-double in the fourth from Cards left fielder Steven Moore scored Love, making things even tighter at 3-2.

But after that double, Gilbert went on another impressive streak, mowing down nine straight Cardinal batters and getting plenty of good defense behind him.

With two outs in the sixth and no margin for error, Champion made a great catch in right field off of the bat of Love, which appeared to be trouble when it left his bat.

For an encore, Champion also made a great catch for the first out in the top of the seventh as the Rocket defense played its sharpest game of the season.

Defense continued to be the calling card with two outs and the potential go-ahead run at the plate. Livingston leadoff man Cody Gilbert hit a ball that headed for shallow right field. But second baseman Young extended all the way out for the ball coming up with the catch and sealing the win.

The victory propels Crittenden into next week's Second Region Tournament at Christian County. The draw will be later this week.

An excited Crittenden coach Nathan McDowell heaped praise on the entire team for coming to play in the opening-round win.

"We're the defending Fifth District champion until somebody beats us," he said, referring to the program capturing three straight tourney crowns.

Late Lyon comeback knocks out Rocket girls

Lady Rocket hurler Emily Owens fires a pitch.

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

The Lady Rockets' inability to shut the door late in the game cost them dearly Monday night at Smithland in the opening round of the Fifth District Tournament. Lyon County mounted a comeback and shot through the opening to stun CCHS 9-8.

Things started off well for the Lady Rockets as leadoff hitter Shannah Williams reached in the first when the Lady Lyon first baseman bobbled a throw. After advancing to second on a wild pitch and stealing third, she scored on a passed ball.

Staked to the early lead, Crittenden hurler Emily Owen retired the first seven Lady Lyon batters.

A one-out walk in the third gave Lyon its first baserunner. Then with two outs, Hope Bridges ripped an RBI-triple to right field. She scored on an error on the relay throw to the infield, giving Lyon a 2-1 edge.

Lady Rocket shortstop Kayla McDonald smashed a leadoff triple in the fourth inning, bringing the go-ahead run to the dish. But the Lady Lyons stranded her and Talaney Werne, who had reached on a two-out walk.

In the fifth, Taylor Keister reached on a lead-off walk and later scored on an RBI-triple by Williams. Williams scored on a wild pitch, giving her team a 3-2 lead.

Crittenden left fielder McKenzie Hewitt singled followed by walks to Owen and McDonald, loading the bases with no outs. Jenna Odom and Jessica Tinsley followed with RBI-singles, giving the Lady Rockets a 6-2 lead and real hopes of making a second straight trip to the Second Region Tournament.

But Lyon used three walks, two hits and a hit batsman in the sixth to score three times, making it 6-5. Lady Rocket coach Brystyn Prowell turned to reliever Hayley Young in the sixth to keep the game intact for a time. Odom made a great catch in center field keeping her team in front heading into the final frame.

The Marion Bobcats 8-under baseball team took second place in the annual Kentucky Lake Spring Bash recently at Mike Miller Park in Benton. Both it and the 10-under Bobcats (pictured at right) have qualified for the League World Series in Murfreesboro, Tenn., July 19-24. The teams will be hosting several fundraisers in the coming weeks to defray expenses for going to the World Series. The first fundraiser will be Friday at Conrad's parking lot where ribeye sandwiches will be sold 11 a.m., to 6 p.m., and players will be sacking groceries for donations in the afternoon. Pictured above are (front from left) Gavin Hunt, Tyler Boone, and Tanner Beverly, (back) Gunner Bingham, Daley DeBoe, Tate Roberts, Trace Adams, Gabe Mott, Braxton Winders, Caden McCalister and Ian Ellington. Rockets lose 9 straight to end regular season

PRESS SPORTS WRITER

An ugly five-run fifth inning haunted the Rockets Saturday in their home finale at Gordon Blue Guess Field. Paducah Tilghman won the game 8-4, extending Crittenden's losing streak to nine games.

After falling behind 2-0 in the top of the first, Crittenden starting hurler Brian Berry settled down to retire five in a row over one stretch.

After a two-out error in the third, the starting Tornado hurler also got in a groove, retiring seven Crittenden batters.

Leading 3-0 entering the fifth, the Blue Tornado took advantage of a pair of Rocket errors, four hits and a walk to extend the margin to a comfortable 8-0 lead.

In the sixth inning, pinch-runner Colby Watson came across to score making it 8-1. One batter later, Berry recorded an RBI-single scoring Rocket center fielder and recent transfer Wes Evers making it 8-2.

Evers relieved Berry on the hill in the top of the seventh and kept the visitors off of the board in that frame, giving his team a chance for a possible comeback.

In the bottom of the seventh, Zac Knight and Colin Belt started off with consecutive singles. After making it 8-4, Evers had a golden opportunity to get his team even closer coming to bat with two on and two out. But the Tornado hurler was able to induce a game ending fly ball out to right field.

Despite coming up short, the Rockets put up much more of a fight than in the first meeting with Tilghman, which was an 11-1 loss last month.

"We can't wait until the sixth or seventh inning to get the bats going," Rocket skipper Nathan McDowell said after the regular season finale.

Madisonville rallies for 18

A horrendous 12-run third inning Friday at Madisonville erased any chance of an upset as the Rockets fell 18-2.

Trailing 1-0 entering the top of the third, leadoff hitter Bryce Willis had a ringing double to right-center field. Two batters later, Evers who reached safely in all three plate appearances, had a hard-hit RBI-single, knotting the contest at one.

But the Maroons sent 17 men to the plate in the home half of the frame, taking a 13-1 lead and removing all suspense from the game.

After Willis retired the leadoff batter in the third, eight Maroon batters came to the dish before the second out was recorded. As if that wasn't rough enough, seven more came to bat before the inning mercifully came to an end.

Madisonville has tallied 237 runs through 26 games this year. That's the third most in the Second Region.

"We can't extend our pitcher and ask him to get six outs an inning," said the Rocket coach.

The road proved to be a rough venue for Crittenden this season as the club went 1-12 in away games.

UHA nips Rockets

Last Thursday was Senior Night for the Rockets. Unfortunately, visiting University Heights ruined it for the home team, upending CCHS 4-2 in a rainout makeup game.

After Berry and Brenden Phillips reached safely on consecutive singles to begin the second, it appeared they might waste those scoring chances as the next two batters were retired. But senior right fielder Alex Kirby made sure that wouldn't happen, connecting for an RBI-single scoring Berry. One batter later, Colin Belt, who went 2-for-3, plated Phillips with another single as the hosts took a 2-0 lead.

But the lead did not last long as a walk, error and double in the Blazer third allowed them to knot the game at two.

After a pair of walks, one error and a single in the fifth, the visitors broke the deadlock, making it 4-2 as UHA completed a sweep of the Rockets.

Trailing by the same score in the bottom of the seventh, Willis and Gilbert struck out and it appeared as they would go quietly. However, Evers reached on a hit batsman, Berry singled and Phillips was also hit by a pitch to load the bases with the potential game-winning run.

Rocket DH Zac Knight came to the plate and after battling hard, he hit a sharp grounder to the Blazer shortstop who got the force at second.

"We were a base hit away. I'm proud of the way we batted," Coach McDowell said after the setback.

Although suffering through a tough season, he commended his seniors for showing leadership to his young team.

Kind of Creepy

The 13-year cicada is back in western Kentucky. Their noisy and bizarre insect ritual is playing out for the first time since 1998 as billions of red-eyed creatures, sometimes called the Great Southern Brood by scientists, have emerged to mate and quickly die. This photo was taken by local naturalist Melissa H. Tabor. It shows a cicada and an abandoned shell.

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY RECOVERY BY ENVIRONMENTAL SURCHARGE OF
KENTUCKY UTILITIES COMPANY'S 2011 ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE PLAN
PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on June 1, 2011, Kentucky Utilities Company ("KU") will file with the Kentucky Public Service Commission ("Commission") in Case No. 2011-00161, an Application pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statute 278.183 for approval of an amended compliance plan ("KU's 2011 Environmental Compliance Plan") for the purpose of recovering the capital costs and operation and maintenance costs associated with new pollution control facilities through an increase in the environmental surcharge on customers' bills beginning January 31, 2012 under KU's existing Electric Rate Schedule ECR, also known as the environmental cost recovery surcharge.
Federal, state, and local environmental regulations require KU to build and upgrade equipment and facilities to operate in an environmentally sound manner. Specifically, KU is seeking Commission approval of Certificates of Public Convenience and Necessity ("CPCN") to construct new Particulate Matter Control Systems to serve all units at the Ghent Generating Station in Ghent, Kentucky, and to serve all units at the E.W. Brown Generating Station in Burgin, Kentucky, to comply with the national emissions standards for hazardous air pollutants proposed by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency ("EPA"). The Particulate Matter Control Systems are also being installed to comply with EPA-imposed sulfuric acid mist and opacity requirements. Additionally, KU is seeking recovery of costs associated with these environmental projects, which are necessary for compliance with the federal Clean Air Act, the federal Resource Conservation and Recovery Act, and other current or proposed environmental laws and regulations, and enforcement actions. These additional projects primarily relate to installing Particulate Matter Control Systems to serve all units at the Ghent Generating Station, installing Particulate Matter Control Systems to serve all units at the E.W. Brown Generating Station, converting the main coal combustion residuals treatment basin at the E.W. Brown Generating Station to a landfill and other pollution control facilities. The capital cost of the new pollution control facilities for which KU is seeking recovery at this time is estimated to be $1.1 billion. Additional operation and maintenance expenses will be incurred for these projects and are costs that KU is requesting to recover through the environmental surcharge in its application.
The impact on KU's customers is estimated to be a 1.5% increase in 2012 with a maximum increase of 12.2% in 2016. For a KU residential customer using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month, the initial monthly increase is expected to be $1.13 during 2012, with the maximum monthly increase expected to be $9.46 during 2016.
The Environmental Surcharge Application described in this Notice is proposed by KU. However, the Public Service Commission may issue an order modifying or denying KU's Environmental Surcharge Application. Such action may result in an environmental surcharge for consumers other than the environmental surcharge described in this Notice.
Any corporation, association, body politic or person may, by motion within thirty (30) days after publication, request leave to intervene in Case No. 2011-00161. That motion shall be submitted to the Public Service Commission, 211 Sower Blvd., P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40602, and shall set forth the grounds for the request including the status and interest of the party. Intervenor may obtain copies of the Application and testimony by contacting Kentucky Utilities Company at 220 West Main Street, Louisville, Kentucky, 40202, Attention: Lonnie E. Bellar, Vice President, State Regulation and Rates. A copy of the Application and testimony will be available for public inspection on KU's website (<http://www.kje-ku.com>) and at KU's offices where bills are paid after June 1, 2011.

Cook Chamber Person of Year

Redd is group’s top volunteer;
other awards are presented

STAFF REPORT

Community spirit and volunteerism were recognized with the presentation of several awards last Thursday night during the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce's annual banquet.

Youth was a common thread throughout the evening, reflected in the emergence of nine new Chamber members in 2011 under the tutelage of outgoing president Corey Payne. Payne's leadership during the re-branding of Heritage Days into the Pumpkin Festival was praised by Executive Director Susan Alexander, as well as Payne's successor, Bob Briley.

Longtime community leader Chris Cook earned the organization's most prestigious award, Person of the Year.

In accepting the award, Cook expressed a love for the community he serves as a volunteer and as a board member and employee of Farmers Bank. Cook is a past president of the Community Arts Foundation, past corresponding secretary for the Crittenden County Lions Club and past member of the Pennyrile Housing Corporation and former director of Kentucky Western Waterlands. He is active in the Marion United Methodist Church and serves on the Crittenden County Board of Education.

When he was selected nearly 20 years ago as president of the Chamber, he was the youngest person to ever serve in that post.

"Every organization needs youth for enthusiasm coupled with the experience of a few chronologically enhanced individuals," he said.

The leader of one of the community's most active new organizations was presented the Volunteer of the Year award. Toyia Redd's passion for animals led her to take an active role in the Crittenden County Animal Shelter, and more recently the Marion Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter. With help from others, she has orchestrated a well-run facility with an aggressive adoption program.

The tellers at Farmers

Bank were awarded the Chamber's Customer Service Award for their courteous and professional interaction with the public, and Tommy Wright earned the Community Pride Award for his efforts to renovate and rent five storefronts in Wright

Plaza adjacent to Darben Plaza.

Marion attorney Brandi Rogers was presented the Unsung Hero award, due in large part to her work with the Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community. Finally, the President's Award went to Vanda Jones, one of the youngest Chamber members who helped promote the Chamber's Pumpkin Festival online and establish a presence for the Chamber on the social network Facebook.

Education leaders hope poor rating leads to new school

BY JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN
PRESS REPORTER

Four years ago, the Crittenden County Middle School's building was rated a category five in a district facility plan, based on statewide criteria for educational buildings.

The rating made the school eligible for state funding to renovate or replace the school. However, a year later, the Kentucky Department of Education re-evaluated buildings across the state using its a different method, and CCMS was rated at 4.8.

Although the rating might appear to reflect an improved structure, it actually proved frustrating for the Crittenden County School District. Schools rated as a category five were considered to be in critical need of replacement. Most received funding in the current state spending plan. At one point during the budgetary process, Crittenden was in line for a new middle school, but when the final spending plan was adopted in 2010, Crittenden was left out.

"It's frustrating to be given different ratings, especially considering the first initial rating was the worst possible to receive," Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough said. "Our middle school is the oldest of our three schools, having been built in 1949 and while it is in good condition, there are things that need to be fixed and updated."

Local officials say a new vendor agreement between the state department of education and Parsons Commercial Technology Group, Inc., will likely lead to a new facilities inventory and classification system. Schools that were rated a three or higher will be reviewed once more, giving CCMS another opportunity to see if it qualifies for assistance.

A firm located in Louisville, Parsons will be focusing on physical condition of the building and education feasibility. Ratings provided by Parsons will replace the previous ones, giving CCMS perhaps renewed hope for improvements or a new school.

"We're optimistic about the new review from Parsons because it's not only going to take into consideration the building's actual structure but also how functional the classrooms are for learning.

Are they feasible with today's standards of learning?" Yarbrough explained. "The (Crittenden County School) board feels like this could be a step in getting a new school or even renovations, but we'll just have to wait and see. We're hoping for the best, though."

Representatives from Parsons' facility assessment team visited the district last month and assessed both the elementary and middle schools. While information gathered from the visit will be reviewed sometime around the first of July, the final report will not be available until Nov. 30.

"It's an opportunity for us, but because it's a new system, we don't know what will happen exactly," Yarbrough said. "We're just keeping our fingers crossed. Our school is outdated and we need to fix that. We hope that KDE sees that."
