Stout finalist for federal bankruptcy judge

STAFF REPORT

Local attorney Alan C. Stout is one of four finalists for a federal bankruptcy judgeship. If appointed to the bench, Stout would close his office in Marion and his practice would be absorbed by the Paducah firm of Stout, Farmer and King.

One of 17 original applicants for the post, Stout was selected as a finalist after a lengthy application process which included an interview in Louisville by the Merit Selection Committee. Its search is to fill a vacancy that will be left when Judge David Stosberg's term expires Oct. 1. Judge Stosberg presides over the United States Bankruptcy Court, Western District of Kentucky.

It's unclear when the appointment will be made, perhaps in July or August, Stout said. The application process will continue with further interviews of nominees before a judge will be selected. In addition to Stout, the Merit Selection Panel has recommended the following four candidates to the Sixth Circuit Judicial Council for consideration for appointment to the bankruptcy judge vacancy: Claude Ray Bowles Jr. of Louisville, Jan Charles Morris of Jeffersonville, Ind., and Deborah Behuniak Simon of Paducah.

"I anticipate possibly two more interviews. One by the Judicial Council and one by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals," said

Stout

Stout, who has been practicing in Marion since 1981.

Stout served as Crittenden County Attorney 21 years and he was president of the National Association of Bankruptcy Trustees from 2002 to 2004.

"I am very humbled and honored to have been named as a finalist," Stout said. "If selected, I would spend part of the time in Louisville and part time here. I anticipate I would cover the bankruptcy court docket in either Owensboro or Paducah, in addition to Louisville."

This is the same judgeship formerly held by another Marion attorney, Wendell Roberts, who was appointed to the bench in 1987. He presided over federal bankruptcy cases until his retirement in 2001. He died in 2008. The appointment is for 14 years.

Marion woman hits $200K in KY Lottery

BY JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN
PRESS REPORTER

When Crittenden County resident Mary Sizemore saw several zeros after scratching off a Kentucky Lottery ticket on April 20, she thought it was a flub. But then, she scratched off a two in front of all of those zeros and her heart started pounding.

"Of course, I was reading the ticket in my car, using the overhead light," Sizemore laughed. "I just knew I was either reading it wrong or my ticket was messed up."

Sizemore, 66, had used her $20 winnings from a ticket purchased earlier in the day at Marion Food Giant to buy two more scratch-offs and took them to her car to check for winnings. That's when she found the six-digit figure. Just to be certain, she took the ticket back into the store to make sure it was truly a winner.

Kim Driskill, a cashier at Food Giant, scanned the ticket for Sizemore and told her that she had won $20,000; however, after double-checking the amount, the real figure was $200,000.

"I almost had a heart attack right then and there," Sizemore said. "I just started shaking. I couldn't believe I had won that much."

Still in disbelief, Sizemore took the ticket home to her husband and told him about it. At first, he thought it was a joke, too.

"He thought the same thing I did, that it was mistake," Sizemore said. "But after I showed him that it wasn't, he wanted to know how much I was

Sin lies at the base of every act of evil

Satan not only has slick coverage by phony names for much of his dirty work, but too often his very existence is denied.

All through Jesus' earthly ministry many of His healings were casting out demons which had caused much of the diseases and sinful, frightening actions of some of those healed.

Despite all the horrific evils committed today, we rarely hear these acts called demon possession.

They are called mentally unstable, or they were abused sometime in life, or they were under the influence of drugs or alcohol. It is never the perpetrator's fault. It is always something or someone else's.

Sin lies at the base of every act of evil. When people leave God they open themselves up for Satan's invasion.

Most sinners would want to fight if they were told: "You do the deeds of your father. You are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father you will do."

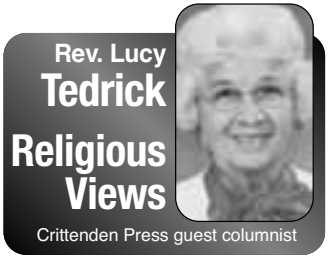

They will have the fight with Jesus, as He is the one who said it to the sinning Jews in John 8:41,44.

Demon possession is manifested in various degrees. The demon possessed in the tombs was a raving tortured individual. Serial killers and rapists are demon possessed but some appear very normal.

Atheists have given themselves over to evil, and Satan takes over their minds and their actions, even though some are not violent. Look how hard they fight to destroy all Christianity in America, and why? Why do they constantly fight to do this? Because they are possessed by their father the Devil, and they hate anyone who quotes Jesus' words on the subject. They do what the Devil wants done.

The terrorists are possessed by Satan and they do his bidding.

What possesses a woman to have her unborn baby slaughtered? What possesses a doctor or nurse to accommodate her in the murder?

The recent slaughter in Arizona was because of Satan possessing the man. Now his lawyer wants to get him off from paying the same fate he gave several innocent people by hoping to plead insanity.

That kind of evil makes good people think he would have to be insane, never stopping to think sin makes people do insane things, but they are still responsible for their actions, as Jesus has been offering deliverance from mind madness all this man's life.

Satan leads a drunk driver to get drunk and drive. But so far we haven't stooped so low as to try to get them off when they kill someone by saying he was mentally unstable. Sin and drinking make people unstable but not mentally, because they knew better before they did it.

America is watching the demons of illicit sex inundate our airways, movies, songs, TV, our youth, school books and advertising.

The most deadly of these demon possessions is in the sins Paul told the Romans about.

"For the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men who hold the truth in unrighteousness." They knew the truth but excused their sins. He continued:

"Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lusts of their own hearts, to dishonor their own bodies between themselves: For this cause God gave them up unto vile [repulsive,disgusting,despicable] affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature:

"And likewise also the men, leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another; men with men working that which is indecent, and receiving in themselves that punishment of their error, which was what they deserved.

"And because they did not want God in their mind. God gave them over to a reprobate [morally depraved, condemned, abandoned by God] mind, to do those things which are not right, being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, maliciousness, murder, proud, inventors of evil things, without understanding, without natural affections."

This kind of sin has led many people into horrible serial killers, burying the victims in their back yards and under their houses.

Read the long list this evil leads people into and hell on earth for themselves and many others, before they go to hell forever. Romans 1:18-30

These evils are destroying all decency in America and bringing God's wrath down on all of us.

Lot had two daughters who burned up right along with all the crazed sodomites, and his wife turned into a pillar of salt, and his two daughters who escaped with him were infected with Sodom's evil culture, they, along with Lot, sinned and raised tribes that were trouble to generations to come.

Sin in anyone infects all with whom they come in contact. How true the words, "Sin is a reproach to any people." Proverbs 14:24. "The wicked shall be turned into hell and all nations that forget God." Ps. 9:17. How I weep for America!!

Kentucky 1800s judge martyred for doing his duty

Judge John Elliott of the Kentucky Court of Appeals wrote the opinion of Buford v. Guthrie in 1879. At that time, the Court of Appeals was Kentucky's highest court. When he authored that case, little did he know that he was signing his own death warrant.

Just a few days later, on March 26, 1879, he and fellow judge Thomas Hines were making their way back from the court room in the Old State House to their lodging at the Capitol Hotel in downtown Frankfort. As they approached the hotel on Ann Street, a deranged Thomas Buford stepped up to him with a loaded shotgun. There was a quick, cordial exchange of conversation and then Buford shot him. Judge Elliott fell dead upon the sidewalk.

By all accounts, Judge John Elliott was a very good man. He was born in Floyd County, Kentucky and had served in both the state legislature and U.S. Congress. He was one of only a hand full of people to have served both in the U.S. Congress and the Congress of the Confederate States of America when he served in Richmond, Va., during the Civil War. Before reaching the state's highest court, he had been circuit judge of Bath County. His family was plagued with an incredible amount of violence. Judge Elliott's father had killed another man; one of his brothers was killed during the Civil War; another brother was killed by another brother; and yet another brother had gone insane and shot himself.

Just a couple of weeks before the murder, Judge Elliott had issued an opinion wherein the state's highest court had ruled against Buford. Elliott had written the opinion. Actually, it was against the estate of his dead sister. Buford had been acting as the administrator. It was a complicated land deal in which his sister lost her property. Although his sister had died during the action, Buford still perceived the adverse ruling as being directed against her. Apparently, he believed that the stress of the litigation was what had killed his sibling. In explaining the killing of Judge Elliott, he said that his sister had been robbed and murdered by the decision of the court. A short time before he shot Judge Elliott, he had gone to her grave and sworn to avenge her cause.

In his meandering written confession to the crime, the disturbed Buford proclaimed how his first intention was to kill Court of Appeals Judge William S. Pryor. He decided against killing Pryor "because of his children." He had hard feelings towards Pryor because he thought that judge "knew how my sister had been wronged and could have controlled the decision." In truth, because of Judge Pryor's prior knowledge about the case, the jurist had appropriately and ethically recused himself from sitting on the case. He wasn't even involved in the decision.

After the shooting, Buford immediately gave up his weapon and peacefully – even cordially – surrendered to the sheriff. In fact, he had taken his hat off of his head and placed it under the head of the dying judge on the ground.

It soon became apparent to all that Thomas Buford had serious mental problems. He "wasn't right." Although quite educated and a solid citizen before, he had become so possessed by his sister's lawsuit that he had lost his reason.

Frankfort and the entire state were shocked by the tragedy. Gov. James B. McCreary issued a proclamation declaring both Elliot's virtues and the profound sadness felt by his loss. All state offices were closed the afternoon of his funeral.

The killing of Judge John Elliott on that gusty March afternoon created one of those staggering tragedies from which we as a people are left bewildered and frustrated. A very good man and dedicated public servant had been savagely and senselessly struck down in broad daylight on a public street. Yet, when the dust had settled and we reached out to grab the guilty culprit, we were staring at a lunatic – a person who was babbling both hatred and kindness toward his victim; making sense of it all and yet not making sense of it all.

In the trial of Thomas Buford, the Commonwealth of Kentucky was faced once again with the enduring question of what we do with people who do terrible things, but who have lost their senses to the point that it is not really the person's own free will but the demons within the bubbling cauldron of his diseased mind. When is a person crazy or when is that person just evil? Or more perplexing, when is he both?

The murder case was moved to Owen County and finally went to trial in January of 1881. Numerous witnesses, including many prominent men, testified that they thought the defendant was insane. Forty-four witnesses in all were called by the defense, almost all going to his insanity. His lawyer, George Curtis, made a magnificent closing argument on behalf of his client. He reminded the jury of the law of insanity at that time, which is basically unchanged to this day. "You must remember, also, gentlemen of the jury that the legal test is ability to comprehend the moral character of the act committed and the power of will to govern one's action in obedience to the judgment."

The jury found Thomas Buford not guilty by reason of insanity. The judge ordered that he be taken to the asylum in Anchorage, Ky. Totally disconnected from reality, Buford airily protested that it was a waste of time and that he had "rather be out hunting and fishing." Not long after he arrived, Buford escaped from the mental institution and fled to Indiana. That state refused to recognize our extradition efforts since he had not been convicted.

Today, the martyred judge lies sleeping in the Capitol Cemetery which overlooks the Kentucky River and the picturesque city of Frankfort. The words on his monument proclaim his lasting legacy: "Assassinated for having done his duty as a Judge."

City Administrator Mark Bryant welcomes Alan Robinson, partner of Eclipse Engineers, PLLC as the newest member of the Chamber of Commerce.

Eclipse Engineers joins Commerce

Eclipse Engineers, PLLC is the newest business to join the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce. An engineering firm located in Lexington, the business does several local projects for the city. This makes eight new businesses that have joined the Chamber of Commerce in 2011 while under current president Corey Payne.

Hackney joins courthouse staff

Stacey Hackney of Marion has joined the Crittenden County Circuit Clerk's office as a deputy clerk.

Hackney

Hackney began her duties at the courthouse on April 1. She joins Circuit Clerk Madeline Henderson's four-person staff. Other deputy clerks are Melinda Brasher, Melissa Guill, Lisa Beard and Lindsay Morrison.

The clerk's office handles clerical, recording and scheduling duties for district and circuit court among other services such as driver's license testing and renewal.

Hilkey named as new EMS Director

Kevin Hilkey was recently named director of the Crittenden County Ambulance Service. On April 11 he replaced James Ivy. Ivy stepped down to find a job closer to his home in Henderson.

Hailing from Lyon County, Hilkey has been involved with ambulance services for over 30 years, working in Kentucky, Florida and Indiana. Hilkey became a certified EMT in 1979 after attending Murray State University. Paramedic classes at that time were not offered, but in 1985, Hilkey finished requirements to become a paramedic shortly before moving to Florida.

Over the years, Hilkey has been involved in starting several ambulance services, as well as teaching paramedic classes through the Kentucky Community and Technical College System (KCTCS). Hilkey learned about the local position through employees of the Crittenden County Ambulance Service.

"Agencies such as EMS are a tight knit industry because of how close we all work together," Hilkey explained. "When a position like that comes up, it's pretty easy to find out."

"Crittenden already has an excellent service here and I want to learn more about it before making any changes," Hilkey said. "Eventually plans will be made on how to further better the service and become more involved with the community. The public really doesn't know much about what all we do here with the EMS and I hope to change that in the time to come."

Henry opens new business, Auto Art

This week marked the opening of a new business in Marion. Auto Art LLC, owned and operated by Cecil Henry opened its doors Tuesday. Auto Art will specialize in collision, custom and restoration body work and is located just outside of Marion on Ky. 120.

Henry, a lifelong Crittenden Countian and also part-owner of Conrad's Food Store, said there were several reasons for opening his new shop. "Marion needed to have a business for people to take their vehicles and get them restored or customized," he said. "Everyone in my family has had their own business and I had a desire to start one myself."

He hopes to add up to three full- and part-time positions.

The need to open a vehicle restoration and customization shop was brought on by his love of working on cars. Henry, 24, has five years of experience in customizing and restoring vehicles. His love of working with automobiles began at an early age helping his brother work on old Jeeps. That passion continued, leading Henry to customize his own 2001 Audi CT.

"I take my car to several car shows every year across the nation," said Henry. "I went to a European car show this year in Georgia."

In addition to customization, Auto Art will install body kits, bed-liners for trucks and detailing of any type. The shop also features European diagnostic equipment for foreign cars that can detect electronic problems.

Henry said that his shop has a unique heating and air system inside its paint booth that maximizes consistency on paint jobs. The system is designed to be safer because of its fire suppression unit.

"We have a semi-downdraft paint booth which allows us to restore vehicles to original equipment manufacturer

(OEM) standards which are near factory specifications," he said. "We are also a Dupont paint shop that comes along with a lifetime warranty for any paint work done."

Currently, Henry and his wife Angel, who will be the secretary for Auto Art LLC, has one other employee. Chad Ingram of Marion will be full time when he graduates this year from West Kentucky Community and Technical College in Paducah with a certification in auto-body, collision and repair.

Henry said his shop will be able to work on any type of vehicle and already has several jobs lined up.

"Anything on wheels including motorcycles, we can customize," he said.

Rescue squad to host fundraiser event

The Crittenden County Rescue Squad's yearly family portrait fundraiser is about to begin. The squad will have two portrait weekends to better accommodate families' schedules. The same photographer who has taken the portraits the last two years will be the same one for this year's event. The fundraiser for this year will be done differently than in the past. Participants will not be called for a donation. Picture certificates will be mailed to residents in Crittenden County.

Enclosed will be a card and a self-addressed envelope. Fill out the card and mail it, along with a check, to the rescue squad. The only phone call residents will be receiving will be to set up picture appointments. There will be no phone solicitation or door-to-door solicitation. Proceeds from this year's fundraiser will be donated entirely to the rescue squad. If residents do not want pictures but would still like to donate, they can mail it in the same envelope.

If a certificate is not received in the mail, send checks to the Crittenden County Rescue Squad, P.O. Box 346, Marion, Ky., 42064. Enclose a note with a name and phone number and someone will be in touch to schedule an appointment. The first weekend of pictures will be June 10-12, followed by the second weekend on June 25-26. The Crittenden County Rescue Squad is appreciative of its support and donations.

In Loving Memory of
ROGER FRANKLIN BOONE

January 9, 1950 - April 29, 1995

It's been 16 years since that terrible day and a lot of things have changed. Your sons have become adults and I have grown old without you. I had always thought we'd grow old together. We didn't get that chance. Our hearts still hurt with a pain that won't heal and the tears still fall. It's a hurt that never goes away. But some things don't change, like the love we carry in our hearts for you and the memories we have of the smile on your face and the love you gave us all. You were such a wonderful father and husband. We were so blessed to have you in our lives. We will go on, but we will never forget you or the memories of our lives together. Those memories we will cherish for all time. We will love you forever.

Love,
Linda, Alan, Lee & Jared

When doing good, get good advice

My wife gave me a new pair of shoes. They were tan, sort of a neutral color. I understood her to say they would be fine to wear with anything. So, I got up early, put on a gray suit with a light blue stripe in it and those tan shoes. In addition, I put on a black tie with little red flowers that look much like polka dots. Since I left the house early, my wife didn't see me until evening. When we met, she almost screamed with shock. "I can't believe you wore those shoes with that suit," she said. "And that tie . . . they don't go together at all."

I was more than a little stunned, because all day long I'd gone about thinking I was well dressed, except for one small mistake. I said, "Well, what you don't know is I also have on one blue sock and one black sock." (In the morning light when I dressed, they looked like mates.) Assuming myself to be rather stylish, I was in fact dressed very poorly.

Dr. H. Wade Paris

Shepard's Call

Guest columnist

There's a truth here, and I risk your ridicule to point it out. Without someone to advise me, I thought I was doing right but was in fact doing wrong. Some people sincerely desiring to do good set out to do it on their own without God and God's word to advise them. These well meaning persons often do some pretty bad things in the name of doing good. The Bible puts it this way, "There is a way that seemeth right to man, but the end thereof is destruction." Proverbs 14:12

You and I cannot depend on what we think is right to know what is right. We must do our very best to understand the heart of God and the word of God. Only by sincere study of His word and by a continual fellowship with God can we know what is right and do good.

As you plan your life, be sure to get God's advice; otherwise, you may do wrong in the pursuit of right.

Thompson back in church's pulpit

STAFF REPORT

Dee Ann Thompson is back in Marion and part of the reason may have something to do with a grandchild.

Thompson, who was pastor at First Cumberland Presbyterian Church for three years up until 2007, is back at the same church on Bellville Street. New, however, is the church's recently dedicated fellowship hall and a grand baby in Mayfield. Marion will be much closer for Thompson and her husband Kenneth, new grandparents, than Breckinridge County where she'd served as pastor since leaving Marion four years ago.

A chance to lead the Marion church was certainly the primary draw for coming back west, but it's also closer to Brookport, Ill., where Thompson grew up. Her husband is an electrician, so finding work is not too tough anywhere. The couple live in the parsonage across the street from the church. It's

Hodge takes basketball reins

STAFF REPORT

Denis Hodge will be the new boys' basketball coach at Crittenden County High School. He will be the fourth head coach in as many seasons when the team takes the floor this fall.

Hodge is a longtime coach at CCHS. He has coached baseball, football and basketball. He served as assistant coach from 1995 to 2005 under Jimmy Croft. Many thought he'd take the job in years past when it had been vacant.

"It was about timing and I feel like now is the time for me to take the position," Hodge said.

Crittenden County Athletic Director Angela Starnes said Hodge is a natural choice to resurrect a program that's struggled in recent years.

"Our new coach knows what it takes to build a successful program," Starnes said. "He has the best interest of Crittenden County athletics at heart because he has been a part of it for many years. He has a vested interest as a competitor and as a coach. It's very important for us that he is at Crittenden County."

Hodge

Hodge played basketball, baseball and football for the Rockets in the 1980s. He graduated in 1986 as one of the most decorated players in school history and is a member of the Athletics Hall of Fame. Hodge went on to play collegiate baseball at Southeast Illinois College and Eastern Kentucky University.

His is a former U.S. Army Ranger.

Hodge will take the reins of a team that has won just 26 games over the past three seasons under three different coaches. Brad Fraser, who was 6-18, last year and Chad Hayes, who was 11-15 the prior season, were at CCHS for one-year stints.

Hodge says he feels pressure to turn the program around quickly.

"The difference is anytime you're in charge, there is a lot more pressure to succeed, not only from just wanting to do well for your community and school, but for the kids as well," he said. "The pressure is to be successful in every aspect of the game – mentally, physically and in wins and losses."

The head coach is responsible for the entire program from little league to high school, he said.

Over the past four seasons, Hodge has worked as a basketball assistant coach for his wife, who is the girls' head coach.

"My philosophy after working with Coach Croft for 10 years and my wife for four – and learning their offensive and defensive schemes – is to use the personnel you have by putting them in the best positions to be successful," Hodge said.

Hodge's daughter, Jessi, will be playing college basketball next season at Brescia in Owensboro. She just finished her season at CCHS and Hodge says his family will juggle their schedules to make sure they see her play and keep the programs running at CCHS.

"We want to see Jessi of course and her career is important to us, but it's important to do what you're led to do and to be where you're supposed to be at any particular point in your life," Hodge said.

Hodge will also continue as an assistant football coach.

CCHS smokes Lyon; Gilbert suffers first loss

BY CHRIS HARDESTY
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

Rocket starting hurler Eli Bebout was in command the entire way Friday against visiting Fifth District rival Lyon County, tossing a one-hit shutout and helping his team to an easy 10-0 victory.

After a harmless one-out single in the third inning, Bebout proceeded to retire eight straight Lyon batters, helping the Rockets improve to 3-1 in district play.

In the bottom of the first, leadoff hitter Bryce Willis and Travis Gilbert both reached base via walks. However, it appeared those free passes were in danger of going for naught as two strikeouts followed. Then junior first baseman Zac Knight ripped an RBI-single to right field, scoring both Willis and Gilbert. That gave the hosts all the runs they would need.

After being moved to the leadoff position, Willis continues to stay hot going 2-for-2 with a walk and three runs scored.

With one out in the second, Rocket second baseman Landon Young reached on a single. One batter later, outfielder Taylor Champion stroked an RBI-double, putting the hosts on top 3-0.

Wild pitches and passed balls haunted the Lyons much of the game as Crittenden scored five runs as a result of those miscues.

Along with Knight and Willis, Rocket outfielder Jesse Highfil reached base every time he came to the dish – Highfil on a fielder's choice, an error and a walk.

Knight continued to play flawlessly at first base as the Rockets made short work of the visiting Lyons.

"Overall, it was the best ballgame we have played," Rocket skipper Nathan McDowell said.

After making his first start on the mound since working against Marshall County two weeks ago, Bebout struck out five in the dominating shutout.

"Eli had a phenomenal effort," said the Crittenden coach.

After a tough 1-6 start to the season, the Rockets have recovered to capture three out of their last four games heading into the second half of the season.

Errors cost CCHS against Trigg

In a battle for first place in the Fifth District, the Rockets could not overcome four errors last Thursday at Cadiz as Trigg County beat the Rockets 6-0.

Crittenden County's Brenden Phillips slides safely into home as teammate Brian Berry (3) watches.

It also marked the first loss of Rocket freshman starting hurler Travis Gilbert's varsity career. Only one of the Wildcat runs were earned.

In addition, Trigg starting hurler Alex Sadler tossed a complete-game, two-hit shutout as Brenden Phillips and Knight provided the only hits for their squad.

The stingy Wildcats, who have recorded seven shutouts and are only averaging allowing 4.5 runs through 18 games, stayed unbeaten in league play.

The win also marked the Wildcats' 12th straight victory. Some Trigg County observers believe that is possibly the longest winning streak in school history.

Crittenden will get another shot at Trigg sometime this month when the Wildcats come to Marion for a makeup of a game rained out April 15.

Oliver to play at WKCTC

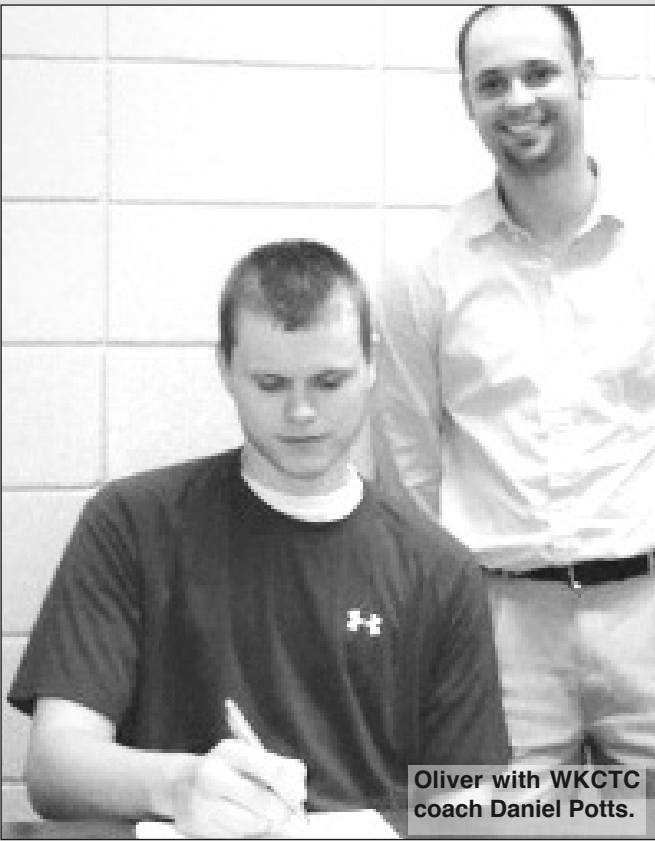

Crittenden County senior Casey Oliver has signed a letter of intent to play basketball at West Kentucky Community and Technical College in Paducah.

The coaching staff of the West Kentucky Stars, led by head coach Daniel Potts, said it had closely followed Oliver's high school career. The coaches were impressed with his well-rounded basketball ability. They expect him to make an immediate impact on the team next season.

Oliver was near the top in almost all the statistical categories for players in western Kentucky his senior season.

Oliver will become the fourth Rocket basketball player to suit up for the West Kentucky Stars since the program was re-established six years ago. Cody Holzer started the previous two years for the Stars, and Tim Hill and Payton Croft were starters from 2005 to 2007.

The team will return seven players from the 2010-11 squad that went 19-6. Oliver led Crittenden County in scoring the past two years.

Current flood brings back memories of 1937

With the headline news about flooding that may reach higher levels than the historic flood of 1937, here is an interesting first-hand account of the 1937 flood shared with us by Crittenden Countian Helen Carter Springs. The Tom Carter family home was located on the Hebron Church Road, where Tommy and Evelyn Carter lived and owned property for many years. The Ohio River was located directly behind their home.

The new year of 1937 came at a very rainy time in January. I had received a work-study scholarship to Murray State University beginning the second semester. Before it was time for me to go to Murray State, it began raining. It rained for days so much that the rivers and creeks all overflowed and the routes to Murray were closed.

Radio stations were playing the newly released song, "Pennies from Heaven," and people were calling in to the stations asking them to please stop playing that song.

While I was at home with my parents, Tom and Ruth Carter near Fords Ferry, waiting to go to Murray, I watched the river get higher and higher. Our house was on a hill but all of the barns were not. It rained so much the water got up to the barn loft floor. Dad loaded bales of hay from the loft onto his boat and then rowed it to the hills. He also carried bags of corn from the cribs that way.

He put some bags of corn in the screened porch on our house but the cows, who were on the hills, sensed it was there and searched for it. One cow even came in the kitchen after the bags of corn that Dad had dragged in to get out of their reach. It was a scary sound to be awakened to the sounds of a cow's hoofs in the kitchen.

My brother Jimmy and I would stand at the water's edge, about half way up the hill, and try to hit the rats and mice who were flooded out of their homes. They were swimming toward us and we would strike at them with rocks and boards but we never killed one. Our house became their refuge. All night we could hear them running between the walls and upper floor. We never got used to it.

The radio kept saying how fast the water was rising, but Dad underestimated its speed and we went to church thinking it would be alright. When we returned, the cows were standing on high peaks in the bottom fields all surrounded with water. Dad got on his horse to try to herd them onto shore. His horse was swimming and his foot became tangled in the unseen covered fence and stumbled, causing Dad to fall in the icy waters. He tried to grab the horse's tail but couldn't. He kicked off his heavy, water-filled boots and swam toward shore. His strength gave out on him and he let go thinking this is it, but as luck was on his side, his feet landed on the soft warm mud underneath. That warmth gave him strength to continue to higher ground.

During that entire time, our Mom was at the water's edge, urging him on and when he got to where she could reach him, she practically dragged him to the house where she put his feet in a tub of water and wrapped him in blankets.

During the flood, we would watch buildings float past our house. We saw a pretty yellow house with white trim go by and Jim and Jake Darnell would go out in the boat and try to catch them with ropes but the current was too swift. They were only able to catch a small shed and drag it to shore.

The Crooked Creek came up across one end of the road and we weren't able to get out using that road (this section of the road led to the Dam 50 road). Grandpa Cook's ponds were full and across the other road toward Hebron and U.S.. 91, thus Hebron Church Road was closed. The only way anyone could get out was by a canoe. They stationed the boat on one side of the water so we could row across and tie the boat until time to come back. Then this process was repeated in reverse. Neighbors would sometimes plan on times to come and go.

Above is the town of Fords Ferry during the flood of 1937. Tom Walker was the owner of the grocery store on the right. People used boats to to get from one place to another. People have stated that Fords Ferry was never really able to recover from this devastating flood.

The day came where it finally stopped raining and the flood waters subsided enough for Greyhound buses to roll again. I was on one going to Murray to begin my college career. As we passed though Paducah, I could see the houses were all muddy from the high water of the murky Ohio – even up to the second floors.

Now the 1937 flood seems so long ago, but it lingers only as a memory.

Historical facts about the 1937 flood from the archives of The Crittenden Press.

Jan. 29, 1937 – With the advent of the past week, Marion and Crittenden County citizens found themselves digging out of the snow and ice that marked the worst blizzard of the winter.

Then a heavier rain started on Thursday and lasted until the early Friday morning hours. In its wake brought cold and biting weather. Then sleet fell practically all day Saturday, with sleet turning into a slow drizzle. A much heavier downpour of freezing proportions fell during the entire day Sunday. Highway and mail traffic is at a standstill with mail of any importance not arriving in the city from Friday until Tuesday at noon. U.S. 60 between Marion and Sturgis was inundated as was U.S. 60 between Smithland and Paducah.

All railway traffic was paralyzed. Several trains were placed on the siding here because of the unusual length of the tracks and three trains were reported to have been practically drowned out near Blackford.

Telephone poles and lines were in some instances uprooted, and service was handicapped as was other means of similar communication.

When the rain finally ceased falling, little was thought that it was of general nature. Daily rains at this time of year are to be expected in this territory. It wasn't until Lyle Winn began to broadcast the flood suffering, that little if any, attention had been paid to the possibility of such a flood as produced by Thursday's and Friday's downpours.

Marion was kept in touch with the outside world through the individual efforts of Winn, operator and owner of radio station 9JEG. Winn remained at his post of duty for many tiring hours going so far as to call in an assistant when exhaustion forced him to retire.

With the exception of Highway 91 – the Princeton road – all major roadways into the city are underwater to such an extent that they are untraversable (this situation has now happened once again as of late Sunday afternoon. U.S. 60 East and West have been closed to traffic, leaving the only way to enter and leave the county by U.S. 641/91 to Fredonia and Princeton).

Feb. 19, 1937 – Dam 50 Gauge Surpasses 1913 Readings.

All previous records for high water were surpassed at Lock and Dam 50 with a reading of the pass sill gauge of 68.1 feet on Feb. 1, according to a report from William D. Hatcher of the U. S. Engineers office at Fords Ferry.

The previous high in 1913 was surpassed by 6.7 feet. Previous to 1913, the water of 1884 was supposed to have been the highest with the 1913 reading exceeding that of 1884 by 1.5 feet, but no records were kept at that time. According to older people who have experienced all three floods, however; that of 1884 was not as high as 1913 nor the 1913 flood in excess of the present one.

Rainfall and precipitation for the month of January was 17.6 inches as compared to the normal for the month of 3.75. Rain occurred on 22 of 31 days with fog and mist present four additional days.

For the entire year of 1936, the rainfall was 44.04 inches with 17.43 inches being recorded up until Sept. 8. The normal in this section was 43.6. The average monthly total was 3.75 inches with the month of January usually being in excess of this figure.

The Ohio remained stationary for a period of 32 hours with the reading of 68.1 feet before a slow decline was noted on the gauge.

With the flood of 2011, another historical weather disaster has marked our county and also surrounding counties adjoining the Cumberland, Ohio and Tradewater Rivers.

Conservation group sending 2 to summer camp

High school students entering their junior or senior year this fall and have at least a C average are eligible to participate in the Kentucky Forest Leadership Program. The week-long camp will be held June 13-17 at UK's Lake Cumberland 4-H Educational Center located on Lake Cumberland, approximately 20 miles west of Somerset in Jabez. Up to two applications per county will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. Forest Leadership camp is limited to 25 students statewide. The Crittenden County Conservation District will sponsor two local youths to camp. Applications are available at the district office located at 118 East Bellville in Marion. Campers are responsible for a $50 registration fee that will not be refunded if the camper does not attend camp. The conservation district will pay the remaining $300. Upon completion of camp the district will reimburse the registration fee to the camper. The deadline for camp is June 3. Forest Leadership Program participants will experience a hands-on approach to learning about forestry. Participants will also see a variety of careers in related fields beyond forestry, including civil engineering, soil science, wildlife habitat assessment, water quality and wood products. This is not a recreational camp. Students should have a genuine interest in any of the aspects of natural resource management. Camp participants will be trained by professional forestry and natural resource managers from the University of Kentucky's Department of Forestry and Entomology, UK Cooperative Extension Service, Kentucky Water Resource Research Institute, Kentucky Division of Conservation, Kentucky Division of Forestry, and private forest industry leaders. For more information call the Crittenden County Conservation District at 965-3921, Ext. 3 or logon to <http://www.kyforestrycamp.com>.

Kentuckians celebrate National Beef Month

Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner Richie Farmer invites Kentuckians to join him in celebrating National Beef Month in May. "Kentucky's beef industry gives us all a reason to celebrate throughout the year," Farmer said. "Beef is an important part of a healthy, well-balanced diet. The beef industry also is a major driver of Kentucky's economy." Kentucky is the leading cow-calf state east of the Mississippi River with more than one million beef cows and a total of 2.19 million cattle as of Jan. 1, according to the Kentucky office of the National Agricultural Statistics Service. Farm cash receipts from cattle were nearly $500 million in 2009. The Kentucky Department of Agriculture provides numerous services that support Kentucky's beef cattle industry. The Office of the State Veterinarian works with its federal counterparts, the state livestock disease diagnostic laboratories, and private veterinary practitioners to safeguard Kentucky cattle and all Kentucky livestock from foreign animal diseases. The Department's marketing office seeks out new markets for Kentucky cattle at home and abroad through Kentucky Proud and the international marketing program. The Department conducts livestock shows and supports local agricultural fairs throughout the Commonwealth.

Marion's Buntin earns Star Farmer Award for Pennyrile Region's FFA

STAFF REPORT

Kari Buntin has a bunch of kids that may help her win a state championship.

Those kids are young goats and her Sheridan farm is bustling with activity.

"I have 35 does and about 40 kids on the ground right now," said the 18-year-old Crittenden County High School senior.

Buntin wants to turn her goat operation into a Star Farmer Award for the State of Kentucky.

The senior was recently named Star Farmer for the Pennyrile Region. There are a dozen regions across the state and all of the regional finalists will compete head to head in June at the FFA State Convention at Louisville.

Crittenden County has only had one other state champion Star Farmer. That was Evan Head who won it for a job he had. Buntin is operating in a little different category. It's for entrepreneurs because she owns her own goat operation.

The Star Farmer state championship is FFA's most coveted honor. Each competitor has a Supervised Agriculture Experience (SAE) which is graded by judges. Buntin's SAE is a goat farming operation she has been involved in about 10 years along with her sister, Kayla, who is now in college.

The Star Farmer competition includes a detailed examination by judges of her

Kari Buntin Will compete in June for Kentucky Star Farmer

While Buntin plans to pursue a college degree in early childhood education, she wants to keep a hand on the farm. She's one of the state's most decorated young goat farmers, winning numerous shows and awards.

"I do it because I love it," she said. "What I like most is when one of the younger kids come up and asks me questions about showing goats or something. I really enjoy advising and helping them."

expenses, receipts and profits on the farm. There is an on-site inspection, too, where a couple of teachers come inspect the operation and interview the Star Farmer candidate.

Crittenden misses no days for flood

STAFF REPORT

Although most neighboring school systems have lost class time due to recent flooding, Crittenden County has not missed a single hour.

Al Starnes, transportation director for the school system, said there has been no indication of safety issues involving buses or their routes. He said some buses are running on alternate routes because of water across roads, but drivers have reported no problems otherwise.

"We would never put students at risk," Starnes said. "If we thought safety was an issue, we wouldn't go."

Attendance has been affected slightly, he said. On Monday and Tuesday about two percent of students absent from school cited flood-related reasons.

"There have been some issues with faculty and staff not being able to get here," Starnes. "We have to get substitutes for those who can't. Some of our teachers had longer drives."

Seventy students were absent from school Monday and 75 Tuesday. Twenty-seven students said it was due to the flood Monday and 25 Tuesday. There are 1,261 enrolled in K-12.

"We had 93 percent attendance Monday and 94 Tuesday. That's about normal," Starnes said. "We're usually around 93 or 94 percent."

"We're watching our numbers very, very closely," said Holly White, family resource coordinator and community educator for the school system.

White said safety is the top priority and so far school officials believe students have not been at risk.

Livingston County closed its schools until further notice last week. This week, Union and Webster have been out, too, and Caldwell went an hour late Tuesday morning because of flash flooding. Those days missed will have to be made up at the end of the school year.

Crittenden students are scheduled to get out of school May 24 for summer.

Business as Usual

While flood waters ravage the low-lying areas of Crittenden County, life goes on as normal in the city. Pictured at top is Austin Janus, 12, who used some chicken gizzards to catch catfish last week at a lake near City-County Park. Directly above is Bobby Don Gilland and grandson Colton repairing the driveway culvert that was damaged by recent heavy rains. At right is Robert Kirby, a youth soft-ball coach, preparing one of the fields at the park for practice. Ironically, the ballpark has dried up rather quickly despite all the recent rain.

Growing up during the Depression
Marion native outlines her youth in recent book

BY JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN
PRESS REPORTER

Former Marion resident Jewell Myers May, 81, grew up in a time when the Great Depression was gripping American families, causing a widespread economic crisis. A young child at the time, May and her family maintained a farm in rural Crittenden County where making their own clothes and growing their own food was a necessity for survival.

Over the past 25 years, May has written multiple essays about growing up in the 1930s and now she has published a collection of writings. The stories were released last November in the form of a novel titled, "Pretty Smart for a Girl," published by WestBow Press.

Filled with anecdotes that share an insight of May's life growing up, the book creates a colorful image of a time full of adventure and hard work on a farm. Toys were scarce at that time and, according to May, it was hard to miss something when you never had it to begin with.

"Growing up during the Depression wasn't an easy time," May explained. "We didn't have near the commodities available today and money was conserved when it could be. We hauled our own water for bathing, cooking and general washing; we grew our own food; and my brother, Dennis, and I entertained ourselves the best we could. The world was a different place at that time and luxuries such as toys couldn't be afforded. Instead, we used what was available to us at the time to make things to play with."

May recalls in one of her essays how entertainment came from fashioning whistles out of hickory limbs and playing with a little rag doll her mother made from scrap fabric.

"Besides marbles and a dump truck that belonged to Dennis that was all we had," May added.

Residing in Hermitage, Tenn., May spends her time with writing groups, a choral group, book club and Bible study. She has seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren for whom she credits the drive for publishing the novel.

"I wanted them to see how my life was when I was their age," May said. "The world wasn't always what it is today and I felt that it was important for them to be able to share my history."

Although the novel has been finished close to a year, May says a story or two will pop up late at night while lying in bed that she wished she had remembered to put in the book. May can sometimes be found writing at two, three or four o'clock in the morning, adding to a file for a followup publication.

Copies of "Pretty Smart for a Girl" will be available at the Marion Welcome Center for a short time for $11.95.
