Davenport selected paramedic of year

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

In recognition of outstanding service and commitment to the community, Crittenden County resident Kenneth Davenport has been named Paramedic of the Year by the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians. Davenport has been an EMT for 25 years and a paramedic for 18 years. In addition to working with the Crittenden County EMS, he also works with EMS teams in Union, Lyon and Trigg counties.

Each year, the National Association of EMTs collaborates with other national EMS organizations to recognize outstanding achievements and contributions in EMS. The Paramedic of the Year recognizes a paramedic who demonstrates excellence in the performance of emergency medical services, with his primary role being that of pre-hospital patient care.

Davenport has also been a firefighter for 29 years. He has been a member of the local rescue squad since 1985.

"I'm just really humbled by it all," Davenport said. "I was born and raised here. Out of 9,200 people in the county, I probably know 6,500 to 7,000 of them. Watch DOGS seeking men for CCES work

Principal says masculine touch could help students

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

Wanted: Fathers to be watchdogs at Crittenden County Elementary School.

In fact, CCES will accept grandfathers, uncles, preachers, retired teachers or any other available man with a passion for mentoring students and being involved in the education process.

Principal Melissa Tabor wants a few good men to handle this important role and she's throwing a pizza party Oct. 24 to get them started. She would like to have 100 or more volunteers who are willing to share their time shepherding elementary students, many of whom do not have father figures in their lives. The pizza party will allow men interested a chance to hear details of the program.

Over the years Tabor has recognized an alarming trend gripping Marion – a trend that has been much more prevalent in metropolitan areas. That is children without positive male role models in their lives.

She doesn't have hard numbers to support what she knows and sees. However, the longtime school administrator is certain that many more students than she knows of are without supportive fathers.

"I know we have 36 children who live with parents or grandparents," Tabor said.

"Statistics show that 25 percent of children in this country go to bed each night without a father – or let me say a positive male role model – in their lives," said Dr. Johnny Newcom, who like Tabor has been motivated to make a difference.

Tabor has begun a program at CCES called Watch DOGS (Dads Of Great Students). Its mission is to recruit men to come into the school before, during and after normal classroom time and create a strong male presence.

"Having men here will provide added security, too," said Tabor, who is principal of a school with just one full-time male teacher. "But the primary focus of this program is to pro-

Obamacare shows lack of respect for Americans

The new healthcare laws not only show disdain for Americans, but also a total disregard for our freedoms of choice. It tramples our rights and also our Christian conscience.

The following statement was made by Dr. Barbara Bellar, a former nun, U.S. Army major, lawyer, college professor and a physician. The comments were made in the beginning of a speech to a woman's organization.

This is what she said:

"We are going to be gifted with a healthcare plan that we are forced to purchase, and fined if we don't, signed by a president who smokes, with funding administered by a treasury chief who didn't pay his taxes, by a government which has already bankrupted Social Security and Medicare, all to be overseen by a surgeon general who is obese, and financed by a country that's broke."

Obamacare has many frightening demands that are against not only our freedoms but against all that is holy and Christian.

One of the laws requires that we all pay for contraceptives for free sex. It also will pay for killing innocent unborn and half-born human beings. It will pay for the sterilization (sterilize so they never can be a mother) of 15-year-old girls even if their parents are against it.

This went into effect Aug. 1. These laws are to be carried out by the Secretary of Healthcare queen Kathleen Sebelius, who while governor of Kansas supported Dr. George Tiller. Tiller was at the time operating against the law killing full-term babies. He contributed $200,000 to Sebelius' campaign and later he was shot dead while taking up the offering in a church in Kansas. What in the world was a church doing in permitting such a murderer to take up the offering?

Her rabid stand for killing unborn babies caused Obama to choose Sebelius as the Secretary of Health and Human Services. She alone has the authority to make 98 percent of all health decisions, and she certainly does not have the lives of human beings at heart.

The following are just some of the horrible laws in Obamacare that every honest-hearted American should be adamantly against.

On page 30, section 123 of the bill there is a provision to establish a private-public advisory committee which shall be a panel of medical and other experts to be known as the Health Benefits Advisory Committee to recommend covered benefits and essential, enhanced and premium plans.

On page 29 in lines 4-16 it tells how your healthcare will be rationed (they call it allocated).

On page 42 there's the Health Choices Commissioner, which will choose the benefits for you.

On page 50, section 152 it tells how this will be provided to all non-citizens, illegal or otherwise.

On page 58, it says government will have real-time access to individuals' finances.

On page 59 in lines 21-24 it says the government will have direct access to your bank accounts for elected fund transfers.

On page 72, lines 8-14 it says government will create a healthcare exchange to bring private health plans under government control.

On page 91, lines 4-7 there is a provision for government mandating linguistic appropriate services. This provides translators for illegal aliens.

On page 95 in lines 8-18, it says the government will use groups like ACORN and Americorps to sign up individuals for government healthcare plans.

On page 85 it tells about specifics of benefit levels for plans. AARP members, your healthcare will indeed be rationed.

On page 102 in lines 12-18 it says Medicaid-eligible individuals will be automatically enrolled in Medicaid. No choice.

On page 124 it says no company can sue the government on price fixing. That means no judicial review against government monopoly.

Page 127, lines 1-16 says the government will tell you what you can earn.

Page 145, line 15-17 says an employer must auto-enroll employees into the public option plan. There is no choice, if he does not have employee insurance – plus he is taxed up to eight percent.

On page 126 in lines 22-25 it says employers must pay for healthcare for part-time employees and their families.

On page 170 in lines 1-3 it says any non-resident alien is exempt from individual taxes. (Americans will pay.)

Page 195 says officers and employees of the healthcare administrator will have access to all Americans' finances and personal records.

Page 203, lines 14-15 says the tax imposed under this section shall not be treated as a tax. Yes, it actually says that.

Page 239, lines 14-24 says the government will reduce physician services for Medicaid. Seniors and the low-income poor will be affected.

Pages 241, lines 6-8 says doctors – doesn't matter what specialty – will all be paid the same.

On page 253 it says the government sets the value of doctors' time through professional judgment, etc. Literally, that means the government decides the value of humans.

On page 265, section 1,131 it says the government mandates and controls productivity for private healthcare industries.

Page 317 lines 13-20 provides for (oh, my gosh) prohibition on ownership or investment. The government will tell doctors what and how much they can own.

Pages 317-318, lines 21-25 provides a prohibition on expansion. This means the government will decide if hospitals can expand.

Page 354, section 1177 says the government will restrict enrollment of special needs people!

Page 425, lines 4-12 says the government mandates care Advanced Planning Consultations. I think this means senior citizens end-of-life prodding.

page 426, lines 1-3 says the government provides an approved list of end-of-life resources, guiding you in how to die.

Pages 427, lines 15-24 says the government mandates a program for orders for end of life. The government has a say in how your life ends.

Page 429, lines 10-12 says advanced care consultation may include an order for end-of-life plans. This is an order from the government to end a life!

Page 472, lines 14-17 requires payment to a community-based organization (Like ACORN?).

Now isn't that organization and the likes a real American institute?

The president has raided our Medicare (which we have paid into) by $716 billion to pay for Obamacare which has all of these laws that are against us. Look them up.

Wake up people before it is too late. Even the most adamant supporters of this administration will be woefully sorry.

Cherry urges support for hunting amendment

I have had several of my Fourth Legislative District constituents ask about the constitutional amendment that will appear on Kentucky voters' Nov. 6 ballot. In brief, it's no more than an amendment to further strengthen hunting and fishing rights in our state. I hope the following background and general information will help explain it.

It has been a little more than two years since many of my colleagues in the Kentucky House of Representatives and I unveiled this proposed amendment, which went on to be approved overwhelmingly by the General Assembly in 2011. It had to wait until this upcoming general election, however, because constitutional amendments can only be put before voters in even-numbered years.

If other states are a guide, this amendment should have no problem at the polls. Ninety percent of Tennessee's voters gave their support for the concept in 2010, for example, while the votes in Arkansas and South Carolina that year topped 80 percent.

All told, 13 states now have this type of amendment in their constitutions, and Nebraska, Idaho and Wyoming will join Kentucky next month in trying to boost that number to 17. Although Vermont's was added in 1777, most have been approved since 1996. Not surprisingly, a wide array of hunting and fishing organizations are strong supporters of this amendment, and the National Rifle Association is as well.

States are doing this because it provides better protection of hunting and fishing rights, ensuring they are always treated uniformly across all three branches of government and local jurisdictions. Should this pass, it will have no impact on such traditional regulations as hunting seasons, permits and licenses.

In Kentucky, hunting, fishing and other wildlife-related activities play a major role in our economy and in protecting hundreds of thousands of irreplaceable acres.

Combined, these outdoor pursuits bring in about $3 billion a year, and they support 34,000 jobs. According to the state's Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, they contribute more than $200 million to state and local governments annually.

There are hundreds of thousands of sportsmen and women here in Kentucky, and many more come from other states. We have about one million hunting and fishing licenses sold each year, and the department's information center fields 100,000 calls annually. More than 100,000 deer have been harvested each year since 2000, and wild turkey season is extremely popular as well, with the numbers taken totaling in the tens of thousands.

The conservation efforts funded by these outdoor activities, meanwhile, have played a crucial role in protecting the natural resources we all enjoy. It has also helped us do such things as re-stock an elk population that had withered away. Now, 15 years after these efforts began, we have the largest herd in the eastern United States.

As the election draws closer, I hope you will take the time to learn more about this amendment. Such constitutional changes are relatively rare during elections, but they are needed periodically – sometimes to take something out or, as in this case, sometimes to put something needed in. Since 1891, when our current constitution was written, there have been 78 amendments put before the voters, with 40 passing.

I consider this amendment to be straight-forward and self-explanatory, but to ensure as much as possible that voters have the opportunity to see the wording prior to the voting booth, here is the text of the amendment as it will appear on the ballot on Nov. 6:

"The citizens of Kentucky have the personal right to hunt, fish, and harvest wildlife, using traditional methods, subject only to statutes enacted by the Legislature, and to administrative regulations adopted by the designated state agency to promote wildlife conservation and management and to preserve the future of hunting and fishing. Public hunting and fishing shall be a preferred means of managing and controlling wildlife. This section shall not be construed to modify any provision of law relating to trespass, property rights, or the regulation of commercial activities."

I encourage you to join with me in getting this amendment passed.

Columnist Defew published again in Chicken Soup series

Linda Defew of Salem has announced the publication of her third story in a "Chicken Soup for the Soul" book – this one in "The Power of Positive."

Her story on page 21, "No More Excuses," is one of 101 personal accounts that credit a positive attitude for changing the authors' lives. Defew, a Crittenden Press columnist, gives the reader a brief insight into her life after being diagnosed with rheumatoid arthritis. She discusses how she used the hated disease to work for instead of against her.

"I was influenced by the wisdom of King Solomon," she said. "He said we had two choices. 'Live a cheerful life and enjoy good health, or allow a broken spirit to dry up our bones.' I decided to go with his first suggestion."

Defew's decision to live a positive life, in light of a crippling disease, made all the difference.

She ignored the negatives that said she couldn't type due to deformities in her hands, much less write for publication.

"I had to make some adjustments, like peck out letters with a pencil, but soon my brain engaged and I had no more excuses," she says.

Today, Defew has made writing an everyday part of her life.

"I love to write for "Chicken Soup." I can pour out my heart and know there's a chance someone will be inspired to keep on keeping on."

Also, the November/December issue of Christian Woman magazine will include her Bible study lessons and article, "Are We Close to the End of Time?"

Defew's goal is to have a book published one day, but until then, she'll keep writing, submitting content and taking it a day at a time.

"I don't know what I would do without my writing. Instead of dwelling on my pain, I set new goals and start each day with the promise of a bright future."

"Chicken Soup for the Soul: The Power of Positive" is due out in bookstores Tuesday and available now for pre-order at Amazon.com.

Museum coordinators say thanks for help

To the Editor:

The Crittenden County Historical Society and Crittenden County Historical Museum curator Roberta Shewmaker would like to thank everyone who has shown their interest this year by visiting the museum and supporting the museum financially by paying their yearly dues. We appreciate these efforts by the local community and also our loyal members from out of state.

Board members of the historical society have tried to help make the community more aware of relics and artifacts of their heritage by having informative and colorful displays at the museum. If you haven't visited the museum this season, there are still a few days left.

The museum will be closing for the season at 3 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 27.

Again, thanks to everyone who has made this another good year. We look forward to the new season in April of 2013.

A few weeks ago, school board members got a chance to see under the hood of an alternative-fuel bus like the propane-powered rig that will be coming to Crittenden County next summer. School district plans to buy propane-fueled bus

PRESS REPORTER

Crittenden County school officials say the district has been selected by the Kentucky Department of Education for a pilot program for a propane-fueled school bus to be used in the county.

The school system already has a hybrid bus in operation. The district would like to use the propane-fueled bus on one of the three longest bus routes in the county. They think it could be in commission by the beginning of the next school year. Crittenden County is the only school district in the state that has won approval to operate a propane-fueled bus as part of the pilot program. The county's operation of the bus will be used as a model for technological and fiscal evaluation.

School board members have considered the idea of using an alternative fueled bus since last fall. Since that time, officials have gathered data on alternative-fuel options. They looked at buses running Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) and propane. In July, school district officials met in Frankfort with Kentucky Department of Transportation coordinator David Mangum. They presented a case for the use of a propane-fueled bus in the county, partly because the county has multiple local sources of propane. They alluded to data where school districts in other states, like Indiana and Tennessee, currently use buses fueled with propane. Those districts have reported positive results.

School board officials say they received a very quick and positive response to the proposal from the state. School board member Pam Collins was one of the district officials who attended the meeting in Frankfort.

"It was a privilege. I think it says a lot for our district," Collins told school board members upon her return. "They weren't hesitant to give us the opportunity. It's going to be a win-win for our district and for the state."

The bus is manufactured by Bluebird. Crittenden County Superintendent Dr. Rachel Yarbrough says the company has a proven track record with safety.

"There are already specifications through Bluebird for specs that have been proven over time to be safe. Propane fuel really is the only option right now that the Department of Education's Transportation Division is willing to open the door for us to pilot. And that's fine with us. The propane buses would be cheaper than the CNG buses starting out. And there are already buses in fleets in many states across the United States using propane-fueled buses. In addition to that, we also have local propane fuel providers in our county that make it much more cost-effective and convenient to fuel the bus," Yarbrough said.

"For those reasons it makes the propane-fueled bus a much better alternative for us and there's a proven track record for Bluebird or buses in other states that have used propane. There's a set of specs that already exist for that kind of bus and it makes sense for our own local economy," she added.

The school district hopes to procure a bus by August 2013.

"There's a process in Frankfort where the specs have to be written and they have to be approved at different levels at the Kentucky Department of Education. But that process has started. But that will take some time to actually get Kentucky specifications written for a propane-fueled bus," Yarbrough said.

Yarbrough also said Crittenden County bus mechanics would have input on the specifications because the county is going to be the model district.

School officials say the bus will cost approximately $95,000. A typical diesel bus costs around $81,000. But over the life of the propane bus, which is estimated at 15 years, officials estimate it will pay for itself by costing the district half in fuel costs compared to diesel buses.

Officials plan to use the tentative allocation of $113,000 in capital outlay funds to purchase the propane bus. In the past, those dollars could only be used on facilities. But now the state has allowed school districts to use those funds for purchasing buses.

Yarbrough said those funds are limited on how they may be used.

"It's restricted. We couldn't just spend that money on anything. We couldn't spend it on staff. You couldn't do anything like that. But you can spend it on upgrading vehicles and those kinds of things now," she said.

The purchase of the propane bus using capital outlay funds also means local dollars will not be used to fund the expenditure.

Lead bus mechanic Wayne Winters said the school district spent approximately $120,000 on fuel costs last year. Officials would place the bus on one of three bus routes that average 15,000 to 17,000 miles a year.

Winters says he expects the propane bus to receive at least seven to seven-and-a-half miles to the gallon, which is about the same as the diesel buses receive now.

Today the last day for Community Christmas signups

STAFF REPORT

Today (Thursday) is the last day to sign up for Community Christmas. Individuals may register at Emmanuel Baptist Church in Greenwood Heights from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

Community Christmas organizers say they saw lower turn out than expected on the first registration day earlier this month. On the first Community Christmas sign-up day, 55 households with children and 18 households without children completed applications for help with Christmas gifts and food. These totals include 125 adults, 114 children between birth and 12, plus 20 teens between 13 and 17.

The lower numbers concern volunteers who coordinate the program. So far, fewer than half the number who participated last year have registered this time.

"We have always had our largest number to sign-up on the first day. We would like to think not as many people are needing assistance but we're afraid for whatever reason households just didn't sign up on the first day," said Nancy Hunt.

Other coordinators are Kathy Belt, Mona Manley,

Holly White, Laura Wood, Lynda Dennis and Kristina Wallace.

"We will start (Thursday) promptly at 2 p.m., and will stay until we have everyone in line at 6 p.m., processed," Hunt said.

Individuals wishing to participate in Community Christmas need to bring proof of income for everyone living in their household. Residents are considered part of a household if they receive mail at that address. Parents are encouraged to bring wish lists for children 12 and under. The wish lists will be attached to their application.

Wish list items should not exceed $50. Anyone having questions about their income eligibility can call the PACS office at 965-4763.

"This is the 38th year for Community Christmas and our county has been wonderful about providing for those in need at Christmas," Hunt said. "If families miss this next sign-up day their children will not be eligible for sponsorship or gift vouchers. We will only be able to provide food. We have to know in advance how many households to plan for an event of this size," Hunt said.

Eating habits should not change around the holidays

The holiday season is generally a time for celebrating and enjoying the company of friends and family. Unfortunately, it is also a time when people eat more high-fat, high-calorie foods than they normally would. If you have diabetes, it is sometimes difficult to maintain your blood glucose within the target range set by your doctor. Some careful thought and planning can go a long way to help you manage your blood glucose and still have a good time around the holidays.

Eating during the holidays should be no different from the way you eat every day if you eat a moderate amount of foods that are high in nutrients and low in fat and calories. Before the holidays begin, create daily, healthy eating habits. Establishing daily habits early will help you make wise eating

- choices during the holidays. Follow these tips to start a healthy routine:
- Start your day with a healthy breakfast. Include whole grains, fruit, low-fat dairy and protein.
 - Choose vegetables and fruits that have a variety of colors.
 - Eat whole grains.
 - Choose a variety of proteins like seafood, chicken, turkey and beans.
 - Watch your portion sizes. Parties are popular during the holidays and can cause unhealthy eating. Try not to arrive at the party hungry. Don't skip meals during the day to "save" calories and carbs. Don't rush to eat at the event; spend some time socializing first. When you do eat, use small plates, and fill them with healthy foods like fruits and vegetables. Also, when socializing, do not stand near a table with food; this will help you avoid unnecessary nibbling.

Remember, there are lots of sweets and desserts during the holidays, and these foods often contain carbs and fat with few other nutrients. Try substituting fruit as dessert. Fruit is sweet and has fewer calories than most desserts. If using fruit as a dessert keep within one serving size for the particular fruit. When cooking, use vanilla or cinnamon to act as a sweetener. This flavoring will add sweetness without a lot of carbs. Also you can split a dessert with a friend or try bringing your own diabetes-friendly dish to the party.

For more information on eating healthy during the holidays, visit the American Diabetes Association website, <http://www.diabetes.org/food-and-fitness/food/planning-meals/holiday-meal-planning/> or the Crittenden County Cooperative Extension Service. A diabetic support group meets at the County Extension Office the third Friday of each month at 10 a.m. Call 965-5236 for further information.

Educational programs of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension serve all people regardless of race, color, age, sex, religion, disability, or national origin.

While visiting the Smoky Mountains and Cherokee, N.C., Seth Lynn and his Pa took The Press on a helicopter ride.

LHHS' Senior Care celebrates five years

Livingston Hospital and Health-care Services in Salem is celebrating its five year anniversary of the Senior Care program. Senior Care opened its doors Oct. 31, 2007, providing behavioral health services for area senior citizens. Several local senior citizens have benefited from out-patient program, allowing seniors to work through various life challenges like unresolved grief, sadness and worry, isolation, loneliness and sleep or appetite disturbances.

The six- to 12-week program provides both individual and group therapy counseling services, typically seeing clients one to three times per week as needed. Senior Care operates within a 40-mile radius of Livingston Hospital and provides transportation (if needed) to and from the program on treatment days. Snacks and a noon time meal are provided on treatment days. Medicare typically covers 80 percent of the cost of the program, with most secondary insurances covering the remaining 20 percent. Anyone can refer a senior citizen in need. A doctor's referral is not

Woman's Club members learn about the no-kill shelter, gain new members

Submitted by Barbara Myers
The Woman's Club of Marion met Oct. 3 at the club building on East Carlisle Street. After enjoying some light refreshments, Cindy Davidson introduced guest speaker Kristi Beavers, who manages the Mary Hall Ruddiman Canine (no-kill) Shelter. Beavers shared background information on how Ruddiman provided the facility in her will. She said the work that takes place in the shelter could not be accomplished without the tireless volunteers. In this year alone, over 500 pets have been placed. There is also a program where families can provide foster homes for cats and dogs, as well as a dog-training program that takes place at the Kentucky State Penitentiary with the help of inmates. Five new members joined the club. They are Ketrina Myers, Brenda Buskirk, Carolyn Belt, Judith Ann Manley and Martha Padgett. Sandra Belt and Linda Schumann are the co-chairs of the annual election day luncheon. Members were asked to sell tickets for the event to be held 11 a.m. - 1 p.m., Nov. 6. Tickets may be purchased from any club member or at the door.

Common markets gave way to Jockey Lot and Mule Days

Jockey Lot and how it all began

From 1785 to 1809, there were no stores of any type in the area that was to become Crittenden County, except one or two single-room log cabins at Centerville.

The next decade saw the loss of even these primitive mercantile establishments which sold only salt, spices, medicine, guns, powder, shot and other small items that the pioneer farmer was in need of but could not produce himself.

The pioneer was poorly supplied by the usual method when occasional flat-boats would dock at Flynn's Ferry and Kirksville and unload their cargoes on the banks of the Ohio River.

There were only two established interstate roadways and the isolated pioneers of what was then the north-eastern section of the vast territory of original Livingston County had to raise their own foodstuff, make their own clothing and forge their own tools and raise their own work stock to do it with.

There were few pioneers who were expert in raising all the various crops and livestock needed for an acceptable living and few tracts of land that would successfully support such general farming. There were many accomplished blacksmiths or cabinet makers. Therefore, each pioneer became what might be called a manufacturer of what he produced best. To help themselves and also help others, they would each bring their excess production to a centrally located field or lot in their neighborhoods and sell or trade these items to each other. This was the beginning of the pioneer markets.

After the 1820s, each succeeding year saw great increases in through-roads and the river transportation of supplies into and out of the territory. The pioneer markets were soon replaced by the many small rural communities and general stores scattered throughout the county in the business of retail marketing and household articles.

The steamboats and eventually the train in 1887 brought the nationwide wholesale market to the county. Thus, most of the need for the neighborhood common markets fell away one by one.

Soon the Jockey Lot market started taking place in the towns. This special day would be held on the County Court Days as the town would be filled with the locals as well as many visitors that would be in town to attend the court sessions.

Marion's Jockey Lot was located on the lot where the old museum site was and where the rescue squad is located today.

Jockey Lot would be the much sought after place by the farmers and craftsmen to peddle their wares, along with the farmers' wives with their fresh produce and items for sale, and with this a lot of bartering and trading went along with the purchases.

Mule Days

The demand for work and saddle houses, mules, wagons and horse-drawn farm implements increased in leaps and bounds with the improvement in roads and industrial growth. Each farm family had at least a horse and a set of mules on hand and each family a buggy or wagon and team to go visiting or to church.

Along with the much anticipated County Court Day and the Jockey Lot day, Marion also had days that were known as Mule Days. These were also held at the Jockey Lot. From an old Crittenden Press item, dated Sept. 15, 1910, it tells of one of these big days.

On Monday morning bright and early, people commenced to congregate in Marion from all parts of Crittenden, Livingston and Caldwell counties. The pavements around the public square were jammed almost all day until one had to wait and move as the crowd moved or else go out in the street to get by.

The stores were practically all crowded with purchasers from a penny's worth up. The public square was filled up and the religious troupe was there with banjos, songs and taking a collection.

The merchants reported an exceptionally fine day for sales. Mr. Babb sold over 500 watermelons to the restless hungry crowd, keeping a man busy wheeling off the rinds. J.H. Orme and Haynes and Taylor Drug firms had their cold drink counters and tables full of customers all day.

Most all the business houses, hardware, groceries and dry good and eating places were kept busy all day.

Early in the day, the Jockey Lot began to be crowded with men with their animals for trade or sale. There were more fine horses and mules exhibited and sold at good prices than ever known on any previous Court Day in the history of Marion. More than $20,000 was left on deposit in our two banks.

While Crittenden County is noted for fine mules, the display Monday was far in advance of that of any previous occasion. And even with all the fancy prices paid and offered, many refused them and lead their stock home. Every trade was not as it might seem.

Professional jockeys with their smooth techniques could gyp a man at a trade and make the man think he had played a fast one on them. They knew how to show off the actual good qualities of their animals and meanwhile hide the blemishes. Many a disillusioned trader found out on the way home that the critter he had acquired was lame or blind or otherwise undesirable. Like a man, he usually grinned and bore his troubles, resolving secretly to get even the next time he went trading or else quit the game entirely, knowing that he was likely to be outwitted again.

T.H. Cochran and Company Implement Day

Another annual event that took place in Marion was Implement Day. It was started in April 1912 by T.H. Cochran and Company. The firm of T.H. Cochran and Company established this custom of having a special day for demonstrations of their implements and wares and each year it grew larger and each year they added to the attractions and bargains that they offered. News of the event was written about in the April 11, 1924 Crittenden Press.

Implement Day has become a big feature in the history of the firm and the town. T.H. Cochran and Company is the largest exclusive hardware store in this section and between Evansville and Paducah. Through the years the Implement Day has become a strictly Crittenden County institution and was looked forward to by all, whether farmers or not.

Implement Day is known to bring crowds into the city from all parts of the section. It surpasses Mule Day and Tater Day held in other counties located in the western part of the state.

advantages of the various new machines to those who have never used them.

Not only can they demonstrate to the farmer many pieces of equipment he must have before he possesses a real farm outfit with which to carry on his work efficiently, but many of the needs of the housewife can be supplied in this complete store, oil stoves, ranges and the smallest kitchen utensil as well as needs of the household laundry. Sportsmen, too, can find what they want at Cochran's.

Cochran's Hardware Store closed its doors in 1986 after more than 80 years in business. Its old location on Main Street sits empty today. It was a popular and respected store during its days of business.

Obituaries

Reed

Kathleen Reed, 76, of Marion died Friday, Oct. 12, 2012 at Salem Springlake Health and Rehabilitation Center.

She was a homemaker and of the Baptist faith.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Irving and Cora Beavers Logan; husband, Herman Reed; three daughters; a son; and a brother.

Surviving are three daughters, Margie Hamilton of Marion; Shelia Barnes of Lola and Kathy Austin of Xenia, Ohio; a sister, Margie Ruth Reed of Bourbonnais, Ill.; a brother, Bill Logan of Paducah; eight grandchildren; 13 great-grandchildren and a great-great-granddaughter.

Funeral services were Tuesday at Myers Funeral Home in Marion. Burial was at Maplevue Cemetery.

Warning siren tests start Friday

Local officials plan on testing early-warning storm sirens each Friday at noon starting this week. City Administrator Mark Bryant said when residents hear a steady tone, it means that a tornado has been spotted in Crittenden County or the National Weather Service has issued a tornado warning for Crittenden County. Take cover immediately.

When the warning siren is activated during severe weather, residents are urged to seek appropriate shelter. Officials say residents should not call emergency services dispatching (911) to inquire as to why the siren is sounding.

Bryant said there will not be an all-clear signal following a weather event. Instead, residents need to tune to an area TV, Internet report or radio station for further instructions.

The City of Marion has established the following protocol for activation of the system. Sirens will be activated when:

- A tornado warning has been issued for Marion or Crittenden County by the National Weather Service in Paducah.
- When a public safety officer such as police, fire or EMS reports sighting a funnel cloud or tornado.
- when a trained Sky Warn Spotter sights a tornado.

Until a couple of years ago when David Drennan joined the CCES staff as a part-time program coordinator, there were no males in the school other than custodians. This year, Neal Bryant, a teacher's assistant, has added another man to the staff. The principal has seen the affect these men have on students and she wants more of it.

There are 720 students enrolled at CCES. Tabor said that over the past few months she's often wondered how many of them do not have good men in their lives. A few weeks ago she discussed the Watch DOGS program with fathers of three students. Those men – Newcom, Chris Dameron and Todd Reddick – all agreed to help spearhead the program.

Watch DOGS was started by the father of a student who attended a Jonesboro, Ark., school where a shooting took place. It's a national organization with thousands of volunteers and a well-defined mission.

"We want to go to like-minded dads, and other men, and see if they will give us one day a school year or even a day a week to help these children," Newcom said. "We're also going to ask churches to encourage their men to be part of this."

To learn more about the program, Tabor says men should attend the pizza party at 5:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 24 at CCES or call her at the school.

Stone

Charles Glen "Charley" Stone, 82, formerly of Marion, died at the home of his sister in Katy, Texas on Sept. 25, 2012 after a brief illness.

Stone was a semi-truck driver before his retirement. He also served in both the U.S. Army and the U.S. Marine Corps.

Surviving are a son, Danny Ray and wife Karen Stone of Marion; a sister, Oma Stone and husband Clayton Lockridge of Katy, Texas; two grandchildren, Kristen Stone of Lexington and Kirk Stone of Ashland, Ky.; and one brother, Gene and wife Anna Stone of Calvert City. Stone was preceded in death by his wife, Ruby Abney Stone; parents, Learner H. and Ocie Millikan Stone; and brothers, Harry "Buddy" Stone and Willard Stone.

Services will be held at a later time in Houston.

Terry

T. Rankin Terry, 98, of Fort Myers, Fla., died on Oct. 9, 2012.

Born on his family's farm in the Forest Grove community of Crittenden County on Aug. 28, 1914, he was educated at Forest Grove School, Marion High School and the University of Kentucky. He graduated from UK with a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering in 1938. He was vice president of the senior class and a member of the national engineering honor society, Tau Beta Pi.

After college, Terry was Kentucky district engineer for the National Youth Administration and later the Farm Security Administration. Called to active duty in the U.S. Army in early 1941, he served in the European theatre until late 1945. He was a retired major in the Army Reserve.

In 1947, Terry left a teaching position at UK and moved to Fort Myers to become field superintendent of Pinellas Gladiolus. He later was general superintendent of Zipperer Farms and in 1957 began his own commercial flower farm, growing pompon chrysanthemums, gypsophila and other crops. He was twice president of the Florida Flower Association and active in Florida horticultural circles. He also owned and operated Terry Transportation, Inc., in Fort Myers, and a cattle farm in Crittenden County. For many years he was a director of The Peoples Bank in Marion. He was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Fort Myers.

His parents, W.L. and Sarah "Sadie" Rankin Terry, his four siblings and his beloved wife of 61 years, Ruth Ochs Terry, preceded him in death.

He is survived by sons, T. Rankin Terry, Jr. (Kristine) and John O. Terry of Fort Myers; daughter, Joan Wathen Terry (Theodore Mollett) of Princess Anne, Md., and grandchildren, Taylor Rankin Terry III, (Anne) of Washington, D.C., and Sarah Mollett-Gaumer (Brian) of Hagerstown, Md.

A memorial service will be held at the Gilbert Funeral Home in Marion at 4 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 20. A reception will follow at the Main Street Italian Grill. Private interment will be in the Terry family plot at Maplevue Cemetery in Marion.

Memorials may be made to the charity of the donor's choice or to the W.T. Young Library, UK, 1-85 W.T. Young Library, Lexington, KY 40506-0456.

CROSS

Continued from page 1 Cross volunteer responders who are sent to a scene of a disaster to provide immediate relief through emotional and/or financial assistance to those directly impacted by a disaster in Livingston, McCracken and Ballard counties. They respond to disasters 24/7 and are always on call. DAT volunteers provide disaster relief to meet the emergency needs of victims of house fires, storms, floods, transportation accidents and man-made disasters.

"Assistance needed by our clients may include shelter, food, clothing, emotional support, prescription medication and other critically needed items. The DAT also provides canteen services to first responders when requested," Thompson said. "We are also trained to provide sheltering during such events as the ice storm of 2009 and the spring floods of 2011. I am fortunate to be trained as a shelter manager."

She also is associated with the Juvenile Firesetter Intervention Program of Paducah-McCracken County.

"I started working with this group of dedicated professionals on behalf of the Red Cross. The task force is made up of representatives from Paducah Fire, Paducah Police, Paducah City Schools and several other agencies and was formed in late 2010. This program is willing to serve all of western Kentucky including Marshall, Calhoun, Fulton, McCracken, Crittenden, Lyon and Livingston counties."

Thompson said the emotional aspect is the biggest challenge of her role as a volunteer. She cited the attachments made to the people the volunteers are helping.

She also said the Red Cross is always looking for individuals interested in volunteering.

As to her individual honor, Thompson is quick to point out that she is one member of a very large group of committed volunteers.

"It's a team effort," she said. "I am truly blessed to work with a great group of volunteers and staff who have a passion for helping others."

Thompson is the daughter of Lenore Drennan of Marion.

EMT

Continued from page 1 think you're going to save their relative or their friend. In my mind, I know that doesn't always work out. I think that's the toughest thing," he said.

Davenport was nominated by area ambulance service directors and co-workers who wished to recognize his service to the community. Crittenden County EMS Director Kevin Hilkey cites Davenport's years of service and dedication to the community.

"Chances are that either you or someone you know has been helped by Mr. Davenport. He has been around a long time and has helped a tremendous amount of people in our area," Hilkey said. "I have known and worked with Mr. Davenport for over 15 years and the biggest compliment I can give him is that if it were my family that needed help, I would be relieved to see him arrive."

Crittenden County Judge-Executive Perry Newcom praised Davenport's professionalism and caring manner.

"We do live in a small community but as far as I'm concerned we probably have one of the best paramedics in the country in Kenneth Davenport. He's a caring individual. His job means a lot to him. It means a lot to him to be able to help people. That's how he goes about his day-to-day business and does it in an extremely professional manner. I can't think of anyone that would be more deserving than Kenneth. I am happy to see he is getting that recognition," Newcom said.

Davenport will be at the EMS World Expo/NAEMT annual meeting in New Orleans on Oct. 31 through Nov. 2 where he will be recognized as the nation's paramedic of the year. He will be featured in the November issue of EMS World Magazine and recognized at the opening ceremony of EMS World Expo.

Ballard nips Rockets by one

STAFF REPORT
The Bombers finally got off the ground against the Rockets, snapping a 10-year losing streak en route to a 7-6 victory Friday night at Rocket Stadium.
Ballard Memorial scored the only touchdown of the game with 10 minutes remaining, upsetting the Rockets and capturing third place in the district.
The Rockets got two field goals from kicker Micah Hollamon, but never breached the end zone in a defensive struggle. Crittenden's offense has been almost dormant the past three games as the Rockets have failed to score a touchdown.
Crittenden's first scoring opportunity came early in first quarter after a botched Ballard punt resulted in the Rockets getting the ball at the Bombers' eight-yard line. Crittenden settled for its first field goal and its lead held until the fourth period.
Starting quarterback Travis Gilbert was sacked five times and ended the game with minus-70 yards. Gilbert was helped off the field early in the fourth quarter with an ankle injury and backup Noah Dickerson took over under center the rest of the way.
Hollamon kicked another field goal in the third period and lined up for a third try with less than three minutes left in the game. However, that potential game-winner never got off the ground as a bad hold prevented it from being kicked.
Trailing by only one point in the waning seconds of the game, Crittenden got the ball back. However, a desperation pass with 11 seconds left was intercepted as time ran out.
The Rocket offense had several chances to end the touchdown drought against the Bombers. Three times they moved into the red zone, but came away with just six points. The Rockets were 5-for-13 on third-down conversions, and 3-for-6 on fourth-down tries.
Ballard's only scoring threat was on its touchdown drive early in the final period. Otherwise, Crittenden kept the Bombers at bay.
It was Ballard's defense that eventually prevailed, but penalties also cost the Rocket offense dearly on several occasions.
"We had several opportunities," said Rocket coach Al Starnes. "We simply were not focused and I take the blame for that."
The loss means Crittenden will finish fourth in the Class 2A First District and is expected to face top-ranked Owensboro Catholic in the first round of the playoffs.

Henderson knocks out CC girls again

STAFF REPORT
For the second straight year, Henderson County has knocked the Lady Rockets out of post-season play.
The Lady Colonels defeated Crittenden County in straight sets 25-6, 25-4, 25-11 Tuesday in the Second Region Tournament at Caldwell County.
Crittenden (6-16) was playing without the services of its senior setter Kaylee Gibson, who was on an educational trip. CCHS Coach Carol West said her replacement – Chloe McKenzie – did a good job, but it was clear that the offense was out of sync without Gibson in the lineup. The girls managed only a handful of points in the first two sets, but found some spark in the last set before losing by 14.
"In the third set we tried a 5-1, but quickly went back to the 6-2," West said. "The girls were just sluggish. We didn't play like we did in the district."
The Lady Rockets finished runnerup in the Fifth District last week, nearly winning the whole thing in a marathon match with Trigg County.
Henderson, with a 31-5 record, is perhaps the best team in the region this season.
"This is the best record in their school's volleyball history, but we still should have played better," West added.
West said Haylee Young and Brittney Buell played well Tuesday. The coach also said a crop of young talent makes the future look bright.

Senior Kaylee Gibson sets the ball for Brittney Buell in the district playoffs. Gibson missed Tuesday's regional match and her absence was sorely felt.

Owen scores championship at Pepsi event

STAFF REPORT
Aaron Owen of Marion won the 15-16-year-old division of the Pepsi Junior Golf Tour Fall Classic last weekend at Lexington.
Owen shot a 36-hole score of 159 at the Picadome Golf Club to win his age group. His 15-over-par two-day score was the lowest of all players age 15 through 18, however. Owen shot an 82 the first round and fired a 77 the second day.
For the tournament, Owen had the best par-4 performance rating of all players. He had three birdies in two days of golfing. He won the division by two strokes over Corey Rush of Versailles.
A junior, Owen, 16, is also a golfer on the Crittenden County High School team. He won this year's regional Class A tournament and finished fifth overall in the state All A Classic in September.

SURE
Monday

We have issued all of our annual DCP and CRP payments. If you have not received your payment please let us know, as you possibly are missing some forms or there may be an issue with your direct deposit. We still have no word on where we stand with a new farm bill.

•We are currently able to certify acreage for the 2013 crop year. The deadline to certify these crops is Nov. 15, 2012.

•Livestock producers please remember if you have an adverse weather event that has caused livestock losses you need to report this to the office. We currently are between farm bills but it appears that there may be a retroactive sign up for livestock losses. The payable losses need to be due to an adverse weather event such as lightning strike, flash flooding or some other act of nature. However other natural losses can count toward normal mortality. If you have any questions please contact the office at 988-2180 and we can answer any questions you may have.

•Monday starts the 2011 SURE sign up. Any producers who suffered quality or yield based losses for 2011 can request to participate in the 2011 SURE sign up. This is the same disaster program that we have had for the past few years. Even though the new farm bill has not been passed, this program can be applied for as of next week.

Local FFA attends Pennyryle event

Seventeen Crittenden County FFA members attended the annual Pennyryle Leadership Conference held at Hopkinsville Community College late last month. A total of 178 members attended from all across the region.

Students split up into groups and participated in sessions lead by the regional and state officers and their assistants.

Crittenden County FFA President Daniel Patton, who is also regional reporter, was in charge of one of these sessions. Members took classes varying in topics from the importance of good communication to facing fears.

Mackenzie Herrington of Marion said she gained a great deal from PLC. "As a team you accomplish better things than you can alone," she said.

Daniel Patton watches FFA members from his communication class working on a team building exercise.

Seasonal impoundments should be 18 inches

BY ART LANDER
KENTUCKY AFIELD

Seasonally flooded impoundments, also referred to as moist soil units, can produce a smorgasbord of native plants that migrating waterfowl will feed on throughout the fall and winter hunting seasons.

"Natural foods are superior to row crops because they provide more complete nutrition," said Kevin Tucker, a private lands wildlife biologist with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. "With the proper water level manipulation its possible to encourage smartweed, wild millet, fall panicum and sedges, which will attract mallards and other species of dabbling ducks.

Seasonally flooded impoundments typically average about 10 acres in size, but can be as small as 1.5 acres or larger than 100 acres. The optimum water depth is about 18 inches.

box and runs out a pipe through the levee, said Tucker. "Adding boards raises the water level in the impoundment, and removing boards lowers it.

After the growing season is over in early fall, the water level should be brought up slowly. "That way not all the food will be flooded at the same time, said Tucker. "You want the water level to peak in early- to mid-December.

With proper water level management, natural foods will be available to waterfowl for a much longer period of time than grains such as corn or millet, which deteriorate rapidly when flooded continuously.

Seasonally flooded impoundments continue to provide food long after the weed seed are gone in the late winter, when ducks migrate back through Kentucky on their way to their breeding grounds.

"Ducks forage through the fodder or plant debris, feeding on larval insects and other invertebrates that provide much-needed protein," Tucker said.

The draining of seasonal impoundments should not begin until early- to mid-April. "You want to slowly take the water level down, removing one board every two weeks, said Tucker. "By slowly lowering the water level you get a much different vegetative response.

Josh Tabor, 15, of Marion harvested his first archery turkey on Sept. 4. Then on Oct. 8, he doubled up with his first archery deer and another turkey with his bow.

Wildlife art on exhibit at Henderson

The 2012 Kentucky National Wildlife Art Exhibit is now underway at the Henderson Fine Arts Center in Henderson. The exhibit will continue through Nov. 29.

The 10th biennial art exhibit is sponsored by the Ohio Valley Art League and the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

The show includes 80 juried works from nationally recognized artists in a variety of media including watercolors, acrylics and bronzes. Many of the artists featured in the Kentucky exhibit also have works on display at the National Museum of Wildlife Art of the United States in Jackson, Wyo.

The Henderson Fine Arts Center is located at 2600 South Green Street on the campus of Henderson Community College.

Bobby Glen Stevens harvested a doe with his bow. Although Stevens has scored several deer with a gun during his hunting career, this was his first with a bow. He took the deer with a 27-yard shot.

Seminar for farm estate planning

There will be two informational seminars next month to help landowners understand tax laws and estate planning relating to family farms.

Dr. David Kohl, professor emeritus with Virginia Tech, will be the featured speaker at "Planning for the Next Generation of Your Farm Family."

One seminar will be Nov. 15 at Kentucky Dam Village and the other on Nov. 16 at the James E. Bruce Convention Center in Hopkinsville.

Other speakers include Extension and Univeristy of Kentucky specialists.

DRIVE SAFELY : Tips to Avoid Colliding with Deer

- Watch for deer crossing signs. These signs are posted to warn drivers that certain stretches of the road are commonly populated with deer. Do not ignore the warning.
- Be aware of the time. Deer are most commonly seen along roadways in the early morning and evening hours. Exercise additional caution if traveling during these times of day.
- When driving after dark, use high-beam headlights to increase the range of vision.
- If a deer is spotted on or near the road, slow down immediately.
- Don't swerve if a deer is in the road. Brake firmly but keep the vehicle headed in a straight line. A swerving vehicle can confuse the animal and prevent it from picking a direction to flee, and, worse yet, the driver could lose control and hit a tree or another car.
- Always wear a seatbelt. The Kentucky State Police says that most people injured or killed in automobile collisions with deer are not wearing seat belts.

Beware: Deer are most dangerous animals afoot

Whitetails causing 150 deaths a year

If asked to identify the most dangerous animal in the United States, most people, depending on where they live, would likely point first to a bear, mountain lion, alligator or even a shark. While those all seem like logical choices, statistics from the Insurance Information Institute reveal that the deadliest animal roaming the countryside is actually the white-tailed deer.

According to the Insurance Information Institute's estimates, each year across the nation white-tailed deer are responsible for tens of thousands of injuries and the deaths of approximately 150 Americans simply by causing car accidents. Those collisions also carry the hefty price tag of $4.6 billion annually in insurance claims. Nationally, Kentucky is considered a "medium risk" state for the likelihood of drivers colliding with deer, ranking 22nd overall last year in collision frequency. Data from the Kentucky State Police (KSP), however, show that these collisions have defined seasonal peaks. More than 47 percent of all collisions with deer in Kentucky take place during the months of October, November and December.

Analysis by the Highway Loss Data Institute reveals that an average of 14.1 animal collisions per 1,000 drivers occurs nationally each November. Kentucky Farm Bureau (KFB) Insurance claims data shows that drivers statewide nearly doubled the national average in November of 2011, hitting deer on roadways at a clip of 28.05 per 1,000 drivers. As a result of those collisions, KFB Insurance customers filed more than $4.2 million in claims during November alone.

For the entire year of 2011, KSP data reports Kentuckians were in a total of 2,976 automobile collisions with deer, resulting in 146 injuries and three deaths. Approximately $19.6 million in KFB Insurance deer collision claims were filed in 2011, but nearly 45 percent of those claims resulted from accidents occurring in the three-month peak season of October, November and December.

"Looking at numbers historically we can easily predict deer collision claims are going to rise dramatically in the fall and peak in November," said Bill Reddington, KFB's Director of Actuarial Services, "but we are also careful to remember that these are not just numbers. These are real people experiencing real accidents. We hope that by calling attention to this annual spike in deer strikes we can increase driver awareness and help prevent tragedy on Kentucky's roads."

Why are deer seen and struck on the roadways more often during this time of year? These three months are also the peak season when deer are breeding, and the animals are less inclined to shy away from busy highways and speeding automobiles if other deer are nearby.

As October is now here, Kentucky's drivers are entering the peak three-month season for deer collisions. Motorists need to be aware of this hazard and recognize that they are twice as likely as usual to hit a deer on the road in the months of October and December. In November that probability climbs higher still as drivers in most Kentucky counties are three times as likely to collide with a deer on the road. Furthermore, there are 30 counties where drivers become four to seven times as likely to hit a deer during November's peak season.

With the anticipated jump in activity from deer found on the roadways, motorists should drive slower and be aware of their surroundings even more than usual. Deer are most likely to be seen at dusk and dawn near tree-lined roadways or areas that transitions from open fields to forest or water, but drivers must remember that deer are wild animals and often exhibit unpredictable behaviors when on or near roads.

KFB advises motorists to drive defensively on the roadways this fall, especially when headed into wooded areas where deer are prevalent.

Light Study at Main and Bellville

Local officials have requested installation of a green arrow turn signal for Main and Bellville streets at the town’s busiest intersection. Last week, two employees of the Kentucky Department of Highways Traffic Division were in Marion taking a manual count of vehicles using turning lanes in front of Five Star Convenience Center. The men, Ron Millay and Eddie Holland, worked from 6 to 9 a.m., 11 a.m., to 2 p.m., and 3-6 p.m., counting cars and entering data into handheld devices. The information will be downloaded to a computer so that highway engineers can make a determination whether a green arrow light would be warranted at the intersection. Keith Todd, spokesman for the Kentucky Department of Highways, said several options are available at the intersection. “One, they can determine that traffic flow is adequate under the current configuration and leave the signal as is,” he explained. “Two, they can add a traffic activated protected turn phase. Three, they can add a traffic activated protected/permissive turn phase.” Todd said it could take several weeks to evaluate the traffic study findings, select the best option and then install updates for the signal control box.

County accepts bridge bid

STAFF REPORT
Crittenden County Fiscal Court has accepted a $333,787 construction bid to replace a bridge on Turkey Knob Road in the Amish section of the county. Jim Smith Contracting was awarded the bid, which came in $115,000 less than the only other bid, which was from Crown Contracting and Paving. The state is paying $300,000 toward the project. Work will begin in the next two weeks and it will be complete no later than March 30, according to the contract. The current bridge was built in the 1990s, but has been damaged by debris in Crooked Creek. The new bridge will be a clear span bridge, which will not be affected by debris in the creek, Newcom said.

Shorter parking requested on Carlisle

STAFF REPORT
Establishing parking limits on East Carlisle Street was discussed at Monday’s Marion City Council meeting. A request by a business owner to establish a 30-minute parking limit across from Coach’s Cleaners prompted the talks. The request was made by Frank Pierce, who owns the dry cleaners. Normal parking allows for two hours. City Administrator Mark Bryant said there is a 15-minute limit on East Carlisle in front of the post office. He said the council may consider bringing the time limit farther up the street. Bryant said merchants on the street say cars are sometimes parked there all day. No action was taken, but the council will continue to consider the request.
