Friday final day for Victory Garden food

Friday will be the final day for distribution of fresh fruits and vegetables from the community Victory Gardens maintained and operated by inmates and staff of Crittenden County Detention Center. Throughout the summer, the gardens have distributed tons of produce to residents at no cost. Distribution will run from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the facility located behind the former Shopko retail center on Sturgis Road. Access can be gained from the store's parking lot.

Christmas charity eligibility ends soon

The time is drawing near for residents to qualify for Community Christmas assistance for their child under 18. All parents/guardians are required to take three enrichment credit classes to have those children's wish lists placed on the Community Christmas Angel Tree. Teens will receive a local store voucher. If you do not complete the required classes, you can still sign up but the wish lists will not be placed on the tree.

Crittenden County Intergency is the group in charge of this program. They have partnered with local clubs and organizations and began offering credit classes in January of this year. The deadline to complete those classes is Sept. 30.

Anyone interested in signing up for assistance – this includes senior citizens – will need to come to one of two sign-up sessions at Crittenden County Extension Service Office. Those will take place at from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 5 and Friday, Oct. 6.

You must sign up on one of these dates in order to receive assistance.

MPD makes arrest in home invasion

STAFF REPORT

Nine months after a home invasion and burglary that left one person injured, Marion Police Department has made an arrest.

Last week, Joshua Bean, 25, of Marion was taken into custody on a felony indictment warrant charging him with first-degree burglary, first-degree robbery and non-payment of fines.

Police Chief Ray O'Neal said Bean is a suspect in a Jan. 14 home invasion at 106 Conway Dr. The police investigation alleges that three masked men broke into the home just off North Weldon Street, held three residents at gunpoint and stole about $60 in cash.

O'Neal said an adult male and female and a juvenile female were home at the time. The victims' names have not been released because the investigation is ongoing. However, the chief said the juvenile and one of the adults sought treatment at the Crittenden Hospital emergency room following the incident.

The intruders busted open a door at the home then kicked open doors to two bedrooms where the family was sleeping, according to police records. The police chief said the victims were forced into a room together where the assailants ordered them to the floor at gunpoint and demanded cell phones, car keys and money.

The chief said the masked men were armed with handguns and fired one round inside the home as they were fleeing the scene. The gunshot did not strike anyone, but the juvenile was allegedly hit with a baseball bat during the assault.

Bean was a suspect during the early part of the investigation, and he allegedly fled town when police began closing in.

School levy up 1.9 cents per KRS

STAFF REPORT

State law requires a substantial school tax increase on Crittenden County property owners despite voters' overwhelming rejection last week of a higher levy to build a new high school. An additional 1.9-cent tax per $100 valuation will appear on 2017 tax bills mailed out this month.

Clark speaks to tax vote

Last week, county voters soundly rejected the board of education's "recallable nickel" tax increase to build a new high school and move middle-schoolers out of a 68-year-old building fraught with problems. The measure was defeated 1,485-649 and rolled back what would have been a 5.9-cent increase on school property taxes.

But in the event of a failed referendum, Kentucky law – specifically KRS 132.017 – requires a board of education adopt a tax rate that will generate 4 percent more revenue than in the previ-

Recipients must be 65 years of age and are nominated based on past outstanding contributions to their Catholic Parish. The winners are those who receive the most nominations. This was the first year both Woodalls were eligible.

401(k) not good pension reform

While I appreciate the governor's efforts to address Kentucky's pension challenges, I fear the proposals would only enhance our problems further. Kentucky's public pensions face very real challenges, but imploding the pension systems that provide benefits promised, and legally protected, to our current and retired public employees – city, county, state, teachers and other school staff – is not the way to solve the crisis.

Some Philadelphia consultants hired at $556,300 and paid nearly $1.2 million in Kentucky taxpayer money – you, literally, cannot make this stuff up – recently recommended switching most public employees to a 401(k)-type retirement plan as a way to “save” public pensions.

It's as if anti-pension ideologues are using the smoke screen of a “crisis” to get rid of what they've long sought – the dismantling of public pensions in Kentucky. Pensions aren't the enemy. It is the retirement plan 14 percent of Kentuckians depend on, according to The Lexington-Herald Leader.

The average pension benefit in Kentucky is $1,983 a month, or $23,791 per year, according to the National Institute on Retirement Security. A less secure retirement from a 401(k)-type retirement plan would cause an increase in public welfare spending as more workers retire into poverty. Pensions also support local economies and help Kentucky communities thrive. The institute found that each $1 paid out in pension benefits supports $1.43 in total economic activities in communities like Henderson.

Shifting public employees to a 401(k)-type retirement plan would not reduce the liabilities but will make the funding challenge worse, according to a report by the Kentucky Center for Economic Policy. It would also undermine the Commonwealth's ability to attract a skilled workforce and would weaken local economies. Kentucky public employees already make less in total compensation than comparable workers do in the private sector, according to the report.

A switch to 401(k)-type retirement plans would close the existing pension plans to new members, which would lower investment returns on the existing plans' assets over time, according to the report. That would increase the costs to pay down the unfunded liabilities – exactly the opposite of the goal I thought we were trying to achieve.

One needs to look no further than the states that have closed their pension systems to learn of the costly ramifications that follow. In 1997, the Michigan State Employees' Retirement System pension plan was closed and new hires were placed in a 401(k)-type retirement plan, like the one those Philadelphia consultants recommended for Kentucky. At the time of the closure, the pension was funded at 109 percent, according to the National Public Pension Coalition. With no new employees paying into the pension and an aging demographic, plan costs soared and the funding level dropped. By 2012, the plan was severely underfunded at 60.3 percent, according to the coalition. After 20 years under the 401(k)-type retirement plan, the state's Office of Retirement Services found that the median balance in these accounts was just $37,260.

While Michigan continues to suffer the consequences of the pension plan's closure, other states have realized the error of their ways and taken steps to reinstate closed plans. In 2005, West Virginia reopened its pension system for teachers after closing the plan in an attempt to improve funding levels in the early '90s, according to the coalition. In less than a decade after the reopening, funding levels more than doubled and teachers now enjoy access to a secure, dignified retirement.

Coming from a family of teachers, I have always been an avid supporter of public employees. I will actively oppose any change in public pensions that violates what the Kentucky Supreme Court has ruled to be an irrevocable contract.

Gov. Bevin has promised that he is going to call us into a special session to address the pension issue. Thus far, I have not seen a proposal from the governor or the Republican leadership, but be assured, I will keep you up-to-date on any developments.

We will return to Frankfort Jan. 2, 2018, for the budget session. I encourage you to stay in touch to share your input on the issues facing our commonwealth. Quips offer relief, maybe even chuckle Reprinting things I find on the internet, in social media or receive in emails is not a common practice. However, my good friend Dulcie Hardin sent me something a few days back that warrants sharing.

Not sure who originally authored the snippets below and I doubt any particular person did so. Let's just assume they're in the public domain and I am not infringing upon anyone's intellectual property.

At a time when we need a little relief, a smile or a chuckle, I think these do the trick. So here ya go.

difference of several hundred dollars. It also will offer a $75 charge for self-pay patients, and if a child needs a sport physical, the clinic will offer those for just $25.

For the hospital, not only will it increase traffic at the facility, but it could boost Medicaid reimbursements. Currently, Medicaid does not reimburse health care providers for many emergency room visits deemed treatable through clinic care like sore throats, headaches, flu-like symptoms and minor burns.

The clinic will be located within the emergency room at the local hospital, where a patient's needs will be assessed by medical staff to determine if treatment at the walk-in clinic will suffice or if the ailment needs immediate attention in the ER. Typically, walk-in clinic candidates will come to the hospital with sore throats, colds, muscle strains, ear pain, headaches, burns, lacerations and other minor injuries.

"Since the walk-in clinic is being operated through the emergency room, all patients will be triaged to ensure they are being treated in the most appropriate setting," assured Klarner.

The walk-in clinic will see patients of all ages from children over the age of 2 to the senior adult. Because of potential complications with ailments for infants and toddlers, all youth under the age of 2 will continue to be treated through the emergency room.

For those concerned about the level of care through the walk-in clinic, Klarner said patients will be seen by the same providers they would if they were treated in the ER. Drs. Eric Brown, Scott Graham, Jonathon Maddux, Amy Ratley and Thomas Rousseau and Physician's Assistant Joey Jones will be covering the walk-in clinic.

Klarner said the idea for the clinic was born from a community needs assessment conducted last year when a need for urgent care service was identified. Increasing traffic at the struggling facility is also clearly a goal.

While there have been rumors of low patient counts in recent weeks at the 48-bed facility – as low as zero beds filled on multiple days – Klarner said the outlook is not so dire. Since the start of the fiscal year that ends Sept. 30, the average daily census is eight acute patients and two outpatients. In fact, on Monday, 11 beds were filled.

"It ebbs and flows," Klarner explained.

Yes, transparency with election is key

To the editor:

I totally agree with your editorial (My 2¢ Worth, "Campaign funds should be public," Sept. 14 issue of The Crittenden Press) that groups need to be more transparent with their activities, whether financial or otherwise.

In hindsight, as a member of the Citizens Against Tax Increase for a New School we should have registered with the Kentucky Registry of Election Finance, but it was our understanding that amounts contributed on behalf of Citizens Against were well below the $1,000 limit and, therefore, not required to report. The fact is, we spent $443.10 on this campaign donated by seven people and all of that information and receipts were submitted to the Registry Board.

Transparency needs to be extended beyond campaign finances to other issues as well. Such as, did the school board know they were going to have a budget shortfall and the state would automatically raise the property taxes by 4 percent before the election and withhold that information? Respectfully, this question is just that – a question. I would like to know that answer.

When people don't trust, they respond as our county voters did at the polls.

Leitchfield couple wins Jeep from KSP

Roger and Judy White of Leitchfield were the winners of this year's Kentucky State Police raffle for a 2017 Jeep Wrangler Unlimited Sahara Winter Edition 4x4. They were presented the keys Monday in Frankfort.

The Whites won the vehicle in the annual KSP Trooper Island Raffle, which raises funds for the agency's free summer camp for underprivileged boys and girls age 10-12 on Dale Hollow Lake in Clinton County. Each year, the camp hosts approximately 700 children, providing good food, fresh air, recreation, guidance and structured, esteem-building activities designed to develop good citizenship and positive relationships with law enforcement officers.

Each year, tickets are on sale across the state, and in recent years, The Crittenden Press has been a location where tickets could be purchased.

Tuesday earthquake centered in Illinois

A pre-dawn earthquake could be felt in Marion and most of Crittenden County Tuesday. The magnitude 3.8 trembler was centered 75 miles north of Marion near Albion, Ill., along the Wabash Valley Seismic Zone.

Locally, only one person from Marion had reported the shaking to the U.S. Geological Survey's "Did You Feel It?" database, but others in Livingston County and Paducah had reported the quake. One local resident said they did not feel the earthquake, but heard dishes rattling.

On Friday around 11:15 p.m., a magnitude 3.1 quake was registered by the USGS in virtually the same spot.

The Wabash Valley Siesmic Zone, generally fairly active, straddles southern Indiana and Illinois and is responsible for most of the earthquakes felt in Crittenden County despite the location's proximity to the more notable New Madrid Seismic Zone.

Union J-E Jenkins indicted by feds

Union County Judge-Executive Jody Jenkins was indicted last week by a federal grand jury.

He is accused of four counts of scheming to defraud the citizens of Union county, using his official position to "enrich himself by soliciting and accepting gifts, payments and other things of value from a person identified as J. H., in exchange for favorable official action and for J. H. to enrich himself by secretly obtaining favorable official action for himself and his clients through corrupt means."

The incidents allegedly took place between March and July 2014. He reportedly solicited and accepted cash payments of about $200,000 from an individual for the purchase of heavy equipment below market value paid for by Union Fiscal Court funds, or taxpayer dollars.

If convicted, Jenkins could face no less than 20 years in prison for each count and fined $1 million. No court date has been set.

TDS now improving Livingston internet

Construction is now underway to expand and improve broadband to more than 1,400 locations in western Kentucky, including Livingston County. TDS Telecom began work in January in portions of the county. Construction is expected to be complete in the summer of 2018.

The Federal Communications Commission (FCC) allocated $2.2 million each year to reach residents in some of the hardest to serve areas in Kentucky. The funding will also be used to maintain a voice and broadband network as well as building out to these locations. The FCC's Alternative Connect America Cost Model (A-CAM) will provide funding to more than 1,400 locations in western Kentucky with hundreds of additional families receiving benefits from the network upgrade.

Kentucky residents can visit <https://goo.gl/UvJ6sd> to find out how this federal program may impact their location.

"We are excited to bring faster connections to customers in portions of Livingston County," said Bruce Mottern, manager for State Government Affairs at TDS.

Conservation district poster contest starts

When people think about dirt, a mess usually comes to mind. But in reality, our whole lives are dependent on the dirt – or soil – around us. Without healthy soil to grow food or materials to build with, our lives would be very different.

Crittenden County Conservation District and its co-sponsor, the National Association of Conservation Districts, offer this year's Soil Stewardship poster contest, "Healthy Soils are Full of Life," which focuses on why healthy soil is necessary.

Students in grades K-12 are encouraged to submit a poster that informs and is visually appealing. In addition to bringing information to the community about this important topic, the contest features monetary prizes at the local, state and up to national levels.

The Conservation District has a flyer with additional information, resource links, and the contest rules. There is also an entry form that can be picked up at the office on East Bellville Street in Marion.

The deadline to submit posters to the Conservation District Office is Friday, Oct. 6. Call (270) 969-3069 for more.

City seeking fix for Country Club Drive

STAFF REPORT

The City of Marion is still considering the fate of a deteriorating Country Club Drive.

On Wednesday, the city's Subcommittee on Streets and Alleys was scheduled to discuss the future of the half-mile street, which is the only way to access Crittenden County Elementary School. The meeting was set to begin at 5 p.m. at city hall, with the public invited to attend to the meeting.

"We want to give people a chance to come, hear and talk," said Marion City Administrator Adam Ledford. "I think it's important to know that the focus during this event will be the impact on businesses. It is meant to help the committee come up with a recommendation to the full council."

A suggestion by Marion City Councilman Mike Byford is to lower the speed limit, perhaps from 45 mph to 30 or 35 mph, to reduce wear and tear from heavy trucks and make it less enticing as a cutoff between U.S. 60 West and U.S. 641.

Like with proposed weight limits, new rules for the road present an enforcement issue.

In August, the road was temporarily closed while repairs were made to fix a 275-foot area of failing asphalt. At the time, Marion City Council voted 4-2 to close the end of the street at its junction with Chapel Hill Road in order to prevent heavy through-traffic damaging the street. The next week, though, the council reversed course to reopen the street to all traffic after repairs.

At least two council members seem to still want to dead-end the street at Chapel Hill Road, hoping to force the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet's hand to either take over maintenance of the street or rework a troublesome intersection at the U.S. 60-U.S. 641 stoplight.

Clark addresses school tax failure

NEWS RELEASE

Last Tuesday's defeat of the recallable nickel tax may have extinguished an avenue of opportunity for Crittenden County schools, but it will not hinder the district's goal to empower and engage its students. According to Vince Clark, Crittenden County Superintendent of Schools, they are at the heart of every decision made.

Clark

"It's disappointing," said Clark of the defeat. "We missed a real opportunity to invest in our students and our community. Despite the outcome, however, we will continue to give our best every day to our students as we provide the best possible education with the resources we have for as long as we can."

Clark said the failed vote has closed the door on replacing the 1949 middle school with a new high school and the $3.1 million state match. Additionally, as a result of the failed nickel, Kentucky Revised Statute (KRS) 132.017 requires a board of education to adopt the tax rate that will generate 4 percent more revenue than in the previous year. Clark explained that the required increase is not a decision by the school board, but rather one that occurs automatically by KRS 132.017 through KDE and that it is not associated in any way with recent cuts in education implemented by Gov. Matt Bevin. The board will be discussing the best use of these additional tax dollars and investing them for the benefit of students and the future of our community.

The second nickel defeat has left many in the county questioning the next steps for the school district. According to Clark, there is little to discuss at this time.

"Unfortunately," said Clark, "there are limited options at this time. We must wait until our bonding potential grows to consider any building possibilities and hope, in the meantime, that our current structures do not fall victim to need of major repairs."

Clark stressed that the district's maintenance team and custodians have done an outstanding job of keeping the nearly 70 year-old building functional.

Moving forward is a priority, according to Clark, and he is grateful to his board and staff for their commitment to students every day. "We have outstanding teachers and staff who tirelessly work to provide our students with the knowledge and resources they need to compete in a constantly-evolving world," said Clark.

"That won't change," he added. "The people in this district care about kids and keep them at the heart of every decision made. We will continue to live out our mission and 'be the difference' for every young person in our schools."

ous year tax year. In this case, the 2017 real property levy will jump to 48.2 cents per $100 valuation from 46.3 cents in 2016. For the average homeowner in the county – based on the median home value of $76,000 – this will be an additional $14.50 in property taxes to the school district's general fund.

In a news release issued by the school district this week, Superintendent of Schools Vince Clark explained that the 4 percent revenue increase through the 1.9 cent tax bump is not a decision made by the school board, but rather one that occurs automatically by statute.

"As to why they mandate the 4 percent rate?," Clark speculated. "I'm guessing that Frankfort expects each (board of education) to take the maximum each September to lessen the burden on state officials."

Had the nickel tax been approved last week, the 5.9-cent increase would have amounted to almost $45 more annually for the typical homeowner. However, with the state-mandated 1.9-cent bump, there is no matching money from the state and the additional revenue is not restricted to school construction like the nickel tax would have been.

The nickel tax would have generated an additional $3.4 million in bonding (borrowing) potential for the local school district matched by $3.1 million from the state if lawmakers approved the grant in the General Assembly next year. Actual additional revenue would have been about $229,000 annually, of which 100 percent would have been dedicated to funding construction. Now, the mandated 4 percent revenue increase will generate roughly $75,000 in additional revenue for the district, which can be spent as any general funds can.

Clark said careful consideration will be given to that spending.

"The (board of education) will be discussing the best use of these additional tax dollars and investing them for the benefit of our students and the future of our community," Clark said.

The school district will owe the county $20,695 – per County Clerk Carolyn Byford's office – to pay for last week's special election.

The mandated increase resulting from the failed nickel tax vote was not widely discussed prior to last week's vote, though both Clark and board Chairman Chris Cook said they were aware of the mandate.

"I truly don't know that it was ever said at a meeting," Cook said. "That was not the intention, but it just was not our focal point at the time. In hindsight, we should have publicized that even ahead of the petition process but, our focal point was getting financing to build a new school."

KRS 132.017 (3) (d)

"If the ordinance, order, resolution, or motion fails to pass pursuant to an election held under paragraph (a) or (b) of this subsection, the property tax rate which will produce four percent (4%) more revenues from real property, exclusive of revenue from new property as defined in KRS 132.010, than the amount of revenue produced by the compensating tax rate defined in KRS 132.010, shall be levied without further approval by the local governmental entity or district board of education."

TRADEWATER MUSIC FESTIVAL DRAWS HUNDREDS TO COUNTY

Music goers from all over gathered as the first-ever Tradewater Music Festival took place Friday and Saturday. Organized by Winghaven Lodge owner Russell Edwards and his wife, Marion Tourism Director Michele Edwards, the festival brought in a good crowd of people. The spectacle featured many country-rock artists performing at the amphitheater, located on the scenic grounds near Winghaven Lodge.

Country Music Award (CMA) winner Jack Ingram started the show Friday night with 1993 CMA Best New Group Confederate Railroad and David Lee Murphy, among others.

On Saturday, Clarksville's Tim Lynch Band (bottom right) featured original tunes and favorites from Waylon Jennings to Led Zeppelin. Alongside their band was Princeton's acclaimed three-time International Thumb Picking Champion, Alonzo Pennington. Taking to the main stage, Pure Prairie League (bottom center and on stage at top) warmed up the crowd with some of their five consecutive top 40 hits. Up next was Merle Haggard's heir Ben Haggard with The Strangers (bottom left), who brought the crowd to their feet. Chris Knight of Slaughters grabbed the festival goers' attention shortly after. The Kentucky Headhunters kept the momentum going well into the night with their hits such as "Dumas Walker," "Spirit in the Sky" and "Walk Softly on this Heart of Mine."

Accompanying the music were many food and souvenir vendors, including Windows of Opportunity's barbed wire artist Sean Wallace, The Rural Route Bus, Carts Gone Wild, Mighty Meals on Wheels, Lips Sense, Molly's Mutts and many others who catered to those frequenting the event. It was said to be family and pet friendly, as people of all calibers and ages could be seen enjoying themselves at the festival.

During performances, many would flock to the stage, and some even partook in dancing later on in the day. One man said he was happy to be enjoying the music and in the company of good people, later suggesting that many others there shared his sentiments.

Gold Star symbols honored mothers who lost sons to war

Monday, Sept. 25, will be a national holiday most of us didn't even realize. It is National Gold Star Mother's Day. Crittenden County has had many Gold Star Mothers, but I have never seen one of the Gold Star flags. I wonder if any are still around anywhere stored away in an attic or closet?

Gold Star Mothers were mothers who made the greatest sacrifice in war – they lost a child, almost always a son, to combat.

The American Gold Star Mothers Inc. was formed in the United States shortly after World War I to provide support for mothers who lost sons or daughters in the war. The name came from the custom of families of servicemen hanging a banner called a Service Flag in the window of their homes. The Service Flag had a star for each family member in the United States Armed Forces. Living servicemen were represented by a blue star, and those who had lost their lives were represented by a gold star. On the last Sunday in September, Gold Star Mother's Day is observed in the U.S. in their honor.

The Gold Star Mothers was founded by Grace Darling Seibold of Washington, D.C.

When the United States entered World War I in 1917, George Vaughn Seibold, 23, volunteered, requesting assignment in aviation. He was sent to Canada where he learned to fly British planes since the United States had neither an air force nor planes. Deployed to England, he was assigned to the British Royal Flying Corps, 148th Aero Squadron. With his squadron, he left for combat duty in France. He corresponded with his family regularly. His mother, Grace Darling Seibold, began to do community service by visiting returning servicemen in the hospitals. It made her feel closer to her son.

Then suddenly the mail from George stopped. Since all aviators were under British control and authority, the United States could not help the Seibold family with any information about their son.

Grace continued to visit hospitalized veterans in the Washington area, clinging to the hope that her son might have been injured and returned to the United States without any identification. While working through her sorrow, she helped ease the pain of the many servicemen who returned so war-damaged that they were incapable of ever reaching normalcy.

But on Oct. 11, 1918, George's wife in Chicago received a box marked "Effects of deceased Officer 1st Lt. George Vaughn Seibold." The Seibolds also received a confirmation of George's death on Nov. 4 through a family member in Paris. They had heard nothing until his wife received the box of his effects.

On Sunday, Dec. 15, 1918, nine days before Christmas Eve, the following obituary appeared in the Washington Star newspaper:

"Lieut. G.V. Seibold Killed in Action. Battling Aviator, Recently Cited for Bravery in France, is War Victim. Lieut. George Vaughn Seibold, battling aviator, cited for bravery in action some time ago, lost his life in a fight in the air Aug. 26, last. His father, George G. Seibold has been officially notified of his son's death by the War Department.

"Lieut. Seibold was a member of the 148th U. S. Aero Squadron. He was first reported missing in action, though a number of circumstances led to the fear that he had been killed. Hope was sustained until now, how-ers traveled to France to view their sons' graves, and in 1936, President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed the last Sunday in September as Gold Star Mothers Day.

Most of our Gold Star Mothers' stories have been lost through the years or more likely, never were told. Here are two interesting articles about two of our Gold Star Mothers and how they handled their grief and channeled it into something for the betterment of their communities.

December 1936: Death Claims County's Gold Star Mother

Mrs. W.H. Ordway, 75, died at her home in the Crayne community. Mrs. Ordway had been for many years a resident of the Crayne community and was well and favorably known throughout Crittenden County. She bore the distinction of being the first Gold Star Mother in the county during the world war; her son, Ellis B. Ordway, was the first Crittenden Countian to be killed on foreign battlefields shortly after he was detailed overseas. Some years later, the local post of the American Legion was named in his honor. (Ordway was killed in action in World War I on July 26, 1918, and is buried Crayne Cemetery).

Mrs. Ordway was popular in her community and was always lending her efforts to the betterment of the community and giving freely of time and effort in all matters that would benefit or serve to enhance civic betterment and improvement, by doing so she was honoring the memory of her son who gave the ultimate sacrifice for his country.

Mrs. Julia Long Ordway is buried in the Crayne cemetery.

The Crittenden Press, 1980 article

Christmas was a bleak holiday for the George and Hattie Winn family in 1944. Their youngest son, Harold, was killed in France that year in World War II on July 13, 1944. The family had no reason to celebrate.

"I was grief-stricken; I felt as if my whole world had tumbled in. I was on the verge of insanity," Mrs. Hattie Winn, said. "Harold was my baby."

Mrs. Winn went into seclusion for a year after Harold's death, comforted only by a gardenia grown from a cutting he gave her when she visited him at Camp Wheeler in Georgia.

On their way to dinner at the Officers' Club one night, Lt. Winn picked three gardenia sprigs for her to wear. Mrs. Winn wrapped them in a napkin and brought them back to Kentucky to plant. From only a sprig it flourished and grew. She cherished the plant and the memories it held for her and her son.

Harold was soon assigned overseas. He wrote her from the trenches of France, "Mother, I don't want to be selfish, but I wish I could be home again between clean sheets." A short time later he was killed.

During the sad days when news was received of her son's death, the gardenias were neglected and the cherished gardenias died. This grieved Mrs. Winn and she thought of that bush back in Georgia from whence the blooms came. She wrote her son's commanding officer, and was first afraid to mail it afraid he would consider her just a silly sentimental woman. Finally, she did mail the letter asking for another cutting. But realizing the importance of the plant, the commanding officer of Camp Wheeler sent her the entire plant instead, with his "Kindest personal regards."

The gardenia bush was 4 feet tall and necessitated the buying of a small greenhouse. Even with such careful sending the plant lived only two years. With a greenhouse on hand, friends suggested the purchase of pot flowers. When Mother's Day rolled around, people asked to buy her flowers and with this, Mrs. Winn became a florist. She said that the new flower business "has given me a new lease on life. I always loved flowers," Mrs. Winn said, "and the beauty of them and the pleasure they gave to other people, helped me with my grief, and I found I didn't feel sorry for myself anymore."

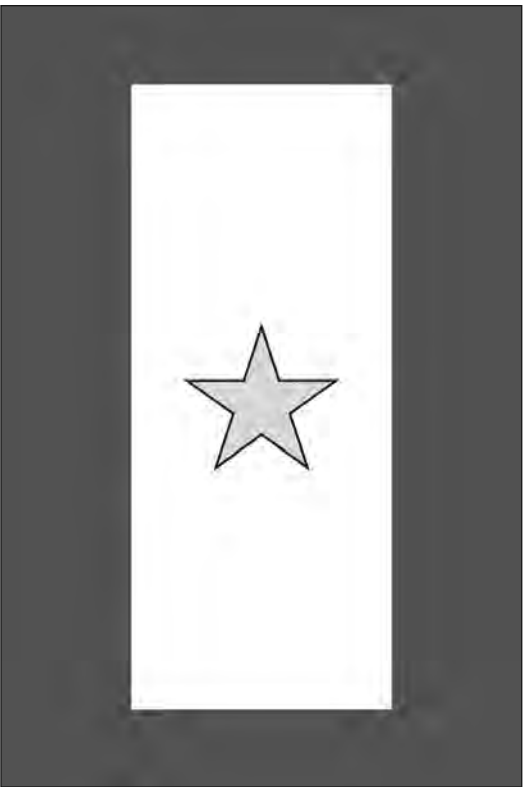

Mrs. Hattie Winn died in 1984 and is buried at Mapleview cemetery.

I can truthfully say, I think all our Gold Star Mothers from World War I and World War II are gone now, and we will never know their own stories of grief of the loss of the son or daughter, but it's nice to think of them on their special day, Gold Star Mother's Day, the last Monday in the month of September.

ever, by the failure to receive definite word. George's body was never identified."

Grace, realizing that self-contained grief is self-destructive, devoted her time and efforts to not only working in the hospital but extending the hand of friendship to other mothers whose sons had lost their lives in military service.

She was determined that no mother would be treated so callously again, and within the next decade, she organized a group consisting solely of these special mothers, with the purpose of not only comforting each other, but giving loving care to hospitalized veterans confined in government hospitals far from home.

The organization was named after the Gold Star that families hung in their windows in honor of the deceased veteran. After its 1928 formation, some moth-

Me, myself destroys me, you

How can this be? Very simple. It is explained thoroughly in the Scriptures. As you read the following, you will see how this sin destroys self and all others.

Surely, looking at our nation, and around the world, we all can see how self, transcending all others, destroys civilization and brings God’s judgment down on us.

“This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come.

“For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boaster, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affections, word breakers, false accusers, without self control, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, proud, high minded, loves of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof.”

God is love, and when we leave loving others out of our lives, we leave God out, regardless of what form of godliness we try to claim.

And this self-centeredness as we see, also brings God’s judgment down on a world that does not obey Him and love our neighbor as ourselves.

Rev. Lucy TEDRICK
Guest columnist
Religious and Political Views

True Godliness causes us to love and be concerned for others as He is.

As even good citizens, it benefits us to care about others.

As God commands us, as Christians, to love others, this shows us love is a choice, a decision.

Christ so loved, that He died for each of us.

So if we have been born again, and filled with God’s Holy Spirit, then we have the Spirit of Christ.

The standard of judgment is very simple. “If we have not the Spirit of Christ, we are none of His.” Romans 8:9.

The questions so often asked are: “How can we love those who are so mean to us?” Jesus did!

“How can we love those who are so evil and try to kill us?” Jesus did!

“How can we love those who break all the rules listed above?” Jesus did!

“How can we love those trying to destroy America?” Jesus did!

“How can we love those so sexually subverted in their lives?” Jesus did!

As has been stated, love is a choice, just as everything else is.

Without Christ in us, we cannot love as He did.

Even then one helper is to feel sorry for that person who is difficult to love.

Another thing that helps is to remember, when we look or think of others who pose a problem: “Without God, there goes me!”

Besides, without God in us, life is not much punkin’, and I know!

Nothing, or no one, can fill that hole in our hearts and lives, but “Christ in us, the hope of glory.” Col. 1:27

Christ died for the ungodly, and while each of us were in sin, He died for us.

So if He loves us enough to have died for us, then we surely can love others for Him.

Baptists give $30 million to missions

Kentucky Baptists gave nearly $30 million over the past 12 months to get the gospel to the nations, including nearly $21.7 million through the Cooperative Program, surpassing the budget goal of $21.5 million. "Our churches are clearly bent on making sure everyone in the world hears the gospel," said Paul Chitwood, executive director of the 750,000-member Kentucky Baptist Convention. "These funds help cover the expense of keeping 3,600 international missionaries working in countries around the world, plus some 10,000 other missionaries who are sharing the gospel here in North America."

Nearly 2,400 Kentucky Baptist churches have forged a partnership to follow the biblical directive from Acts 1:8 to share the gospel in their local communities, across the state, throughout the nation, and around the world. The Cooperative Program, which Chitwood describes as "the greatest evangelistic initiative of our day," is the primary means through which that is achieved.

Thomas

Donald G. Thomas, 82, of Brownsburg, Ind., and formerly of Kokomo, Ind., died Friday, Sept. 15, 2017 at Brownsburg Meadows Healthcare surrounded by family.

He was born, the son of John Edward and Iris (Lofton) Thomas Sr., on Jan. 6, 1935, in a four-room house in the Hebron Community of Crittenden County. On July 4, 1953, he married Velma "Louise" King in the Marion United Methodist Church and she survives.

Following graduation from Marion High School, Thomas graduated from Evansville College with a bachelor's in business in 1956. While in college, he was a member of the ROTC and the Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity. After graduation, he served in the United States Air Force from 1956 to 1962 and then served in the Indiana Air National Guard. During his service in the Air Force, he went to flight school and flew a variety of planes, including the F86 Sabre, in which he exceeded the speed of sound and joined the Machbusters less than 10 years after he had walked a plow behind a mule. Later, he owned a private airplane, and his children fondly recall trips in their Navion, piloted by their dad.

Thomas went on to become owner of the Howard County Equipment Company in Kokomo, a John Deere dealership from 1962 to 1982. He also sold commercial real estate for Dorothy Edwards Realtors from 1983 to 1989 and worked in public relations for Kirby Risk Supply until his retirement in 1999. Upon retirement, he and Louise spent a lot of time between their home in Sarasota, Fla., their cabin in Crittenden County and their home in Indiana.

He was a member of Shiloh United Methodist Church, in Kokomo, for 48 years, where he served on numerous committees and as a lay speaker. He also attended the Church of the Palms in Sarasota, Fla., was a member of Calvary United Methodist Church in Brownsburg for six years and had re-joined his childhood home church, Marion United Methodist Church on July 2, 2017.

Thomas was a charter member and first president of the Northwestern Lions Club, president of the Kokomo Chamber of Commerce, member of the Rotary and served on the boards of St. Joseph Hospital, First National Bank (for over 20 years) and the Grissom Community Council. He also served on the Ivy Tech Foundation Board from 1996 to 2013, which included a term as chairman, was awarded an honorary degree from Ivy Tech in 2001 and was recognized as the Ivy Tech Community College's Benefactor of the Year in 2005.

His passions included flying, golf, his cabin in Crittenden County, people, but most of all, family. Thomas's biggest joy in life was his family. Everyone he met heard about his children and grandchildren. Don believed that strangers were friends in the making, and he loved getting to know people from all walks of life and had a gift of making everyone feel special. He especially had a passion for education and encouraged everyone he met to better themselves through education. Many people who met him throughout the years will remember him asking, "What is your five-year plan?" Don spoke frequently of the importance of having faith, family and friends in one's life.

In addition to his wife of 64 years, he is survived by his children, Denise Wagner and husband Marty of Brownsburg, Ind., Guy Thomas and wife Kathy of Brownsburg, Ind., Miriam Thomas of Kokomo, Ind., and Aaron Thomas and his wife Barb of Brownsburg; seven grandchildren, Jared Thomas, Samantha Wagner, Rachel Demerly and husband Ethan, Allison Wagner, Noah Thomas, Lydia Thomas and Grant Thomas; and great-granddaughter, Nora Demerly.

He was preceded in death by his parents and brother, John Edward Thomas Jr.

Friends are invited to visit with the family from 4-8 p.m. on Thursday, Sept. 21 at Shiloh United Methodist Church, 5741 W. 100 N., Kokomo. A celebration of life service will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23 at Gilbert Funeral Home in Marion, followed by a graveside committal service. Friends are invited to visit from 1 p.m. until the time of service on Saturday at the funeral home in Marion.

Memorials may be made to the Ivy Tech Foundation for the Don and Louise Thomas Scholarship, P.O. Box 1373, Kokomo, IN 46903, or the Marion United Methodist Church for the stained glass window refurbishment project, 112 S. College St., Marion, KY 42064.

Club celebrates 97th anniversary

"Wonder Woman was a Club Woman" was the theme for the Woman's Club of Marion's Sept. 7 membership event and 97th anniversary celebration. The program focused on how strong women have been and continue to be part of the club.

The theme "Wonder Woman was a Club Woman" was visible in the decorations, program and refreshments. Wonder Woman was a fitting theme based on how strong women can reach their goal and help others.

Wonder Woman is a fictional superhero that conquers peacefully and first appeared in American comic books in 1941. Later she had a TV series portrayed by Lynda Carter. In 2016 the U. S. Postal Service issued a Wonder Woman Forever stamp in honor of her 75 years. She has become popular again with the release of a 2017 movie.

Rebecca Johnson presented a PowerPoint presentation covering the club's 97 years. She was assisted by Brenda Underdown, county historian, and Linda Schumann for pictures and details of the history. The program focused on three of the 16 charter members of the Marion club and three of the current 50-plus year members, Margaret June Johnson, Judy Winn and Ethel Tucker.

Table decorations focused on the occupations of the three charter members: Mrs. Leaffa Wilborn, Mrs. E.C. Van Pelt and Miss Gwendolyn Hayes. All three of these women were employed outside the home. The same can be said for our current 50-year members who all operated businesses.

It has often been a misconception that club members do not work outside the home. Currently all club members are employed outside the home or have retired from various jobs. They do club work to help their community.

The planning committee included a display of ladies hats which were part of Woman's Club members attire in the early years until the 1950s and 1960s.

Refreshments for the evening included dishes served over the years at club functions. These included

Mary Beth Gobin (standing center) came dressed as Rosie the Riveter to highlight the Woman's Club of Marion's history during World War II. Rebecca Johnson and Linda Schumann (standing) presented information on the history of the club. Seated are Judy Winn and Margaret June Johnson, 50-plus year members of the Woman's Club of Marion. Both Winn and Johnson, along with Ethel Tucker, owned local businesses when they became members of the Woman's Club of Marion.

Porcupine Balls from 1930s, Flourless Chocolate Cake-1940s, Finger Sandwiches-1950s and Waldorf Salad-1960s.

Serving on the hostess committee were Schumann, Winn, Rebecca Johnson, Margaret June Johnson, Staci Blackburn, Mary Beth Gobin, Angel Henry, Rachel Holley, Nancy Lapp, Brandie Ledford and Brooke Winterrod. Kathy Bechler won the door prize from the hostess committee.

New member recruitment for fall will continue until Oct. 4. Anyone interested in receiving a membership application can contact any member or Nancy Hunt, club president at (270) 704-0057 or email huntnd1@gmail.com. The club's next meeting is at 1 p.m., Oct. 4 and the program will be Cheryl Burkes and students involved in the Crosswalk Learning Center at the high school. Other October events include a yard sale Oct. 6 and a booth at The Shoppe Next Door on Oct. 21.

Homemakers' project continues thanks to generous local woman

The Evening Bells no longer officially exists as a Crittenden County Extension Homemaker Club, but one of its projects lives on.

Years ago, the organization began making pillows for surgery patients at Crittenden Hospital and residents of Crittenden County Health and Rehab.

Pat Carter, one of the club's final members, said the pillows are comforting to patients who have just had surgery. "They like to hug them, have something to hang onto," she said.

Not long ago, a local woman with no ties to the Evening Bells Homemakers read about the disbanding of the club and asked if she could carry on their pillow-making project.

"This lady was a quilter and had all of this extra material lying around, and said she would like to make the pillows for us," Carter explains. "She is not tied to the club and doesn't want to be named, but we want her to know we appreciate her."

Last week, Carter and two other former Evening Bells Homemaker Club members, Merle Dunning and Algie Richards, delivered 96 pillows to Crittenden County Health and Rehab.

"She brought us the pillows and we attached a prayer card to each one and delivered them," Carter said. "There were 78 residents at the nursing home, so we delivered them to each person and explained the prayer cards."

Carter is pleased to know that although Evening Bells no longer officially exists, someone in the community is willing to carry on their work.

Pat Carter is pleased to know that a local volunteer is continuing her Homemaker club's tradition of crafting pillows for hospital and long-term care patients.

Mr. 35 leads golfers into regional tourney Monday

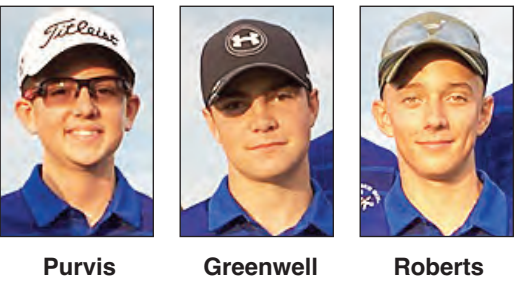

STAFF REPORT

Crittenden County's 13-year-old eighth-grader is making a name for himself around the high school golf circuit. Peyton Purvis shot a 1-under-par 35 last Thursday at Mineral Mound Golf Course.

It's the lowest score turned in this year by a Crittenden golfer and Coach Vicki Hatfield isn't surprised it came from Purvis. In fact, she wouldn't be surprised if any of the top three, including Sammy Greenwell and Tate Roberts, turned in a sub-par round more frequently.

Greenwell and Roberts have each turned in even-par rounds over the last couple of weeks and there are several other golfers pressing the leaders.

The team is coming down the final stretch of the regular season and headed toward next week's regional championships. The boys will play Monday at the Country Club of Paducah and the girls compete Tuesday at Miller Golf Course in Murray.

Sophomore Lauren Gilchrist has a chance to return to the state tournament. She qualified last year after shooting 10-over in the regional tournament at Calvert City. In the state tournament at Bowling Green, she tied for 96th. Her berth in the state tournament last year as a freshman was quite special. She became just the sixth female golfer to ever qualify for the finals.

Hardin thinks her boys have a shot this time, even the youngest members of the squad. The way Purvis is playing, he's a good bet.

"I call him Mr. 35," Hardin said after Purvis' sub-par round last week. "He is long and very good around the green. He's very athletic and has a pretty swing."

Purvis won a couple of Kentucky Junior PGA tournaments this summer and recently finished the Kentucky All A Classic in 39th place.

Greenwell and Roberts are just as capable. Both are freshmen, giving CCHS perhaps its best team in years and the heart and soul of the team are underclassmen.

"We have a chance," Hardin said about a state berth for any or all of the boys.

The club would need someone else to shoot a near-par round to give the team a shot, but individually there are greater possibilities.

With Lyon County's Cullen Brown among the field next week at the boys' regional, most believe everyone else is playing for second.

"They only take three individuals not associated with a winning team (to state)," said Hardin. "So with Cullen in there it only leaves two spots."

With a trio of talented young golfers who Hardin calls "maybe the best she's ever coached" there's plenty of reason to keep an eye on the leaderboard Monday when the region's players tee it up at Paducah.

Rocket 'D' annihilates Webster in 49-7 victory

STAFF REPORT

Coming off an unprecedented defensive effort, Crittenden County is back on the winning track and headed to Union County this week a bit unclear on how strong the Braves will be despite their undefeated record.

Union has beaten every opponent on its schedule, but the four teams they've knocked off – Marion County, Webster County, Madisonville and Ballard Memorial – have only four wins between them. Two of them are winless.

The Union-Crittenden matchup, at times characterized as the "Coal Bowl" because so many parents of players worked together in the mines, has been a bit lopsided lately with the Braves winning four straight. Crittenden is 6-24 all-time against Union County and Coach Al Starnes is 5-8 against the Braves.

The Rocket defense set the tone for the righting of Crittenden County's ship last Friday in its 49-7 victory at Webster County.

Although its offense has pulled most of the headlines through four games, Crittenden's defense was a mighty machine, tagging the Trojans for loss after loss until the game was solidly in hand.

Webster (1-4) never moved the chains against the first-team defense. It picked up its only first down in the fourth quarter against the reserves, and that's also when the Trojans posted their only score. In fact, Webster had just four positive-yard plays in the first half and had net negative-72 yards at the break.

Crittenden (2-2) scored on its first three possessions and 6-of-8 in the opening half.

Junior quarterback Hunter Boone threw three touchdowns, including one to freshman Caden McCalister for his first varsity score. Junior Ethan Dossett had six catches for 119 yards and junior running back Devon Nesbitt had 103 yards rushing and two touchdowns. Junior Branen Lamey scored twice via the ground and the air.

Lineman Brady Birk had a big night, too. He blocked a punt and made a tackle for loss on a bad punt snap deep in Webster territory. Both plays set up Rocket touchdowns. Birk's six solo tackles led the team while Sean O'Leary, Adam Beavers and McCalister added five apiece.

V-ball loses to Livingston

Crittenden County's volleyball team lost last week in straight sets to Livingston Central 25-22, 25-15, 25-20 at Rocket Arena. Crittenden is 3-8 on the season and played at home against University Heights Tuesday. Results from that match were not available at press time.

CCMS football loses at SH

Crittenden County Middle School's football teams were swept by South Hopkins last Thursday. The Rockets got a touchdown run from Preston Morgeson in the fourth quarter for its only TD to make it close down the stretch.

The developmental squad had a chance to win the game, but a valiant fourth-quarter effort ended when time ran out with the Rockets at the South Hopkins 1-yard line about to score.

Golf team rolling

Eighth-grader Peyton Purvis led the Rocket golf team with a 1-under-par 35 last Thursday at Mineral Mound Golf Course at Eddyville. He was medalist as Crittenden defeated Lyon and Livingston. Freshmen Sammy Green and Tate Roberts scored 39 and 40, respectively, and senior Logan Belt carded a 47.

Lady Rocket sophomore Lauren Gilchrist shot even-par 36 to win the girls' match.

In action earlier last week, the Rockets beat Hardin County, Ill., and Norris City, Ill., in a match at Cave-n-Rock, Ill. Crittenden shot a team score of 157 with Roberts being low scorer and medalist with an even-par 36. Gilchrist fired a 42 and was medalist for the match.

Soccer girls win two

Leah Fritts and Ashley Wheeler scored a goal apiece on Monday as the Lady Rocket soccer team dropped a match 5-2 at Fifth District foe Lyon County. Wheeler and Kacie Easley each had an assist in the game. Crittenden is now 4-6 overall and 1-2 in league play.

Crittenden and Ballard Memorial played to a stalemate last Thursday at Marion. Ties are not broken in non-district matches. Easley and Wheeler had three goals apiece for the Lady Rockets. Wheeler, Shelby Summers and Jaelyn Duncan each had assists.

Old-timers hit field to benefit youth

Twenty-six men gathered Sunday afternoon at Gordon B. Guess Field at Marion-Crittenden County Park for an Old Timers Baseball Game to benefit youth baseball in Marion. Craig Dossett, one of the oldest players on the roster, hit a three-run homer in the first inning, but his team lost by one run in the nine-inning affair. Pictured are (front from left) Todd Riley, Chad Copeland, Craig Dossett, Aaron Summers, Josh Tinsley, Ryan James, Joe Cappello, Chris Evans, (middle) Brian Hunt, Steven Flahardy, Snapper Gobin,

The event raised more than $700 and no one was injured. Thanks to everyone who participated and all of the fans for their support. A special thanks to Martha Stone for donating her drawing winnings back to the program and the youth players who umpired and chased foul balls.

Grand jurors indict only 1

STAFF REPORT
The Crittenden County Grand Jury handed down just one felony indictment last week during its regular monthly session.

GRAND JURY

A grand jury does not determine guilt or innocence. It merely decides whether enough evidence exists to continue prosecution of a felony case in circuit court.

Lonnice R. Moore, 45, of Marion was indicted last Thursday on a number of charges related to an Aug. 21 incident when he was allegedly intoxicated, entered a home, attacked an individual, threatened others and badly damaged a pair of vehicles.

The police report says Moore was intoxicated when threatened and initiated altercations with a number of residents along Shady Lane. The police report also says children were present at the time.

According to the indictment, Moore is charged with alcohol intoxication in a public place, second-degree disorderly conduct, third-degree terroristic threatening, second-degree burglary, two counts of first-degree criminal mischief and second-degree criminal mischief.

In addition to allegedly choking one person and threatening to burn down another's home, Moore is accused of using a displaced storm door to batter a Dodge van and a Dodge Durango belonging to separate people. The vehicles had broken windows, dents and scrapes, the police report said. He is also alleged to have broken a computer belonging to one of the residents.

McD's robber gets 7 years

STAFF REPORT
The man who robbed two McDonald's restaurant employees at gunpoint in April 2016 pleaded guilty last week in Crittenden Circuit Court. Judge Rene Williams sentenced him to seven years in prison.

Marc Hocking, 30, of Benton, formerly of Marion, was arrested earlier this summer after DNA matched him from a pair of dark sunglasses the robber was wearing and left near the crime scene.

Hocking was a suspect early in the investigation. Police believed his then-girlfriend, Kayla Elliot-Claycomb, 22, of Marion, who worked at McDonald's, helped mastermind the scheme. She is also charged in connection with the robbery. Part of Hocking's plea agreement is that restitution of more than $1,000 be made to McDonald's and he testify truthfully against the co-defendant.

Originally charged with first-degree robbery, Hocking pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of second-degree robbery. Because robbery is considered a violent crime, he will not be eligible for parole until he serves 85 percent of his sentence.

In other cases before Judge Williams last week during the regular monthly session of circuit court:

- Probation was revoked for Billy Don Waynick, 40, of Marion. A revocation hearing was held last week and a probation officer testified in the case. Judge Williams found that Waynick had indeed violated terms on his probation and ordered him to begin serving his original five-year sentence from a 2012 burglary.
- Jessica L. Rose, 29, of Marion pleaded guilty to five counts of forgery of a prescription. Another charge of illegal possession of a legend drug was dismissed. Upon a recommendation by the prosecution, Rose was given a five-year sentence on each count with the time to run concurrently. Her sentence was diverted for five years. The case stems from an investigation by state police late last winter initiated following a complaint from a pharmacy in Livingston County.

- Ricky Curnel, 28, of Marion had his probation revoked following a complaint filed by the Department of Probation and Parole. Curnel was convicted in 2015 of third-degree burglary and given a five-year diverted sentence. The court set aside his diversion and ordered him into the custody of the Department of Corrections to begin serving a five-year prison sentence.
- Bobbi Kirk, 38, of Marion had her pretrial diversion set aside after admitting to a probation violation. She was on a five-year diversion for felony first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine); felony tampering with physical evidence; and misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia. Kirk was ordered to begin serving her original five-year sentence.
- Michael Martin, 23, of Marion had his probation revoked after admitting to a violation of terms of his probation for flagrant non-support. He was ordered to begin serving an original five-year prison sentence.
- Ryan Stallins, 38, of Madisonville admitted violating his probation and was ordered to begin serving a three-year sentence that originated from a 2015 conviction for first-degree possession of a controlled substance (methamphetamine), a Class D felony, and misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia.

- Steve A. Davis, 50, of Marion had a felony case dismissed. He was originally charged with a Class C felony of being a convicted felon in possession of a handgun. Further investigation found that records indicating felony convictions in Georgia were inaccurate. He did plead guilty to misdemeanor charges of possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana. His sentence for those charges was probated for two years.
- Kenneth Orten, 45, of Marion pleaded guilty to flagrant non-support and was given a five-year diverted sentence for a period of five years.
- Stephen Austin Adams, 27, of Princeton pleaded guilty and the commonwealth is recommending an eight-year sentence on an amended charge of manufacturing methamphetamine, a Class C felony. He originally faced a Class A felony charge of second-offense manufacturing of meth. He is also facing two years on a possession of methamphetamine charge and 12 months for misdemeanor possession of drug paraphernalia. The prison time is concurrent, but consecutive to a 12-year drug sentence from another county. Adams will be formally sentenced in November.

‘Adulting’ classes help hone grown-up skills

By MIMI BYRNS
STAFF WRITER
Do you need to sharpen your skills when it comes to basic grown-up tasks like time management, cleaning, household repairs, entering the workforce or budgeting a household?

Crittenden County Extension Service is offering fresh tips for better "adulting" in seven free classes focused on the topics of home economics, preparing meals on a budget, cleaning, time management, entering the workforce and improving leadership skills. Adulting is millennials' favorite new word usually used on Twitter, and it has gone mainstream. Social media users normally connect it to daily, usual, yet inevitable tasks one needs to complete in order to run a household.

Young adults are the primary, but not the only, focus group invited to these practical classes that will take place at the Extension annex starting Tuesday.

The organizers will offer new ideas for saving money at the grocery store, help attendants improve their social skills, as well as promote promising strategies for successful budgeting that will help a person save for emergency funds. The classes are also going to discuss basic household repair dos and don'ts and help with the skills one needs for simple and easy fixes.

For those who are just entering the workforce or looking for a job, there will be an opportunity to learn how to write a resume, fill out a job application, write a cover letter and what to do during an interview and after.

There have been some other counties through the Extension Service that have started these classes, too.

We see there is a need for young adults to learn the topics that we are going to be addressing starting Sept. 26, every month until April 24," said Leslea Barnes, a Crittenden County Extension Service agent.

The classes are free.

"We encourage you to do all of the classes and complete them," Barnes said. "However, you can pick only the ones you need."

And they are not only for young adults. There may be a subject—for example, budgeting—that someone needs extra help with no matter how old they are, and they can still come. However, the idea is for those just graduating college or high school, getting on their own and asking themselves what they need to know and how to adult.

"It is a collaborative effort that we are putting these classes on," Barnes said.

Participants can register by calling (270) 965-5236 in order to get some of the life's most important lessons. The classes take place from 6 to 7:30 p.m. The schedule is as follows:

- The cleaning class is scheduled for Tuesday.
- Cooking meals on a budget will be held Oct. 24.
- How to define yourself as a leader and improve your social skills, Nov. 28.
- The new year will start with a Budgeting 101 class on Jan. 23.
- The time management and organizational skills class takes place on Feb. 27.
- One month later, on March 27, is the household repair class.
- The entire series will finish on April 24 with a lesson on how to search for a job and write a successful resume.
