Chamber hosts spar explorers at quarterly lunch

Harvest time: Watch out for farm equipment

Kentucky farmers are busy harvesting crops across the state and that means drivers are more likely to encounter slow-moving farm equipment on the roadways. During this time of year farmers often need to move equipment from one field to another, but sometimes those transitions require their machinery to travel down or across public roads. According to statistics, there were 158 collisions involving tractors and other farm equipment on Kentucky roadways in 2011. Of those collisions, 59 injuries and three fatalities resulted and 34 percent were labeled by state police as the result of "inattention." That is further proof that increased caution during harvest season is needed to prevent tragedy.

New Invensys jobs staying put

Expansion once slated for Lyon likely to be here

BY CHRIS EVANS
PRESS EDITOR

Local leaders say a concerted effort between the Crittenden County Economic Development Corporation, City of Marion, county government and a local property owner may have set the stage for Invensys Rail to create 50 more jobs in Marion.

Those jobs had originally been slated to go to Lyon County.

Invensys already occupies a manufacturing facility in Marion's Industrial Park South. The building is owned by local businessman John Newcom, who once operated Marion Mining Bolts at the facility. He now leases the facility to Invensys, which employs about 250 workers.

Invensys Rail is a global manufacturer of signalling, communication and control systems for trains and mass transit networks. It is a division of Invensys PLC, which is publicly traded on the London Stock Exchange. Marion's plant is the division's largest in North America.

Invensys Rail has operated in Marion since 2002. It started with fewer than 50 employees and expanded in 2009 to more than 200.

According to a resolution passed Tuesday morning by the Crittenden County Fiscal Court, Invensys wants to expand its operations here and local officials say those plans may include a new building. Details were not available from county leaders and Invensys' attorney Kimberly Taylor said the company would make an announcement later. However, it appears that a new building will go up between the current plant and Health Quest Wellness Center.

Magistrates Tuesday gave their blessing to the deal, calling it a win for Crittenden County. The Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority had in July approved giving Invensys up to $500,000 in economic assistance to create 50 jobs in Lyon County. Once that became known, local leaders stepped up and aggressively sought to keep those jobs in Crittenden County rather than see them go elsewhere.

"It's a good day for Crittenden County; a great day for the community," said Economic Development Director Jeremy Wheeler, who otherwise referred all questions to Invensys officials.

Judge-Executive Perry Newcom said the state required Crittenden and Lyon officials to approve the transfer of state incentive funds from Lyon to here. He said Lyon Judge-Executive Wade White cooperated with Crittenden County to make sure the deal worked.

Newcom said relationships between counties is vital for improving the economic condition of the region.

"There could be Lyon County people filling some of these 50 jobs," Newcom said.

It's Invensys' Wayside Division that needs more space, local leaders said last month when they began working to facilitate the company's expansion needs. Inventory at the Marion plant is stored outside.

In late August, the city, county and economic development agency helped put plans in motion to build a new access road and loading area behind Invensys off Industrial Drive. City Administrator Mark Bryant said the city's engineer has been working on that project and may now include blueprints for a new building.

Invensys' application for state assistance had cited a planned $1.26 million expansion that would create up to 50 jobs at an average pay of $10.50 per hour.

Holiday joy

Community Christmas organizers getting jump start on giving

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

Each holiday season local residents come together to help make Christmas merrier for less fortunate families in Crittenden County. This year marks the 38th annual Community Christmas. Community Christmas is coordinated through the Crittenden County Inter-Agency Council. Its efforts and local support help provide gifts and food to eligible families while making a child's Christmas morning special.

Families seeking assistance with gifts or food can register for Community Christmas from 9 a.m. to noon Thursday, Oct. 4 and from 2-6 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 18 at Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Local residents, businesses, churches or groups can sponsor a younger child through an Angel Tree. Older children will receive vouchers that can be used at participating local stores.

Infants through 12-year-olds can be sponsored through Angel Trees. Identities of the children remain confidential. Sponsors receive the age, gender, clothing size and the wish list of the recipient. On registration day, parents are asked to specify on wish lists their child's favorite color, types of music or movies they like and other details.

Organizers ask sponsors not to exceed $50 per item and not to spend more than $100 per child. Those wishing to spend more than $100 are encouraged to sponsor more than one child.

There will be two Angel Tree sites located in the community in early November. Their locations will be announced in the coming weeks.

Older children aged 13 to 17 will receive vouchers for items at participating local stores, but may not be used to buy tobacco products.

"Parents can either use the voucher to buy the gifts to be wrapped up or they can choose to let that be their child's gift they open up on Christmas morning. Then that teenager gets to

Court issues warrant for messy property

STAFF REPORT

District Judge Daniel Heady issued a contempt of court warrant for a Marion property owner who has failed to comply with City of Marion nuisance ordinances. City officials say it's the first time such a case has gone this far.

Michael W. Maness of 504 West Elm Street was supposed to appear in court last Wednesday, but he did not. The court had previously issued a bench warrant on Maness for failure to pay restitution in regard to a nuisance case brought by the city. In his absence, a hearing was held regarding the matter and the court issued a second warrant for his arrest.

City Code Enforcement Officer Terri Hart and City Administrator Mark Bryant were present to provide evidence and Assistant County Attorney Mary Roher presented the case against Maness.

Maness had been under a court order since June 6 to keep his lawn mowed and to remove junk and debris from the property on West Elm Street. Hart testified that since June 6 the lawn had indeed been mowed at least once, but it had grown back and the junk and debris had not been removed.

The assistant county attorney said Maness had not complied with the court's previous order to keep the property clean and provided photographs taken on June 26 as evidence. Roher asked the judge to reinstate a fine that had been set aside previously by the court.

Hart also testified Maness had paid $250 of restitution; however, he owes $291.31 more. The restitution is from a 2005 code enforcement issue when the city cleaned up part of his property and billed him for the work. That is typical procedure when property owners cannot be compelled to do it themselves.

Now, the judge says Maness must pay the balance of the restitution directly to the court, plus a five-percent service fee. The judge also ordered a $300 fine reinstated against Maness for failing to comply with the previous court order to clean up the property and have it inspected for compliance.

Finding family treasures

Some people might call Jonathan Ferrell's unexpected gift simply a matter of good luck. Others might say fate played a role. For whatever reason, a series of fortunate events came together like a puzzle to bring Jonathan and his great-great-great-great grandfather's logs back together.

It all began a few years ago as Eddie and I were out riding around and noticed a neighbor, Perry Moxley, tearing down the logs from an old vacant house. Eddie stopped to say hello and Perry told him he had been given the logs by the owner of the property. He planned to reconstruct the cabin on his land. Eddie congratulated him. "That's always been my dream," he said.

At the time, Eddie had no idea that his dream was about to come true, too. Our good friend, William Miller, saw to that when he delivered logs to our doorstep from a dilapidated barn he had found in southern Illinois. They were beautiful, but they weren't in any particular order, so Eddie had to come up with a plan. We began by taking a trip to the Land Between the Lakes to visit the 1850's Homeplace, in Stewart County, Tenn.

We followed the path around the quaint settlement, watching workers as they went about their lives much the same as it would have been back then. We came to a workshop where a man was hauling wooden roof shingles in an old steel-tired wagon. Eddie watched in fascination before starting a conversation with Jonathan. While I took pictures, they talked about the tools used on the farm and Eddie told him how he loved the old way of doing things. That led to antique firearms, Eddie's favorite hobby.

Jonathan said, "I've got a friend who likes those too." Then, he told him the friend lived in Dover, Tenn., and how he had built some primitive furniture for him.

"I know just who you're talking about," Eddie said. "My friend, Jim."

What a coincidence, I thought. We had driven over 100 miles and found someone who is a friend of our friend.

Now, with someone in common, they naturally bonded and made plans for Jonathan to come to our place sometime in the near future.

On down the path, we found the cabin of our dreams. Eddie took some measurements while I took some pictures. We went home ready to start putting our cabin together.

From that day forward, our friendship with Jonathan grew. His ancestors came from eastern Kentucky to Livingston County. His great-grandfather, (four times removed,) John Ferrell, had been a drummer in George Washington's army during the Revolutionary War. He had received a land grant near Hampton, for his military service.

In 1818, he built a large flat boat, called a "family boat," and floated down the Ohio River from Boone County, Ky., to Carr's Landing (now Carrsville) with his wife and eight children. When they arrived, John bought a mule to drag the boat to his plot of land on the bank of Buck Creek. He used the timber from the boat to build a house for his family.

That home was destroyed by a cyclone in 1890 and another log house was built just a short distance away. Many of the logs were from the original Ferrell home, the same that had brought the first Ferrells to Livingston County. Eddie and I knew exactly where it was located. It was the log house Perry Moxley was tearing down when Eddie stopped to talk to him.

A couple of years passed. One day, a neighbor mentioned that her cousin, Perry, had put his farm up for sale.

Eddie gave him a call to see if he still had the logs. Perry told him he was thinking of relocating and wouldn't be building a cabin after all. "You can have the logs if you want them," he said.

"Oh, no," Eddie said. "I've got my log cabin. But if you're sure you don't want them, I know one of the descendants who would love to have them."

"I'd be glad to let him have them. Tell him he can have the logs and the fireplace too."

We could hardly wait to call Jonathan and tell him the good news. He couldn't believe it. Since then, he's made weekly trips up from his home in Paris, Tenn., to reclaim his family treasure.

It took several years and many people to make it happen. If one element had been missing, the treasure might have been passed by, never to be discovered. Instead, someday soon, the circle will be complete and the dream will become a reality. The logs that once housed Jonathan's ancestors will be resurrected to become a home he will treasure forever.

Thank you to all volunteers

To the Editor:

I would like to thank all those that were able to take an active role in the search for a missing person on Saturday, Sept. 15 in Marion. The City of Marion Police Department, the Crittenden County Sheriffs' Department, Crittenden County Emergency Management, Crittenden County Rescue Squad, Crittenden County EMS, Marion/Crittenden County emergency dispatchers, numerous volunteer firefighters and several surrounding search and rescue agencies throughout western Kentucky and Tennessee all came together to search for a missing adult.

Most of these agencies and personnel offered their time as volunteers to respond to the call of a fellow citizen of Crittenden County in need. These individuals receive nothing other than the satisfaction of helping and the thanks that we can offer them on a good job well done. The equipment that these various agencies have available for use are purchased with monetary donations that are received throughout the year or are owned by those that gave their time.

The person who was reported missing on the 15 at 9 a.m. was found on the 16 at approximately 7:15 a.m., unharmed, cold, scared and tired after having been lost in the woods overnight. If anyone happens to see any of our many volunteer or paid emergency response personnel be sure and thank them for their dedicated service and if possible please remember to help support their efforts when possible.

Dog warden does a good job

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter to the editor in the Sept. 13, 2012 Crittenden Press entitled "Stray animals are a problem." It may very well be true that cats and dogs run loose in the area where the author lives. However, the problem is not with the dog warden. The people who work at the animal shelter have an incredibly difficult job. They work tirelessly to not only respond to calls that are made to their office, but also to care for the dogs and cats that reside at the shelter, to keep the facility clean and to facilitate adoptions. I have watched them work and I am in awe of the incredible job they do with the limited resources that are available.

It would be wonderful if there was more money allocated to hire more people. Please take care not to blame the people who work so diligently in our animal shelter.

Letters to the Editor

Thank you to animal shelter

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to a letter to the editor in the Sept. 13 Crittenden Press entitled "Stray animals are a problem." Strays and uncared for animals are an unfortunate problem in all counties, cities and states. The problem does not lie in the personnel at the shelter, the problem is with those that do not take care of their animals and do not spay and neuter.

Our shelter personnel, including the dog warden, work tirelessly to help the unwanted animals in our area, making sure they are cared for, safe and healthy. They do the job of 10 people with limited time and resources. They are amazing and deserve recognition for the good work they do.

Thank you Crittenden County Animal Shelter personnel for caring about our animals and doing such a great job.

Christy James
Marion, Ky.

County lucky to have warden

To the Editor:

In response to the letter about our dog warden and the stray animal situation, I would first like to say Crittenden County is very lucky to have Denise Peek as its dog warden. She actually cares about the animals that come into the shelter. She works countless hours, many of which are off the clock. She is only one person and can only be in one place at a time. Our shelter, unfortunately, stays full all the time.

As far as the ones complaining, I invite you to volunteer with us for just two weeks. You will then see how much goes into keeping our shelter clean and safe for the homeless animals that are subjected to the shelter. Volunteer for adoption drives, fundraisers or the cleaning of the shelter. Five or six volunteers cannot do it all. In the time it takes to write one letter a homeless animal's life can be saved.

Shelter works hard to help county animals

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to "Stray animals are a problem," from the Sept. 13, 2012 Crittenden Press. While I know stray animals are an issue in Crittenden County, and having a couple extra employees with vehicles to help with the problem may be helpful in some ways, our county's budget is tight enough. But it is not the fault of our dog warden. As a volunteer at the Crittenden County Animal Shelter I have seen our dog warden first hand doing her job. She works countless hours for the homeless animals, going above and beyond her adoption events, getting animals ready for rescue, nursing sick ones back to health, answering phone calls, seeing to the people who come in to adopt or surrender animals and going out on calls. She does all of her required tasks and more with a great deal of compassion. We could not have a better dog warden in Crittenden County. She is also not allowed to pick up stray cats. They are to be brought in to her at the facility. One person can only do so much. I for one am so grateful that our homeless animals have her as an ally.

Obviously, irresponsible pet owners are a problem. Otherwise there would be no need for animal shelters to begin with. It will always be an issue, just like world hunger. All we can hope to do is save one animal at a time and educate pet owners along the way.

I encourage you to thank our dog warden for her hard work and dedication when you see her. Please donate to the shelter by means of money, supplies, having an animal spayed or neutered, fostering one in your home or helping a friend see to their pets so they do not end up in a shelter.

Kristy Haire
Marion, Ky.

WHO WE ARE

Ellen Merrick

Like so many actors on stage, Ellen Merrick feeds off the audience's enthusiasm. "It's really thrilling whenever the audience laughs or when they react. It's thrilling for me to feel what the audience feels," Merrick said. A senior at Crittenden County High School, Merrick is currently performing in the musical version of Nine to Five, at the Market House Theatre in Paducah. Merrick is part of the chorus of office workers who eventually support a revolt over their obnoxious boss. A popular movie of the same name was released in 1980 starring Jane Fonda, Lily Tomlin, Dolly Parton and Dabney Coleman. This is Merrick's third musical and second time performing at the Market House Theatre. In 2009 she performed in The Wizard of Oz. "I'd been in The Wizard of Oz a few years ago so I just auditioned for this one because I really wanted to be in another show because I missed it so much," Merrick said. "It's a lot different with this one because it's mostly adults. When I was in Wizard of Oz at the Market House there were more kids my age. In another musical I'd been in at another theater, it was all teenagers. So this has been a lot different. It's been a good experience to get to work with different people." Merrick was selected to participate in the Governor's School of the Arts program over the summer. She plans to major in musical theatre in college. At Paducah, Merrick has gained experience and learned acting techniques. Meanwhile, Merrick is concentrating on her high school studies and evaluating colleges that offer majors in her preferred area. She's also looking forward to November and the high school play Wind in the Willows. The musical version of Nine to Five will continue Friday and Saturday. For more information on tickets and times call the box office at 444-6828 or visit www.mhtplay.com.

Who We Are is a regular feature in The Crittenden Press, focusing on people in our community.

LBL has free entry Sept. 29

Land Between the Lakes (LBL) is waiving fees at participating day-use facilities on Saturday, Sept. 29, in honor of National Public Lands Day. General admission to The Homeplace, Woodlands Nature Station, Elk & Bison Prairie and the Golden Pond Planetarium show at 1 p.m., will be free. Also, Wranglers Campground will waive day-use riding fees. LBL joins other National Forests and National Parks across the United States in participating in the nation's largest one-day volunteer event for public lands. Volunteers can participate in a shoreline clean-up or a trail maintenance project. It is recommended, but not necessary, to call to register for volunteer work early. Registrations should be made by Sept. 27, especially for larger groups. There will be two events taking place that day. Call 924-2007 for more information.

Bugs show up despite dry weather

Despite the mild winter experienced through much of the nation, insect pest populations have been mostly below average in Kentucky. However, as the summer season continued, weather patterns made it favorable for insects to begin migration, especially in southern states. There have been reports of increasing numbers in the corn earworm, fall armyworm and yellow-striped armyworm populations in various crops, according to Ric Bessin, University of Kentucky entomologist extension specialist. While the corn earworm can be a pest of field corn and soybeans, this insect is also a serious pest of sweet corn and tomatoes. The corn earworm has other names including soybean podworm, tomato fruitworm, and the cotton bollworm. Even with low numbers through much of the summer, growers need to monitor soybeans and vegetables for this pest. The fall armyworm is an infrequent invader in Kentucky but can be a problem in late planted field corn. You can recognize this brown caterpillar by an inverted light-colored 'Y' on its head. Even though there was below-normal rainfall this summer, recent rains have initiated a flush of grass growth around ditches and waterways where the armyworm thrives.

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers may remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

Throughout the month, troopers from the Madisonville Kentucky State Police Post will conduct traffic safety checkpoints in the Post 2 District. At these checkpoints, troopers will be targeting impaired drivers, checking for properly restrained adults and children and observing for any other violations.

Post 2 serves the following counties: Caldwell, Christian, Crittenden, Hopkins, Muhlenberg, Todd and Webster.

FSA preparing for annual payment cycles in October

Greetings Livingston and Crittenden farmers and cattle producers. I am Laura Kessler, the new county executive director for both Crittenden and Livingston counties. I will be trying to keep everyone as informed as possible with what is going on in the office through this regular column in The Crittenden Press. It has been wonderful getting to know the producers I have met so far and I am looking forward to meeting those who I have not yet met. We are anxiously awaiting information on the new Farm Bill but still no word.

Currently in Progress

We are currently trying to prepare for the upcoming payment cycles in October. It is very important if you receive items from us in the mail to timely fill them out and return them as soon as possible. This way, your payments will not be held up. If you have switched banks or your bank has been merged with another, it is very important that you fill out a new direct deposit form. We encourage anyone not receiving direct deposits to fill out the forms as we will soon be converting to debit cards instead of checks. We just finished up an ECP program for disaster related water development. However, we are still not funded for this program.

We would like to remind everyone that has a Conser-

Salem FD replaces pumper truck with newer model

In an effort to upgrade equipment to better serve the community and surrounding areas, the Salem Fire Department purchased a new pumper truck in August. Fire Chief Donnie Wilbanks said the truck is a 1996 model and replaces a 1973 Sea-graves truck, which had a 500 gallon tank and 1,000 gallon pump. "This has a 1,000-gallon poly tank and 1,250-gallon-per-minute pump with Class A and B foam system on it. It also has a top mount pump which enables our pump operators to be on top of the truck where they are not on the side of a road," Wilbanks said. "It's just safer for them. They can see fire scenes better from top mount pumps than they can from the old, traditional side discharge pumps."

Wilbanks said the Class A foam system on the truck helps extinguish structure fires quicker and easier and use less water.

Five years ago, the fire station received a 2007 pumper truck through a FEMA grant.

FSA offering higher limit on loan program

USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) has announced that guaranteed farm ownership loan funds for fiscal year 2012 have been exhausted. Farmers and ranchers in Kentucky received $59,736, 321.00 million in guaranteed loans through August 31.

"Fiscal year 2013 begins on Oct. 1, and we anticipate that guaranteed farm ownership funds will be available in early October," said McCauley.

FSA guaranteed loans allow lenders to provide agricultural credit to farmers who do not meet the lender's normal underwriting criteria. Farmers and ranchers apply for a guaranteed loan through a commercial lender and the lender arranges for the guarantee.

FSA can guarantee up to 95 percent of the loss of principal and interest on a loan.

Guaranteed loans can be used for both farm ownership and operating purposes.

According to State Executive Director John W. McCauley, the guaranteed loan limit will increase to $1,302,000 starting on Oct. 1. The current guaranteed loan limit is $1,214,000.

"FSA is committed to providing credit through guaranteed and direct loans to eligible farmers and ranchers who need capital to continue or start their agricultural operation," said McCauley.

Emergency grazing program extended

A two-month extension has been approved for emergency grazing on Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) acres, freeing up forage and feed for ranchers affected by the recent drought. This flexibility for ranchers marks the latest action by the U.S. Department of Agriculture to provide assistance to producers impacted by the drought, which has included opening CRP and other conservation acres to emergency haying and grazing, lowering the interest rate for emergency loans and working with crop insurance companies to provide more flexibility.

USDA is permitting farmers and ranchers in drought stricken areas, such as Crittenden, Caldwell, Lyon, Webster and Livingston counties, to extend grazing on CRP land through Nov. 30, without incurring an additional CRP rental payment reduction. The period normally allowed for emergency grazing lasts through Sept. 30.

The extension applies to general CRP practices (details below) and producers must submit a request to their Farm Service Agency county office indicating the acreage to be grazed. Expanded haying and grazing on CRP acres, along with usage of cover crops, has begun providing much needed feed to benefit all livestock, including dairy.

Troop 30 gains Eagle Scout

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

Logan Smith, 18, of Marion, never thought he would be successful in the Boy Scouts. When he first joined Troop 30 in Marion he did it because a friend encouraged him.

But after eight years in the scouts he finally became an Eagle Scout. For Harris this was an achievement in the works.

“Only two in every 100 scouts become an Eagle Scout,” Harris said. “So the prospects don’t look that good.”

Harris said his true calling in Boy Scouts was hiking. He said he really enjoys walking and exploring wild places. One of his favorite badges is the hiking badge, which requires five 10-mile hikes and one 20-mile hike to achieve. His favorite place to go hiking is on the North-South Trail in the Land Between the Lakes.

“I really like the hiking and all the campouts we go on,” Harris said.

Now that he is an Eagle

Scout, he wants to help other scouts make their way through the ranks.

“I gave a talk the other night to the rest of the troop about what it takes to be an Eagle Scout,” Harris said. “It is a lot of commitment.”

For his service project Harris built a fence around the building known as Bobcat Lodge, which houses members of Marion’s collegiate baseball team. He said that was a good way to give back to the community and to a program that many locals appreciate.

Harris’s mother, Carolee Harris, said she is very proud of her son. She said her son has always enjoyed camping and taking walks in nature.

“When he first started he was very afraid he would not be able to finish because of the swimming component,” Carolee Harris said. “But he eventually overcame that fear.”

Harris said swimming has always been a challenge for him. But that did not deter him. When he decided to become an Eagle Scout he knew that would be his biggest challenge.

Harris currently holds 57 badges on his sash. In fact, there are almost too many to fit according to his mother.

Harris graduated from Crittenden County High School in May and currently attends West Kentucky Community and Technical College. He said someday he wants to be an accountant.

Helping Hands prepares for winter

Livingston County food bank under seasonal stress

BY JOHN WALKER
PRESS REPORTER

Livingston County Helping Hands is gearing up for its big seasonal food drive this Fall and Winter. Many residents around Crittenden County may have already received a letter asking for donations.

Detra Coley, secretary of the board of directors for Helping Hands, said this is the time of year Helping Hands starts to see more people show up for help. In turn, Helping Hands turns to the community to be more helpful than usual.

“The closer we come to Christmas the more people we will see,” Coley said. “There are many seniors who come out looking for help and we want to be there to help them.”

She said there are many in Livingston County who just do not have the financial resources to make it through the holiday season.

“Many of these seniors we see come here want to have a good Christmas dinner with their families and do not want their families who are visiting to have to help them with supplies and goods,” Coley said.

Helping Hands does its best to buy its food in bulk from local stores in Smithland, but will many times have to resort to Wal-Mart and The Dollar Store. She said she cannot get a discount at Wal-Mart like she can from some local places, but the store has been helpful in telling her when items will be on sale and ordering Turkeys in larger numbers than usual just for Helping Hands.

Coley said right now her organization only has enough money to supply food. She would like to see a local church or organization help supply more winter clothing or more hygiene products.

“We are currently operating on $4,000 less than we did last year,” Coley said. “But we are still looking for a way to give back and trying to work with other community groups and churches so we do not get set back too much.”

Coley has many stories to tell. But one story that she has kept with her recently is about two young children in Livingston

“We are currently operating on $4,000 less than we did last year.”

County who had to share a coat during the winter months.

“And you know, it was not until their teacher noticed the brother was coming into class every other day without a coat that anyone figured out what was going on,” Coley said.

She said that is just one story that keeps her going every year. But she also wishes Helping Hands had the funds to provide clothing. Right now they do well to provide the amount of food being asked for.

In order to receive a food kit from Helping Hands Food Pantry clients must first be certified as residents of Livingston County, and then must meet the income levels agreed upon by the bylaws of the organization.

According to Coley, it is hard for many people to rely on food stamps because they do not always fit the right income definition. That is when Helping Hands will step in.

“There might be someone out there who does not have a job, but then suddenly is employed for a couple of months,” Coley said. “And because of that employment they are suddenly no longer eligible for food stamps and now they have a hungry family at home.”

Coley said they hand out between 400 and 600 food baskets every single year. She said they are over saturated with cans of corn and green beans, and really needs to see some other donated items on the shelf this year.

Started in 1991, Heylping Hands currently has three volunteers and two part-time staff helping clients receive food kits. Livingston County Helping Hands is open from 8:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday at 509 Mill Street in Smithland.

Volunterrs work to retrieve Willard Easley from the passenger side of his truck last Wednesday evening. Easley swerved to avoid an oncoming vehicle on Ky. 91. He was flown to Western Baptist Hospital.

Drug coalition receives certificate for 10 years of service

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

In recognition of 10 years of service, The Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community received a certificate for its efforts toward prevention, treatment and education concerning drug and alcohol abuse in Crittenden County.

Substance abuse affects each sector of a society. An addiction affects both the addict and those around the individual. That's what officials say makes the initiatives of the Crittenden County Coalition so important.

It is composed of two boards, the Kentucky Agency for Substance Abuse Policy (KY-ASAP) and the Champions board. It involves representatives of several organizations, including but not limited to law enforcement, the Crittenden County School District, health care and the Cabinet for Health and Family Services.

The Coalition promotes many programs throughout the county. It funded the school district's contract with K9 Resources, a safety and prevention initiative that deters drug and alcohol abuse on school property. In November, the Coalition will participate in the American Medicine Chest Challenge, a national event that encourages people to clean out their medicine cabinets and properly dispose of medications.

On Sept. 10, Amy Andrews of the Kentucky Agency for Substance Abuse Policy (KY-ASAP) presented a certificate to The Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community in honor of 10 years of service to the community. Pictured from left are Coalition representatives and the agency they represent: Jan Gregory, Crittenden Hospital; Caroline Kieffer, community member; Brandi Rogers, co-chair; Amy Andrews, KY-ASAP; Ginger Boone, co-chair; Cheryl Burks, school district representative; Virginia Oldham, Pennyroyal Mental Health; and Renee Sizemore, Crittenden County Health Department.

The program works with local law enforcement to collect and dispose of unused or outdated medications.

Brandi Rogers is co-chair of the Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community. She says over the past three years, the program has collected and disposed of thousands of medications.

"We actually pay for an incinerator to be at the police department. We burn them all locally. There's no cost to community members," Rogers said, adding that police officers volunteer to help with the program. "It's very unsafe to keep prescription drugs that you are not utilizing. People will burglarize homes. So it's a good way to get rid of them."

Rogers said community support enables the Coalition to participate in needed prevention and treatment services.

The Boulware Mission in Owensboro assists adults in Crittenden County for treatment with alcohol, drugs or prescription medications. Individuals that receive treatment at the facility are provided with free scholarships.

"The majority of our treatment money goes to preserving beds at Boulware. So any Crittenden County resident that is a scholarship recipient will go for free. It's a treatment facility in Owensboro. They're the only one we're contracting with right now. But we hope to expand on that," Rogers said. "One thing we're really proud of is that we have five beds. Meaning we pay an annual contract fee to reserve those beds for Crittenden County residents. So if a person is ordered to attend treatment by the court system or if a person applies to the Drug Coalition to go to treatment on their own, we didn't want finances to ever be a barrier to someone who wants to get treatment. So it's paid for."

The Pennyroyal Center offers a DUI education and assessment program at night at the Marion United Methodist Church in addition to the services they offer during the day at the Cabinet for Health and Family Services building. Rogers said the DUI education and assessment program currently has 29 participants and 18 recent graduates.

Donations are welcome and may be sent to the Crittenden County Coalition for a Drug-Free Community, P.O. Box 22, Marion, KY 42064. Members of the community are encouraged to join the Coalition. Their next meeting is at 6:30 p.m., Nov. 12 at the Ed-Tech Center.

For more information on the Coalition contact Rogers at Frazer, Rogers and Peek Law Offices at 965-2261.

Crooked Creek homemakers host Sept. 11 meeting

Submitted by Wanda Rudd

Five members were present at the Sept. 11 Crooked Creek homemakers meeting, the first one of the new club year. President Sally Boyd opened the meeting. After the Pledge of Allegiance, members expressed feelings regarding the anniversary of the Sept. 11, 2001 attack on the country.

The club presented an angel and mum to Dot Boone in memory of her sister and fellow club member, Donna Rushing. Club members were saddened at the loss and expressed their deepest sympathy to Dot and all of Donna's family.

In June this summer, six members went to Morganfield for a tour of the Breckenridge Museum, and lunch at the Feed Mill Restaurant. Those attending were Boone, Boyd, Jeannie Hamilton, Kay Long, Wanda Rudd and Donna Rushing.

In August, five members attended the Crittenden County Extension Homemaker 64th Annual Meeting held at the Ed-Tech Center. Also in August, walker and wheelchair bags were given to the Crittenden County Nursing Home.

The lesson, "Photography 2012" was presented by Wanda Rudd. Sally Boyd gave an interesting mini-lesson on citizenship, asking questions that must be answered by a person seeking citizenship in this country. One hundred questions are on the test, and all questions must be answered correctly. It was rather humbling to realize that we couldn't answer some of the questions. Perhaps a history lesson would be in order.

Lunch and a great time of catching up was the last event, with Kay and Wanda serving as hostesses.

Homemakers learn about photography at meeting

Submitted by Tabby Tinsley

The After Hours Homemaker Club met Sept. 11 at the Crittenden County Extension office, with nine members in attendance. The evening's lesson was on "Photography 2012."

Club members learned several aspects of photography, including what to look for in selecting a camera, what to know once camera is purchased, how to take better pictures, how to download pictures, the different ways to edit pictures and all the many ways to store pictures. Members also discussed all the different ways to incorporate pictures into home décor.

Some of the advice for taking better pictures were to get closer instead of zooming; take pictures at different angles; take more than one picture (you can always delete later once you've uploaded pictures to your computer) and photograph people while they're doing something they love. Members also learned to teach their subjects to say "yes." The word yes is replacing the word cheese when taking a person's picture. Yes, is a more natural word for kids to shout out.

For more information on this topic, contact the Extension Office at 965-5236 or attend the new photography club starting at 6 p.m., Sept. 25 at the Marion Ed-Tech Center. The club is open to anyone of any age and for anyone with any level of photography knowledge.

Christmas is just around the corner and it's time to start thinking of Christmas gifts. The 2012 Homemaker Cookbook is in the process of beginning completed, and will make its appearance at Christmas in Marion Arts and Crafts Show on Oct. 20 at Fohs Hall. Cookbooks will be $10.

Another great gift would be a handmade quilt. The homemaker's are raffling a quilt that will be given away on Oct. 20 at the Shoppe on Carlisle. Tickets are $1 a piece and can be bought from any homemaker. Keep checking The Press for more information on Christmas in Marion and the NEW Shoppe on Carlisle!

Extension Homemaker week is October 7-13. Come out to the park from 5:30-6:30 p.m., Oct. 9 for our annual "Twilight Walk" around the park.

The Afterhours Homemakers Club would love to have guests join in for any or all of these activities. The After Hours Homemaker's group will meet at 5 p.m., Oct. 16 at the Extension Office. The lesson will be on "Blue to You" (depression).

Thank You

The family of Elizabeth Ann Thomas would like to thank all of our family, friends and neighbors for the numerous prayers, phone calls, flowers, gifts, cards and food during this tough time. We would also like to thank Bro. Mac Dossett for the kind words and message at the service. Thank you Richard Maxfield and Mac Dossett for the beautiful songs and music. Thank you to the Gilbert Funeral Home staff for making an incredibly sad and difficult time more bearable.

Our Ann captivated us all with her kind heart, infectious little giggle and relentless strength. Her courage and determination battling this horrible disease has been inspiring to us all. Never once would you hear her complain. Letting her go has been hard, but she was not ours to keep. Ann was on this earth to teach us all valuable lessons – lessons of faith, strength, love of others and the joy of living.

The light of her love and laughter now shines on us from heaven. We do not have her to hold, but we still see glimpses of her beauty and spirit in the faces of her children and grandchildren, and we will teach them the lessons she taught us.

Thank you, Debbie Heady, for these kind words in remembering Ann.

Bells Mines sessions reveal interesting church facts

Many, many years ago, attending and belonging to a church was very different from the ways of today. I'm not judging either way, but it is interesting, to say the least, to be able to have a source to look back on those days of long ago, when the church kept a watchful eye upon one's daily life and activities. If you were a member of that church and wanted to stay a member in good standing, you were held accountable for your actions. This article is the history of the old Bells Mines Cumberland Presbyterian Church, with a few of the actual minutes of their sessions copied from the original church record book.

Bells Mines Church History
There has been a Cumberland Presbyterian Church organization since the year of 1830 and down to 1846 when the log house church building burned. Lost were all the contents, including the Sunday school library and also the church records; therefore, the writer of this is unable to give correct data on matters pertaining to this primitive church as no records are at hand and the membership has passed away. The following is a list of original elders known which have served this primitive church but long since have passed away to their reward: David Lamb, John Newcom, Johnny Cain and Madison Lamb. After this church house was burned there were no regular services; the country was thinly settled and some of the members joined neighboring churches principally Nazareth in Union County and others have scattered to other parts.

The old Bells Mines about this time has started work in full blast but the majority of miners and laboring population was principally foreigners from all parts of Europe; there were English, Scots, Irish, French and Germans and all claiming to belong to some denomination. There were those who belonged to the church of England and Methodist, others were Roman Catholics and their priest came from Morganfield, read mass and preached and did other official duties to his adherence, about once in three months in private houses. Others also here claim the protestant and Lutheran doctrine, also there were a few Mormon followers. Finally the Methodist brethren got some preachers of their faith to serve them and meetings were held in some vacant house.

There was still no stand made to build a house of worship as the majority of miners and laborers left here every spring to some part of the country to obtain work, as there was no work during summer at the mines until in fall and winter season. The majority of the foreigners except Roman Catholics were always anxious to attend services and all would mingle and worship together. There were many great revivals conducted by the Methodist brethren and often conducted without a preacher. The writer remembers well when the following brethren, James Harvey Travis, Peter Clinton and Houseman Parr came down to conduct a prater service. It held on for two weeks and there were about 20 professions during aforesaid time.

On May 20, 1849, Bro. Jeremiah Wilson granted and sold to John Newcom, David Lamb and J. M. Lamb the three original elders, one acre of ground for the purpose of building a church house, thereon and in 1865 J.M. Lamb laid the foundation of the house. The progress of building said house was very slow and continued for several years.

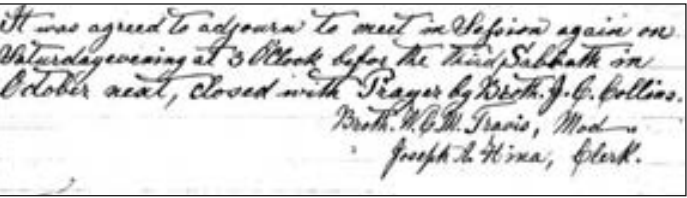

The building progressed according to donations of labor and money. All this time the people had to worship in vacant stores and other vacant houses at the mine; we did experience hardship and trouble for several years to bring the house to finish. It was very discouraging but finally the Lord put it on the heart of a brother to finish the meetinghouse, which he did in the summer of year 1891.

The house was dedicated on the fifth Sunday, Nov. 30, 1891, by Rev. M.E. Chappel, pastor of Fredonia Church; the dedication sermon was preached from John 4:24. After the sermon the following elders were called in to session, R.M. Adamson, Joseph A. Hina, J.R. Collins and F.J. Black to receive the charge to hold and keep in trust by them their successors for the Cumberland Presbyterian Church to rule, keep and take care of said property until their successors were duly appointed. History was written E. Jeffrey Travis, (1869-1952) in 1931.

Here are a selected few of the very interesting church session minutes that were kept during the early days of Pictured above is the old Bells Mine Cumberland Presbyterian Church. This building, from the year 1885 until December 2004, sat on its sacred place next to the Bells Mines Cemetery.

Church session met according to appointment and was convened with prayer by Rev. W.C.M. Travis, all the elders and deacons being present, with exception of elder J.C. Collins absent; after which we proceeded to business.

1. By reading the minutes of our last session, which was approved for record.
2. On motion it was agreed to dismiss Bro. John Bishop from our church roll, according to his own request.

3. Charges were brought against sisters N.B. Sarlls, and Betty Mick for dancing, and also charges were preferred against Sis. R.A. Sarlls for giving dances at her house. (Nannie B. Sarlls was the daughter of Rachael A. Sarlls)

4. On motion the following brothers were appointed to serve as a committee to see these sisters, Brother T.K. Black, R.M. Adamson, J.A. Hina and J.W. Imboden and to report at our next session.

5. We proceeded to the election of delegates to represent our congregation at our next Presbytery at Sugar Grove. We elected Brothers R.M. Adamson, principle and T.J. Black, alternate.

6. Moved and seconded to adjourn to meet again on Saturday evening before the third Sabbath in April 1890. Closed with prayer by brother R.M. Adamson. Rev.

W.C.M. Travis, mod., J.A. Hina, clerk.

Bells Mines Church
July 5, 1890

Church session met according to appointment on Saturday evening before the first Sabbath in July. Opening prayer by Pastor Rev. W.C.M. Travis, elders J.C. Collins, T.J. Black and J.A. Hina being present, Bro. R.M. Adamson absent and Rev. W.B. Crowell from Cave Spring being present and invited to a seat in the Session.

We proceeded to business with the report of the committee; that we suspend sisters N.B. Sarlls and Betty Mick for an unlimited time; Brother T.J. Black is chosen to notify those sisters of their suspension, but if they come to our next session to make an open confession or in writing, that we would hear them.

Business preceded by reading the minutes of our last session, which was adopted for record.

The committee on Sis. R. A. Sheeley's case was called on and made the report, the report was satisfactory received and the committee discharged; but the case of sister Sheeley continued, that she should appear at our next session.

The committee on the suspending of those sisters made the report and was satisfactorily received and discharged on motion it was agreed, that we instate to our membership sisters N. B. Sarlls, as she being present at our Session and made a open acknowledgment. The case of Sis. Mick is continued.

The report of committee's on the case of John W. Imboden was received and the committee discharged; on motion it was agreed to suspend and depose J.W. Imboden for one month. (Mr. Imboden must have had a change of heart, for earlier he was a member of the committee to check on the sisters for dancing.)

Joseph A. Hina, the Clerk of Session, that took the minutes for each meeting, held this position from 1888 to 1913, except for a three-year period. His penmanship is beautiful to see.

Next week we will learn more of the Hina family and other families that lived, worked and died in the old coal-mining town and were buried in the Bells Mines Cemetery. Many names that once were familiar to the county, now no longer exist in our county.

Beatitudes intent to increase happiness

I would like to begin a series of devotionals on a portion of the Lord's "Sermon on the Mount."

In Matthew 5:1-2 we read, "And seeing the multitudes, he went up into a mountain: and when he was set, his disciples came unto him: And he opened his mouth, and taught them, saying," (KJV) So here we have Jesus Christ, the greatest preacher this world has ever known, delivering a message to His children that is of tremendous importance.

The subject that I want to focus attention on is known as "The Beatitudes." These beatitudes are intended by our Lord to increase the happiness in the life of the child of God. I'm so glad that the Lord Jesus cares for and is concerned about the well being of His children. If we allow these beatitudes from our Lord to saturate our hearts and lives, we will be happy in our life on this earth.

First, the Lord declares "a blessing" in these verses. He says "Blessed are," which means "to be happy; to have inner peace and joy." It's the kind of happiness which cannot be taken away from you. Have you ever known of someone who was going through a lot of difficulty, but they were so pleasant to be around and you marvelled at how happy they were in spite of their troubles? This is the happiness that is the "birthright" of every child of God. By contrast, we've known of people who seemed to "have it all," yet they were so unhappy and miserable as they lived their life day by day. Let me say right here that "Jesus is right for whatever is wrong in your life."

Also, the Lord Jesus discloses for us just who are being blessed. He says, "the poor in spirit," "they that mourn," "they who hunger and thirst," "they who are persecuted" and so on. These are known as being "paradoxical," or in other words, not of normal opinion.

We don't normally think of these conditions as being sources of true happiness. Yet, God's thoughts are not our thoughts and His ways are not our ways. The Word of God declares that God's thoughts and ways are so much higher than ours. These beatitudes are teaching that in order for a person to find real happiness and joy, they must give all of themselves to the Lord Jesus.

Finally, the Lord describes the blessings that are promised to those who allow the Lord to work in their lives in these ways. Over the next several weeks, I want to bring to your heart how that, we as a God's children, can know true happiness in such a troublesome and tragic world in which we live.

If you don't know Jesus Christ as your Savior, let me say that the Word of God tells you in John 3:16, "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (KJV) Won't you repent to God and trust Jesus Christ today as your personal Lord and Savior? You can begin knowing what it is to be truly happy in this walk of life. It's our prayer that you will.

Durham is the pastor of Sturgis Baptist Church.

Mobile phone hunting
Surfing for hunting and fishing information with a smart-phone just got easier. The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has started a new mobile-friendly website designed for outdoors enthusiasts on the go. The new site is located at <http://fw.ky.gov/mob>. Kentucky Fish and Wildlife's mobile site offers a variety of useful features. Users can click the fishing icon and a GPS-enabled program will let them know where to find the closest places to fish. A link will even provide a map and directions to get there. By selecting the hunting icon, people can use their smart-phone to buy a hunting license, telecheck a deer and quickly find season dates for all game. For those looking for a place to hunt, the WMA look-up section provides instant information about public hunting lands. The site links to maps and driving directions for each property. Other features include a contact icon for quick access to the law enforcement dispatch center.

Tilghman too much for Rockets; provides biggest loss since '67

STAFF REPORT
It equalled the worst home loss in more than 45 years.
The Rockets were virtually helpless against Tilghman's barrage of offensive weapons as the Rockets fell 54-0 in their worst defeat since 1994 when Russellville clipped Crittenden by the same margin. Only a 56-point loss to Owensboro Catholic in 1967 was worse over the last five decades.
"They just outclassed us," Rocket coach Al Starnes said. "That's all you can say. There's nothing else we could have done. Tilghman is a very good football team."
In fact, the pain was so great Starnes said neither his coaching staff nor his team would be watching videotape of the game.
"I don't know what good it would do us," Starnes said about foregoing the customary Monday review of the game tape with his team.
"We're putting this game behind us and moving on to Reidland, which will be our first district game," Starnes said.
With Tilghman quarterback Jordan Tyler on the sideline nursing a bad knee, the visiting Tornado, ranked among the state's Top 5 in Class 3A most of the season, turned to its running game to easily dispatch the Rockets last week. The win for Tilghman ended a two-game losing streak after back-to-back losses to Mayfield and Graves County.
In fact, the Tornado had a short

Tilghman scored on all but one possession, posting seven touchdowns and two long field goals by junior kicker Miles Butler. Tilghman also returned two punts for touchdowns and racked up 278 yards on offense.
Backup quarterback Aaron Armstrong was solid in his debut behind center, completing 3-of-7 passes for 59 yards, but it was third-team QB Jessie Dunigan who had the game's only passing touchdown late in the game on a 16-yard strike to Sayven McEwen.
Joeshawn Starks, who was recently ruled eligible by the KHSAA, scored a touchdown, rushed for a team-high 62 yards and led the team in receiving with 38 yards.
The Tornado defense smothered the Rockets (2-2), who were playing without starting tailback Grant Gardner, who had rushed for more than 100 yards in each of his first three games this season. Gardner was out with a hip injury, but expected to be back in action next week against Reidland. Without him, Crittenden managed just 47 yards on the ground and only five first downs. Crittenden County was unable to move the ball, but tried to keep drives by calling plays on fourth down. The Rockets converted one fourth-down pass on a fake punt, but two running plays on fourth down gave Tilghman great field position.
In fact, the Tornado had a short field all night. Only once on nine possessions did they start a drive from their own territory. The Rockets fumbled twice in the game, but both turnovers came late in the fourth quarter after the outcome was firmly determined.

Brenden Phillips led the Rockets with 30 yards rushing and Bobby Knox caught a pass for 36 yards, a team high receiving. His pass came on a fake punt from Noah Dickerson to keep a short-lived drive going.
Butler, Tilghman's kicker, made five extra-point kicks in the contest, and kicked field goals of 37 and 35 yards.

THIS WEEK: Rockets at Reidland, 7:30 p.m.

Friday at Reidland 7:30 p.m., kickoff

CRITTENDEN ROCKETS
Class 2A District 1
Injuries: Grant Gardner (hip) probable; Zach Tinsley (ankle) will play; Brenden Phillips (toe) probable.
Game Notes: The Rockets lead the series 13-12-1; however, Crittenden has dominated it in the past 20 or so years with a more inspiring mark of 8-1 edge over the Greyhounds since coach Starnes has been at the Rocket controls. Crittenden beat Reidland 34-0 last year in their first meeting as Class 2A First District foes.
Game Plan: Rocket coach Al Starnes says this is where the real season starts for his Rockets. This is the first district game of the season and the Rockets should have everyone on the field, although perhaps not 100 percent healthy. Grant Gardner, who was out with a hip problem last week, is likely to play this Friday, but if there's a chance to rest him early expect to see more of backup tailback Zach Tinsley, who is now off the injured list. Sustained offensive drives are the keys to winning this game, Starnes explains. "We need another game just like Union County," he said. So watch for several carries by fullback Brenden Phillips and younger players like Dylan Hollis and Jacob Young.

REIDLAND GREYHOUNDS
Record (3-2)
Class 2A District 1
Reidland has played Fulton County and beat the Pilots both times. The 'Hounds beat cross-county rival Heath in a somewhat surprising 37-35 decision before losing their last two to Lake County, Tenn., and Lone Oak.
Key Players: Reidland has a strong running game bolstered by FB Austin Ringstaff. Cody McClintock and Tanner Fiser are also strong runners. QB Alex Almon does a fine job running the Wing-T offense, but don't expect him to pass much. He's completed about a quarter of his throws this season. Fiser and Jerren Brokaw are the top defensive players for Reidland.
Game Notes: This will be the final meeting of the teams as Reidland will no longer exist after this season. The 'Hounds with consolidate with the new McCracken County High School along with Lone Oak and Heath. Reidland is coached by Shaun Thomas, who took over when former skipper Jon Hedges went to Lone Oak as an assistant.

Sophomore running back Jacob Young (7) found precious little running room against Tilghman's highly touted defense. End Tre Coleman (31) is a college prospect.

Crittenden County tailback Zach Tinsley (44) finally got into the action Friday after nursing a bad ankle the first few weeks of the season.

KU, LG&E top list in economic development

STAFF REPORT

LG&E and KU Energy has been recognized as one of the top 10 utilities in the nation for economic development. Site Selection magazine, which delivers expansion planning information to 44,000 business executives across the United States, made the announcement recently.

The selection was based on a mix of criteria, including survey input from site selection decision-makers, as well as the utilities' website tools and data, innovative programs and incentives for businesses, job-creating infrastructure and facility investment trends in the utility's service territory. The magazine doesn't rank the Top 10; rather it names the 10 best utilities.

The company also was named to the Top 10 list in 1999, 2002 and 2003, and received honorable mentions in 2008 and 2009.

"Utilities play a key role as participants in the economic development efforts of cities, regions and all areas working to improve their local business climate," said Mark Arend, editor-in-chief of Site Selection. "This year's Top Utilities were particularly successful in this endeavor in 2011."

"This is a wonderful honor for us, again," said Cheryl Bruner, director of customer service and marketing.

Some of the information that explains LG&E and KU's selection included the 54 new companies and 272 expansion projects that were announced in the state in 2011.

Those projects resulted in more than 13,000 jobs and more than $2.6 billion in investment.

The LG&E and KU team helped many of those projects get to the starting line as viable and productive operations and then to the finish line.

Marathon man raising money for St. Jude

BY JASON TRAVIS
PRESS REPORTER

Neal Bryant is on a mission. The Crittenden Countian is currently training to run a marathon on Oct. 20 in Indianapolis. Bryant's motivation for running the marathon is to support the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. All donations received from fundraising will support the hospital.

Initially, Bryant's goal was to reach $1,000 in fundraising. He surpassed that goal quickly and has raised about $2,500. He credits individuals and businesses in Marion and Crittenden County for their support. His current goal is to raise $4,000 for St. Jude's Hospital.

While he has run half marathons before, this is his first full marathon. Preparing for the 26.2-mile event involves getting up and training at 3:30 a.m., most mornings. Depending on his routine, Bryant runs between 10 to 20 miles per day. That's not always easy for someone with a busy schedule. A father of two children, he and his wife Becky both teach at Crittenden County Elementary School.

Bryant became interested in running after working out at a local gym.

"I started losing weight and started running on the treadmill and as I got to running, I caught the bug. I just started running more and more. I started doing half marathons," he said.

He says developing the right program is essential for training. So is keeping hydrated and staying on a strict diet.

Training programs help build stamina and endurance for a 26.2 mile event. Bryant said it's also important for runners to never exceed 22 miles during a training day.

"A lot of the marathon training is about completely avoiding injuries as much as you can because so many people will push too hard. And if you get injured you can't run," he said.

Local individuals are helping by organizing fundraising opportunities. A gospel singing will be held later this month at the courthouse to raise money for St. Jude. Bryant said updates on dates and times will be available on his Facebook page.

Bryant is grateful to the many people who have already donated. He encourages anyone interested in donating to visit the website at mystjudeheroes.org/nealbryant. Individuals and businesses who have donated are listed on the site. Bryant said some donors have preferred to remain anonymous.

Families of children with illnesses are never turned away from treatment at St. Jude Hospital regardless of their financial situation. Bryant said supporting the hospital is important because of its commitment to children.

"St. Jude Children's Research Hospital spends $1.8 million a day to operate. And children are never turned away for financial reasons," he said. "I just love this particular charity."

Neal Bryant views an online site where donations may be made to his effort to raise money for St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. He is running a marathon to raise awareness and funds for the children's hospital. Bryant said 100 percent of the donations given to his cause will benefit the children's research hospital.

Judge Williams revokes probation for 5 in Crittenden Circuit Court

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden Circuit Judge Renee Williams revoked probation for a half dozen individuals last Thursday.

The court was methodical in its revocation process, declining pleas for second chances for virtually every defendant who went before the judge facing prison time.

Commonwealth Attorney Zac Greenwell commented more than once during the proceedings that the court had extended all of its possible resources to many of the individuals who had broken their probation agreements, and it was now time for those individuals to own up to their actions.

Probation was revoked and prison sentences administered for the following:

- Linda Ann Hubbard, 31, of Marion, who was revoked for not reporting to her probation officer in a manner spelled out in the terms of her probation.
- William Conrad Sharp, 25, of Marion was charged with additional criminal actions and lost his probation status.
- Rayln Hunt Wallace, 27, of Marion was charged with additional criminal actions and lost her probation status.

- Amanda M. Eisenhower, 25, of Madisonville had her probation revoked for failing to comply with terms of the agreement.
- Christy S. Robertson, 32, of Burna was sentenced to three years for probation violation.

In other court action, Michael Cruce, 45, of Marion was put on two years felony probation for theft of mail matter, receipt of credit card in violation of state law and two counts of theft by deception including cold checks under the amount of $10,000.

Crittenden County High School senior Megan Wheeler participates in the simulation where she tries to respond to a text message while driving on a busy highway. The Save a Life Tour teaches teens the dangers of texting while driving.

Teens try text simulation to learn real life dangers

Representatives from the Save a Life Tour met with Crittenden County students recently to discuss the importance of putting down their cell phones while driving. Officials told students that texting while driving leads to distracting your mind while on the road. To emphasize the point, students participated in a driving simulation where they had to respond to text messages while negotiating traffic on the roadway. "We go to high schools, colleges and military bases. We do presentations at high schools and talk about the dangers of texting and driving and cell phone use," said Cody Beerthuis, road manager for Save a Life Tour. "It's set up much like a real car where traffic is aggressive. There's a little iPod attached to the side. After 30 seconds they start receiving text messages that we have them respond to and try to answer while they continue driving and obeying the rules of the road."

Officials said the goal is to demonstrate to teen drivers that texting while driving leads to distractions and a single text message is not worth endangering their life.

Woman found okay after overnight scare

STAFF REPORT

About 100 emergency responders and volunteers spent day and night Saturday and Sunday searching for a missing Marion woman.

Katherine Stokes, a 27-year-old special needs woman, was located about 7:45 a.m., Sunday walking along U.S. 60 West near the site of the former Taylor Gas and Oil.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said the woman was frightened, scratched up and covered with ticks, but otherwise okay. They think she got the ticks and scratches while walking through a nearby wooded area.

Stokes had gone missing before noon Saturday. Her mother reported to Marion Police Department that the woman had left their home on foot following a verbal argument between the two.

She was last seen walking on West Elm Street toward the high school campus.

After the local rescue squad went door to door in the neighborhood without finding any further clues to Stokes' whereabouts, local authorities called in help from the Four Rivers K9 Search and Rescue unit. Dogs picked up and trailed Stokes' scent for a few blocks, but lost the trail near Old Morganfield Road.

Police also initiated a new program for the first time called "A Child is Missing." It's an automated phone call that rings homes in a one-mile radius from where the missing person was last seen. The police chief said the radius was later broadened when the initial "all-call" program to landline phones produced no leads.

O'Neal said the program may soon be expanded to include cellular phones.

"The second time, calls went out to Crittenden and surrounding counties," O'Neal said.

Police think Stokes crossed the school campus and Old Morganfield Road where she entered a wooded area behind Turner and Conyer Saw Mill. They believe she got lost in the woods and stayed there all night. At first light Sunday, she apparently found her way to the highway where an off-duty EMS worker saw her and initiated contact.

Billy Arflack, assistant director of emergency management, said several local agencies and volunteers deserve a great deal of credit for putting in long hours during the search.

Reward offered for missing cart

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County TipLine is offering a $500 reward for anyone with information leading to the arrest of the person or persons who stole a golf cart from Marion Country Club.

Anyone with information can call 965-3000 and remain anonymous.

Marion Police Department was notified about the missing golf cart Monday by owner Curtis Franklin, who told officers the cart had been stored at a shed at the golf course. It had last been used on Sept. 2.

Police said the battery-operated maroon Club Car is valued at about $2,000. A new set of batteries had just recently been installed on the cart. The rig also has custom wheels.

Marion Police Chief Ray O'Neal said whoever took the cart also took the battery charger, leading investigators to theorize that the burglars might have plans of selling it.

A cart was stolen earlier this year from the club, but it was later found on the opposite side of town after some teens took it for a joy ride.

Children who receive gifts through Community Christmas often remember the generosity of others, according to organizer Nancy Hunt.

"The thing we have seen that probably we've enjoyed the most is when people who are former recipients come back and become sponsors. The program helped them when they needed it and they are later able to help others," Hunt said.
