Burning still prohibited

Despite scattered showers Monday night, residents in Crittenden County remain under a countywide burn ban due to the extremely dry conditions. Any outdoor fires, including those for recreation or leaf or brush disposal, are prohibited. Violators could face fines or even jail time. The ban will not be lifted until sufficient rain falls. Officials in Caldwell, Union, Webster, Lyon and 34 other Kentucky counties have issued similar burning restrictions. Meantime, Kentucky's forest fire hazard season started Wednesday, limiting outdoor burning — once the ban is lifted — through Dec. 15 to between the hours of 6 p.m., and 6 a.m. Through Sept. 29 in Kentucky, 918 forest fires had charred 22,931 acres of land, with 241 of those fires started inadvertently by debris burns.

Western Kentucky remains tinderbox

The parched land in most of western Kentucky remains ripe for uncontrollable fires. After a near-rainless August and September, the western portion of the state reached a precipitation deficit for the first time this year. The following rainfall data is from the University of Kentucky Agriculture Weather Service station in Princeton as of Tuesday:

Congress OKs $750,000 for EOC

STAFF REPORT

Congress has approved funds that include money for an Emergency Operations Center in Marion. The funding is part of the Consolidated Security, Disaster Assistance and Continuing Appropriations Act of 2009 passed by both the House and Senate last week. The bill bankrolls the federal government through March 2009 and provides funding for defense, military and homeland security operations as well as various other spending measures. Among projects approved was $750,000 for the Crittenden County Emergency Operations Center. "We've been trying to get money for this for the last two or three years," said Judge-Executive Fred Brown. "I'm just elated." Brown said the EOC will likely be built in the industrial park on the south end of town near the Marion Ed-Tech Center and soon-to-be-built health department. It also could be located downtown near the current rescue squad building at what's commonly called the jockey lot. That and other decisions about the scope and size of the center will be made later, the judge said. Brown envisions a metal building capable of handling a variety of emergency response activities and equipment. "I think the rescue squad, HAZ-MAT response team, emergency management and even the fire departments, if they wanted to, could be in there," Brown said. Brown said a consolidated emergency center is critical for the long-range well-being of the community. He said weaknesses in the local system have been identified recently during natural disasters, including the major ice storm last winter. Congressman Ed Whitfield and Sen. Mitch McConnell and voted in favor of the overall measure. Sen. Jim Bunning voted against it.

"We've been trying to get money for this for the last two or three years."

City discusses new firehouse

STAFF REPORT

It's back to the drawing board, literally, for engineers working on a concept for a new fire station in Marion. City firefighters sat down Monday evening with city council members for their input on preliminary schemes for a new firehouse. The meeting was to help steer plans for a new station in a direction agreeable to both city government and its volunteer firefighters. Of the seven proposed sites, all displayed with an engineer's rendering of what the facility might look like, only two seemed to satisfy the criteria for both firefighters and the city. Those two locations are The Crittenden Press parking lot at the corner of Bellville and College streets and the city's own gravel lot on East Belleville Street behind Five-Star Food Mart. Other sites, including revamping City Hall once Peoples Bank relocates its drive-through branch, could be put back on the table before city council next meets on Oct. 21. Ronald "Red" Howton, the city's fire chief, said accessibility is the most important aspect once the old, cramped fire station on East Bellville Street is replaced. A corner lot with access from two streets is preferred, he said. "Size is not important," he said of the structure itself. The engineer's conceptual design for the building is currently two bays and a two-story office/training area, but some expressed a need for three bays and different arrangements on proposed lots. Both parties hope to decide on a location at the next council meeting.

Cumberland's level causes concerns

Gerald Barnes says he had never seen the Cumberland River as dry as it was last Thursday morning. Barnes is 67 years old, grew up near the river and lives within sight of it now. "I don't believe I've ever seen it that low," he said. As Barnes was speaking, Crittenden-Livingston Water District was pushing an eight-inch hose into the river, trying to get it deep enough to draw water to feed into the utility's plant at Pinckneyville. The Cumberland River was so low it had receded below the intakes that the water district uses to pull raw water from the reservoir. The intakes are near the river's bank. They can't be too far out into the river or near the channel because boat traffic might hit them, explained Donnie Beavers, superintendent of the water district. Last Wednesday Beavers was notified by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers that extremely low levels could be expected on the Cumberland. The water shortage in the river was due to several factors, including a two-year drought, the drawing down of Lake Cumberland to repair Wolf Creek Dam, the rising Mississippi River and an aged and inadequate Dam 52 near Paducah. Barges scheduled to pick up limestone at the new Warren Paving Rock Quarry just up river from Pinckneyville were stalled on the Ohio River until the water level went back up Saturday. Even then, the barges couldn't be loaded to capacity. Jeremy Montalta, a supervisor at the quarry, said 24 barges and three tugs were idled on the Lower Ohio for two days at a price tag of $14,000 per day. "We need about 10 feet of water to load 16,000 tons on our barges," Montalta explained late last week. "Right now, we have about eight feet."

Crew members from the Crittenden-Livingston Water District work Friday to get a large hose into the Cumberland River at Pinckneyville as water levels receded to gravely low levels.

The river dropped to gravely low marks last Thursday morning, prompting the district to bring in a special 60 hp pump from Henderson to help draw water out of the river. A long hose was pushed into the Cumberland River and the pump sucked up the water and dumped it into a large riverside well. From there, the water was fed into the district's plant where it was treated and distributed to customers as drinking water. Had it not been for the mobile pump, capable of drawing 2,000 gallons a minute from the river, the plant would have gone dry late Thursday. Beavers explained that water levels have not traditionally been so low on the river. However, this is the second time this summer the water plant has been in jeopardy of losing its raw water supply. "It happened in July and we didn't have any notice at all," Beavers said. "The Corps of Engineers didn't even realize our location on the Lower Cumberland. Now they know, and they're keeping us well-advised when something like this is about to happen." Beavers said that because Lake Barkley is already near winter pool, there's no safety net nearby when the Cumberland drops way below normal. The Corps, which manages the flow of water on inland reservoirs, raised wickets on Dam 52 near Paducah late last week. That helped restrict the flow of water on the Ohio, which in turn held more water in the Cumberland. By Friday, the Cumberland River was back up to sufficient levels for water district intakes to work properly. On Monday, the river had risen three feet and the water district was back to operating as usual. Beavers said a meeting with the Corps of Engineers has been scheduled for next week to discuss the possibility of putting the district's intakes farther out into the river so that such issues may be averted in the future.

Marion native pens 2 Harlequin romance novels

By ALLISON EVANS
ASSISTANT EDITOR

Her pen name may throw you off, but Trish Milburn is someone many Crittenden Countians will remember. And now the world will see her name on the cover of two Harlequin romance novels. Known in school as Patricia Cash, the now-married Milburn grew up in Marion, and in 1989 graduated from Crittenden County High School, where she excelled in speech and drama. She says she gravitated toward writing since she wasn't a math genius and did not have a passion for dissecting frogs in biology class. Milburn holds a degree in print journalism and began earning a living working for several newspapers in Kentucky and Tennessee. Now the Tennessee resident has earned the designation of published author. Her debut release published by Harlequin American is titled "A Firefighter in the Family," and is available at amazon.com. She has a second novel due out in May 2009 titled "Her Very Own Family." From her Web site, a description of the book: "Miranda 'Randi' Cooke left her family and her hometown on

Bail-out: Let's not be fooled again

To the editor:

By the time The Crittenden Press comes out, it may be too late to encourage your readers to shout into our government leaders' phones and e-mail boxes to: "Stop the insanity!" But it may not be too late to throw the bums out – all the bums.

There's an old saying: Fool me once (Patriot Act), shame on you. Fool me twice (Iraq War), shame on me. Fool me three times, pick my pocket, take my home, send my job overseas and saddle the next generations with an additional $700 billion of national debt.

The way I understand it, this financial crisis is due to failed mortgages (in the amount far less than $700 billion), made unaffordable primarily by adjustable terms or unbalanced lending practices. Yet this bailout would give billions to the very businesses that caused the problem. It does not solve any personal credit problems, but gives banks/lenders the ability to extend more credit while preserving the multi-million dollar incomes of those who created this fiasco.

Unfortunately, credit is the straw-man needed to describe our national "success" (economic growth, our lifestyles) and propping it up only defers the hit to the fan. Let's not be fooled thrice.

Mayfield victory fitting for Starnes

To the editor:

While Al Starnes has added to his mantle as the winningest coach in Crittenden County football history, those of us who have had the pleasure to play for him have prayed for him to get that "one shining moment." That came for Coach Starnes last Friday.

Coach Starnes is a great coach. Correction, he's a terrific coach. But more importantly, he's a terrific man. He's coached great teams – one of them a district title team, his first – which I had the pleasure to play on. He's won games, won titles and orchestrated huge upsets. We saw his biggest upset last week against a Mayfield team that had all the tools to win another district championship.

But the wins on the football field aren't the biggest or most important wins that Coach Starnes deserves credit for. He deserves credit for being a wonderful man, husband and father. I can attest to the content of his character because he helped shape me as a man. He helped me in tough times as a young man when I could have given up and gave me a sense of self-importance and motivated me to reach my potential.

I can say with confidence that I am only one of many young people that Coach Starnes has helped do things that they didn't know they were capable of. I can think

Letters Policy

The Crittenden Press accepts and encourages letters to the editor on a variety of subjects. Letters should be submitted by 5 p.m., Friday the week before publication.

Letters must include the author's name, address, phone number and signature. Phone numbers will not be published. They are for our records only in order to authenticate a letter's author.

Letters should be written in good taste and in most cases ceeded at many things in life. We are fortunate to have Al Starnes teaching, leading and coaching young people in Crittenden County. Not just for the thrill of victory that he's given us all so many times, but also for the contribution that he has made to society.

Strike teaches who friends are

To the editor:

I am an employee of Special Metals of Princeton and a union member of International Association of Machinists Local 2507. As some of you know we are on strike. Several people of Crittenden County work at this facility, and I want to thank Crittenden and surrounding counties for their support through these hard times. Commitments taking shape

We appreciated so much those members of our community who attended the first C4 (Crittenden County Community Conversations) Session held at the public library.

This session offered the Crittenden County Board of Education, school district administrators and members of the community a unique forum to candidly discuss our collective vision for improving the quality of schooling for all students in Crittenden County. Creating an atmosphere that promotes an open exchange of ideas and an opportunity for school personnel to listen to "the good, the bad, and the ugly" from constituents serves as a catalyst for positive change and highlights the need for continuous improvement.

Confronting challenges and celebrating our many successes keep us moving in the right direction for all students.

Our next scheduled C4 Session will be held on Nov. 21 at noon at the Tolu Community Center.

Each of our respective teams within the school district has been developing a set of commitments to improve student achievement. The faculty and staff at Crittenden County Elementary School want to share their "Top 10 Commitments" with the community.

The staff at Crittenden County Elementary School will:

- Have a positive attitude.
- Have high expectations for myself and students.
- Be a positive role model in school and the community.
- Have patience with ALL students.
- Work as a team with students, parents and co-workers.
- Use varied instructional methods to meet all student needs.
- Let students know how much I care about them.
- Strive to meet student's academic, emotional, and physical needs.
- Praise and compliment

students and staff on a regular basis.

■ Have an open mind and an open heart towards new ideas.

When teams within the school district truly demonstrate this type of commitment level on behalf of kids, dreams for making Crittenden County Schools one of the best districts in the state can be realized. We want the children of Crittenden County to know and feel that everywhere they look during a school day - they find caring adults committed to making a real difference in their lives.

(Editor's note: Dr. Yarbrough is superintendent of Crittenden County schools. Her guest column will appear periodically in The Crittenden Press.)

Sept. 18 fire deemed arson by investigator

STAFF REPORT

A fire last month at the home of Jason and Jessica Rushing on Seven Springs Road in the southern part of the Crittenden County was set deliberately, according to Crittenden County Sheriff's Deputy Greg Rushing.

Rushing said Monday that a Kentucky State Police fire investigator had determined the early-morning blaze on Sept. 18 was arson. The fire destroyed the rural home.

Further details on how the blaze started or possible charges were uncertain at press time.

DOW crash addressed by city

STAFF REPORT

Just a couple of hours after the bell rang on the single largest one-day drop in Wall Street history, Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant assured city council members that municipal finances are solid.

Bryant, before discussing plans for a new fire station in Marion, told city officials that the city's more than $3 million held in banks and investments are backed up by securities and are "in good shape" as far as risk. While advising caution toward future expenses and suggesting the delay of some projects, he emphasized that the city is a major player in the local economy – pumping thousands of dollars per day into the system – and major spending cuts could backfire.

"We'd be wise to watch what we're doing right now and take a deep breath," he told the council.

Bryant said current sewer projects, such as those under way on Fords Ferry Road and in the Rudd and Hart Street area, would not be affected by project abatement. He also advocated moving ahead with the fire station project. However, repairs to South Yandell Street where spring flooding washed away part of the road and major upgrades to the city's waste water treatment facility would best be delayed, he suggested.

Three vacancies within separate city departments will remain open for the time being as a cost-cutting measure. Those positions are at the water and sewer plants in addition to the loss of a part-time patrolman within the Marion Police Department. In fact, Steve Blackwell, the newest hire at the police department, worked his last day Monday.

Police Chief Ray O'Neal said Blackwell resigned, citing health and the increased cost to commute from his home in Henderson County.

LHHS works toward trauma designation

More than 30 health professionals at Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services recently participated in the Rural Trauma Team Development Course (RTTDC). This course was developed by the American College of Surgeons Committee on Trauma to help rural hospitals with the development and training of their trauma team.

"The development of a trauma team will not only help to improve the quality of care in communities by developing a timely, organized, and relational response to the care of the trauma patient, but is also a requirement for rural hospitals to have in place before obtaining a Level IV Trauma Designation", said Dr. William Barnes, MBA, FACS, a general surgeon at LHHS.

Level IV Trauma Designation is part of the trauma legislation that was recently passed in the Commonwealth of Kentucky. This new designation gives small rural hospitals the opportunity to participate in a formal manner and help stabilize the patient with a trained 24-hour on-call support team. LHHS hopes to be the first hospital in Western Kentucky to receive the Level IV Trauma Designation.

"Completing this course is our first step to reaching that level", said Robin Leidecker, RN, Emergency Department Nurse Manager and LHHS Trauma Coordinator. "This will also give the people in Livingston, Crittenden, Lyon and other surrounding counties the assurance that we are providing the highest quality of trauma care to our patients."

LHHS welcomes new faces to organization

Livingston Hospital and Healthcare Services recently welcomed the following to its staff: Sabrina Chittenden, dietary aide; Agnes Carradino, RN; Janet Curnel, CNA; Christa Edmonds, CNA; Debi Erdman, Director of Patient Financial Services; Sherry Ford, CNA; Jeannie Griffin, CNA; Kathy Helm, RN; Shirley Kelley, dietary aide and cook; Betty Parrish, LPN; Sara Sanders, CNA; Jeanie Shire, payroll clerk; and Renae Winn, LPN.

Man dies in hospital after crash

STAFF REPORT
A Crittenden County man has died from injuries he received Friday in a single-vehicle wreck on Ky. 295 south of Dycusburg.
Teddie Davenport, 56, of Dycusburg died Tuesday afternoon at Vanderbilt Medical Center in Nashville from multiple injuries sustained in the wreck. He was one of 17 to die from crashes on Kentucky roads last week.
According to Kentucky State Police, Davenport was southbound near the Crittenden-Lyon County line when he lost control of his 1996 Lincoln and ran off the opposite side of the highway and overturned several times. His car came to rest right-side up more than 100 feet from the road's edge. He

Some interesting discourse from town meetings

The regular business of the county and city has always been a newsworthy topic for the pages of The Press. The writings of reporters long ago make for interesting reading today as they give us a glimpse into the happenings of our community in times past.

From the archives of The Crittenden Press.

Dec. 17, 1891

The Grand Jury

While in search of news for The Press the reporter tapped on the door of the grand jury room, and a dapper little fellow with a cravat of black beard, opened the door and said, "Walk in."

Seated in the center of a circle of the 12 men chosen to investigate the boys might make some people uncomfortable, but of course no newspaper man has any irritability on that score.

There was Uncle George Boaz, who was born near Lexington 74 years ago. He is a Baptist and a Democrat.

James R. Jennings next in point of age was born in Virginia 71 years ago. He is an old school Presbyterian. In politics, he is independent.

Thomas J. Yandell is 66 years old and was born in Hopkins County. He is a Presbyterian and a Republican.

Joseph Hina was born in France 61 years ago, reared in Germany, is now a good American citizen. He is a Cumberland Presbyterian and a Republican.

Robert L. Wilson is 55 years old and like a great many of our citizens he was born in Tennessee. His politics run smartly with those of Uncle Joe Hina.

A.C. Deboe first saw the light in Caldwell County 51 years ago. He is a Baptist,

Brenda Underdown
Forgotten Passages
Crittenden County Historian

and he usually votes with the Republicans.

George W. Parish is 47 years old and was born in Hopkins County.

Robert N. Grady was born in Bourbon County 46 years ago. He is a Methodist and a Republican.

J.F. Snyder is 46, born in Tennessee, a Baptist and Republican.

T.A. Minner is 44, and is the only member of the jury born in Crittenden. He has been a Democrat and a Methodist for 44 years.

A.J. Rutherford is 41 and was born in Christian County. He is a Methodist and a Cleveland man.

G.W. Perry is 87, born in Tennessee. He is a Baptist and a Republican.

Ten of the jurors are for working the roads by taxation.

When the reporter reached the door, he found it locked, and was informed that it would require half a bushel of apples to open it. The apples were sent for, and the door was opened.

The Local Board of Health also met during this time and transacted the following business:

After discussing the sanitary condition of our town, Marion, and our neighboring towns and villages and the county generally, and the varied infectious diseases which have been in our midst for some time and still exist with an increased tendency to spread, issued the following statement to the Press.

Motioned by Dr. W.J. Deboe, that the secretary be ordered and directed to notify the citizens of Crittenden County through the medium of our county papers, which motion carried, to clean and disinfest their premises.

We mean by this that all premises must be cleaned out and disinfested with lime or copperas and kept clean and disinfested at least once a week through the season, and all rubbish or garbage in back yards, alleys, livery stables, feed pens, must be cleaned by burning or hauling away from the town.

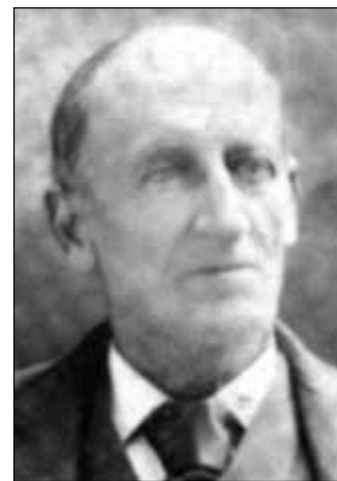

All ponds and cess-pools that retain stagnant water must be drained and filled with earth so as to prevent the accumulation and retention of water. No swill or other food accumulations from hotels or other buildings shall be permitted thrown out in the back yards. All rubbish from business houses must be burned immediately after it has been swept or placed on the street or accumulated from any other sources.

All owners and occupants of lands or buildings are requested and demanded to comply with the requirements of this order. This order applies to the county as well as to the towns and villages.

In January 1899, the board of tax supervisors had made some new tax assessments, and the citizens of our county weren't very happy about the tax increase. The Press reporter dropped in on the meeting at the courthouse to get the results. His description of the scene is very colorful, informative and amusing.

Andy Woodall

J.W. Cook

Tax Supervisors

We dropped in to see the Board of Tax Supervisors just before it went into executive session Monday afternoon.

The room was full of people, and the temperature generally was up to about 98 degrees in the shade.

Henry Brouster was reclining on the further edge of the table with a restless look in his eye, and the rubber of a lead pencil in his mouth.

Mr. Andy Woodall was chiefly under the table, except his head.

John W. Cook was reposing on the small of his back in a chair, with his legs crossed and feet on a level with his head as a fortification.

Mr. William Belt had fitted himself in a corner behind the stove and occasionally asked somebody to open the stove door.

Reuben Wood fondled his watch guard nervously as his head rested on the window-sill, and he appeared to be thinking of the fresh air and freedom of the broad acres of Piney.

Field Crider had the floor and was making a few pertinent remarks.

Uncle Bird Ashley was giving a lucid description of his farm.

Ben and Tom Thurman were asking the chair for recognition.

Joe Hughes was mopping the perspiration from his face with his coat sleeve.

Just here Frank Woolf came in twirling a pump handle in his hand and as it struck the table near Uncle Andy, the latter pulled himself up to a sitting posture, and cried out: "Gentlemen, we will hear you one at a time, please retire and give the board a chance."

The outcome of this meeting was as follows:

The tax supervisors, Messrs Rube Woods, John W. Cook, Andrew Woodall, J.H. Brouster and William Belt, convened for the purpose of hearing the statements of those whose lists they had increased.

Quite a number of persons appeared and stated their side of the case, but the board made few changes in their original work.

The following were some of the increases that made for unhappy property owners.

Marion district were Willoughby Guess $1,700 to $3,000, Mary Woods $1,500 to $2,300, Electra Boaz $700 to $1,000.

Fords Ferry District: R.S. Heath $1,200 to $1,600, Levi Cook $400 to $1,000, Robert Heath $1,300 to $1,600.

Bells Mines: S. Field Crider $1,500 to $1,750, Ben H. Thurman $800 to $1,100.

Piney District: Eliza McConnell $900 to $1,250, F.G. McDowell $750 to $1,000, Frank Woolf $4,000 to $6,000.

After the article about the County Poor Farm appeared in the Press, I received a nice phone call from Nadine Tabor, a Crittenden County native who now lives in Caldwell County. She shares with us some more history on the County Poor House.

In the period 1928-1931, her grandfather and grandmother, Jackson Oliver and Louise Tabor, were the Poor House keepers.

Nadine remembers visiting them as a young girl. She said when the Tabor's had charge they kept a very clean and nice place. Her grandmother made clothes for the inmates from bolts of material that were purchased by the county from the Taylor and Vaughn Department Store at Marion.

The inmates were always well clothed and well fed, as the Tabor's also raised a large garden.

It is good to know that in later years these unfortunate people who had hit hard times, and not been able to provide for themselves, had a good place to stay.

Extension showing off at event to tout programs on Oct. 22

STAFF REPORT

When asked to name all the things that the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service has to offer, many people will come up short. Extension professionals in western Kentucky are hoping to correct that with Extension Extravaganza.

If you thought you knew Extension, think again, said Karen Ramage, Extension district director in Princeton.

"People know a lot about some of our traditional programs, but not necessarily our nontraditional programs," she said.

For that reason, Extension agents in 17 western Kentucky counties will host the premiere Extension Extravaganza, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., on Oct. 22 at West Kentucky 4-H Camp in Dawson Springs. The event will showcase nearly 25 different Extension programs. The day will include activities, demonstrations and exhibits that include a challenge course where individuals and groups develop team building skills, tours of the camp led by Master Gardeners who will point out interesting plants and trees, and tours of the new 4-H horse facility, the only such facility in the state. A Kentucky State University aquaculture specialist will demonstrate water quality testing and pond and lake management at the camp's lake.

Sessions also include information on Horse College and the Master Cattleman and Master Logger courses; the new 4-H Science, Engineering and Technology program; extension disaster education programs such as Extension Disaster and Emergency Network (EDEN) and Community Emergency Response Team (CERT); and eXtension, an interactive Web-based system that delivers a wellspring of useful information from the country's land grant universities.

Ramage said there will also be information about the many opportunities available for people who want to become extension volunteers, such as Master Gardeners, Master Clothing Volunteers and Master Food Volunteers.

Today's Extension programming goes far beyond the farm; though animal science still is one of the six major areas in the core curriculum development for young people. The Cooperative Extension Service touches many aspects of rural and urban life for young and old, reaching from the home to the workplace to the community.

"We had nearly 3,000 phone calls and over 7,000 office visits this past year concerning everything from getting a free soil test for a field ... (to) signing up for 4-H Camp," said Nancy Hunt, in her 29th with Crittenden County's Extension office.

Ramage hopes that those who attend Extension Extravaganza will come away with a greater appreciation of all the work extension does in the local community and in the state. Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability or national origin.

Contact the local Extension office at 965-5236 for information, directions or to find out if transportation will be provided.

Fredonia church hosting unique, real-world drama

By DARYL K. TABOR
MANAGING EDITOR

Tommy Hillyard seems to always be asked to play the bad guy when it comes to church dramas.

In "Forgiveness House" he plays a Roman soldier who beats Jesus before he is crucified. In "Bethlehem" he portrays another biblical villain. And this weekend in the debut of "The Here and the Hereafter," he is asked to be the ultimate scoundrel – the devil.

"I wouldn't mind playing a good guy," Hillyard joked Sunday as he and dozens of others continued to prepare for this weekend's walk-through drama at First Baptist Church in Fredonia.

It is the church's latest drama conceived and written by youth director Cindy Long. The concept is reality-based, drawing from issues and events in today's world in the hope of reaching souls.

"It's designed to make people think," said pastor Kyle Noffsinger.

The title, "The Here and the Hereafter," gives a lot of clues to how the 30-minute skit will progress. It begins with a light moment found in today's every-day life, then progresses to more heady concepts that may put people on the edge of discomfort.

"There 'here' is designed to hit close to home," Noffsinger said of the first scenes.

The play then moves to the hereafter, where the best and worst of the Christian-believed afterlife are portrayed in separate rooms. In one, soft lighting and flowing white linens put the visitor at ease in Heaven.

Across the hall, Hell looms. It will not be an easy time inside the dark, dank room.

"It's designed to be a really uncomfortable couple of minutes," Long said.

Hell is where Hillyard will reprise his role as the bad guy. There, he will be accompanied by several other ghouls and charms associated with the underworld.

"You can't make heaven as good or hell as bad as they really are," Long said of the contrasting scenes.

The gravity of the three-night drama will prohibit access by children under 16. Long and Noffsinger say the concepts may just be too disturbing to those any younger.

As with "Forgiveness House" performed earlier this year around Easter time, a counseling session follows the walk-through. There, church leaders and counselors will be available to pray with and assist people who may have heavy hearts after the drama.

"That's what we're here for," Noffsinger said. "It's the whole reason we do this, not to entertain."

Several churches and groups have already booked tours of the drama, though many openings remain. While walk-ins are welcomed, Long encourages people to call ahead to schedule a showing for either Friday, Saturday or Sunday. Appointments can be made by calling First Baptist Church at 545-3401.

The audiences will gather in the gymnasium of the church's family life center, the former Fredonia school. There, they will sign in and wait for the next showing to begin. Snacks and drinks will be available while visitors wait for the next performance.

The play will run from 6 to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday and 2:30 to 8 p.m., Sunday afternoon. Performances all three days are spaced about 30 minutes apart.

Christian trio gives free concert

STAFF REPORT

Christian music vocal group Beyond the Ashes will be performing Oct. 10 at Fohs Hall in a free concert that begins at 7 p.m.

The trio features Anthony Facello, who for the last 15 years has sang with groups like Heavenbound, The Down East Boys, Journeymen and most recently, the award-winning Mercy's Mark.

Facello's current group recently changed its name from Anthony Facello & Crossroad to Beyond the Ashes and has added Joe Combs to its line-up.

"The name change reflects our desire to tell more of what we are about rather than who we are. We want the focus to be on the true message of our ministry. God brings amazing victories out of the ashes of our lives. It is exciting to see what He can do Beyond the Ashes."

Beyond the Ashes has been in the studio recording vocals for their highly anticipated debut mainline release. Vocals for the as-of-yet untitled release were recorded at Kilowatt Studios in Mufreesboro, Tenn., and Sunset

Blvd. Studios in Brentwood, Tenn.

Beyond the Ashes' new album is due out later this year. The group will be releasing singles to both AC/INSP and Southern Gospel radio to coincide with the release of the album.

Next month's concert is made available in Marion by First Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Though the concert is free, a love offering will be collected.

Tax waste Premature purchase bad house move

There's a flaw in the Commonwealth's property acquisition process for new highway construction. Don't believe me? Look at the Hunt house on U.S. 641 South. It's the one with weeds so tall they would swallow a small adult.

Along the road to progress, the Hunt house was purchased by the state about two years ago in anticipation of the U.S. 641 four-lane that would put Marion a few minutes closer to I-24 at Eddyville.

No more than 15 years old, I suspect, the white house with black shutters was kept in immaculate condition when its owners, Joy and Harold Hunt, built it next to Joy's mother, Mona Barnes.

I'm all for progress in the form of new roads; however, the current state of ill repair of the Hunt house highlights an obvious flaw in the state's system of property acquisition.

The state bought the house in good faith that future leaders would fund the transportation project that calls for the demolition of the Hunts' and other homes along the route.

That good faith effort was a premature waste of taxpayer dollars, and has left a perfectly good house to sit idle, roof damaged and yard embarrassingly overgrown. If anything, the state should have contracts on parcels of land and buy them when funding of road projects is certain. We've all seen how fast Shelby Belt's heavy equipment can knock down a house. I venture to guess that while the first earth movers are being backed off of a trailer, Shelby could have a house down to rubble. With that in mind, it is not unreasonable to suggest that the state should have negotiated a price two years ago, had an option to close the deal if the road became a reality, all the while allowing the Hunts to live in the house.

It's a waste that makes taxpayers cringe. The state owns it. We paid for it, and look at it now. What if the road never happens?

My daughter is nine. I assume, though highly dread, that she will be driving before she's 17. My buying a car now under that assumption is the same as the state buying the house because they believe a road might go through the property in about six years.

No telling how much money has already been invested in this road project, between engineering and property acquisition. No telling how many similar projects are ongoing all across Kentucky.

It seems the powers that be should take a step back and put a few more safeguards on our tax dollars so they're not invested in a house that has a damaged roof, jungle yard and an uncertain future.

If this is the road to progress, I have to wonder who's behind the wheel and what they're thinking.

Take a good look at this picture
The face I'm sure you'll know
Her mark is all around this town
On the walls of the places you go

She is blessed with many talents
And her "best" she will always bring
But there is, I've found, a stopping point
So please don't ask her to "sing"

Her time here has been a happy one
But in life we must move on
And soon she will be leaving
But her legacy will carry on

As her days in Marion are numbered
For a new journey she will now face
Ballard will soon be her canvas
And I'm sure she will "color" that place

Best wishes my friend I will miss you
This place will just not be the same
And although I can't speak for everyone
As for me, I'm sure glad you came!!!

Gotcha!

Feds looking at plan to ease CAFO regs

WASHINGTON – Some huge livestock farms produce more raw waste than cities as large as Philadelphia or Houston.

But federal regulators are failing to control pollution from the gigantic operations or assess health risks from the enormous quantities of manure they produce, according to congressional investigators.

The Government Accountability Office report on the raw waste was released this week to a House committee hearing on federal oversight of factory farms.

The conclusions fueled concerns about a proposed Environmental Protection Agency rule change that would eliminate one of the few federal oversight mechanisms over air and water pollution from big farms.

The rule would eliminate a requirement that farms report to federal, state and local officials when air emissions of hazardous substances like ammonia and hydrogen sulfide exceed certain levels.

EPA proposed the rule change in December, contending the requirement created an unnecessary burden for farms and that the emission release reports usually weren't needed or acted upon.

"It is unclear to us" how EPA reached that determination, GAO said, noting that a national association representing emergency responders has said in comments to EPA that the reports are needed.

"This GAO study confirms that the Bush administration's plan to exempt industrial-sized animal feeding operations from 24 attend annual FFA at Murray St.

Twenty-four Crittenden County FFA members attended Murray State University Racer Roundup recently.

Racer Roundup prepares FFA members to be leaders in their chapter, school and life. Collegiate FFA members and past and present state officers led classes ranging from Giligan's Island to Workout World. The classes promoted teamwork and communication.

Crittenden FFA members got to interact with other FFA members from the Pennyryle region, Kentucky, Illinois, Tennessee, and even Missouri.

All members had a positive experience at Racer Roundup.

"Racer Roundup was a lot of fun. I really liked the leadership activities and spending time with my friends. I can't wait to see what they come up with for next year," said Taylor Davis, chapter sentinel.

Everyone had a really great time and looks forward to the 15th annual Racer Roundup next year.

Crittenden corn producers holding for price

Grain and silage harvest continues, but remained behind normal. As of Sunday, 38 percent of the state's corn had been harvested, compared to last year's 78 percent and 58 percent for the five year average. Virtually all the corn crop has reached the dent stage. The crop was rated three percent very poor, 14 percent poor, 31 percent fair, 34 percent good, and 18 percent excellent. weather. Pastures were rated 42 percent very poor, 35 percent poor, 17 percent fair, and six percent good, by the Kentucky Agriculture Statistics Service.

Locally, most farmers appear pleased with their harvest, even those who were forced to secure special head attachments for their combines to collect corn downed by high winds on Sept. 14. Charlie Hunt, a local corn buyer at Marion Feed Mill, said most producers are indeed harvesting, yet holding out for higher prices. Corn is selling just below $5 a bushel in the area. Over the past 12 months, corn has varied from $3.06 to $7.48. Storage capacity allows many producers to harvest in the fall and hold their grain until prices are attractive.

Farmers have begun harvesting their soybean crop. Seven percent of soybeans were harvested as of Sunday, compared to 17 percent last year and 11 percent for the five-year average. Sixty-four percent of soybeans have dropped leaves, compared to 76 percent last year. About 37 percent of the soybean crop had matured, compared to last year's 50 percent and 46 percent for the five year average. Soybean condition was rated eight percent very poor, 23 percent poor, 30 percent fair, 24 percent good, and 15 percent excellent. Farmers reported 78 percent of the soybean crop was safe from frost damage. "Corn and early beans appear good, but late beans are suffering," Hunt explained. "Those with double-crop beans haven't received the rainfall they needed."

Wheat seeding has started with farmers reporting four percent of the crop seeded. Many farmers continued to wait for improved moisture for germination before planting fall grains. Farmers continued to report poor conditions for pastures and hay crops due to dry weather.

One Crittenden producer on KY Proud site

Looking for a beef producer close to home? Trying to find out where you can buy your favorite Kentucky Proud products? The Kentucky Department of Agriculture has launched an Internet search engine that enables consumers and businesses to find the Kentucky Proud foods and products they're looking for.

Local producers on the site are minimal. There are two listed in Livingston County and just one in Crittenden County. In Crittenden, it's Deer Orchard Farms & Apiaries on Ky. 297 near the intersection with Irma-White Road. Deer Orchard Farms specializes in honey. In Livingston, the two producers are listed on the site are D&M Produce on U.S. 60 in Ledbetter and Perennials Plus Nursery & Landscaping on U.S. 60 in Smithland.

"The Kentucky Proud search engine is easy to use, and it's free," Agriculture Commissioner Richie Farmer said. "Anyone can use it to search through about 1,300 Kentucky Proud members selling more than 18,000 products. We expect it will boost sales of Kentucky Proud products, which will mean more income for Kentucky farmers and more economic activity in our rural communities." From the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Web site, www.kyagr.com, users may go to the Kentucky Proud pull-down menu and click on Find KY Proud Producers or Find KY Proud Products. On the "Search for KY Proud Producers" site, users may enter any combination of the company name, the county and the city to find Kentucky Proud producers. On the "Search for KY Proud Products" site, users may select one or more product categories and then select one or more product names. Users may narrow their search to a specific county or city, or search for all products in a county or city.

The search result provides links for viewing details of each member's listing. Each listing contains contact information for the Kentucky Proud member, the products the member produces and/or sells, the member's physical address and the Web site address if it has a site.

The Department plans to add more detail to the listings – for example, listing organic products.

GOLF

Richardson shoots age

Jack Richardson of Marion did something very few golfers can ever brag about. Last week, Richardson, 68, shot his age in a round of golf. While a 4-under-round is quite an accomplishment for anyone, doing it at 68 is even more rare. "Shooting your age is more than a hole in one," Richardson said. "I had just turned 68 on Aug. 9."

Richardson plays regularly with the men's group at Marion Country Club. They play about 18 holes each day. With him last Thursday were Doyle Jennings, Larry Yates and Dick Roach. Richardson shot a 33 on the front nine and a 35 on the back.

For the first time in history, Crittenden County beat Mayfield. The Rockets were led offensively by quarterback J.D. Gray (14) who runs for a big gain above. At right is lineman Aaron Berry (53) piled on top of Mayfield quarterback Luke Guhy after a second-half sack.

Rockets beat Mayfield for first time

MAYFIELD, Ky. - Quarterback J.D. Gray and his Rockets finally stuck that ticklish feather in their caps – the one that had eluded and even humiliated Crittenden County for years. Beating Mayfield for the first time ever 27-14 Friday will go down in the annals of Rocket lore as one of the greatest chapters in a storied football history.

For the past 13 years, since Mayfield dropped down to play Class A football, the Cardinals had been Crittenden's arch nemesis, beating the Rockets eight times in the playoffs since 1995. Restructuring put Crittenden in the same district with Mayfield last year and the Cardinal mystique seemed like an insurmountable barrier to a district championship.

All that changed Friday night when Gray threw a third-and-long, fourth-quarter touchdown pass to senior receiver Dustin McConnell. As McConnell streaked 44 yards untouched down the sideline, it was like watching a clip for the History Channel.

That image will forever be ingrained in Rocket memory, and perhaps in the Cardinals' psyche as Crittenden erased 10 straight losses to mighty Mayfield.

The Rockets entered the game ranked 13th in the Associated Press Class A Poll. Mayfield was ninth.

"We just made history," Rocket football coach Al Starnes said as he addressed his team following the game on the hallowed turf at War Memorial Stadium. Beating the winner of seven state championships on their home field will leave a lasting taste in the mouths of all those involved.

"We did this as a team, but we have to give a lot of credit to our seniors and their leadership," Starnes said. "We showed we can win a big game like this, but this is only the beginning."

Starnes and his Rockets will have their sights on winning a district championship for the first time since 2002. Crittenden has won four titles since 1996, but all of those were in the Second District, before they joined the ranks of Mayfield, Fulton City, Fulton County and Ballard Memorial.

Against Mayfield, Gray was unstoppable, rushing for two touchdowns and 157 yards and throwing for two more TDs, both in the final four minutes with the game on the line.

After McConnell's scoring reception with 3:06 to play, Crittenden stopped a rattled Mayfield offense on four downs and took over at the Cardinal 10. Four plays later, Gray found senior tight end Gaige Courtney in the end zone to put the final nail in Mayfield's coffin.

Gray had scored the game's first touchdown in the closing seconds of the opening quarter, but Mayfield answered in the second period to lead 7-6 at the half. In the final two periods, Crittenden scored on three of its four possessions, including Gray's scoring strike to McConnell, which broke a 14-14 tie and gave the Rockets the lead for good.

Crittenden running back Rodney Robertson

was back in the lineup after breaking his hand three weeks earlier against Lone Oak. While Robertson carried the ball nine times for 31 yards, his return was an inspiration to the entire team. On defense, Robertson went back to his linebacking slot – and played some at nose guard – and helped the Rockets hold Mayfield to just 108 yards rushing, throwing the Cardinals for a loss or no gain eight times. The secondary was just as strong, breaking up several passes as Mayfield QB Luke Guhy threw for 82 yards by completing half of a dozen passes. Crittenden linebacker Dyllan Thornton intercepted one pass for the game's only turnover and lineman Terry Werne had six solo tackles to lead the defensive charge.

The victory sets up a major showdown between Crittenden and Ballard Memorial on Oct. 10 at Rocket Stadium. It will be the Rockets' homecoming game. The Rockets, at 3-2 overall and 2-0 in league play, can virtually wrap up the district title with a win over Ballard next week. This week, however, they play a non-district matchup at Webster County (1-3).

VOLLEYBALL
Girls win fifth straight

The Lady Rockets (17-4) captured their fifth consecutive win Tuesday night with a hard-fought 17-25, 25-18, 26-24 win at Fort Campbell.

Things looked bleak in the early going as the Lady Falcons jumped to an 8-1 lead and led the entire first set. In the second set, Crittenden jumped out to a 13-7 edge and maintained at least a five-point cushion the rest of the contest.

According to Lady Rocket coach Larry Duvall, there were several serves in the final two sets that lasted between 15-20 volleys.

The decisive set was tied at 23-all before Crittenden claimed three of the next four serves to squeak out its third victory over the Lady Falcons.

"I was concerned after the first set," Duvall said about the slow start. "Tonight we showed what we can do." The Lady Rockets have added Second Region foe Henderson County to the regular season slate. They play Tuesday at Rocket Arena.

Lady Rockets fall to Union

For the eighth time this season, the Lady Rockets (0-10-1) scored fewer than two goals and Tuesday night lost a tight 2-1 decision to visiting Union County.

The majority of the first half was played on the Lady Bravette side of the field. Union broke a scoreless tie with 17:08 left in the first half.

The score remained that way until the 38:39 mark of the second half when Lady Rocket forward Lee Ann Riley knotted the game with a beautiful move to the goal.

Unfortunately, it did not remain that way for long as the visitors scored the deciding goal 3:35 later by bouncing one in that goalie Hannah Brantley could not retrieve.

There were plenty of scoring chances for both teams as the Lady Rockets had 14 shots on goal compared to 18 for the Lady Bravettes.

With less than 2:00 left to play, the hosts were constantly deep in Union territory but could never come up with the tying goal.

"Tonight we did not hustle. We are just not playing together," Crittenden coach Michael Gibson said after another disappointing setback.

Dixon outlasts Crittenden

Crittenden County's middle school boys' soccer team dropped another close one, this time 2-1 to Dixon. Dixon scored on a penalty kick and a break-away goal. Also scoring in the first half on a break-away goal was Crittenden's Hayden McConnell. Neither team scored in the second half, as Dixon held onto its early 2-1 edge. Daniel Patton had several saves in goal, but Crittenden could not crack Dixon's tough defense in the second half. Crittenden's soccer team stands at 1-2-1 and will play Sebree at 6 p.m., Friday in Clay.

U-10 girls undefeated

Crittenden County's U-10 girls' soccer team defeated the Lyon County boys' team 10-1 Thursday at Marion. The Crittenden girls got five goals from Kali Traivs and one each from Francesca Pierce, Kristen Perryman, Emily Tinsley and Cassidy Moss. Crittenden led 6-0 before Lyon scored.

The undefeated U-12 girls took a doubleheader from Caldwell County Saturday at Marion. Crittenden won the opener 1-0 on a first-period goal by Bristen Holeman. The Lady Rockets turned on the jets in a 7-2 victory in the second game. Pierce scored five goals in the rout. Alexis Tabor and Travis added one each.

Caldwell nips CCHS

Crittenden County High School's soccer girls used a special defensive lineup to try to break a long losing streak against Seventh District foe Caldwell County last Thursday in Marion. The strategy kept the Lady Rockets in the contest the entire way. The Lady Tigers scored a goal at the 20:55 mark of the first half, and it remained that way until they got a late insurance goal with 1:58 left. Caldwell won the district matchup 2-0.

Despite coming up short, it was the closest the Lady Rockets have ever played Caldwell.

While most of the opening half was played on the Lady Tigers' end of the field, the Lady Rocket defense did a tremendous job keeping the Tiger girls off the scoreboard and giving themselves a chance to spring the upset.

Hannah Brantley recorded nine saves and Rachel Cook and Jenna Odom chipped in with one apiece in the defensive battle.

Although his team came up a bit short in the end, Lady Rocket skipper Michael Gibson was proud of the effort and the way his team executed its gameplan.

"They know they can compete with them now," he said.

With the Seventh District Tournament two weeks away, the Lady Rocket coach hopes the strong showing will provide motivation for his squad in case it gets another shot against Caldwell in postseason.

"If we play them again, we are going to beat them. I don't have any doubt about it," said Gibson.

Payback offered for spoiled food

Kentuckians who lost perishable groceries purchased with food stamp benefits after the recent wind storm have extra time to apply for replacement benefits.

Clients in counties affected by the wind storm whose food was spoiled because of power outages have until Friday to apply for replacement benefits at their local Department for Community Based Services (DCBS) family support offices. Crittenden and all surrounding counties are eligible for this aid.

Replacements are provided in the amount of the loss to the household, up to the household's full monthly allotment. Customers must sign a statement that they lost food during a power outage and are requesting replacement funds. They also need some form of verification, such as a statement from a neighbor, verifying that they lost electricity. Elderly and handicapped clients may contact their food stamp workers by phone to have an affidavit sent to them to sign and return.

The requests will be processed as they are received. In Crittenden County, clients can call DCBS at 965-2254 for more information.

Chocolate buffet to raise film funds

Some of the community's greatest dessert architects and engineers will be making available their delicious designs on Oct. 9 at the Woman's Club Building in Marion.

The event is billed as "Heavenly Chocolate," a second such effort to raise funds for an ongoing community documentary.

Everyone is invited to stop by the Woman's Club at 127 E. Carlisle St., from 7 to 9 p.m., for fellowship and a dessert bar that will be stocked by some of the community's top cooks.

Casual attire is suggested for the "come and go" dessert buffet, said Judy Winn. A plethora of chocolate dishes

Winn said that the money will go toward a Crittenden County documentary film which is currently in production and will be part of a series called "My Kentucky Home."

In addition, a drawing will be held for a dinner for two from Commonwealth Yacht Club at Grand Rivers and a two-night stay at a condominium at Green Turtle Bay on Lake Barkley. Tickets for the $550-value drawing are only $10 each or three for $25. Flower shop set to move Monday

Bowtanicals Florist and Gift Shop will be moving up the street to start business next week.

Now owned by Keith and Caryn Steele and Elliot West, the shop will be relocating to 202 S. Main St., where it will open Monday under the same name. The selection of inventory will be much the same, according to Keith Steele, but more items will be added, like gourmet coffees.

Bowtanicals will be closed Saturday for the move from its current location. A story in last week's Crittenden Press listed the incorrect date for the move.

U.S. 60 bridge inspected Friday

Commuters headed to Paducah should notice lane restrictions scheduled for Friday on the U.S. 60 Tennessee River bridge at Ledbetter.

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet will reduce traffic to one lane on the span to allow a general walk-through inspection of the structure. This is an annual inspection that occurs between the detailed biennial inspections, said spokesman Keith Todd.

Traffic will be restricted to one lane on the bridge deck from 9 a.m., to about 1 p.m., Friday. Motorists should use appropriate caution in this work zone where equipment, flaggers and inspection personnel will be on the bridge deck in close proximity to traffic flow. Motorists can also expect to encounter slowing and stopped traffic on the bridge approach. Traffic delays should be minor.

Whitfield votes against bailout

Congressman Ed Whitfield on Monday was one of 228 lawmakers to vote against a proposed $700 billion bailout of failing banks. The measure failed to pass in the House 228-205.

"I do believe, after lengthy discussions with banking leaders around the country, that President Bush and Secretary (Henry) Paulson can take immediate and less costly steps to solve our current financial crisis," Whitfield (R-Hopkinsville) said.

A revised bailout packaged is expected to be voted on in the House again today (Thursday).

Clarifications

A recent story in The Crittenden Press included the wrong amount donated to the Crittenden County Animal Shelter for spay and neuter assistance.

Crittenden County Humane Society donated $29,223.27 to the county for the program when the chapter folded.

Another recent story indicated the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce had set aside $2,900 for this year's Heritage Days festival. In reality, $500 set aside for the event was supplemented by about $2,400 raised through an auction and raffled organized by Ron Padgett, coordinator of this year's festival.
