New hours begin at garbage center

Beginning Monday, the trash and recycling convenience center in Crittenden County will be open from 8 a.m., to 4 p.m., each weekday and 8 a.m., to noon on Saturday. The center on U.S. 60 east of Marion will no longer be closed on Thursdays. The new phone number will be 965-3376.

The changes go into effect as the county takes over operation of the facility from Freedom Waste utilizing supervised inmate labor from the Crittenden County Detention Center.

City tax bills due to avoid penalties

City taxpayers will have until Friday to avoid having a penalty added to their property tax bills. Tax bills issued by the City of Marion are normally due Nov. 1, but because that day is on a Saturday when City Hall is closed, all bills must be paid by Halloween to avoid a scary 25-percent penalty. Tax bills paid Monday or later will be considered delinquent and assessed the penalty.

Government offices closed Election Day

Many government offices will be closed Tuesday for the presidential election. Election Day is a state holiday in Kentucky, meaning all offices under the direction of Frankfort will be closed. Marion City Hall and all courthouse offices but the county clerk's will also be closed Tuesday. Schools, too, will be out in Crittenden County. Tuesday, however, is not a federal holiday. The U.S. Postal Service and all other federal offices will remain open Election Day. The courthouse will remain open until about 8 p.m., Tuesday for those interested in election returns from across the county.

CHS hosting final health fair of 2008

Crittenden Health Systems will host its final health screening of the year today (Thursday) on the hospital campus. Numerous health vendors will be on hand during the 2-to-6 p.m., event, many offering free advice and screenings. Tours of the hospital's sleep lab, nutrition services, new diagnostics equipment, surgery department and the PHI air ambulance will also be offered. For children, there will be games and other events to hold their interests. Hamburger and hot dog meals will also be available during the four-hour event.

Public meetings

The regular November meeting of Crittenden Fiscal Court will be held on Nov. 17 starting at 9 a.m., instead of the normal third Tuesday of the month due to a scheduling conflict with a government official's conference.

Officials mull free WiFi across city

STAFF REPORT

If the City of Marion follows through with its latest plans, the community will be known to outsiders for two things: Shunning technology and embracing it.

The county's Amish community is by far its most widely renowned asset. Its shunning of modern technology is one thing that makes the religious sect so attractive to tourists.

Now, city officials want to reach to the opposite end of the spectrum in order to put Marion on the cyber map.

"We want to provide wireless Internet throughout the city," Mayor Mickey Alexander said. "It's something that would set us apart from the other small cities in the area. We have a full-blown welcome center and that's something no other small town around us has. So, why not have free Internet?"

The idea was broached during a recent public issues conference the mayor and City Administrator Mark Bryant attended recently with other local officials. There, they met with agencies that provide engineering and technical service to cities or communities that want to go totally wireless.

Anyone with a computer capable of picking up a wireless signal would be able to log onto the Internet, download email or send messages or files. All for free. The mayor envisions tourists and travelers using downtown as a sort of WiFi reststop. While they're idle, he hopes they spend some time in local shops and stores.

"It's a great marketing tool," he said.

Alexander said Prestonsburg in eastern Kentucky recently installed wireless Internet in a two-mile swath through town for a cost of about $8,500. The mayor figures Marion could do something similar for about the same kind of money.

"We might be able to go from Liberty Fuels to Pamida," the mayor said, drawing a figurative line from one end of town

Free Internet?

The City of Marion is considering offering free wireless Internet throughout the town as early as next year.

to the other. "That's only about a mile and half so we might be able to spread it out wider."

Preliminary plans are to have two DSL Internet services then tie them together through a series of remote wireless devices or booster stations. The mayor isn't sure what type of download speeds citizens could expect, but he wants enough bandwidth to make the project worthwhile.

"That's what the engineers would do. They come in and lay out what you need. It's less expensive than what I expected," Alexander said.

Plans are to start moving on the proposal immediately. The mayor said other city leaders will be briefed on the matter soon. He anticipates widespread support for the idea and hopes to have the city connected by early 2009.

Autumn harvests nearing end

David Tinsley harvests a plot of soybeans Monday afternoon in a field near Tolu owned by Robert White. As of Sunday, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Service, only 65 percent of the state's soybeans had been harvested, compared to 72 percent last year at this time. Soybean conditions were rated by NASS as mostly fair to excellent, with only 26 percent either poor or very poor. Thirteen percent are rated excellent. Across the county, according Corey Payne, Crittenden County Extension Agent for Agriculture, most of the soybean and corn crops have been harvested, with some double-crop winter wheat already in the ground. According to The Associated Press, soybean prices fell in erratic trading Tuesday even after the government lowered its estimate for the size of this year's harvest. Meantime, corn prices traded higher.

Police find stolen pickup burned on rural Tolu road

STAFF REPORT

Local authorities on Monday found a truck stolen over the weekend from a Tolu-area residence burned on a remote farm access road at E-town Landing.

An area farmer, John Croft, located the remains of a burned 1999 Ford Ranger 4x4 early Monday afternoon while tending the fields. Police were able to identify the vehicle from the license plate as one reported stolen from Terry Powell on Tom Minner Road northwest of Sheridan.

Kentucky State Trooper Chris King began the investigation into the stolen truck on Sunday when Powell first reported the vehicle stolen from the driveway where he was staying. Just more than 24 hours later, Croft spotted the burned vehicle just a few miles from the residence.

The truck was burned beyond recognition and is a total loss.

While responding to Croft's find, Crittenden County Deputy Sheriff Greg Rushing received a call about additional property stolen from the Tolu area. Before answering the call, area residents and Rushing discovered a trailer hidden in the woods off E-Town Ferry Road just up from where the burned truck was found.

The trailer, which was stolen from Brad Hamilton who lives near Powell, turned out to be the missing property Rushing was called to investigate. The trailer, too, was damaged in the theft.

"We don't have any suspects yet," Rushing said Tuesday.

There is no excuse for youth to be out after dark on Halloween for

Panic not helping merry-go-round economy

In Economics 101 at Murray State University in the early 1980s, there was little reason for concern. The pocketbook was empty, gas tank dry and not even a mouse in the pantry. I was paying little attention to the national and international influences affecting the dollar 'cause I didn't have any.

On the radio, Hank Jr.'s newest song was "Tired of Being Johnny B. Good." In retrospect, his lyrics hit home. A couple of the verses went something like this:

*I don't like instant ice tea.
And I aint crazy about dollar-a-gallon self-service gasoline,
And they nearly broke me with the high price of beef.
And the funny thing is they think they're putting this over on me.
This country's gettin' in a kinda bad shape.
When the gasoline profits are up, up and away,
And I can barely live on my take home pay.
There's a whole lot of people that agree to what I say.
Don't tell me to ride a bus and turn down my thermostat.
When you're all runnin' around in jets and Cadillacs.
Now, does that sound like words befitting of today's* plight?

Similar problems also led to the Great Depression. The point is that economies are cyclical, much like everything else. There's a time for thriving and a time for dying. Political seasons and struggling economies do not mix. The volatile concoction we get with partisan bickering and carrot-chasing journalists is eroding the confidence of the American consumer.

Fear is the No. 1 factor employed by most politicians when they're working on getting elected and that's one of the big reasons our economy looks like the "Wreck of the Edmond Fitzgerald."

The wind and wires from all this political rhetoric are making a tattletale sound that's causing the entire globe to list.

What's interesting is that every economy in the world is struggling right now. Are their problems linked to a housing crisis, bad mortgage loans and Freddie or Fannie?

The answer is, no. Not directly. There are many things influencing world economies, just as in America. In the United States, we have two distinct problems with our economy. One affects Wall Street, and one affects Main Street. There's some intermingling of troubles, but by and large, the credit and mortgage crisis is tumbling Wall Street and energy is choking average Americans.

Energy is also slowing the global economy. Oil prices have been dogging Americans, forcing them to dig deeper and deeper to fill up the tank. They've stopped buying everything from designer clothes to automobiles out of fear of what tomorrow will bring. Families and corporations are withholding all of the greenbacks they can, playing it close to the vest until there are signs of recovery.

Those signs may indeed be on the horizon now that oil is tumbling. The problem is that falling oil prices are now whipping the Russians and their buddy Hugo in Venezuela, which is creating more problems on the global economic front. Emerging economies are getting left in the exhaust of a world-wide economic tailspin and the American recession – all based largely on energy expense.

The dollar, which had sunk to new lows in the past few months, is bouncing back thanks to these international trends. With the buck coming back, crude is going down which is perhaps the best sign of light at the end of the tunnel. The only thing more positive on the horizon is next week's election. Once it's over, the gloom and doom network soothsayers can start talking about the Obama-led economic comeback. It's a scenario that most of them have been orchestrating for months.

Everything goes together so nicely once you see how all the parts fit.

Again, I made a solid C in Econ 101. Micro and macro economics were not my forte by any means. However, I did feel the smack of dollar-a-gallon, self-serve gasoline in the early 80s when parties and girls were more important than transportation. The crippling effects of four-dollar fuel were even more prevalent in recent weeks.

With crude oil back down below $65 a barrel, the economy should straighten out if pump prices continue to follow suit and food and textiles do the same.

Corporations that have survived will soon be cutting loose of all those dollars they've been afraid to spend and that means more production, more people back to work and more commerce. For a consumer-driven economy, that's the bottom line.

In summation, I am not saying that all of this economic morass has been created by a political season rife with media bias, but that factor has indeed made matters worse. Likewise, I am not implying that there are not some long-term ramifications. Losing one-third or more of a retirement account is indeed a real problem with lasting troubles. What I am saying, however, is that the U.S. economy comes and goes. Right now, it's gone. The thing we do not need is more panic in Washington and Wall Street.

We're at or near the bottom right now, that means good times are on the horizon. When we hear about the credit crunch hitting companies hard because they can't borrow enough money to make payroll, well, I say they don't need to be in business anyway. If your company is in such shape that you need credit to pay your employees, you were in trouble before all this other stuff hit the fan. The business world and private sector were equally over leveraged.

Once the economy purges itself of those weak companies and poor credit scores, things should be back on track. Eventually, the real estate market will complete its low run and gas and food prices will stabilize. At that point, this cyclical train ride will be complete and we'll once again be talking about the recovery engine and a bullish market.

To illustrate the cyclical nature of economic and political trends, I will leave you with this quote:

"The budget should be balanced, the treasury should be refilled, public debt should be reduced, the arrogance of officialdom should be tempered and controlled, and the assistance to foreign lands should be curtailed lest Rome become bankrupt. People must again learn to work, instead of living on public assistance." - Roman dictator Cicero, 55 B.C.

Voters' guide to the 2 candidates

The following is my voter's guide on how it appears that the two presidential candidates stand on several issues.

- On partial birth abortion and letting a survivor of a botched abortion die. Obama says yes, McCain says no.
- To protect one man and one woman marriage on the ballot. Obama says no, McCain says yes.
- Require school children to think favorably about homosexuality. Obama says yes, McCain says no.
- Support adoption of children by homosexuals. Obama says yes, McCain says no.
- Allow local government to ban gun ownership. Obama says yes, McCain says no.
- Nominate strict constitutional judges. Obama says no, McCain says yes.
- Nominate judges that rule according to their own moral and political philosophy instead of the United States Constitution. Obama say yes, McCain says no.
- Support expanded American oil production. Obama says no, McCain says yes.
- Committed to not raising taxes. Obama says no, McCain says yes.
- Cut national defense. Obama says yes, McCain says no.

Now let us look at who is supporting each of the candidates.

- John McCain: The evangelical churches, the Right to Life Organization, the people who support marriage between one man and one woman; those against same-sex marriages; those for strong national defense; those for constitutional judges in the courts; those for lower taxes; those against killing the innocent, helpless unborn; and those for a traditional America that we've known all these years.

- Here's who is for Obama: The American haters; the Christian haters; the far, far left Moveon.org; far left Michael Moore; the far leftists in Hollywood; atheists, socialists; the Germans who are teaching their public school children to hate Christianity; homosexuals and lesbians; planned parenthood supporters; radical Muslims who have come out for Obama; all of the bias, liberal, far left media that have tormented Joe The Plumber and Sarah Palin; all the liberals and leftist in our government; the far left New York Times now openly endorsing Obama and giving thousands to his campaign; ACORN that is guilty of vast voter fraud; and the atheist, billionaire, foreign-born George Soros, the financial wheeler-dealer in the hedge fund industry who may make billions more from this terrible financial debacle. Soros wants to destroy the conservative and Christian influence of this nation. He gives millions to assisted suicide, abortion on demand, gun control efforts and drug liberalization (legalize marijuana). He is credited with breaking the Bank of England and laughs about it.

These kinds of financial wheeler-dealers can make the economy or break it. Does anyone ask why all of this just happened to happen when Obama was behind in the polls, when all knew if the economy went south the Republicans would be blamed and therefore the Democrats would benefit?

"It's the economy, Stupid." Former Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan, President Bush and several in congress, including John McCain, as far back as 2006 warned that Fannie Mae and Freddie Mack were on shaky ground and should be investigated immediately. The proposals were written up but the Democrat-controlled congress killed them, especially the leaders of it who were Barney Frank and Chris Dodd. Those two, along with Obama, were also receptors of the largest donations from the two organizations. The biased national media will not report these truths.

Too many will vote for a man who votes for all kinds of immorality if he will just promise them financial security which no human being can guarantee, especially when they leave God and His laws out of their lives and governance. Why can't people understand that when a nation goes down the path of immorality, God gets in the mix and He withdraws His blessings including financial blessings?

All history has proven that in nation after nation. A great man once said: "When man does the same thing over and over expecting a different result it is a sign of insanity."

Now dear ones who have read this, the ball is in your court. As you go to the polls, God will be watching when you close the curtain, and so will history and the future of this country and those that come on behind us to bless us or curse us.

Memorial taken a despicable act

To the editor:

I have been decorating a tree at (Lake George) in memory of my late husband Ollie Hamby for almost five years. You can imagine my shock at finding the decorations gone from the tree (one) morning.

If this was done by the city, then that's all great, but, if this was a random act of transgression, then I sincerely hope that someone got great satisfaction out of dishonoring a simple gesture done out of love and respect for the memory of my husband, my mother and my husband's mother.

I could understand if my simple acts down through the years were hurting anyone, but I cannot see why placing memorials on a tree for lost loved ones would cause any kind of pain for anyone. If I had started a riot and everyone in Crittenden County had started doing the same thing, then perhaps I could even understand that, but this was a lone gesture as far as I know, and no one had ever complained to me about it.

If someone would like to respond to me about this issue, then here is your chance. I will understand if this is something that is against the law, but I will never understand if this is something that is against my heart.

Sarah Hollis
Marion, Ky.

(Editor's note: Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said he and city employees are aware of the decorations placed at Lake George for the last few years by the family of Ollie Hamby, but said the city has not removed them from the premises at any time.)

Election laws prohibit cameras

STAFF REPORT
In what pundits have called the most important election of our times, the state's rules for balloting will be closely watched, said Crittenden County Clerk Carolyn Byford. Hoping to avoid controversies in the Nov. 4 presidential election that have plagued some states the last two such elections, rules associated with voting in Kentucky range from the usual prohibition of electioneering near polling locations to the first-time banning of cameras to record votes for an Internet initiative. Kentucky election laws prohibit any campaigning within 300 feet of the entrance to polls though campaign buttons, bumper stickers and other campaign items affixed to persons or their cars are allowed. There are also restrictions on who can enter the building where voting takes place aimed at reducing potential controversies. No visitors are allowed at polls, only election officers, voters and their minors or someone assisting, machine technicians and law enforcement at the request of election officers are allowed. And, no cameras, camera phones or other recording devices will be allowed at polls, despite a national YouTube project with PBS asking voters to record their votes. The "Video Your Vote" initiative to share voting experiences across the nation violates Kentucky voting laws by asking voters to record themselves casting a ballot. Those caught recording could be slapped with a misdemeanor. Kentucky's legislature outlawed video recording, cell phones and cameras in 2005 to avoid intimidating voters. Georgia and Florida also bar recording in polling places. Voters are also asked to have identification ready to speed the process on what is sure to be a busy voting day.

The Crittenden Press Letters to the Editor

Election features 2 serviceful men

To the editor:
I am responding to the letter of Mr. John Curry, under the heading "Obama presidency could split nation." I find the letter worrisome, since it exploits the very things that Barack Obama and John McCain—contrary to their handlers' strategy — are trying so hard to overcome: further splitting an already divisive nation.
I thought Mr. Curry's letter described another individual whose policies, in the past eight years, have created the divisiveness Mr. Curry describes: George W. Bush. Think about it: He proclaimed the war in Iraq to be "God's war," his economic policies have attained their goal of decimating the middle class by splitting the nation into two groups — rich and poor — and he has relentlessly pursued his insatiable thirst for global power in an outwardly calm, cool demeanor. Consequently, we're on the verge of a global depression, our civil rights are tattered and torn, our educational system is in trouble, we've mortgaged our future on a war that could've been handled far differently, and our once-formidable level of respect among other nations is gone.
Also, Mr. Curry, why is it so important that any candidate has to choose which ethnic group(s) he represents? I don't know about you, but I want a president who serves all and treats all with equal respect, not one that chooses one group over the other.
It has not been Obama's campaign that has conducted most of the mud-slinging, fear-mongering, labeling and "pro-America" "real-America" rhetoric. In fact, it became so bad that McCain himself stopped the mud-slinging and false accusations spewing from his rallies. What could be more divisive than saying that, just because we disagree on a few things, I'm pro-American, while my next-door neighbor is anti-American? As a pro-military son of a conservative military officer father, and a pro-education, environmental and social issues son of a Kennedy Democrat mother, I feel very capable of seeing both sides of this. One thing is for sure: the labeling has to go if we have any chance to pull this country together.
We really need to come together and solve some serious problems. On November 4, we need to vote for the candidate who, each of us feels, can do the most to exercise this type of vision and leadership.

What we don't need is labeling, fear-mongering, calling people "false prophets" who have never acted like that, invoking a man's middle name as though he were an accused murderer to invoke fear of Muslims, and trying to scare people into thinking he's an insatiable power-monger when he's not.
The beauty of 2008 is that we have a contest between two genuinely serviceful men—one a military hero and expert at bridging the left-right divide, the other a religious urban hero and inspiration to many. Both elevate the American people above their own desires—a welcome change. That is comforting knowledge in these tough times, knowledge that rises above labels and fear-mongering.
Robert Yehling
Marion, Ky.

GOP tactics this year are appalling

To the editor:
First off let me state that I really do not support either major political party this presidential election. But the tactics by the Republicans are appalling.
They are using the same fear/hate mongering tactics used to launch us into a war with Iraq, which I had the gut feeling was wrong from the beginning. I served in that operation, following the orders by my commander in chief and still serve to this day as I swore to do. These tactics are tapping into the subliminal blind fear and hatred that most Americans won't admit to openly, but still harbor deep inside.
I tend not to be so surprised anymore when I open this paper to see someone spewing out hatred stemming from ignorance of history, religious convictions and interpretations of such, and outright racism.
That said, here are some facts to hopefully help you navigate through the swamp of lies and bigotry. I will just focus on the meaning of names for now since last week's letter to the editor contained an intentional use of a name to link that person to someone we consider evil.
Hebrew and Arabic languages both stem from the same ancient common tongue, sometimes called Proto-Semitic. There are tens of thousands of words shared by Hebrew and Arabic, only slightly different in form, and sometimes almost exactly the same meaning.

Barack is of Hebrew origin, and its meaning is "flash of lightning." In the Bible (Judges 4:6) Barak is a valiant fighting man who co-operated with the prophetess Deborah to win victory in a battle against overwhelming odds.
The meaning of the name Barack in Arabic is "blessed." I could stop there but the world is fixated on Hussein, which is of Arabic origin, and its meaning is "good; small handsome one."
The name Barack Obama sounds suspicious enough to most Americans already, and adding Hussein into the mix definitely does not make it any better for those who are quick to judge people who they see as different. I was absolutely in awe of a woman recently who spoke to McCain at one of his rallies about her suspicions that Obama was an Arab, which apparently made him dangerous. McCain finally attempted to defend the honor of his opponent (and himself), but he was just booed by the riled-up crowd. Unfortunately, McCain's crowds have become increasingly blood-thirsty and are becoming quite a disgrace to America.
A few speakers at Republican rallies have tried to use Barack Obama's middle name against him, being sure to toss his middle name into speeches every now and then when referring to him. Sure they're not outright connecting Barack Obama to an unsavory character, but they know that the crowds will when they here the name Hussein. And when have you ever heard anyone refer to the middle name of John McCain, Joe Biden, or Sarah Palin? Do you even know what their middle names are? And is there really anything wrong with the name Hussein?

Daniel McKinzie
Marion, Ky.

Inexperience most telling Obama flaw
To the editor:
Barack Obama is the most inexperienced presidential candidate in our country's history. He has voted for partial-birth abortions, tax raises, and funding cuts for our troops. Obama has only been in the Senate for four years and has no record of achievement.
John McCain has spent his entire life fighting for America, first in the Navy, then in the U.S. House and Senate. He has championed low taxes, energy independence, pro-life policies, and has strongly supported our military. He has overcome many family and personal issues to become the great man he is.
On Nov. 4 let's elect a real agent for change — a true American — John McCain.

McConnell campaigns in Marion

With a microphone from a BBC News reporter recording U.S. Sen. Mitch McConnell's campaign visit to Marion last Thursday, the four-term senator shares a moment with Crittenden County Clerk Carolyn Byford at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion. McConnell, a Republican, is facing his toughest battle for re-election since being elected to office by a narrow margin in 1984. Polls show McConnell and Democratic challenger Bruce Lunsford in a neck-and-neck race for a seat Democrats are hoping to gain in the hunt for a supermajority of 60 votes in the upper chamber of Congress. On Monday, with the campaign in the home stretch toward Election Day, Lunsford was along in making his case to voters on KET at an event that McConnell skipped. Instead, according to The Associated Press, McConnell wrapped up his swing through parts of western Kentucky. McConnell has carried Crittenden County in each of his four previous election wins, including his first in 1984 when only Crittenden and Christian counties in western Kentucky favored the Republican. McConnell is the most powerful Republican in the legislature, serving as Senate minority leader for the last two years.

County, state prepared for busy Election Day

FROM AP AND STAFF REPORTS

Carolyn Byford doesn't expect the long lines at polls that some are anticipating across Kentucky, but Crittenden County's top election official is expecting one of the heaviest turnouts for a presidential election in recent memory.

Crittenden County voters will head to the polls next Tuesday to vote in only two contested local races – school board District 4 and Marion City Council – but they join the rest of the state in helping decide the next president, members of Congress and the General Assembly.

Byford, Crittenden County Clerk, is expecting around a 65-percent turnout.

A record number of Kentuckians have registered to vote in the Nov. 4 election, and high turnout could cause some delays during peak voting hours. Secretary of State Trey Grayson warned. Nevertheless, a relatively short ballot combined with extra voting machines could help speed things along, Grayson said.

"We're ready," Grayson said at a press conference last week. "I'm not going to predict that it will be a flawless Election Day, but I think it will be a good Election Day."

Byford agreed, adding that the relative rural nature of the county and having 12 precincts to serve the voters should help keep lines short.

Just more than 2.9 million Kentucky residents are registered to vote in the upcoming election. By comparison, there were about 2.8 million people registered to vote in the 2004 presidential election, and nearly 65 percent of them voted, according to the State Board of Elections.

Grayson has said he expects 65 to 70 percent of registered voters are likely to vote next week, and could update that unofficial prediction this week.

Election officials across the state have spent months preparing for the election that will decide Kentucky's choice for president, one U.S. Senate seat, six congressional seats all 100 state House members and half of the state Senate.

Marion man carrying gun arrested at country club

STAFF REPORT

A Marion man faces various drug, alcohol and weapons charges following his arrest Monday at Marion Country Club.

Charles Enoch Jr., 40, of Country Club Drive was taken into custody shortly before noon Monday after he allegedly brandished a handgun at the club.

Police charged Enoch with alcohol intoxication in a public place, carrying a concealed deadly weapon, two counts of second-degree possession of a controlled substance, illegal possession of a legend drug and having prescription medication not in its original container.

According to police reports, workers at the club's restaurant had seen Enoch with the handgun and were getting ready to dial 911 when Police Chief Ray O'Neal and state policeman Frank Greshman just happened to pull into the parking lot for lunch. The two policemen saw Enoch with the gun. By the time they had tracked him down behind the clubhouse, Enoch had allegedly put the gun into his pocket.

Enoch was lodged in the Crittenden County Detention Center under a $10,000 cash bond.

Brown put on board for drug task force

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Fred Brown has been named to the Pennyriple Area Narcotics Task Force Board of Directors. Brown was selected to fill the seat previously held by former city police chief Kenneth Winn, who passed away earlier this month. Brown said that in the past, mostly law enforcement people served on the task force board. A new effort is under way to get more government officials on the board, he said.

Wilkes chosen to judge photography

Marion's Brian Wilkes judged the Fall Photography Weekend competition at Pennyriple State Forest earlier this month.

The state sponsors photography weekends each spring and fall at the state forest resort complex. Photographers arrive on Friday and are given the categories for the competition. All contest entries must be shot Friday or Saturday on the state grounds. On Friday and Saturday evenings participants attend presentations by professional photographers. This year, Wilkes was one of those chosen to make a presentation, entitled "A Painterly Approach to Landscapes and Cityscapes."

On Sunday morning, the two "visiting pros" judge the weekend's entries.

"The categories this year were cultural heritage, geological formations, insects and spiders, and natural landscapes," Wilkes said. "Because of the cold snap, there were few insects and spiders moving about, and groups of photographers would have to share a subject."

"Some of the work was spectacular," said Wilkes, "and the contestants were most interested in learning from each other's work. It's great to see people come up with creative solutions for low available lighting, composition, all of the little technical and creative problems that arise when you shoot in nature."

The next Photography Weekend Pennyriple State Forest will be in April 2009.

Kimball selling off in small tracts

STAFF REPORT
With more than 27,000 acres of land selling in three days, you might get a feeling the upcoming auction of Kimball International's timberland in Kentucky and Indiana Nov. 6-8 will be a contest of major investors buying thousands of acres at a time, including one state government.
But if officials of Kimball get their way, it could also be the best opportunity in years for smaller investors to purchase smaller pieces of forest land for recreation, investment purposes or both.
"When we sat down with the people at Woltz & Schrader Auctions to decide on the best way to sell this land, we had two objectives," Marty Vaught, spokesperson for Kimball International, said in a news release. "First, obviously, we wanted to maximize the return for our shareholders. But we also wanted to make it easy for smaller buyers to participate on an equal footing."

With those two objectives in mind, company officials decided to sell the land in a total of 245 tracts, including 66 tracts of 50 acres or less, according to Rex Schrader, president of the auction company.
"With an average size of 111 acres per tract, we're opening the door to far more investors of relatively modest means. The number of buyers who could purchase 27,000 acres might be limited, but there are a lot of people who can purchase 20, 50 or 100 acres, and we're actively courting those buyers. During the three days, we'll be selling 66 tracts of 50 acres or less, and 25 of those consist of 20 acres or less," said Schrader.

When bidders gather in Sturgis, Ky., on Nov. 8 for the last day of the three-day event, they'll bid on 11,759 acres divided into 71 tracts, of which eight are 50 acres or smaller and four are 20 acres or smaller. That land, Crittenden and Union counties in Kentucky, includes miles along the Ohio and Tradewater rivers, large timber stands, and the Game Trails hunting property that has been featured on numerous outdoor TV shows that feature its world class deer hunting. The property also includes 2,640 acres of tillable cropland and 940 acres of pasture and hay fields.

"I've never seen another case where an individual could come in and buy 20, 50 or 100 acres of a property that is already established as one of the most famous hunting areas in the nation. Remarkably, only nine of these 71 tracts are larger than 300 acres, so this land – and this sale – will be accessible to small as well as large buyers," said Schrader.
On of those large buyers, the Commonwealth of Kentucky, has expressed an interested in the Crittenden and Union county properties to bolster its Adventure Tourism initiative. If purchased by the state, the land would be utilized as a recreation area.

At the auction, the tracts will be offered individually and in combinations. The land will sell in the combination that brings the highest total price, according to Schrader.
Kimball officials are expecting bidders to include investors who are seeking an alternative to the recent volatility on Wall Street.
"Due to the recent selling, there is a lot of cash on the sidelines, and there are thousands of investors – large and small – who are looking for a more stable investment. We're hoping some of those will be attracted to this land," said Vaught.

Downtown seeing red

For those wondering why red balloons have been seen floating in front of some Marion businesses this week, the display is a show of support for a drug-free community, an initiative to raise drug abuse awareness. Above, Robin Taylor (left) and Stephanie Hardin, guidance counselors for Crittenden County Middle and High schools, respectively, place balloons Monday morning in front of The Crittenden Press and Edward Jones Investments. The campaign was sponsored by the schools and the Crittenden County Chamber of Commerce.

Inmates funded for trash pickup

Crittenden County Detention Center has received $19,000 from the state to clean up roadside trash. The inmates work on crews overseen by a deputy jailer.
The work schedule is set by jail officials and only county roads are part of the project. Judge-Executive Fred Brown said the detention center inmates clean up more miles of road than the state pays for through the project. He said that starting this year, the county is keeping a better record of the number of road miles served by the clean up effort.
"We're going to turn in all of the mileage and hopefully we'll get additional funding in the future," Brown said. The money received from the state goes toward general jail expenses.

Police taser man to end argument

A fight Friday afternoon between siblings ended up with one being shot by a police taser gun and both being put behind bars.

Ricky J. Adams, 29, of Red Road and Timothy G. Adams, 23, of Maple Street had allegedly been involved in an altercation at a location in the city. A windshield was reportedly broken out of one of their vehicles and the other's car was kicked and damaged.
According to police reports, Timothy Adams had gone to the police department, apparently to file a complaint, when his brother followed him to city hall and attacked him in the parking lot.
Police Chief Ray O'Neal went outside the station to break up the fight and ended up having to shoot Ricky Adams with his taser gun in order to subdue the older brother.
Both were charged with disorderly conduct and lodged in the Crittenden County Detention Center. They bonded out later the same day.

FEMA aid would raise rural roads

Crittenden County is applying for two Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) grants that could benefit the hospital and help raise a road that often floods.
Blackburn Church Road in District 6 needs to be raised about five feet near the Piney Creek bridge. FEMA money should be available for the project, according to Dan Wood, magistrate in the district, but it's too early to tell if the plan will be approved.

Raising the road could cost about $50,000.
"People get trapped during periods of high water and can't get out on either end," Wood said. "There wasn't enough money in the county's maintenance fund to do the work, so we applied to FEMA."
Additionally, Crittenden Health Systems has applied for a FEMA grant to raise the heliport pad behind the hospital, which is also susceptible to flooding due to poor drainage in the area.

Judge to rule on area smoking ban

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) – A judge in western Kentucky says he will rule within two weeks on the legality over a smoking ban that bars lighting up in most public places.
McCracken Circuit Judge Jeff Hines is considering the case of Side Pockets Billiards owner Dickie , who is challenging Paducah's smoking ban.
Todd is arguing that the city's ban regulated the use of his property and therefore required approval of the city's planning commission. Hines previously dismissed the case, but the Kentucky Court of Appeals reversed the dismissal in July, ordering Hines to hear arguments in the case.
City attorney David Kelly said smoking has nothing to do with property development and doesn't require planning commission approval.

New fluorescent bulbs need special care when disposed of

STAFF REPORT
Making the switch from incandescent light bulbs to the new CFLs can save money and energy, but you need to know a few things about disposing of the innovative bulbs.
Freedom Waste, the garbage collection service provider in Crittenden County, can take the bulbs but there are some precautions you should follow. The idea is to recycle the bulbs, but there is nowhere locally that handles them. Paducah's Home Depot will take them free of charge.
CFL is an acronym for compact fluorescent light bulbs. Many environmentally conscious consumers are switching to the new bulbs which use two-thirds less energy and last up to 10 times longer.

Television networks, major newspapers and others have been warning consumers, however, about the potential for mercury contamination if one of the bulbs is broken. Indeed, they do possess about five milligrams of mercury. That's equivalent to about 15 grains of salt. The problem is that mercury, even in minuscule amounts, is hazardous. A teaspoon of mercury can contaminate a 20-acre lake forever. Birth defects and other serious health issues have been directly linked to mercury exposure.
Joe Buchanan, president of Freedom Waste, says Crittenden Countians can safely dispose of their used fluorescent bulbs in the normal trash. "We do accept them into our landfill," Buchanan said. "But you should double bag the bulbs before disposing of them in the trash."

Freedom Waste's landfill in Mayfield is a double-lined facility and certified for handling such items that contain traces of mercury. Buchanan said household volumes are acceptable, but a high-volume collector couldn't dump them at his site.
Nancy Hunt, a University of Kentucky Extension agent in Marion, says there are better ways to get rid of those new bulbs and the more familiar long fluorescent tubes.
She said Home Depot Stores, the one in Paducah for certain, takes them. In Paducah there is no charge and a recycling bin is in the front of the store.
Freedom Waste is also working on a plan for accepting such items, but it's still in the initial stages, Buchanan said.
Some counties have recycling centers that offer help in disposing of the bulbs, but Crittenden County does not. Sue Padget, solid waste coordinator for the county, said she plans on bringing up the matter at the January meeting of the county's solid waste committee.

"Those type bulbs are becoming more popular so it's something we probably need to address," Padget said.
If a bulb breaks, never pick up the pieces by hand. Sweep them onto a disposable plate or piece of cardboard and double bag the pieces before throwing them into the trash. You should also use a piece of duct tape to mop up shards of glass or other remnants in the area where the bulb was broken.

any other reason, the police chief said.
Trick or Treat on Main, the tradition of downtown stores offering candy to trick-or-treaters, is set to end at 5 p.m., as are Halloween photos taken at The Crittenden Press. Those coming from Friday's football game at Caldwell County, too, will be allowed on the streets, but only to return home.
There is no curfew outside of the city, but the Crittenden County Sheriff's Department will be on full alert Friday for Halloween.
Sheriff Wayne Agent said it's the first time in a while that Halloween has fallen on the weekend.
"We haven't had any trouble on Halloween the past few years," Agent said. "But we're taking extra precautionary measures this year because it's on Friday."
The sheriff and all three of the county deputies will be on patrol all night.
Halloween was once a time for rabble-rousing in the county. Often times, the pranks went too far and property was damaged and lives put in danger. Fires, egg throwing and other potentially harmful Halloween activities have been replaced with more traditional trick or treating in recent years.

Tolu haunt on hold

There will be no haunted house in Tolu this year, thanks to Hurricane Ike. In September, when the remnants of the cyclone tore across the county, a portion of the roof of the Tolu Community Center where the haunted house takes place each October was ripped off.

Remembering Sen. Ollie M. James of Marion

Ollie M. James had already served 10 years in the U.S. House of Representatives and was near the zenith of his popularity when the local citizens of his hometown decided to host a banquet for him following his election to the U. S. Senate. James came home to Marion for a huge event.

Welcome banquet

In recounting the occasion, the Jan. 25, 1912 issue of The Crittenden Record-Press described the exciting event as "A regular love feast."

There were approximately 106 Marion businessmen and friends in attendance. The banquet is thought to have been held in the building now occupied by Gilbert Funeral Home.

The menu of 96 years ago may surprise many readers. It included claret punch, heart of celery, radishes, queen olives, oyster soup, stuffed turkey, giblet sauce, cranberry frappe, French peas in cases, creamed potatoes, hot rolls, lettuce and tomato salad with French dressing, Neapolitan ice cream, cakes, charlotte russe, Roquefort cheese, Bents water crackers, coffee, cigars and cigarettes.

Following the dinner, toasts and speeches were given, led by Judge Blue, followed by V.Y. Moore, ex-Senator William J. Deboe, Kentucky Court of Appeals Judge Thomas J. Nunn and Senator James.

James' speech was delivered by him in a manner which proved how he was pleased at the ovation given to him.

Here is the account given in the Record-Press Jan. 25, 1912:

Marion does herself proud in honoring distinguished son, Ollie M. James

There is not a citizen of Marion but what feels in his heart that the welcome given to our distinguished and beloved citizen, United States Senator elect, O.M. James was timely, richly deserved and highly pleasing to the man who has always kept close to the hearts of his home people and has kept them and their welfare upper most in his heart.

Friday, Jan. 19 will long be remembered as an historical one in Marion. United States Senator-elect O.M. James arrived on the 11 o'clock train and was met by a great out pouring of the people to whom he spoke briefly from the portico of the James Mansion on the corner of Depot and College streets.

All day long admiring friends were arriving from all points of the compass, to do him honor and to sit at the banquet which was to be the crowing event of a gala day.

Seven o'clock was the hour named and at that time over one hundred gentlemen were at the entrance to the banquet ball awaiting the sounding of the gong, which would be the signal for them to enter and be seated. Each one had been given his ticket and the number of his table and there was no confusion, everything moving off in a good form.

At the plates each guest found beautiful hand-painted place cards with the dome of the Capitol and 'O.M.J.' in monogram and the facsimile of the guest's own signature on them which had been prepared by Marion's young artist Herbert Rodgers.

The menu which was at each guest's plate and was works of art gotten out at Bourland job rooms in this city and had on the front cover a bust of U.S. Senator Ollie M. James, which covered the entire page, and on the back cover "Marion's Contribution to Our Country" with pictures of her four most renowned products O.M. James, U.S. Senator elect, W.J. Deboe ex-U.S. Senator, Lee Cruce, governor of Oklahoma, and Thomas J. Nunn, Judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

What an exciting night for the people of Marion and Crittenden County to have their native son home again among his people.

The date for newly elected United States Sen. Ollie M. James to be sworn in was set for March 4, 1913 in Washington.

Here in Marion another historical event was getting ready to take place - The Ollie James Special, the name given to the special passenger train car that would be leaving from Marion.

What an exciting time for the people of Marion and Crittenden County, another one of their native sons having an honor bestowed on him, and now a special train car made available for them to ride to Washington and be welcomed and shown the sites by Senator James himself. Here is the rest of the story from the Crittenden Record- Press Feb. 20, 1913.

Home Friends To Honor Senator

As a compliment to their fellow townsman, who has been so signally honored, the residents of Marion, Ky., will leave the depot Thursday Feb. 27, at 4 o'clock p.m. aboard their "Ollie James Special," which will arrive in Louisville Friday morning.

After stopping for breakfast they will attach to the C&O at 9 p.m. arriving in Washington on Saturday morning, March 1. They are going there three days before the inauguration in order to see Washington before inauguration day, March 4, when their favorite son will take his seat as United States senator.

While in Washington they will be under the personal charge of Senator-elect James, who will also accompany them to New York for a couple of days. The committee, which made all arrangement for the trip and will be in personal charge is composed of W.G. Clifton, J.H. Orme, T.H. Cochran, Sam Gugenheim, and William Barnett. Others who are going include W.E. Dowell, P.B. Croft and Forrest Harris of Tolu, Jesse Olive, P.S. Maxwell, J.W. Wilson, Sam Gugenheim, J.I. Clement, and Dr. F.W. Nunn of Marion.

News of the Marion group is kept up to date by the Record-Press. March 6, 1913, we read that the members of the Ollie James Special from Marion and surrounding towns had the day of their lives.

First the Senator-elect had them all to a buffet luncheon in his apartments. There were nearly two score of them, but Mrs. James, Misses Lizzie and Ruby James (sisters of Mr. James) and Miss Nancy Johnson, daughter of Representative Ben Johnson, served them bountifully.

Mr. James then brought the whole party to the Capital where he showed them the building and put them all in the galleries, although the doorkeepers insisted there was no room.

"Let these fellows in, remarked Mr. James. They're the salt of the earth. They're the men who fight my battles for me."

Then Senator-elect Ollie James shattered more precedents for the "Ollie James Club," of Marion. He took his hometown delegation to the Treasury Department to be shown through that building. Policemen informed him the corridors were closed. "Not to the men of Marion," said Mr. James, who at once interviewed the Secretary of the Treasury.

They can go through if you go with them, Mr. McVeagh said, and so the deed was done. Later the delegation was shown through the White House by Mr. James.

It was always believed that Senator James would most likely be nominated for President for the Democratic Party. Here is an article from June 1916 that proves this to be true.

The Louisville Times of Friday June 16, 1916 places Hon. O.M. James of Marion in nomination for President in 1920 in the following manner.

the St. Louis convention was Ollie M. James, of Kentucky. He was the President's personal representative; he was the party's official spokesman, so chosen because as the floor leader in the Senate, he has for almost four years led the Democratic fighting line and has never met defeat. "James for President in 1920" was the cry of the convention when he finished his speech as permanent chairman, and James for President it will be, if the party rightly rewards a great son.

President Ollie M. James sounds good to us who know him and have watched him grow through the years from a young man to premier of President Woodrow Wilson's coterie of confidential advisers.

But through other articles that I've written about the Senator, we know that this

"Because We Care"

Police curious about sawed-off shotgun

STAFF REPORT

Marion Police Department is trying to find out why a sawed-off shotgun ended up on the bottom of City Lake in Marion.

A couple of local residents found the shotgun Monday shortly after noon and called police.

Officer Jerry Parker was dispatched to the scene where he found a 12-gauge Stevens shotgun, model 94 that had apparently been discarded some time ago and had begun to disintegrate in the water.

"Because the water was so low the two citizens saw the gun and reported it," Parker said. "It was rusted really bad and the barrel was not even attached to the receiver."

Parker ran a check on the gun's serial number, but initial findings have turned up nothing suspicious about the weapon. It had not been reported stolen, but Parker said police will hang onto the shotgun and keep checking.

Police speculate that it may have been used in the commission of a crime and thrown into the lake, however, there is no way of knowing for sure if that's the case.

What would Mom say.

by Allison Mick-Evans
Crittenden Press columnist
allison@the-press.com

Mom's worth

Now proof we are underpaid

Fellow moms, MSN and Survey.com have come to our rescue. A story a few weeks back put a price on our work as stay-at-home moms. Can't decide if it is a comforting discovery or disappointing realization of our inability to obtain wages for our hard work.

If the husbands actually paid for our services, most of the ladies we know would be better off in sweats and house slippers than the miserable heels and smart little suits. Trust me on this one.

The research for the Salary.com story reported that earnings due a stay-at-home mom, based on all of her jobs during the week, would be just shy of $140,000 a year. Too bad it's a "what if." On the other hand, our husbands are probably saying "thank goodness it's a what if."

From the article: The job descriptions that Salary.com used to determine a mom's salary includes 10 jobs that moms do on an average day: – housekeeper, day care center teacher, cook, computer operator, laundry machine operator, janitor, facilities manager, van driver, CEO and psychologist.

It failed to say that oftentimes we need a psychologist to keep our own mental health in check after wrestling all those jobs with kids under foot.

According to the Salary.com survey, stay-at-home moms work a 92-hour week, with more than half the workweek spent in overtime. I'm tired just thinking about it.

Don't feel like you've been under-appreciated if you're not a stay-at-home mom, because Lord knows the working mother comes home to a second job when she tosses her heels aside and slides on those house slippers. The story reports that working women put in an average 49-hour week on top of their regular job.

Can you believe our worth?

Many would say the giggles, grins, grunts, grumbling, hugs, humor, kicks and kisses we get on an hourly basis as moms is a welcome exchange for the big salary.

But just think what we could do with our $138,095 salary. Of course we could travel or worry a little less about finding Jr. a new pair of shoes at a decent price or Sis the jacket she's been eyeing but we're dreading paying for. We could do more for others than we currently do because of financial restraints.

Heck, we could hire a housekeeper, day care center teacher, cook, computer operator, laundry machine operator, janitor, facilities manager, van driver, CEO and psychologist.

Local endowment at MCC in final phase

With over $11,000 in annual revenue, the Crittenden County Endowment for Excellence now offers ten local scholarships to Madisonville Community College each year. MCC officials have dedicated this academic year to reaching the $300,000 goal that was announced in Fall 2005; the project recently received a potentially big boost – as $50,000 in "Bucks for Brains," Commonwealth Workforce Investment funds are now available to match local corporate and individual donations. Madisonville College Foundation member Gareth Hardin sees this as a unique opportunity for Marion as the allocation represents 50 percent of the total amount still needed to reach the overall goal. Only new donations made after July 1 are eligible to be used as matches against the workforce allocation and all eligible cash gifts need to be obtained by April 1, 2009.

"This opportunity should be embraced by our entire community," said Hardin, President of Farmers Bank & Trust. "If we can collectively raise $50,000 over the next several months we will meet our five-year community goal. That means that there will be 13 $1,600 local scholarships each and every year for our friends and children to use to help complete a college degree. Everyone needs to remember that this is a permanent scholarship fund that will always be a part of our county's economic and educational development efforts. It is also a fund not a lot of communities our size can enjoy."

MCC Advancement Director John Peters sees this opportunity as unique, and very time intensive for all of Crittenden County.

"Being a rural county, many times towns like Marion don't have the infrastructure or the luxury of planning time to be able to write for an award as specific as this," Peters said. "A $50,000 award to Crittenden County would be like Henderson or Hopkins County receiving $250,000 when you look at potential applications on a per capita basis. It is up to all of us to see Marion is successful."

For more information, including criteria for making a gift to MCC and scholarship award criteria, contact Peters at 824-8593, or email him at john.peters@kctcs.edu.

Shady Grove graduates Clarice Sandefur, Katherine Reogas and Lucille Roberts recently reunited in Princeton.

Three friends gather, honor 85th birthdays

Three friends and former classmates who graduated from Shady Grove High School in 1942 met at the Express Inn in Princeton on Oct. 9 to celebrate their 85th birthdays in 2008. From left are Clarice (Martin) Sandefur of Fancy Farm, Katherine (Hubbard) Reogas of Muscle Shoals, Ala., and Lucille Roberts of Marion. Roberts went to Lockyear's Business School soon after graduation in Evansville, Ind. and lived and worked for 64 years. After retirement she moved back to Marion.

The three friends report a wonderful time reminiscing about the past and present, with many conversations about how times have changed in the last 66 years. There were 24 students in the women's freshman class, 20 students in sophomore class 13 in their junior class and nine in their senior class. World War II began on Dec. 7, 1941, which the women said took a lot of their pleasures away.

"We survived as everyone did at home and all three of us have had a very good life, still able to live alone and do most of our work," Roberts said. "It was such a happy day getting to be together for a few hours."

SALEM GARDEN CLUB

By Janet Hughes

The October meeting of the Salem Garden Club was held at Edmonds Dreamscapes in Ledbetter. The 10 members and two guests walked on many paths winding through a gardener's heaven. Owner Jeff Edmonds moved back here from Florida a few years ago, and his love for the tropics shows with the banana trees, elephant ears and water features present at his property. He offers a wide variety of plants and loves using unusual items to plant in such as old chairs.

We even viewed an English knot garden behind the garage and a pumpkin graveyard decked out in Halloween style. I heard many members say they had always wanted to stop but didn't because they had their husbands with them. Thanks to Jeff and his wife for a fun tour.

Our Christmas Home Tour is shaping up to be a good one. On Saturday, Dec. 6, you will tour six beautiful homes between Salem and Carrsville including the home of Steve and Kathy Williams of Lola. Steve is CEO of Norton's Health Care in Louisville and they have built a beautiful home on the family farm. His wife Kathy loves to decorate for Christmas and is an avid scrapbooker. Tha' Haus of Bread Puddin in Carrsville is planning on serving a brunch buffet before the tour. Be sure to make it back to Salem for the Lighted Christmas Parade that starts at 5:30 p.m.

If you missed Marty Kaiser's home in September, then make plans to meet there for our next meeting, at 6:30 p.m., Nov 10. Remember we always meet the second Monday of each month. Guests are always welcome. For more information call Janet Hughes at 988-3835.

Relay season officially underway

The American Cancer Society helped kick off Crittenden County's 2009 Relay For Life Oct. 23 at the Marion Baptist Church Family Life Center.

The Relay For Life planning committee cooked spaghetti for all those who attended. Cancer Survivor and Crittenden County resident, Helen Lewis told the crowd about her battle with cancer and why she has been so involved with the American Cancer Society. Later, 2008-2009 Relay For Life chair, Frank Blackburn and co-chair, Sue Padget spoke to the group about the importance of raising money for the American Cancer Society.

The money raised goes toward funding research, advocacy, education and services. Some of those programs includes the transportation program. Those who are battling cancer and need help getting to their treatments can contact the American Cancer Society and apply for financial assistance in the way of transportation. Crittenden County is also home to the only active Road to Recovery program in West Kentucky. Nearly 12 drivers from Crittenden County volunteer their time to drive cancer patients to Paducah for their treatments.

"Now that the Relay For Life season has kicked off for Crittenden County, we are searching for any churches, businesses or individuals who would like to join us in the fight against cancer by starting a Relay For Life team," said Sue Padget, event co-chair.

Relay For Life team captains meet once a month from January through April to learn fundraising ideas, get updates from the American Cancer Society, and stay informed about the events of Relay For Life. Teams of eight-15 people will join together on Friday, May 8, 2009 around the track at Marion City Park to help raise funds and awareness for the fight against cancer at this year's Relay For Life of Crittenden County.

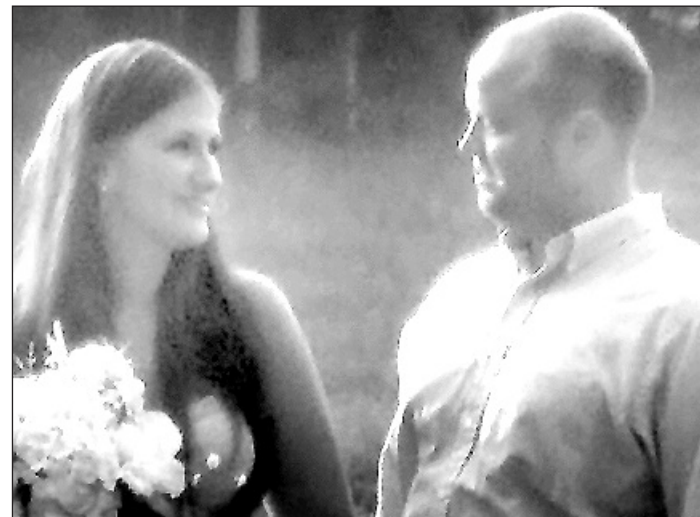

The Relay For Life event represents hope that those lost to cancer will never be forgotten, that those who face cancer will be supported, and that one day cancer will be eliminated. Make a commitment to save lives by taking up the fight.

To become a sponsor, contact Sue Padget at 704-1558 or Frank Blackburn at 704- 1419.

DYCUSBURG & BEYOND

By Tina Cochrum

Saturday was a beautiful day as a few members of Steve Turley's family and a few of his close friends gathered to say our final goodbyes to Steve, who passed away March 6. The ceremony began at the Dycusburg Cemetery where his monument has been placed and ended at the river where "Free Bird" played as our final goodbyes were spoken. It was simple and beautiful, the way Steve wanted it. Steve is fondly remembered and missed greatly by all who loved him.

Amy Crews was honored with a baby shower Saturday afternoon. Amy and Mark are expecting their first baby, a boy due Jan. 9, 2009. Amy received many nice gifts. Amy is the daughter of Dale and Sandy Koon of Martin, Tenn., and the granddaughter of Gary and Sue Bailey.

Home sales rise by largest amount in 5 years

Sales of existing homes rose by the largest amount in more than five years in September, a real estate trade group said Friday. The data is a possible glimmer of hope that the housing slump could be starting to bottom out. The National Association of Realtors said Friday that sales of existing homes rose by 5.5 percent in September compared to August, the best showing since a 5.6 percent increase in July 2003, during the five-year housing boom. Even with the gain in sales, prices kept falling. The median sales price has dropped to $191,600, down by nine percent from a year ago. Inventories of unsold existing homes dropped by 1.6 percent in September to 4.27 million units which would be a 9.9 months supply at the September sales pace, still a historically high level. Lawrence Yun, chief economist for the Realtors, said a sales turnaround first seen in California was beginning to broaden to other regions of the country including Colorado, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri and Rhode Island. He said housing may be starting to find a bottom but the turnaround could be aborted by the near-certainty that the country has fallen into a recession. For that reason, he said it was important for Congress to pass a second stimulus package including measures that would bolster the housing market. The rise in September sales pushed activity to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.18 million units last month. Sales were up 9.6 percent on a year-over-year basis before adjusting for seasonal changes. By region of the country, sales soared by 16.8 percent in the West and rose a more moderate 4.4 percent in the Midwest and 2.2 percent in the South. The only region of the country which saw a decline was the Northeast, where sales fell by 1.1 percent. Housing has been suffering through its worst downturn in decades following a five-year boom that ended in 2006.

Phillips looking for YouTube hits

FFA senior's video could net $6,100

STAFF REPORT
Crittenden County High School senior Colby Phillips needs a little help from Internet browsers.
The FFA student has produced a 55-second video that could earn himself and the local FFA chapter $3,000 apiece.
Phillips, who is secretary of the FFA chapter and a member of the high school's Student Technology Leadership Program (STLP), was approached by FFA advisor Larry Duvall recently about a Kentucky Soybean Association competition.
Duvall knew that his chapter secretary was fairly handy with a video camera and computer software so he challenged Phillips to produce a video for the soybean association's competition.
Phillips shot the footage in Providence and near his home which is close to the Webster County line. He wrote the script, edited the video and recorded the voice over himself.
"It took about eight hours counting video and production," Phillips said. "I used a video camera and tripod from my STLP lab and the software was iDVD on a Mac laptop."

The message behind the video is that farmers continue to keep commodity prices low in order to feed America during a time when production costs are skyrocketing.
As part of the competition, Phillips posted his video on YouTube. His show has already been judged to be among the top 10 in the state. Now, it will be judged according to the views or hits it receives on YouTube.

Phillips has received $100 for being in the top 10, but he has a chance for much bigger bucks. The most viewed video will earn $3,000, the second place video gets $2,000 and the third place gets $1,000. The FFA program also gets matching money.
Duvall said he's working on a campaign at the school to beef up views. The competition runs about three more weeks. As of early this week, Phillips had almost 2,500 views on his video and a slight lead in the competition. A link to the video can be found at The Press Online, www.the-press.com.

Counties eligible for FSA emergency loans

Farmers in three area counties are eligible for federal disaster assistance, including low interest emergency (EM) loans from USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) provided eligibility requirements are met. On Oct. 24, President George Bush amended disaster declaration number M1795 to include 11 additional Indiana counties as disaster areas due to damages and losses caused by severe storms and flooding that occurred from Sept. 12, 2008, through Oct. 6, 2008. As a result of the amendment, three Kentucky counties were named as contiguous counties where eligible family farmers may qualify for FSA EM loan assistance pursuant to Section 321(a) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act. Those counties are: Boone, Daviess, and Henderson. EM loan applications for physical and production losses will be received through June 24, and applications pending on that date may be processed and completed. Farmers interested in applying for assistance should contact their local FSA county office.

No room to run

Crittenden’s defense led by Gaige Courtney (28) and Aaron Berry (53) held Fulton County to just 57 total yards while the Rocket scored 58 points for an easy First District victory at Hickman Friday.

Mission accomplished

Rockets complete perfect sweep of Class A 1st District

It was over by the time it started. Crittenden County, the eighth-ranked team in Class A, took no chances on letting its final First District game turn into anything other than victory, snatching three straight outside kicks to start the game and converting each one into a touchdown.

The Rockets were ahead 23-0 before Fulton County, the league’s last place team, ever touched the ball. The Rockets went on to an easy 58-8 victory and a perfect 4-0 mark in league play.

Crittenden led 51-0 at the half and held Fulton County to just 57 yards total offense.

Crittenden kicker J.R. Adams started off the game with a perfectly executed outside kick as J.D. Gray fell on the ball. Four plays later the Rockets went ahead on quarterback Gray’s eight-yard keeper and they never looked back.

Gray fell on the next two inside kicks and he and Brian Berry rushed for two more touchdowns before Fulton’s offense ever stepped onto the field.

Rocket coach Al Starnes said his team always strives to win all phases of a game: offense, defense and special teams.

“We were taking advantage of what they gave us on special teams,” he said. We wanted to jump on them early so they couldn’t build any confidence during the game. They never adjusted to the outside kicks so we kept using them.

“J.R. Adams is definitely a weapon because he kicks like that.

Gaige Courtney (28) received the game ball at halftime from coach Al Starnes. Courtney became the all-time leading tackler in school history in the first half against Fulton County.

Career Tackle Leaders

Gaige Courtney (2005-present)	301
Wompie Stewart (1982-85)	*297
Blake Gardner (2002-05)	289
Von Summers (1977-80)	256
David Beverly (1994-97)	247

It’s a tough play to defend against,” the coach added.

Crittenden kept the pressure on the hapless Pilots, scoring on all six first-half possessions and once on defense. Linebacker Dyllan Thornton picked up a fumble and ran it back 19 yards for his first career touchdown.

The Rockets went to the bench in the second half and Devin Wallace scored their final touchdown for a 58-0 lead in the third period as the game clock was running continuously – a mercy rule in Kentucky high school football. The second half was even shortened to two 10-minute periods because the game was so lopsided.

Gray ran for three touchdowns and threw for one. He finished with 94 yards on the ground and 98 in the air. Senior tight end Gaige Courtney caught three passes for 81 yards.

Courtney also became the career tackles leader at Crittenden County, surpassing hall of famer Wompie Stewart on the all-time list. Courtney currently has 300 career tackles. From incomplete records available from the 1980s, Stewart was the school leader with 297.

Rocket running back Rodney Robertson, playing for the first time since Week 2 without a cast on his hand, rushed for 90 yards and a touchdown. Robertson broke his hand in the Lone Oak game.

The Rockets had already clinched the district championship and although the Fulton County game had no bearing on the standings or playoff seeding, Crittenden made sure it finished the district slate on a positive note.

The Rockets will be at Caldwell County Friday to close out the regular season in a non-district matchup. After that, Crittenden will host a first round game in the Class A playoffs, likely against Kentucky Country Day.

The series: Caldwell leads the series 31-9 since 1957 when Crittenden consolidated. Prior to that, Marion High was 11-19-1 against Princeton. Game Notes: Crittenden is 5-0 in Week 10 games after starting the season 7-2. Coach Starnes is 4-0 in Week 10 games after starting 7-2. FALL SPORTS ROUNDUPS

5th & 6th win first game in post-season jamboree

The fifth- and sixth-grade Junior Pro Rockets jumped out on top of Morganfield and never looked back en route to a 28-6 opening round victory in the postseason jamboree Saturday at Rocket Stadium.

Crittenden's stingy defense held Morganfield in check for the entire game. The Crittenden offense was clicking, too, putting together four scoring drives, despite three turnovers.

The coaching staff felt that the win was in large part due to the team coming together and playing with heart and determination, led by an outstanding effort from the sixth graders.

Colby Watson caught a 51 yard pass from Matthew Hassett for the first score. Noah Dickerson hauled in an eighty-yard touchdown pass from Hassett and Dickerson also rushed for a short score. Dakota Stone also rushed for a 15-yard touchdown.

Rushing Dakota Stone 11-110, Cole Easley 9-31, Colby Watson 2-23, Matt Hassett 5-(-10), Noah Dickerson 4-2.

Passing Matt Hassett 4-8-2, 69 yds.

Crittenden eliminated from playoffs by No. 1

Caldwell County's Vegas Gold delivered the knockout punch early against Crittenden's fifth and sixth graders in the second round of the playoffs at Marion. That Caldwell team was the No. 1 seed in the tournament and the eventual champion.

Vegas Gold scored early and often en route to a 44-8 victory in the semifinal round. Caldwell dominated the game, but Crittenden did manage a touchdown when Dickerson found the end zone on a one-yard run. Hassett threw a conversion pass to Watson to finish the Rocket scoring.

Rushing Noah Dickerson 18-84, Matt Hassett 8-36, Colby Watson 4-32, Cole Easley 8-25.

Passing Matt Hassett 2-6-2, 25 yds., Noah Dickerson 0-1.

Receiving Michael Hassett 1-15, Dickerson 1-10.

Tackles Easley 8 (1 TFL), Lane Wallace 5 (1 TFL), Dickerson 4, Watson 3, Dakota Stone 2, Dylan Hollis 2 (1 TFL), Logan Shuecraft 2, Austin Sitar 2, Chase Young 1, Matt Hassett 1, Chase Dempsey 1.

3rd & 4th out early

Crittenden's third- and fourth-grade football players lost their opening round game 40-14 against Caldwell County's Vegas Gold club.

The Morganfield Wildcats were the eventual post-season champion in that league.

Crittenden's Ethan Hunt rushed for a team-high 69 yards and one touchdown while Noah Sallin scored the Rockets' only other TD on a 26-yard pass from Paxton Riley. With that loss, Crittenden was eliminated from the jamboree.

Rushing E.Hunt 4-69, A.Beavers 5-2, P.Riley 5-(-19), T. Champion 1-(-8), T. Young 2-5, C.Belt 1-6, C.Colyer 1-1.

Receiving N.Sallin 1-26, T.Champion 1-0.

Junior pros close out regular season with wins over Webster

Crittenden County's Junior Pro football teams closed out their regular seasons with a pair of wins Tuesday, Oct. 21.

The third- and fourth-grade team picked up its first win of the season, beating Webster County 6-2. Paxton Riley scored the game's only touchdown on a 40-yard run.

In the fifth- and sixth-grade game, Crittenden beat Webster County easily, 36-14.

The fifth and sixth graders controlled the tempo of their game from its outset. Crittenden scored on its first two possessions to lead 14-0 at halftime. The second half was more of the same and Crittenden led 36-0 at one point.

Webster scored two late touchdowns to make the score more respectable.

Noah Dickerson scored three times for Crittenden, Dakota Stone rushed for a touchdown and Matthew Hassett threw a touchdown pass to Colby Watson.

Rushing Noah Dickerson 5-101; Dakota Stone 4-75, Cole Easley 5-15, Colby Watson 1-9.

Passing Matthew Hassett 1-for-2, 47 yds.

Receiving Colby Watson 1-47.

Tackles Lane Wallace 11, Dakota Stone 9, Noah Dickerson 8, Cole Easley 7, Travis McKinney 5, Dylan Hollis 4, Claude Brown 4, Chase Dempsey 3, Gary McConnell 2, Michael Hassett 1, Jesse Belt 1, Colby Watson 1, Logan Shuecraft 1, Chase Young 1, Josh Hardin 1, Austin Sitar 1 (1 fumble recovery).

3rd & 4th wins first

The third and fourth graders got ahead early then relied on a tough defense to seal the deal. Riley's 40-yard TD came on a broken play as the quarterback raced to the end zone.

Webster never threatened offensively, but did get a second-half safety on a third-down-and-48 play for the Rockets.

Rushing E.Hunt 1-1, A.Beavers 3-(-10), P. Riley 13-16, R.Crider 1-(-5), B.Brown 3-18.

Reds go undefeated

The Red Racing Flames went undefeated in U-6 soccer league action this season. The Reds beat the Green Giants 10-0 Monday to close out the season. The Yellow Jackets play the Green Giants Thursday to end the league schedule. Games are played at Marion-Crittenden County Park.

In Monday's game, Hayden Jones scored six goals, Kalli Champion had three and Gracie Driskill scored one.

MS soccer boys finish season with 4-5-1 mark

The Crittenden County Soccer Association's middle school team split its last two games of the season and finished play with a 4-5-1 record.

On Oct. 20, Crittenden fought hard against league-leader Sebree and ended regulation in a scoreless tie. Unfortunately, the boys in blue lost the shootout. The whole team played its best game of the year, holding the league champion scoreless throughout the match. Crittenden came very close to scoring on many opportunities, but could not capitalize in regulation.

On Saturday, Crittenden bounced back to defeat Union County YMCA 2-1.

Ian Cartwright scored the first goal, heading the ball over the goalie and into the net. In the second half, Cameron Mc-Daniel scored the final goal with an assist from Hayden McConnell.

Union County rallied late to close to within one goal, but Crittenden's defense prevailed.

The team improved greatly as the season progressed, coach Greg Hollamon said.

Allen Crider and Kristy Haire listen Tuesday evening at the Ed-Tech Center in Marion to Aimee Wilkerson explain some of the benefits offered by Madisonville Community College to soon-to-be unemployed workers from Rayloc in Morganfield. Haire and Crider were two of 13 Rayloc employees from Marion at Tuesday's information fair at the Ed-Tech Center. By Friday, Rayloc will have completed its layoff of nearly 500 workers from its Morganfield plant. About 100 of those laborers are residents of Crittenden County. For those wanting more information on educational and training opportunities available to recently-unemployed workers, contact Dulcie Hardin at the Ed-Tech Center at 965-9294.

GRADD offers assistance to former Rayloc workers

The Green River Area Development District is planning several upcoming meetings to assist employees affected by layoffs at Rayloc's Morganfield plant. Employees are invited to attend one of the following brief informational sessions to complete the forms required to receive Trade Program benefits:

- Nov. 6, 10 a.m., at Union County Fair and Expo Convention Center;
- Nov. 6, 2 p.m., Union County Fair and Expo Convention Center;
- Nov. 7, 10 a.m., Union County Senior Citizens Center; and
- Nov. 7, 2 p.m., Union County Senior Citizens Center;

The Union County Fair and Expo Convention Center is located inside the airport entrance off U.S. 60 West in Sturgis and the Union County Senior Citizens Center is located at 227 N. Richards Lane in Morganfield.

It is important for former workers to understand the benefits available through the Trade Program, as well as their responsibilities to obtain the benefits. Orientation to receive trade training benefits will be available at this time for those interested in career training. Eligibility for Trade Program benefits is time sensitive.

If you have any questions, please call Michelle Drake at 685-0210.

Madisonville offers class for prospective miners

The Ed-Tech Center in Marion, through Madisonville Community College, will be offering an Elements of Underground and Surface Mining class early next year. After completion of the class and upon passing the test, the student will receive an Inexperienced Miner Card which is a prerequisite for getting hired at a coal mine.

The lecture part of the class will take place at the Ed-Tech Center on Mondays, Tuesdays, and Wednesdays, from 5 to 9 p.m., beginning on Jan. 12 and ending Feb. 4. The lab portion of the class on Thursdays will take place at Madisonville Community College beginning on Jan. 15 and will end on Feb. 5. The lab involves hands-on training on coal mining equipment simulators.

There is a scholarship of $1,000 available for each student who enrolls in the class – making the class free. Completion of the class results in four hours of college credit.

Prior to taking the final test for the Miner Card, the student will have to successfully pass a drug test. The drug test is $35.50 and is the responsibility of the student.

Forms are available at the Ed-Tech Center. For more information, contact Dulcie Hardin at 965-9294, ext. 103.

Fee added to tax payments by credit card

STAFF REPORT
For the first time, the county is accepting credit and debit cards from taxpayers settling up on their 2008 tax bills. It's a convenience that local officials had wanted to offer for several years. However, there is one catch and Sheriff Wayne Agent, the county tax collector, says taxpayers should be aware that all fees and charges generally absorbed by the merchant will be transferred to the taxpayer.

By regulation, the county may not absorb credit or debit card fees. The taxpayer will be responsible for those charges, which are posted against their credit or bank account as a convenience charge.

Generally, when a consumer uses a credit or debit card, his or her bank and/or the merchant pick up the fees associated with using the card. That's not so when dealing with a government agency.

When a taxpayer uses a Visa, MasterCard or Discover credit card, he can expect a 2.5 percent on the transaction, plus a 50-cent flat fee. American Express cards charge a 3.5-percent fee plus 50 cents. Debit card users can expect a flat $2 fee.

Sheriff Agent said those fees are subject to change at any time.
