It is a family-friendly show and everyone is invited.

Offices schedule
holiday closings

Though the courthouse and judge-executive's office will remain open all day next Wednesday, all other courthouse offices will be closing at noon for the Thanksgiving holiday. The offices will reopen the following Monday. Meantime, Marion City Hall and all state offices will be closed Thanksgiving Day and Black Friday. Only Thanksgiving Day is a federal holiday, so mail will be halted only on Thanksgiving Day. Crittenden County schools are closed for the holiday beginning next Wednesday. They return to class the following Monday.

Food Bank offers groceries Friday

Crittenden County Food Bank will be distributing groceries from 8 a.m., to noon Friday behind the former health department on North Walker Street in Marion. Last month the food bank fed 256 families that included 627 people. Since July, 928 families have picked up food, sustaining 2,305 individuals.

Clarification

A caption under a photograph in last week's edition of The Crittenden Press may have been misleading. Tammy O'Neal-Robertson, chief deputy of Crittenden County Detention Center, was not among those receiving a GED. She was part of the jail's support staff who facilitated the courses offered for inmates to receive GEDs. The adult education center's phone number printed was also incorrect. The center can be reached at 965-9435.

Turnout poor for set meetings tied to fate of EMS

STAFF REPORT
There doesn't seem to be much interest from the public in the fate of the county's ambulance service, at least not when judging by the attendance at two recent meetings designed to inform citizens and political leaders about the emergency medical service's finances and operations. Crittenden Health Systems (CHS) has already held two of three scheduled public meetings to offer details for consideration related to its request for financial aid from the fiscal court. Hospital officials claim EMS is near flat-lining — losing $229,000 in the last fiscal year alone — and is draining the hospital of funds to just keep the ambulance department afloat. Two people affiliated with neither hospital staff nor the fiscal court showed up at Monday's lunch meeting. EMS director Kevin Hilkey went ahead with an abbreviated version of a more formal presentation given last week. Fewer than 10 unaffiliated people attended that meeting. "I can't understand why people don't seem to care," said Margaret Gilland, one of the two from the general public to show at Monday's meeting, and even she is a CHS Auxiliary volunteer. She is clear on where she stands with aiding EMS: Do what it takes to keep it here. "I'll move if we lose it," she said. "I'm not going to live somewhere with no ambulance service. I don't know where I'll go, but you can bet they'll have an ambulance." No discussion of funding EMS occurred during Tuesday's fiscal court meeting. Thus far, only magistrates Jeff Ellis and Donnetta Travis have attended the CHS meetings. Each attended both. Judge-Executive Perry Newcom has had scheduling conflicts during the previous meetings, but plans to attend the final one set for 7:30 a.m., Friday at the Ed-Tech Center. County Attorney Rebecca Johnson and other magistrates have also pledged to attend the public presentation, but Dan Wood has a conflict and Curt Buntin is hospitalized with a broken leg. All five magistrates at Tuesday's court meeting said they've gotten little unsolicited feedback on funding EMS. "When I have, it's all the same response," said Ellis. "No one wants to lose (EMS), but nobody wants to pay more to keep it."

Operator of Marion smoke shop jailed

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal holds up evidence confiscated from a September sting operation conducted at One Stop Smoke Shop in Marion. The items are believed to be synthetic marijuana, but no charges have been filed in regard to that matter. Test results are not available on the 7H product.

Possible synthetic marijuana restocked at store

The man allegedly operating One Stop Smoke Shop on Sturgis Road in Marion was arrested last Thursday on a warrant from Union County. Police also say the business has restocked many of the items they confiscated two months ago, including what they think could be synthetic marijuana. U.S. 60 East particularly

STAFF REPORT
Over the past five years, U.S. 60 East has been among the most dangerous highways in Crittenden County. Particularly treacherous is the section between Rosebud and the Union County line, which has seen a number of accidents, including three fatalities. There have been five deaths on the entire length of U.S. 60 East between Marion and Sullivan since 2006. On the six-mile the stretch of highway between Rosebud and the Trade-water River at the county line, there have been 77 collisions involving motor vehicles. Of those, 21 were injury accidents with 25 people getting hurt, according to traffic figures provided by Keith Todd, spokesman for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. The latest fatality was on Oct. 31 and involved a Morganfield man driving a semi pulling a trackhoe on a trailer. His rig was struck by a dump truck that investigators believe overturned after the driver lost control of the vehicle loaded with almost 30 tons of asphalt. Todd said most of the wrecks — 47 of them — in that area of the county are related to drivers running off the highway. Only eight crashes involved deer and in five, alcohol was believed to have been a factor. "Generally, where there's a straight stretch of road and curve, there tends to be a number of accidents because people tend to drive too fast on the straight road," Todd said. All three deaths on the half-dozen-mile stretch of the farthest reaches of U.S. 60 East in Crittenden County have occurred within a very small area near the intersection of Blackford Church Road. The highway there is much like Todd describes, with a

Fatal stretch

Five traffic fatalities have occurred on U.S. 60 East between Marion and Sullivan since 2006, including one just two weeks ago. That stretch of road, as well as U.S. 641 south of Marion, are more heavily patrolled due to the number of wrecks recorded there.

4th of 5 charged in winter robbery incident at park sent to prison

STAFF REPORT
The fourth of five individuals charged in the armed robbery that happened last winter at Marion-Crittenden County Park has now been sent to prison. The fifth suspect, still in high school, pleaded guilty last Thursday in Crittenden Circuit Court, but he will not be sentenced until he finishes his senior year. One of the teens, Anthony G. Williams, 19, of Eddyville was sentenced last week in Crittenden Circuit Court to five years in prison on an amended charge of facilitation to first-degree robbery, a Class D felony. An additional charge of first-degree assault, a Class B felony, was dismissed as part of the plea agreement. Williams received 87 days credit for time served following his arrest. Prosecutor Zac Greenwell opposed probation, and Judge Rene Williams ordered the defendant into the custody of the Kentucky Department of Corrections. The park incident occurred on a snowy afternoon last February when local police and Detective Robbie Kirk of the Pennyryle Area Narcotics Task Force had arranged to secretly observe the purchase of a large amount of marijuana at the park. The police were hiding nearby when Williams showed up as a passenger in a car driven by the task force's cooperating witness. Police say that Williams and four other men from Eddyville had devised a scheme to rob the informant of cash he was carrying to complete the drug deal. The other four showed up at the park in a borrowed car. The assailants were armed with a black powder rifle, but it was used as a club rather than a firearm. When police converged on the robbery, some of the suspects tried to run or leave the scene by vehicle. Warning shots were fired by police and eventually all five suspects were taken into custody. Dillon R. Phelps, 18, who was just 17 when the park robbery occurred, pleaded guilty last week, but Judge Williams will not formally sentence him until after he graduates from high school. Phelps had been certified as an adult under the youthful offender statute. He pleaded guilty to an amended charge of facilitation to commit first-degree robbery, a Class D felony. A second charge of complicity to first-degree assault was dismissed. The commonwealth has recommended five years in prison for Phelps, too. In other cases before Judge Williams last week: ■ Curtis R. Smith, 25, of Lyon County pleaded guilty to fourth-offense DUI and second-offense driving on a DUI-suspended license. He will be formally sentenced on Dec. 5. Court records say he blew a 0.212 on the alcohol breathalyzer Sept. 20 at the detention center following his arrest in Marion on a charge of DUI. That's more than two and a half times the legal limit of 0.08. ■ Crystal Travis, 42, of Marion was sentenced to three years in prison for two counts of trafficking in a controlled substance (Klonopin) within 1,000 yards of a school. She had originally also faced a persistent felony offense charge, but it was dropped as part of a plea agreement.

Feedback, input continue to move district forward

Each school year since I have been the superintendent, we have convened a group of stakeholders together twice a year for feedback and input. Typically this group meets after our assessment results come out in the fall and prior to the end of the school year in the spring. The group is called the "Council of Councils" and consists of the following groups of stakeholders: SBDM council members from each school, PTA parent representatives, student council officers/representatives from each school, school level administrators, district level administrators, the Crittenden County Board of Education members, and the Superintendent.

These meetings provide such a rich, unique opportunity for all of these individuals to hear a "Hot Topics" presentation that consists of district initiatives and school strategies and progress and then to hear strengths and suggestions for continued improvement from students and parents.

The district program updates included the following topics:

- Crosswalk Learning Center report
- Hybrid bus purchase
- Local Planning Committee (LPC) process
- 2012-14 calendar information
- 2011 Kentucky assessment results
- Technology advancement
- College/career readiness plans

Feedback critical to future

As you can see, our conversations at these Council of Councils sessions are rich and full of sharing amongst students, parents, board members, administrators and teachers. What I hoped to accomplish by summarizing the highlights of the discussion was to provide you with some sense of the topics and dialogue that occurs during these sessions. We certainly appreciate the honest, open feedback from all stakeholders. It serves to help us to continue to improve and provide the highest quality of education possible in Crittenden County.

When giving thanks next week, don't forget Kentucky farmers

It's easy to take agriculture for granted. Most Americans can find all the food that we ever could want just a short drive away, no matter where we live. For most of us, it has always been this way. We have come to expect it, and we may fail to appreciate the complex, efficient system that makes that possible, or the people who make that system work.

That system consists of a diverse mix of professions – processors, truckers, wholesalers and retailers, as well as advertisers, researchers, brokers and bankers – whose combined efforts result in all those gleaming stores with shelves overflowing with food. But, of course, it all starts with the farmer.

Farmers provide us the safest, most abundant, and most affordable food supply in the world as well as many other products that we depend upon for our quality of life. Here in Kentucky, farmers are our friends and neighbors, our community leaders, people we see at church and at the store and at the game. Many of their farms have been in their families for generations, even centuries.

Farmers must endure economic uncertainty, unfavorable weather, physical dangers, and other risks that most of us could not bear. For them, it's just part of the job.

I consider it a privilege to have met many farmers in my nearly eight years as your commissioner of agriculture. I have found them to be smart, resourceful, resilient, and absolutely dedicated to their noble work. I have forged friendships with many of these fine men and women that I hope will last the rest of my days.

Farmers are the center of a far-reaching team that produces and delivers America's food from the farm to our tables. Like any other great team, this team works together, each individual filling his role and bringing her strengths to bear, to achieve a common goal.

This Thanksgiving, as you express your gratitude for the blessings in your life, please join me in saying a prayer for our farmers and everyone else who makes it possible for us to enjoy an abundant feast on this holiday and every day.

2011 Christmas can start new trend

To the editor

Someone e-mailed the following to me, and I think bears repeating. I have no idea whom to credit for the original authorship, but it's right on point.

As the holidays approach, the giant Asian factories are kicking into high gear to provide Americans with monstrous piles of cheaply produced goods – merchandise that has been produced at the expense of American labor.

This year will be different. This year Americans will give the gift of genuine concern for other Americans.

There is no longer an excuse that, at gift-giving time, nothing can be found that is produced by American hands.

Yes there is!
It's time to think outside the box, people. Who says a gift needs to fit in a shirt box, wrapped in Chinese produced wrapping paper? Everyone – yes everyone – gets their hair cut. How about gift certificates from your local American hair salon or barber? Gym membership? It's appropriate for all ages who are thinking about some health improvement. Who wouldn't appreciate getting their car detailed? Small, American-owned detail shops and car washes would love to sell you a gift certificate or a book of gift certificates.

Are you one of those extravagant givers who think nothing of plonking down the Benjamins on a Chinese-made flat screen? Perhaps that grateful gift receiver would like his driveway sealed, or lawn mowed for the summer or driveway plowed all winter or games at the local golf course. There are millions of owner-run restaurants – all offering gift certificates.

And, if your intended isn't the fancy eatery sort, what about a half dozen breakfasts at the local breakfast joint. Remember, folks, this isn't about big national chains – this is about supporting your hometown Americans with their financial lives on the line to keep their doors open.

How many people couldn't use an oil change for their car, truck or motorcycle done at a shop run by the American working guy? Thinking about a heartfelt gift for mom? Mom would love the services of a local cleaning lady for a day.

My computer could use a tune-up, and I know I can find some young guy who is struggling to get his repair business up and running.

Okay, you were looking for something more personal. Local crafts people spin their own wool and knit them into scarves. They make jewelry and pottery and beautiful wooden boxes.

Honestly, people, do you really need to buy another 10,000 Chinese lights for the house? When you buy a $5 string of lights, about 50 cents stays in the community. If you have those kinds of bucks to burn, leave the mailman, trash guy or babysitter a nice big tip.

You see, Christmas is no longer about draining American pockets so that China can build another glittering city. Christmas is now about caring about us, encouraging American small businesses to keep plugging away to follow their dreams. And, when we care about other Americans, we care about our communities and the benefits come back to us in ways we couldn't imagine.

This is the new American Christmas tradition. This is a revolution of caring about each other, and isn't that what Christmas is about?

Recent ad factual, not satirical, silly

To the editor

In reply to Ken Crider's letter in The Crittenden Press on Nov. 10, I encourage readers of it to take Mr. Crider's opinion of the ad he referred to and compare them with the context of the front page Early Bird ad on Nov. 1.

He called the author of the information, "anti-communist."

Mr. Crider, you do not seriously think anyone else would look for the truth in this matter, do you?

It is a fact that Dr. Skousen, while born in Canada, of American parents, left Canada at age 10.

Mr. Crider said that (Skousen) was a "Mormon." I guess we can all mark Mitt Romney off the ballot. And what about John Kennedy? He'll never do. He was Catholic, you know. By the way, I voted for John Kennedy.

Then there are the points expressed by the sources in Mr. Crider's letter. After reading the reports Mr. Crider referred to, I believe the sources had a problem with Dr. Skousen's position. It seems that Dr. Skousen was too "anti-communist" for them.

In 1972, Dr. Skousen organized a non-profit educational foundation named "The Freeman Institute." Later changed to "The National Center for Constitutional Studies," Dr. Skousen and his staff became the nation's leading organization in teaching seminars on the Founding Fathers and the U.S. Constitution. His book, "The Making of America," has been used nationwide to educate students on the original intent of the founders.

While the list in the ad was only part of a list of 45 items, the entire list of communist goals was read into the Congressional Record of The United States of America on Jan. 10, 1963 (Appendix, pages A34-A35.)

The goals, as laid out in The Early Bird ad, have facts – like it or not – in order to prove the point of the ad.

While both political parties have those seeking a "social agenda" for the United States, only one party has a swinging door policy for the union's leadership and their social agenda. That party is now in charge of the White House.

I would be willing to debate Mr. Crider on these issues at his convenience.

Before I get hate mail or calls at 2 a.m., concerning my comments about the union leadership, let me say I am not against working men and women. I was and am one. It is the union leadership and their political connection to the Democratic Party I have a huge problem with. That is another debate I would love to have with Mr. Crider.

I stand by every word in The Early Bird ad and believe me, Mr. Crider, there is nothing "funny" about it.

won't be left in the dark to find her own way. Once a week, Manley will stop by to help Hodge.

Serving as the center's director since 1996, Manley said that she's excited to be retiring but also a little sad.

"I'm going to miss everyone here, including the seniors and the staff," she said. "There are still three senior citizens who have been active in the center since I started in 1996. Once you work here and get to know those that you see on a daily basis, you grow attached. I'm really going to miss them but I'm sure I'll see them from time to time."

While Hodge says its too early to really have any plans or goals for the center as the new director, she does intend on picking up where Manley will leave off.

"I think this will be a really en-

This is an eight-week certification course offered online through the University of Southern Indiana. Turley's next step will be completion of a certificate in diabetes education. Both certifications indicate a devotion to better education and management of diabetic patients.

Senior Citizen Center hires new director

Since Wednesday, a new face had been seen around the Crittenden County Pennyryle Allied Community Services Senior Citizen Center. With the retirement of Mona Manley, Crittenden County native Mildred Hodge has assumed the position of the center's director.

Residing in Florida, Hodge has been a park manager for a 68-acre state park, Hickory Point Recreational Facility, and also served as a volunteer at a senior center, delivering magazines. Hodge moved to Florida during her five-year stint in the military and has been there since except for two months ago when she moved back to Crittenden County to help with her parents' farm.

Reading through the paper, Hodge learned of the open director position and decided to apply, going through two interview processes — one in Hopkinsville through the PACS office and again with Manley. After meeting in person, the two soon discovered they had graduated together in 1980.

"We didn't recognize one another until we introduced ourselves," Manley said.

"Even then I had to look her up in the yearbook," Hodge added.

After a successful interview and a brief reunion, Hodge was offered the position of director and has been training with Manley since Monday. Though familiar with senior centers because of her volunteerism, Hodge is amazed by the number of services offered in the local center.

"I'm still learning about all of the programs that operate out of here but I think it's amazing to have it all centralized," Hodge said. "I'm glad the center is here to be a filtering system for so many programs."

Because of the number of services rendered through the center like the Commodity Food Supplement Program, congregate meals, transportation and more, Manley said it will take some time to fully get a hang of it but also added that she is confident that Hodge will be a great fit.

"I know she'll do just fine," Manley said. "She'll do a great job and hopefully will have new and refreshing ideas to help generate more people in coming here."

"It can be overwhelming because people don't realize how busy we are but I think that she'll do fine and will fit right in."

Due to the extent of services offered, Manley said that Hodge

Britton fills vacancy in Marion church

By DARYL K. TABOR
MANAGING EDITOR

It's not often you find an Army colonel behind the pulpit. But that's exactly where you will find Col. Mike Britton every Sunday, bringing the message to the small congregation at Marion Christian Church where he began as minister just a few weeks ago.

Britton is not your typical colonel in the military, leading troops into battle or commanding training exercises on base. In fact, he can't even carry a firearm when on duty. Likewise, he's not your typical pastor.

Britton is currently a chaplain in the Army Reserve after a long chaplaincy in the active duty Army. Though he chose to finish out a 30-year career in the Army as a reservist, Britton continues to work for the Army in a civilian role as director of Fort Campbell's Soldier and Family Assistance Center (SFAC). The center is what the 55-year-old calls a one-stop shop for providing service, support and programs to seriously wounded or ill soldiers and their families. The facility implements more than 20 unique warrior transitional services to help them with rehab and transitional issues concerning a return to duty or civilian life.

"It's real interesting work," Britton said of the SFAC's role. "We're doing all we can to help the person recover."

Fort Campbell's state-of-the-art SFAC directed by the colonel is second in size only to the one at Fort Bragg, Texas.

Back in his military role, Britton's duties have been to serve as counsel to the greenest private to the most decorated general. Though an ordained Christian minister for 34 years, in the Army, he may be called upon to provide direction to people of many faiths, perhaps even those without any faith.

"God comes in different forms and fashions," he said of the different faiths of soldiers he counsels. "It's very rich in working with people from various faiths. It can cause you to look at things differently."

Since the first Sunday in October, he has been bringing that unique perspective to the congregation of Marion Christian Church as their regular pastor. Britton has already found the job at the tiny West Bellville Church to be rewarding.

"I feel honored and blessed to serve them," he said.

And the feelings seem to be reciprocal.

"I really think he's going to fit in really nice," said long-time parishioner Pat Carter. "He does a good job."

"For me, I find this congregation to be very intellectual, insightful and reflective," Britton offered. "People of that nature are pretty fascinating."

Col. Mike Britton

Carter believes his style and personality could bridge several generations.

"I think the young people would enjoy him," she said.

The Terre Haute, Ind., native certainly has the resume for the job. He holds three civilian degrees — a bachelor's degree and a master's and doctorate in theological studies. Britton also boasts graduate studies at elite institutions of higher learning like Vanderbilt and Princeton universities in the U.S. and Oxford University in England.

Britton's civilian theological work includes several student ministries while in college and seminary as well as senior, associate and youth minister positions at churches in Kentucky, Tennessee, Michigan and Oklahoma. He has also served as chaplain in health-care environments.

Though technically civilian at his current job, Britton must still abide by all Army regulations as if he were still active duty.

"When you're a civilian in the Army, you're still in the uniform," he said.

It's a role he's comfortable with since first choosing to take his zeal for God into the military.

"I felt called or destined to do it," he said.

Again, an impressive list of military work and studies shows that dedication.

He graduated seminary in 1982, the same year he completed chaplain officer basic training, the first of numerous Army chaplaincy and battle-related training programs he would finish. Needless to say, most congregations like that at Marion Christian Church would be hard-pressed to find a pastor who has completed air assault school, U.S. Army War College and jungle warfare and survival training. Britton has also been schooled in prison ministry.

But as a chaplain, serving both the Department of Defense and God has had its challenges.

"Sometimes you find yourself in conflict," Col. Britton said.

The Army chaplain has spent three decades helping those in uniform deal with personal crisis, spiritual doubt, fear and relationship problems, not unlike what clergy in the civilian world face. Bringing God to the soldiers and soldiers to God can present a more unique challenge, however, particularly in combat situations.

"You see a lot in war people don't feel great about," he said. "When you're a chaplain, you have to come to some terms with that."

In 2003, Col. Britton was himself injured in Iraq.

Adhering to the Army Chaplaincy's motto, "For God and Country," can carry a heavy burden. So, to unwind, Britton found that playing basketball was an escape, even terming it as "somewhat a religious experience."

"When I'm playing basketball, I'm not a chaplain or dad," he said. "I found it cleansing."

Though a serious foot injury almost ended his days on the court, he was able to rebound with a newfound spirit.

"I learned to really appreciate basketball," he said.

So, at 5 a.m., on Tuesday and Fridays you may find him playing basketball in a gym, but his Sunday mornings are now set aside for Marion Christian Church.

Britton fills a vacancy left by former pastor Stanley Crabb. He lives in Hopkinsville with his wife Linda and seven-year-old son, Landon. His 21-year-old son, Josh, attends college at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond.

Local churches host Thanksgiving-themed worship service

STAFF REPORT

Rev. Wayne Garvey's community Thanksgiving message will carry a "What do I have to be thankful for" theme.

During lean economic times, Garvey says it's especially important to count our blessings.

The one-hour worship service will be held at 7 p.m., Tuesday at Marion United Methodist Church. Everyone is invited.

One blessing, Garvey says, is the renewed interest in community worship itself. At the service, an offering will be taken to benefit the local Penryle Allied Community Services program. The program helps people in Crittenden County with a variety of needs, including clothing, food and other services.

There was no community Thanksgiving service last year, so Garvey and fellow pastors who make up the Crittenden County Ministerial Association hope attendance will be great. The service will include pastors Mike Jones of Marion Baptist, Dee Ann Thompson of Marion Cumberland Presbyterian and Terra Sisco of Sugar Grove Cumberland Presbyterian churches. Special music will be led by George Hollis, who will bring along his saxophone.

Garvey says the community service is the first project by the ministerial association in some time. The association has been largely dormant the last few years. It once included about 25 to 30 active members. The Methodist church minister hopes the community worship service will lead to a greater presence in the community by the association.

Crayne church changes name

STAFF REPORT

Crayne Presbyterian Church (USA), a longtime member of the Western Kentucky Presbytery and the national Presbyterian Church (USA), has severed ties to the national church and changed its name. The church will further be known as Crayne Community Church.

The change apparently stems from a controversial change in policy by the parent organization.

"Earlier this year, the national Presbyterian Church

(USA) voted into effect potential practices that completely contradict the teaching of the Bible, which the Crayne church holds as our standard of living," Bro. Tommy Hodge, pastor of the local congregation, wrote in a letter to The Crittenden Press.

Though Hodge made no specific reference to such, in October, the national church ordained its first openly gay minister in a ceremony in Wisconsin. The Presbyterian national assembly last year endorsed removing a rule that banned openly gay men and lesbians to serve in the church. The change was approved in May by a majority of the 2.3 million-member denomination's 173 regional church bodies.

"We felt led by God to take a stand against this moral decline," Hodge wrote.

Incidentally, the Western Kentucky Presbytery to which the Crayne church belonged, voted against lifting the ban.

Meantime, the Crayne congregation is not alone in its action. They join numerous churches across the country once affiliated with the 28-year-old organization who have voted to leave the national church.

"We want to let everyone know that our church hasn't changed and that all of you are welcome to come and worship with us anytime you have the opportunity to attend," Hodge continued. "Please pray for us as we continue to try and live like God would have us to."

Frances Presbyterian Church still belongs to Presbyterian Church (USA).

Rep. Whitfield among 248 millionaires on Capitol Hill

STAFF REPORT
Almost half of the nation's 535 representatives and senators are millionaires, according to personal financial disclosures compiled by the Center for Responsive Politics, a nonpartisan, independent research group in Washington, D.C.
Rep. Ed Whitfield, a Hopkinsville Republican in his 16th year of serving Kentucky's First Congressional District, is among 248 millionaires on Capitol Hill. According to the center, Whitfield was worth an estimated $2.79 million in 2010, almost four times the estimated median net worth of $756,765 for a congressman. He ranked third among Kentucky's six representatives.
But Whitfield's wealth paled in comparison to the riches belonging to California Republican Darrell Issa, who is worth an estimated $448.13 million. Florida Democrat Alcee Hastings was at the bottom of the list, estimated to be $4.73 million in the red.

On the other end of the Capitol, the Center for Responsive Politics shows top Senate Republican Mitch McConnell of Kentucky has an estimated worth of $27.21 million while fellow GOP Sen. Rand Paul is estimated to be worth a fraction of that at $774,009.
Only one percent of Americans enjoy millionaire status or better, reports the center. Meantime, the average American family had a net worth of $96,000 in 2009, according to the Federal Reserve Board.

Students raise money for March of Dimes

STAFF REPORT
November is March of Dimes Prematurity Awareness Month and Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) at Crittenden County High School have been busy helping out during a week-long fundraising event.
Throughout the week, FBLA members have been conducting educational activities and showing videos involving the March of Dimes, premature births, infant deaths and teen pregnancies, helping to educate and raise money for the March of Dimes.
The week-long fundraising will culminate with an assembly Friday in Rocket Arena. Open to the community, the assembly will be held from noon to 1 p.m., with admission being one dime per person. Additional funds are collected throughout the week by students taking donations toward individuals or groups who have volunteered to perform at the assembly. Potential performers include Al Starnes, the sheriff's department, principals from all three Crittenden County schools, retired teachers, Serena Dickerson and many others.

Created by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, March of Dimes was formerly known as the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. According to the March of Dimes website, the purpose of the organization was to help fund research for vaccines to help end polio, a disease that had crippled Roosevelt since childhood. As the organization became more successful, it focused on preventing birth defects and infant mortality, a cause that is close to the hearts of FBLA members according to high school teacher Amy Hardin.
"Numerous families in our community have been touched by premature births and infant deaths, and we want to help increase awareness by raising money to be donated to the March of Dimes to help future families have a happy ending," Hardin said.
FBLA has been involved with March of Dimes for several years, and this year's assembly will have a new feature. According to Hardin and FBLA members, a tribute will be given to all premature babies to honor those who have been lost to prematurity or a birth defect. They will also celebrate the babies who have survived and offer hope for those born in the future.

To signify this, a star with a baby's name or parents of a baby who was born too early will be placed on a wall during the assembly, and a candle will be lit in honor or remembrance of their life.
FBLA members, along with Hardin's family, are forming a team to participate in the March of Dimes walk held next May. If anyone is interested in participating or would like to know about lighting a star, call 965-2248.

‘Attitude’ in court earns man extra time

STAFF REPORT

A $19.94 cold check to Five Star Food Mart on Halloween came back to haunt a Princeton man, who is now serving six months in jail.

Thomas R. Irvin, 23, made a sarcastic remark to the district judge last Wednesday in court and was sent directly to jail.

Irvin, who according to other court records has previously resided in Marion, was ordered to jail on a charge of contempt of court after appearing initially in Crittenden District Court on a cold check summons.

It all started when Irvin displayed "an attitude" in front of the judge when pleading guilty to theft by deception for the bad check. As customary, the judge ordered the suspect to surrender his driver's license until restitution and court costs were paid on the cold check case. Irvin told the judge he didn't have his driver's license with him, so the judge ordered him to turn it over to the court clerk by 4 p.m., that afternoon, or else he'd issue a bench warrant for his arrest.

house, he got into a green Ford compact car and backed out of a court square parking space in front of Marion Policeman Chuck Hoover. The officer had been in the courtroom earlier and knew Irvin was not supposed to be behind the wheel. Hoover confronted him about driving and asked him to get out of the car and return to the courtroom.

Irvin became irate at that point and threw his car key into the street. Hoover then escorted Irvin back to the courtroom where he appeared before District Judge Daniel Heady.

"You displayed an attitude when the court accepted your plea earlier," the judge told

Irvin. "But I let that pass because maybe you'd had a bad day. Now, I understand you were driving when you left the courthouse."

At that point, Irvin raised his voice and asked, "You want me to walk to Princeton?"

For that, the judge told bailiffs to cuff Irvin and take him to jail for 180 days. It's the maximum duration a person can be jailed on contempt.

Irvin continued to verbally assault officers and jail deputies.

Owner of damaged logging tools offers reward

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County TipLine and the owner of logging equipment damaged and burglarized over the weekend are offering $1,000 for information leading to the arrest of individuals responsible.

Crittenden County Sheriff's Department is investigating the incident which occurred on Providence Road near the Webster County line.

The owner of a log truck and other equipment reported Monday morning that someone had stolen several batteries from his rigs and tried to burn the tractor-trailer parked at the logging site. The equipment belonged to John Travis Land and Timber Company.

Taken were several batteries valued at $800. The burglars also tried to burn the log truck by setting on fire a pile of gloves under the steering wheel. Fortunately, the fire smothered out inside the cab. Hoses under the dash were damaged by the fire and soot covered the interior of the cab. Damage to the truck was estimated at $400.

Anyone with information about the incident can call 965-3000 and remain anonymous.

Homemakers give gift of warmth

Morning Glories Homemakers in Crittenden County intend to help the children of the county stay warm this winter. The group has been crocheting matching hats and scarves for some time now, and will be donating them to children at the elementary school. Above, Ruth Robertson looks over one of the sets as the rest of the club sits down for last week's meeting. The first sets were distributed this week. Merle Myers estimates the homemakers have already crocheted 80 to 90 sets, adding that it takes about three hours to complete a hat and scarf. The crocheting is an ongoing project for the Morning Glories. Myers added that any donation of yarn would be greatly appreciated. Donations can be dropped off at the UK Cooperative Extension Service office in Marion.

Marion Terrors draw large crowds in 1928 season

From the archives of The Crittenden Press, comes another interesting story about the Marion Terrors football team.

Sept. 7, 1928

Record squad out for grid drill Tuesday. With August Throgmortom as coach, football practice was started Tuesday afternoon after several days of preliminary training and conditioning of the team, who returned from camp last Friday.

The first 30 minutes of the practice session Tuesday were spent in drills, followed by a one-hour scrimmage, the first real test to which the boys have been put this season. The practice ended with a few sprints the length of the field.

With the boys who reported from last year's squad and the new ones who came out for the first time, the squad's numbers have increased to 31. Throgmortom says, "if from these boys a quarterback can be found who can pass, punt and block, then a good many worries of the coach will be over, for the practice demonstrated the need of such a man."

After three weeks of hard training for the team, the time is drawing near for the opening game of the season, an encounter with Providence which will take place here on Sept. 21.

In the practice session last Friday, most of the time was spent in the offensive side of the game. The line formed in mid-season form, time after time opening up holes and allowing the backs to go thru untouched.

Just who is to do the punting and passing is still quite a worry to the coach. Jack Hina, Louie Perryman, Robert Hicklin, Rudell Butler and Jimmy Moore are all being tried for the job. Butler may get off a nice one on one trial but on the next try fails completely. If consistency can be developed, he will probably get the call for punting. Hicklin, Moore and Butler may alternate as passers.

The men are fighting hard for the different positions and it is hard to predict who will play and who will not. Elbert Guess and Vaughn Woodall are having it out for the center position. Guess is a more accurate passer and a smooth defensive man, but the superior weight combined with the playing ability of Woodall will make it hard to pick either man.

As guards Watson McCune, Marcus McNeely, Ralph Paris, Easley and others are having it out.

Paul Woodall, Jack Hina, Thomas, Agee and Sarrls have been best at tackles. Ireland Waters, Cook McNeely, Manley and Yandell are the most likely wingmen.

In the backfield, Captain Paris is leading his fellow back carriers in a splendid way. Other likely candidates for the backfield position are Hicklin, R. Butler, E. Butler, Perryman and Moore.

One of the most valued substitutes on the Marion High school football squad has one arm but despite that handicap makes an unusually good tackle.

The young man is Henry Yandell, son of Mr. and Mrs. T.C. Yandell of the Siloam community. He is a sophomore agriculture student.

Yandell lost his right arm in 1923 when it had to be amputated following a gun shot wound received while hunting. He now wears an artificial arm except while in football practice.

Young Yandell has learned to be a good left handed penman and drives a car to school each day. This is the first year that Henry has played football. He plays in the line as tackle and end where he is known for his speed and tackling ability.

The Marion Blue Terrors played the Providence Bulldogs in the opening game on Sept. 21. One of the largest crowds ever to witness a football game in Marion was present, for about 1,000 people crowded on the field to witness the opener.

The Terrors started off with a snap that would do credit to any team for the opening game; however, this did not last long but during this time Marion's lone touchdown was scored. From then on through most of the game the Terrors looked as if they were attending a funeral instead of playing a football game. The game ended with a tie score with Marion 6 and Providence 6.

Nov. 23, 1928

Play of Hicklin feature game. The last home game was played Nov. 17 against Tilghman High on Marion's field. Marion scored in the third period to knot the count, with Hicklin doing most of the ball carrying. As expected, the Tornados had plenty of trouble in stopping Hicklin, who carried the ball for gains of 209 yards. Guess, McCune and Hina were the bulwarks of the local forward wall and the Butler brothers made their opponents heave a sign of relief when injuries forced them from the game. Hicklin threw the ball to Kimsey, who stepped over the goal line for Marion's only touchdown. The Tilghman team won the game, 13-6.

Dec. 7, 1928

The 1928 football season for the Marion Blue Terrors closes Thursday with the annual Thanksgiving Day encounter with the Tigers of Butler High at Princeton. The game will take place on the Princeton athletic field on Nov. 29.

Princeton defeated Marion at football last Thanksgiving Day. The game this year is expected to draw the largest crowd of Marion people that has attended an out of town game this year.

The game is one of the most interesting ones for Princeton people, also, as according to the Princeton Leader, "Marion has been the main objective of the Princeton football campaign."

Terrors Victors Over Princeton. Marion's Blue Terrors swam their way to victory over the Princeton football team on Thanksgiving, knocking their boasts of superiority into a cocked hat and made them player was on the job from the kick off.

At a banquet last Thursday night at the Sunrise Cafe in honor of the football team, letters were awarded. Letters were given to Robert Hicklin, Ralph Paris, Rudell Butler, Everett Butler, Elbert T. Guess, James Ed Moore, Cook McNeely, Marcus McNeely, Vaughn Woodall, Paul Woodall, Jack Hina, Charles Sarrls, Ovid Kimsey, Ireland Waters, Louie Perryman and Venard Orr.

Rudell Butler was elected as captain for 1929 to succeed Ralph Paris. Venard Orr was manager of this year's team.

Marion is in sixth place among the teams in the Little Ten Conference according to the Dickinson system of scoring.

Hicklin was selected as half back on the all-conference eleven. Coach Throgmorton's Terrors have had a particularly successful season. Their record shows five games won, two tied and two lost. Following is the season's record. Providence 6, Marion 6; Sturgis 0, Marion 6; Morganfield 0, Marion 9; Henderson 13, Marion 6; Greenville 0, Marion 12; Central City 6, Marion 30; Dawson Springs 6, Marion 6; Paducah 13, Marion 6; Princeton 0, Marion 13.

Walk-away inmate caught fleeing town

An inmate who walked away Saturday afternoon from a work detail at the convenience center just outside of Marion didn't get very far along on his trip back home, said Jailer Rick Riley.

Calvin Mitchell, a state inmate at Crittenden County Detention Center, was caught hitchhiking along U.S. 60 East after slipping away from the job at the trash collection site. Deputy Sheriff Don Perry located the escapee near the intersection of Blackford Road an hour after he fled.

Riley said Mitchell, of Louisville, was chosen for the job because of his record and low risk to others. It was the first instance of an inmate walking away from a detail at the convenience center.

"He just had a little bit of build-up get to him, and he was on his way back to Louisville," Riley said. "Now, he's in worse trouble than what he was."

Mitchell was charged with escape by state police.

New judge selected to hear Hargis trials

A new judge has been appointed in the three cases involving former school superintendent Fredericka Hargis because the judge who had been hearing the lawsuits has now retired.

Hargis, who was fired in 2004, sued the Crittenden County Board of Education for breach of contract and wrongful termination. She also sued 13 individuals for defamation of character, but most of those defendants have been released by the court from liability. Those two cases account for the primary cases being transferred to Judge Hines' docket. A third case involves an insurance carrier for one of the defendants that seeks to be released from liability.

Senior Judge Jeff Hines of Paducah will preside over future matters in the cases. Senior Judge Stephen Hayden of Henderson had been hearing the cases.

In January, attorneys for the remaining defendants in the defamation case asked Judge Hayden to dismiss the suit for lack of prosecution. A ruling was never entered in regard to that motion.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals ruled earlier this year that federal civil rights issues of the former superintendent's case against the board of education had merit. It sent that portion of the case back to circuit court. The Court of Appeals did overrule the lower court's decision that the board of education was not entitled to sovereign immunity, which basically means it cannot be sued for such reasons.

State police invite farmers to program

The Kentucky State Police Commercial Vehicle Enforcement Division is partnering with the UK Cooperative Extension Service to provide a "Farmer Outreach" forum to forge enhanced relationships between law enforcement and the agricultural community.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p.m., Tuesday in Westside Church of Christ Fellowship Hall at 715 W Main St., in Elkton. Topics of discussion will include safety regulations, licensing requirements, driver qualifications and new legislation in effect for Kentucky farm operations.

curve on the easternmost end and slight turn and grade heading into what's known as Rosebud curve on the westernmost end.

Todd said the area is supposed to receive extra patrols because it's been identified as an area of high accident frequency by the Kentucky State Police. U.S. 641 south of Marion is also identified as an area where accidents involving speed are common.

Oddly, the traffic numbers on the outskirts of the county are much lower than near the city. Todd said about 1,650 vehicles pass through the Rosebud area on a given day. Those numbers on U.S. 60 East become greater closer to Marion. At Mattoon, the average daily vehicle count is 3,800. At the intersection of Harmon Drive, the road going into Greenwood Heights subdivision near the city limit, the traffic count is 4,103 per day. At Curve-Inn on Sturgis Road it's 9,089.

The vehicle count at the county line on U.S. 641 is 3,490.

A large quantity of similar merchandise was seized by police in September. It had not been returned to the store. Taken into evidence in September were four sets of digital scales, several sets of manual scales, 11 glass pipes, 13 one-hitter pipes, rolling papers, incense and 16 custom-made glass pipes that resembled figurines.

It's still unclear whether the sale of 7H is illegal in Kentucky; and whether the corresponding sale of alleged paraphernalia is considered illegal when offered and sold in the same location. Items commonly called paraphernalia can be legally sold if no illicit drug is offered in conjunction. That's why rolling papers and pipes can be sold legitimately.

Law enforcement say people are smoking 7H, or similar substances, and getting high. Some people have terrible reactions and end up in the hospital, Chief O'Neal said. There is a push in many municipalities to limit the sale of similar products. Owensboro and McCracken County became the latest to seek ways to prohibit the sale of what police say is indeed synthetic marijuana.

Locally, there's a movement to do whatever it takes to stop the sale of the alleged synthetic marijuana. Bryant said city councilmen have asked him to seek a solution.

"If we find that law enforcement doesn't have the power to keep this stuff out of our city, then we will adopt something legislatively to prohibit it," Bryant said.

phernalia. Samples of the substance from the packages labeled 7H were sent to the state police crime laboratory two months ago. Results are not yet available, Chief O'Neal said.

Walker, whose name is listed on the City of Marion Business License as operator of One Stop Smoke Shop, has not been charged in connection with the alleged synthetic marijuana known as 7H or possession or sale of drug paraphernalia. However, that investigation led to Walker's arrest last week on the probation violation because police say their investigation determined that Walker was indeed operating the tobacco store in Marion despite cursory attempts to conceal his involvement.

"He's the one who signed for the business license," the police chief said.

O'Neal said other evidence, points to Walker being the manager of the store.

Walker pleaded guilty in Union Circuit Court in 2009 to a variety of offenses related to the operation of a business under the corporate name of K.R.W., Inc., of Marion. According to court records, he failed to remit collected sales and payroll withholding taxes and wrote four bad checks to the Department of Revenue.

Walker pleaded guilty to four felony counts of theft by deception and eight felony counts and two misdemeanor counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of property. The court ordered him to pay $47,000 in restitution. A three-year prison sentence was diverted on conditions, including restitution at a minimum monthly rate of $1,000 and that he never operate at Kentucky business again.

Walker's daughter, Katie Walker of Herrin, Ill., is now listed as president of the Kentucky corporation K.R.W., Inc., of Marion, which owns the local smoke shop.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said One Stop Smoke Shop had been in good standing with the City of Marion. All its city taxes and license fees had been paid. It's not known whether state taxes and fees were being paid.

Police say 7H was being sold from under the counter at the smoke shop before they raided the store. They think it was sold for cash and have questioned whether sales tax was collected on those transactions.

Chief O'Neal said he went to the Marion store last week and found that 7H and other items such as pipes and one-hitters had been restocked. The pipes were displayed on the shelves, but the 7H was in a drawer. He said the store had some of it in a drawer near the front door and more in the back. He did not confiscate the material, but said the clerk on duty bagged it all up, as well as some of the pipes, and took it away from the front of the store.

Whitetail Tip of the Week

It's on! Deer hunters are moving into the most important period of the entire hunting season – the rut. Bucks have completed their pre-rut rituals of staking claim to turf, marking it and establishing dominance. Now, it's time for hunters to take advantage of the aggressive daytime movements of mature bucks. Big bucks seldom travel or feed during daylight hours. Now, they are forced from the cover of darkness by a natural urge to breed. This puts them in a vulnerable situation. Here are some tips for the coming days: Stay clean, reduce human scent, avoid touching vegetation while going and coming from stands. Avoid getting too close to buck sign. If you see a scrape or rub, admire it from a distance, then move away. Do not walk near or touch either. Pay attention to rub and scrape lines. Several tree rubs or ground scrapes on a particular trail is good indication that a buck will be returning to that area. Keep your grunt tube handy. This is the time of year to challenge mature bucks by mimicking their sounds. It doesn't always work, but when it does it's like magic. Good luck during rifle season and remember, always be certain of your target before you pull the trigger.

Rockets find stable orbit with new skipper

BY DEREK MCCREE
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

The coaching carousel has come full circle for the Rocket basketball team, which has had four head coaches in four years.

Now, a program searching for stability has probably found it in lifelong Crittenden Countian Denis Hodge, who was a Rocket assistant on some of the greatest teams in recent memory.

Hodge, whose wife Shannon is the girls' coach, is a fixture in Crittenden County athletics where he is already a member of the hall of fame.

Hodge replaces Brad Fraser, who was head coach just one season after taking over for another one-term skipper Chad Hayes.

Like any coach, Hodge wants to see his team have success in terms of wins and losses, but he also has a philosophy that transcends statistics.

"We want to see a team that wins," Hodge said. "I view this team as Crittenden County's basketball program. When you have that type of view, you understand that you are representing the county, Marion, parents and the school system. That makes me look at things differently. We want to see how successful the kids become after they leave the program."

Hodge expects his players to work hard and play with character, honesty and integrity. By doing these things he believes winning will take care of itself.

A 1986 CCHS graduate, Hodge has been pleased with the development of his team over the summer. In preseason, the squad is learning his philosophy on offense and defense. Hodge wants to play with an eight- to nine-man rotation, allowing the Rockets to implement a pressure defense and press the floor, limiting the amount of time the offense spends in half-court sets.

"We want to play fast and spread the floor," Hodge said. "If we don't have that ability to pressure teams, we will fall back in to a man-to-man defense."

He concedes his team is not the favorite to win the

Hodge
First-year head coach

Fifth District, but he still has high expectations. Livingston Central is the team to beat in the league, he said. Despite the Cardinals winning the district crown last season, they also have a new coach and return four starters. Hodge has praise for every team in the district, but thinks his team can steal the championship. It would be the Rockets' second since consolidation of the city and county schools, and first since 1998 when Hodge was an assistant under coach Jimmy Croft.

"I believe in the locker room we think we can win it," Hodge said of his team's confidence. "We played Livingston three times this summer and it was within 10 points each time. We didn't have our full team, missing two guards in those games."

Crittenden will host the Rocket Christmas Classic Dec. 28-30, which will include Dawson Springs from the Second Region and First Region teams Reidland and Ballard Memorial.

The Class A Second Region will pit Crittenden against tournament host Livingston. Webster County rejoins the Second Region small-school tournament this season and Hodge said the Trojans are the early favorite for the Class A tournament.

Crittenden lost starter Casey Oliver to graduation from a 6-18 team. Returning are two juniors, Ethan Hill and Stephon Cozart, who were unable to play last sea-

Lady Rockets regrouping after record season

BY DEREK McCREE
PRESS SPORTS WRITER

After cutting down an unprecedented three nets in three tournaments last season and making the school's first trip to the Girls' Sweet Sixteen, Crittenden County's Lady Rockets are now re-loading with a focus on another winning season.

Despite graduating four of her starters, Lady Rocket coach Shannon Hodge is confident in her returning players to make history once again. Last year, Crittenden won the Fifth District championship for the first time since 1984. Hodge said repeating that is one of her team's goals.

"I enjoyed that history-making of winning the district title and we want to make it two in a row," Hodge said. "I think we have just as good of a shot as anyone in the district."

District archrival Livingston Central returns most of its players from last season. Hodge said the Lady Cardinals are the team to beat at this point. The Lady Rockets have several challenges ahead of them, returning only one starter and having just one senior on the team. However, Hodge believes last year's success and title run put her younger players ahead of the curve.

"Even if some of the returning players weren't the ones on the floor at the time, I think that experience changed them in their thinking," Hodge said. "They had an experience that a lot of kids haven't had and my expectations are high."

Hodge hopes her young squad picked up valuable lessons from players who graduated. The hard work they put in paid off and she said this group must understand and continue the effort so good things will happen. If they keep the standard high, she believes this team will come out of the gates competitive and confident.

"I think we may be a team that is searching for its identity at first," she said. "We will have to figure out how to put all the pieces together."

The offensive reigns fall squarely in the hands of 5-foot-7 sophomore Bailey Brown. She is the Lady Rockets' lone returning starter who averaged 7.3 points per game as a combo guard last season, running the point at times but mainly serving as the team's shooting guard.

Hodge said Brown will have to take a leadership role on the floor. She says the talented sophomore has the ability to do just that.

"She has matured physically by leaps and bounds in the last six months," Hodge said. "The challenge now is for her to understand what I'm wanting and what it will take."

Mary Mattingly, a 5-foot-8 senior forward, will be the team's main post presence offensively and defensively. Hodge said Mattingly has to be able to score and rebound consistently and play well defensively against bigger post players. Hodge said Brown will draw a lot of attention and Mattingly has to be ready in the paint to take advantage of scoring opportunities.

"As our senior you expect a lot from her and I think she's got to get six to 10 points and rebounds a game for us," Hodge said. "Mary is a workhorse. She plays hard and will do what she has to do helping Bailey keep us all going in the same direction."

Davana Head, a 5-foot-9 junior, has the ability to be someone who helps pick up the scoring load. She can score inside and out, off the pass or dribble. Hodge has pushed Head in practice to be more consistent on defense.

"Davana can provide us with a nice matchup because she can play on the perimeter and she is taller than most people that will be defending her," Hodge said.

Randa Leidecker, a 5-foot-6 junior, is someone who makes something happen when she is on the floor. She is always around the ball and Hodge is challenging her to buckle down on defense. She has good hands to get deflections and has the ability to shoot the three and run the fast break.

Maggie Collins, a 5-foot-9 sophomore, has to gain confidence offensively, but has the ability to get the six to 10 points a game along with picking up the same number

"I think she will be the person who will draw the tougher defensive assignment in the post because she is taller than Mary," Hodge said.

Kaitlin Binkley, a 5-foot-3 junior, is a good set shooter for whom plays will be designed. The coach expects her to get plenty of open looks at the basket from the three-point line. Binkley will back up Brown at point guard.

Chelsea Oliver, a 5-foot-8 freshman, is a pure athlete with raw potential, the coach said. When Oliver matures as a player, and gets everything together, she will really help the team out, Hodge said.

"She is very coachable and does whatever I ask her to do," Hodge said.

Juniors Taylor Lynch and Summer Phillips were junior varsity players last year and Hodge said they have to come out every day and battle in practice.

"Summer plays really hard and has made improvements. She is really quick," Hodge said. "Taylor has good size and can help us in the post as she progresses."

Sophomores Ruth Gobin and Breanna Ford saw action this summer with the varsity squad, and may compete for playing time, Hodge said.

Mallory McDowell, a 5-foot-2 freshman, is described by Hodge as the Lady Rockets' next true point guard.

"When she turns it loose and plays, she makes good things happen," Hodge said. "As the year progresses, she will come in and see some playing time. As she begins to learn the offense, she will have the ability to help us."

The Lady Rocket skipper believes her team has the physical capabilities to be very competitive. The mental approach is where she thinks the team faces the greatest challenge.

"We have to discipline ourselves to be a good defensive team because that will create offense for us," Hodge said. "We have to have individuals willing to play within themselves and do what they are capable of doing. We have the pieces, but must have the patience to let it all

Continued from page 1 fensively and he understands the game. He is a very fundamental player and has worked hard on his shot," Hodge said of Cozart.

Thomas Scott, a 6-foot-6 junior, has been a pleasant surprise for the new coach. Hodge describes Scott as extremely competitive and having a fantastic work ethic. Teams will have to pick their poison when guarding Scott, who has improved his all-around game and will be the Rockets go-to player. Hodge said much of the team's success will depend upon Scott's performances. However, Hodge is quick to point out that this will not be a one-man team.

"I expect him to be the best player in the district. I have a lot of confidence in him right now," Hodge said. "He is a terrible mismatch for other teams. If teams play us zone, he will shoot from the outside, and if you play us man-to-man, he will pick you apart."

Devin Clark, a 6-foot-1 junior, will play center.

"He is going to absolutely crash the boards," Hodge said. "He had a great summer and scored more than he ever has. He learned post moves and is our only true back-to-the-basket player."

The coach said Clark reminds him of former NBA player Curt Rambis on the floor, willing to go after rebounds and not shying away from contact.

Bobby Knox, a 6-foot junior, played center last season, but has transitioned to the backcourt. He worked hard on his shot over the summer and isn't afraid to step out and shoot the three-pointer.

"He will be another tough mismatch for teams. He's a tough kid and a great rebounder," Hodge said.

Aaron Owen, a 5-foot-9 sophomore, returns with plenty of experience under his belt at guard. While Hodge hasn't named a point guard yet, you can bet Owen and Hill will be the top candidates. Having played AAU basketball, Owen has an edge in experience over many players his age. He will also be looked to as one of the Rockets' primary scorers.

"He is one of the most experienced sophomores in the region," Hodge said. "I expect Aaron to be a player who is calm under pressure, and he has a good mind for the game."

Travis Gilbert is another sophomore who brings a good deal of experience to the team. The first-year coach describes Gilbert – an all-region performer in baseball and football – as always using proper technique and a three-point specialist.

Hodge has praise for junior Tucker Frazer as a player who has worked very hard this summer on his jump shot. He describes Frazer as a person of great character, who comes early to practice to improve his game.

Even though it will be Hodge's first year as the head coach, he's hardly unfamiliar with the program, the team and its cast of characters. After all, Hodge has coached most members of the team at one point or another in other sports.

"I've been able to pick up on their strengths and I want to get every player in the position where he can be more successful – that is the goal and what we are working toward," Hodge said. "When it's all said and done come February, we will be right in the thick of things."

Hodge brings with him two new assistants, Ken Geary and Matt McMain. Long-time assistant David Perryman is the only holdover from last year's staff.

Kentucky Lake crappie coming back strongly

Poor spawns from 2005-07 impacted the numbers of young white crappie in Kentucky Lake, resulting in spotty fishing for white crappie over the last several years.

The crappie population in the lake also morphed from mainly white crappie to predominately black crappie due to aging of the lake. The water flows clearer than it once did and more sunlight reaches the depths, generating more aquatic vegetation. Clearer water and more vegetation favor the black crappie and their numbers increased dramatically in the last decade in Kentucky Lake.

The poor white crappie spawns and population changes left some Kentucky Lake crappie anglers scratching their heads in frustration the past several years. If current trends are any guide, crappie anglers on the lake won't have time to scratch anything because they will be reeling in too many crappie.

"The 2009 white crappie spawn was exceptionally strong, the best in a long time," said Paul Rister, western fisheries district biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "We bought a deep water trawl to assess the numbers of young crappie in the lake. We saw strong numbers of young white crappie. It looks promising for future white crappie fishing. The white crappie fishery is coming back."

What Rister and staff see in their sampling nets is also reflected in the crappie fishing on Kentucky Lake this fall.

"My Dad and I fished last week and we caught a lot of fish," said Ryan Oster, federal aid coordinator of the fisheries division of Kentucky Fish and Wildlife. "We came back with our limits every day. We averaged 100 fish a day. The fish are there, that's for sure. We caught mostly white crappie. It was awesome. I've never experienced crappie fishing like that."

Hunters find wind tough to hunt through

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County deer hunters harvested about 600 deer during the first weekend of rifle season. Those using a gun, shot 589. Hunters may use all types of hunting equipment, including legal bows, pistols and blackpowder weapons during the modern firearms portion of the season, which runs through Sunday, Nov. 27 (Thanksgiving weekend).

In Livingston County, hunters harvested 400 deer on opening weekend.

Most hunters reported moderate success over the opening weekend of rifle season. Warm, windy days provided less-than-desirable hunting conditions. Deer tend to remain bedded during daylight hours when the wind gusts like it did Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday.

Weather conditions improved by mid week and hunters started reporting greater activity among deer. Bucks are well into the rut, hunters report, as most have been seen chasing does.

Crittenden County Conservation Officer Randy Conway said it's been a busy season. So far, he's written more citations than in recent years.

"People are not reading their hunting guide. They buy a license and don't understand the regulations," he said.

The game warden said most of the lawbreakers are out-of-state hunters.

During the opening weekend of season, Conway cited seven hunters for having untaged animals. He said the infractions were for male and female harvests so it's not simply hunters trying to circumvent the one-buck limit. Conway also wrote a ticket to one hunter for not having on the required orange apparel and one for hunting without permission.

Before rifle season started, he cited four spot-lighters and another person for shooting from a public road during daylight hours.

The warden thinks last weekend's weather indeed slowed the harvest. He said reports from the local processing plants were lower than normal.

(Not pictured was Dianna Bradford, who received the Freshman Challenge Award.)

Knights capture 2 team titles

Crittenden County High School Chess Team returned from Louisville with two grade-level titles and just missed a third one by one win. The Kentucky Chess Association's Grade Level Championships were held Saturday at Crosby Middle School.

Seniors Korey Mayes, Will Hayes and Joseph Tedford combined to win the 12th-grade team championship. Individually, Mayes won three games, finishing first in the 12th grade division while Hayes won 2½ games and finished second.

Although Cole Foster and Cameron McDaniel did not place individually, they combined to win the ninth-grade team championship, giving the Blue Knights two team titles.

In the 10th-grade division, Marcus Hughes and Micah Hollamon won two games each, but fell one win short of champion Sayre. Crittenden finished second.

The Blue Knights will travel to Terre Haute, Ind., Dec. 10 to take on some of the best Indiana teams in the Hoosier Prairie Scholastic.

Ceremonies honor local vets

PHOTOS BY DARYL K. TABOR

Local military personnel past and present were honored Friday with two Veterans Day events. (Clockwise, starting below) Marion VFW Post Commander Joe Lanham (right) salutes the flag alongside fellow Vietnam veteran Joe Hunt, who serves as Kentucky District 2 Commander, and their wives during a remembrance ceremony inside Rocket Arena. The school- and community-arranged event featured keynote speaker Denis Hodge, a former Army sergeant; patriotic songs; and a touching POW/MIA ceremony. The entire student body of the middle and high schools attended the ceremony in the arena, whose walls were lined with messages from students to veterans. Finally, American Legion Post 111's traditional ceremony at the war memorial at Mapleview Cemetery was led by Post Commander J.T. Travis, shown saluting the flag. The keynote speaker was Marion's Lt. Col. Billy McDaniel with the Kentucky National Guard. For more pictures of both ceremonies, visit www.facebook.com/TheCrittendenPress.
