Mining class free at Ed-Tech Center

There will be a class for underground and surface miner training from Nov. 15 through Dec. 10. The class will be held three days each week at the Marion Ed-Tech Center and every Thursday at Madisonville Community College. Class meets 8 a.m., to noon each session. There is no cost for this class. Register at the Marion Ed-Tech Center. Call 965-9294 for more information.

Vote totals wrong

Vote totals on the front page of last week's Press were reversed for District 5 magisterial candidates Donnetta Travis and Wayne Winters. Travis won the election with 59.5 percent of the vote. She received 429 votes and Winters received 292. The totals reported online and in the recap sheet of each precinct on the back page of the newspaper were correct. We apologize for the error.

No driver testing

There will be no driver's license testing Friday in Crittenden County due to state-mandated furloughs of licensing examiners. Also, there will be no testing on Nov. 26 due to the Thanksgiving holiday.

Christmas parade will be on Dec. 4

Marion's annual Christmas Parade in Marion will be held at 2 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 4. All participants will line up in the high school parking lot. The theme for the parade is Magic in the Music and it is being coordinated by WMJL-Radio. For more info, contact Barbara Myers at 965-2271.

Local woman on Wheel of Fortune

Jeannie Johnson Fisher of Bowling Green, formerly of Marion, will be on tonight's (Thursday) game show Wheel of Fortune. The show that includes Fisher was taped in Las Vegas last summer. The program airs at 6:30 p.m., on NBC.

Upcoming Meetings

- ✓ Marion Main Street, Inc., will host its annual meeting at 6:30 p.m., tonight (Thursday) at the Woman's Club Building on East Carlisle Street.
- ✓ Marion Tourism Commission meets at 6 p.m., tonight (Thursday) at the Marion Welcome Center.
- ✓ Marion City Council meets at 6 p.m., Monday at city hall.

Community celebrates veterans

STAFF REPORT
At the 11th hour of the 11th day of November 1918, the Armistice was signed, marking the end of fighting on the Western Front of the First World War. From that event, we have what is now commonly called Veterans Day, which is being observed as customary on Nov. 11. J.T. Travis, commander of the Ellis B. Ordway American Legion Post 111, says this year's service at the Veterans' Memorial at Maplevue Cemetery will center on those men who fought in World War I.

"We've lost all of them now," Travis said. "But we wanted to make them our theme."
World War II veterans will be given time to speak about their memories of those men who fought in the Great War before them.
"It was a noble effort. They called it the war to end all wars," Travis said.
The annual legion service will be held at the 11th hour to commemorate the Armistice signed between the Allies of World War I and Germany at Compiègne, France.

The Maplevue service includes the Boy Scouts, Taps and a brief program by local veterans.
Crittenden County School District will also host a Veterans Day celebration starting at 8:30 a.m., at Rocket Arena.
The event will include a program and reception for veterans. The public is invited to attend the event. For information, contact Holly White at 965-3525 or Teresa Marshall at 965-5221.

Play's Beauty pressing student nerves as performance dates near at Fohs Hall

JERRITT HOVEY-BROWN

The classic tale of Beauty and the Beast is widely known. Beauty's father picks a rose. Beauty goes to live with the Beast. Beauty falls in love with Beast. he turns into a prince and they live happily ever after. Next week (Nov. 19 and 21), the tale will again come alive as Crittenden County High School students take to the Fohs Hall stage.
Under the direction of Kim Vince, a social studies teacher at CCHS, and senior Zach Sizemore, the idea for the play came to be when Sizemore approached Vince on the last day of school last year.
"He came up to me on that last day and mentioned that he and some other students were interested in doing a play," Vince said. "I thought it was a great idea so we started working on it in August."
The idea to produce the play Beauty and the Beast wasn't decided on until Vince and the students started researching different plays in hopes of finding one that was more fitting.

"We had to find a play that fit us and our needs," Vince said. "We're a smaller school so plays with larger casts weren't going to work. Even in the selection of Beauty and the Beast, we had to cut out a few minor roles so that it would fit."
With just six more rehearsals before opening night, students are getting more comfortable with their roles, but their nerves are also starting to get worked up, according to Vince. For most of the students, this will be the first time to perform on the Fohs Hall stage.

"Several of them have performed before but not to this extent and not here at Fohs Hall," Vince said. "The closer it gets to show time, the more nervous they are but I think they're excited more than anything."
With the help of Farmers Bank, several costumes have been either bought or rented for the play. Plus, Tammy Duvall's art class helped make masks that many of the characters will be wearing.
"There has been a lot of work involved in this play, as well as outside of it," Vince said. "We wanted to get as many people and students involved as we could. We're very excited to be able to put this on for the community."
The play will be at 7 p.m., on Friday, Nov. 19 and an encore will follow at 2 p.m., Sunday, Nov. 21. Ticket prices are $5 for adults and $3 for students with proceeds going to fund the play and future plays.

Three students injured en route to school

STAFF REPORTER
Three Crittenden County students were injured in a single-vehicle accident on Ky. 297 early Wednesday morning while they were en route to school.
High school juniors Bryce Willis and Taylor Keister and middle school student Jayden Willis were all in a Dodge 2500 Extended Cab pickup. Bryce Willis was driving and it's unclear whether any of them were wearing seat belts.
Keister was ejected from the vehicle. She was taken from the scene by PHI Air Ambulance to Deaconess Hospital in Evansville with serious and multiple injuries.

Jayden Willis suffered a head injury. He was still in the vehicle when rescue personnel arrived. He was flown from the scene by PHI to St. Mary's Hospital in Evansville.
Bryce Willis suffered lacerations to the face and body. He was taken to Crittenden Hospital by ambulance.
Initial indication was that the right tire dropped off the shoulder of the roadway and Willis overcorrected, causing the pickup to hit a driveway culvert and overturn.

Two local students were flown from the scene of this accident early Wednesday.

All those crosses in Europe do mean something

As most Americans know, Nov. 11 is the day we celebrate the anniversary of the signing of Armistice, which was on Nov. 11, 1918 at 11 a.m. It ended World War I. We also celebrate Remembrance Day to show our appreciation for all who gave their lives in service to this country.

In recent years, we've called it Veterans Day to recognize and pay honor to veterans of all our wars.

November is a wonderful time of the year for me, as I love fall, harvest time, color changing in nature, memories that flood my soul about the Pilgrims, the wonderful time and preparations for Thanksgivings I've had with family and church and it is the month that prepares us for winter, which I also love.

Another reason Nov. 11 holds a very special and dear place in my heart is because it is the day of my wedding to Kenneth Tedrick, a precious man, a veteran and one I miss terribly.

At the time, 21 years old, I was not so aware of the real meaning of the holiday of Nov. 11. However, when I went around the world in 1960 and visited the American cemeteries for our service personnel in the Crater Bowl in Hawaii, and in the Philippines, I found a lasting appreciation for their sacrifice. There were little white crosses, thousands upon thousands as far as the eye could see, representing our slain, young, brave heroes of world wars I and II. I realized they died in those God-forsaken places, never to get to see home again. It put a deep, lasting hurt and boundless appreciation in me for all of them, their families, the ones who survived, and those who are still fighting for this country.

Before those 10 weeks were up, I became so homesick to be back with my family and America. It was even more poignant for me, thinking of all those thousands of men and women who also wanted to come home but died in such horror, fear, deprivation and pain in so many parts of the world that many of them had never even heard of before. They never got to see home, family and the best nation on earth again.

Lately, I've been privileged to see pictures of 21 other American cemeteries in seven European countries of our World War I and II slain heroes. One was in the Netherlands and one in Luxembourg. Two were in England, three in Belgium, two in Italy and the most were in France, 11 of them.

The total number of our men and women in just these 21 cemeteries comes to 104,368, not counting all those in the Pacific Theatre, and those never accounted for who were missing in action and lost at sea.

My heart is full of praise and gratitude to all of them for taking my place and standing between me and the enemy. How I thank God for every one of them.

All of this is why my anger rises when I see any of the so-called celebrities, billionaires and anyone else bad-mouthing America and our military. Most of them would never even put on a military uniform or put themselves in harm's way for anyone else, especially for the millions of American taxpayers who have made them rich.

When I think of what I've seen in many of the other nations on this planet and think of how we have to put up with lawbreakers of other nations slipping in here to take advantage of our way of life – trying to turn it into what they ran away from – it makes me boil. And when I think about our enemies who come to do us harm, and politicians trying to turn us into what our men and women died to keep us from becoming, my anger rises again.

But the kicker of it all is when I look at all those thousands upon thousands of white crosses that are to me markers of human beings who died not only for America, but for all of Europe, and the rest of the free world. Their only claim over there is the tiny tracts of land on which they are buried.

And now, we have an American president, who I think doesn't even salute our flag, dare to go to France

April 3, 2009 where 60,757 of those graves are in and say: "In America there is a failure to appreciate Europe's leading role in the world. Instead of celebrating your dynamic union and seeking to partner with you to meet common challenges, there have been times where America has shown arrogance and been dismissive, even derisive (belittling)."

Just how arrogant were our young men and women when they died for that part of the world in two wars to keep those Europeans from being overrun by brutal dictators and murderers and costing America billions of dollars, not counting all the billions of hand-outs for reconstruction?

Letters to the Editor

Welfare people seem to have lots of luxuries

To the Editor:

I am writing to voice my concern and dismay of witnessing the endless stream of individuals going in and out of the welfare office here in Madisonville.

I am a resident of Crittenden County, but I am sure this scene is played out throughout the state.

I work directly across the street with a full view of the Cabinet for Community Based Services building and parking lot. It is not the number of individuals that bother me, but the flagrant display of an outside appearance that supports my theory that they are truly not in need of support. They probably need some sound financial advice, but definitely not free money.

I strongly feel there needs to be in place a stricter set of conditions and/or requirements met before gaining access to a regular free check from the government. On a daily basis, I see individuals and families arrive in the parking lot driving nice, expensive, new, vehicles. They are talking on cell phones, smoking cigarettes, etc. I am certain they also have cable or satellite TV contracts. These are a few non-essential items that contribute to their lack of finances. We should not be financing these individuals to help them afford such luxury items. I say if you can afford such items, you do not qualify for free money!

I suggest a stricter interview process, accompanied by a thorough examination of their financial situations and assets, with a continual follow-up every few months.

If you too are fed up with having our state's bank account drained and our taxes spent on these individuals, then stand up and let your voice be heard. Call or write your representatives as I just did. Maybe if enough of us make a stink about these problems, things will change.

Why are we still cutting more trees

To the Editor:

Once again trees are being cut down in the park resulting in less shade for the walking trail. Several healthy mature trees have been cut down at the north end of the park. Those of us who use the walking trail in the morning rely on the welcome shade at the north end of the park from these trees as we are walking east on the trail.

Does anyone out there know why the trees are being destroyed? In these "green" times it seems shameful that a valuable resource which can't be replaced is vanishing for no apparent reason. I had heard some explanation mentioning a Girl Scout project, but that does not seem correct to me.

Sign pickup great fundraiser

Got an idea. Still seeing a few signs along the roadways this week, but most candidates get them put away very soon following the election.

Sign collection would be a great fundraising event for some organization such as the Boy Scouts, a sports booster club or school group. One full-size pickup truck with a driver and a couple of gatherers could travel along a section of roadway, picking up every politicians' signs in one fell swoop. It's almost as easy to get them all as it is to pick up one sign from a yard. Many times they are clustered together, making it very convenient to grab a handful at one time.

The organization could meet all of the politicians in town, say at the park, and divvy up the signs.

Charge a small fee for rounding up each sign. The politician would probably be happy to pay, let's say, 50 cents per sign, maybe more, in order to forego that post-election trauma of running

Freeland publishes second book, Time and the River

Periploi Press of Nashville, Tenn., has just released Michael Freeland's latest book, Time and the River, a companion to Blood River to Berlin. This memoir stretches from the early Roaring Twenties and through the hard times of the Great Depression, when hungry and aimless men, boys and often women took to the railroads and the hobo camps looking for jobs and adventure.

Freeland is a regular at Crittenden County Public Library's Meet the Authors events.

Freeland's story also speaks for many of the young men of the 1940s who were raised on farms, ranches and in small towns, and who were caught up in the draft and sent off to war. Against the odds they proved Hitler wrong: American and British boys did not have soft bellies.

Time and the River is more than a war story: it is a story of survival and it is a love story. It's a snapshot of rural and small town America in an innocent age, a time when many felt that war was romantic, and then learned that it never is.

Group visits local mineral museum

About 70 people from the Kentucky Society of Professional Geologists (KSPG) visited the Kentucky-Illinois fluorspar district a couple of weeks ago.

During their tour of the district – which includes Crittenden County and Hardin County, Ill. – they visited the Hastie Quarry in Cave In Rock, Ill., and the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum and Frazer farm in Crittenden County to view a dike.

While at the museum, the group enjoyed a picnic lunch on the grounds while Ed Clement, son of Ben E. Clement, introduced them to Mr. Clement and the museum. After lunch, the museum was presented a plaque for sustained dedication to promoting public awareness of the Western Kentucky Fluorspar District. Richard Smath, president KSPG, made the presentation. The group then toured the museum. All of the visitors were totally amazed at the collection of minerals at the museum, said Tina Walker, museum curator.

After the group left the museum, they went to Bill Frazer's farm where they viewed an igneous dike. Igneous rocks are very rare in surface exposures in Kentucky. They can only be found in sills and dikes in Elliott, Caldwell, Crittenden and Livingston counties.

The museum received a thank you note from KSPG which stated their visit to the museum was educational, informative and entertaining.

"If you have not visited the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum, you are missing out on one of the unique experiences available in western Kentucky," Walker said.

The museum is open Wednesday through Saturday from 10 a.m., to 3 p.m. It will be open on Friday and Saturday after Thanksgiving.

Crittenden Countians among those honored at U of L ball game

The University of Louisville honored the accomplishments of a partnership between University of Louisville researchers and representatives from Daseam during a recent Louisville football game. About 30 representatives from participating schools across Kentucky, Daseam scholars now attending U of L and employees of Daseam were recognized on the field just prior to kickoff.

Maclin

Ben Grainger and Don Winters represented Crittenden County School District at the event. Grainger and Winters were in Louisville attending advanced computer and network certification classes at the Daseam Training Center. Crittenden County School District has been a part of this program since 2006.

Daseam is a unique Kentucky-based company, which places new computers in schools for everyday classroom use and then networks those same computers together so scientists can use the processing power to do important discovery work. Researchers from the University of Louisville's James Graham Brown Cancer Center have already discovered several potential life-saving cancer drugs using the process.

The event included a pre-game tailgate party hosted by University of Louisville President Dr. James Ramsey. Those attending were also recognized during halftime of the game.

"UofL treated us like family," said Grainger. "Daseam has really helped our district afford more technology for the classroom and it is great that we can help the researchers in their important work."

"It has been a great experience at UofL for me," said Daseam Scholar Trisha Maclin, also from Crittenden County. "I have made new friends, gotten a great education and look forward to work-

New signs go up; traffic urged to slow down in Mattoon

Get ready to slow down as you pass through Mattoon on U.S. 60 East. The Kentucky Department of Highways has just installed new speed reduction signs, dropping the limit to 45 mph through Mattoon proper.

Bill Fuller, who lives in Mattoon at the corner of Seminary Loop, is very pleased about speed controls going into effect along that section of highway.

"It used to be 45 through there and I'm not sure what happened to the signs," Fuller said. "My grandson catches the bus on the highway and I don't want anything bad to happen."

Fuller and some other residents along the highway had recently contacted the state highway department, asking for some relief from the excessive speed along the straight stretch that runs more than a mile. Although there is a double yellow line on the highway through Mattoon, Fuller and Sheriff Wayne Agent say motorists had paid it no attention. "They pass through there all the time," Fuller said. Agent said there have been several accidents in Mattoon recently, prompting his blessing for the reduced speed limit. The sheriff said he has spoken with state police, too, about beefing up patrols in the area now that the speed limit has been dropped from 55 to 45. Safety is the biggest issue, the sheriff said.

School district has plan to meet new NCLB goals in 2011

Test results were released last month that show findings for Adequate Yearly Progress (AYP) on achievement tests taken by local students in 2009. The testing is required by No Child Left Behind (NCLB). The test data show that Crittenden County is making some positive strides. However, while both the elementary and middle schools met all 10 educational goals that have been set by NCLB, the high school is the only local school that failed to meet the adequate yearly progress due to graduation rates. Each Kentucky school and district has a specific number of NCLB goals to meet the AYP and according to the size of student population, those goals vary. For the high school to have met the graduation goal, either the graduation rate had to meet the state goal of 86.75 or it needed to show an increase of two percent. Crittenden's graduation rate in 2009 was 77.23 percent, almost a six percent drop from the 2008 rate (83.02) and 9.5 percent less than required by the state. With the high school being unable to meet the goal, Crittenden, as a district, failed to meet the requirements. With 90 percent of the goals met, Crittenden County will be taking the steps required to make sure that next year's testing reaches 100 percent of the goals, according to superintendent, Dr. Rachel Yarbrough. "With the Pathway Academy being started in the 2008-09 school year, we feel that the graduation rate will improve as a result," Yarbrough said. "We are on the right track with improving the options for students who need alternatives for high school credit."

Out of 1,151 public schools in Kentucky, 640 of those (55.6 percent) met the AYP. Out of the 511 that didn't, 178 schools made 80 percent or more of their goals, which includes Crittenden County.

Peoples Bank adds full-service office in Barren County

The Peoples Bank has announced the conversion of its Glasgow Loan Production Office to a full-service office. The conversion was finalized in the third quarter of 2010, said Terry L. Bunnell, chairman, president and CEO of The Peoples Bank. "When The Peoples Bank was purchased in May 2007, the bank's board of directors

Two children, ages 16 and nine, were severely injured when this van went off the shoulder of U.S. 641 South last week.

Children remain hospitalized after last week's 641 accident

Two children remain hospitalized with multiple injuries following a single-vehicle accident last Wednesday, Nov. 3 on U.S. 641 South near the Crittenden-Caldwell County line. The accident happened around 8 p.m. According to police reports, the Pontiac Montana van was southbound when a deer jumped into the roadway. The driver, Stephanie Brooke Coleman, 34, of Eddyville swerved, running off the roadway and striking the headwall of a concrete culvert. Most of the impact was on the passenger's side of the van, where Coleman's 16-year-old son, Issac D. Maroney, was sitting. The driver's nine-year-old daughter, Jaden

R. Coleman, was in the back seat, and not wearing a seat belt. Both children suffered multiple injuries. They, and the mother, were taken to Crittenden Hospital. The children were later flown to Evansville's Deaconess Hospital. Although they live in Eddyville, the family has ties to Crittenden County. Brooke Coleman's parents live in Crayne, not far from where the accident happened. Crittenden EMS, rescue squad and other agencies from Caldwell and Crittenden counties responded, including Kentucky State Police. The accident remains under investigation. The highway was temporarily blocked but was open to one-line of traffic by 8:30 p.m.

and I envisioned strengthening the bank's commitment to Crittenden County and the surrounding counties in western Kentucky," Bunnell said. "In addition, it has been our intention from those early days to expand the focus of the bank. The conversion of the Glasgow loan production office to a full-service facility not only increases the footprint of The Peoples Bank, but also provides diversification in the bank's customer base and enhances shareholder value." This new development is evidence that The Peoples Bank has built upon its core foundation and is poised for growth in the Glasgow/Barren County market, Bunnell added. "We have a great future with the expansion of our market place; we feel it and see it. We are fortunate to have the best people in the right place and at the right time to allow the bank to take advantage of this opportunity." "The Glasgow/Barren County market will be a positive addition to our local efforts," said bank director Donnie Phillips. "We are delighted to be able to capitalize on the additional opportunities that the new service area will generate for us," said Jerrell James, another member of the board of directors. The bank has also recently signed an agreement with Elan Financial Services that will add over 18,000 ATMs in 48 states for customers to use surcharge-free. Bunnell said "the alliance with Elan is a great convenience and money-saver for our customer base." Peoples-Marion Bancorp, Inc., a bank holding company, is the owner of The Peoples Bank, which has two offices in Marion located at 116 South Main and 326 North Main, and in Glasgow at 605C Happy Valley Road.

Ky. 917 in Livingston closed on Monday

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet plans to close Ky. 917 also known as Stringtown Road between Lake City and luka in Livingston County on Monday. The closure between mile point 0 and mile point 0.7 is to allow the replacement of a cross drain. The work will be in the Reed Farm area, just south of the I-24 overpass. Work at the site is expected to start at 8 a.m., and be completed by 3 p.m., weather permitting.

Motorists should take note of this planned closure and make advance alternate travel plans.

Pluskota completes U.S. Army training

Army Pfc. Joseph A. Pluskota has graduated from basic infantry training at Fort Benning, Columbus, Ga. During the nine weeks of training, the soldier received training in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, physical fitness, first aid and Army history, core values and traditions. Additional training included development of basic combat skills and battlefield operations and tactics and experiencing use of various weapons and weapons defenses available to the infantry crewman. He is the son of Tammie Pluskota of Marion. Pluskota graduated last spring from Crittenden County High School.

Healthcare providers named in lawsuit that alleges wrongful death

STAFF REPORT The mother and the estate of a deceased Dawson Springs girl has filed a lawsuit against Crittenden Health Systems, Dr. Tom Rousseau and two nurses, alleging medical negligence and wrongful death. The suit seeks unspecified compensatory and punitive damages. The civil action was filed last month in Crittenden Circuit Court by Curtis J. Hamilton III of Henderson, attorney for the plaintiffs. The suit was brought by the estate of Riley Ann McCaslin and Amanda McCaslin, her mother. The girl was born Oct. 4, 2004 at Crittenden Hospital with alleged complications that led to a diagnosis of cerebral palsy. Riley Ann McCaslin died on Oct. 17, 2008 at the age of four, allegedly from the complications of her birth. Crittenden Health Systems, which no longer provides labor and delivery services, has responded to the lawsuit, denying its negligence and liability. Paducah attorney James A. Sigler, counsel for the hospital and nurses, Rashelle Perryman and Yvonne Farley, has asked the court to dismiss the complaint. By nature, civil cases tell only one side of a story and do not indicate actual liability or wrongdoing.

Lewis, Clark trail expanded

The National Park Service Public held a meeting in Paducah last week to discuss the extension of the Lewis & Clark National Historic Trail to the East Coast.

The western Kentucky and southern Illinois area will become part of the Atlantic to Pacific trail because Lewis and Clark and the Kentucky men who joined them for their expedition traveled through this area along the Ohio River in 1803.

The trail would tie in with a number of area attractions including Fort Massac State Park. The mouth of the Tradewater River was mentioned by William Clark in his letters.

The group of explorers came down the Ohio River on their way to St. Louis and their trek to the Pacific Northwest. The trail is well marked from St. Louis westward. However, the eastern portion of their journey, while well documented, is only marked in a few places.

Chili supper to benefit Tony Floyd

A chili supper and silent auction is being organized to assist with medical bills and continued care for Crittenden County resident Tony Floyd, who is recovering from a serious injury at an Evansville hospital.

Friends and family have planned the benefit for 5 p.m., Nov. 20 at Deer Lakes Clubhouse in Salem.

Gift certificates and gift baskets, as well as other items are being donated by area businesses. Some sponsors include Full Body Fitness Studio, Bowtanicals, Lather and Light, Signature Salon, Salem Food Market, Celebrating Home/Just Jewelry, Mary Kay Cosmetics, Community Farm Store, Glenn's Pharmacy and J&J Farms.

Donations are still being accepted. If you are interested in assisting, or would like to make a donation, call Sandra Jackson at 508-1611 or Elizabeth Floyd at 704-6213.

Dear Friend,

The Crittenden County Unit of the American Cancer Society is sponsoring a Christmas Greeting program to appear in the December 16th issue of The Crittenden Press.

Greetings may be your Christmas message to the community, or in honor of someone living, or in memory of someone who had died. In order for us to compile the Greetings list, please send any donation you wish by Wednesday, December 1st, along with the form clipped from the bottom of this letter.

Every individual's life has been affected in some way by cancer. Great strides have been made in treatment, but more good news has been made from research. Through your help, your local unit of the American Cancer Society can help further these prevention methods.

The local American Cancer Society, Crittenden County Unit, is here to provide information on patient services available to anyone. You may also call 1.800.ACS.2345, which is answered 24 hours a day, 7 days a week by cancer information specialists. They will be able to provide you with information on cancer prevention, early detection and patient services.

Make your Christmas greeting donation to honor a loved one or friend.

Sincerely,
Crittenden County Unit American Cancer Society

Three best times for a big buck

STAFF REPORT

Everyone who throws a rifle over his shoulder and pulls on an orange cap in November has one thing in common – they all want a shot at a trophy buck.

There are three times when those bucks are most vulnerable,” said Philip Sharp, a Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife biologist who lives in Crittenden County. Unfortunately for hunters, one of those opportunities is long since gone. A second is just about over and the third is a month away.

Sharp, himself an avid deer hunter, says the three best times to score a big whitetail buck is early bow season, pre-rut and the secondary rut.

“Of course when rifle season hits, there is a disturbance factor for the first couple of days and deer are displaced from their normal activities,” Sharp said.

Big bucks can certainly fall victim in those vulnerable days in early rifle season, he said, but the smart money is always on those three periods he mentioned earlier.

Sharp explains that September bucks are on a feeding routine that can be patterned, making it possible for early bowhunters to bag a nice trophy. Secondly, archers spending time hunting the pre-rut have a good chance to arrow a monster because mature bucks will be after those earliest does that are ready for breeding.

By the time the rut is in full gear, mature bucks have taken to cover and move almost exclusively at night.

“After the first couple of days of rifle season with all that beating and banging and booming that goes on, the bigger deer really go nocturnal,” he said.

The best place to find a big-antlered buck that time of year is in thickets along roadsides, in the middle of large, open fields, barnlots and backyards, he said.

“A big buck will lay up in a thicket right beside of the highway. It doesn’t bother him, but hunters don’t like to sit in a stand with all that noise nearby,” Sharp said.

Look for the most unlikely places when you’re trying to bust a buck from cover during the rut, he said.

December is another great time to see big bucks when does that went unbred come back into estrus.

“That second rut gets overlooked by a lot of hunters,” Sharp said. “There are a lot fewer does in estrus and that’s when I find more buck sign, where mature bucks are making rubs and scrapes.”

Although he says the odds of taking a big buck can be nailed down to those three periods, Sharp admits the next trophy whitetail could be just over the next ridge at any time.

“You never know when or where the next trophy class buck will come from or from what part of the county,” he said.

Where have all the big bucks gone?

Wildlife professionals say many have gone to the deep South

STAFF REPORT

Ever wonder where all the big bucks have gone? Truth is, they've gone to Florida, Georgia, Alabama and the myriad of other states from where Crittenden County's new breed of hunter originates.

"Hunters have become more secretive," said Philip Sharp, a Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife biologist who lives in Crittenden County.

"Used to, if someone killed a 160 class or bigger

Be sure of what's behind your target when take a shot.

buck, why they'd hall it around on the tailgate for two weeks because they wanted everyone to see it," he said. "Now, these guys don't even want their families to know about it if they get a really big buck."

The reason? It's all about money.

Sharp, who closely follows trends in outdoor recreation, said hunters keep their trophies secret in order to protect their leases, and the prices they pay for them.

Fifteen or 20 years ago, there were only a few acres leased for hunting in Crittenden County. Those lands that were rented to hunters fetched about $2 to $5 an acre. Now, land leases for $10 to $25 an acre.

Jim Defreitas, a local real estate agent who brokers hunting land, said there's no question that hunters have gone underground when it comes to the bucks they're taking.

"They don't want to broadcast what they kill because they don't want someone else to come along and get their honeyhole," Defreitas said.

Sharp and Defreitas agree that much of today's hunting in Crittenden County is by residents of the deep South. Local hunters still lucky enough to have a place to hunt are also reluctant to publicize their success. Only a few years ago, the newspaper was full of hunters showing off trophy bucks. Nowadays, only a few trickle in at the newspaper.

"I have friends who come up here from Florida and they take very nice deer, but they load them in a truck and head back to Florida and very few people know what they've taken," Sharp said.

EHD still affecting buck population

STAFF REPORT

Rifle season opens Saturday for deer hunters and there is one thing that's almost certain on every farm in the county – there are fewer high-quality bucks running around.

Philip Sharp, a Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife biologist who lives in Crittenden County, said the Epizootic Hemorrhagic Disease (EHD) outbreak in the summer of 2008 has lightened the load.

"Right now there are fewer 2½ and 3½ age class and older bucks out there," Sharp said. "It takes four to five years to recoup the antlered deer population after EHD, but the does bounced right back."

What happened, Sharp said, is that the disease took what he thinks was up to 40 percent of the local herd, then hunters came along and bagged their customary one buck.

"When you figure natural mortality, hunters and EHD, it wiped out a whole age structure," he said.

Those effects are being felt this year, especially. A yearling buck that died from the disease in 2008 might have been a 130 class buck by now, if it had survived.

Sharp said hunters were reluctant to take antlerless deer following the EHD outbreak, fearful that they'd be putting too much pressure on a struggling herd. Quite the opposite effect has occurred, though. Sharp said the female population bounced back quickly and now the buck-to-doe ratio is as high as ever. He encourages all hunters to continue taking antlerless deer in order to improve the ratio, and therefore improve the quality of the buck population.

Leave fields to find deer this season

BY ART LANDER, JR.
KENTUCKY AFIELD

A huge acorn crop, the late arrival of cold weather and drought conditions across most of Kentucky could make modern gun season for deer a test for hunters.

Gun season opens statewide Saturday and continues through Nov. 28 in Zone 1-2 counties such as Crittenden and Livingston.

"It could be a tough season," said Tina Brunjes, deer and elk program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "That tests the ability of our deer hunters to adjust to unusual conditions."

With food plots shriveled up from the drought, small creeks and ponds bone dry, and food everywhere in the woods, hunters may have to abandon traditional stands bordering fields to find concentrations of deer.

With lots of food in the woods, deer don't have to move far. "Deer get picky when there are lots of acorns," said Brunjes. "The best bet might be to hunt near a white oak tree that's dropping acorns."

Another strategy could center on a water source actively being used by deer, such as a waterhole in a creek that is otherwise dried up. Other productive places are access routes to a river, lake or big pond, where deer travel to get to water.

"With warmer temperatures, and much of the greenery dried up, deer need a drink every day," said Brunjes. "They're going to water."

Modern gun season is the main event of Kentucky's deer season.

"It's the big driver in our overall harvest, the main part of deer season," said Brunjes. "If the season harvest is 110,000 to 120,000 deer, 83,000 to 89,000 of the deer are going to be taken with modern guns in November."

Brunjes is predicting a good deer season, within the harvest range of recent seasons, but acknowledges that weather conditions often have a negative impact on deer harvest.

For a majority of Kentucky deer hunters, November is the only month they hunt. For example, last season, 81,583 deer were Telechecked in November, or about 72 percent of the season harvest total of 113,585 deer.

Few hunters kill more than one deer. "It varies between one and two deer per hunter," said Brunjes. "In 2009, 78 percent of successful deer hunters killed just one deer for the whole season, and only two percent killed four or more deer."

In three of Kentucky's four deer management zones, the season limit is four deer. There is no limit on the number of antlerless deer (does) a hunter may take in the 36 Zone 1 counties, which have denser herds than management goals allow. Bonus antlerless-only deer permits are $15 each and allow hunters to take two additional deer.

Brunjes encourages hunters in the Zone 1 counties to keep the pressure on does through harvest to help control herd size. With a lower percentage of does in the harvest than normal last season (48,440 does, or 43 percent), and a good fawn crop this past spring, hunters should see lots of antlerless deer during gun season.

Hunters should read the deer regulations carefully since there has been a change in the zone status for 25 counties this season. Consult the 2010-11 Kentucky Hunting & Trapping Guide, or visit Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's website at:

fw.ky.gov.

Since the establishment of the one-buck limit in 1991, more hunters are passing up yearling bucks, so Kentucky now has an older age structure of bucks in its herd.

"Any county can harbor trophy deer, even those with low deer densities," said Brunjes. "We have good genetics in our deer herd."

The 41 Boone and Crockett-class deer listed in the 2010-11 Kentucky Hunting and Trapping Guide came from 33 different counties.

"The management strategy that brought us all this is still in place," said Brunjes. "The quality of our bucks has been building over the past 10 years, and the good thing about Boone and Crockett-class deer – they're a renewable resource."

Deer Expo Friday at Marion Baptist Church

The third annual Buck Expo and Deer Hunting Extravaganza will be held starting at 6 p.m., Friday at Marion Baptist Church's Family Life Center. The event will include an all-you-can-eat Italian dinner, door prizes and more. And it's all free. Giveaways will include a trophy deer hunt, muzzleloader, crossbow and other hunting gear. Guests will be able to test their skill and luck in scoring whitetail bucks. This is a faith-based event and will include a short program by area ministers.

Hunters should properly dispose of carcass

Hunters need to know the proper way to dispose of their deer carcass after processing, says the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Leaving the remains on the property where you harvested the deer is the best disposal method. If you are hunting on another person's property, ask the landowner where you can dispose of the deer's carcass and offer to bury it. Respect the landowner's wishes.

Deer hunters should never throw deer remains alongside the road or onto someone else's property without permission.

"Disposing of it on the side of the road is not a good idea, it is littering," said Tina Brunjes, deer and elk program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

"This practice makes hunters look bad. Nobody wants to see or smell a deer carcass. Be considerate of others."

"Just because you've taken a deer, that doesn't mean it's over," Brunjes said. "Disposing of the carcass is part of the process of deer hunting."

CWD concerns govern deer carcass issues

Hunters harvesting deer in Kentucky need to know whether it's okay to carry the carcass back to their home state. States throughout the country have varying laws regarding deer carcasses, largely due to the prevalence of Chronic Wasting Disease. Kentucky is not a known CWD state, but in some cases, that doesn't matter. Successful hunters from Illinois should know that it is illegal to bring the skull or spine of that animal back to or through Kentucky.

Hunters for Hungry accepts deer, donations

Crittenden County's Hunters for the Hungry is accepting donations of deer and money this hunting season. If you harvest a deer and would like to donate it, take the animal to Family Butcher Shop at 346 Rooster Lane off Ky. 654 North Monday through Saturday. Hunters for the Hungry operates on donations, so please give to the organization when you donate a deer. Your contribution helps pay processing fees. The venison is distributed by the Crittenden County Food Bank at the former health department building each month. If you want to be part of Hunters for the Hungry, call 704-0435.

Collaboration will reveal African American heritage

GOLDEN POND, KY – Quilters from Tennessee and Kentucky will collaborate with The Homeplace, located in Land Between The Lakes (LBL) National Recreation Area and Fort Donelson National Battlefield to design a series of quilts depicting the African American experience "Between the Rivers" (LBL), and the Civil War in Middle Tennessee.

The project, which is being sponsored by The Homeplace, Fort Donelson National Battlefield, and the Emmanuel Family Life Center Quilting Guild of Clarksville, will begin with a panel discussion on African Americans at Fort Donelson, Fort Henry, and "Between the Rivers."

Guest speakers will include Cindy Earls from The Homeplace; Nina Finley from the Houston County Historical Society; Susan Hawkins from Fort Donelson; George Sholar, a descendant of African American soldiers who were recruited at Fort Donelson; and Nancy J. Dawson, an African American Studies researcher and the project director.

In honor of African American History Month, the quilt exhibit will be displayed at various locations throughout Tennessee and Kentucky in February 2011, including schools, museums, and libraries. The quilts will be discussion pieces to help Fort Donelson and The Homeplace interpret the Underground Railroad in this area, the enslavement of African Americans, and their daily lives during the Civil War era.

The event is free and open to the public. Quilters and historians are encouraged to participate. For more information email Dr. Nancy J Dawson at efuanjd@yahoo.com.

Land Between The Lakes is managed by the Forest Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, in partnership with "Friends of LBL," to provide public lands outdoor recreation and environmental education. Additional LBL and "Friends of LBL" information is also available on our website or by calling 1-800-LBL-7077 or 270-924-2000.

Shop for the holidays on a budget

The holiday season seems to start earlier every year. However, preparing early for your holiday shopping can help reduce holiday stress and your after-holiday bills. According to the National Retail Federation, the average shopper spends $832.36 on holiday gifts, food, and decorations.

Before you start your holiday shopping, take time to develop a budget for gift-giving, food, and entertainment expenses. Planning ahead gives you time to shop for the perfect gift at the right price, maybe even on sale.

The first step in making a holiday budget is to make a list of all friends and family that you would normally purchase a gift, and then talk with other family members about setting a spending limit on gifts. This will help everyone budget and shop more effectively. Before heading out to the store set a dollar amount that you will spend on each person. Remember holiday sales can be tempting, but once you are in the store stick with your original budget.

You will also want to think about how you pay for your holiday shopping. You are less likely to overspend if you pay with cash, as opposed to using a credit card. Shopping with a credit card is very convenient, but since you cannot easily see how much you are spending, you are more likely to overspend.

If you are using cash, once all of your cash is gone, you are finished with your holiday shopping. Spending cash makes you much less likely to overspend. Another option to consider, many stores are now offering layaway plans. If you decide to use a store layaway options, be certain to check their return policy and keep track of all payments.

Realizing that everyone may be watching their budget a little closer this year, it may also be a good time to talk to your family and friends about setting new holiday traditions. Instead of traditional gift giving, consider a "Santa Swap," where you buy a gift for one person in the group instead of everyone.

In many families, people enjoy spending time together more than they do the actual gift received. You may consider a nice dinner out where each person pays for their own meal. Also, instead of one family member being responsible for the traditional holiday meal, consider a potluck so that everyone contributes to the expenses.

4-H hosting poinsettia fundraiser

Submitted by Bonnie Baker

The leaves are falling and there is a chill in the air. As hard as it is to believe, there will soon be snow falling and Christmas music in the air which means it is time to order your 4-H poinsettias!

4-H is a non-profit organization dedicated to the development of Crittenden County youth. All proceeds from the poinsettia sell will go to support the local 4-H council. These funds are then used to run programs for the county 4-H members such as communications day, variety show, camp and leadership events. Any support of the 4-H program is greatly appreciated!

The 4-H poinsettias will come in two sizes: a six-inch pot and an eight-inch pot. The six-inch pot is a single plant with four to seven blooms. The eight-inch pot holds two plants and will have 8-14 blooms. The plants also come in a range of colors including the traditional red, white and pink along with marble, jingle bells, peppermint and purple. The single plants are $10 and the double plants are $20.

4-Hers will be taking orders starting Nov. 1 through Nov. 19. If you have not met a 4-Her and would like to purchase a plant, contact the Extension Office. You will NOT have to pay for your plants until you pick them up.

Spooktacular costumes

Judges Andy Hunt and Jared Byford had a very difficult time selecting winners for the Halloween costume contest which was sponsored by Crittenden Health Systems Advocacy Council. The winners were (from left) Lauren Gilchrist, daughter of Jim and Alison Gilchrist; Shea Martin, daughter of Tony and Kristi Martin; Gunner Top, son of Will and Maddie Topp; and Cade Crider, son of Corey and Michelle Crider.

Brandi Potter (right) provided the program for the October Woman's Club of Marion meeting. Potter spoke on her local home business where she presses and preserves flowers from weddings, funerals and other special events. She displayed several pieces which have become lasting memories for the owner. Pictured with Potter is Nancy Hunt, president of the Woman's Club, and Mona Manley, Home Life and Program Chair for the meeting. For the community update at the meeting, Andy Hunt, chairman of the Community Healthcare Foundation, explained the objectives and needs of the foundation and how it can assist the local hospital.

Thank You To The Volunteers

Not enough good can be said about the men who freely volunteered their time, energy, skill and guidance to the Crittenden County 5th and 6th grade football team this year. Your patience and at times, sense of humor, is greatly appreciated.

I thank each of you very much. Our children are not only the future of Crittenden County football, but also Crittenden County. It's people like you who make a difference in a young child's life. Thank you again for all of your hard work.

A nation of gratitude for Veterans Day

One important date lies just around the corner. It's not so immediately practical, but its long term neglect will be calamitous.

The date to remember is Veterans Day, Thursday, Nov. 11. The consequences of forgetting Daylight Savings Time are inconvenient but seldom serious. The results of forgetting our veterans may not appear as quickly; but the long-term consequences

Dr. H. Wade Paris

Shepard's Call

Guest columnist

are grave. America's citizenry is indebted to its veterans. Let me paraphrase Winston Churchill. Never did so many (citizens, i.e. you and me) owe so much to so many (veterans).

I am not a veteran. My birth date made me too young for some conflicts and too old for others. It bothers me when I realize I am enjoying freedoms for which others fought and died. How should I respond to my indebtedness? I cannot repay the veterans, but I can be thankful. True thankfulness expresses itself in some fashion.

Expressing my thanks presents some problems. First, I could never thank all the veterans. They are too numerous; and many of the veterans, like my brother, my cousins and my father-in-law are dead and gone. Here is what I'll do — I will offer a prayer of thanks for those veterans I knew who have passed away. Perhaps they will hear it. To those still living, I will tender some tangible expression of thanks. To the many thousands I don't even know, be assured I am grateful for your sacrifice on my behalf.

A nation without gratitude is a disgraceful nation! (Psalm 79:13)

“And my God will supply all your needs according to His riches in glory in Christ Jesus.”

– Philippians 4:19

Rockets eliminated from playoffs 28-14

Bethlehem cashes chips on shoulder

MARION, Ky. – Short-handed and not sharp on offense, the Rockets were unable to match the intensity that unranked Bethlehem brought to the opening round of the Class A playoffs Friday.

The Eagles won 28-14 behind a stellar performance from senior quarterback Clay Owens, who rushed for 121 yards and threw for 75. For Bethlehem, it was deserved justice. The Eagles felt disrespected after finishing third in the Class A Second District and took out all their frustrations on ninth-ranked Crittenden County, a team that finished the game without four starters due to injuries and disciplinary measures.

"Our kids felt they were being overlooked and came down here with a chip on their shoulders. They came ready to play and gave it all they had," said first-year Bethlehem coach Ron Koontz. "All we heard over the last week was how everyone was getting ready for Holy Cross."

The Eagles had lost close district games to Louisville Holy Cross and Kentucky Country Day, partly because of injuries to stars like Owens. With everyone healthy, the Eagles used a strong running attack to move the chains, control the tempo and manhandle Crittenden up front. For their effort, the Eagles return to Holy Cross again next week for a regional semifinal.

"(Bethlehem) is big and physical up front. We had some guys in there who aren't used to playing those positions and they whipped us," Rocket coach Al Starnes said. "We couldn't run the ball, so we tried to throw it and had trouble doing that."

The Rockets managed a paltry 57 yards on the ground. Had it not been for senior Robert Cudnik, Crittenden would have been in deeper trouble. Cudnik caught five passes in the game for 68 yards. He snagged a first-period touchdown pass – his team's only score from scrimmage – and returned a kickoff with just under seven minutes to play to pull the Rockets within seven.

"Our hearts were in our throats when they returned that kickoff," the Bethlehem coach said. "But then we scored and that was a heart-breaker for them."

The Crittenden defense played with grit, but Bethlehem found running lanes with its spread offense, rolling up 16 first downs. Four Rocket turnovers, including three interceptions, helped the Eagles maintain control of the ebb and flow of the game.

"They wanted it and they had a heck of a quarterback," said Cudnik, who walked into the Bethlehem end-zone party after the game to shake hands with his victorious counterparts. "I went down there to show them respect."

The game was tight the whole way. Crittenden led 7-6 until right before halftime when Owens scored the second of his three touchdowns for a 14-7 edge at the break. He ran for the conversion, too.

A scoreless third period was dominated by defenses and Crittenden turnovers, but Bethlehem found its second wind late.

"Our defense kept us in it," Starnes said. "But you can't turn the ball over in a close game like that."

After Cudnik's kickoff return brought an uncommonly small home crowd to its feet, the Eagles responded. A short series later, they held the Rockets on downs with 2:13 to play near midfield then marched into the end zone with 1:24 to go to complete the upset.

While the Eagle coach said his team was healthy for the first time since Week 4, the Rockets were less than full strength. Two starters had been benched for violating team rules. First Team All West Kentucky Conference tackle Stephon Cozart broke his leg in the final regular season game and wasn't able to play, and senior Terry Werne was knocked in the third period with a rib injury.

"We were hurt by not having all of our team in there, but you have to give Bethlehem credit. They got just after us."

Crittenden finished the season with three straight losses, the longest losing streak since early 2007.

Blue Knights compete in Evansville Open

The Crittenden County chess team, the Blue Knights, traveled to Evansville Saturday where they competed in the Evansville Open.

The tournament allowed the team to play top-notch high school and adult players.

Micah Hollamon won the under-13 group with two and a half wins. Also playing were Cole Foster with two wins, Will Hayes and Korey Mayes with one and a half wins while Marcus Hughes won one game.

Also playing was Cameron McDaniel who played in the scholastic division for students only. He won three of four games, placing second.

The Blue Knights will need every bit of their gained experience as they compete in the Grade-Level Championships this Saturday in Louisville.

Quilt museum hosts appraisal day

The National Quilt Museum will hold a public Appraisal Day from 9 a.m.-noon, Nov. 18.

Nationally known appraiser Gerald Roy of Warner, N.H., will be offering professional assessments of quilts both new and old.

Each appraisal consists of a description of the quilt in terms of pattern, fabrics, techniques, quality of construction, condition, confirmation of information known by the current owner, replacement value and an approximate date of quilt.

To schedule an appointment, contact the museum at 442-8856 or email info@quilt-museum.com.

Sheriff-elect says goals are clear, simple

Davidson grew up in Marion

STAFF REPORT

Livingston County's sheriff-elect says he never dreamed of being a lawman or entering politics when he was a boy growing up in Marion.

Bobby Davidson's path to becoming perhaps Livingston County's first Republican sheriff is one carved by the hand of God, he says.

Running for public office was a hardening experience for the 42-year-old former rock quarry worker who admits he once lived an unassuming, somewhat secluded life. Being a member of the minority party in a county colored red for high school sports, but staunchly blue when it comes to politics made it even more difficult.

How he overcame it all is an amazing story.

"It's been a roller-coaster ride and one of the toughest things I've ever done in my life," said Davidson, who garnered 45 percent of the vote in a three-way race for sheriff last week.

VOTER DEMOGRAPHICS

In Livingston County there are 5,557 registered Democrats, 1,310 registered Republicans and 272 registered in other categories.

The smart money was on Democrat Jim Wilson to win the election in a county where Democrats outnumber Republicans 5-to-1. However, Jim Rundles, another Democrat who lost in the primary, decided to give it another try as a write-in candidate in the general election.

Davidson won the election by just 131 votes over Wilson, but Rundles picked up 557, perhaps swinging the election toward the underdog Republican.

Davidson says the old-timers tell him he might be the only member of the Grand Old Party to ever win a countywide election. He is certainly the first Republican sheriff in almost 100 years. Salem-area magistrate Brent Ferrell, also a Republican, made headlines when he first won four years ago. Ferrell was re-elected to a second term last week by an even larger margin against the same challenger, Larry Barnes, that he faced in 2006.

Davidson, a four-year deputy under four-term Sheriff Tommy Williams, said politics is tough business but he tried to make the race as nonpartisan as possible. He used a story while campaigning, telling voters that while patrolling the county as a deputy, he never considered a resident's political persuasion when responding to a call for help.

"I took that attitude on the road with me campaigning," he said. "My plan was simple, to treat people fairly, kindly and with respect."

"I truly believe that God put me through this (campaign) to prepare me for what's ahead, to make me

Bobby Davidson
Livingston Sheriff-elect stronger," he said.

Davidson, a member of Pinckneyville Baptist Church, says his faith has been a pillar of stone throughout the political process. His church has played a big role in making him the person he is today.

"Those wonderful people out there have always held me accountable. I am so blessed to have them," he said.

Davidson and his wife Rhonda live in the Cedar Grove community between Salem and Burna. Much of his support during the election came from the northeast part of the county. He won six of 10 precincts and was especially strong in Salem and Ledbetter. Davidson spent some time working for the Ledbetter Water District, which probably helped there.

Wilson, who lives near Lake City, ran strong in the southern part of the county.

Davidson was born in Crittenden County, but moved to Livingston just before starting sixth grade. He calls Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent one of his boyhood friends.

"I thought the world of him when we were kids," Agent said of his soon-to-be contemporary. "We played a lot of ball together and even shot pigeons sometimes."

Agent looks forward to developing a strong working relationship with his old buddy.

"I told him I would do whatever I could to help him get started. It's tough. I know because I was there, too," Agent added.

Davidson said his education in law enforcement has been largely hands-on since he joined the Livingston Sheriff's Department in 2006.

"When Tommy swore me in, it was the first time I had ever been in the courthouse," he said.

Since then, Davidson has logged countless hours in a cruiser, investigated some fairly high-profile cases and graduated from the state police academy.

His vision for the department is clear and it's something he promoted throughout the campaign. Davidson's goals are to be more active in the school system, work aggressively toward a drug-free community and to be fair to everyone.

Bennett is re-elected in Fredonia, Waide as Rep.

STAFF REPORT

Here are a couple of area election returns that are of interest to Crittenden Countians, but did not make last week's edition:

•Elbert Bennett won a re-election bid for District 1 magistrate in Caldwell County last week. Bennett, a Republican, soundly defeated Democratic challenger Ty Englebright 773 votes to 260.

Bennett won another four-year term to serve the residents of northwest Caldwell County, which includes Fredonia, where he farms.

Bennett is also treasurer for the Kentucky Magistrates and Commissioners Association. His daughter teaches school in Crittenden County.

•In Madisonville, Republican Ben Waide won the 10th District Kentucky House seat that was vacated by retiring Democratic Rep. Eddie Ballard.

Waide was a youth minister in Marion during the 1980s, serving at Marion United Methodist Church.

First graders at Crittenden Elementary were rewarded Thursday with tent reading in the front yard of the school after meeting their goal of 200 points in the Accelerated Reader program. Parent volunteers like Marcy Brown (second from left) helped make s'mores and set up five tents, where students spent 30 minutes reading with their peers and parents. Here, Hadley Rich and Raina West are easily entertained by reading the book "We're Going on a Bear Hunt," as their classmate Callie Brown and her mother listen.

Henderson plans tribute to 9/11

A western Kentucky city is set to consider creating a memorial to people killed in the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks using a steel beam from the World Trade Center.

A Henderson firefighter plans to pitch the idea to the Henderson City Commission on Tuesday. In a memo to the commission, Chad Garrett says the beams are provided at no cost on the condition they are used solely for memorials and not for profit. The Henderson Fire Department has already been given conditional approval to receive the beam.

Garrett told The Henderson Gleaner that the memorial would be constructed in front of the flagpole at Starlite Fire Station, which is already lit.

Garrett said about $2,000 would be needed to build the memorial.

TO THE VOTERS IN DISTRICT #1 (PRECINCTS 2 AND 11)

- Thank you for your support!!
- Thank you for allowing me to put signs in your yard.
- Thank you for inviting me into your homes and discussing the issues important to you and your family.
- Thank you for allowing me to represent you as magistrate of District #1.

Over the next four years my goal is to be a voice in District #1 and to earn everyone's trust and confidence. I want to be available to serve you. I humbly thank you for your support.

Fivestar names new Marion manager

Long-time Fivestar Food Mart manager Kenny Floyd retired on Oct. 29, and Rochelle George has stepped in to fill that position.

After starting out four years ago in the Marion location as Floyd's assistant manager, George has since worked her way into a leadership position, having managed both Kuttawa and Calvert City Fivestars. After finding out about Floyd retiring and the position that was opening here, she decided to apply.

"This is where I wanted to

be," George said. "I already know a few of the employees since I worked with them four years ago and it's closer to home now that I live in Salem. I like being in a small community."

Already George has new plans for the convenience store, but one thing will remain the same and that's Crittenden County Lions Club held a demolition derby on Saturday, Oct. 23 to benefit the Sosh Family. Brian Sosh, a member of the Lions Club, was killed in a tree-cutting accident last month, and the club decided to donate all of its profits from the derby to his widow and three children. Club members are pictured handing a check for $6,800 to Farmers Bank President Wade Berry. The bank administers the Sosh Memorial Fund, and contributions are still being accepted. Pictured from left are Lions Mickey Alexander, Zac Greenwell, Berry, Jim Johnson, club President Jeff Ellis and Perry Newcom.

THANK YOU!

I take this opportunity to say thank you to the citizens of Crittenden County for the overwhelming support you have given me by casting your ballots and allowing me the privilege of representing you as the next Crittenden County Judge Executive. Thank you to everyone who assisted with my campaign in any way. I am sincerely appreciative of the opportunity that you have given me to serve on your behalf.

As I have stated during the campaign, we are certain to face numerous challenges during the next few years. However, I firmly believe that working together we will meet these challenges and make Crittenden County stronger in the process.

As a final note, I would like to ask that you pray for our nation, state, and especially our county and the leadership that has been elected to manage each office. We are one nation under God and will rely on His guidance. Thank you very much!
