

New construction on South Main

There is some work going on on South Main Street between Conrad's and Marion Pit Barbecue. Tommy Paulson, a local message therapist, is building a new shop.

Family Courtroom

Over the past week, Crittenden County Fiscal Court's meeting room on the main floor of the courthouse has been fitted with cameras and other devices that will allow that space to be used as a backup courtroom for family court hearings or other proceedings. The Administrative Office of the Courts had explored a variety of options over the past few months and settled on the meeting room next to the judge-executive's office as its best location in case of scheduling or accessibility conflicts with the primary courtroom upstairs at the courthouse.

Trick or Treat on Marion Main St.

Trick or Treat on Main has become an anticipated annual event each year in our community. Marion Main Street, Inc., offers this event to children 12 and under. There is a great safety aspect that goes along with this event. Children can trick or treat in the daylight hours and receive treats from businesses that we all know and trust. Marion Main Street Director Susan Alexander works with the downtown merchants and other offices, organizing the candy offerings. This year's event will be from 3:30 to 5 p.m., on Friday, Oct. 30 in downtown Marion. Participating businesses will have a flyer posted in their window or on their front door.

Correction

The Sophomore Class won the recent football homecoming parade float competition, not the seniors as was previously reported.

Standing in the loft opening of David Sisco's barn just off U.S. 641 in Crayne is a goat. She is one of two nanny goats Sisco has on his farm, and they have become celebrities as passersby often rubber-neck to see if one is in the window. Sisco says he wishes he had a dime for every time someone stopped to take their picture.

Nameless Nannies get motorists' Goat

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS PUBLISHER

She's nameless, but certainly not anonymous.

The goat that resides south of Marion and watches traffic from a barn loft has become quite an attraction for admiring motorists who have often wondered if it was a real critter or a posed fake.

She's real, and in fact, there are two of them.

Generally just one is seen watching almost intently from the lofty barn perch.

They fend for themselves on a hillside just south of Crayne, living an uninhibited lifestyle, simply grazing and loafing the day and nights away. They would be unacknowledged creatures like most other goats were it not for their odd preoccupation with counting traffic on the nearby highway from a second-story window.

"They've become famous just sitting up there watching the world go by," said their owner, David Sisco, who farms on both sides of the highway where he and the goats reside.

Sisco says the pair of nannies is known far and wide. They're a social media sensation, appearing at various times on Facebook and other Web sites.

"Besides the Facebook thing, they have been in pictures that have won awards in statewide competitions," Sisco said with a chuckle.

There once were 90 goats living on the hillside near Sisco's red barn, but he didn't see much future in that particular livestock enterprise, so he sold all except two about eight years ago.

"My daughter Hailey said those two goats were born on this farm and she wanted to keep them here," recalled Sisco.

He said the goats climb

Sometimes she stands, sometimes she sits, leisurely watching traffic pass on nearby U.S. Highway 641.

into the loft up a stairwell inside the barn and sit in the window quite frequently.

"I guess they're like mountain goats," he said, "they like to be in high places."

For a long time, people in the area believed the goat in the window was a fake.

Sisco said countless folks have stopped and asked if they can take pictures of them. Others just brake in the roadway to watch.

MODELED AFTER LATE-NIGHT TALK SHOWS

Keene featured at CAF event at Fohs

STAFF REPORT

When Katie Keene returns to Fohs Hall on Sunday afternoon Oct. 25, it will be as though she's a guest on The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon.

Community Arts Foundation (CAF) will host an event to celebrate the Marion native's budding Hollywood career. The format will be just like the late-night talk shows that often have Hollywood guests seated next to the show's host. Keene will be the only guest and will discuss her career as an actress.

"It's going to be fun," said Phyllis Sykes, one of the organizers.

Sykes said Keene, 28, cut her teeth as a Free dumping this weekend

Before cold weather sets in, Crittenden County is giving residents an opportunity to dispose of junk for free.

The convenience center on U.S. 60 East will be open 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m. to noon Saturday to accept those things you no longer want hanging around the house or cluttering up your garage. That includes things like furniture and appliances.

Neither tires nor items with sensitive environmental concerns will be accepted. Disposal of normal household garbage will still require the normal fee. For more information, call (270) 965-5251.

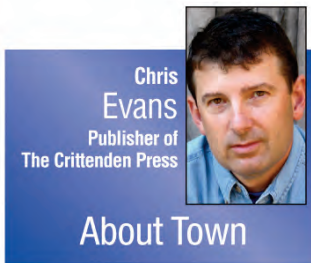

Flight inspections reflect airport's worth

Later this month Par 4 Plastics will celebrate its 25th year as a Marion manufacturing facility.

The company's growth has been remarkable considering its foundation has risen from the ground up with local entrepreneurship, local leadership and a local workforce.

Before we celebrate the company's silver anniversary let's take a look at how Par 4 was enabled recently – with help from others in the community and the airport – to meet a critical production deadline.

Many of you know that Marion-Crittenden County

Airport is a state-of-the-art facility for such a small town. Airport Board Chairman Jim Johnson and the dedicated folks who have served on its board the last two decades are to be applauded for the resourceful spirit employed in leveraging federal aviation funds to morph the once grass airstrip into a functional thoroughfare of commercial and private air traffic.

The airport has received about $6 million over the last dozen years or so and there is another project going on there right now – the addition of another 10,000-square-foot hangar with about $650,000 in grant funds being used for construction. There is a waiting list for aircraft storage space right now.

Don't take this the wrong way, but national news organizations once made a big story out of the fact that little Marion was able to secure so much FFA money to build an airport capable of serving small jet planes.

How'd Marion do it? Resourcefulness.

In the same spirit of ingenious and enterprise, Par 4 recently met a strict deadline, assuring that one of its valued customers didn't miss a beat in the automaking industry.

The local injection plastic molding company manufactures parts for a number of automakers, including Toyota.

Oh! Deer

Best time to get a buck is right now

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County is known far and wide for its deer hunting opportunities, and perhaps the best place to get one of these "not-always-so-elusive" creatures is along any of the county's roadways.

While this county generally ranks among the top white-tail harvest areas in Kentucky, local Farm Bureau Insurance agent Larry Davidson says it also has the dubious honor of being a place where drivers are very likely to crash into an animal and cause thousands of dollars in damage to their vehicle. Sometimes they might even be injured.

"A few years ago, we had the most Farm Bureau claims of any county in the state," Davidson said, pointing to reports for insured drivers who had run into a deer with their car or truck.

According to traffic statistics developed by State Farm Insurance, the likelihood of hitting a deer with your vehicle in Kentucky is 1 in 107. Kentucky ranks as the 14th most likely place in the United States where drivers will crash into a large game animal.

Tanner Tabor with YTG Insurance Agency in Marion admits he's crashed his vehicle into two deer. The local agent knows how easy it is to be a victim of "deer season."

"The two I hit were in the month of October," he said. "Around dark, they seem to be more active and that's when these things seem to happen."

According to transportation data gathered by insurance companies and safety officials, November is the month Kentuckians are most likely to meet up with a deer on the road. October is second and December is the third most likely month to run into a whitetail.

And studies also confirm Tabor's observations. Kentucky State Police data show that between 5 p.m., and 7 p.m., your risk is much higher than at any

School district excels in climate less than suitable for success

This idea of turning the tables on schools and giving them a grade for how they perform might seem a bit lame for the oldest members of our community. Back when they and their parents were children and attended one-room schools around the countryside, all teachers cared about educating children and did their jobs with energy and enthusiasm, or else they were fired on the spot by the parents who pooled their resources to hire them. There was no appeal process.

Over the years, things changed. Tenure, hyper-state-sponsored education, collective bargaining and a growing educational bureaucracy turned the tide, giving those at the chalkboards less reason to meet the needs of students and their parents.

It took the better part of a century for education in Kentucky to dip so low that reform was necessary. In the final decade of the last century, changes were put into place – some good, some less than desirable. Nonetheless, a movement began that turned accountability toward educators.

We can't say that things are like they used to be. Indeed, education has changed remarkably over the past 100 years. While we may long for simpler times and the intimate relationships born of the earlier system, there's no turning back. Education today is a state-sponsored behemoth that is making a renewed effort to meet the needs of every single student. The cost of that is high.

What's rewarding for students and parents is that there is a scoring system in place now that allows consumers of education to see what they're getting for their tax dollar. Granny would say that comparative shopping always benefits the consumer.

We applaud the leadership, teachers, students and parents that make up the Crittenden County School System. Their cooperative efforts are pushing the bar higher and higher despite circumstances that could provide a crutch or excuses to accept something far less. In a small, rural corner of Kentucky, it's not easy to keep up with the arguably more fortunate, richer school districts. But we are. It's not easy feeding, clothing, encouraging, challenging and providing for the emotional well-being of every kid in the community, but we are. It's not easy trying to see that every graduate goes off to college or vocational school, but we are.

The latest scores measuring Crittenden County School District, compared to others in Kentucky, are remarkable. To have a "High Progress" high school in a low-progress economic environment is no less a miracle than turning water into wine. We must marvel at the ability of Crittenden County School District to be among the top 14 percent of those in the commonwealth. We must ask ourselves, where else, as a community, can we claim such success?

The Crittenden County High School competition marching band has garnered four straight top four finishes in events this season. The band was third at Ohio County and fourth at Graves County in competitions last month. In October, it's been even better. The band finished second in comeptitions at Christian and Caldwell counties. It will be at Hopkinsville for an event Saturday then the state competition season starts with regionals Oct. 24 at Hopkinsville and the state preliminaries and finals Oct. 31 at Russellville and Bowling Green.

(aka Toyota Production System) is a methodology born from its Japanese roots. It centers around reducing flow times within production as well as response times from suppliers. The demands on supplies like Par 4 are great. The expectation is to meet all deadlines, or else. No excuses.

So when a tooling assembly on a Par 4 manufacturing line broke with only a few hours to spare before its shipping deadline, the company had to move quickly to repair the machine and return to production. Missing a shipment could have cost Par 4 dearly on this particular part, which was a seat belt shield for a Toyota van. It might even jeopardize other product lines. So the company wasn't taking any chances. It pulled out all of the stops.

The part was rushed to Henderson by a company vehicle, where it was repaired. However, some detailed work had to be done at another facility much farther away. An area pilot offered to help get the tooling device off the ground and back in order to help Par 4. A few hours later, a Par 4 van was waiting near the runway to grab the new piece and get it back to the production line. Within minutes of it landing, the tool was back in action pumping out parts for Toyota.

It was literally just in time, said Par 4 President Tim Capps.

"It was that critical," he said.

"Toyota charges a penalty if you miss a deadline."

Capps said Par 4 has not missed a Toyota deadline in its 25 years of existence and it wasn't about to start this time.

"It was down to the wire, but we knew we couldn't let Toyota's line shut down for even a minute," Capps said. "It's nice that we have this airport. If not, we may not have made it."

There is another fascinating story that involved a local manufacturing facility and the airport. It was about two years that a train accident in Quebec killed 47 people. There was a major investigation about the cause of the crash.

The train was equipped with a "black box" like those used on aircraft. In the hours after the disaster, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer and another investigator flew into Marion's airport with the "black box." It was rushed over to Siemens, which has the expertise to decode such a device. Data was retrieved and translated for investigators and the box and the knowledge they gleaned from Marion's Siemens plant was flown back to Canada.

According to the latest data available from the FAA, Marion's airport traffic includes just over 100 flights per week with local general aviation constituting the majority of the flights – about 33 percent. The number of commercial flights in and out of Marion are increasing.

Johnson, the airport board chairman, says more up-to-date flight figures will be released soon, and he projects a higher frequency of usage at the local airport.

Hangar expansion is under way at the Marion-Crittenden County Airport. Construction should be complete by Dec. 1. The project cost is $650,000. The airport has a waiting list right now for hangar space. Once the new building is open, there will be a couple of slots available.

other time of the day or night. More than 25 percent of the car vs. deer collisions occur during that two-hour time frame.

"Farm Bureau had 66 claims in Crittenden County last year," said Davidson, the local KFB insurance representative.

Those claims amounted to payouts of $209,000 in repair bills, Davidson added.

"And that's just our agency. Of course the other agencies had claims, too," he said.

Mayor attends training focused on governing

Marion Mayor Mickey Alexander and more than 100 city officials from across the state were recognized for their educational achievement during the City Officials Training Center (COTC) Awards Program at the 2015 KLC Conference & Expo Oct. 2.

The annual conference drew in nearly 600 city officials and leaders from across the commonwealth.

The City Officials Training Center is a voluntary education program administered by the Kentucky League of Cities (KLC). City officials can complete education levels by attending KLC events and by submitting outside training credit from other municipal training. There are three levels of achievement:

- Level I- Achievement in City Governance
- Level II- Excellence in City Governance
- Level III- Masters of City Governance

To maintain the masters, an additional 15 hours of courses must be completed annually.

“The COTC program provides a variety of training that better equips our city leaders across the state to serve their local communities. With this achievement and the amount of training it represents, citizens are the real winners because our communities are reaping the benefits of better informed leaders,” said J.D. Chaney, KLC deputy executive director. “This is an impressive feat and a testament to the dedication of these city officials.”

This year 80 city officials received the Level III- Master’s in City Governance award. This honor requires the city official to attend 30 hours of approved training with one hour of ethics training.

Couple gets 180 days in child abuse case

STAFF REPORT

A Marion couple charged in July with abusing their 10-week-old child have entered an Alford plea to the crime and were sentenced last week in Crittenden Circuit Court to five years in prison. However, the two will serve only about 90 more days before being eligible for shock probation.

Under a plea agreement, the commonwealth does not oppose shock probation after the couple, Bradley McClain, 30, and Sarah Elizabeth Rushin, 26, has served 180 days behind bars. They were given credit for time served. The two have been jailed since their arrest July 12.

McClain and Rushin, appearing before Circuit Judge Rene Williams last Thursday, entered Alford pleas, which means they do not admit guilt but recognize that enough evidence exists for the state to push for a conviction. The plea is considered by the court similarly to a guilty plea.

McClain, who is reportedly the child’s father, and Rushin, the mother, were originally charged with neglecting the 10-week-old to the point that he was hospitalized for several days and reportedly near death when police and social workers intervened on July 3. They were charged with first-degree criminal abuse of a child 12 or under, a Class C felony. Under a plea agreement, they pleaded to a lesser charge of second-degree abuse of a child 12 or under, a Class D felony.

If their appeal for shock probation is approved in about three months, the two will remain on felony probation for the balance of their five-year sentence.

The child has been in the custody of relatives. As part of the couple’s probation, they must strictly adhere to any decisions made in Family Court involving the care and custody of the child. Family Court matters are private.

According to previous court testimony by Marion Police Officer George Foster during a preliminary hearing on the matter, the child was six pounds, six ounces when weighed at the hospital on July 3. Foster said that according to his investigation, the child had weighed seven pounds, two ounces at birth.

In other proceedings before the court last week:

•Judge Williams formally sentenced Christopher A. Copeland, 25, of Murray, formerly of Marion, on rape and sodomy charges. He pleaded guilty last month to sexually abusing a girl under the age 12 while he was living in Marion in 2010 to 2012. He was indicted in July 2014.

The charges had come to light last year after a report from a Crittenden County School counselor was made at Marion Police Department. The victim had confided in the counselor, telling the school employee what had happened years earlier.

Based on a recommendation by the commonwealth’s prosecutor, Judge Williams ordered Copeland to prison for a term of 20 years. He received a 10-year sentence for first-degree rape of a victim less than 12 years old, a Class A felony; and a 10-year sentence for first-degree sexual abuse of a victim under 12 years old, a Class C felony. The sentences will run concurrently.

Because rape is considered a violent crime, Copeland will have to serve 85 percent of his sentence before being considered for parole. In addition to the prison sentence, the judge ordered Copeland register as a sex offender for the rest of his life and to have five years of post-incarceration supervision following his release from prison.

•Another Marion man, Roy L. Fulks, 50, was sentenced to one-year in prison for sexual abuse of a 16-year-old female. He pleaded guilty last month to the crime which occurred prior to June 1, 2014.

Fulks will face another five years of post-incarceration supervision once he is released from prison and he will have to register as a sex offender.

•James E. Todd Jr., 36, of Marion was sentenced to a year in prison for receiving stolen property (under $10,000) by complicity, a Class D felony. Todd was involved in the theft of bridge steel and other materials from a county storage lot last fall. Other co-defendants have either pleaded guilty in the case or their cases remain active.

•Judge Williams revoked the probation of Brandon Stinnett, 35, of Marion who had been participating in the Drug Court Program. Stinnett was terminated from the program, which was essential to his probation. The judge ordered him to complete a five-year robbery sentence that dates back to 2012.

•Four cases were heard on the Rocket Docket, a fast-track system that skips a number of court proceedings in order to finalize a case more rapidly. Defendants must agree to the Rocket Docket process, which provides a quicker disposition in their case, and sometimes a more palatable sentence or diversion.

All four individuals before Judge Williams last week on the Rocket Docket were given pre-trial diversion. Felony diversion guidelines are very similar to probation, but if the defendant successfully completes the requirements during the diversionary period, the felony charge is dropped and does not go on the individual’s permanent criminal record.

Two individuals were sentenced to five years for flagrant non-support. They were Kaitlyn Ralff Baker, 24, of Marion and Michael Paul Martin, 21, of Marion. Both were given pre-trial diversion.

Kartina Hazel, 38, of Marion was given diversion for a charge of first-degree trafficking in a controlled substance. The five-year sentenced was diverted for five years.

Andy Walton, 54, of Marion was given diversion for a charge of cultivating marijuana, five or more plants. His two-year sentence was diverted for three years.

T.O.N.Ez has a role in the independent film and was in Madisonville last spring for filming. Tickets to the premier will be available at the door at Byrnes Auditorium in Madisonville. Doors open at 6 p.m., and the movie begins at 7 p.m. Admission is $10, which includes a DVD of the movie. Evansville, Henderson newspapers are sold

The Evansville and Henderson newspapers have sold to the Gannett newspaper group. The sale, which will be final in early 2016, was announced last week and includes the two daily newspapers and other holdings of Journal Media Group, including the Morganfield weekly newspaper. Ganett, which serves more than 100 media markets in the United States, also owns the Louisville Courier-Journal. Ganett’s flagship newspaper is the Virginia-based USA Today.

Morganfield doctor is arrested for pot plants

A Morganfield doctor was arrested last week and charged with cultivating marijuana. According to Henderson and Evansville area newsgathering agencies, Dr. William Bebout was arrested after an investigation that involved his estranged wife leading police to his residence on Main Street where they found fewer than five pot plants. He was charged with possession of marijuana and cultivation. Dr. Bebout sees patients at Deaconess Clinic in Morganfield.

Firemen called to mobile home blaze

Volunteer firemen from Crittenden County Fire Department spent more than two hours Friday working to extinguish a mobile home blaze on Sulphur Springs Road in the rural southern portion of the county. No one was home at the time of the fire and no on was injured. The trailer was totally engulfed in flames when firemen arrived. The mobile home belonged to Larry Tabor.

Local horse positive for West Nile Virus

The Kentucky State Veterinarian's office announced Oct. 9 that a horse from Crittenden County has tested positive for West Nile virus (WNV), bringing the commonwealth's total for the year to eight. In a statement, Kentucky Equine Programs manager E.S. "Rusty" Ford said the Crittenden horse is an eight-year-old Haflinger with an unknown WNV vaccination history. The mare is in stable condition. The identity of its owner was not made public. In 2014 Kentucky confirmed four cases of WNV in horses on four premises.

Livingston MS credited with better kid health

A dozen Kentucky schools that participate in the Healthy Schools Program, including Livingston County Middle School (LCMS), have been recognized for creating a culture of health and wellness in their classrooms, according to WKMS, Murray State University's radio station. This is the first time so many Kentucky schools have made the list in the same year and they are all first-time recipients, Healthy Schools Project Manager Jacy Wooley told the radio station. The Healthy Schools Program, part of the Alliance for a Healthier Generation, presented LCMS with the National Healthy Schools Award for "promoting the benefits of a healthy diet and physical activity to students and staff," reports WKMS. Pride Elementary was the only other school in the region to receive the recognition. This nonprofit program is the nation's most extensive effort to prevent childhood obesity in schools, with more than 30,000 schools, including all three in Crittenden County, participating in the program, according to its website. Kentucky ranks eighth for childhood obesity, with 19.7 percent of its 10-to-17-year-olds obese, according to the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation.

Now That’s a Treasure

Allison Ball, GOP candidate for Kentucky Treasurer, made a campaign stop in Marion last week and while here she took a tour of the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum. Ball, a Prestonsburg attorney, said she grew up in coal country in eastern Kentucky and was fascinated by geology and particularly the mineral collection at the Marion museum. Pictured with Ball are (left) Fred Stubblefield, vice chairman of the Crittenden County Republican Party, and Asa James Swan, a campaign assistant who happens to Ball’s boyfriend.

STAFF REPORT
The Crittenden County Grand Jury met last week and indicted two individuals. A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence. It simply determines whether enough evidence exists to continue prosecuting a case as a felony in circuit court. Indicted last Thursday were: •Richard Tyler Hinchee, 29, of Marion on a charge of tampering with physical evidence by complicity. According to court records, Hinchee is alleged to have on April 28 destroyed prescription medication, knowing the said medication would be used in a later criminal proceeding. •Deloris L. Johnson, 42, of Salem was indicted on 52 counts of forgery and one count of theft by failure to make required disposition (under $500). Court records allege that Johnson, while working at the Law Office of Karen Woodall, forged $11,982.85 on 52 checks against the attorney's escrow and business accounts, and also failed to make the full deposit after client made a payment at the lawyer's office. Kentucky State Police Trooper Ben Sawyer investigated the allegations and filed the charges.

Churches integral part of county’s history

Churches have always been an important part of our history. Worship services had been going on for several years before we separated from Livingston County and became Crittenden County. From the archives of The Crittenden Press, we learn of the first Sunday school convention held in Crittenden County. Rev. James F. Price was there and shared the following history with The Press.

June 7, 1888
This account comes from “History of the Kentucky Sunday School Union in Crittenden County, by James F. Price.
One of the first Sunday school mass meetings in Crittenden County was a denominational mass meeting held at Piney Fork Church about 1875 or 1876. The schools were represented as classes, and each class sang by itself. The next meeting of this kind was held at Bethel Church in 1879. It was called a Sunday School Celebration and was non-denominational.

The excellent music made by the respective classes elicited quite an interest in Sunday school music and also in attendance at these meetings.

The next one was held at Union Church in the summer of 1880, and was very successful. These meetings were prior to any organization of the Kentucky Sunday School Union in this county.

The next meeting of this kind was held at Piney Fork Church in the fall of 1880. Prior to this meeting, Rev. G.W. Crumbaugh had attended the meeting of the state convention at Elizabethtown and had been appointed vice president of this county.

At the meeting at Piney Fork, which was a very enthusiastic and full meeting, Rev. Crumbaugh stated the relation in which he stood to the county as the representative of the Kentucky Sunday School Union, and the name of the bi-annual meetings were changed from Celebration to Convention.

This was the origin of the organization of the Kentucky Sunday School Union in Crittenden County.

The next convention was held at Chapel Hill in the spring of 1881. Both of these meetings were largely attended and full of interest.

At the Hurricane Convention, the county was divided into four districts and a district superintendent appointed for each. This districting the county is due to the efforts of Uncle Wesley Minner.

The next convention was appointed for Marion, but for a want of cooperation, the convention was not held.

When Bro. Crumbaugh left the county, he had Bro. P.H. Woods appointed vice president, who after a few months service recommended me to the state secretary. I received my appointment about Aug. 1, 1882.

The next convention was held at Crooked Creek Church in the fall of 1883. The county was now reported in the minutes of the state convention as a banner county – this is, completely organized. This organization had been perfected at Hurricane two years before.

The next convention was held at Lily Dale in the fall of 1884, and was one of the fullest conventions we have ever held, about 1,500 persons present.

In the fall of 1886, the convention was held at the Lead Mines, and was marked for its earnest work and enthusiasm.

The last convention was held at Chapel Hill in the summer of 1887. It was well attended and productive of much good.

Church histories

Following are some brief beginning histories of our earliest churches in the county that are still having services:

- 1810: Union Baptist Church was organized in 1810. The first Baptist church in what is now Crittenden County, came out from the Old Salem Baptist Church. The records of Union Baptist Church began in 1835. Records prior to 1835 were burned in the house of Peyton Hodge, the church clerk. The first church building was log with a puncheon floor and rib pole, clapboard weighted roof.

- 1812: Piney Fork Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Differences of opinion about attending camp meetings led John Travis and others of the Bethany congregation to withdraw from that church and organize the Piney Fork Cumberland Presbyterian Church, which was the first “Cumberland” church organized in Kentucky. The Rev. Finis Ewing completed the organization in early in 1812. The first church was built of logs near the center of what is now the cemetery soon after the organization of the church.

- 1823: Deer Creek Baptist Church organized and had their first services in 1823. The first Deer Creek Church was built in 1823 of logs. It had split logs for seats and one window for light. It was located near a little stream called Deer Creek about a mile from the present building.

- 1835: Crooked Creek Baptist Church. In 1835, a group of believers was inspired to organize a New Testament church which was to be known as the Crooked Creek United Baptist Church. The location was purchased from the Southern Presbyterians. Originally, it consisted of a primitive log house and a few acres of ground. This first log house was destroyed during the Civil War.

- 1840: Sugar Grove Cumberland Presbyterian Church was organized in 1840, chiefly through the efforts and influence of Rev. William C. Love. The charter members were principally from Piney Fork Cumberland Presbyterian Church, who found it inconvenient to attend services because of distance and bad roads. The first work of this organization was to build a neat log cabin for worship. It was located on Phillips Branch of Piney Creek in a grove of large Sugar Maples near a beautiful spring.

- 1843: Hurricane Methodist Church. The Hurricane class was first organized at the home of Rev. R.C. Love’s grandfather. A traveling preacher organized the class. In those days, we did not have the advantage of our preachers in charge as we have them now. The first deed for the church land was given by Richard Minner, June 20, 1843, to the trustees of Hurricane class and their successors. The original church building was a log structure with a chimney and huge fireplace at each end, the pews being made from split logs with legs of wooden pegs.

- 1844: Shady Grove Baptist. The 19th century founders met in a grove of trees near Piney Fork Creek and organized a presbytery, appointed an elder and a moderator. The following day, they set the time and date for the first service – May 25, 1844. The original church was called Clear Spring Church. Times changed dramatically over the years, and the original log structure of Clear Spring Church burned. It was rebuilt in 1921 and the name was changed to Shady Grove Missionary Baptist Church.

- 1844: Caldwell Springs Missionary Baptist Church. Nestled in a peaceful little valley, surrounded by hills and trees sits Caldwell Springs Baptist Church. Nearby is the spring from which the church was named. The church was organized in 1844 by a group of Christians from New Bethel Baptist Church in Lyon County.

- 1847: Enon General Baptist. The church was organized March 6, 1847, in the Old Enon Meeting House then located southeast of the Babb Graveyard. This location was near what is now Ky. 120. The original log structure was used as both church and school.

- Early 1800s: Seven Springs Baptist Church. Although records of the time and exact location of the beginning of this church are not available, it is a known fact that it is one of the older churches in the county, dating back into the 1800s. The original location was on Claylick Creek, near the Cumberland River, and close to Seven Springs, from which it got its name. Later, the church was moved some distance farther up the valley from the river. For some years the meeting house was a log building.

- Early 1800s: Cave Spring General Baptist. The first church built in this community was built of logs in the early part of the 18th century. Many years later, this building was replaced by a large one built of different material.

- 1851: Sulphur Springs Baptist. First called Cookseyville, the church was organized in 1851. The first building was made of logs.

- 1853: Freedom General Baptist was organized June 21, 1853. Land for the church building was deeded to the trustees – A.H. Belt, William Jopland and Thomas Riley– by Alfred Moore. The first church was a log building with one window to the side. The next was a frame building.

- 1853: Pleasant Hill Baptist Church. According to the church record, Pleasant Hill was constituted a church on Saturday before the second Sunday in May 1853. The organization took place in the old log house which stood near the site of the present building.

Salem historians team up with writings in Early Bird

STAFF REPORT
Neatly preserved newspaper clippings secured beneath clear plastic covers fill countless large three-ring binders appropriately labeled and shelved in Hazel Robinson’s living room.

It’s a unique collection of Livingston County history gathered throughout Robinson’s 95 years of life in Salem.

“I always liked history, I questioned Dad as a kid and talked to so many older people when I worked that I got more interested in it,” said Robinson, sitting across the room from Beverly Hearell. Together the two women will team up to provide a monthly article for the Early Bird Shopper’s Guide containing Livingston County history. A new monthly feature in The Early Bird will contain history and current events in and around Salem.

After her retirement as a social worker in 1981, Robinson began submitting articles pertaining to Livingston County history to the Kentucky Explorer, a magazine featuring articles written by Kentucky historians for Kentucky historians. Crittenden County’s quasi-official historian Brenda Underdown is a frequent contributor to the magazine as well.

For about 12 years, Robinson provided articles to the Kentucky Explorer, stopping only after she says she “got too old.”

For many years she has saved clippings from local newspapers and tucked them away in photo albums and binders. Hearell said there are many articles yet to be officially archived. The two share a love of history and enjoy copying articles each has saved through the years.

Robinson has watched the City of Salem evolve and has documented its goings on from nearly the same address all of her 95 years.

She grew up on Sandy Creek, now Lola Road, along the Trail of Tears. Only her earliest years were spent elsewhere – which was just a couple miles from her current residence.

“We lived on the old Golconda-Dover, Tennessee Road, an old stagecoach line,” Robinson said.

She got to know a great deal about Livingston County’s early years when she began working in the health department in the 1940s, and later in public assistance in the Bureau for Social Insurance for about 30 more years.

She is the only remaining graduate of the 11-member class of 1939 of Salem High School.

Hearell, a former Bookmobile driver for the Critten-

Hazel Robinson and Beverly Hearell have been archiving the area’s history for many years.

den County Public Library, became interested in history while visiting with some of the older folks on her route.

“I began working for Hazel in about 1990. I had been doing genealogy research then got interested in history,” she said. “I grew up in Salem but married someone from Marion.”

Watch for Robinson and Hearell’s history submissions in the Salem Scene, published the third Tuesday of each month in The Early Bird, a publication of The Crittenden Press, Inc.

Local historian Brenda Underdown places material on a table in front of the antique wooden mailboxes that were once located inside the U.S. Post Office at Deanwood in rural eastern Crittenden County. This is one of countless displays at the Crittenden County Historical Musuem on East Bellville Street.

Museum closes for season at end of October

STAFF REPORT
Time is running out for anyone interested in touring the Crittenden County Historical Musuem. At least, for this year.

It will close for the season at the end of the month and will remain shut down until April. Because of the low volume of traffic generally associated with winter months, the museum goes dormant to save money in slow months.

Bernice Maroney, curator at the musuem, wishes there was more interest from local residents. Most of the folks who tour the musuem are from out of town.

“We had a couple from Michigan in here recently and they were just amazed because it’s all local history,” said Brenda Underdown, an historian and columnist for The Crittenden Press.

The museum is a treasure trove of information about the commuity’s past from its glory days during the fluorspar mining boom to displays celebrating professional and collegiate sports athletes who hail from Marion.

Housed in the oldest church in Marion, built in 1881, the building itself includes the original pulpit, balcony and stained glass windows of the former Presbyterian church.

Among the hundreds of local items on display are a large military collection dating back to the Civil War, a 200-year-old loom, spinning wheels, a large collection of farm-related items, an old telephone switchboard, vintage photos, clothing and accessories dating back to the early 1900s and papers and memorabilia from Marion’s two United States senators.

The museum closes for the season on Oct. 31.

Scripture is very clear on denying God before men

If you, as a Christian, are approached to deny Jesus or die, what will you do?

Would you think, as one said to me, “Well, I could say I deny Him, but God knows my heart and would know I did not deny Him in my heart?”

But Jesus had an answer for that in Matthew 10:33: “But whosoever shall deny Me before men, him will I also deny before My Father which is in heaven.”

Jesus gave His life for we undeserving wretches, so He is not demanding too much of us. Besides, we get heaven out of the deal.

The next question we need to face is, as a Christian, if you are told you have to disobey God’s Word, you better know the scriptures that give you authority to hold to your faith and refuse to disobey God.

Let us read in Ephesians 6:10-18 and dissect God’s instructions on preparing us to face all the powers of evil coming against us.

“Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of His might.” (Remember God has all power and might.)

“Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.” (What is that armor?)

“For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places.” (How very true.)

“Wherefore, take unto you the whole armor of God, that you may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.

“Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth;” (Your loins is the part of the body from the waist to the thighs, the moving part you use to sit, stand and reproduce. So we are to stand in truth, sit in truth and reproduce souls in the truth, not just what you want to hear.)

“And having on the breastplate of righteousness;” (Having your heart in righteousness.)

“And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;” (Everywhere we walk, we are to carry the gospel of peace.)

“Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith you shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked.” (Have the faith to stand in God’s promises and His word.)

“And take the helmet of salvation;” (Making sure the Word of God rules your brain and that our brain is truly saved, not just able to quote the word.)

“And the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God;” (Simple. Make sure you know the Word of God, because when you try to refuse to obey the power that be, you had better know the Word of God that gives you the authority to refuel the powers that be.)

“Praying always with all prayer and supplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perseverance and supplication for all saints;” (This also is simple. Pray always, and make sure you pray for all the saints and persevere in doing so.)

The Wicked Five on the Supreme Court were only thinking of the ones wanting to do evil, giving no thought to what it does to those of us who will not bend, bow or break to their evil demands. This is how Satan planned we give up our First Amendment rights and destroy our religious freedoms, and the weak-kneed will fall.

Satan hates Jesus and all who follow Him. His backslidden Jewish henchmen demanded Christ’s crucifixion, and the pagan Romans were delighted to accommodate them.

All my life, I’ve cared about others, even as a child. I sure do now since I’ve been a Christian, so I warn, inform, pray and speak so people will be prepared to face what God is permitting in order to try us and hopefully bring the majority of Americans to Himself.

All of this is happening because America has left God. There is no fear of God in the land.

God warned His backslidden people of Israel over and over with terrible kinds of judgment, and He told them He would send the heathen against them and sift them among all nations if they did not repent. He caused food shortages, droughts, floods, all kinds of diseases and insects, murder and cities full of rebellion to cause them to repent.

They did not, and He told them these words found in Amos 4:6-12: “I have overthrown some of you, as I overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah ... yet have you not returned unto me, saith the Lord. Therefore, thus will I do unto you, O Israel. And because I will do this unto you, prepare to meet your God, O Israel.”

Everything God told them He would do, He did, and in 70 A.D. Israel was ravaged and everyone except the very poor were either killed or carried away captive as slaves to all nations in the world. Then, there was the Holocaust of World War II.

America has been blessed above even ancient Israel, and has walked away from the Blessor. So if the people do not repent, they will perish.

As I have studied ancient, world, biblical and American history. We are on the precipice of that final piece of God’s judgment spoken of in Revelation 20.

Anyone interested in understanding that chapter, call me and arrangements will be made to help you understand it.

All who study the Word and apply information as I have, say the end is too close to call. There are different takes on how and when, but too much is at stake to ignore all the signs if we care anything about our own and loved one’s preparations and eternal destination.

“With God’s blessing we’re growing and will be caring for 32 residents,” Robertson added.

Prayer vigil draws large crowd for area lawmen

STAFF REPORT
United in spirit and prayer, local community members attended a prayer vigil for regional and local law enforcement officers at Marion Commons last Thursday evening. The event provided a way for the community to show its support to police and corrections workers who work daily to keep the public safe.

Almost 200 people attended the vigil. Lisa Beard and Adam Guess, deputies in the Crittenden County Circuit Court Clerk's office, work with law enforcement on a daily basis. They spearheaded the local prayer vigil after Beard attended a similar event in Eddyville for slain Kentucky State Trooper Cameron Ponder.

"People don't realize what they do for us. They put their lives on the line for people who they don't even know," Beard said. "It's sad it takes a tragedy to get people together to pray. We should be doing that all the time."

Beard wants people to realize law enforcement officials are not the enemy, alluding to headlines relating to events in Ferguson, Mo., and other cities in the United States where police have come under scrutiny.

Area pastors also attended the prayer vigil as well as local officers from across the region, including Capt. Brent White from the Kentucky State Police.

"I think this is a great opportunity for us to come together and show support for them, pray for them and encourage them and let them know we do support them. Because in a lot of communities it doesn't appear the law enforcement get the support they deserve," said Marion Baptist Church minister Rev. Mike Jones.

Rev. Chris McDonald, a minister at Life in Christ Church, was part of the program as was Rev. Jones.

"It's pretty humbling to know we can come together as a community and support the people that protect us," McDonald said at the event. "I think it's a good show of solidarity from the community to come together like this and support them."

Group seeks help with backpack food program

An effort to help feed hungry children in Crittenden County will be accepting donations from 10 a.m., until 2 p.m., Friday at Marion's two grocery stores - Conrad's and Food Giant.

The Crittenden County Backpack Program is a joint effort between the school system, Extension Services and local Cumberland Presbyterian churches.

Food items may be donated to the program, which will fill backpacks and send them home with children for weekend meals.

For more information, contact Rebecca Zahrte at (270) 978-3328 or Holly White at the Crittenden County Board of Education.

This year there are 44 households signed up for the program, Zahrte said.

Lisa Beard (top) lights candles for local officers and Adam Guess (directly above) plays his guitar to lead a song.

Cpt. Brent White of the Kentucky State Police Post 2 closed out the service telling those in attendance that lawmen are humbled by the show of support they have gotten here.

"We humbly serve you," White said. "It is very appreciative for us to see the support that you have given us. Please continue to pray for our men and women in uniform. Whether that's a military service uniform, an EMS attendant, a police officer or whoever it is, please continue to pray."

Christmas in Marion vendor takes up father’s spoon ring hobby

Elizabethtown, Ill. resident Sylvia Eaton will be a new vendor at this year’s Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show. Eaton (shown above) makes spoon jewelry, which has seen a resurgence in popularity since being originally introduced in the late 1960s.

It’s a holiday shopping extravaganza that each year helps boost the local economy. The 28th Annual Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., this Saturday at the Crittenden County Middle School gym. The show will be held in conjunction with The Shoppe Next Door, which will be held in the CCMS multipurpose room.

One of the highlights of Christmas in Marion is the opportunity to meet new vendors from outside the local community such as Sylvia Eaton. A resident of Elizabethtown, Ill., Eaton creates antique and vintage spoon jewelry. Some of the items date back to 1880.

Eaton shops at both estate sales and on the Internet to find unique spoons and forks that she uses to create the jewelry.

“They are really very pretty,” Eaton said. “They just don’t make things like that anymore.”

Eaton remembers her father creating spoon rings for her mother many years ago. She recalls admiring the pieces and after browsing the Internet one day, she decided to take up the hobby. While she is generally fond of using T-spoons for many pieces, she said some forks that have longer handles make nice bracelets.

Eaton will have a variety of rings, necklaces, earrings, bracelets and chimes for purchase during the arts and crafts show. She said silver makes beautiful gifts for girls and many people love asking her to make custom heirlooms pieces from their great-grandparents.

Known for its popularity in the late 1960s and early 1970s, spoon jewelry has become popular again, especially for young girls. Eaton said the pieces also make great children’s gifts, as many people like to give bracelets with birthstones on them.

The Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show focuses on one-of-a-kind gifts and is sponsored by the Fohs Hall Community Arts Foundation. Meanwhile, The Shoppe Next Door will feature dealer representatives, home businesses and organizations. It is sponsored by the Crittenden County Extension Homemaker Association. Dealer representatives include Avon, Jamberry Nails, Mary Kay, Thirty-One, Scentsy, Touchstone Crystal by Swarovski, Pampered Chef, Tupperware, Plexus, Watkins, Signature Home Styles, Usborne Books, It Works Wraps, Origami Owl, Lula Roe Clothing and Pink Zebra.

Other home businesses include, The Personal Touch and Pam Koerner. Organizations include the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter, The Woman’s Club of Marion and Crittenden County Extension Homemakers.

This is the fourth year for The Shoppe and the second year for both shows to be held at the Crittenden County Middle School. Last year, Christmas in Marion relocated from its tradition venue at Fohs Hall to CCMS to allow for more vendor space and room for shoppers to browse the various booths. Organizers said having both shows in the same location last year proved very beneficial.

Crosswalk Center’s successes run deep from private tutoring to college visits, readiness

BY JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

Since its inception, Crosswalk Learning Center has proven to be an integral component for student achievement at Crittenden County High School. The center serves many purposes. Chiefly, it acts as a resource center for academic assistance. It also provides a fun, safe environment for students to join after-school clubs, make new friends and learn about the world around them.

Funds for Crosswalk are provided by the 21st Century Community Learning Center. Its goal is to assist schools and community in supporting educational experiences that involve students, families, school personnel and the community in preparing students for success in a global society.

Cheryl Burks serves as site coordinator at the Crosswalk Learning Center. She works with fellow teachers and members of the community to provide academic and enrichment programs that take education to the next level and beyond the classroom, with the ultimate goal of building solid, well-rounded students through teamwork and hands-on learning opportunities.

“We are able to help students with academic assistance, including homework help, tutoring, test make-up and college- and career-readiness initiatives,” Burks said. “We take college visits and also provide ACT prep classes and materials and enrichment programs.”

Crosswalk Learning Center is open for academic assistance Monday through Thursday from 7 to 8 a.m. and after school from 3:15 to 4:15 p.m. Clubs take place after 4 p.m. and meet on different dates. In the afternoon, students receive a free snack and are provided transportation.

The center began its academic year in early September. Already, 104 high school students have participated. Besides academics and enrichment programs, Burks said they work on other areas including conflict resolution and team building. They also discuss subjects such as self-esteem and anti-bullying.

Volunteers from the community are welcome to call the high school to learn more about participating. Burks said she wants to further increase college and career readiness opportunities by having local professionals visit the center and discuss their pathways to education.

For more information on the Crosswalk Learning Center, contact Burks at the high school at (270) 965-2248.

Upcycling discussed

Repurposing is sweeping new fad across U.S.

Upcycling was the topic of Mauri and Pam Collins presentation at the Oct. 6 Woman’s Club of Marion club meeting.

Upcycling which can be called repurposing is the process of transforming by-products, waste materials, useless and/or unwanted products into new materials or products of better quality or for better environmental value.

Collins explained how she made two of her winning exhibits at the Kentucky State Fair. One, a patio set was made from old tires and a wood pallet. The other, a garden planter using barbwire for the decorative feature.

Pam Collins said she has always thought of ways to reuse items instead of throwing them away. She challenged the audience to come up with suggestions for a wood item she had acquired.

Collins said, “Look at your item initially but don’t give up quickly. Look, walk away and come back to it.”

Many of the items she has repurposed required drilling holes in glass. When doing this she stressed the importance of submerging the item under water.

Rebecca Zahrte, president of the club, called the business portion of the meeting to order. Following the Pledge of Allegiance, Ginger Boone presented a devotional entitled “Participating.”

A certificate has been received from the General Federation of Woman’s Clubs commemorating the 95th anniversary of the local club.

Thays Flores application for membership was accepted. Flores is the new County Extension agent for Family & Consumer Sciences and a recent graduate of the University of Kentucky.

The club will be selling raffle tickets on theme gift baskets at The Shoppe Next Door Oct. 17 in the middle school multi-purpose room from 9 a.m., to 4 p.m. The basket themes are UK, Baby and Kitchen & Bath.

The hostess committee for the meeting was Sandra Belt, chairman, Brenda Byler, Carolyn Belt and Rebecca Zahrte.

The club’s holiday outing will be Nov. 12 to Patti’s Restaurant.

Reservations are due to Zahrte at (270) 978-3328 by Nov. 9. Guests are welcome to attend.

Pam Collins (left) shared how she made an attractive yard item from a broken tea pot that serves as a place for birds to nest to Rebecca Zahrte. Other items she has repurposed are shown on the table. Mauri Collins (seated) and her mother provided the program for the October Woman’s Club of Marion meeting. In addition to being good for the environment and being a responsible citizen; the Collins’ explained repurposing has become extremely trendy.

Museum Receives Collection

Tina Walker, curator at the Ben E. Clement Mineral Museum in Marion, inventories some of the minerals and fossils donated recently to the facility by the family of a deceased collector. Walker said thousands of rare pieces worth several thousand dollars were given to the museum by the family of Cosby J. Keys of Louisville. Keys passed away in 2011 at the age of 88 and left behind a large collection of nice specimens he had gathered as an amateur geologist. He had worked for DuPont but his hobby was gathering interesting minerals and fossils from across the country. Many of the specimens came from Breckinridge County in Kentucky near Keys’ boyhood home. The items will be catalogued and used for education, display and some will be sold to benefit the museum. Walker said Keys’ family was proud to be able to donate the collection to a museum where it would be appreciated for years to come.

Salem woman recognized for helping blind Kentuckians

STAFF REPORT

A Salem woman has been recognized with a state award for her efforts to help the blind.

Jennifer B. Hall, 39, was presented the Susan B. Rearick award late last month in Louisville by the National Federation of the Blind of Kentucky (NFBK) for her unselfish dedication of time and energy to the social and economic advancement of blind Kentuckians.

The award is given each year at the NFBK banquet to a blind or sighted individual who promotes awareness of blindness issues. This person holds to the belief that high expectations are essential for great success in the blind community.

"Receiving this award meant so many things," said Hall, who is legally blind. "It was extremely moving to be recognized by my peers and humbling to be placed in the same company as Ms. Rearick."

Susan B. Rearick was such an individual. She was an educator at the Kentucky School for the Blind in the first half of the 20th century. Rearick, unlike many of her colleagues, believed her students were capable of doing and being much more than society perceived. Thus, she created the highest of expect-tations for her students, teaching them the tools for independence that would follow them a lifetime. She pioneered the "Live the Life You Want" mindset and changed the lives of her students forever.

Hall embodies that spirit in her life.

"It was also validation that blind persons such as myself have a hope that, with the right tools, we can live the lives we want and do so amongst our friends and family," she said of the award. "It gives me hope that there will be a day when blind children and adults will no longer be thought of as 'amazing' for walking across the street, but just simply like all other people."

There is a new NFBK chapter in western Kentucky, the Four Rivers Chapter. Meetings take place in the Paducah area as of now. The McCracken County Public Library has been the home of most meetings.

"We will be venturing out from time to time to put ourselves out into the communities in which we live to show others we are capable and willing to support the towns where we reside," said Hall.

The Four Rivers Chapter is looking for anyone who is legally blind. All ages are encouraged to check out the organization and see what it has to offer.

"If you are a parent of a blind child, we want you and your child to join," Hall continued.

Persons losing sight for the first time after a lifetime of sight are welcome to come and learn what the chapter has to offer. If you have a blind family member and believe they would benefit from this, volunteer to bring them.

"We are a large area and transportation is limited," Hall said. She said the chapter will soon have a social media presence. For more information, call Hall at (270) 988-2816 or email Jennifer.Hall@tds.net.

Cost Share applications available at CCC District

The Crittenden County Conservation District is accepting requests for 2015 Cost-Share funding under the Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share Program (State Cost Share) until Oct. 29.

State Cost Share is a continuous signup and applications received after Oct. 29 will be considered for funding next year.

The Kentucky Soil Erosion and Water Quality Cost Share Program was created to help agriculture and silviculture operations protect the soil and water resources of Kentucky. Cost Share funds are administered locally by conservation districts with priority given to animal waste related problems and agricultural district participants where pollution problems have been identified. The program is administered at the state level by the Soil and Water Commission and the Kentucky Division of Conservation, located in Frankfort. Applications are ranked statewide and approved for funding based on available funds.

Practices included (but not inclusive) in the program are cropland erosion control systems, heavy use area protection, rotational grazing system establishment, pasture and hayland erosion control, and on-farm fallen animal composting.

For more information stop by the conservation office located at 118 East Bellville Street, Marion, KY 42064 Monday, Tuesday or Thursday from 8 a.m., to 4 p.m., or phone (270) 965-3921, extension 3. Information may also be obtained at <http://conservation.ky.gov/pages/State-CostShare.aspx>.

Orr brings 6x6 bull home from eastern Kentucky archery hunt

STAFF REPORT

Josh Orr had one of the hottest tickets in the hunting business and he cashed it in on a nice bull elk while hunting near Manchester, Ky., on the morning of Sept. 24.

Almost 40,000 people apply to hunt elk in Kentucky – the state with the largest elk herd east of the Mississippi River. About 1,000 are drawn. Orr and another Marion woman, Sandy Bell, were selected to hunt this year. Bell said she's still trying to bag an elk.

Orr, 39, filled his tag with a nice 6x6 male. He hunted several days the steep ranges of Clay County before making a few successful cow calls that lured in his trophy.

Orr took the bull with a bow and arrow.

Elk were reintroduced to the Appalachian Mountains of Kentucky in 1997. Today, the state's herd is estimated at almost 10,000 free-ranging elk.

The success rate of Kentucky hunters is quite remarkable. Gun hunters are successful about 89 percent of the time and archers bag an animal about 75 percent of the time.

Orr said his hunt was an experience of a lifetime. He has applied several times for a tag, but this was the first time he'd been drawn.

DISTRICT CHAMPS! CCHS shoots out title

STAFF REPORT

The unparalleled post-season success of the Lady Rocket soccer team is undeniable over the past two seasons. The girls have for the second straight time earned a berth in the Second Region Tournament and for the first time ever, Crittenden County has claimed a district championship.

Crittenden (6-15) beat Trigg County Tuesday in a shootout to break a 1-1 double overtime tie and win the Fifth District crown at Lyon County.

Crittenden will play next week at Henderson against a yet to be determined opponent. The regional draw is Saturday and CCHS will square off with a district runnerup in the regional opener.

What's certain is that it's an historic opportunity for Crittenden to put another playoff notch in its belt. The Lady Rockets qualified for the region by beating Lyon County 3-2 Monday in the Fifth District opener. Kali Travis scored two goals and Alexis Tabor punched in the third. Ashley Wheeler had one assist and Travis had an assist. Keeper Bailey Barnes had 14 saves in a brutal contest.

Against Trigg in the title tilt Tuesday, Tabor scored in regulation on an assist by Travis. The match was tied 1-1 after 40 minutes of regulation and two 5-minute overtimes. A penalty kick period ended with Crittenden's Travis, Wheeler and Charity Sitar matching Trigg's three goals. The match then went into a five-player shootout, and Crittenden won on the first try with Lindsey Cochran making a goal and Trigg missing.

In the girls' final regular-season match, Warren Central came to Marion and left with a 6-3 win. Travis and Emily Tinsley scored for CCHS and Wheeler had a couple of assists. She finished the season among the state's assist leaders.

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County teacher Neal Bryant admitted that he was so pumped up for his race in the Louisville Ironman competition that he was awake at 3 a.m., and lined up for the swimming event in the Ohio River. He was the first man to leave the blocks.

The Ironman race is 140.6 miles which includes swimming, biking and running, in that order. More than 3,000 athletes competed in the event.

Bryant finished the Louisville Ironman in 15 hours, 14 minutes and 27 seconds.

He finished 269th in his age division and 2,049 overall.

Bryant's swim time was 1:14.33.

Out of the river, he jumped aboard his bicycle and road 112 miles through Oldham and Henry counties. He completed the bike portion in 6:54.22. "I felt good coming off the bike," he said.

To finish up the race, Bryant ran the final leg of the event – a full 26.2-mile marathon – in 6:35.48, where he struggled a bit with fatigue on the final few miles.

Crittenden County volunteer fireman blast a steady stream of water onto a home that was burning at around midday time Tuesday on Sugar Grove Road.

Fire destroys Crittenden home

STAFF REPORT
A Crittenden County family lost its home and belongings Tuesday to a fire that broke out just before noon.
Firefighters were called to the scene of the blaze, but by the time they arrived, the fire had spread throughout the frame structure.
The home was occupied by Tanesha DiMaggio, a local school bus driver, and her family. Friends say the family lost everything in the fire.
Five people were at the residence when the blaze broke out. Everyone was able to get outside without injury.

DiMaggio has a teenage daughter in high school and two grown daughters, all of whom were at the residence in rural Crittenden County. One of her daughters, Kaila DiMaggio, works at Crittenden County Elementary School with the Americorps Program.
The American Red Cross was assisting the family, but other contributions may be appropriate considering the situation.

Morganfield man charged with DUI

A Morganfield man was charged Monday with third-offense DUI and other offenses after allegedly being involved in two hit-and-runs in Marion then crashing his vehicle on U.S. 60 East.
The incident began just before 5 p.m., when residents near the intersection of Main and Second streets reported that a gray pickup truck had crashed into a retaining wall, tree and embankment on Second Street.
The pickup reportedly had a motor in the bed and a passenger in the cab. A short time later, the truck returned to the same area, but the passenger and motor were missing. At that time, the truck allegedly sideswiped a Ford Mustang parked on Second Street.
Officers were responding to those situations when it was learned that the truck had crashed on U.S. 60 near the intersection with J.P. Hower-ton Road.
Deputy Chuck Hoover responded and charged Jonathan Davis Perkins, 28, of 417 N. Tonsend Street, Morganfield, with DUI, third offense and an aggravator; driving on suspended, third offense with an aggravator; and carrying a concealed deadly weapon.
Hoover's report said the suspect had brass knuckles in his pocket.
Perkins was taken to Livingston Hospital complaining of shoulder pain. He was later taken to another hospital after being diagnosed with a neck fracture.

Loving thy neighbor

Several members of Mexico Baptist Church recently spent a Saturday cleaning up areas around the community. Pictured above are Rhonda Dunn, Pam Turley and Richard Maxfield working on the Ky. 70 road frontage at Judy Doom's residence. The church's outreach program included dozens of workers who spent hundreds of manhours improving the neighborhoods in and around Mexico. From this site alone, the group hauled off several large trailer loads of vegetation and debris that had grown up over the years along Ky. 70.
