Unite to Read: Event tonight at CCHS library

The annual Unite to Read program will be held from 5-7 p.m., tonight (Thursday) at Crittenden County High School's library. There will be awards, too. This free program will include activities for adults and children, including a coloring contest, interactive educational computer games, monkey-theme crafts, healthy snacks, a book walk, a live skit about the book and a jungle-themed obstacle course.

Cherry reception

Crittenden County will host a public retirement reception for outgoing Rep. Mike Cherry at 3 p.m., Tuesday at the courthouse.

Turkey Knob Rd. remains closed

Turkey Knob Road in the Amish community off Fords Ferry Road remains closed while the Crooked Creek Bridge is being replaced. The road will be closed about two more weeks.

Conserve water order in place

The City of Marion is asking residents to voluntarily conserve water. Because of the ongoing drought, the city's raw water source, Lake George, is alarmingly low. The city has been drawing water from Old City Lake and buying it from the Crittenden-Livingston Water District in order to preserve levels at Lake George.

Marion Baptist collecting food for Christmas

Food distribution for families registered for Community Christmas will be held by appointment only from 9 a.m., to noon on Friday, Dec. 14 at Marion Baptist Church Family Life Center. Anyone wishing to contribute food or money to the collection effort should deliver it to the church between 9 a.m., and 3 p.m., weekdays. Monetary contributions can also be mailed to Marion Baptist Church, P.O. Box 384, Marion, KY 42064-0384.

Christmas Parade Salutes Patriotism

Five selected to marshal holiday event

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County will salute patriotism by featuring veterans from each branch of the United States military during Saturday's annual Christmas Parade at 2 p.m.

Organizers says this year's parade theme: "A Patriotic Christmas" prompted them to choose grand marshals who would represent and honor the United States Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and National Guard. Unfortunately, no one from Crittenden County was identified as being a Coast Guard veteran. So, only five of the six branches will be personified by local veterans.

Marshals chosen were Brenton "Dan" Witherspoon, a U.S. Army veteran of the Vietnam War; Ronald "Tink" Hicklin, U.S. Air Force veteran of World War II; Donald Orr, a U.S. Naval veteran of the Vietnam War; James Williams, a U.S. Marine Corps sergeant; and Wayne Howerton, a 20-year National Guard veteran.

Following are biographical capsules of the men chosen to serve as grand marshals of the parade:

■ Brenton Witherspoon served 19 years with the U.S. Army and the Kentucky National Guard. He was stationed in Germany and served two tours in Vietnam. He was awarded the Silver Star for gallantry, earned three Purple Hearts and 35 Air Medals with V Device. Witherspoon was a flight medic on a Dustoff helicopter in Vietnam.

He was born in Marion and raised in Blackford. He is largely responsible for the Blackford Memorial Walk of Honor and orchestrates various events at the memorial.

■ Donald Orr will represent the U.S. Navy. Orr entered the military in 1968 and served more than four years.

Orr was stationed at the Whidbey Island Naval Air Station in Washington State before serving in Vietnam. After his time in the service, he worked at Anaconda Aluminum in Henderson.

Orr said he made lasting friendships during his service and has the opportunity to meet and catch up with fellow servicemen every few years.

■ Born and raised in Crittenden County, Ronald Hicklin will represent the U.S. Air Force. Hicklin served from 1942 to 1946 during World War II. He was a ground crew mechanic on the island of Saipan in the Pacific Ocean's Western Theater during the closing days of the war.

"The airplanes flew from our islands to Japan every day they could get airborne," he said.

After the war, Hicklin returned to Crittenden County where he and his brother operated the Marion Dry Cleaners until 1995. At 94, Hicklin still works part-time at the dry cleaners in Marion.

■ Marion resident James Williams served in the Marines from 1951 to 1953. In 1951 he went to boot camp at Parris, Island, S.C. He then went to Camp Lejeune, N.C. for a 12-week program for Advance Combat School. Williams was stationed there one year as permanent personnel.

He was then transferred to the 2nd Engineer Battalion. Williams left the

In civilian life, Williams worked for the International Shoe Company in Paducah before retiring from the coal mines.

Sponsors needed for Community Christmas

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

It's not too late to help sponsor a child for Community Christmas. Organizers say they still have 78 of the 225 children between the ages of birth to 12 who need sponsorship. To sponsor a child visit the angel trees at Farmers Bank and the Extension Office in Marion.

Individuals interested in sponsoring four or more children can either take tags off the angel trees or call Community Christmas organizer Nancy Hunt at 965-5236 or 704-0057.

"I still have three families with four or more children needing a sponsor. It really is better for the family for all the children to be sponsored by the same person or group so presents can be equal for each child in the family," Hunt said.

Hunt said letters were mailed in early November to businesses and churches asking them either for monetary donations, to sponsor a fundraising activity for Community Christmas or to sponsor children off the angel trees.

AT&T launches 3G

STAFF REPORT

AT&T customers in Crittenden County awoke to an early Christmas present Monday – 3G network service.

Cathy Lewandowski, a spokesperson for AT&T, said the transition to the faster network will lay the groundwork for future development of 4G service for the area.

She characterized Monday's unannounced unveiling of 3G as a "soft launch" which was framed by some temporary service interruptions in the first hours of the change. By later this week, AT&T anticipates the network will be optimized, Lewandowski said.

In addition to Marion and Crittenden County, 3G was launched Monday in Salem, Sturgis and Providence.

The term 3G simply means third generation technology. Smartphone users who had been seeing an "E" on the device's network indicator, should now see 3G. The "E" means Edge Network, or what's also known as 2G.

Making the changeover is not as simple as "flipping a switch," Lewandowski said. She explained that engineers will continue to work through issues that might arise as the new system is put into use.

"Speaking on behalf of our Crittenden County businesses, I can tell you that we are all excited to have faster mobile Internet service," said Susan Alexander, Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce Executive Director.

When the system was launched Monday a test indicated download speeds at 0.06 Mbps; however, that jumped to 1.31 Mbps on Tuesday.

Carlisle Towery, perhaps Crittenden County's greatest basketball player of all time, has died. See obituary, page 4.

Towery, 92, passed away Sunday morning at his home after a brief illness. He was a legendary basketball star at Shady Grove High School in rural Crittenden County then became a two-time All American at Western Kentucky University where he played from 1938 to 1941. He played professionally in the National Basketball League, forerunner of the NBA, and was nicknamed "Big Boy," because he stood 6-foot-5 at a time when players were not nearly as tall as they are today.

Towery played three years of pro basketball before joining the military. He earned the Bronze Star for his service during World War II, then returned to professional basketball until his retirement in 1950.

"What a sad day it is," said Crittenden County High School basketball coach Denis Hodge. "To me it's the passing of a living legend. Carlisle Towery played ball for his community and professionally, then went off and won the war for his country. He

Not many Americans trust in God

We heard hundreds of students from colleges in D.C., the night of the election gathered behind the White House chanting, “Karl Marx, Karl Marx, Karl Marx,” demanding atheistic Communism for America. They joined a majority of Americans. These college brainwashed students do not even begin to know what God and Christianity are about, and certainly they don't trust in God. And, they don't want the rest of us to either.

Now that Christmas is near we will hear more from the pagan, atheistic, Satanic-controlled ACLU, demanding we all deny God a place in America.

Some of the following statements were sent out in a newsletter by one of the most brilliant Constitutional Christian attorneys of our time, David Gibbs. He regularly argues cases before the U.S. Supreme Court for Christians and churches. He wins far more than he loses.

National polls consistently report that 95 percent of Americans believe in God. Sadly, however, many Americans only turn to God in times of crises.

We saw this after the September 11th attacks. After that tragic event, churches were packed with people in mourning, but three weeks later many of these pews were again empty. It was another national crisis that resulted in the phrase “In God We Trust” being placed on America's currency. During the Civil War, public opinion favored the recognition of God on our coins. As Rev. M.R. Watkinson wrote on Nov. 13, 1861, “From my heart I have felt our national shame in disowning God as not the least of our present national disasters.”

Rev. Lucy Tedrick

The Secretary of the United States Treasury supported this movement when he wrote to the director of the mint at Philadelphia, “Dear Sir: No nation can be strong except in the strength of God, or safe except in His defense. The trust of our people in God should be declared on our national coins,” Salmon P. Chase, Nov. 20, 1861.

Where are present-day politicians who have that kind of character and boldness? On April 22, 1864, the desire of the people to demonstrate their trust in God became law when President Abraham Lincoln signed the bill that permitted “In God We Trust” to be placed on our coins. The two-cent coin was the first to bear the inscription in 1864.

The Cold War crisis is credited with the law that inscribed, “In God We Trust” on all our currency and coins. Congress approved this law on July 11, 1955, with little debate.

Speaking in favor of the bill, Congressman Bennett of Florida said, “In these days when imperialistic and materialistic communism seeks to attack and destroy freedom, we should continuously look for ways to strengthen the foundations of our freedom. At the base of our freedom is our faith in God and the desire of Americans to live by His will and His guidance. As long as this country trusts in God, it will prevail. To serve as a constant reminder of this truth, it is highly desirable that our currency and coins should bear these inspiring words 'In God we Trust.'”

And didn't God bring the great Soviet Empire to ruin and end the Cold War? Again the cry goes out: Where are the present-day politicians with that character and boldness?

One year later, at the height of the Cold War, Congress approved “In God We Trust” as the national motto of the United States. President Dwight Eisenhower signed the bill into law on July 30, 1956. Congress was motivated by the desire to set America apart from the secular and atheistic foundations of communism. It was also influenced by a verse in the national anthem.

We need to note the “Star-Spangled Banner” was written in a time of crisis during the bombardment of Fort McHenry in the 1814 war between America and Great Britain.

Even before the Sept. 11 attack on America, many local and national leaders were encouraging the public display of our national motto as an antidote to a national crisis of character in the American people that appeared to be deepening. School children were murdering their peers and political leaders who routinely lied were being routinely accepted.

In one effort to stem the tide against this moral decline in America, the Colorado State Board of Education approved a non-binding resolution on July 6, 2000, urging Colorado public schools to display “In God We Trust” posters. In supporting the resolution, Clair Orr, chairman of the Colorado Board of Education, said, “The words we pass on to our young can shape their destiny and the destiny of this land. Our nation has lost its way on the road of virtue and moral character – the very fabric needed for a people to govern themselves on the foundation of liberty and justice.”

Yet despite the violent deaths of Columbine High School students in 1999, and the deepening need to trust God, there remains a prevalent group of atheists, pagans and polytheists who succeeded in preventing this resolution from being implemented in the very county where Columbine High School is located. Similar fight has been lost at other schools of our nation thanks to some professed Christians and others of so-called faith who fail to step up.

May all Christians cry out to God to shut the mouths of lions (This group of God haters, and those God haters in the so-called American Civil Liberties Union) as in Daniel's time. Give us educated leaders and God's Word as the source of blessings upon this land. Help lead this country again to national greatness.

How I praise God for my crisis when He loved me enough to keep after me with His love and Holy Spirit until He could give me enough sense to stop my ignorant path of sin and turn to Him with all my heart and soul. He has let me live out my life doing all I can to represent and present Him to people whose lives will all be in vain and eternal pain if they don't turn to the God of love and justice.

Angels do exist, one lady stayed

The emergency room entrance was the last place I had expected to be that hot July morning. Now, thankful to be alive, three attendants unfolded me from the passenger seat and brought me in, doing all they could to keep from adding more hurt to my damaged body.

A few hours earlier, my husband, Eddie, and I had decided to spend the day out site-seeing. We stopped to see a friend and take a look at a canoe he had for sale. He wasn't home, so we only stayed a few minutes, but long enough for me to bend over to pick up a paper I had dropped on the ground. That's when my hip implant rolled out of joint, sending me crashing to the ground. I knew immediately what had happened, but I was never so shocked. I had made the same movement hundreds of times since my doctor released me.

My mind went back 16 months to the day after my surgery. I had stood up on my new hip that day and knew I had gotten my life back. The past year had revolved around pain. Rheumatoid arthritis had hit me in my early 30s and held on tight. But, this was more than the usual joint and muscle aches. Unbearable shooting pains ran down my back, groin and leg. When I told my husband I couldn't live with it, he knew it had to be bad.

Looking at my X-rays, the orthopedic surgeon described my hip exactly the way it felt to me.

“It's like trying to fit a square peg in a round hole,” he said.

RA had destroyed it. But, he offered some good news, “There's a 99-percent chance a total hip replacement would eliminate the

Linda Defew

With those kinds of odds, I scheduled my surgery that day.

During my hospital recovery, I was told not to lift my leg too high and taught how to swivel to get up out of bed. At no time in the first three months was I to bend from the waist more than 90 degrees. That was my healing time.

“It could slip out of joint and you don't want that to happen,” my nurse said. “It's extremely painful.”

I would follow the rules to the letter. I had had enough pain.

In six months, I was back for my checkup. I walked in with no assistance. My surgeon was as happy as I was. He advised me not to cross my legs and, “no competitive sports.”

I had to laugh at that one. I couldn't play sports if I had too.

When he stood to leave, I thanked him and gave him a big hug.

“See you back in three years,” he said.

Now, only a few months later, I lay flat on my back in the scorching sun. I couldn't use either hand. My left one was swelling like a softball and I couldn't move my right arm from the shoulder down. Eddie gently lifted me off the ground and worked me into the car inch by inch as my left leg hung precariously sideways. For what seemed like an eternity, I prayed and Eddie drove 80 mph. To make matters worse, we were in an area where there was no cell phone service. plus we were 50 miles from the nearest hospital.

My arrival time couldn't have been better. My surgeon was just finishing up in the operating room and would take me right in. God had answered my prayers. But, first, I would have to go to X-ray to see what was going on. I begged the three people in radiology not to move me onto the hard table, but it was no use.

“It has to be done,” they all said, but promised to get the pictures quickly. “Yell if you have to. We'll understand.”

On the count of three, they lifted my 100-pound body off the stretcher amid my screams. “My leg!” I cried. I couldn't stand it. With the ball out of socket, it felt as if my leg was tearing loose from my body.

Then, from out of somewhere in the dark room, I heard a soft, kind voice, “Go ahead. I'll stay with her.”

Then, the other two radiologists went to stand behind the shield while she held my leg up off the table in its awkward position until the X-rays were over and I was wheeled into surgery. My hand was set, my shoulder put back into place, and my dislocated hip put back together again. Three days later, I went home to begin my recovery – again.

As the days went by, I couldn't get the lady in the X-ray department off my mind. Why had she done that for me? I was just another patient not unlike the ones she saw every day. Why would she risk her own health to help a stranger? The magnitude of her compassion had impacted my life like nothing before. Every time I tried to tell the story, the words stuck in my throat. Somehow, I had to let her know. The least I could do was say “thank you.”

I called the hospital and tried to get a name with no luck. I had been in so much pain, I couldn't provide a description, only that she had a kind, compassionate voice and was on duty at the time of my X-rays. No one working in that department knew of such a person. Then, I followed that up with a letter. Still, there was no response.

At that point, I tried to explain it away. Maybe her job would have been in jeopardy for ignoring hospital policy or, for whatever reason, she wanted to remain anonymous. All those things made perfect sense.

Today, I know there are some things in this life that can't be explained, and that was one of them. All I know is that when I was in trouble, a soft-spoken lady stayed with me. To me, she was like an angel from heaven. I would never forget her.

is of the Greatest Generation. He's a hometown Ted Williams. They don't make many like that. He was a hero.

Towery led his 1937 Shady Grove Bearcats to the Kentucky State Tournament. Then, he was the first WKU Hiltopper to score 1,000 points. Western Kentucky retired his No. 42 in 2003. Only six WKU athletes have ever had their jersey retired. During his pro career, Towery bucketed 2,317 points with teams such as the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Pistons, Indianapolis Jets and Baltimore Bullets.

“He's one of the most successful athletes to come from here,” said Andy Hunt, chairman of the Farmers Bank Marion-Crittenden County Athletics Hall of Fame, to which Towery was inducted in 1998. “He excelled in high school, college and at the professional level. He's definitely one of the top two or three athletes from Crittenden County.”

Hunt says many local sports fans may not recognize Towery's impact at the collegiate level.

“He was and All-American and the first person at Western to score 1,000 points. He's not only a beloved son from Crittenden County, but the folks at Bowling Green also see him as a huge deal,” Hunt said.

Towery was regularly seen walking the streets of Marion, staying physically fit even as old age crept upon him.

“I'd always tell people that Marion is one of the few places you'll see a retired professional athlete taking his morning stroll on the city sidewalks,” Hunt added. “You'd see him out there nearly every day no matter what the weather was like.”

Fly-in would be nice event

To the Editor:

Wouldn't a fly-in be nice to have at our new airport? With its 4,400-foot runway, it could handle some of the biggest planes, and the tie down area should be roomy enough to allow for a good display site.

Throw in a helicopter repelling demonstration from Fort Campbell, a few local vendors, ample campers and camping space at a nearby property, plenty of parking space and of course, cooperation from our tourism commission and local media, and you'd have the ingredients to generate a successful event.

How important is college degree?

In the past few yaers, among Americans aged 25 to 34 – the youngest group that would have completed college under a traditional schedule – the unemployment rate for bachelor's degree holders was 4.1 percent versus 11 percent for those with only a high-school diploma and 9.8 percent for those who began college but didn't finish. Employed college graduates earned 37 percent more than dropouts in 2010, according to an Education Department analysis of Commerce Department data.

Navigate the holidays as a stress-free caregiver

Caregiving can be stressful, and these stresses can be exacerbated around the holidays as you are faced with added responsibilities and obligations. Whether this is your first holiday season as a caregiver or you have been providing care for years, you can do several things to make the holidays easier on you, the person you're caring for and your extended family and friends by following the recommendations below.

Nancy Hunt Home Notes

1. Plan ahead. This includes shopping for gifts and food for the holiday meal(s) well in advance of the holiday. Doing so can minimize the chances you will feel rushed or stressed as the holiday approaches. In addition, it may help you spread out your holiday spending over a couple of months instead of just one.
2. Prepare your guests.

This may be the first time your guests will see their loved one since you became their caregiver, and you don't want your family members or the person you're caring for to be frustrated or embarrassed by their health situation. Remind your guests of any physical and mental limitations your loved one may have. Celebrate the holidays where the person you are caring for resides. This can keep their stress levels lower as they don't have to worry about traveling or being in an unfamiliar environment.

3. Ask for help. Have someone run errands for you, such as mailing Christmas cards or picking up items from the grocery store, or have them stay with your loved one so you can do those tasks. Most people are happy to help if you ask.

4. Take time for yourself. Take a break from caregiving and holiday planning to do something that you really want to do. Simple things such as taking a winter walk or enjoying coffee and a conversation with a friend can help to improve your spirits.

Woman's Club members travel to Murray for GFWC fall conference

GFWC Kentucky First District Fall Conference was hosted by the Murray Woman's Club Oct. 25. Woman's Club of Marion members Susan Alexander, GFWC Kentucky president-elect, shared membership recruitment information and Becky Zahrtre presented the report on the local club's activities. Zahrtre was elected chairman of the District nominating committee. Results from the First District Photography Contests were Sandra Belt, first place in living things and second place in volunteers in action. Judith Ann Manley also had a successful run in the arts and crafts contests, taking first place in jewelry, first in basket weaving and first in embroidery. First place entries are now eligible for the state contest April 12 in Louisville. Pictured are (from left) Zahrtre, vice president of the Woman's Club of Marion; Alexander, state president-elect; Peggy Barnes; state president; and Cynthia Barnes, district governor.

Beshear assumes new duties as district health director

Allison Beshear of Princeton started her duties as a public health director II for the Pennyriple District Health Department Nov. 26. Beshear has 10 years experience in public health and received her Master's degree in Public Health May 31 from Western Kentucky University. The Pennyriple District Health Department is a five-county health department serving the counties of Caldwell, Crittenden, Livingston, Lyon and Trigg. The previous director, James Tolley, retired July 31 after six years at the helm. According to Caldwell County Judge-Executive Brock Thomas, newly elected chairman of the Pennyriple District Board of Health, "The District Board expressed their confidence that Mrs. Beshear's experience in and passion for public health will benefit the Pennyriple District Health Department." Dr. Stephanie Mayfield-Gibson, Commissioner for the Department for Public Health, states, "We look forward to a continued good working relationship with the Board of Health, the employees of the Pennyriple District Health Department, and wish her the very best."

Beshear says, "I am excited and looking forward to doing new things. Pennyriple has a great bunch of people and a good foundation to begin work from. I'm ready to get started." Beshear is the daughter of Joe Gray and Patricia Gray, both of Princeton. She is married to Tyler Beshear of Princeton, and the couple has two daughters, Ella and Lainey.

WKCTC will host ACT preparation seminar

West Kentucky Community and Technical College will host an ACT preparation seminar from 9 a.m. - 3 p.m., Saturday in the Emerging Technology Center (ETC) in Paducah. Enrollment is limited and students are encouraged to register now. The Sycamore Learning Company provides the five-hour seminar to help area high school juniors and seniors with tips and strategies to maximize scoring on each section of the ACT test. Students can register until test day. Students need to enroll for the seminar at prepforthe future.com or by calling 1-866-223-9691. Payment can be made online or students can bring a check made out to Sycamore Learning Center to the seminar. The cost of the seminar is $79 and includes an extensive study guide that has three full-length practice tests with in-depth answer explanations for each question. The seminar also includes:

- A presentation of tips and strategies to help students attain their highest possible scores.

- A special focus on the math and science sections of the test.
- A detailed explanation on how to write the essay portion of the test.
- College scholarship opportunities available to students who attend.
- An experienced presenter conducting the seminar.

Students should bring two pencils and a calculator to the seminar. There will be a 45-minute lunch break; students are responsible for their own lunches. The Sycamore Learning Company has helped more than 10,000 students prepare and score higher on the ACT test over the last 10 years. For information about the ACT preparation seminar contact Gina Marwa, WKCTC assessments program facilitator, at (270) 534-3490 or gina.mawra@kctcs.edu.

The wedding will take place at 12 p.m., Dec. 8 at Kuttawa First Baptist Church in Kuttawa. A reception will follow at Lee Jones Park in Ed-dyville. All friends and family are invited to attend.

American Legion hosts 2013 oratorical contest

PRESS RELEASE Each year the American Legion sponsors an oratorical contest designed to develop deeper knowledge and appreciation for the U. S. Constitution among high school students. The 71-year-old program presents participants with an academic speaking challenge that teaches important leadership qualities, the history of our nation's laws, the ability to think and speak clearly, and an understanding of the duties, responsibilities, rights and privileges of American citizenship. High school students under the age of 20 are eligible to compete for some of the most generous scholarships available. The overall national contest winner gets an $18,000 scholarship; second place takes home $16,000; and third place gets $14,000. Additional scholarship funds are disbursed to district, area and department (state) winners and runners-up. Speaking subjects must be on some aspect of the U.S.

Constitution, with an emphasis on the duties and obligations of citizens to our government. This portion is called the "Prepared Oration" and must be eight to 10 minutes in duration. The second phase of the competition is called the "Assigned Topic" and each student must be prepared to speak for three to five minutes on any one of five assigned topics. The District One contest will be conducted on Sunday, Jan. 22 at a time and site yet to be determined. Students or counselors who wish to be placed on an "update list" are encouraged to email usmc1965@bellsouth.net. The five Assigned Topics for 2012 and additional information about the contest are available at www.kylegion.org. In addition, students can contact their local American Legion post, school guidance counselor, principal, or call Mark Kennedy, District One Coordinator at (270) 752-3333 for additional information.

Evening Belles Homemaker News

Submitted by Margaret Gilland

The Evening Belles Homemaker Club met Nov. 8 at the Crittenden County Extension Office with seven members present.

President Pat Carter called the meeting to order, led the Pledge of Allegiance and continued with the inspiration from her daily devotion titled, "Discontinued."

Myrle Dunning had roll call with members answering with favorite Thanksgiving desserts, then gave a treasurer's report.

Thought of the month was, "If your pie crust won't stick together, make cobbler instead."

Algie Richards served delicious refreshments then gave the lesson on appetizers.

Carter advised October was a busy month with many activities and gave a report on Christmas in Marion. She also reminded us that tickets are still available for the cultural holiday outing in Louisville.

Discussions were also held about a Christmas tree and it was decided to put it up on Nov. 19. There will not be a regular meeting in December but we will travel to Adam's Breezy Farms for Christmas lunch.

Richards presented the game Everyday is a Challenge and the prize was won by Louise May and the meeting was adjourned.

Crooked Creek Homemaker News

Submitted by Wanda Rudd

The Crooked Creek Homemaker Club was called to order by president Sally Boyd Nov. 13 at the home of Sue Weaver. Present were six members, two members-at-large and four visitors: Sandra Dixon, Nancy Lapp, Marilyn Padgett and Van Marie Patton. We were certainly glad to have them visit with us.

Boyd led the pledge to the flag, and Dot Boone presented the devotional.

Our secretary/treasurer for many years, Doris Market, has moved to Henderson and will be very much missed. Glenda Chandler, our new secretary/treasurer, gave the treasurer's report and read the minutes of the last meeting.

We discussed our donation to Community Christmas, deciding to give money for vouchers for teenagers. Also we plan to once again help residents at Crittenden County Health and Rehabilitation Center decorate their tree.

This was our Thanksgiving potluck, with our hostess, Sue Weaver, providing ham, turkey and dressing. We had a wonderful time in Sue's lovely new home, and we thank her for her hospitality.

Our next meeting will be Dec. 8 at Adam's Breezy Hill Farm Restaurant in Princeton, and afterwards we will tour Adsmore. We will meet at Marion Baptist Church at 10 a.m., and carpool from there.

Tickets now available for 4-H youth camp

Submitted by Bonnie Baker

Are you looking for that perfect Christmas gift for the youth on your list? How would you like to give them a week of fun and excitement? A week to learn about nature, go swimming, canoeing, horseback riding, participate arts and crafts, riflery, archery and much more?

How about giving them a week of meeting and making life-long friends? Well, here is your chance to do just that.

While 4-H camp may not be until July 15-19, 2013, you can give the youth in your life the gift of going to camp this Christmas! The 4-H council is selling 4-H Camp gift certificates this fall. The cost of camp is $160 but you may purchase a gift certificate in any amount you wish. 4-H camp is open to all youth ages nine to 14. They do not have to be enrolled in 4-H to attend camp.

What better gift can you give the kids in your life than a week they will remember for the rest of their lives? Space is limited for camp and spaces are first-come-first-served so don't wait to get these perfect stocking stuffers. Simply call the Crittenden County Extension Office at 965-5236 to order yours.

Banks speed up mortgage relief efforts

The nation's five largest mortgage servicers continue to provide direct relief to homeowners in Kentucky and across the country as part of the national mortgage foreclosure settlement.

The second post-settlement progress report released last week by the independent settlement monitor, says that from March 1 through Sept. 30 in Kentucky, mortgage servicers from the nation's five largest banks provided $33.29 million in settlement-related relief to 944 homeowners. Borrowers received an average of $35,268 in assistance.

The various forms of relief provided to Kentucky borrowers included 57 completed first lien modifications, 211 completed second lien terminations, 290 completed short sales, 14 cash for keys at $1,500 each, 109 deficiency waivers, 107 completed refinances and six donated properties.

The report also shows that an additional 170 Kentuckians were able to refinance their homes through the settlement. These borrowers held mortgages that exceeded the current value of their homes. The average interest rate reduction was 3.64 percent. As of Sept. 30, 2012, mortgage servicers were processing relief claims for 302 borrowers totaling $12.98 million.

The monitor also reports the receipt of more than 3,000 consumer submissions via the settlement oversight website and 350 submissions from professional advocates nationwide. In Kentucky, the monitor has received 31 consumer submissions and three from professional advocates. Attorney General Conway encourages the public and consumer advocates to submit any difficulties they've experienced with seeking remedies under the settlement.

"I am pleased that the banks are continuing to move in the right direction by providing substantial relief to homeowners in Kentucky and across the country," Kentucky Attorney General Jack Conway said. "It is important to note that we are only a few months into what is a three-year agreement and more relief is on the way for homeowners."

Nationally, the report found that more than 300,000 borrowers received some type of consumer relief during the same period totaling $26.11 billion. On average, each borrower received $84,384 in relief. The servicers will provide another quarterly update in early 2013.

Deadline for consumers to apply for the cash payment of up to $2,000 is Jan. 18. Consumers must have faced foreclosure from 2008 to 2011 and had a loan with or serviced by one of the nation's five largest banks. To learn more about the settlement and how to apply for the cash payment, visit www.ag.ky.gov.

Mommy solitude can be found at the grocery

Not too long ago, I had a conversation with a friend of mine, who is also a parent. Despite feeling old 90 percent of the time, we were talking about how young we actually are.

We're not in our 30s yet. We don't have gray hair and from what I can tell, we're still pretty active outside of our business lives. We love to hang out, go to the movies, go out to dinner with our husbands, spend time with our children and more. But the more we talked about our home life, the more I found that we had what I like to call, the mommy oasis.

For most, oases can include a sandy beach somewhere with crystal blue water and drinks with tiny umbrellas. But for us, our mommy oases differ just a bit.

We tend to use our oases as a small getaway, whether it's for 10 minutes, 10 hours or for the weekend. Our mommy oasis is the one spot we retreat to when we need a moment to ourselves, away from the screaming match by the littles over who had a toy first and sometimes, even from the husbands who try to be helpful, but end up trying our nerves.

During our conversation, the mommy oasis came to light when my friend said she found herself hanging out in her laundry room, seeking just a few minutes of peace during the day.

"It's nice to have those days where I can lose myself in my crafts or let my mind wander when I do the laundry," she said. "The kids are playing somewhere in the house and the husband is either outside or working. It's like a mini vacation for me."

With her words, my mind began thinking. What was my mommy oasis? I definitely am not Susie Homemaker so my laundry room

Jerritt Brown

Just My Opinion

Press staff writer

was definitely out of the question. The more I thought about it, the more clear the picture became. My mommy oasis was at the grocery store.

I looked forward to the shopping trip where I could leave my son at home with my husband and I could push my cart down the aisles without worrying about tiny fingers reaching out and grabbing random items off the shelf. The grocery store was my mommy oasis where I could lose myself in aisle five, somewhere between boxes of macaroni and cheese and rows of cans of green beans.

The store isn't just my oasis, either. Tons of other moms and dads use it as well. It almost goes without having to be said, as we pass one another in the aisles and we give our little head nods and shoulder shrugs, suggesting we're happy with a few minutes of peace. We aren't having to chase rogue bottles down the aisle or suffer through tantrums over those silly candy displays because the little wants "chocwat."

No, the store is the one place where I can gather my bearings, sort through the day's to-do list, make mental notes of what is going on that week. I guess my oasis at the store can also serve as a small therapy session, as well, where I can regain composure and think through my problems. It costs nearly just as much by the time I'm through shopping.

John-Luke Ellis Reddick

Todd and Michelle Reddick of Marion announce the birth of a son, John-Luke Ellis Reddick, September 19, 2012. John-Luke weighed 8 lbs., 13 oz., and was 21 1/2 in long.

Siblings include Kayla McKinsey, 23; Ashton Claire, 22; Rebekah Lauren, 21; Jackson Todd, 7; Steven Jonah, 6; and Jett Edward, 3.

Crittenden County featured in 1902 for its fluorspar

In the early 1900s, not only was Crittenden County excited and hopeful about the rich deposits of minerals found in the area, other places were becoming familiar with the county being the largest producer of fluorspar in the nation and also noted for its rich finds of lead and zinc. The Courier-Journal of Louisville, on Nov. 16, 1902, featured Crittenden County in a full page layout with many interesting facts and figures, plus some one-of-a-kind photos. Here are some of the highlights from the article.

Nov. 16, 1902

Big Riches in the Deposits of Ore in western Kentucky

The discovery of the ores of zinc in one of the three counties locally termed the Western Kentucky mining district, dates back not quite two years. The counties of Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell are known to possess great fissure veins in which are stored the ore accumulation of centuries.

It is difficult to detail the genesis of these deposits in the great fissures running northeast and southwest throughout the territory named with their numerous dips of spurs and angles without the use of technical phrases scarcely adapted to a newspaper article.

The numerous faults, breaks and dikes, as the geologists term them, form a network of mineral throughout this entire territory that have scarcely a parallel in the world.

The ore impregnated waters flowing through these great fissures have quietly but persistently precipitated their mineral contents along and on the sides of the limestone walls which so generally prevail in every mine that has so far been exploited. Indeed, many of these fissures are so large and so completely filled with merchantable ores that it is more an act of quarrying out the mineral, loading it on cars for the smelter or the oxide of zinc burners, than it is mining as generally understood.

Enormous open cuts are in some instances made, and the zinc ore is handled in high masses. After hand dressing to remove the soluble matter that surrounds to some extent the lumps, the carbonate is ready for shipment to the smelting or reduction works.

A case in point is that of the "Old Jim" mine, owned and operated by Clem S. Nunn and John W. Blue, who are "Kentucky born and bred." These two lawyers, both in the early state of manhood, received their degrees and sheepskins in Kentucky schools, and have for years been the most persistent of mining prospectors. Early and late, before and after court, the possibilities of a great-paying mining property in their native county were an incentive that nothing seemed to daunt.

A very neat and rather romantic story went the rounds of the newspapers and magazines shortly after the discovery of the "Old Jim" mine by Messrs. Blue and Nunn. Indeed, that story, in a way, has become a classic. It has been adopted in many of the public schools as a reading lesson and we of Marion are rather proud of its author, the Rev. Mr. Montgomery, the pastor of one of our two Presbyterian churches.

Mr. Montgomery said that a boy and a dog were chasing a rabbit, the animal ran into one of the numerous sink holes that existed on the land where the "Old Jim" mine is situated, the boy followed, taking up a rock to throw at the rabbit; he was so impressed with its weight that he forgot all about the rabbit and brought the rock to his father, who in turn took it to Blue & Nunn for their inspection. Thus, Mr. Montgomery says, was the first carbonate of zinc discovered.

The Old Jim vein is in places 67 feet wide and completely filled with carbonate of zinc. The mine is worked as an open cut or quarry and is, without doubt, the largest high grade carbonate of zinc property in the world.

At some 30 feet in depth in this open cut at or a trifle below water level sulphide of zinc prevails. This is the ore that is called "jack" and is essentially the ore of commerce, being used for the production of metallic zinc the world over.

The large oxide of zinc producing plant in Mineral Point, Wisc., has become well known to the miners of zinc ores throughout the United States. Cars of this material are shipped from the depot at Marion to this plant. The carbonate from Marion is utilized in these great works and comes back to us in part in kegs and barrels; not the brown color that it has when shipped, but a beautiful pure white, ready for the painters' use. It is largely used for the inside finishing of residences and business houses, but latterly chosen for outside work on account of its permanence of color in any climate.

Fluorspar in western Kentucky

Our western Kentucky mining district contains within its borders practically all of that valuable mineral called fluorspar that is found in the United States in anything like paying quantities. The mine at Rosiclare, Ill., across the Ohio River from the Kentucky side, is really a portion of our district, this vein having evidently strayed across the river from its native heath and been captured by some enterprising people of that state.

Tourists passing through from Paducah north of Princeton on the Illinois Central railroad will notice at Mexico and Crayneville, two small stations a few miles south of Marion, great dumps of this dazzling white mineral, which in the sun sparkle like diamonds.

The numerous beautiful colors of purple, red, green and blue, in some instance a combination of all, make lumps of fluorspar eagerly sought for cabinet adornment. It somewhat dampens our enthusiasm, however, to learn that a very great proportion of this beautiful material is fed into the mouths of the great open-hearth steel plants of the North, the South and the East. Thousands of tons were used by immense steel producers, the foundry men and the glass workers.

The Kentucky Fluorspar Company of Marion was the largest miner and shipper of fluorspar deposits in fissure veins in this county. At a depth of 100 feet, a magnificent breast of white fluorspar 20 feet wide had been met with.

The machinery at the mines of the company consists generally of a steam hoist and one or two log washers. The latter are used whenever the fluorspar is all covered with the surrounding soil. This is notably the case in the Tabb Mine, the Hodge, the Yandell and to some extent in the Memphis mine. All of which with several others are owned and operated by this company.

The Kentucky Fluor Spar Company is the only company in America that is able to fill its contracts and orders at the time specified. The three great reserve dumps at Marion, at Mexico, and at Crayneville, on the Illinois Central railroad, enable them to do this. Good weather, bad weather or muddy roads make no difference. Scores of teams and wagons do the hauling to the railroad and hundreds of men are at work in the mines.

The Eagle Fluor Spar Company, of Wheeling, W. Va.,

have been purchased and will be installed immediately; Messrs. Allie and John Moore of Marion represent the company.

The legacy of this county being rich with fluorspar deposits continues today, as it is being researched and studied once again.

A name is more than just identification

Hello and it's so good to have this opportunity to bring "steppingstones" to you today. We at the Sturgis Baptist Church hope you had a great Thanksgiving and now we get to look forward to Christmas! God is so good to us. I love this time of year! I want to begin today looking at a thought the Lord has laid upon my heart to bring to you, and that is, "The Name Above Every Name." In Philippians 2:9-10, we read these verses concerning the Lord Jesus. "Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name: That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth;" (KJV)

In our modern Western culture, the name given to a person usually reflects little more than a parent's personal preference. For example, a mother and father often will choose a name for their child simply because they like the way the name sounds or because the name reminds them of a person they admire. However, in the Eastern culture during the pre-modern era, the name given to a person said much about that individual. It would relate maybe to the personality, the family, the position, or even the circumstances in which the person was brought into this world.

Several times in the Scriptures, God Himself changed the name of an individual to reflect a change in the person's life, as He did with Abram changing his name to Abraham and Jacob to Israel. Each of these changes reflect a deeper truth that, when properly understood, tells us a great deal about that individual's character and purpose in the plan of God.

In today's text, the apostle Paul tells us that God the Father has given His Son, Jesus Christ, "a name which is above every name," that is, the name of Jesus is supremely exalted above the name of every created being, past, present and future. I know there are those today who exalt certain individuals in religion and they actually place that person on the same level or maybe even above the Lord Jesus Christ. Let me say today that such an estimation of a mere mortal man or woman is contrary to the clear teachings of the Word of God.

No one and let me emphasize, no one can measure up to the person and position of Jesus Christ. There is not a mortal man or woman, past, present or future, that even comes close to holding the place of exalted prominence and power that Jesus Christ holds. Lucifer wanted that position but was cast out of Heaven and will end up in the Lake of Fire one day. Certain men in time past have "claimed" to be Jesus Christ, but have been humiliated as "crack-pots" and we give them no consideration. Men have even claimed to hold the same position here on this earth that Jesus Christ has. All of these positions are examples of Biblical error and should not be given any consideration. Why? Because God the Father has declared that no one is and no one will ever be like His only begotten Son, Jesus Christ.

The Word of God is full of names attributed to the Lord Jesus, and these names are rich with meaning. They describe His character, His office, His person, and His glory. During the next few weeks, I want to bring some of these names given to the Son of God to your heart and exalt that "name which is above every name."

Rockets blast Warriors in opener

Crittenden County's Tucker Frazer (22) defends against a Community Christian ballhandler during the Rockets' season-opening victory.

STAFF REPORT

Community Christian was no match for Crittenden County's basketball team in Monday's season-opener at Rocket Arena.

Crittenden tripled the Warriors' scoring and dominated every facet of the game as seniors Ethan Hill and Devin Clark scored 14 apiece to pace the lopsided victory.

It was also the first game of the season for the Warriors, who went 15-14 last year. The Rockets were much better prepared out of the chute.

Crittenden County starters scored 52 of the team's 60 points and 36 of those points came off Community Christian turnovers. Coach Denis Hodge said it's not uncommon for the starting five to do most of the scoring, but based on the number of minutes his reserves played, he expected more scoring. Some are still rusty after making the transition from football, Hodge said.

Clark and Bobby Knox transitioned from linemen to front court players pretty well. Knox had a double-double and Clark was a rebound short of it.

Overall, the victory was a good way to start, the coach explained, realizing that his team has plenty of work ahead.

"Community Christian is rebuilding; we know that," Hodge said.

Rocket girls split out of the chute

STAFF REPORT

Hot with the shot out of the chute, Crittenden County won its season opener Monday at Rocket Arena, beating Community Christian 60-51. However, the girls were tripped up Tuesday at Union County 45-29.

First-year point guard Mallory McDowell scored a team-high 18 points against Community Christian, showing she is capable of creating her own scoring opportunities off the dribble.

Chelsea Oliver and Davana Head, two returning starters who are expected to carry much of the scoring burden for the Lady Rockets this season, did not disappoint coach Shannon Hodge. They combined for 25 points.

Coach Shannon Hodge called the season-opener a good start to a 26-game schedule.

"I saw a lot of positives, everyone who got in the game did something positive, either rebounding or scoring," Hodge said.

Kaitlyn Binkley opened the game with two straight 3-pointers and finished with nine points for the game, and center Maggie Collins had six points.

Crittenden led by as many as a dozen points twice during the game - once in the first half and once early in the fourth period.

After building a healthy lead in the early part of the game, Crittenden went flat for a few minutes and Community Christian clawed its way back, converting on a few Lady Rocket turnovers and defensive lapses.

"I don't know if we got a little fatigued in the second quarter and lax defensively but we allowed a few second shots and fouls got CCA back in the game," coach Hodge said.

After leading by just two at half-time, Crittenden raced out to a double-digit lead thanks in part to points off turnovers by Binkley and McDowell, stretching the Lady Rocket lead to nine going into the fourth frame.

"We need to watch some of the decisions we make, whether to go on or pull out on a break, and run the offense through. Game situations will improve that," the coach said.

At Union County Tuesday night, the Lady Rockets shot poorly and Union County's Dominique Smith and Mikayla Thompson stole the show, combining for 33 points. The Bravettes scored countless points in transition.

Crittenden got 10 points from Oliver and eighth-grader Cassidy Moss came off the bench to score seven, including a 3-pointer.

Cortne Curnel bagged this 10-pointer that field dressed 135 pounds. She took the buck on opening morning of rifle season.

Tristin Thompson, 12, of Marion bagged this eight-pointer on opening day while hunting with his father in Livingston County. The buck had an inside spread of 18.6 inches.

Leana Riley of Marion bagged this hefty nine-pointer during the rifle season.

Jeannie Curnel of Marion harvested this eight-pointer in Crittenden County on Nov. 18. It had a 17-inch spread.

Crittenden County guard Mallory McDowell (3) squares up the defense at the top of the key. McDowell also scored 18 points to lead her Lady Rockets to a season-opening victory over Community Christian.

The skipper was pleased with his team's defense and floor shots. The foul shooting will have to improve though.

"We played hard, with a great deal of energy," Hodge said. "I think we made (Community Christian) play at a faster pace than they were comfortable playing."

The Rockets will have one more non-district warmup before playing a league game at Trigg County Friday. Crittenden hosts Dawson Springs tonight (Thursday).

"We'll definitely get a good test against Dawson then we'll really be tested against Trigg," Hodge said.

Over the next three Fridays, Crittenden will play the first half of its Fifth District schedule, hosting Lyon County Dec. 7 then going to Livingston Central Dec. 14.

Police seek help to find thieves who stole bee hives in Caldwell Springs

Crittenden County Sheriff Wayne Agent said local authorities are asking citizens for help in their investigation into the theft of bee hives from the Caldwell Springs community. The commercial hives owned by Roger Thouvenin went missing before Nov. 9. They were painted white and similar to the photo inset. Tipline is offering a $500 reward for information leading to an arrest and the victim's insurance company has also posted a reward. Call 965-3000 and remain anonymous.

Nancy Hunt, a Community Christmas organizer, fills out tags for the angel trees which can be found in two locations in Marion. Individuals can sponsor a child by obtaining wish lists from trees located at Farmers Bank and at the Extension Office. There are other ways to help, inquire by calling 965-5236 dle School Student Council were the first ones to call that needed a large number of children to sponsor. Together, their total of children to be sponsored came to 70, which is a great help. We are hoping to get some more calls from other businesses or groups who could help us," Hunt said.

According to Hunt, Cash Express, The Peoples Bank and a local Zumba group have all indicated that they are having activities to help.

"We can always use new toys. Sometimes those come from businesses or groups who prefer to donate a toy instead of sponsoring a child," she said.

Cash donations are used to provide gift vouchers for children between the ages of 13 to 17. The amount of the voucher depends on the amount of funds raised.

"Last year was the first time we gave the teen vouchers and it was a hit," Hunt said. "Last year we were able to give each teen a $55 voucher that could be used at local stores who chose to participate."

The teen or their parent has until the end of the year to use the voucher.

"We had parents tell us they wrapped them up and gave them to their teen on Christmas morning. This way the teen gets to shop for what they want and usually they can get better bargains after Christmas Day," Hunt said.

Each family is also provided with a small food voucher so they can purchase their own items such as meat or milk in addition to the food bags they receive at Marion Baptist Church on distribution day.

"Based on the number we have signed up, we will need to raise $10,865 in cash donations to provide the same amount for the food and teen vouchers as we did last year. As of today we have received $4,394," Hunt explained.

Cash donations can be deposited at Farmers Bank, mailed or dropped off at the Crittenden County Extension office located at 1534 US 60 East in Marion. Checks should be payable to Crittenden County Community Services, Inc.

Paja Crider serves as treasurer for Community Christmas. She said individuals can inquire about making anonymous donations.

"If an individual wishes to make an anonymous donation they can inform the tellers at the bank or place it in one of the Community Christmas cans at Farmers Bank," Crider said.

As always, organizers are receiving calls from people who missed registration days in October.

"Generally, we tell them to come at noon on Dec. 14 to the armory to see if any toys are available, but this year we are trying something new," Hunt said. "If they have a legitimate excuse why they missed sign-up days, such as illness or work, we are asking them to stop by the PACS office before Dec. 7 and fill out an application."

Individuals who simply didn't know about the registration or forgot to come, can complete an application as well.

"But we can't promise their children will be sponsored," Hunt said.

If the 225 who signed up in October are sponsored, organizers will be able to help these other children, too.

"We do require people to be residents of the county since Oct. 1 and they must meet income guidelines by showing proof of income for everyone living in the household," Hunt said.

Another change this year has to do with the food distribution for individuals who didn't sign up at all. From 8 a.m., to noon on Dec. 14, the county food bank will hold its monthly distribution at the PACS office. Distribution will include venison from Hunters for the Hungry. Families can go there for food items. Food distributed at Marion Baptist Church Family Life Center on Dec. 14 will be by appointment only for households that registered for Community Christmas. Organizers emphasize that both distribution sites will have a list of participants who signed up for Community Christmas so households can only receive food at one site.

Jail numbers

Here is a census of the Crittenden County Detention Center on Nov. 27, which denotes type of prisoners being held there:

Type	Male	Female

Eastern Boxelder Bug

Neighbors seek warmer place to spend winter

STAFF REPORT

Some area homeowners are finding that an old neighbor is wanting inside this winter.

The Crittenden County Extension Service has answered a handful of calls regarding the Eastern Boxelder Bug, which like the more common Lady Bug is looking for a place to spend the cold months.

Harmless little creatures, normal spraying should control them to some degree, but specialists in entomology say there is no need to fight them with chemicals.

"This is a very common insect in Kentucky," said Dr. Doug Johnson of the University of Kentucky Extension Service. "It is usually noticed at the changes of seasons – spring as it moves out of hiding and into trees and fall as it moves out of trees and into hiding for the winter."

"Control is not necessary as they will go away on their own. They have been in your trees all summer. Wash off with a hose, do not smash if they are on house siding," Johnson added.

Adult boxelder bugs are flat, dark-gray insects with three red lines behind the head and may reach a half-inch in length.

KU increase less than expected

LG&E and KU Energy LLC have agreed to raise rates by less than it had proposed earlier.

According to a report issued by the power companies, LG&E's electricity rates would rise by about 4.8 percent and KU rates would increase by about 5.8 percent.

LG&E and KU Energy, a subsidiary of Allentown, Pa.-based PPL Corp., had proposed raising electric rates by about seven percent for both utilities, according to the report.

LG&E's natural gas rates will rise by about 7.3 percent, which is about the same as the utility had proposed, according to the report.

The agreement was reached with nine parties, including the Kentucky Attorney General's office, according to the report. It requires approval by the Kentucky Public Service Commission.

City considers zoning switch to commercial at 707 S. Main

STAFF REPORT

Marion City Council introduced an ordinance at its Nov. 19 regular meeting regarding the rezoning of property at 707 South Main Street from a residential to commercial.

The property is located next door to, or just south of, the current Kenergy office. Kenergy is leaving next year and it's unclear what might happen with its current facility. If approval is given for rezoning of this parcel it will mean three connecting lots would be zoned for commercial use. The empty lot north of Kenergy is also zoned commercial.

Property owner Tommy Wright has applied for the zoning change at 707 South Main. He is in the process of razing a home that's located there.

The ordinance, which will be voted on in December, would change the property from R-2 Single/Multi-Family Residential to a C-3 Highway Business District.

In other business at this month's city meeting, the council was notified of a request for a street light on Cottage Lane. Gary Baulos, owner of property on Cottage Lane, made the request. The council approved the matter subject to Police Chief Ray O'Neal's review of the lighting conditions at the location.
