Local man killed in Monday wreck

A Marion man lost his life Monday in a single-vehicle accident while hauling grain on a rural stretch of road. Brent Croft, 43, was killed when the tractor-trailer he was driving overturned and slid down an embankment off Ky. 387, also known as Dam 50 Road. Croft was northbound in a grain truck he was driving for Randall Lanham Farms in Crittenden County. The trailer was filled with a load of soybeans. Crittenden County Sheriff's Deputy Greg Rushing said it appears the trailer slipped off the right shoulder of the state highway, causing Croft to lose control of the rig. The semi appeared to have turned on its side in the roadway and slid off the right shoulder and down an embankment just south of Crooked Creek. Croft was pronounced dead at the scene. The accident occurred around 8:30 a.m. Monday. No other vehicles were involved. Above, while reconstructing the scene, Deputy Rushing speaks with Crittenden County emergency medical technicians who responded to the scene. The rear of the trailer can be seen turned on its side just off the roadway.

RECOVERY

was the judge's lifeline to emergency assistance. He phoned 911 then called friend Doug Turley, who knew how to find him in the woods near his Dixon home in Webster County.

Heady had suffered a burst fracture to his L1 vertebra. A fragment from the bone lodged in his spinal canal, causing swelling and subsequent paralysis. Doctors initially painted a fairly grim picture of a future in a wheel-chair, or on crutches at best.

"Some said I probably would not walk again; some didn't say anything," Heady recalls from his conversations with medical professionals following surgery.

He spent six days in the hospital then 29 days at an in-patient rehabilitation center, Frazer Rehab Institute of Louisville. There were early progresses, such as tingling in one of his legs and muscle movement in a thigh. Heady and his wife Shea found temporary housing in Louisville for the next few months while he underwent rigorous outpatient rehabilitation at Frazer. Their youngest daughter, who is now 2, stayed with them in Louisville while their oldest daughter, now 6, stayed mostly with family in Webster County. They spent weekends together at home with their girls in Dixon, which was a high priority, Heady said.

Longing for home and his family, Heady worked overtime. Specialists spent more than an hour with him each day, then he worked another six or seven hours on his own, exercising and rehabbing his legs.

"I approached it like a job," he said. "Therapy with physical therapists was scheduled for one and a half hours but usually took closer to two hours. I also did double sessions of functional electrical stimulation (shock therapy) for the month of January, which did make quite a difference before I was placed on the Locomotor training."

As humble as he is tenacious, Heady says credit for his continuing recovery goes to God, a support system that includes his family, friends, church and community, and to the medical staff that tried everything possible to get him back on his feet.

"He's a miracle," said Lisa Beard, a clerk at the Crittenden County Circuit Court Clerk's office. "He is a strong-willed person, and we knew he wouldn't let this defeat him at all."

Making his way up the stairs into the courtroom at Crittenden County Courthouse is no small task for District Judge Daniel Heady, who suffered a severe spinal injury in a fall last year.

Woodall says Heady's faith was obvious as he continued to recover.

"He comes from a strong Christian family, and we knew that that would be his strength," Woodall added.

Heady two weeks ago underwent followup bladder surgery and other surgeries may be in the offing, but he remains resilient and optimistic about the long-term prognosis.

"I've given it everything I could...everything that was within my control," he said.

He still walks with an obvious limp and moves slower than he used to. Back in the woods, he employs the assistance of two walking sticks because of uneven terrain. Hunting is a passion, and he says this accident will not stop him from being afiel. He laughs and admits, however, that if he climbs another deer stand in the near future, "my wife will kill me."

His first term as the district judge for Crittenden, Webster and Union counties has been challenging to say the least, and seemingly overnight he's looking at another campaign as his four-year term draws to a close in 2014. He admits that campaigning next year would be physically more difficult than the first time, but that those challenges would be minor compared to what he has overcome the past year.

He takes very seriously his service on the bench. Only two weeks after his accident, Heady was back on the computer considering warrant requests, and he was handling a variety of other legal matters from his hospital bed within the first five to six weeks of his recovery. He said Circuit Judge Rene Williams, Special Judge Robert Soder and the entire court system were of great help and showed extreme patience as he worked to return to the bench.

"Judge Heady's amazing recovery is an example of what determination, hard work and a lot of prayer can accomplish. I was visiting with him the first day he met with his doctor in Louisville and can honestly say I was very discouraged about his prognosis at that point. However, Judge Heady's positive outlook has been an inspiration to me," said Judge Williams. "He has proven that he can accomplish anything he sets his mind to do. He is also blessed to have a dedicated, supportive wife like Shea who has been with him every step—literally—of the way."

"The citizens of this district are fortunate to have such a conscientious, dedicated person serving as their district judge," she added.

In June, just days after completing out-patient rehab, Heady began holding court again on a limited basis in each county. Now, he's back to a full schedule, and although challenges still lie ahead, Heady faces them headlong just as his associates say he does everything else.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Museum thankful for visitors in 2013

To the editor

The Crittenden County Historical Society and curator Roberta Shewmaker would like to thank everyone who has shown an interest this year by visiting the Crittenden County Historical Museum. We would also like to thank our membership for their support by paying their yearly dues, as well as anyone who has made a donation to the facility. We appreciate these efforts by the local community and our loyal members from out of state.

The board members of the historical society have tried to help make the community more aware of their history and heritage by having informative and colorful displays at the museum. If you haven't made a visit this season to the museum, you still have a few days left.

The museum will close for the season at 3 p.m. Oct. 26.

Again, thanks to everyone who has made this another good year. We look forward to the new season in April of 2014.

Stray kitten needs new, loving home

To the editor

We picked up a little black and white, long-haired male kitten on the side of the road and both eyes were almost shut with infection. We have medicated both for several days and one eye is wide open and beautiful, but the other may not recover.

We are still doctoring it.

We already have seven cats and cannot keep and feed any more, so this little fellow needs a loving family who will help it to feel loved and wanted. It cried for days for its mama and now wants us to pet it. It eats well even though it was not fully weaned.

We don't want to take it to the animal shelter as it would be cruel to upset its whole life again. If anyone knows of a loving family who would want him, please call 965-3269.

Fire dues on tax bills will, after all, receive discount

STAFF REPORT

It's been a bit of a back-and-forth, but Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom said late last week that county tax bills that include $30 fire dues will, indeed, receive a 2 percent discount if paid by Nov. 15. Newcom had stated in last week's issue of The Crittenden Press that no discount would be available on fire dues, despite earlier reports to the contrary.

Due to the software that generates tax bills, according to Crittenden County Property Valuation Administrator Ronnie Heady, the dues could not be broken out separately from tax bills. Newcom and the fiscal court intended for tax bills to be paid at their $30 face value, but added last week that glitches in the first-year of the new fire dues system were expected. He said tax bills would not be reprinted to correct the problem.

However, for taxpayers, with the good comes the bad. Fire dues on tax bills paid late will be assessed a penalty after then end of the year.

County tax bills were mailed out Friday.

Grand jury indicts 3 individuals last week

STAFF REPORT

The Crittenden County Grand Jury indicted three individuals last week, all from the same state police investigation in August.

Grand juries do not determine guilt or innocence. They decide whether enough evidence exists to continue prosecuting a case in circuit court. Indicted last week were:

- Joshua T. Lanham, 32, of Marion on charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity and tampering with physical evidence, both Class D felonies; and possession of drug paraphernalia by complicity, possession of a defaced firearm by complicity, possession of marijuana by complicity and third-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity.
- The charges stem from an Aug. 29 incident when Kentucky State Troopers went to Lanham's home on Wilson Farm Road to serve a warrant. Once they arrived, the lawmen allegedly saw through an open window the suspect and two others in possession of drug paraphernalia. Upon further investigation by officers, the previous charges were lodged.

- April M. McKenzie, 29, of Benton on charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance second-offense by complicity and being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm, both Class D felonies; and possession of drug paraphernalia by complicity, possession of a defaced firearm by complicity, possession of marijuana by complicity and third-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity.

suspect and others in possession of drug paraphernalia. Upon further investigation by officers, the previous charges were lodged.

- William L. Renz, 29, of Cadiz on charges of first-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity and being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm, both Class D felonies; and possession of drug paraphernalia by complicity, possession of a defaced firearm by complicity, possession of marijuana by complicity and third-degree possession of a controlled substance by complicity.

5th-graders learn Marion history on annual walking tour of city

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

It was an opportunity to step back into the past and learn about the history of Marion and the early businesses which helped shape the city and Crittenden County.

Last Friday, fifth-graders from Crittenden County Elementary School participated in a walking tour of downtown Marion, visiting the many historic landmarks within the city. Marion Main Street officials developed the program after realizing the need for young people to be better informed about their community's history. The program was introduced in 2010 and quickly became a part of the school district's curriculum.

"Our local history is a wonderful tool for understanding our past, its people, buildings, businesses and our times of despair, such as the 1905 fire that wiped out all of Main Street. And our triumphs, such as how fast the people worked together and rebuilt all of the business section of Marion," said local historian Brenda Underdown, who along with Sarah Ford, Teresa Stalions and Frank Pierce accompanied four groups of students along downtown Marion discussing the history of each landmark.

Students will be required to write an essay of the walking tour that addresses what they learned.

Part of the tour included viewing the murals found on East Bellville Street. Students were interested in the county's fluorspar era and why the mineral is no longer mined in Crittenden County. Underdown explained it became less expensive to purchase fluorspar from foreign countries than to mine it locally.

"Our local history helps students to establish their roots and know and understand their environment and the community they live in and to be conscious and proud of their heritage and hopefully keep the history of Marion and Crittenden County alive for future generations," Underdown said.

Man who held up Marion couple at knife-point sentenced to prison

STAFF REPORT

The man who tried at knife-point to rob a young couple walking on East Depot Street in August has been sentenced to prison after pleading guilty in Crittenden Circuit Court.

Ronald Joseph Shaw Jr., 26, of Marion pleaded guilty last Thursday to an amended charge of first-degree wanton endangerment, a Class D felony, for approaching a couple with a knife and demanding money. The victims were a 19-year-old man and a 17-year-old girl.

Shaw was originally charged with first-degree attempted robbery, a Class C felony punishable by 5 to 10 years in prison.

For pleading guilty to wanton endangerment, Shaw received a 4-year sentence. For a guilty plea on fleeing or evading police, a misdemeanor, Shaw was sentenced to 12 months. The time will run concurrently for a total of 4 years, but the sentence is consecutive to time he is currently serving on another charge from another county.

Shaw also faces criminal charges in Livingston County where he fled after pulling the knife on the couple in Marion. He is alleged to have held a couple in their home against their will in Livingston County.

Shaw had recently been released from prison on an earlier charge and his probation was revoked in Livingston Circuit Court after the August incident.

In another case, Circuit Judge Rene Williams also formally sentenced James M. Sitar, 33, of Marion to prison on two 5-year terms for first-degree wanton endangerment. Sitar entered an Alford plea last month to the Class D felonies after being originally charged with more serious crimes of second-degree rape of a female under 14 years old. The sentences will run concurrently for a total of 5 years.

In other cases before Judge Williams last week:

- Ambie C. Cotton, 30, of Princeton pleaded guilty to a charge of second-degree trafficking in a controlled substance, a Class D felony. Commonwealth Attorney Zac Greenwell has recommended a 3-year sentence, but will not oppose shock probation. Formal sentencing will be Jan. 16.
- Cotton sold 10 hydrocodone tablets to a cooperating witness on Sept. 27, 2012, at a location south of Dycusburg in rural Crittenden County. The charge was brought by Pennyriple Area Narcotics Task Force officer Mike Lantrip of Eddyville.
- In return for a guilty plea, Simon A. Cummins, 56, of Marion was given pretrial diversion on a felony charge of theft by complicity that stems from the attempted theft of valves and couplings from an old fluorspar mine site on Ky. 723 South. If Cummins completes terms of his diversion, the charge will be dropped.

- Jason K. Adams, 34, of Marion also received diversion for 5 years on a charge of first-degree wanton endangerment.
- Freddie G. Jackson, 41, of Marion had his felony probation revoked and the judge ordered him to serve the remainder of a 5-year sentence from a 2011 conviction.
- David M. Eberle, 24, of Marion pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of trafficking in less than 8 ounces of marijuana, a misdemeanor. He originally faced felony trafficking charges. Eberle was sentenced to 12 months in jail with 30 days to serve. The rest will be probated for 2 years.

Middle school STLP students using modern technology to bring history into 21 century

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Middle School Student Technology and Leadership Program (STLP) is on a mission to bring history into the 21st century.

The 22 members of the program spent last Friday afternoon inside Crittenden County Historical Museum scurrying around to select topics of local history, frantically jotting notes and taking photos for their individual multimedia projects on which they will work most of the school year.

Ben Thompson, STLP instructor, said each student will unearth as much history and documentation as possible on their selected subject matter and compile it into a final audiovisual presentation. On hand for the middle schoolers' visit, museum curator Roberta Shewmaker and county historian Brenda Underdown were the first stop on many students' fact-gathering mission, answering countless questions and guiding students in the right direction for their respective project.

The students have until April to finish their assignment for submission in a statewide competition.

Thompson said the local STLP finished first in the state in 2008 and in the top 15 the last three years.

"We're trying to make it four in a row," he said.

Once complete, Thompson said he plans to offer the presentations to the museum. In order to enhance visitors' experiences at the museum, he's also wanting students to have some type of a fundraiser for the museum in order to purchase electronic devices that can be used to display the students' multimedia presentations in conjunction with the static exhibits. An accompanying website for the STLP project is also planned.

Underdown, also a member of the local historical society that operates the museum, is excited about the project.

"(It's) the most outside interest shown in the museum in a long time," she said.

Students share with board what's working, what's not

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County Schools hosted a Council of Councils last week, bringing together school board members, school principals, site-based decision making council members, student council sponsors and student council representatives.

Vince Clark, Supervisor of Instruction for Crittenden County Schools, brought those in attendance up to speed on the school district's Digital Conversion Plan. He said the district is evaluating which devices work more appropriately for specific courses, such as the use of iPads in math classes versus a Surface tablet installed with Microsoft Office tools for English classes. He also addressed the importance of academic rigor in the classroom, stating that rigor is simply putting knowledge to work and is a challenging task that has high cognitive demand.

Updates on before- and after-school participation at Crosswalk and Bridgeway Learning Centers were announced. Since their opening in early September, 93 students have participated in the Crosswalk Center at the high school. At the middle school, the Bridgeway Center has had 79 students participate. Both centers offer tutoring and a variety of enrichment activities for students.

Phyllis Orr, Daphne James, Sara Omer and Sabrina Stokes listen as students voice their opinions during the Council of Councils meeting Oct. 8 at the Rocket Arena conference room. Students were encouraged to tell school officials what they felt was working and what could be improved in the classroom.

Feedback from high school students attending the meeting praised the Crosswalk Center for its ACT prep. Middle school students were connecting with the Digital Conversion Plan as an effective tool in the classroom and elementary students said they enjoyed the focus on arts and humanities. Most students said they would like to see an improvement in time constraints regarding certain coursework.

School safety was also addressed at the meeting, with Safe Schools Week hosted at district schools next week.

Students, staff and community members are encouraged to take a safe school pledge and sign up online at www.kycss.org.

School officials said the Council of Councils meetings help to build relationships and improve dialogue between parents, students and school officials.

Grand jury recommends 'fair' pay for jail staffers

STAFF REPORT

The Crittenden County Grand Jury last week toured Crittenden County Detention Center and filed a report in circuit court calling for higher pay for jail employees.

Kentucky law allows for grand juries to inspect jails in order to make sure the facilities are working as they should. Interim Crittenden County Jailor Phil Parker said it had been quite a while since a grand jury had toured the jail here.

Parker admits that the grand jury's report regarding improved pay for deputy jailers came at his suggestion.

"We recommend that the county pay a fair wage to detention center employees," the grand jury report stated.

In response to the grand jury's visit, Parker told magistrates at their regular fiscal court meeting Tuesday that he is very concerned about the pay scale for jail employees. He said starting pay is $8.16 per hour. Pay is increased to $8.57 after six months, said Judge-Executive Perry Newcom.

"It is difficult to attract and retain qualified staff," Parker said.

The jailer recently presented a proposal for pay increases to Newcom. The county judge told Parker that he and the county treasurer had been reviewing the proposal and would be prepared to discuss it further during the November fiscal court meeting.

Newcom said the jailer's proposal for better pay at the jail had already been passed along to magistrates for their review.

Parker has been jailer since early August when he was hand-picked by Newcom to replace Rick Riley, the elected jailer who resigned with almost a year and a half left on his term.

Parker said he is reviewing several issues at the jail and pay is perhaps the most important.

"Wages that we pay employees is something that worries me most. It's about the biggest issue on my agenda," he said.

Newcom compared starting wages at the local jail with nearby county lockups. In Union County, jail employees start out at $8.95 per hour. Beginning pay in Caldwell and Calloway counties is $9 per hour. Webster County pays $10 hourly. The starting wage in Henderson and McCracken counties is $11 an hour. Hopkins County pays the most at $13.70 per hour.

Newcom said last Friday there are about 45 employees at the local jail. Beginning July 1, all full-time county employees were offered a health care benefits package that pays 70 percent of individual premiums for insurance.

Handshakes to go on after contests

FROM STAFF AND AP REPORTS

The backlash over a directive that Kentucky high schools should not conduct postgame handshakes has included district officials statewide saying they won't follow it and a lawmaker who is calling for change.

In Crittenden County, the handshaking tradition will continue.

Kentucky's athletic sanctioning body issued a "directive" on Oct. 8 that told high schools not to conduct postgame handshakes in all sports following more than two dozen physical confrontations the past three years.

The Lexington Herald-Leader reports Kentucky High School Athletic Association (KHSAA) Commissioner Julian Tackett issued another clarification of the directive last Wednesday, describing it as a recommendation.

"We're all going to continue," head football coach Al Starnes said of the handshakes. "I think it's a good chance to teach sportsmanship."

Crittenden County Schools Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough, agreed, saying athletics offer teachable moments outside the lines.

"It is more than competing and winning and losing," she said of competitions.

Meanwhile, Democratic Rep. Steve Riggs of Louisville said he plans to pre-file a bill to remove the KHSAA's authority to fine schools and athletic personnel.

Chapel Hill Road fix on hold until spring

STAFF REPORT

It now looks like it will be spring before realignment work of the Chapel Hill Road junction with South Main Street will take place.

Marion City Administrator Mark Bryant said a delay in getting easements signed by property owners whose land will be affected by the straightening of the intersection is pushing back the start date.

City Utilities Director Brian Thomas told Bryant the delays threaten to push construction beyond the time when asphalt plants close for the winter months; therefore, it will likely be next year before work begins by city crews.

Dump truck wreck injures Marion man

STAFF REPORT

A Marion man was injured Friday afternoon when the dump truck he was driving overturned about 8 miles east of Marion on Ky. 120 near Deanwood.

According to Kentucky State Trooper Darron Holliman, Sam M. Hodge, 75, was driving a 1997 Volvo dump truck east-bound on the state highway. Upon meeting another vehicle, Hodge's truck reportedly dropped off the shoulder of the road, shifting its load and causing him to lose control. The truck overturned, spilling its load of gravel.

Hodge was transported to Crittenden Hospital for non-life-threatening injuries and later transferred to Baptist Health Paducah. He was not wearing a seat belt.

The accident occurred around 1:30 p.m. No other vehicles were involved in the incident.

Rep. Coursey vows to fight allegations

WIRE REPORT

Rep. Will Coursey (D-Symsonia) told the Marshall County Tribune Courier last week that he has every intention to defend himself against allegations of sexual harassment and is planning to file a counter-suit against his accuser.

Coursey's attorney, Mark Edwards of Paducah, said the suit claiming defamation of character will likely be filed in October. He also said he and Coursey are considering an abuse of process claim against Nicole Cusic's attorney, Thomas Clay of Louisville.

Cusic, a former legislative assistant in Coursey's Frankfort office, filed suit in Franklin Circuit Court earlier this month alleging Coursey retaliated against her when she alleged he had engaged in harassing behavior toward female interns of the Legislative Research Commission (LRC) in February 2012.

The suit claims Coursey retaliated against Cusic after she went to him and discussed what she deemed inappropriate conduct with interns, representatives and LRC employees.

She said following the conversation she was initially moved out of Coursey's office and into a separate office where she says she sat for a month with no work before being transferred to a Republican Senator's office.

Election set to fill Rep. Arnold's seat

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. Steve Beshear has set a special election for Dec. 10 to replace former Democratic state Rep. John Arnold of Sturgis, who resigned last month after being accused of sexual harassment.

Legislative Research Commission staffers Yolanda Costner and Cassaundra Cooper alleged that Arnold had touched them inappropriately and made vulgar comments. Arnold said in his resignation letter that he had been "destroyed politically" and could no longer be an effective voice for his constituents.

Arnold, a retired chiropractor, had served in the House since 1995.

The election will be held under the state's newly drawn legislative districts.

Hankook to bring 1,800 jobs to region

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

South Korean tire-maker Hankook announced Monday that it will build its first North American plant in Tennessee, creating 1,800 jobs.

Hankook, the world's seventh-largest tire maker, said it will build the $800 million facility in Clarksville. Construction on the 1.5 million-square-foot facility is scheduled to begin by the end of next year, and it will begin making high-end performance tires by early 2016.

Seung Hwa Suh, Hankook's vice chairman and CEO, told reporters that the decision to build the plant in Tennessee was the result of a year of discussions with state officials, and he cited the central location and existing auto industry as major factors.

U.S. 60 lane shift in Paducah slated

STAFF REPORT

A contractor for the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet plans a traffic shift along the U.S. 60/Irvin Cobb Drive work zone on Paducah's southside today (Thursday) or Friday.

Traffic is already restricted with two-way traffic along this section of U.S. 60 from the Bridge Street intersection to just east of the Interstate 24 Downtown Business Loop/John Puryear Drive intersection. Traffic is currently running on the eastbound lanes along this section to allow reconstruction of the westbound lanes.

The contractor is tentatively planning to move two-way traffic to the westbound lanes to allow reconstruction of the eastbound lanes. This traffic shift is expected sometime today or Friday, weather per-

U.S. 60 wreck hurts 3 Monday afternoon

STAFF REORT

Three people were injured in a two-vehicle accident Monday afternoon on U.S. 60 west of Marion.

According to Crittenden County Sheriff's Deputy Greg Rushing, the wreck occurred when a 2000 Lincoln Town Car driven by Lisa Sizemore, 58, of Marion rear-ended a 2010 Chrysler Town & Country minivan driven by Ashley Gingerich, 29, of Salem. Two-year-old Keziah Gingerich was also in the van.

Rushing said Gingerich was following a tractor mowing along the U.S. 60 roadside when Sizemore approached from behind. Sizemore reportedly could not get stopped in time and rear-ended the van, bouncing off the vehicle and hitting a utility pole off the side of the roadway.

All three individuals involved were transported by ambulance for treatment of non-life-threatening injuries.

The tractor was not involved in the accident.

Tolu haunted house opens

Tolu's haunted house is back again this year and bigger than ever. The spookhouse opened last weekend to large crowds on Friday and Saturday. Quite a bit extra has been added to this year's maze of corridors through the Tolu Community Center. A trip through the haunted house will take about 15 minutes and carry visitors past numerous scenes. Organizers worked almost non-stop for a month preparing the haunted house prior to last Friday's opening night, and for most, it was a labor of love. "If you wanted to find us anywhere, we were pretty much here," said Allison May, one of the volunteers heading up the event. The entire set was constructed with volunteer labor and donated supplies from individuals and businesses like True Value and Boyd Funeral Directors, said Timmy Todd. The haunted house is open from 7 to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and then again on the final weekend of the month. Entry is $5 for children 12 and under and $7 for anyone 13 and over. Concessions are also available beginning at 5:30 p.m. "It's hard to beat for the price," said May. About 200 people made their way through the haunted house last weekend. Above, May tries on one of the many costumes donned by performers in the haunted house while Marcus Tinsley assists her.

Prophets, preachers better tell it all

Russia, a communist and godless nation, has just passed a national ban on homosexual propaganda that has prohibited gay pride festivities and the so-called "pride marches" that God labels as "shame marches."

The recent Sunday sermon by Patriarch Kirill, primate of the Russian Orthodox Church, warned against the extraordinary rise in many western countries of the homosexual movement, stating the trend to legalize gay marriage is "a very dangerous sign of the apocalypse."

He further stated it means people are choosing a path of self-destruction. He stressed concern that countries opting for sin to be made legal will impose repression on the minority who is against the sin.

How true, when even here in a once-called Christian nation we are already seeing suffering by those being forced to deny their faith that teaches against such evil or pay a terrible price.

Kirill added that everything must be done to prevent the approval of sin "on the spaces of Holy Russia."

Kirill is emerging as the strongest and most uncompromising religious voice in Europe against this plague being pushed on the whole world.

He stated in May in a meeting in Moscow, "Today, we have a very dangerous development: the laws regarding same sex marriages and adoption of their children which go against the moral nature of man."

He also stated, "If people choose this lifestyle, it is their right, but the responsibility of the church is to say that it is a sin before God."

He said what the Russian Orthodox Church is concerned about "is not the fact of the existence of this sin—it has always existed. But we are deeply concerned that for the first time in the history of the human race sin is being justified by law. This opens up the prospect of a dangerous development, which will contribute to the moral degradation of society."

Now, the president of this once-God-fearing nation is encouraging the upcoming games in Russia to be used to shame Russian President Vladimir Putin for his nation's stand against homosexual demands that say either my way or the highway.

There is no more truth in the so-called tolerance among the evil people who have chosen this abominable lifestyle than there is tolerance in the Muslim religion. President Barak Obama touts both.

What is really heart-breaking is a communist nation puts this once-great nation that was founded on Biblical principals to shame on this age-old fact that homosexuality has always been deemed evil, unnatural and impossible, as in no way can two likes be wed. Ask any welder.

The following words written to ministers of the Gospel are from an 18th century lawyer, minister and college president, Charles G. Finney. His words plainly tell us why we are in the ungodly, immoral, evil mess we are in from the church house to the White House.

"Brethren, our preaching will bear its legitimate fruits," Finney once said. "If immorality prevails in the land, the fault is ours in a great degree. If there is a decay of conscience, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the public press lacks moral discrimination, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the church is degenerate and worldly, the pulpit is responsible for it. If the world loses its interest in religion, the pulpit is responsible for it. If Satan rules in our halls of legislation, the pulpit is responsible for it. If our politics become so corrupt that the very foundations of our government are ready to fall away, the pulpit is responsible for it. Let us not ignore this fact, my dear brethren; but let us lay it to heart, and be thoroughly awake to our responsibility in respect to the morals of this nation."

Well said. He hangs the demise of a once-God-fearing nation on the necks of everyone who has ever put themselves up as a spokesman for the Gospel of Jesus Christ and failed to preach the whole truth and failed to cry out against these evils which have taken down every nation in history that has gone the route of killing the innocent and supporting and legalizing the abominations (God's words) of homosexuality and lesbianism.

Too many condone sin just because it is in their family or they are wanting to get by with some of their own pet sins.

The growth of atheism by poor, deceived proud-hearers who will loose all their pride while they are dying or immediately afterwards are bringing much evil upon the land. But hypocrites, God and Jesus had the most wrath on especially the false prophets, priests and preachers. See the 23rd chapters of Jeremiah and Matthew.

An attitude of gratitude should be part of Christian lifestyle

By JOEY DURHAM
GUEST COLUMNIST

I want to bring a devotion today on this thought, "Thanks!"

I take my thought from I Thessalonians 5:18 where we read, "In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you."

"Thanks" is becoming a rare word in the vocabulary of many people today. The common courtesy of acknowledging gratitude seems to be painful for some. Others may grunt a thank you for a gift or a good deed done, but the virtue of genuine thanks seems to be fading out as more selfishness creeps in.

Ungrateful people are those who are proud and selfish, thinking only of themselves. Rather than serving others, they demand to be served. Rather than giving to those who are in genuine need, they beg from those who do not have much to give.

The most unthankful people in all the world are those who have turned their back on God, and as a result, they are complainers and grumblers, bitter individuals who are never satisfied. In fact, when things don't go their way, they choose to get even more angry at God and go deeper into sin and rebellion, not wanting to realize that they are going to face God one day.

The most thankful people in all the world should be true believers in Jesus Christ.

We can give thanks in everything, because we know that our Lord does all things well in everything that concerns us. We can give thanks for our salvation, for the forgiveness of our sins, for abundant blessings in our life and also for deliverance from the awful consequences of sin, which is eternal separation from God in Hell and the Lake of Fire.

In fact, Psalms 107:1-2 says this, "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good: for his mercy endureth for ever. Let the redeemed of the Lord say so, whom he hath redeemed from the hand of the enemy."

Were it not for the unearned, unmerited favor of the grace of God's salvation in my life, I would be just like the poor souls who know not the Lord and are showing it by their unthankful life and ornery dispositions to God and His people. Only salvation in Jesus Christ can turn a heart from ungratefulness to one that is abounding in thankfulness, and by the way dear Christian, we have so much to be thankful for.

EVERYONE WELCOME

Thinking you might be missing out on the better deal?
Think again.

Something new can be exciting. But it also can be risky. There are some things that shouldn't be left to chance.

If you're considering funeral homes to serve your family, remember the one that has over 100 years of experience has been here all along.

When nothing less than the very best in service will do...

Make sure to have a fun and safe Halloween

The candy, the costumes, the frights and did I mention the candy? Fall is here again and Halloween is upon us.

Here are some tips about your child's costume:

Your child's costume should be made from flame retardant material. If it is a homemade costume, treat the fabric will a flame retardant spray.

If possible include a light reflector with your child's costume. You may even consider sewing one if there is not any on the costume already. Make sure that your child has a flashlight when he or she goes out to trick-or-treat.

Try to avoid heavy jewelry or high heeled shoes for little girls. If your child trips and scrapes her knee it may really ruin the rest of the night for her.

If your child is carrying a prop, such as a sword, make sure that it is made from flexible materials in case they should fall on it while out (most are now made of plastic that is light and flexible).

If your child will be wearing a mask, you will want to make sure that he or she can see easily out of the eye holes. This will help your child see where he or she is going and hopefully prevent any trips and falls.

If you have more than one child, you may want to consider saving a costume for the next year. Adding a prop or taking something off the costume can give it a whole new look.

If you are going to be dressing up with your child, here are some tips for your costume:

Make sure the costume fits properly and is comfortable, since you will be wearing it for a few hours and could be running after your child.

Make sure you have some type of reflective materials or flashlight with you.

If you are wearing a mask, make sure you can breathe and that you do not have blocked vision.

Make sure your child knows what costume you are wearing, especially if you are in a big group. In case you get separated your child will be able to locate you.

Once you have the candy picked out, the costumes, ready and decorations up, be sure to talk to your child about being safe while he or she trick-or-treats.

Watch out for cars and traffic

Remind your child to stay on the sidewalks as much as possible.

Watch where your child is going

With masks and costumes it may be hard for child to see as well as usual. Watch out for steps, cracks in the pavement and other ways your child could trip and get hurt.

Make sure an adult is with your child

It is fun to go out and trick-or-treat and it can be even better in a big group with adults. This is a good idea in case something happens.

Crittenden County resident Clifford Erickson demonstrates the Hawkeye Rope Machine to Deitra Beavers of Farmers Bank. The machine was manufactured around 1900 and helped to make rope out of individual strands of string.

Farmers Bank and Trust celebrates local growers during Farmers Day

On Oct. 9, Farmers Bank and Trust Company officials invited the public to celebrate the community's farming heritage as it hosted Farmers Day. The event honored the labor of farmers throughout American history and coincided with Old Farmers Day, a national recognition of farmers that was observed Oct. 12.

officials said they wanted to thank all farmers and their customers with an old fashioned treat. Among the highlights, local artisans featured basket weaving and rug making. An antique tractor display was also included.

Crittenden County resident Clifford Erickson displayed the Hawkeye Rope Machine that made rope from individual strands of string. Erickson said the machine was his grandfather's and was probably built around 1900.

"When I grew up we used to stand in the barn in the wintertime and put a bale of twine together to make rope for tying down hay bales," Erickson said.

Farmers Bank and Trust officials said they wanted to show appreciation to all the contributions farmers make to the community and to the culture of America.

We would like to say thank you for all the prayers that have been lifted up for each of us through the death of our Daughter, Sister, Sister-in-Law and Aunt Sha Sha. Thank you for all the food, paper supplies, donations, all the cards that we have enjoyed reading and the uplifting words written in each, the phone calls, the visit we've had, all the flowers and gifts that were sent to each of us. Bowtanicals and Louises each and every flower or gift prepared was beautiful. Thank you to Life In Christ Church for the wonderful meal and the love they have shown. Thank you to all the churches who have joined together in prayer and donations. Thank you to Gilbert Funeral Home for the comfort you have shown to us and the peace that was brought to our hearts by the amazing job you did. Thank you Main Street Missionary Baptist Church for all the expenses and your love you have poured out to your pastor and his family. Thank you to our community and the surrounding communities for all the love that's been shown. We could go on and on with saying thank you. But there is one thing that we know, through it all God's amazing love is never unfailing. We find ourselves asking why or how come? This song brings comfort and one day we will understand it all. Just live as today is your last day and know that you are ready to meet Jesus.

"Farther Along"

Tempted and tried we're oft made to wonder why it should be thus all the day long, While there are others living about us never molested though in the wrong.

*When death has come and taken our loved ones it leaves our home so lonely and drear,
And then do we wonder why others prosper living so wicked year after year.*

*When we see Jesus coming in glory, when he comes down from his home in the sky,
Then we shall meet him in that bright mansion we'll understand it all by and by.*

Farther along we'll know all about it. Farther along we'll understand why, Cheer up my brother live in the sunshine. We'll understand it all by and by.

Our faith through the blood of Jesus will see us through.
Thank you again for all the love and kindness that's been shown,

CCES fifth graders hold annual entrepreneur fair

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

An ongoing lesson in business management for Crittenden County Elementary School fifth graders culminated in Entrepreneur Day last Thursday in the school gymnasium.

For the past several weeks, fifth-graders have been learning about revenue, expenses, projecting profits and how to keep a business competitive in the marketplace.

The fifth-graders surveyed third- and fourth-grade classes to gain insight on what products they would be interested in buying.

That research helped determine what products the fifth-graders would create and sell at the entrepreneur day fair to third-, fourth- and fifth-grade students.

Parents, teachers, administrators and central office staff also purchased items from the students' shops.

Fifth-grade teacher Cindy Crabtree said students developed a business name, work on a projected profit sheet, created advertising and strategized ways to compete with similar businesses.

"The display board is their business window which helps draw the customers in to the stores.

They create their product, they bring it in and they sell it," Crabtree said. "We talk about this being an open market because we've got buyers and sellers. When they finish today, they will take all of their money and they will look at their total revenue and total expenses and decide if they made an actual profit or loss from their profit sheet."

Crabtree said students wanted to donate any profit made from the fair to the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter.

This is the fifth year for the Entrepreneur Day fair at the elementary school.

Evansville skateboarding film to feature Crittenden County native

By JASON TRAVIS
STAFF WRITER

For Chase Adams, skateboarding isn't just a sport; it's an effective and time-efficient way to get around.

"I prefer skateboarding to walking," he said. "It's a lot easier. For me, it seems I can maneuver better on a skateboard than just walking down the street."

A Marion native, Adams will be featured in the film "Killer Lies" produced by the Killer Skate Park and Shop located in Evansville, Ind. The premier is scheduled at 6 p.m. Nov. 2 at the skate shop located at 1315 N. Cullen Ave. in Evansville. Adams was one of a handful of skaters from southern Indiana, western Kentucky and southern Illinois chosen to be in the film.

Adams became interested in skateboarding when he was 12 after seeing some locals riding a skateboard in front of the old Marion Junior High School.

"There was a group of skateboarders a lot older than me growing up," he said. "They kind of took me under their wing. They taught me little by little."

He recalls a time when skateboarding was very popular with a group of 30 to 40 kids and teenagers in the area.

"There was a very large skateboard community. That was about the time the skate park got implemented," he said. "We've all grown up, and it seems fewer kids are actually skateboarding."

Adams is currently enrolled at the University of

Adams

Southern Indiana in Evansville and majoring in history education. He plans on teaching either in Indiana or Kentucky within the next two years.

And while he embraces the responsibilities that come with adulthood, he still enjoys skateboarding and occasionally enters competitions.

He said skateboarding was a good discipline and his interest in the sport kept him involved in a constructive activity during his teenage years.

"I had a lot of positive people backing me up the entire time. The simple act of just rolling down the street is how I got started. Then as I got older and got a little better around age 16, it was more of a thrill thing. How far I could jump and how many stairs I could go down," he explained. "Now I'm coming back to that point of the simple act of rolling down the street and being with people who enjoy skateboarding."

He also enjoys helping teach at the skate shop and showing young people interested in skateboarding about proper balance and coordination.

"The younger kids that walk up to me, they want to learn. It reminds me of how I grew up and having someone there to teach me," he said. "I want to be the person to teach them."

Church to hold groundbreaking ceremony

A groundbreaking ceremony will take place this weekend at North Livingston Baptist Church which was devastated by a tornado on Jan. 12. At left, foundation work takes place on the new structure in Hampton. According to Denise Brown, as of Monday, work to rebuild the damaged classroom portions of the facility is 90 percent complete. "All Star Restoration's crew (the general contractor) has done a great job guiding us through this process and many volunteers have helped as well," Brown said. "The support from the community and sister churches literally across the nation has been inspiring." This week, construction of the new sanctuary was set to begin. A groundbreaking service and dinner is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at the new facility. The groundbreaking will be rescheduled in the event of rain.

1909 should be remembered as a proud year for Marion

What better way to promote one's hometown than by listing some of the positive things and mentioning some home folks that have made good.

This article was printed in the Nov. 11, 1909, edition of The Crittenden Press. Marion and Crittenden County shows to be a growing and very productive place. Pride in the community shines through in the article.

This is the home of Thomas J. Nunn, now serving with distinction as Chief Justice of Kentucky; of W.J. DeBoe, who served six years in the U.S. Senate; of Honorable Ollie M. James, now serving his fourth term in our National Congress and who is among the most highly recognized statesmen of the United States.

Marion is one of the 23 towns in Kentucky with a second-class post office. There are 2,990 post offices in Kentucky all told, and only exceeded in number by one state in the Union, Pennsylvania, which has 3,776 post offices, 34 of which are first-class and 142 second-class offices. Our popular postmaster, George M. Crider, draws a salary of $2,400 a year and is allowed three deputies.

The Wilbur Haynes Post Card business pays enough postage in a single month to pay the post office expenses here for a whole year, paying in every month for postage from $2,400 to $3,400, or about $36,000 a year.

It is the home of one of the best and most reliable Marble Works in Kentucky and truly the only producers of a high grade granite and marble from the rough stone in all western Kentucky owed by Henry & Henry.

The home of the Marion Milling Co., the recognized producers of the most popular brand of flour on the market.

The home of the Fluor Spar Co., the value of which property including the great number of tons of spar now on the siding is at insurance value $165,000.

This is the greatest mining district in the world today and will be proven so in less than two years. Statistics show this to be true now.

The ore is advancing now and very soon the whole United States will be coming here for spar. That zinc and lead are always found in our spar veins within 100 feet, is not bad, for the reason that Saunders' new process of separation now solves that problem.

Foreign fluorspar cannot complete with ours, with the tariff in effect, at Pittsburgh or any points west unless we raise the price about $7 per ton on our cheapest grade.

The Albany Fluor Spar Co., with its splendid mills, running all the time represents an investment in machinery and ore on track of at least $160,000.

The Saunders Ore Reduction Co., with the improved separating process, is another big industry of which the people here have a right to be proud. All of these mills in the town of Marion alone represent easily a half-million dollars and will soon mean more to Marion and Crittenden County than ever before.

Marion is the home of the Heath Manufacturing Co., makers of Heath's hand-made mission furniture. This is one of the best new enterprises in the town or county.

The Record-Press, now in its 31st year, has the largest circulation of any county newspaper in the state.

J.C. Bourland Job Printing Plant is one of the busiest and most profitable offices in the state with an unequaled reputation for neatness in anything in the line of printing and binding.

Marion has two tobacco factories that handle the tobacco from 2,800 acres, at an average of 800 pounds per acre, a total of 2,240,000 pounds that brings the farmers $179,200.

Crittenden County farmers produce fine corn, wheat, hay, sheep, hogs, cattle, horses and mules.

Marion's facilities for transportation are the great Illinois Central railroad system, the Cumberland, Tradewater and Ohio rivers.

Marion boasts two of the finest hardware stores in western Kentucky, a number of large dry goods and clothing houses, a number of large groceries and meat markets, an ice plant, which is equipped with the latest improved machinery and ice made from pure distilled water, an electric light plant, a splendid graded school building, two beautiful drug stores, two banks, a number of fine churches, no saloons and an empty jail.

Weldon and Hina Grocery Co. has opened its new store. The entire day is devoted to the demonstration of Meyers Bros. coffee. Many gallons of the enticing beverage were dispensed during the day and every-one partaking prophesied success for the new firm.

Messrs. Weldon and Hina number their friends by the hundred, are well known business and are worthy of patronage and their new store contains a full line of everything fresh and clean and is a marvel of beauty.

Marion is proud of several new improvements in the city. A stroll down Bellville Street will open your eyes to the spirit of improvement pervading the citizens on both sides all the way from Main Street to the Illinois Central Railroad.

J.B. Hubbard, cashier of The Farmers Bank, has just completed a nice concrete pavement in front of his nice home. T.J. Yandell, cashier of the Marion Bank, is also beautifying his home by adding rooms to the front and building on a solid brick foundation. J.M. McChesney, the popular merchant on this street, has built a new addition to his grocery and feed store.

The Ladies Aid Societies of the several churches of this city and the Naomi Club presented a petition to the city and county asking that they pass some measures to prohibit spitting on the sidewalks and provide for new and suitable hitching racks for stock belonging to people coming to town.

The council passed an ordinance which imposes a fine of not less than $1 nor more than $5 for each offense of spitting on the sidewalk, or upon the floor of any public building, within the City of Marion.

Miss Alice Griffith is the first, we believe, of our home girls to graduate as a trained nurse and locate in our midst. She has just returned from Buhl College after three years of practice and study and is expecting to locate here and practice her profession. Our home people should remember her when in need of such professional services as she is both competent and worthy.

Marion was one of the host stops of the Henderson Booster Special, which was a special train located with more than 300 businessmen from the City of Henderson. This special train made stops along its route with speeches promoting their town of Henderson and urging all businesses of Marion to share their patronage with their city. They even brought their own marching band and escorted the visiting men to the courthouse lawn for their speeches. Why give your trade to Evansville and other cities when you can do as well or better closer home, was the address by Osker Letcher of Henderson. A very large crowd of Marion businessmen and citizens from all the county turned out at the depot to welcome the train.

Another item to be proud of is that the county is out of debt with over $1,000 to the good and with a lower tax rate than any of her adjoining counties.

At this time, Walter A. Blackburn (R) is the county judge, with County Clerk C.A. Weldon, County Attorney Carol Henderson and Sheriff, J.F. Flanary. All fine upstanding citizens.

In the city government, John W. Blue is mayor; John A. Moore, city attorney; James L. Travis, city clerk; H.K. Woods, treasurer; W.H. Walker, police judge; and A.S. Cannan, city marshal.

Peabody reaches deal over Patriot retiree benefits

FROM AP AND STAFF REPORTS

Coal producer Peabody Energy Corp. will pay hundreds of millions of dollars to settle a drawn-out legal dispute over health care benefits for thousands of retirees, including many in western Kentucky who worked for bankrupt Peabody spinoff Patriot Coal Corp., the companies announced last Thursday.

Under the deal, the world's biggest private-sector coal producer will spend $310 million over four years to fund retiree benefits and provide about $140 million in letters of credit to Patriot, bolstering Patriot's hopes of emerging from Chapter 11 bankruptcy by the end of this year. It also requires the United Mine Workers of America (UMWA) to give up most of its recently granted stake in Patriot, which was spun off by Peabody in 2007.

Marion's Tony O'Neal, a UMWA organizer, is pleased with the deal, which affects dozens of Crittenden County miners and family members.

"We're considering it a big victory," he said of the deal. "It's really going to take care of our retirees for a while."

The settlement — pending approval by a federal bankruptcy judge next month — resolves a festering dispute between the St. Louis-based companies that intensified after Patriot filed for bankruptcy last year.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Kathy Surratt-States ruled in May that Peabody was not obligated to continue health care benefits for some 3,100 retirees, only to be reversed in August by an 8th U.S. Court of Appeals bankruptcy panel.

Patriot earlier this year sued Peabody, seeking to ensure it didn't try to use the bankruptcy to avoid the debated health care obligations. Under the settlement, Peabody's payments will be funneled into a voluntary employee benefit association fund from which benefits to the retirees would be disbursed. Patriot also will contribute $75 million to the fund, plus future payments from royalty and profit-sharing commitments.

The settlement also calls for the UMWA to give up nearly all of its 35-percent stake in Patriot that resulted from Surratt-States' May ruling. The union, which has argued that Peabody spun off Patriot and set that company up to fail in a deliberate plan to end benefit obligations to the retirees, said it will halt its months of protests targeting Peabody.

UMWA international president, Cecil Roberts said the settlement does not provide the level of funding needed to maintain health care for retirees forever. That is why UMWA says it will continue to push for bipartisan legislation in Congress to put all retirees under the Coal Act, meaning their long-term care benefits would be secured at no additional cost to taxpayers.

Owen, a Crittenden County High School senior, was 2-over and leading the field after the first round on Saturday. His high school teammate Jason Enoch, also of Marion, was 16-over for the tournament, but finished fifth. His one-over 73 on Sunday was the round's lowest score.

Crittenden County's Daniel Wagoner (21) gains some precious yardage against Murray after getting one of his pass receptions in the First District Class 2A matchup Friday.

No Match: Rockets fall by 54

STAFF REPORT

Rocket quarterback Travis Gilbert and running back Lane Wallace are among the state's leaders in passing and rushing in Class 2A.

Both were nursing injuries and on the sideline for the Rockets' game at Murray Friday night for Crittenden County's first district matchup of the season.

Chances are their service wouldn't have changed the outcome, but perhaps it might have made things a bit more competitive. The host Tigers made easy work of the Rockets in a 54-0 blowout.

Murray needed just 10 plays from scrimmage to score four times and the Tiger defense was just as overwhelming, holding Crittenden to just six yards rushing. Murray led 41-0 at the half.

At one point early in the second half, only Rocket senior Brenden Phillips had made net gains on the ground. The rest of the Crittenden backfield was in negative numbers.

Murray, although 4-3 on the season, is one of the best 2A teams in the state, and it is easy to see why after the Tigers physically dominated both sides of the ball.

Murray is ranked eighth and Caldwell County, another district opponent that Crittenden will face next week, is No. 1.

At one point this season three of the four teams in the Rockets' Class 2A First District were ranked in the top 10. Ballard Memorial has now fallen out of the top 10 and is ranked 13th. Union County, in the Second District and a possible Rocket post-season opponent, is ranked 11th in the state.

Crittenden, which started the season 3-1, is now 3-4 overall with Ballard next week on the road, and Caldwell the following Friday at home to close out the regular season.

It's not going to get any easier over the next couple of Fridays.

CCHS HOSTS DISTRICT

Vball, soccer are seasons closing down

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County closed out its soccer season with three straight losses, including a season-ending 3-2 defeat Monday at Trigg County in the Fifth District Tournament.

The Lady Rockets finished the season 2-18, but had high hopes going into the district tournament because Lyon County was one of the team it had beaten this year.

Last Wednesday, Crittenden lost 6-1 at Trigg County and on last Thursday the Rocket girls fell 10-0 at Caldwell.

The volleyball team is 4-16 this year. The girls lost last Thursday 25-4, 25-14, 25-16 at home to Caldwell County to close out the regular season. They also lost last Tuesday at Trigg County.

Crittenden is hosting the post-season tournament Tuesday at Rocket Arena. The Lady Rockets play Trigg at 5:30 p.m., in the opener and the winner plays Livingston Central in the championship match.

Big fines for bucks

Poachers beware! There's a new plan for discouraging the illegal taking of deer, especially those with trophy antlers. It could cost the killer thousands of dollars in restitution costs, plus fines and court fees.

Based on a new law put into effect this year, a person found guilty of illegally taking, possessing, selling, buying or transporting a deer with antlers scoring greater than 125 on the gross Boone and Crockett measuring system, will face restitution fees to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources based on the deer's trophy status. The restitution fee will be calculated by squaring the difference between the gross score and 100 and multiplying the resulting number by $1.65. For instance, a buck that grosses 150 B&C would cost $4,125 in restitution fees alone.

Now that bow season is under way, it's important to keep scouting. Trail cameras provide an excellent tool for scouting potential new stand locations. We always like to have a number of stand locations available at any given time. Use trail cameras to check your stand areas while you're unable to be there. Keep a daily log of weather conditions and be especially mindful of wind direction. Compare that information to the data provided by your camera's time and date stamp on each photo. By cross-referencing data, a hunting can build a good pattern of deer movement in his hunting area.

Harvest of fun

Kindergarten students at Crittenden County Elementary School couldn't have ordered better fall weather for a field trip to Gardner Farms last Friday. The 5- and 6-year-olds enjoyed a hay ride, walk through a small stand of corn, a picnic lunch and other activities. Above, Grant Gardner and Cindy Williams take a host of kindergarten boys for a ride on the cow train, while below, students spread out in the sunshine with their sack lunches.

Melissa Guill looks over the new 2014 pet calendar and the many other items that will be available for purchase to benefit the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter at this year's Shoppe on Walker Street. The event also features home businesses and company representatives like Avon and Mary Kay.

CHRISTMAS

shoppers will have the opportunity to have another venue to visit.

The Shoppe on Walker Street will be held across from Fohs Hall at the Crittenden County Senior Citizens Center, located at 210 N. Walker St. The show is sponsored by the Crittenden County Extension Homemakers. Unlike the arts and crafts show, the Shoppe on Walker Street will feature home-based businesses and company vendor representatives such as Avon, Scentsy, Mary Kay and many more. Individuals and organizations will also participate.

Nancy Hunt, an advisor for the Extension Homemaker organization, said the Shoppe on Walker Street will also feature Ethel Tucker and her cookbook. She encourages community members to come out and support the vendors and individuals who have booths.

Among those selling items at the Shoppe on Walker Street will be representatives from the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine Shelter. Items for sale include t-shirts, the 2014 pet calendar, Christmas-themed tumblers and unique hand-crafted Christmas cards selling for a $1.

Melissa Guill said the shelter benefited from last year's sales and encourages community members to visit the Shoppe on Walker Street for a variety of items.

"Last year we were really pleased with the support, and we are looking forward to this event," Guill said. "Every dollar helps. Come out and buy a t-shirt, calendar and Christmas card."

Guill said shelter representatives try to sell at as many events as they can before the end of the year, suggesting donations tend to slow down after Christmas. In addition to food and cat litter, money made from the event goes toward pet medical expenses and utilities at the shelter.
