Taylor Davis, elected to Marion City Council during a special election a couple of weeks ago, was sworn to office Monday night.

Clerk's office closed first 10 days of 2024

Crittenden County Clerk's office will be unable to process any motor vehicle, boat or trailer transactions the first eight days of 2024 due to a statewide shutdown to upgrade the computerized vehicle registration system. This also affects the pointof-sale system for the county clerk; therefore, the office will be closed to all business during this period. Tuesday, Jan. 9 will be the first day the clerk's office can be open in

No, officer not jailed

While some got a chuckle out of it, we always regret our errors. An article in last week's newspaper stated that the former police chief had spent a couple of days in "jail". It should have said, in "hospital".

Discount taxes ending

Next week will be the last chance to pay your 2023 Crittenden County property taxes and earn the earlypayment discount. Taxpayers can get the 2% discount through Nov. 30. In December, the face amount will be due and starting Jan. 1 there will be a 5% penalty. The penalty goes up to 21% starting in February.

The typical closings for Thanksgiving will be on order this week. City of Marion and Crittenden County government offices will be closed Thursday and Friday. The County Road Department, Convenience Center and Animal Shelter will be closed Thursday, Friday and Sat-

Longtime Marion Policeman Bobby West was promoted to chief of police this week. Mayor D'Anna Browning pinned the chief's badge on West during a formal ceremony during the Marion City Council meeting Monday night.

No surprises, West is promoted

MPD's new chief familiar face

As a high schooler, Bobby West thought about being a police officer. He joined the rescue squad because he wanted to help others and that experience solidified his desire for public service.

"As soon as I turned 21, I started applying for a job with the police department," West remembers.

On Monday, he was named Marion Police Chief, becoming just the fourth man in almost 70 years to hold that "I want to thank the city for trusting me with this position," West said. "I had a good teacher in the previous chief, and I will definitely give it my all. Marion has always been where my heart was at. I have always wanted to police here."

Mayor D'Anna Browning officially swore West in as head of the department during Monday night's Marion

City Council meeting. She said the choice was clear from the beginning that West would be the next chief.

The 45-year-old, 20-year veteran of the police department will succeed Ray O'Neal, who had been chief for 17 years before resigning last month to take a position as full-time security guard at city hall. Other than O'Neal, there have been two others who served as chief since 1955. They were Ollie Brown and Kenneth Winn.

West graduated from the Kentucky Law Enforcement Training Academy in 2003 after being hired in October of that year. He has served as assistant police chief since 2016, is a certified firearms instructor, has been head of security and cataloging MPD's evidence room, been supervisor of emergency dispatching and has completed various leadership training

"I applied to the police department for four years before I finally got hired," West recalls.

While he waited for the call, he worked as a welder in Princeton and spent some time in manufacturing at Tyco in Marion.

"Being on the rescue squad is what really solidified my desire to be a policeman, West said. "When I started helping out there, I realized the true need for people willing to help other people."

He hadn't thought too much about police chief until he was promoted to the department's number two position seven years ago.

"My main focus was being out on the streets," West said, "It wasn't until several years later that I ended up wanting to be in a supervisory role.'

Recruiting and retaining officers will be among West's most challenging tasks. The department has been a revolving door of sorts over the past several years as officers have come and gone. Right now, MPD has only two fulltime officers in addition to the new chief.

West says law enforcement agencies around the area each offer different incentives. Some have higher pay, some provide hazardous pay retirement and a few offer fully paid benefits such as health insurance.

"Right now there is no sure way to retain officers because they literally have a smorgasbord of options out there to choose from," he said.

West's plans include continuing the tradition of Mar-Police Department providing professional round-the-clock security for the city's residents. He does not anticipate any major changes that would be noticeable to the public.

Law Enforcement Agrees

Lucky no one got shot there

To be honest, they're three of the likeliest heroes based on the situation. Yes, that's most likely to succeed in a standoff that could have turned out much worse, even deadly.

Over the last few years three military veterans have forged a relationship bonded in their own sacrifice to country, but also in their personal lives. All three have each lost spouses, and they have at times found solace among one another while dealing with other grief.

It's also safe to say that each one of them takes an interest in law enforcement. None are officers, but

Board accepts bid for MS addition

STAFF REPORT

An $8.67 million construction cost was formally accepted by the Crittenden County Board of Education Nov. 14 for a two-story addition to Crittenden County Middle School. MP Lawson of Paducah won the base bid, and add-ons will be provided by other companies.

In addition to the twostory addition, the board approved construction of a canopy to connect the new building to the front of the middle school gym and vinyl tile flooring mechanical systems.

"We're celebrating this victory and excited to break ground," said RBS Design Services representative Jeannie Cannon, who has been working with the district for more than two years to develop a project that meets the district's needs and budget.

Carroll Boyd, retired Caldwell County superintendent who now works for Baird Financial, the board's fiscal agent, empathized with the Crittenden board in its long wait to build a middle school addition.

"You all were steadfast holding this road," he "I know coming from a district your size it is very difficult to get to a point where you can do (a big project), and I am overjoyed because I know what it means."

Based on state assistance and the availability of local sources, it takes small districts much longer to save enough money to make improvements to facilities.

Bond sales to fund the project are forthcoming, with construction starting in 2024.

When an intruder showed up at one of their homes after dark last month, there was no surprise at who got the first call and how the response unfolded.

The time was about 8:30 p.m., Oct. 3. It had been unseasonably warm that afternoon and as night fell 61-year-old Dwight Cook settled onto the coach to watch television. Living on a ridge not far south of the Ohio River, Cook wasn't surprised to hear what he thought were raccoons rifling about on his front porch. It happens all of the time in rural Crittenden County.

But then there was a louder thump, prompting Cook to investigate. The widower lives just off KY 91 North about three miles from Cave In Rock Ferry Landing. He retired here a few years back after a career in the U.S. Navy. Keeping mostly to himself, Cook has befriended a couple of othsimilar with backgrounds. Chuck Shipley and Barbara Gipson met at the Traveling Vietnam War Memorial that stopped in Marion in 2019. They were an instant couple and later married.

"We're all best friends," said Shipley, 74, who grew up in California, the son of a policeman. "We're pretty tight."

Gipson agrees. She moved from southern Illinois to Crittenden County at age 16 and later served in the U.S. Army. A threesome with varied backgrounds, she says the friendship is developed mostly over love for country.

Alone at home at the door that night, Cook thought varmints were on the porch, but he encountered a man speaking unintelligibly. Cook quickly shut the door. At his threshold was a man later identified as 37-year-old John Martin. Although they don't live too far apart, Cook had no idea who the late-evening visitor was or what he

Martin left the porch and walked behind the house, according to Cook's account.

At that point, Cook didn't know what to make of the situation. He had no idea that Martin had been involved in an automobile accident just down the highway in an often hazardous S-curve near Aunt Jane Tabernacle Road. Investigators believe Martin was remarkably intoxicated when the crash occurred and he has since been charged with second-offense DUI and leaving the scene of an accident.

What happened next, however, earned Martin a felony burglary charge punishable by 5-10 years in prison if convicted. He remains lodged in Crittenden County Detention Center on a $20,000 cash bond.

A former deputy jailer, Martin has a long history of encounters with the law. He has been citied or convicted previously in Crittenden, Caldwell, Union, Lyon, McCracken, Ballard and Owen counties on misdemeanor charges from alcohol intoxication, DUI, harasscommunications, fourth-degree assault and cold checks to felony flagrant non-support.

Cook, the homeowner, had no idea what he was up against, so when Martin walked around the corner into the darkness, Cook bolted for his vehicle and drove to the neighbor's house. He also made a phone call to his best friends.

Shipley and Gipson flew into action, driving from their home in Marion as quickly as possible to Cook's place about 12 miles away.

Meanwhile, Martin had allegedly rattled a door knob at another neighbor's home, and had tried to hail a passing motorist on the highway. Cook said surveillance cameras around his home had also captured images and video of Martin trying to get into vehicles.

By then, the episode had been going on for a half hour or so, yet police had not been notified. Cell service at Cook's home is very unreliable, and would be problematic over the next several minutes.

When Shipley and Gipson arrived they spotted Martin in a nearby field and began yelling for him to leave. The suspect was soaking wet, they said, from apparently wading into a pond. His pants were torn from being caught on a barbed-wire fence and Shipley said Martin had been electrocuted by a charged fence surrounding a pen where Amish run cattle on Cook's farm.

"That's not your ordinary electric fence," Cook said. "It will zap you really good."

Shipley and Gipson believed they had a bead on where the prowler was moving through the bushes because of telltale signs they learned from military training. They also believed he would be heading back to the nearest porch light, because it was a jet black night on those rolling hills of northern Crittenden County.

Gipson was walking up Cook's driveway and saw what she says was Martin heading back toward her friend's home. She followed, and now recounts how Martin kicked in the front door and went inside Cook's house

"I had left my gun in the house," said Cook, who was still at the neighbor's home at the point Martin allegedly broke into his house.

Fearing the intruder could arm himself with Cook's weapons, Gipson followed him inside. She was unarmed, but describes holding her hand in her pocket as if she had a gun. She ordered Martin to get on the floor, but he paid no attention to the commands to the commands.

"He was trying to go out of a back window, but couldn't because it had an air conditioner in it," Gipson said. "He also tried to hide behind some curtains. He's six-foottwo or something, he couldn't hide."

Shipley was armed with a 9mm handgun, arrived within moments.

"That got his attention," Shipley said. "I told him to get his ass down or I will drop you."

Gipson was shouting for her husband to not fire the gun.

Sheriff Evan Head said it was "absolutely" fortunate and lucky that someone didn't get badly injured or worse. "He's lucky I didn't shoot him," Shipley said.

The couple say Martin responded to the order and got on the floor, but then became irritated, starting cursing them and was trying to get back to his feet when Shipley hit him across the head with the weapon, leaving the intruder in a pool of his own blood.

As the situation was becoming more frightening for everyone, Gipson was trying desperately to reach law enforcement by phone by calling 911.

"I called and called, but couldn't get through," she said. "The service here is horrible. At one point I was able to talk to someone and they tried to transfer me to Crittenden County (dispatching) and it cut us off."

Eventually, after several harrowing minutes of trying to reach out for help, responders began to arrive. The sheriff was first on the scene followed by state police and an ambulance.

"It was like 45 minutes or an hour before they got here," she said.

Cook believes he was in harms way during the confrontation. He was especially concerned about the suspect getting into his home.

"In there, he had access to a gun," Cook said.
Sheirff Head said the response time was normal, about 20 minutes, once he received the call.

"That happened the week we were moving from the courthouse to the new office," the sheriff said, pointing out that his entire staff was involved in the tasks associated with the move and were counting on state police to help handle calls for service.

Once he was notified of the situation, and realized the closest state trooper was more than a county away, Head said he and his deputy both left their respective homes and headed to the scene full steam with lights and sirens.

As it turns out, a very unpredictable situation came to an end without serious injury to anyone. It was deeply unsettling for those who encountered Martin that night, particularly Cook, who now says account holders on social media, perhaps people associated with the suspect, are making remarks about him that could be considered threatening. The sheriff is aware of the Facebook posts.

"Don't mess with old timers," Gipson said. "We have gray hair, but don't think we won't whip your ass"

The trio of friends say they wanted to tell the story to remind everyone that they're the first line of defense when something like this happens. Having a way to defend yourself is important, they explained, and also berated the companies and government for not providing more adequate cellular service.

"We've been forgotten," Cook said.

One thing these local residents will remember is the harrowing experience and that is driving them to make sure they follow this case until the end.

"We were at court when (Martin was arraigned)," said Shipley. "And we will keep going back until this is over."

Editor's Note: This article provides only one side of the story of what happened on Oct. 3. The defendant will have an opportunity to share his story in cirucit court.

Ford's son founder of West Town

James Ford's second son, William M. Ford, only outlived his brother Philip by less than a year. The tale of his death goes like this: On the night of Nov. 1, 1832, a young traveler arrived at Ferry Ohio to cross over into Illinois. Since night had descended, he decided to spend the night at the ferry-house. After supper, he carefully loaded his flintlock pistols in preparation for the following day's ride and went to bed in one of the rooms at the ferry-house. He had ridden long and hard the day before and slept soundly.

The next morning, shortly after sunrise, the traveler rose, breakfasted, packed his belongings, and prepared to board the steamboat with his riding horse. As he was proceeding down the ramp, a Negro slave who operated the ferry asked the young man in a quiet and inconspicuous manner, "Is your gun loaded?" Startled, the traveler examined his pistols: both had been emptied while he slept. He quietly reloaded them. After crossing the river, he paid his fare, mounted his horse, and started riding up the cut in the cliff to the Ford High Water Road. Suddenly as he rounded a curve where the forest was thickest, a man stepped from the heavy growth, grasped the horse by the reins and demanded the traveler's money. Instead of handing over his purse, the traveler shot the highway man in the chest. Death was instant and the victim was William Ford. (Satan's Ferryman, page 152.) His body was brought back across the river and he was buried in the family cemetery next to his brother and his fa-

William Ford's sons

William Sr. had two sons according to his will dated June 1, 1832, recorded in Livingston County. It stated: "William Ford, about seven years old (1825) and born of Nancy Coffield and Richard M. Ford about seven months old (1832) and born of Pernecia Wamack, both of said water will be drawn from the lake through a siphon that will go over the dam. The project also calls for repair of a section of the dam's face that was intentionally cropped off during the original emergency response to the situation in April 2022.

Thomas reminded the council that the upcoming project is a stabilization measure and not a total rehabilitation of the lake. Shoring up Lake George will make certain that it can continue to hold water, albeit to a level about 10 feet before its former pool. That will allow city leaders continue working toward a long-term solution, which includes a broader dependence on Crittenden-Livingston Water District.

The upcoming project will require a temporary creek crossing to built near the city water treatment plant, just above the state highway bridge across Crooked Creek. Thomas said that around 1,600 heavy loads of rip rap rock and other materials will need to be hauled into Lake George. The 20-ton weight limit on the Chapel Hill Road bridge will not be able to handle the loaded traffic, Thomas said, pointing out that county and state roads are likely to be damaged during the project.

Repair of those has been built into the project's price, he told council members.

children I acknowledge to be my sons. (There are no marriage records found for Nancy Coffield and Pernecia Wamack, probably why he named the two sons in his will, so there would be documentation.)

The first son William, child of Nancy Coffield, (1825), lived in Livingston County. He first married Mildred Catherine Shelby. She had an infant son, Francis Ford, born Feb. 4, 1851. The infant died Dec. 22, 1851. Mildred died June 12, 1852 and they are buried in the old historic Mills Cemetery in William second married Harriet Elizabeth Donakev in Livingston County on April 28, 1853.

William and Elizabeth lived in Living-County ston several years in the area known as Dyer's Hill and then in 1880 they moved to Wilson County, Tenn. On the 1880 Wilson County, Tennessee census, liam and Elizabeth and their children are listed, and his occupation was a farm laborer.

After this Tennessee 1880 census, the family seemed to disappear and my research has found nothing else on the family.

William's second son was Richard Miles Ford, mother Pernica Wamack, (1832). In William's will, dated Dec. 4, 1832, he requested that Richard Miles, his friend and relative, take sons William and Richard in his care and see to their education. Nothing was found on William or Richard's younger

On Aug. 14, 1854, Richard M. Ford, proprietor of the tract of land including the place known as Flynns Ferry, went into the Crittenden County Court and requested to establish a town. "On motion of Richard M. Ford proprietor of the tract of land in Crittenden County, Ky., including the place known as Flynns Ferry and the court deeming it advantageous and necessary to the public at large and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court by the testimony of competent witnesses that three months notice according to law intended application to establish a town on said land has been given by posting the same at the Courthouse door in Marion and by publication in the Paducah Penant, an authorized newspaper. It is therefore ordered that a town be established on said land on the Ohio River including (the dimensions are in the court order request) and will contain about 15 acres and it is further ordered that the name of said town be Weston and the following persons are hereby appointed trustees of said town until the first Monday in June next and till their successors are qualified. new town Weston.)

This same date, Dec. 11, 1854, on motion of R.M. Ford and it appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that he was the owner of the lands on both sides of the Ohio River and at Weston he wishes to establish a public ferry. It was ordered that a ferry be established at this place and designated in the name and for the benefit of R.M. Ford, and that he be required to keep at all times a good substantial ferry boat and have good hands to manage the boat.

County Jan. 11, 1854.

New town was born

Soon as the establishment of the town was granted, a survey was done and plots were laid off and Richard started selling lots in his new town.

Soon a thriving river port town was born with many families building homes and several business stores going up on Main Street. These early river port towns were very important to the county. It was the only way to ship and receive many items. Timber, tobacco, produce and livestock were shipped from this port, and in return most items for the stores in Marion were received at the Weston river landing then transported by wagon to Marion. All local farmers used the riverboats as means to get their livestock to Evansville. River travel was the best way to get to far away towns up North or down South. Richard's ferry supplied this much-needed way of transportation for that end of the county.

Post Office Needed

With the growth of the town, and more families moving to Weston, soon a post office was needed, and Richard saw to it that one would be located there for the convenience of the town and nearby families. It was established in 1859 with the name of Westonburg post office, with Richard as Postmaster.

The Fords Leave

We have no way of knowing the reason, but in 1870 Richard, wife Nanny and son Richard, Jr. had moved from his community of West Town and were living in Vienna, (Scott County) Ind.

It was soon after Richard and family moved, on Oct. 24, 1877, the post office name was changed to Weston as we know it today.

The 1870 Indiana census was the last time I found Richard and Nanny. When and where they died I have not been able to find. Why did they moved to Indiana? I wish I knew the story.

Their son, Richard M. Ford, Jr., that was born March 13, 1858 in Weston, I found that he lived in Indiana for the rest of his lifetime and died May 14, 1912 at Jeffersonville, Ind., and is buried there. No clue as to what happened to his father and mother and nothing to let us know if they are buried where Richard is or not.

So ended the James Ford family descendants in Crittenden County.

violence and economic struggle. There were three significant political assassinations before I started school and in 1970, the unthinkable happened. Four students protesting the war in Vietnam at Kent State University were shot and killed by the National Guard. There followed more than a decade of inflation over 5 percent, peaking at 13 percent in 1980. Watergate destroyed what little confidence Americans had in their government. It still hasn't recovered.

I have been reading the Thanksgiving proclamations by our Presidents over the last 250 years. I am struck by the consistency of the messages through good times and bad, through wars, peacetime (of which there is very little), and economic struggles. I am fascinated by 1968 and the years surrounding it.

Martin Luther King's speech to the Memphis Sanitation workers on strike on April 3, 1968 the day before he was assassinated - observed the sickness of the nation.

Lyndon Johnson, during his Thanksgiving Proclamation for that year, seems to be pushing back against King's prophetic note.

I think they both offer us some things to think about this Thanksgiving. The list that President Johnson provides sounds eerily contemporary today. They are all things to be thankful for, but the list is because there they were (are) all concerns.

Here is King's statement. "Strangely enough, I would turn to the Almighty, and say, "If you allow me to live just a few years in the second half of the 20th Century, I will be happy. Now that's a strange statement to make, because the world is all messed up. The nation is sick. Trouble is in the land. Confusion all around. That's a strange statement. But I know, somehow, that only when it is dark enough, can you see the stars."

And Johnson's proclamation delivered on Nov. 15 of the same year. "Americans, looking back on the tumultuous events of 1968, may be more inclined to ask God's mercy and guidance than to offer Him thanks for His blessings. There are many events in this year that deserve our remembrance, and give us cause for thanksgiving:

 The endurance and stability of our democracy, as we prepare once more for an orderly transition of authority;

• The renewed determination, on the part of millions of Americans, to bridge our divisions;

• The beginning of talks with our adversaries, that will, we pray, lead to peace in Vietnam;

• The increasing prosperity of our people, including those who were denied any share in America's blessings in the past;

· The achievement of new breakthroughs in medical science, and new victories over disease.

These events inspire not only the deepest gratitude, but confidence that our nation, the beneficiary of good fortune beyond that of any nation in history, will surmount its present trials and achieve a more just society for its people. In this season, let us offer more than words of thanksgiving to God. Let us resolve to offer Him the best that is within us - tolerance, respect for life, faith in the destiny of all men to live in peace." (Source: The American Presidency Project, minder in Romans 8:19-23, "For the creation waits with eager longing for the revealing of the sons of God; for the creation was subjected to futility, not of its own will but by the will of him who subjected it in hope; because the creation itself will be set free from its bondage to decay and obtain the glorious liberty of the children of God. We know that the whole creation has been groaning in travail together until now; and not only the creation, but we ourselves, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, groan inwardly as we wait for adoption as sons, the redemption of our bodies."

It is my hope that this holiday season will be met with blessings for our nation and for the world. It is my hope that the sickness of polarization (which is different than disagreement) and lack of cooperation will be cured. It is my hope that those who exercise wisdom in leadership will rise. It is my hope that peace will prevail. May we all be thankful and do what we can to make this time of year better for those around us.

Loving like Jesus brings an exuberance for life

Question: I grew up in a home that emphasized making lots of money and taking care of your own. Since becoming a Christian, I've learned we are to love everyone and to go out of our way to help them. Why is it so unnatural to love others outside Answer: Often, people are obnoxious and plain old hard to love. Yes, loving others like Jesus loved others, certainly doesn't come naturally.

The natural thing for us is to try to get our own way all the time. When we do, life turns into a frenzied and joyless grab for happiness. It causes us to acquire trinket gods of material stuff that doesn't have much value in the long run. We yearn for money, power and fame and we are never satisfied. As we live self-centered lives, we end up with small-minds and lopsided pursuits (Gal. 5:19-21).

When we surrender our desires to God and love others as Jesus loved them, we learn to love others without expecting anything in return. We develop loyal commitments. We're able to direct our energies into meeting the needs of others (Gal. 5:22-

When we love others as Jesus loved others, we begin to live a self-less life. By loving others as Jesus loved them, God will give us a deep affection for everyone. In loving everyone, God will give us a more meaningful and fuller live that's filled with inner joy. And, serendipitously, He fills

Sexual abuse, rape cases among those heard this month

Crittenden County Grand Jury handed down indictments against eight indivduals in 10 cases during November and an October indictment that was previously sealed has been

A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence. Instead, it decides whether there is a probable cause to believe that a crime was committed. If so, an indictment is issued and the case is sent to circuit court.

•Charles Landen Harbert, 19, of Salem indicted in two separate cases. In one investigation, he was indicted on a Class D felony for first-degree possession of a controlled sub-(methamphetamine) and misdemeanor offenses of possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana. In the second case, Harbert was indicted for a single count of felony first-degree criminal mischief. Marion police officers Jerry Parker and George Foster were investigators in the two cases. Court records indicate that Harbert is accused of wantonly damaging windows June 28 at a home on North Maple Street in Marion. The second case stems from an incident when Marion Patrolman Jerry Parker encountered Harbert walking along Second Street about daylight on July 1. Parker's report said he approached Harbert because he knew there was an active warrant for the suspect's arrest. The officer's citation says that he found on the defendant's person suspected meth, a digital scale, two "small blunts" and a pipe.

felony for second-degree burglary; misdemeanor charges of operating on suspended license and second-offense operating a motor vehicle under the influence of alcohol; and a violation for leaving the scene of an accident. Martin is accused of crashing his car on the night of Oct. 3 on KY 91 North then leaving the crash site and breaking into a home up the road. There, he met with an armed citizen who held Martin at bay until the sheriff arrived. Kentucky State Police are in charge of investigation. The trooper's citation said Martin had a bottle of Fireball whiskey in his front pocket. The report also alleges that Martin smelled of alcohol, displayed slurred speech and had bloodshot eves.

•Quante Askew, 18, of Paducah, was indicted on a Class C felony charge of second-degree domestic violence; a Class D felony charge of first-degree wanton endangerment (which which was amended down from a Class C original charge of second-degree assault); and misdemeanor charges of resisting arrest, fleeing or evading police on foot and disorderly conduct. No true bills were returned on four other assault charges and three other misdemeanors. A no true bill indicates that the grand jury did not find sufficient evidence to indict on those allegations. The case stems from an altercation between Askew and multiple females at a residence in Marion. A brick or stone was allegedly thrown at some point, which struck an infant causing injury.

•Leroy Yoder, 34, of Marion was indicted on three felony charges, two Class C felonies of second-degree rape (victim under age 14) and a Class D felony of first-degree sexual abuse. An investigation by Kentucky State Police led to the charges being presented as a direct submittal to the grand jury this month, which means the case was not initiated in district court. A direct submittal to the grand jury is where evidence is presented directly to the grand jury for a vareity of reasons, including the nature of the charges, urgency of the situation or the necessity of secrecy in the matter for the protection of the victims or witnesses. Yoder was arrested last Thursday and lodged in Crittenden County Detention Center. He has since been released on a $25,000 cash bond. Court records allege that in November 2022, the defendant had intercourse with two alleged victims under the age of 14. Another victim under the age of 16, according to court records, was allegedly subjected to "sexual contact" by the defendant.

•Vernon Yoder, 37, of Marion was indicted on two Class D felony counts for first-degree sexual abuse and a misdemeanor charge of first-degree exposure. indecent Court records allege that the defendant on two occasions in No-2022 subjected separate juvenile victims to sexual contact and that he also during that same time frame exposed his genitals to a third alleged victim under the age of 18. Yoder was arrested last week and lodged in the Crittenden County Detention Center.

He was later released on a $10,000 cash bond.

•Hannah Collins, 19, of Elizabethtown, Ky., was indicted on a felony charge of first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine) and misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia. Collins was a passenger in a vehicle stopped by Sheriff Evan Head for operating without headlights just before midnight on Oct. 1. The car stopped on North Weldon Street and the driver of the vehicle fled on foot. There was a strong odor of marijuana in the vehicle, the sheriff's citation said. Head found methamphetamine and paraphernalia on the passenger side of the vehicle.

•Jacob Mooney, 21, of Marion was indicted on two Class D felonies for third-degree rape and third-degree sodomy. The indictment was handed down after a direct submittal of evidence to the grand jury by Kentucky State Police. Court records indicate that the alleged victim was under the age of 16 and that the encounter took place on May 7. Kentucky State Policeman Darron Holliman filed the charges. An indictment warrant was issued for Mooney. Once apprehended, a $10,000 cash bond will be in place.

•Levi Brennan, 26, of Marion was indicted on multiple charges related to an alleged theft, a chase and eventual apprehension of the suspect by Police Chief Bobby West and former Police Chief Ray O'Neal. Brennan faces indictments in two cases that include five felony charges, specifically two counts of possession of a handgun by a convicted felon, one count of theft of a firearm, one count of theft of a controlled substance and a charge of first-degree, enhanced persistent felony offender. Other misdemeanor indictments were handed down for fleeing or evading police on foot and possession of drug paraphernalia. Police say Brennan was a suspect in a theft and had an active warrant. At about 5:30 p.m., on Oct. 23, officers went to a home on East Bellville to make contact with the suspect. When officers arrived, Brennan reportedly jumped through a glass door trying to escape. Police repeatedly ordered him to stop, but Brennan continued to run, jumping over a fence behind the home. He was later apprehended and a loaded revolver was found near the fence where he'd fled. The police citation says ammunition was found in his pocket, plus two syringes believed to be loaded with meth. The revolver turned out to be the one missing from a burglary the previous day, the police report says. Medication was also allegedly taken in that burglary.

An October grand jury indictment was unsealed this month after the suspect was arrested. Timothy G. Adams, 38, of Marion was indicted in that sealed warrant from October for a Class B enhanced felony for first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance (more than 2 grams); a Class C felony of possession of a handgun by convicted felon; a Class D felony for being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm and misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia. Court records say the charges stem from a June 15 investigation by Sheriff Evan Head.

- Students at Crittenden County High School came up with a method of selfpolicing designed to cut down on the number of people who skip or cut classes. The method was simple - if they skipped, they got a ticket or a citation which cost the student 50 cents. Principal A.Y. Hodge said, "it's all in the spirit of fun." However, he plan was to treat the students as adults and as the citation stated, "we hope that this will make our school a little better and will help our students to become responsible adults."
- Bringing a book to life through the use of pictures was a recent assignment for students at the Junior High School. Karla Hodge create a poster of hand drawn cartoon-like characters depicting her impressions of the book, "Christ Is God's Middle Name.'

To spark interest and allow children to have a better understanding of life, Lewzader had students draw from something many of them already knew about. "In this area, many people hunt, and I wanted to take advantage of deer season by having my students dissect deer hearts," she said.

Smithland Bridge still waiting to be blown up

Demolition of the Smithland Bridge has been delayed yet further. Kentucky Transportation Cabinet (KYTC), Jim Smith Contracting, and a demolition sub-contractor have moved the explosive demolition of the Old U.S. 60 Cumberland River Bridge to November 29 or 30.

The demolition team continues to await the arrival of a crane that will be used to retrieve parts of the truss from the river after the explosive demolition of the bridge. That pushed the tentative demolition date to the week after Thanksgiving.

A final date will be determined in collaboration with the U.S. Coast Guard, with weather conditions being a final factor for Nov. 29 or 30. That decision was expected on Wednesday, the day before Thanksgiving.

Solar meetings in December

RWE Clean Energy, the company building two solar farms near Fredonia, has scheduled two public meetings next month for its second project. Details of what has been named Pleasant Valley Solar project will be available at the meetings. The first public meeting will be from 5 to 7:30 p.m., Tuesday, Dec. 12 at the Lyon County Convention Center at Lee Jones Park. The second will be held in Fredonia from 5 to 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 13 at Fredonia Cumberland Presbyterian Activities Building. Both meetings will have the same information with an open, come-and-go format. Pleasant Valley Solar will be an up to 125 megawatt solar generation facility and will connect to a Big Rivers Electric Corporation 161 kV transmission line that crosses the project. It is proposed to be located on 1,027 acres on the border of Lyon and Caldwell counties east of the Western Kentucky Correctional Facility. This will be adjacent to RWE Clean Energy's Ashwood Solar project, which is currently under construction.

Bonus foul shots elimiated from HS game

There are a few rules changes that high school basketball fans will notice this season. Perhaps the most significant will be the elimination of bonus free throws and revamping team foul rules.

Starting this year, two free throws will be awarded for a common foul beginning with the team's fifth foul in each quarter. Team fouls will reset at the end of each quarter. Previously, teams awarded the one-and-one bonus when their opponents committed seven fouls in a half and two foul shots when 10 fouls were committed each

"The rules committee studied data that showed higher injury rates on rebounding situations and saw this as an opportunity to reduce opportunities for rough play during rebounds," Lindsey said Atkinson, NFHS Director of Sports and liaison to the Basketball Rules Committee. "Additionally, resetting the fouls each quarter will improve game flow and allow teams to adjust their play by not carrying foul totals to quarters two and four."

Another rule was amended to allow a player to step out of bounds and return to the court if the player gains no advantage. A player is penalized only if, after returning inbounds, the player is the first to touch the ball or avoids a violation.

Teams may now wear a single solid color or solid black undershirt. This rule creates uniformity to the dress and provides an opportunity for schools with hard-to-find colors to have all players wear a black undershirt.

According to the 2021-22 NFHS High School Athletics Participation Survey, basketball is the third-most popular high school sport for boys with 521,616 participants in 18,428 schools nationwide. It is the fourth-most popular girls sport with 370,466 participants in 17,901 schools.

Austin Tabor took this 10pointer opening day, his first buck.

Carly Porter bagged this deer while hunting Nov. 19 in Webster County.

Cody Belt harvested this nice eight-point whitetail buck during the opening weekend.

Crittenden County PVA Todd Perryman had a successful hunt last weekend, bagging a nine-point buck.

Cooler weather ushers in final days of rifle season

Deer hunters are starting to see a respite for the balmy weather that likely helped hamper the early-season harvest around Crittenden County.

Through the first three days of this year's 16-day rifle season, Crittenden riflemen took about 750 deer. From Nov. 15 through Nov. 21, that figure had gone up signficantly to 1,425 with bucks accounting for more than half of the overall harvest.

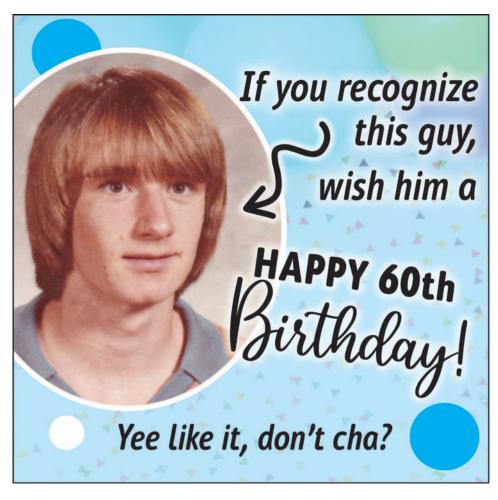

As of Tuesday, Crittenden County hunters had bagged 1,938 deer since the archery season opened in early September. That figure accounts for crossbow, blackpowder and the youth hunt in October. Last year, hunters took 2,707 deer during the entire season and had taken about 1,500 by this point. It appears that better hunting weather is getting the season on track the final few days. Rifle season ends Sunday, but archers can continue to hunt deer well into January and the last muzzleloader season is Dec. 9-17.

Jerry Fuller is one of the successful local hunters who bagged a nice whitetail buck during rifle season.

Guess What? There's life beyond all-time scorer

Coming off one of its most successful seasons ever, the Lady Rockets will be looking to rebound from the loss of Taylor Guess, the program's all-time scoring leader and the heart and soul of a regional runnerup effort a year ago.

Guess was not only the team's playmaker and leading scorer, she was the face of the Lady Rockets for the past three seasons. As a senior last winter, she led the team in two-point goals, three-point goals, free throws and rebounds. Her leadership on and off the court will be difficult to match, but longtime coach Shannon Hodge believes there's plenty left in the cup-

Problem is, the team has already been beset by injuries. Sophomore would-be starters Elle McDaniel and Chloe Hunt are lost for the season. McDaniel with a softball shoulder injury and Hunt with unanticipated knee problems that will require surgery.

Leading the pack will be returning starters Anna Boone and Elliot Evans. The sophomore guards were key contributors a year ago, but in a secondary role to Guess on any given night. Hodge is expecting increased service from the pair.

Sophomore forward Andrea Federico and Bristyn Rushing will figure into the regular lineup with Rushing at the post and Federico at forward.

Hunt was projected to handle some of the duties at the point, so most of that will now fall on the shoulders of Boone, who was the only doubledigit scorer last year besides Guess. She's long and talented.

"Anna has the potential to be a big-time scorer," said Hodge, who is beginning her 31st season at the helm.

"Anna will need to be a double-figure scorer and rebounder every game,' the coach adds.

Evans could morph into a role at the point at times, but is more comfortable at the second guard slot. She brings defensive energy to the floor and "runs the floor better than anyone else we have," Hodge said.

Evans will need to score more than the eight points she averaged last

"Federico is going to surprise some people with what she can do offensively and defensively," the coach said.

Finding replacements for graduates Natalie Boone and Addie Hatfield will be a challenge. Federico will need to be strong around the basket, the coach said.

Sophomore Georgia Holeman will be thrust into a regular role after playing mostly JV last year. She's quick and has a good set shot.

At 5-foot-10, Rushing is one the team's tallest players, but she's been troubled by nagging injuries and hasn't seen much action as a high school player.

"We haven't had a presence like her in the post with her height and length in a long time," Hodge said.

Sophomore Madison Walker is back from a illness that sidelined her all of last season. She's working hard to get back and find a place in the mix, Hodge explains.

Eighth-grader Jordyn Hodge will have to grow into a varsity role quickly. She's the coach's daughter and has a great deal of court savvy and ability. The quicker she finds her varsity footing and can consistently contribute, the better Crittenden can expect to be this season.

Freshmen Morgan Stewart and Charlee Munday can also find playing time around the Aalina Henry is a basketball newcomer. At 5-10, she could have a future once she develops her game, the coach said.

Hodge believes the district is wide open. Lyon and Livingston return almost all of their key players while Trigg lost a great deal to graduation. Around the region, Christian County, Madisonville and Henderson will be among the contenders.

"I think we have a world of potential," Hodge points out. "The district will be a dog fight every game."

Matt Fraliex is remarkably prepared for his first role as a boys' head basketball coach, particularly for his inaugural season at Crittenden

County. He has inherited a team blessed with one of the most talented players in school history who's chasing down the team's all-time scoring record. Crittenden County senior Travis Champion needs but 457 points to catch Tim Hill, whose career ended in 2005.

Fraliex has been down the same path. He's already been fitted with a scoring crown of his own from Caldwell County where played from 2002 to 2007, dropping 2,941 points.

The coach talks about some of the similarities of his own career and what Champion is experiencing right now. The makeup up of this team reminds Fraliex a little bit of his own playing days. He was the star of the show just like Champion. Fraliex went on to play collegiately at Murray State. Some smaller schools are recruiting the Crittenden senior, including Morehead, Transylvania and Brescia. Depending on his final season, Champion's stock could go up. He's certainly among the alltime best to suit up for a home game at Rocket Arena.

Champion has 1,365 career points. He's No. 3 on the Rockets all-time scoring list behind Hill who has 1,822 and Bennett Smith with 1,596. He needs 232 to pass Smith. Champion scored 655 last season and 581 as a sophomore, so capturing the team's career scoring crown is simply a matter of time, so long as he stays healthy.

"Travis is a leader, a great facilitator and he gets less credit for that," the first-year Rocket "Travis skipper said. wants to include all of his teammates into game. Sometimes you have to tell him shoot the ball. He just wants to make everyone around him better."

He draws a great deal of defensive attention so there should be ample opportunity for others to get in on the offensive ac-

The Rockets will look freshman Bryson Walker to be a key contributor. He had a good summer with the Rockets and played well in AAU against top-notch competition.

"Bryson has grown over the summer. He hit the weight room and added a whole new facet to his game with added strength," Fraliex said.

The emergence of Gabe Keller and Jonah Reddick around the basket could be a key factor in the Rockets' success. The coach says both will step into bigger roles than either have had before now. Keller has gotten stronger and gained confidence during a good season on the football field. Reddick, who transfered from Lyon County, has sat out the last two seasons, but the coach likes what he sees. Both, Fraliex said, will have to adjust quickly to the speed of the varsity Jaxon Hatfield will share time at the point along with Champion, Walker and up-andcomer CamRon Belcher. Belcher will bring a to the floor. "He is kind of an X factor for us," the coach said. "He can be a hidden gem." Fraliex describes senior Turner Sharp as an "Allen Wrench," who does things to help the team that may not show up in the nightly box score.

Kaiden Travis and Brayden Poindexter bring depth around the basket. Travis is a guy who will "beat and bang" with anybody, the coach said. Poindexter should "come into his own" this season, Fraliex adds.

Andrew Candelario and Dawson Jones are a couple of other Rockets who figure into the mix by providing help off of the bench.

With Lyon County stacked with talent rarely seen in the Fifth District, the Rockets figure to be a contender for the league's runnerup spot but getting past Trigg County and Livingston Central will be a defined challenge. Crittenden will

Parish earns pulling league's top award

Kristi Asher and John Mears, co-directors of the Pro Pulling League, presented Marion's Rhett Parish with the organization's Puller of the Year Award during a ceremony last weekend at Louisville.

Neither observers nor industry insiders were surprised that 21-year-old Rhett Parish of Marion last weekend became the youngest person to ever win the Pro Pulling League's Puller of the Year Award.

Parish, a third generation tractor puller who competes at the sport's highest level on his IH Pro Stock El Niño, was presented the league's top honor during its annual awards celebration at the Hyatt Regency in Louisville.

"I am still in shock," Parish's mother Natalie said.

"I am surprised," Rhett said in accepting the award.

However, the pulling community wasn't.

John Mears, director of the Pro Pulling League, said Parish's sportsmanship, competitiveness, spirt and hard work have earned respect from the entire tractor pulling section, both veterans and newcomers.

"Most importantly, he represents the new generation of pullers we need to continue the sport for years to come," Mears

At the end of 2022, Sandy Susch was facing the scary proposition of a potential heart transplant.

With Stage 4 COPD and emphazema, Susch was recommended by her pulmonologist to begin the pulmonary rehabilitation program at Crittenden Community Hospital.

"It is helping substantially," Susch, 63, said. "It has helped me train my breathing and I am building lung capacity."

Regretfully, Susch said, she turned to vaping for about four years after stopping smoking.

"It doesn't matter what anybody tells you, vaping will kill you. It's what took me to where I am now." Susch said from the first day of rehab through today her pulmonary function has improved to 171 percent from 30 percent.
